Q. Let me ask, eliminating the books, do you know, of your own knowledge, what equity you had acquired in the Menlo Club from profits by way of participating to the extent of 15 per cent?

Mr. Campbell: As of what date?

Mr. Gillen: As of the date the Menlo Club closed.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as a period beyond December 31, 1946.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you have any idea at all?

A. No, sir.

Q. Now let me ask you, Mr. Kyne, with regard to the B & R Smoke Shoppe, the first enterprise that you and Mr. Remmer entered into together. Did you have a working interest similar to [1047] the working interest that you had in the Menlo Club in that organization?

Mr. Campbell: If he is referring to a similar document to the written document, I submit the written document is the best evidence.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: I will sustain the objection.

Q. Let me ask you this, Mr. Kyne——

The Court: The reason is, I do not think we should bring that out by comparison.

Mr. Gillen: Very well, I think we can reach it another way.

Q. Mr. Kyne, you testified that in 1941, without making an actual cash investment, that you acquired a 25 per cent partnership interest in the B & R Smoke Shoppe; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Was the agreement regarding your 25 per cent interest with your partners reduced to writing, or was it an oral agreement? A. Oral.

Q. What was the nature of that agreement? Was it a working interest that would ultimately enable you to acquire 25 per cent in physical assets, or was it another kind of agreement?

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object to the question in that form, as calling for the witness' characterization of the agreement.

(Question read.) [1048]

The Court: It is a leading question, but I understand leading questions are proper on cross-examination.

Mr. Campbell: My objection is not that it is leading; it is calling for characterization of agreement, the agreement not being before the Court.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. It was a working agreement.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Will you just state what the agreement was?

A. I received 25 per cent of the profits and ten dollars a day.

Q. Were you to withdraw those profits, 25 per cent of the profits, or were you to leave them in the business for any period of time, or for any reason?

A. I believe we gave Mr. Remmer back his bank roll.

Q. In other words, you were to leave your profits in the business until Mr. Remmer had recovered his initial investment; is that correct?

A. I think that is it.

Q. Now in regard to the second enterprise that you went into with Mr. Remmer and one other person, as I recall, 110 Eddy Street tavern, what was your interest in that?

A. That was a working interest.

Q. I mean what percentage?

A. I wound up with 25 per cent.

Q. Was the agreement with regard to your partnership in the 110 Eddy Street reduced to writing or was it an oral agreement? [1049] A. Oral.

Q. Now I understood your testimony to be that with regard to that 25 per cent you had actually put in no investment? A. That's correct.

Q. You received 25 per cent under a working agreement; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And were you to withdraw 25 per cent of the profits or were you to leave it in the business for any reason? A. Building up the inventory.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. You were to leave it in the business to build up the inventory? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that what happened? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now with regard to the B & R Smoke Shoppe and with regard to the 110 Eddy Street tavern business, you were chargeable on the books of those businesses with the profits, a share of the profits to which you were entitled?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to—the books are the best evidence.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: I think those are in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: I still say they are the best evidence of their contents. [1050]

Q. You paid income taxes, did you not, on your share of profits that were credited to you; isn't that so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you get the money to pay income tax on the share of profits credited to you in those two businesses, namely, the B & R and 110 Eddy?

A. I had money for the B & R Smoke Shoppe myself and got 110 money from Bob Slater, the bookeeper.

Q. Now with regard to the 186 Club, what was your interest in that Club? A. One-sixth.

Q. And if I remember correctly, that is the enterprise that was originally started as a partnership with seven persons, each owning one-sixth interest and two of the persons owning one-sixth between them; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And then after eight months or a year, at the direction of the man from the Internal Revenue Department, you were required to change that from a partnership to a corporation?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. That is right.

Q. Now as I recall your testimony, you testified that you did not actually put any money in for that one-sixth interest in the 186 Club; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. What was the nature of your interest [1051] in that? A. Working interest.

Q. Was that working interest arising out of agreement that was reduced to writing, or was that an oral agreement; I mean initially?

A. It was oral.

Q. Subsequently, when it was set up as a corporation, there were some corporate papers kept on it, some minutes, references; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now with regard to the 186 Club, I believe that was the enterprise that made no money; is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. That is the enterprise that was filled with markers rather than cash?

A. That is correct.

Q. What was the arrangement, however, with regard to when you would acquire any interest in the physical assets in the event there were profits? In other words, were you to take out the profits or were you to leave them in the business for any reason? A. Take them out.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. You were to take out the profits in the 186 Club? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now in the 186 Club, you paid some income tax on that, did you not? A. Yes, sir. [1052]

Q. Now let me go back for a moment to the inception of the 186 Club. Isn't it a fact that the agreement was that Mr. Kopstick and Mr. Nealis, who between them had put up some 16 thousand dollars for a one-sixth interest in the enterprise, between them were to receive their money back first? A. That is correct.

Q. And their money was given back to them out of the profits, isn't that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And as I understood your testimony yesterday, you gave it to them when, as, and if you were able to give it to them, in installments?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now you were, and the other persons interested with you were, nevertheless credited with certain profits out of that, were you not?

A. That's right.

Q. Do you recall, Mr. Kyne, the first year of the operation of the 186 Club when it was operated as a partnership, the profits were approximately 12 thousand dollars, as I recall?

A. I do not remember.

Q. Well, do you recall that two thousand dollars of the profits was credited on account of Mr. Remmer, do you recall that?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you recall that nobody drew down any of the twelve thousand [1053] dollar profit in that first year because it was all turned over to Kopstick and Nealis to give them their money back and buy up their interest? A. I don't remember.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Q. I would like you to look at defendant's Exhibit "P." With the permission of the Court I will show you defendant's Exhibit "P" in evidence, and on the reverse side you will note the partnership interest, that is, what was credited to each person, and I will ask you if that refreshes your recollection the first year, while it was still operating as a partnership, the profit was 12 thousand dollars, each partner was given credit for a share of that, but that actually the whole 12 thousand dollars was turned over to Kopstick and Nealis to pay back their interest? A. That's correct.

Q. And then in addition to that 12 thousand dollars, there was four thousand dollars more to take Kopstick and Nealis out of that business?

A. There was no money given to the partners.

Q. There was no money given to the partners even though the partnership return for that year showed credit to the account of Busterna, two thousand, Casselini, two thousand, Kyne, two thousand and five cents, Lando, two thousand, Jess Kopstick, one thousand and Carl Nealis, one thousand, total of twelve thousand five cents; even though each partner was credited with having received [1054] that much profit, none of the partners took any money out except Kopstick and Nealis, who were given the money to buy out their one-sixth interest, is that correct? A. Yes.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. And the reason, I presume, Kopstick and Nealis were each shown to have credit of one thousand dollars instead of two thousand against every other partner was because they owned one-sixth between them, is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. And they were splitting between them the profit on the one-sixth interest? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, after approximately a year, or the following year then, due to the direction of a man from the Internal Revenue Department, the 186 Club was thereafter set up as a corporation?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is when it began to get markers instead of money and made no money, showed no profits, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, let me invite your attention now to the Day-Night Smoke Shoppe, which you recall was the store in front of the 186 Club, being the social club in back and the Day-Night Cigar Store in front, is that correct?

A. That is right. [1055]

Q. That was a different enterprise altogether?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. That was retail liquor, cigars, magazines, periodicals, pin ball machines, is that true?

A. Right.

Q. In that organization or enterprise you had what, one-third interest? A. One-third.

Q. And your two partners, together with Mr. Remmer and Mr. Lando? A. Lando.

Q. Let me ask you whether or not the agreement

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

that gave you a one-third interest in the Day-Night Cigar Store was a written or oral agreement?

A. Oral.

Q. And what was the nature of your interest in that Day-Night? Was it a partnership or working agreement? A. Working.

Q. And as I understood your testimony on direct examination you had not actually put up any money for that one-third interest? A. That's right.

Q. And what was the agreement with regard to what should have been done, outside of drawing or salary or commissions, with the one-third profit? Was it to be drawn down by you or put [1056] back in the business?

A. We put it back into inventory.

Q. So that the business that orginally showed one year inventory, the first year some 11 thousand dollars merchandise, is that correct?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you recall that that was the enterprise that doubled its inventory the following year?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to, the books and records of the business are the best evidence.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Mr. Kyne, with the Court's permission, I will show you prosecution's Exhibits 84 and 86, and I will identify those for you as partnership income tax returns for the Day-Night Cigar Stand for the year 1944, being Exhibit 84, and the return for the same organization for the year 1946, being Exhibit 86. Will you look at the first page, where it states

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

what is the inventory in 1944 return and you will note there it shows inventory of 11 thousand dollars. A. $11,889.

Mr. Campbell: As of what year?

Mr. Gillen: Beginning of year 1944, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now will you look at Exhibit 86 and will you tell us what it shows there for the inventory as of the year 1946 rather [1057] the end of the year 1946?

A. End of the year shows $22,466.44 inventory.

Q. So you doubled your inventory. Now was there anything which was supposed to have been done in the way of returning initial investment to the initial investor out of the profits that were to be derived from the Day-Night Cigar Stand?

A. It all went back into inventory.

Q. Now let me ask you, the oral agreement, in which you and Mr. Remmer and Mr. Lando each held one-third interest in the Day-Night Cigar Store, did that oral agreement contemplate that Mr. Remmer was to receive his initial investment back out of the profits before the profits were to be drawn out by the partners? A. I think so.

Mr. Campbell: I ask that the answer be stricken as not responsive.

The Court: It may stand.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, the next enterprise then was the Menlo Club and as to that, we have already examined into that and found that that was the one agreement that was reduced to writing, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. And your percentage was different, it was a 15 per cent interest in the profits?

A. Yes. [1058]

Q. Now finally the sixth enterprise that you became interested in with Mr. Remmer was the Transit Smoke Shop?

A. That is right. That was in writing also, the agreeement.

Q. And in that instance you borrowed $16,005.50 from the Menlo account and put that in as your share of the investment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In the Transit Smoke Shop, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then as I recall your testimony you took that 16 thousand dollars and put it into the box 48 and it was used as it was needed in the various enterprises in which Mr. Remmer was interested and which you were interested in, is that correct?

A. That's right.

Q. Now Mr. Campbell examined you, Mr. Kyne, regarding the records that you kept of the B & R Smoke Shoppe. Do you recall your examination on that subject? A. Yes.

Q. And you were shown, as I recollect, diaries for certain years, in which you had noted on the particular date pages when the transactions occurred initially, whether the enterprise had made any money or had lost any money on that day, is that true? A. That's right.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. And initially entries were very simply, simply showed lost so much money or won so much, as the case might be, is that correct? [1059]

A. That's right.

Q. And then you testified at some later time your mode of bookkeeping was changed to the extent of making more than one entry regarding losses or winnings, is that true? A. That's right.

Q. And you stated, in answer to a question by Mr. Campbell, that that was the way the government wanted you to do it, do you recall that answer? A. That is correct.

Q. Will you state what was meant by that answer and how that came about that was so?

A. Mr. Izraole suggested it.

Q. Who was Mr. Izraole?

A. Government agent.

Q. Of the Internal Revenue? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Had he checked over your accounts in his official capacity at one time or another?

A. He had all my accounts.

Q. What was the change that was suggested by Mr. Izraole?

A. That I enter the daily play, daily pay-out and daily take.

Q. In other words, when you say daily play, pay-out and take, Mr. Izraole wanted you to show how much money had passed through your hands in gross form and your disbursements and how much was retained by you, is that correct? [1060]

A. That is right.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Now the play was the amount of betting that passed through your hands, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the take, I understand, was the winnings? A. That's right.

Q. And the pay-out meant the losses plus the expenses, is that correct? A. That's right.

Q. And, thereafter, following that suggestion by Mr. Izraole, you kept those records that way?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now you were also questioned by Mr. Campbell regarding the transactions that are known in racing parlance as layoffs. There is only one form really of layoff, is there not; that is where a man making a book feels he has too much money on a horse and he lays it off to somebody who is willing to take part of the bet or risk with him, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Now the matter of accepting part of a risk is not a layoff, is it? That is making a bet, so far as you are concerned. Do I make myself clear?

A. No, you don't.

Q. If I were to call you, Mr. Kyne, and say to you, I have twenty thousand dollars bet on a horse, I don't want to keep [1061] all of that, would you like to take some part of the risk with me, or some part of the bet, whatever you took from me I would be laying off to you? A. Giving me a bet.

Q. I mean so far as I am concerned, I would be laying off to you? A. Yes.

Q. Whatever part of that risk you would be willing to take, you would be taking a bet, isn't that correct? A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Now with regard to another situation that has been testified to here, I believe both by you and Mr. Lando, there is still another aspect of this laying off, which is where you do not care to take any money yourself, but you agree, as a matter of courtesy, to try to find someone who is willing to take some of the money, is that true? A. Yes.

Q. So if I had an opportunity to take 20 thousand dollars worth of bets on a horse and I thought I didn't want to take that entire risk and I called you up and asked you if you cared to take any and you didn't care to take it but you would agree to find somebody else who would take it, you would be merely doing me a courtesy, for which you earned no money, is that right? A. Yes, sir. [1062]

Q. Now, with regard to that courtesy business—let me put it this way so we can understand—it is a homely illustration that we may follow through—if I called you and say I have 20 thousand dollars on a horse and didn't want to carry all of it and you said you didn't care to take it on and I said, "Can you find somebody that might be willing to take some of it" and you found Mr. Avakian, for example, who was willing to take some of the risk, the money would pass through your hands, would it not? A. Yes, it would.

Q. Regardless of whether it was win or lose, it would pass through your hands, is that true?

A. That is right.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. So depending upon what resulted, you would either be sending some money to me or sending some money to Mr. Avakian? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And those are the kind of transactions that you handle with cashier's checks, is that true?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, on those transactions, where you did not take any of the laid-off money yourself, but you found somebody else as a matter of courtesy for me, did you receive any emolument, any percentage, commission, or anything for doing that?

A. Only in the one instance I brought out the other day of the California Jockey Club. [1063]

Q. And that was a situation that existed only for a short period of time? A. That is right.

Q. But for professional bookmakers you receive nothing, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. As a matter of fact, in those instances you were actually out any telephone tolls that you incurred? A. That is correct.

Q. And you did that as a matter of courtesy for what reason?

A. We expected the same treatment with other people.

Q. You expected reciprocal courtesies from whoever you helped out in situations, is that correct?

A. That is right.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, when you were examined regarding your accounts for the B & R Smoke Shoppe by Mr. Campbell the other day, there was produced in evidence, as I recall, your books for the years, I think, 1943, 1945, and 1946, and no book for 1944. Do you recall that?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. Yes, I do.

Q. As a matter of fact, I do not think books of 1945, because you were away in 1945.

Mr. Campbell: I think there is only one or two entries in the 1945 book.

Q. Let me ask you, Mr. Kyne, did you keep a set of records of [1064] the transactions of the B & R Smoke Shoppe for the year 1944?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you keep them in the same manner, in the same kind of diary? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you turn over to the Internal Revenue agents your 1944 diary of the B & R Smoke Shoppe transactions, together with these other diaries that have been produced here? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When was that done by you?

A. I believe in '46.

Q. In 1946? A. I think so.

Q. May I have that diary? May I ask counsel, through the Court if I may have that 1944 diary?

Mr. Campbell: I will state that we have no such diary.

Q. Did you receive a receipt from the Internal Revenue agent? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you receive a receipt from the Internal Revenue man for any of the books that you turned over to him or any of the records?

A. I believe I have one receipt dealing with the 186 Club.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Do you know where that is?

A. I think Conrad Hubner has it, I am not sure.

Q. Conrad Hubner is the tax lawyer in San Francisco, is that [1065] correct? A. Yes.

Mr. Gillen: I wonder if I might ask counsel, through the court, if the prosecution will produce any copy of any receipt they gave Mr. Kyne for any records turned over by Mr. Kyne to the Internal Revenue agents?

Mr. Campbell: I do not have any receipts. I do not know whether any were given or not. I can explore the subject.

Mr. Gillen: I wonder if we might ask counsel, through the Court, if he will seek to find any receipt given Mr. Kyne and also have the agents seek to find the 1944 diary?

Mr. Campbell: I have stated we do not have in our possession the 1944 diary.

Mr. Gillen: I wonder if they have receipt that might show what became of it?

Mr. Campbell: I object to this method of procedure.

Mr. Gillen: There is nothing improper about asking.

The Court: I understand counsel has stated the government hasn't the 1944 diary.

Mr. Campbell: And I am not prepared to answer the question as to receipts because I don't know, but I will explore that subject and will advise counsel.

Mr. Gillen: If counsel finds the 1944 diary, may

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

I ask through the Court that they produce it? I would like to examine it. [1066]

Mr. Campbell: I will be more than happy to.

Q. When you turned over the records of these various enterprises to the Internal Revenue man, you also turned over to them, did you not, your agreement on the Menlo Club?

A. I gave them a photostatic copy of it.

Q. With Mr. Remmer, about 15 per cent of the Menlo Club? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, by the way, who were the agents who took these records from you?

A. The first one was Izraole, then there was Weaver, Morgan, Marcus and some fellow back in the army, a captain.

Q. You don't recall his name?

A. Mr. Weaver will know.

Q. When you turned over these records to these agents, did any or all of them agree to return them to you?

A. They said I could have access to them.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, you were asked by Mr. Campbell yesterday, I believe it was, whether or not you personally had had anything to do with making out the individual income tax returns of the defendant, Elmer Remmer, during the years in question here, 1944, 1945, and 1946. Do you recall that question? A. I believe I do.

Q. And you answered that you had nothing to do with preparing the individual income tax returns of Mr. Remmer, is that right?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. Yes, sir. [1067]

Q. Now, did you have anything to do with providing the data to be put into the individual income tax returns of Mr. Remmer. A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you have to do in that regard?

A. I gave the figures from each enterprise to Pat Mooney to make up the total.

Q. In other words, you gave the figures showing any profits or credits due Mr. Remmer from each enterprise, such as the B & R and 110 and 186 and Day-Night and so on, to Mr. Mooney?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now, of course I presume that the year that you were in the army—you left in the month of February of 1945 and didn't return, as I recall your testimony until June, 1946, from the service—I take it that year you were not here to provide those figures.

Mr. Campbell: I object to the question in that form, because the period related by counsel covers two filing dates.

The Court: Let me have the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Gillen: I think, your Honor, there is in the record a showing here that Mr. Remmer's individual tax return was in that year extended and was not filed until after Mr. Kyne's return from the army.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. I don't think I was here. [1068]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Do you recall that the 1946 return of Mr. Remmer was not filed by reason of extensions being granted to both Elmer Remmer and Helen Remmer, until following your return from the service in 1946?

Mr. Campbell: I submit that question is misleading. That return would not be filed until 1947. It must be filed by the 15th of March for the succeeding year.

Mr. Gillen: I am in error on that. I withdraw the question. I have in mind the 1945 returns.

Q. Mr. Kyne, do you have any recollection of the fact that the 1945 returns, individual income tax returns, of Helen Remmer and Elmer Remmer were not filed by reason of extensions granted by the government until June 14, 1946, some weeks following your return to work from the service?

A. I wouldn't remember that.

Q. Well, let me show you prosecution's Exhibit 3, which is the 1945 return of Elmer Remmer and prosecution's Exhibit 4, which is the return for the same year of Helen Remmer; first, I will ask you to look at the receiving stamps on those and see if they refresh your recollection. If they do, all right, if they don't, all right.

Mr. Campbell: Unless the witness is familiar with the document, I don't see how it could refresh his recollection. These documents were prepared by another individual.

The Court: We will see if it does. [1069]

A. I wouldn't remember these documents.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Let me ask you, Mr. Kyne, the data that you furnished regarding credits due Mr. Remmer out of the various enterprises, the date that you furnished Mr. Pat Mooney for the purpose of enabling him to make up individual tax returns of Elmer Remmer and Helen Remmer, was that data true and correct, to the best of your knowledge and ability to determine? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you give that data to Mr. Mooney, did he ask you for it or did you volunteer to give it to him, or how did it come about, if you recall?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to unless the use or years for which the data was given is developed.

Mr. Gillen: I will withdraw that.

Q. How many years did you furnish information to Mr. Mooney concerning individual income tax returns of Helen Remmer and Elmer Remmer?

A. About five or six years.

Q. How did he get the information from you?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to unless it be established for what years the data was furnished, so we can determine whether or not these questions are within the issues here.

Mr. Gillen: I am trying to save time.

Q. Can you tell us approximately within what year range you gave those? [1070]

A. From about 1942 on.

Q. From about 1942 on? A. Yes.

Q. For five or six years? A. Yes.

Q. Now, did you give him that data each year in those successive years, with the exception, of course, of the year that you were away in the service?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How did he get that data from you, by telephone, personal contact, letter, or what?

A. He usually came to San Francisco on a vacation and took care of it then. If he couldn't come to San Francisco, I called him in Reno.

Q. You were shown a letter by Mr. Campbell, which is defendant's Exhibit "H," purporting to be a letter to you from Mr. Pat Mooney on date of March 7, 1947, and you were asked whether or not you recollect receiving that letter. Do you remember the question? A. Yes.

Q. And as I recall your answer, you said you did not remember receiving that letter.

A. No, I do not.

Q. Do you recall whether or not you ever received a letter of inquiry from Mr. Mooney regarding data for Elmer Remmer's income [1071] tax return? A. I received two or three.

Q. But you don't recall, or do you recall now, what they were about or whether this was one of them?

A. Well, he wanted me to give him the figures directly because Mr. Remmer used to lose them.

Q. In other words, if you gave the figures to Mr. Remmer, he would lose them before they got to Pat Mooney? A. That is right.

Q. And Mr. Mooney asked you to give him the figures directly? A. That is right.

Q. So am I correct in asuming that you would not say that you did not receive that letter, you just don't recall?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. I don't recall the exact letter.

MR. KYNE

resumed the witness stand on further

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Kyne, you have mentioned from time to time, through your direct examination and I believe your cross-examination also, that one safety deposit box that was maintained for taking care of case was Box 48 of the Day and Night Branch of the Bank of America, that is correct, is it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I believe you also mentioned that there was a safe at 50 Mason Street, the main office to certain of the enterprises, is that true?

A. That is right.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Was money kept in that safe during the years in question? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then you mentioned also the Crocker safety deposit box that you and Mr. Remmer had together. Was money kept in that safety deposit box? A. No, sir.

Q. And that was the box the name Henry Clay was attached to? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And no money was kept there? [1073]

A. No, sir.

Q. I understood your testimony to be that Mr. Remmer never went to either Box 48 in the Bank of America nor the Crocker Bank box, is that true? A. I don't believe he did.

Q. And I believe you mentioned also there was a safe at 110 Eddy? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was there money kept in that safe?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then when the Menlo Social Club was acquired, I believe you stated there was a safe at the Menlo Social Club? A. There was.

Q. Was money kept in that safe?

A. Just over night.

Q. That was part of your duties, to go and pick up that money, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And take it usually to 50 Mason Street or Box 48? A. That is correct.

Q. In Box 48 was there an appreciable amount of money through the years?

A. It varied every day.

Q. Sometimes would be considerable and sometimes less? A. Yes, sir. [1074]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Was that also the situation with regard to the safe at 50 Mason Street?

A. Well that the diary will show.

Q. And with regard to the safe at the Menlo Club, I think you said that was only left there over night? A. Over night.

Q. Now, in your direct testimony you were asked regarding a transaction wherein you obtained some money from Box 48 of the Day and Night Branch of the Bank of America, and with it purchased a check for 34 thousand some odd dollars, I think $34,608, cashier's check made payable to Haas Bros.? A. That is correct.

Q. And you did that at the instance and request of Mr. Remmer, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Haas Bros. is probably the largest wholesale grocery in San Francisco for the Northern California, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. In other words, they are wholesale grocers who also deal in liquor and all food commodities, groceries? A. Correct.

Q. And then I understood your testimony to be that at some subsequent time—this check was issued, I recall in September of 1943?

A. I don't remember the exact date. [1075]

Q. You were informed, were you not, at that time that this check to Haas Bros. in the sum of $34,608 was for the purchase of whiskey?

A. Carload of whiskey.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, prosecution's Exhibit 121 is exhibit which contains photostatic copies of an application of cashier's check plus the cashier's check itself, the application being your application to the Bank of America to issue cashier's check to Haas Bros., and the date of the check is September 7, 1943, does that refresh your recollection?

A. I don't remember the exact date. The check should speak for itself.

Q. Well, the date that shows on here, you would not dispute it? A. That is right.

Q. As I understood your testimony, at some later time that same year, I believe in November, a check was issued by Haas Bros. which was cashed by some one other than yourself?

A. Will you repeat that again?

Q. I believe your testimony was that at some later time, in November of 1943, a check was issued by Haas Bros. in the same amount, 34 thousand odd dollars, and that check was endorsed and cashed by somebody other than yourself?

A. That is right.

Q. And you stated, I believe, when shown the exhibit—I show you prosecution's Exhibit 121A, Mr. Kyne, you were shown prosecution's [1076] Exhibit 121A, if I may show this to the witness, and look on the reverse side of the photostat of that check, and tell us whether or not that is your signature? A. That is not my signature.

Q. You were asked, I believe, whether or not you were acquainted with the handwriting following that endorsement and you said you were not?

A. That is correct.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. You did state, however, that Mr. Remmer had your power of attorney to sign your name, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you have Mr. Remmer's power of attorney, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, at a subsequent time you did receive a check for $17,739 and some odd cents, I believe 50 cents, from Barengo or the Sierra Wine Company, did you not? A. That is correct.

Q. And it came to your attention and knowledge that that was a refund from the money that had been put up for the whiskey, is that true?

A. That is correct.

Q. And that money, I believe you stated, you put into Box 48 and commingled it with the other funds in Box 48? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Kyne, you were asked some questions by Mr. Campbell regarding [1077] your individual 1943 returns, income tax returns, do you recall the questions? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall being shown your individual income tax return for the year 1943, in which you were credited with the entire profit and paid an income tax on the entire profit for that year of the Day-Night Cigar Stand? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now that Cigar Stand at that time was a partnership, was it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you prepare your own individual income tax return, or did somebody else prepare it for you?

A. Slater.

Q. Do you know why Mr. Slater charged the entire 1943 profits of the Day-Night Cigar Stand to you?

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for his conclusion as to what Slater had in mind.

The Court: You may answer the question.

Q. I am asking you if you know why that was charged to you?

A. The liquor license was in my name.

Q. The liquor license of the Day-Night?

A. And I imagine he followed that out.

Mr. Campbell: I ask that go out.

The Court: It may go out. [1078]

Q. You can't imagine, Mr. Kyne. Do you know why Mr. Slater did that?

A. That would be the reason, he followed it out.

Q. At all events, Mr. Slater prepared it that way for you to sign, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Of course you had informed Mr. Slater, and Mr. Slater having kept the books, knew that the Day-Night Cigar Stand was a partnership?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. He prepared the partnership returns, too, did he not, for the Day-Night Cigar Stand?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did the Internal Revenue Department ever come to you and say in effect, "The Day-Night Cigar Stand is a partnership; therefore all the partners should have paid tax on this income; therefore, you have overpaid, Mr. Kyne, and here is a refund"?

Mr. Campbell: I object to the question in that form. Obviously a department cannot come to an individual. I think we are entitled to more precise questions. The Department of Internal Revenue is an intangible thing in itself.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Gillen: I will reframe the question.

Q. Did anybody from the Internal Revenue ever come to you and say in effect, "Mr. Kyne, you overpaid your income tax return on the Day-Night Cigar Stand; you should have only paid your [1079] partnership interest instead of paying all the tax due from that partnership, therefore, you have a refund and here is a refund," did anything like that ever happen? A. No, sir.

Q. They kept the money that you paid?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you did pay on the entire profits shown for the Day-Night Cigar Stand? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that question was never raised by the Internal Revenue Department, is that correct?

A. No, sir.

Q. Now, with regard to the 110 Eddy establishment, I believe you stated in your direct examination that there was a Clarence Bent who was a partner in that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I believe you were asked by Mr. Campbell and stated that you had been charged for and had paid for two-thirds of the profits that were made by the 110 establishment for the year 1943?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, I believe you testified that Mr. Bent died? A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Did Mr. Bent die during the year 1943?

A. I don't remember which year. I guess it was that year, '43 [1080] or '44.

Q. And who was it that prepared the partnership return for the 110 Eddy enterprise?

A. Slater.

Q. And who was it that prepared your individual partnership return for the year 1943, in which you were charged with and paid for two-thirds of the profit? A. Slater.

Q. Did anybody from the Internal Revenue Department ever come to you since that time and say, "Mr. Kyne, you overpaid with regard to the profits of the 110 Eddy establishment. As a partner you should not have paid two-thirds, and therefore here is a refund for your overpayment"?

A. No, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, as I recall your testimony, at the time you went into the United States army—and it has been referred to that you were in the army and navy, it was the army?

A. I was also in the Air Corps.

Q. Was that separate from the army at that time? A. I was in the army.

Q. Now, you entered the service on February 14, 1945, is that correct?

A. Valentine's Day, yes, sir.

Q. And I believe you were transferred to Fayetteville, North Carolina? [1081]

A. North Carolina.

Q. At the time you went into service, the Menlo

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Club was not an enterprise in which you or Mr. Remmer were interested? A. No, sir.

Q. That was acquired whi you were away, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. If I remember correctly, the agreement will show that that was acquired on May 1, 1945?

A. I believe that's the month it was purchased.

Q. Because your agreement, which was written in November, was retroactive as of May 1, 1945?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, at the time you left is it true that the only card room or social club in which you and Mr. Remmer were interested was the 186 Club?

A. That's correct.

Q. And at the time you left for the army, what did your records show with regard to credits in the form of markers, as they have been called here, but have been explained as IOUs from people owing to the 186 Club?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not the best evidence. The books themselves are the best evidence.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Well, do you remember what was the condition of the 186 Club with regard to IOUs or markers? [1082]

Mr. Campbell: Same objection.

The Court: Same ruling.

Mr. Gillen: If I may be indulged a moment, I believe there is some testimony in regard to this in the direct examination.

Q. Mr. Kyne, do you have any independent

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

recollection of what was owed to the 186 Club by way of markers or IOUs left by people at the time you went in the army?

Mr. Campbell: The books and records are the best evidence.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: May I respectfully suggest, your Honor, he can testify to any recollection he has. He is the man who was the chief custodian in charge of these things. I think if he has any independent recollection on it, he should be permitted to state.

The Court: Well, I think the books and records are the best evidence.

Q. Well, Mr. Kyne, after you returned from the army in June of 1946, do you have any independent recollection of whether or not the markers or IOUs owing to the 186 Club were increased or decreased?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection, the records are the best evidence.

The Court: Same ruling.

Q. Mr. Kyne, you testified that you tended to the money matters [1083] and records that were turned over to you, that you in turn turned over to the bookkeepers or auditors in all the places in which you and Mr. Remmer were interested, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And among your duties you enumerated that you went every day and picked up lists, picked up money, put the money where it should be. You also stated if one enterprise needed money, that came out of a common fund from the enterprises to help the enterprise who needed it?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Among your duties in connection with the various enterprises in which you and Mr. Remmer were interested, did you have anything to do with the good will and public relations of those enterprises towards customers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you at Christmas time suggest what customers you thought should receive Christmas presents? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you know what was the usual Christmas present that was sent to customers by Mr. Remmer?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not within the scope of direct examination.

The Court: Objection will be sustained.

Mr. Gillen: May I respectfully say I think it is within the scope because counsel examined this witness as to his duties [1084] in direct examination and I think we encountered the same thing the other day with Mr. Lando and I think I am entitled to enlarge on cross-examination on those duties and find out if there were other duties to perform in addition to carrying money from one place to another or hiring bookkeepers. I asked him if he had anything to do with public relations and good will and he said yes. I think it would be perfectly proper to permit me to go into that.

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Mr. Gillen: May I respectfully offer to your

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Honor when our explanation was given during the cross-examination of Mr. Lando, you did permit me to examine Mr. Lando on his recommendations as to who was to receive Sulka ties.

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Mr. Gillen: It isn't so——

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Mr. Gillen: Of course the ruling will stand, but I will say too for the record, it is——

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Mr. Gillen: This is another question, your Honor, in my mind and not in derogation of your Honor's ruling.

Q. Did you ever receive any presents of Sulka ties from Mr. Remmer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. More than one? [1085] A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: Now, I am going to ask another question, your Honor, which I do not believe is in derogation of your Honor's order.

Q. In the course of your duties in and about the Menlo Club and other various enterprises, did you at Christmas time participate in wrapping of any neckties to be given as presents to customers of the various enterprises?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not within the scope of direct examination.

The Court: I think you waived that. You had no objection to that last question. He testified here in response to a question, "Did you receive any presents" and you made no objection.

Mr. Campbell: That is a different situation, if the Court please, than called for in this question presently propounded.

The Court: It seems to me it wasn't embraced within direct examination. I will overrule the objection.

Q. His Honor says you may answer the question. A. I did wrap ties at Christmas.

Q. Were they Sulka ties? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Kyne, you were asked with regard to bank accounts, or your knowledge of bank accounts, that Mr. Remmer had and you [1086] stated, I believe, that Mr. Remmer had a bank account, in which you had no interest, in Tracy, California?

A. That's correct.

Q. And that was approximately 90 miles from San Francisco? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And it is true, is it not, that Mr. Remmer at one time owned a restaurant and tavern business in Tracy, California, is that correct?

A. I believe it was a tavern.

Q. And it is within your knowledge, is it not, that that personal bank account at Tracy was in existence for many years? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, I may be in error about this, Mr. Kyne, but I believe when Mr. Campbell was examining you concerning the Haas Bros. check for $34,608, he asked you—I will withdraw that. I think what is correct is Mr. Campbell showed you the check of November, 1943, November 4th, I believe it is, 1943, the Haas Bros. check.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: Would you mind referring to the exhibit number if there is one?

Q. I am referring now to prosecution's Exhibit 121A for identification. I believe Mr. Campbell, when he showed you the Haas Bros. check, refunding $34,608, which you said was endorsed by some one other than yourself, asked you if you recalled seeing that check at his office in May of 1950. Do you remember [1087] that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you were interviewed by Mr. Campbell in May of 1950, were you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And during the course of that interview with Mr. Campbell, did you explain to Mr. Campbell what was meant by the working agreements you had in the various enterprises with Mr. Remmer, including the 15 per cent working agreement that you had in the profits of the Menlo Club?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: Well, I would like to be heard on that, may it please the Court. I think it is a very vital part of the defense's case and I think the defense counsel should have an opportunity to present it to your Honor out of the presence of the jury.

The Court: We will excuse the jury.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor sustained the objection of counsel to the last question. I am going to ask some other questions touching the same subject matter. Those questions are not now in disobedience to your Honor's ruling, but will be questions I deem perfectly proper. If they are objected to, of course——

The Court: I would like to ask counsel a question. Isn't it a rule when an objection to a question is sustained, that the matter should not be pursued further?

Mr. Gillen: I do not think so, your Honor. I think the question should not be pursued further, of course.

The Court: Well, the same subject matter. I had in mind a situation where counsel might, in the face of an objection sustained, might change the appearance——

Mr. Gillen: I will be glad to tell your Honor what I intend to do. It is my understanding that in cross-examination the cross-examiner is entitled to ask the witness this question, by either side,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

whether or not he ever discussed his testimony with the prosecution, with the particular attorney who examines him, and questions pertaining to what was discussed. I think that is perfectly proper cross-examination.

Mr. Campbell: That is not our understanding, if the Court please. [1089]

The Court: Let us proceed. We will have the question read.

(Last question before jury was excused read.)

The Court: Objection was sustained to that.

Mr. Gillen: I am going to ask another question.

Mr. Pike: Your Honor, if I may comment, in view of counsel's statement. I will say this, that it is my understanding likewise that it is in order to ask a witness called by opposite parties who they have discussed their testimony with, but the record in this present instance shows that Mr. Kyne has discussed matters with Mr. Campbell and that matter has already been gone into and I respectfully suggest if there are other questions seeking to elaborate on that discussion, further discussion should take place in the absence of the jury.

Mr. Gillen: Counsel is saying now because——

The Court: Well, we will excuse the jury again until one o'clock this afternoon.

resumes the witness stand on further

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Kyne, you were interviewed by Mr. Campbell in May of 1950 concerning the matters pertaining to the income tax and the business affiliations with relation to Mr. Remmer?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial and incompetent.

The Court: Objection sustained. This question has already been answered.

Mr. Gillen: I was not aware of that, your Honor. I will ask another question, contemplating it is already in the record and he so testified.

Q. Did your interview with Mr. Campbell consist of meeting one day or more than one day?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Who was present beside Mr. Campbell during the course of the interview?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: May I say respectfully, your Honor, I believe where there is evidence of a meeting or conversation between people that it is perfectly proper to ask who else was present at the meeting.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: Due to the peculiar situation we have here, the ruling will stand. [1091]

Q. At the interview with Mr. Campbell in May, 1950, did you relate to Mr. Campbell approximately what you related on cross-examination here and nothing different than what you related under cross-examination here, with regard to Mr. Remmer's affairs, as you knew Mr. Remmer's affairs?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent, calling for his conclusion and immaterial.

The Court: Objection sustained. I wish you would not pursue the subject any farther.

Mr. Gillen: May I make one observation to your Honor in connection with your Honor's ruling?

The Court: I would rather not.

Mr. Gillen: If your Honor tells me to desist, I will desist.

The Court: I would rather not.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, is it your testimony that in all of the six enterprises in which you were interested with Mr. Remmer, that you attended to the management of those enterprises, the handling of the money, the handling of the records, the engaging of the bookkeepers and auditors?

A. I handled the money and sheets and hired the bookkeepers except for Mr. Maundrell.

Q. Now, there was also for the Menlo Club a public accountant by the name of Ayton, was there not? A. That is correct. [1092]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. And you did not engage Mr. Ayton, did you? A. No, sir.

Q. Mr. Ayton was a man who had for some ten years prior to Mr. Remmer's acquiring an interest in the Menlo Club, kept the books and records for the predecessors of Mr. Remmer, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And one more thing, Mr. Kyne—oh, and in regard to Mr. Ayton, he was just kept on because he was familiar with the books and records?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. One more thing, Mr. Kyne—you stated in your direct examination, and I believe you testified on cross, that in regard to the 186 Club, that an Internal Revenue agent directed that the 186 Club make a return as a corporation rather than as a partnership the first year it was in operation, is that correct?

A. We made a partnership return the first year.

Q. Now, that Revenue agent was a Mr. Mooser, was he not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Let me ask you whether or not you recall that Mr. Mooser visited the 186 Club and remained there for some length of time making observations of the average business that was done?

A. He was there about a month.

Q. Did he prepare what he considered the average business of the club from his personal observations carried on there for a [1093] period of a month?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for this

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

witness' conclusion as to Mr. Mooser's conclusion.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. I understand you to say that Mr. Mooser stayed at the club there for the period of a month?

A. About a month.

Q. Did he tell you what he was doing there?

A. He had our sheets and records, more or less wanted to verify them.

Q. Did he tell you how he was verifying them?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did he tell you in that regard?

A. By his own observation.

Q. That is, he was observing the amount of business done there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And checking that against your records?

A. That's right.

Q. And did he present to you what he stated was his conclusion regarding the average business at the 186 Club over that period of time?

A. He presented that information to our attorney, John Taffe.

Q. And that is Mr. John Taffe, who is now deceased? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, I am going to show you defendant's Exhibit [1094] "Q" in evidence, which purports to be corporation interest profits tax return for the 186 Club for the fiscal period beginning July 1, 1942, and ending June 30, 1943, and I will ask you to look at the signature of the deputy collector at the bottom of that page and tell us if that is the same Mr. Mooser who spent a month at the

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

186 Club getting an average of the business?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And is that the fiscal year that Mr. Mooser had you change your returns from a partnership return to a corporation return?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now, as a matter of fact, Mr. Kyne, the 186 Club had already filed a full year's return, had it not, for the year 1943, as partnership, had it not?

A. That's correct.

Q. So that, as a matter of fact, the 186 Club at that time had paid an income tax as a partnership for the full year of 1943 and then when Mr. Mooser made the change, they paid double for part of the year 1943, is that true?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming a fact not in evidence; further, that a partnership, as such, does not pay an income tax.

The Court: I take that as a question. The witness may answer the question. [1095]

A. That is correct.

Q. In other words, the partners paid for the full year 1943 on a partnership basis?

A. As a partnership and a corporation.

Q. Partnership basis first, isn't that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And then Mr. Mooser, after he had completed his survey and had a corporation return made, you paid for at least six months of the same year as a corporation, isn't that true? A. Yes.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Were the partners ever given any refund for the double payment? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, I am going to show you the prosecution's Exhibit 87A, which is the corporation return of the 186 Club for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1943, and ending June 30, 1944, and ask you if you will notice that the deputy collector's name signed there is Louis Mooser. Is that the same Louis Mooser whom you have been referring to here as having made a survey? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, in this last exhibit that I showed you, prosecutor's Exhibit 87A, covering the period of fiscal year commencing July 1, 1943, and ending June 30, 1944, it is true, is it not, that the partners, having previously paid for the entire year of 1943 as a partnership, that on the next year's fiscal year's [1096] return of the corporation, there had been double payment of tax under this corporation return prepared by Mr. Mooser, isn't that true?

A. That's right.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as unintelligible.

The Court: The answer may stand.

Q. Did you, or any of the partners, to your knowledge, get a refund from the Internal Revenue for the second half of the year that you paid taxes as partners and later on paid taxes for the same period as a corporation? A. No, sir.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Kyne:

Q. Mr. Kyne, in response to one of Mr. Gillen's questions, regarding the bank account at Tracy, you stated that Mr. Remmer owned a tavern at Tracy?

A. That is correct.

Q. What was the name of that tavern?

A. That I don't know.

Q. Over what period of time did he own it?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know whether or not he owned that tavern during any part of the years 1944 to 1946?

A. Not during those years. [1097]

Q. Do you know that definitely?

A. Well, I couldn't swear to it.

Q. Do you know where the tavern was located?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Have you ever been in the tavern?

A. No, sir.

Q. Can you state whether or not, to your knowledge, Mr. Remmer had any partners or associated in that tavern business in Tracy?

A. I know the gentleman that purchased it from him.

Q. What was his name?

A. Frank Cavani.

Q. I believe you testified, in response to Mr. Gillen's questions, that you were sort of a general manager of the six San Francisco enterprises?

A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. And that you handled the money and the sheets, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Exactly to what do you refer when you state the sheets you handled?

A. Reports, card reports.

Q. Were those sheets similar to sheets shown to you as the Poker sheets of the Menlo and 186 Club?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you did handle those sheets how [1098] often?

A. Each day I would deliver them to 50 Mason Street.

Q. How did they come into your possession, Mr. Kyne?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as already asked and answered quite fully on direct examination. He went each day and picked up at the two card rooms and placed them in a large box and delivered them to 50 Mason Street.

The Court: I think that is true. Objection sustained.

Q. Now, in response to question Mr. Gillen asked you whether or not any money was kept in the box at the Crocker Bank, safety deposit box, which was in the joint name of yourself and Mr. Remmer, under the name of Henry Clay, you answered that no money was kept there, was that correct?

A. I don't think so.

Q. What is your best recollection?

A. I mean in regard to the money being left there.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Was there any money left in that box?

A. No, I don't think so. The records will show. I just went in there a few days in the course of a few months.

Q. What was kept in there?

A. Oh, I think I had some records in there.

Q. Records of what?

A. Just papers accumulated.

Q. Did those refer to the six businesses as to which you have been interrogated?

A. No, it would have been my own sheets. [1099]

Q. Relating to personal business of your own?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall whether or not there were kept in there any of the records pertaining to the six businesses? A. That I don't remember.

Q. You stated that money was kept in Box 48. Did you keep any record as to the source of the money which you placed in Box 48?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what was the nature of that record?

A. Just a daily record.

Q. Do you have that record now?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know where that record is?

A. Slater had it.

Q. Is that the last you saw of it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Slater is the gentleman who is now deceased, is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. Do you recall when Slater died?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. No, I don't.

Q. Was that a record which he kept or which you kept?

A. That I kept and turned over to him.

Q. How often did you turn it over to him? [1100]

A. Oh, maybe once a month.

Q. That was the information from which he kept a record?

A. So that he could file the taxes.

Q. Now, you testified, Mr. Kyne, in response to questions by Mr. Gillen, that each year you supplied Mr. Mooney with certain figures for use in preparing Mr. Remmer's individual income tax returns, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Where did you obtain the figures which you supplied Mr. Mooney with?

A. I believe I supplied figures for the B & R Smoke Shoppe and Mr. Slater gave me the rest of the figures.

Q. Gave you the rest of the figures?

A. Yes.

Q. And you in turn turned them over to Mr. Mooney? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What records of the B & R Smoke Shoppe did you refer to for the purpose of determining Mr. Remmer's share of the income?

A. My own record.

Q. Was that a record other than the daily diaries which have been produced here? A. No, sir.

Q. Then did you refer to the daily diaries?

A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Let us take the first one, and I refer to the year 1945, [1101] government's Exhibit 111B, and will you state to what figure you referred in supplying the information to Mr. Mooney relative to Mr. Remmer's profit or loss from that enterprise for that year?

A. I wasn't here at that time.

Q. Did you supply any information to Mr. Mooney then in relation to Mr. Remmer's 1945 income tax?

Mr. Gillen: I think it is well established in direct examination and cross-examination—in fact, counsel reminded me yesterday when I looked at the 1945 record—there was only one record in 1945, and Mr. Kyne, you may recall, went in the army and was there for the balance of the year 1945.

Mr. Campbell: That is exactly what I am attempting to bring out, but the witness stated on cross-examination that he supplied information for each year.

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor will recall I eliminated in my cross the year 1945 when I asked the question concerning the supplying to Mr. Mooney, I said with the exception of 1945 and 1946 that you were away; so this would not be proper redirect examination.

(Question read.)

The Court: Answer the question.

A. I was away at that time.

Q. Would you answer the question yes or no?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. Slater would take care of it. [1102]

Q. That is not directly in response to my question, Mr. Kyne. I asked you if you supplied any information for 1945? A. The answer is no.

Q. Now, in relation to the year 1946—and I am referring to government's Exhibit 111C which you identified the other day—will you show me the source of the figure which you used in supplying information to Mr. Mooney?

A. I would have to have my income tax report in that connection.

Q. Mr. Kyne, was that supplied from that record which you hold in your hand? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then can you point out to me the source of the information?

A. I still have to see the income tax return.

Q. Your personal income tax return?

A. For the B & R Smoke Shoppe.

Q. I will show you that if that will refresh your recollection. May we have plaintiff's Exhibit 79. I hand you plaintiff's Exhibit 79, 1946 partnership return of the B & R Smoke Shoppe, which you requested for the purpose of refreshing your recollection.

A. I believe that was a losing year.

Q. Does that refresh your recollection where in this record, 111C, you obtained the information?

A. No, it doesn't.

Q. It does not? [1103] A. It does not.

Q. Now, did you supply Mr. Mooney with any

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

information relative to the 21 Club, the San Diego Social Club, or the 311 Club?

A. I may have through Mr. Simmons.

Q. What is your best recollection, Mr. Kyne?

A. I believe I did call on Mr. Simmons to find out figures for Mr. Mooney.

Q. Did you supply that information to Mr. Mooney? A. I think so, yes, sir.

Q. Will you state at this time for what calendar years did you supply figures to Mr. Mooney for preparation of Mr. Remmer's returns?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered. Already in the record he said he believed from 1942.

The Court: I believe that is correct, Mr. Campbell.

Mr. Campbell: Very well. May I have exhibits 1 to 10 inclusive?

Q. I am going to show you government's Exhibit 1, the individual return of Elmer Remmer for the year 1944, and ask you to examine it and state whether or not you supplied Mr. Mooney with any figures set forth thereon?

A. I believe I was away at that time, Mr. Campbell.

Q. What is your best recollection then as to whether or not you supplied Mr. Mooney with any figures relative to the preparation of the 1944 return? [1104]

A. Those figures were supplied by Slater.

Q. Did you furnish any? A. No, sir.

Q. I show you government's Exhibit 3, being the income tax return of Mr. Remmer for the calendar year 1945, and ask you if you supplied any of the figures set forth on that return to Mr. Mooney?

BLURRED COPY

A. I believe I did.

Q. Will you state what figures you supplied? Will you identify the ones which you supplied?

A. This six thousand, I believe.

Mr. Campbell: The witness has indicated figures six thousand dollars which appear opposite line 7, "How much have you paid on your 1945 income tax by payments on 1945 declaration estimated tax, $6,000."

Q. Is that the figure to which you return?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you see any other figures which you supplied?

Mr. Gillen: I should offer the objection that this particular subject matter was introduced and established by the government in the testimony of Mr. Mooney, the government witness, with regard to this particular return. If your Honor will recall, Mr. Mooney testified that there was a return made on estimated figure and subsequently there was some correspondence passed between Mr. Mooney and persons from whom he was seeking [1105] additional information to make an amended return, and if your Honor will recall, there was also a letter written by Mr. Mooney to Mr. Remmer, an exhibit here, in which he said, "I will have to file return on the estimated figure and have to get the additional information to make an amended return." I believe those are exhibits here and brought out by and introduced by the government on Mr. Mooney's testimony.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. The figure I am referring to isn't even listed here under the income sheet.

Q. Do you recognize any figures on that return which you supplied to Mr. Mooney?

A. No, sir.

Q. I call your attention to government's Exhibit 5, being the individual income tax return of Elmer F. Remmer for the year 1946, calling your attention to not only the return itself, but to the attached schedule of income deductions, and ask if you recognize any of the figures thereon as having been supplied by you to Mr. Mooney?

A. B & R Smoke Shoppe, $1,300.

Q. Is that the only figure which you recognize?

A. The rest of the figures were given to me by the bookkeepers and then transferred to Mr. Mooney.

Q. Do you recognize the other figures as being figures which you transferred or transmitted to Mr. Mooney? [1106]

A. I think the books would show that.

Mr. Gillen: I offer the objection it is improper redirect examination and is cross-examining his own witness. He said he supplied figures personally from the B & R and the other figures he obtained from Mr. Slater, the bookkeeper, as to other items.

Mr. Campbell: The witness on cross-examination was asked the general question and answered he supplied information for all the years 1942 to 1946 and I am simply examining as to years.

Mr. Gillen: That isn't a correct statement. The year Mr. Kyne was away was eliminated of course—"with the exception of the time you were in the service."

The Court: Objection overruled.

(Question and answer read.)

The Court: The answer may stand.

Q. Now, in response to counsel's questions, you stated, Mr. Kyne, that you made investment in the Transit Smoke Shop of $16,005.50, do you recall that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. From what source was it that you obtained those funds? A. Menlo Club.

Q. Do you know whether or not that amount was charged against you on the books of the Menlo Club? A. I don't remember. [1107]

Q. In what manner did you receive the money from the Menlo Club, that is, as payment to you of what is due, in loan or in what manner?

A. It reads as a loan, the check.

Q. That is, the check which you identified when you were on the stand here as "Loan Transit Smoke Shop," is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you familiar with the entries which were made on the books in that regard?

A. No, I was not.

Q. And you say that 16 thousand dollars was subsequently used as however necessary, I believe in the conduct of the various businesses?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now, in response to counsel's questions regarding the B & R Smoke Shoppe, you stated that Mr. Remmer got his bank roll back. Do you recall that testimony? A. I believe that is correct.

Q. Do you know that to be the fact?

A. I don't remember.

Q. You don't know whether he did or not get it back? A. No, sir, it is too far back.

Q. Was any entry made of these records as a repayment to Mr. Remmer?

A. That I don't remember.

Q. Would an examination of these records refresh your recollection? [1108]

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Now, you stated at the suggestion of a Mr. Mooser, the 186 Club, which had been started as a partnership, became a corporation, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall at that time what, if anything, Mr. Mooser told you about the necessity for a charter for a social club?

A. The meetings took place between John Taffe, Bob Slater and Mooser in Mr. Taffe's office. They argued there for three months before Mr. Mooser won out and set up as a corporation.

Q. A corporation was organized?

A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Who, incidentally, handled the legal aspects of setting up that corporation?

A. I believe Taffe handled it. I am not sure.

Q. Now, yesterday, I believe that you did not know whether or not records were kept, books and records, for the 186 Club?

A. What is that question again?

Q. You stated, I believe, that you did not recall whether or not books or records were kept on the 186 Club? A. We had the sheets.

Q. Did you have other books and records that you recall?

A. We had social security. I don't believe so.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to ask that this document be [1109] marked for identification.

The Clerk: 122.

Q. Mr. Kyne, I show you government's Exhibit 122 for identification and ask you if you recognize the signature on that exhibit? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You are familiar with that signature?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Whose signature is that?

A. Harold Maundrell.

Q. Is that the same Maundrell as you have referred to as keeping books and records for the various enterprises? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you examine this——

Mr. Gillen: I think counsel made a mistake—books and records, I don't think that is a fact.

Mr. Campbell: That question may be stricken.

Q. Is that the same Mr. Maundrell that you have referred to in your testimony? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you examine that document and state whether or not that refreshes your recollection as to whether or not books and records were maintained for the 186 Club? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what is your recollection as [1110] refreshed?

A. We have to keep some books.

Q. As to whether books and records were maintained for the 186 Club?

A. They were, but I didn't keep them.

Q. Do you know who did keep those records?

A. I believe Slater at first and then Maundrell.

Q. Now, in response to Mr. Gillen's questions, Mr. Kyne, you stated that Clarence Bent, who at one time was associated in the 110 Eddy Street bar, died in 1943 or 1944, do you recollect that testimony? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, do you know whether or not, at the time of his death, anything was paid out of 110 Eddy Street to his estate or to any one else regarding any share which he may have had in that business?

A. I believe John Taffe paid his sister $3,500.

Q. What is your best recollection?

A. I am pretty sure that was the amount.

Q. How was that paid, if you recall, by check or by cash?

A. I think it was a cashier's check; I am not sure.

Q. Who purchased it? A. I made it up.

Q. Where did you receive the money?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. Took it out of Box 48.

Q. Were you given instructions by any one to pay that money? [1111] A. John Taffe.

Q. Mr. Kyne, you stated on cross-examination that Mr. Remmer held your power of attorney?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when was it that you gave him your power of attorney? A. I don't remember.

Q. What is your best recollection?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Does he still have your power of attorney?

A. No, sir.

Q. When did you receive it back?

A. I forget exactly.

Q. What is your best recollection, Mr. Kyne?

A. I just don't remember.

Q. Can you state whether or not Mr. Remmer held your power of attorney during the years 1944 to 1946 inclusive? A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you recall whether or not Mr. Remmer held your power of attorney in the year 1943?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Was that a written power of attorney?

A. I forget.

Q. What is your best recollection?

A. I just don't remember.

Q. Now, you testified also, in response to Mr. Gillen's questions [1112] that you held power of attorney for Mr. Remmer, do you recall that testimony? A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. And was that a written or oral power of attorney? A. That I don't remember.

Q. When did you receive that power of attorney? A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you still hold that power of attorney?

A. No, I don't believe so.

Q. When was the power of attorney cancelled?

A. I don't remember.

Mr. Gillen: Of course, that is assuming it was cancelled, may it please the Court. We move the answer be stricken for that reason. Also offer the objection this examination is not proper redirect examination but more in the nature of cross-examination of his own witness.

The Court: Objection overruled. Motion to strike is denied.

Q. Can you state whether or not you held Mr. Remmer's power of attorney during the years 1943 to 1946 inclusive?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as already asked and answered. He says he doesn't recall.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you recall now that you were shown by counsel the check [1113] of Haas Brothers and attention was directed to testimony that that was not your signature endorsing that check, in 1943, and you stated that Mr. Remmer had your power of attorney at that time, does that refresh your recollection as to whether or not Mr. Remmer had your power of attorney in 1943?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. I believe that is right.

Q. That he did have your power of attorney in 1943?

A. I believe that is right. I don't exactly remember.

Mr. Gillen: I will state to your Honor, we have been looking for some powers of attorney and this might assist counsel in his redirect.

The Court: Show it to counsel.

Mr. Gillen: I believe there was special power of attorney given when Mr. Kyne went into the service. I believe there is an earlier one than that, which we may be able to find; that is, power of attorney from Mr. Remmer to Mr. Kyne.

Mr. Campbell: Counsel has produced and with his permission——

Mr. Gillen: We are happy to have you make any use of it you wish.

Q. I show you, Mr. Kyne, a document bearing date February 13, 1945, and ask you if you recognize the signatures thereon? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that your signature appearing on it?

A. Yes, sir. [1114]

Q. And is that the signature of Elmer Remmer?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: May this be marked in evidence as government's Exhibit 123.

The Court: Any objection to the admission of that document in evidence?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Gillen: No, your Honor, we produced it for counsel to make whatever use he wanted to.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Mr. Campbell: Reading this document, with the Court's permission; dated San Francisco, California, February 13, 1945: (Reads Exhibit 123.)

Q. Now, is this the power of attorney which you referred to when you stated that Mr. Remmer had your power of attorney?

A. I believe that is it.

Q. Prior to that time had you executed any power of attorney for Mr. Remmer?

A. I do not remember.

Q. Now, simultaneously, or at or about the date of that document, had Mr. Remmer executed a power of attorney to you, if that refreshes your recollection?

A. I am pretty sure that was the power of attorney.

Q. Yes, but can you state, or can you fix in any way, or is there anything that refreshes your recollection, as to when you received that power of attorney, if it was in written form, and [1115] how long you had his power of attorney?

A. I think the Bank of America has a sheet similar to this one here pertaining to the fact that I had power of attorney, but I am not sure.

Q. Do you recall the wording of that power of attorney? A. No, I do not.

Mr. Gillen: Of course, the power of attorney would be the best evidence.

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: He has answered the question, he doesn't know.

Q. After you returned from the service, Mr. Kyne, do you recall whether or not you executed another power of attorney to Mr. Remmer?

A. No, I don't.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, Mr. Gillen questioned you regarding operations of the B & R Smoke Shoppe and particularly as to the acceptance of lay-off bets, do you recall that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I believe you were asked if all of the cashier's checks set forth in plaintiff's Exhibit 116, represented what were known as courtesy bets. Do you recall that?

Mr. Gillen: I do not believe I asked the question. I do not believe that question was asked.

Mr. Campbell: That is the note I have.

Mr. Gillen: I would refer to the record. I would [1116] challenge that.

The Court: May we have the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Do you want to refer to the record?

Mr. Gillen: Yes, I would like to.

Mr. Campbell: I will reframe my question in a way I do not think will be objectionable.

The Court: The question is withdrawn.

Mr. Gillen: Very well.

Q. Mr. Kyne, referring to plaintiff's Exhibit 116, which you have previously identified as representing cashier's checks purchased from the Bank of America, do you recall that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were those purchased in connection with the B & R Smoke Shoppe operation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you were asked, I believe, by Mr. Gillen regarding what is known as courtesy bets, do you recall that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I believe you described a courtesy bet as one where another bookmaker would ask you if you could place money with other people, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, do all of those cashier's checks set forth there represent what you term courtesy [1117] bets?

Mr. Gillen: I am going to offer the objection that this has been asked and answered in the record in both direct and cross-examination. I have a distinct recollection that Mr. Kyne was asked if lay-off business was done with cashier's checks and he said they usually paid with cashier's checks, with the exception on occasion somebody might come in and take cash. There was nothing said in either direct or cross-examination as to whether or not all of these checks represented courtesy lay-offs.

The Court: You may answer the question. Objection overruled.

Q. Do you have the question in mind, Mr. Kyne?

A. Yes, the cashier check to P. G. & E., Castro Floral Shop, and so on.

Q. Also cashier's checks, I believe, to the Collector of Internal Revenue? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Let us refer to some of these other checks.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Taking the first page, which reads January, 1943——

Mr. Gillen: May I respectfully interrupt and say this is improper redirect examination. I did not go into details on cross-examination of what the checks represented. I simply asked for an over all description.

The Court: I can't very well rule until I hear the question. There has been no question propounded. [1118]

Mr. Campbell: I hadn't finished my question.

Mr. Gillen: I am sorry. I withdraw the objection.

Q. Taking the first page, which reads January, 1943, and the item on January 2, 1943, purchaser William E. Kyne, payee Gus Greenbaum, amount $2,180. Now, who is Gus Greenbaum?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. May it please the Court, I offer the objection, first of all that refers to a transaction in 1943, which is a year prior to the commencement of the time bracket of this indictment, which is from 1944 to 1946, inclusive. That is my first objection. My second objection is that I did not cross-examine Mr. Kyne regarding any 1943 checks, cashier checks, to whom they went or for what. My third objection is, may it please the court, that it is improper redirect examination, for the reason I did not cross-examine Mr. Kyne on who any check was made payable to, and if your Honor will recall, I base by objection on this, that my only reference to cashier's checks was that in these particular lay-off transactions Mr. Kyne testified that they were usually handled by cashier's checks. I did not go into that at all and the record will bear me out, I am certain.

Mr. Campbell: Here is the record, your Honor, reading from page 1063 of the transcript: (Reads.) It is to that cross-examination to which I am directing questions.

Mr. Gillen: I submit, your Honor, there is no reference made to prosecution's Exhibit 116 or any reference made to any [1119] check in my cross-examination and this is improper redirect examination upon all the grounds I have stated, and it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial because it is a year prior to the commencement point of this indictment. I recall your Honor distinctly admonished the jury we are trying it for the years 1944, 1945, and 1946. We are not concerned with anything else.

The Court: The objection is overruled. He may answer the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Gillen: We offer the objection it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial who Mr. Gus Greenbaum is.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

Mr. Gillen: May I respectfully ask that your Honor hear me on that out of the presence of the jury?

The Court: Yes, very well.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Kyne, coming back to the matter of these courtesy bets, I believe you testified that in certain instances and from other bookmakers you received bets simply for the purpose of passing them on to other bookmakers, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, will you state whether or not under such circumstances you received a commission?

A. No, sir, aside from that one instance.

Q. Aside from the California Jockey?

A. Aside from the California Jockey.

Q. Now, as a part of your business there at the

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

B & R Smoke Shoppe, will you state whether or not you also received from other bookmakers bets which you accepted for the B & R Smoke Shoppe?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in connection with that part of your business were such accepted from bookmakers operating at points outside of San Francisco?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And from points throughout the United States? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in making settlement with those out-of-town bookmakers, I believe you testified that you either used cashier's checks [1121] or cash, depending on whether any bookmaker or his representative happened to be passing through San Francisco, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, in the event of those bets which you accepted for the B & R Smoke Shoppe from bookmakers outside of San Francisco and upon which you won, how would you receive your winnings?

A. Usually a cashier's check or own personal check.

Q. And in some cases would you receive some cash? A. Once in a while, yes, sir.

Q. Now, I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 116, which you have previously identified as a list of cashier's checks which was drawn up for you by an employee of the Bank of America at your request, as cashier's checks purchased during the years 1943 to 1946, inclusive, and I will ask if you will indicate on this exhibit by a mark opposite the amount —I direct your attention to the fact that there are four columns on these pages headed, "Date," "Purchaser," "Payee," and "Amount." The date refers to date of the purchase of the check, does it not? A. Yes.

Q. And by purchaser there is set forth the name of the person who bought the check; is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. In most instances, I believe, yourself?

A. Yes, sir. [1122]

Q. Although in some instances by Mr. Pritchett, whom you have identified as an employee of B & R Smoke Shoppe? A. Yes, sir.

Q. There then follows the payee and underneath that is set forth a series of names and those, I presume, are the people in whose favor the particular check was drawn? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And under the heading "Amount," the amount of the cashier's check? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now will you indicate by whatever mark you choose, an "X" mark, I presume, opposite the amount, any of these transactions which you can now recall represented a courtesy transaction, where you passed the bet on to someone else?

Mr. Gillen: May I make this suggestion, whatever transactions Mr. Kyne might recognize there, if it is a courtesy transaction he could mark with a "C"; any loss he could mark with an "L."

Mr. Campbell: I have no objection to his using "C" for courtesy transactions. At this time I ask he now mark those he now recalls as courtesy transactions, that is, transactions where he simply acted as transit agent for the money, placing the bet with someone else. Will you do so, Mr. Kyne?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. The majority of these bets are lay-off bets. It would be impossibility to take out courtesy bets, the ones that went [1123] to the place.

Q. When you say lay-off bets, do you mean bets which you laid off or bets which were being laid off by individuals whose names are mentioned?

A. Bets I laid off for other bookmakers.

Q. And do you have any recollection as to any individual one of these transactions?

A. No, sir.

Q. Now isn't it a fact Mr. Kyne, or is it a fact that the individuals listed hereon, with the exception of a few items, such as in May of 1943, the St. Francis Hotel, Blackstone Hotel, Russell Waldon, assessor in San Francisco, together with certain checks, such as to the State Board of Equalization, Collector of Internal Revenue, Castro Flower Shop, Haas Bros., San Francisco Water Department, Golden State Company, Gerow-Filter Company, Lang Laundry Company, Arthur Pratt, South San Francisco Bank, Western Union Company, Daily Racing Form, that those listed thereon on Exhibit 116, are in the bookmaking business, or were at the time the various checks referred to were drawn?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are you able to state, and I will ask you whether or not, in instances of the various bookmakers or individuals engaged in bookmaking business, whose names appear hereon, if you were also receiving cashier's checks or personal checks from them? [1124] A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, I respectfully request an opportunity to move to strike the question and answer previous to the last question and answer, on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial whether the persons to whom the checks were made were in the bookmaking business. I respectfully submit the only materiality would be did those cashier's checks represent any profit or loss that would ultimately inure to Mr. Remmer, either as a profit or loss, for the purposes of this case, the issues of this case.

The Court: Motion is denied.

Q. Mr. Kyne, how was this out-of-town business handled, that is, by what means of communication?

A. Telephone.

Q. And when you were placing bets with various of the individuals whose names are set forth hereon, in what manner did you communicate those bets? A. By phone.

Q. And do I understand correctly that such business was conducted on a mutual trust business?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that periodical settlements would be had? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I think that is all. [1125]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Kyne, do I understand then that these cashier's checks that are represented on these sheets of paper that are identified now as prosecution's Exhibit 116 in evidence, do not represent specific bets but represent rather settlements of accounts made from time to time, is that correct?

A. One or the other.

Q. It might represent both; it might represent a specific bet or it might represent a series of transactions being settled, is that true?

A. That is true.

Q. And it is true, is it not, all the instances where you purchased cashier's checks doesn't mean that they represented courtesy bets where you were simply passing money through, you were sort of a conduit? A. All with respect to lay-off.

Q. I understand, but it would either be courtesy transaction where you collected some money and sent it off in cashier's check or whether you actually accepted a lay-off yourself and were sending him the amount you lost, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. In other words, you wouldn't naturally be obtaining cashier's check and sending a man money that you had won, is that true? A. No.

Q. Now when you say that these cashier's checks represent [1126] courtesy and lost bets under the lay-off plan, do you mean by your answer that it is your recollection that most of the cashier's checks here represented courtesy bets?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. Lay-off bets, yes.

Q. By the way, let me, with the Court's permission, show you this exhibit. Are some of these duplicate sheets here or are they all individual sheets? You understand what I mean—are there some duplications where two sheets were received by you?

A. I think they are all monthly sheets.

Mr. Campbell: There might be some duplicate sheets there.

Mr. Gillen: I think I observe some duplications.

Mr. Campbell: I think the document speaks for itself.

Q. Mr. Kyne, in regard to the power of attorney under date of February 13, 1945, which is now plaintiff's Exhibit 123, which is written power of attorney which we presented to Mr. Campbell for his use, it is a fact, is it not, that this power of attorney was executed and dated and acknowledged by a notary public the day before you left for the service, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In other words, you left for the service on February 14, 1945, isn't that true? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, the various shops that are named there, four [1127] in number, in this power of attorney, namely 50 Mason Street, B & R Smoke Shoppe, 52 Mason Street, Warehouse and Office, 110 Eddy Street, tavern; and 186 Eddy Club, card room and liquor store, it is true, is it not, that as of that date those were the only going enterprises in San Francisco in which you and Mr. Remmer had a mutual interest? A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. That was before the Menlo Club and before the Transit Smoke Shop, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now let me ask you, isn't it a fact that from the very inception of your business with Mr. Remmer that you and Mr. Remmer both had mutual powers of attorney, you to act for him in his absence and he to act for you in your absence, covering any enterprises that you were interested in together? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And isn't it a fact that you were advised, despite the existence of that power of attorney, just before you entered into the service that because of the fact that you were going away to war that it might be well for you to execute a power of attorney naming the enterprises that were actually your mutual enterprises at that time and just before you entered the service, isn't that a fact?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And of course, Mr. Kyne, since you were going into the army [1128] and Mr. Remmer was not going into the army, there was no reason why Mr. Remmer should have executed an additional power of attorney to you?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. That is correct.

Q. Now Mr. Campbell, in redirect examination,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

showed you certain income tax returns and asked you if you recalled supplying the particular figures, or any figures that appeared in those income tax returns, do you recall that? A. Yes.

Q. And particularly he showed you an income tax return for the year 1944, returned in 1945. Do you recall that?

Now, you, of course, had left almost exactly a month before that income tax was due; in other words, it was due on March 15th and you left on February 14th.

Mr. Campbell: To which tax are you referring?

Mr. Gillen: I said 1944.

Q. And then in regard to the income tax return for the year 1945, which was returned in the year 1946, you were away until June of 1946, isn't that true? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now in the year 1945, that was the year, was it not, that for the first five months of the year no race tracks were operating any place in the United States, isn't that true? [1129]

A. I think it was four and a half months.

Q. It was from the first of the year until some time in May, was it not?

A. I don't remember the exact dates.

Q. When you took the money out of the Menlo account to repay Mr. Remmer for a share in the Transit Smoke Shop, you were asked by Mr. Campbell in redirect examination whether or not that was reflected on the books of the Menlo Club and you said you didn't know, is that correct?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. That is correct.

Q. Tell me what was it that you did to make it known that you had borrowed or taken money from the funds of the Menlo Club, outside of putting on the check for Menlo Club Loan Transit Smoke Shop?

A. I believe that was the only notation I made.

Q. Did you put a marker in addition to that into the Menlo Club? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you recall, was that check issued by you, Mr. Kyne? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember whether or not you told Mr. Maundrell about this check, that is, that you had taken $16,005.50 out of the Menlo Club account to put into the Transit?

A. I believe I did.

Q. Now instead of then putting a marker down Mr. Kyne, the [1130] Menlo bank account, that the Menlo Club by William E. Kyne had issued check to William E. Kyne as loan for the Transit, is that correct?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not the best evidence. The bank record would be the best evidence as to what that showed. I think the question incomprehensive, in that the bank account wouldn't show that.

The Court: I think he asked him what appeared from the check. Objection overruled.

Mr. Campbell: If that is the question, but that is not the way it is propounded.

The Court: That is what your question meant?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Gillen: Yes, your Honor, and it is prosecution's Exhibit 120 I am referring to and I am handing it, with your Honor's permission, to Mr. Kyne to examine to refresh his memory. Do you have the question in mind now?

Mr. Campbell: If the Court please, I make the further objection that the document speaks for itself as to what it says.

The Court: He may explain it. Objection will be overruled.

A. Read the question please.

(Question read.)

A. That is correct.

Q. Mr. Kyne, at the time you issued that check to yourself, did you know what credit there was or what equity there was to your credit derived from your working agreement in the profits [1131] of the Menlo Club?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not the best evidence. The books and records are the best evidence.

The Court: Objection will be sustained.

Mr. Gillen: That is all.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, on this matter of power of attorneys, counsel asked you whether or not, from the very inception of your association with Mr. Remmer, you and Mr. Remmer had mutual powers of attorney, to which you replied yes. Now during redirect examination you stated you had a power of attorney but had no recollection of when it was entered into. Has your memory been refreshed in that regard?

BLEED THROUGH-- POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Gillen: I am going to object to this as improper re-redirect examination and also cross-examining his own witness.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. I believe there is a card or paper in the Bank of America that explains it.

Q. Now, as to the time that you entered into these powers of attorney, do you recall when that was?

A. It would be when we first went in the business.

Q. And do you now recall whether or not some written power of attorney was entered into?

A. I think there is an agreement in the Bank of America. [1132]

Q. Will you state whether or not that is the usual power of attorney given to a bank to enable another person to endorse checks?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to, that would call for opinion and conclusion, may it please the Court, whether it is the usual thing that the Bank of America does, that would call certainly for his opinion and conclusion. It wouldn't be the best evidence or evidence, what the Bank of America does, if it usually does something.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: The form of the question is a little bad, I think.

Mr. Campbell: Very well.

Q. What Bank of America was that delivered to?

A. I believe the Day and Night Branch.

Q. What was the occasion for your delivering that to the bank?

A. That is where we signed it, I think.

Q. Who has possession, or who had possession, of that power of attorney?

A. That I don't know.

Q. That is to say, was it left with the bank?

A. Either the bank or Joseph Haughey.

Q. What is your best recollection in that regard?

A. I am kind of hazy on it.

Q. Who drew the power of attorney?

A. I don't remember. [1133]

Q. Do you recall whether or not it was signed by both you and Mr. Remmer.

A. That I don't remember.

Q. Is there any event, such as the opening of a bank account, by which you can place the time?

A. No, sir.

Q. When was the last time you saw the power of attorney? A. That I don't remember.

Q. I believe you stated you do not know who has possession of it at this time?

A. No, I do not.

Q. What then did the power of attorney state?

A. I think it was in regard to books and checks.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. And what did it state with regard to books and checks? A. That I don't remember.

Q. To the best of your recollection?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you recall whether or not it authorized Mr. Remmer to conduct any businesses in your name?

Mr. Gillen: I offer the objection, may it please the Court, this is improper redirect examination. He is cross-examining his own witness, calling for something not the best evidence and counsel this morning very vehemently objected to my asking this gentleman as to his recollection, in fact this afternoon, as to what amount of credit he had on the books of [1134] the partnership. I think this is in the same category at least.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. Will you read the question?

(Question read.)

A. No, I don't remember.

Q. Do you recall whether the power of attorney to which you refer was sworn to before a notary public?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to on the grounds as not being the best evidence, improper redirect. The power of attorney itself would be the best evidence.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. I don't remember.

Mr. Gillen: And also may I add further that

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

power of attorney does not have to be acknowledged by a notary public in California.

The Court: The witness has answered the question. He said he did not remember.

Q. Counsel called your attention, in his recross-examination, as to the fact that in that power of attorney there is a business listed as 52 Mason Street, warehouse and office. Was there such a business in existence February 13, 1945? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the nature of that business?

A. Warehouse. [1135]

Q. Now is that the same warehouse that you have previously referred to, used simply for storing merchandise used in your bars? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It was not a public warehouse in any sense?

A. No, sir.

Q. And I take it the offices referred to were the offices of yourself and Mr. Remmer?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the others connected with the business?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: That is all.

Mr. Gillen: May I have the Court's permission now to ask Mr. Kyne for his recollection, if he has any, as to what credit he had standing in his name at the Menlo Club?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not the best evidence.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: I think it is in the same category as refreshing his recollection as to power of attorney and the details.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: I do not agree with you in that respect. May the witness be excused, subject to call. Will you leave your address with the clerk?

Mr. Gillen: That subject to call is subject to call for either redirect or recross by either side? [1136]

The Court: Yes, for either purpose.

HAROLD H. MAUNDRELL

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Will you state your name please?

A. Harold H. Maundrell.

Q. Where do you presently reside, Mr. Maunrell? A. In Honolulu, Hawaii.

Q. What is your present business or occupation?

A. Restaurant business.

Q. Incidentally, what is the name of your restaurant there? A. Maundrell.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, are you acquainted with the defendant, Elmer Remmer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long have you known him?

A. About 13 or 14 years.

Q. Have you ever heretofore been associated with him in connection with any business enterprises? A. Cal-Neva Lodge.

Q. And when did you first become associated with the Cal-Neva Lodge?

A. I think that was in the summer of 1940.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. How long did you remain at Cal-Neva [1137] Lodge?

A. Well, I was there through the summer of 1945; that is, I was only there in the summer time.

Q. I was going to ask, that is a seasonable operation, is it not? A. Yes.

Q. During the period of time that you were there, do you recall the months of the year that Cal-Neva Lodge was open?

A. Well, there was one or two years it was opened very early, around the first of May, I believe, or middle of May, but the usual opening date was on or about the middle of June.

Q. And how long each year, approximately, would Cal-Neva Lodge remain open?

A. Usually closed, with the exception of one or two years, after September 9th.

Q. Now what was the nature of your employment or association at Cal-Neva Lodge?

A. I was resident manager, in charge of the dining room and the hotel accommodations.

Q. Will you state whether or not your capacity there was that of an employee or as a owner or operator of the establishment? A. Employee.

Q. And will you state whether or not that was on a salary or percentage or combination of both arrangement? A. Salary basis.

Q. Straight salary basis? [1138]

A. Salary basis only.

Q. And who employed you originally, who originally hired you for that job?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. Do you know whether or not it was a fact that Cal-Neva Lodge was operated by a corporation during those years?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive, may it please the Court.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. A corporation.

Q. Now during the period of time that you were there at Cal-Neva Lodge, who was, if you know, the over-all general manager of the establishment?

A. Mr. Remmer was the over-all manager.

Q. During the period of time that you were there, did you have any supervision over or any employment in the gambling rooms of the Cal-Neva Lodge? A. No, sir.

Q. And for the purpose of the record, the Cal-Neva Lodge that you are referring to is located where? A. Lake Tahoe.

Q. On the Nevada side of the lake?

A. Well, a portion of it in California, but 95 per cent on the Nevada side.

Q. The building itself, Mr. Maundrell, is on the State Line, is [1139] it not?

A. A small portion of it, part of the dining room, a very small part of the dining room.

Q. And the balance is on the Nevada side, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I presume the gambling room is on the Nevada side? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now during that period of time that you were

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

there, from 1942 through the season of 1945, who was in charge of the gambling room?

A. Well, they had different managers during that time I was there.

Q. Do you recall who they were?

A. Well, Mr. Parman at one time.

Q. Mr. Walter Parman?

A. Mr. Walter Parman.

Q. Yes.

A. I think one season a Mr. Necheck.

Q. Was that Mike Necheck? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Yes?

A. And I think at one time Mr.—I don't recall his name at the moment.

Q. The two that you mentioned are the only two that you recall by name at this time? [1140]

A. At the moment, yes, sir.

Q. After the season of 1945, did you continue to be associated with Mr. Remmer in any enterprise?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And will you state in what enterprise and where located?

A. The Menlo Club, Tiny's Waffle Shop, and the Menlo Bar and Cocktail Lounge on Eddy Street in San Francisco.

Q. Now when did you commence your association with those three enterprises, that is, the Menlo Club, the Menlo Bar and Tiny's Waffle Shop?

A. On or about the 20th of May, 1945.

Q. And how long did that association continue?

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. I left in 1948, the spring of 1948.

Q. And was it shortly after that that you moved to Honolulu, the following fall? A. Yes.

Q. And it is a fact, is it not, that you were ill for a period of time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you severed your connection with Mr. Remmer in the spring of 1948; is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now what were the general nature of your duties with respect to the Menlo Club, the Menlo Bar and Tiny's Waffle Shop?

A. I was the office manager of the two [1141] places.

Q. What were the nature of your duties there as office manager?

A. As office manager, I took care of the books, took care of deposits of the Tiny's Waffle Shop and Menlo Bar, I took care of all the tax returns, took care of——

Q. By tax returns, what tax returns do you refer?

A. Withholding tax returns, federal old age, State social security.

Q. Did those include any income tax returns?

A. I did assist in income tax returns of some of the employees, with the assistance of Mr. Ayton.

Q. Did you assist or take part in the preparation of the income tax returns of Mr. Remmer?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. To what extent?

A. Are you talking about the——

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Individual income tax returns.

A. Only in this respect, that I talked to Mr. Mooney on one or two occasions. He came into the office and asked me if I could assist him, give him Mr. Remmer's returns.

Q. And did you supply certain figures on those occasions? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What other duties did you have there as office manager? You related keeping books and making out social security and old age pension returns for the Menlo Bar; is that correct? [1142]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Tiny's Waffle Shop and Menlo Bar?

A. I had charge of all pay roll accounts.

Q. Of what establishments?

A. Of Tiny's Waffle Shop and Menlo Bar. I did not have charge of the paying of the salaries to the Menlo Club. I did have charge of the keeping of the records.

Q. Of the accounts?

A. Of the accounts. I also had charge of the supervision of the Tiny's Waffle Shop. I had charge of the taking of the inventories of both the Waffle Shop and the Menlo Bar.

Q. Now did you have any duties with respect to the books and records of the 186 Club?

A. Not in the year 1945.

Q. During the time of your employment?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you have anything to do, in the course of your employment, with the keeping of books and records of the Day-Night Cigar Store?

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you have anything to do, in the course of your employment, with the keeping of the books and records of the 110 Eddy Street?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you have anything to do, in the course of your [1143] employment, with the keeping of the books and records of the Transit Smoke Shop? A. Yes, sir.

MR. MAUNDRELL

resumes the witness stand on further

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Maundrell, yesterday before recess you described your various employments with Mr. Remmer. Going back for a moment to the period of time that you were employed at Cal-Neva, as you stated, as manager of the bar, restaurant and hotel facilities. That was your employment there?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Well, I wasn't manager of the bar. I was manager of the dining room and hotel.

Q. During that period of employment did you have anything whatsoever to do with keeping the records of the Cal-Neva, Inc.? A. Yes, I did.

Q. To what extent?

A. Well, in '43 I assisted in keeping the books of the pay roll and the disbursements, and also the income record of the dining room, hotel accommodations and the bar receipts.

Q. Did you keep the general ledgers or the journals of the corporation? A. No, sir.

Q. Will you state, if you know, who did during that period of your employment? [1145]

A. Well, it was Rod Perkins kept the books and I believe they were turned over to Mr. Semenza at the end of the season.

Q. By Mr. Semenza, are you referring to Lawrence Semenza, the certified public accountant at Reno? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And who is seated here at the counsel table?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now I believe you did state, after you left the employment at Cal-Neva to commence your association with Mr. Remmer at the Menlo Club, Tiny's Waffle Shop and the Menlo Bar, that you maintained the records of those enterprises; is that correct? A. Not all of the records.

Q. You maintained certain of the records of the services; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And with relation to the Menlo Club, what

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

books and records did you keep with respect to that operation?

A. 1945 I took charge of the pay roll records of the Menlo Club and also the withholding tax returns, federal old-age pension and social security returns. The cash returns I did not have charge of them.

Q. You mean recording it in the books of the Menlo Club? A. Not in the 1945 period.

Q. In 1946 what records did you [1146] maintain?

A. I kept the records I just mentioned, plus the recording of the daily sheets of the Menlo Club. By that I mean the poker receipts that were turned in to the cashier's office or made up by the cashiers each day.

Q. You have reference to poker sheets—I am going to show you government's Exhibit 114, 114A and 114B in evidence, and ask you if these are a part of the poker sheets to which you refer?

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, these are exhibits that your Honor, following the ruling concerning the 110 series, your Honor said you would hear us and consider whether or not you would revoke your order permitting them.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to lay a further foundation at this time.

The Court: I think the present situation is that 114 stood as admitted exhibits, but if counsel intends to lay further foundation before he attempts to use them as he would if they had been admitted in evidence, I think we can proceed along that line.

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Gillen: I wanted to remind you of your promise to consider the matter further.

The Court: The question was, I think, of foundation and if the foundation as about to be made did establish——

Mr. Gillen (Interrupting): May I suggest this, that the exhibits may be treated now, so far as reference to their contents, as if merely marked for identification? [1147]

Mr. Campbell: I think we should meet that question as we come to it.

The Court: I think counsel has indicated that he was going to lay the foundation.

Mr. Gillen: If your Honor feels the foundation is laid, that is one thing; then will your Honor consider hearing us?

The Court: It depends on the situation. We will see how it appears at that time.

(Question read.)

A. These are some of the poker sheets. I can't state at this time that these are the exact poker sheets.

Q. What is your best recollection?

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, the witness has stated that he can't say they are the exact poker sheets.

The Court: You many answer this question.

A. Well, to the best of my ability I would say at this time that I couldn't say that these are the poker sheets.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. You stated you kept the pay roll records for the Menlo Club? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to ask to have these two bound volumes marked government's Exhibits 124 and 124A, respectively, for identification.

Mr. Golden: Those came out of the box we have been referring to, your Honor.

Mr. Campbell: They did not. [1148]

Mr. Campbell: While counsel are examining those records, I will ask to have marked for identification the following, each of which have been taken from possession of the clerk of this court and were heretofore delivered to the clerk under the order of the Court.

Mr. Golden: Then it will be understood, your Honor, that we have our objection and motion and ruling will be denied.

The Court: Of course they are just marked for identification now.

Mr. Golden: Of course, our objection goes to their use at all and our motion goes to suppressing them, so it should be made now as well as when they are offered in evidence. Will the record show that we made the objection and motion?

The Court: To what is your objection addressed now?

Mr. Golden: The objection is addressed to the use by the prosecution of any of the material which was delivered to the clerk of the court.

The Court: On the grounds heretofore stated?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Golden: Heretofore stated.

The Court: It may appear in the record.

Mr. Golden: And likewise our motion to suppress.

The Court: That may be deemed to have been made. The same ruling.

Mr. Campbell: As government's Exhibit 125 for identification, ledger book bearing the typewritten slip on the cover, [1149] "Menlo Club 1949." As No. 126 for identification, a series of ledger sheets, with a pencil notation on the cover, "Menlo Club 1946." As 126 for identification a bound group of accounting sheets, bearing the typewritten notations "Tiny's Restaurant," and in pen and ink the figures "1946." As 128 for identification, a group of ledger sheets bearing on the cover in pencil the notation "Tiny's Restaurant and Menlo Bar 1945." As 129 for identification a group of bound ledger sheets, bearing on the cover in typing "Menlo Bar" and in pen and ink the figures "1946." Do counsel desire to examine these?

Mr. Gillen: Yes, please.

Q. Mr. Maundrell, I am going to show you government's Exhibits 124 and 124A for identification, and ask you if you recognize those books?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what are those books?

A. They are the pay roll account that was kept of the employees of the Menlo Club.

Q. And were those records which were kept in the course of business of the Menlo Club?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: They will be offered in evidence at this time as government's Exhibits 124 and 124A.

Mr. Golden: I offer the objection, your Honor, that they are part of the records which we maintain were illegally [1150] obtained and retained by the government. We have no specific objection to offer.

The Court: Objection will be overruled and Exhibits 124 and 124A are admitted in evidence.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, with regard to the poker sheets which you referred to and from which you stated you made entries into the ledgers of the Menlo Club, will you describe such sheets?

Mr. Gillen: I am going to offer the objection, may it please the Court, that that is calling for characterization by the witness, conclusion and opinion, not the best evidence. Mr. Maundrell might have a very perfectly odd view of the matter which might not be the view of your Honor and myself in describing them.

Mr. Campbell: I am not asking for conclusions; I am asking for description.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. The records in the Menlo Club were kept by various cashiers on poker sheets and they were of a size of the poker sheets which you have in your hand at the present time.

Q. You are referring to government's Exhibit 114? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what information was contained on those sheets?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. The pay roll, the bills that were paid daily, that is, the bills that were collected and paid by COD, the amount of money that might be owing to any of the players or people that were [1151] members of the club, the amount of money that was collected from the tables as fees from the players, the amount of money that was drawn and the names of the persons who drew money from the cashier to play in the games, and the totals and the final analysis of the whole sheet.

Q. Now will you examine again government's Exhibits 114 to 114B, inclusive, and without reference to the material set forth thereon, will you state whether the information purported to be disclosed thereon is the information to which you refer as having been on the poker sheets given to you for the purpose of making entries in the books?

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, of course this has been asked and answered. The witness already said they looked similar to the form used, but he couldn't say they were the exact form or the identical sheets. If the prosecution will disclose where they and how they obtained these particular exhibits, it is possible that the defense would then determine whether or not they were the authentic sheets. We might stipulate that they go into evidence if they care to disclose that to us.

Mr. Campbell: I think my question is proper.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

(Question read.)

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now do you observe on the sheets which you hold in your hand what purports to be wages paid to employees? [1152] A. Yes, I do.

Q. Now I will ask you to examine government's Exhibits 124 and 124A, which you have identified as pay roll accounts, and see if the same information which is set forth on the three groups of sheets as to the names of employees and amount of wages paid to them is reflected in Exhibits 124 and 124A?

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, I think I should at this time, and in the interest of time and to facilitate the progress of this case, again renew my offer, if the government cares to disclose where they obtained these exhibits——

The Court: That has been made and the government has not made any response to it, so I do not see any reason why it should be renewed.

Mr. Gillen: I had in mind we might be able to save considerable time.

The Court: You might have a conference with counsel and any suggestions could be made privately rather than before the jury. May I have the question?

(Question read.)

A. I refer to 12-31-46, that is the date, Exhibit 114A——

Q. Will you point out to me where the wages appear on 114A?

Mr. Gillen: What pages are you referring to? There are two years there.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Campbell: That is 12-31-46.

Q. Will you point out to me on this Exhibit 114A where the [1153] wages appear on 114A?

A. On the upper right-hand side of the sheet. Now in referring to the first name, Atkinson, the date, 12-31-46. In our records the name Atkinson shows that he received $23.45, there was $3.45 withheld, which means that he received $20.00, and this sheet here states that Mr. Atkinson received $20.00 on that date.

Q. So that so far as that entry is concerned on Exhibit 114A, it is in conformity, is it not, with the exhibit you hold in your hand, government's Exhibit 124A? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that true of the other employees whose names and amounts of wages are set forth on government's Exhibit 114A?

A. That is going to take me some little while. There are quite a few names here. The second name, Maloney, shows that he was paid $12.50. Our records show——

Q. By "our" records, are you referring to the bound volume of the pay roll account?

A. Yes, sir, 124A. The records show $13.85, $1.35 withheld, making $12.50.

Q. So that the two records are in conformity?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Take just one more at this time, Mr. Maundrell. Take the next one.

A. The third name is Launny. Our records show that on the [1154] 31st he had $11.37 coming, $1.15

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

withheld, which would make $10.22. The sheet shows that he received $10.00.

Q. So that the two records are in conformity in regard to that? A. A little bit off.

Mr. Gillen: They are not in conformity and I am going to object to counsel leading and suggesting they are.

A. There was 25 cents off.

The Court: The objection is overruled.

Q. So that there is a 22-cent difference?

A. That's right.

Q. Well, let's take the next one.

A. The next name is the name of Lefky. Our records show he had $12.14, $1.90 was withheld and the poker sheet shows that he received the sum of $10.00.

Q. There is a difference between the two records of what amount? A. Twenty-four cents.

Q. Now I am going to show you at this time the plaintiff's Exhibit 126 for identification and ask you if you have seen that record before?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what is that record?

A. That is the record of the poker sheets starting January, 1946.

Q. And to what period?

A. Through December 31st of the same [1155] year.

Q. Now is the record which you hold in your hands a record kept by you in the course of the business of the Menlo Club? A. Yes.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Campbell: This will be offered in evidence as Exhibit 126.

Mr. Golden: The only objection, your Honor, is to its illegal acquisition and retention and never returned to us.

Mr. Campbell: This, at the time of identification, was produced from the clerk's records.

Mr. Golden: We have both objections to it, both the former one and this one.

The Court: Yes, both will be overruled and Exhibit 126 admitted in evidence.

Q. At this time also I show you government's Exhibit 125 for identification and ask you if you have seen that volume? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is this book?

A. Well, this is the returns from the Menlo Club.

Q. I mean generally, what is the nature of the book? A. It was a simplified ledger.

Q. Was it maintained by you in the regular course of business of the Menlo Club?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: This will be offered in evidence as government's Exhibit 125. [1156]

Mr. Golden: Just the standard run of objections and motions. Could it be understood that this entire——

The Court: I would rather have you make your objections as the exhibits are offered.

Mr. Golden: All right, your Honor.

The Court: So the objections are both overruled and the exhibit is admitted in evidence.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Now calling your attention, Mr. Maundrell, to plaintiff's Exhibit 126, which you have identified as a record maintained in the course of business of the Menlo Club for the year 1946, and setting forth the returns of the poker sheets for the period 1946, I will ask you to turn to the entries made as of December 31, 1946, under the subdivision headed "Income." Have you turned to that page?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that there are three columns on that page, headed "Tables," "Returns," and "Loans." What is meant by the column headed "Tables"?

Mr. Avakian: May we have a more specific identification of this page?

Mr. Campbell: I asked him to turn to the page referring to December 31, 1946, under the heading "Income." The pages themselves are numbered, are they, Mr. Maundrell? A. No, sir.

Q. What is meant by that heading, [1157] "Tables"?

A. That is the amount of money that was received from the players.

Q. By that what do you mean?

A. Well, they pay so much to play. Each player at a table paid so much, depending on the size of the game. Some paid a half dollar for 40 minutes. The amounts were collected from the players at different tables.

Q. In other words, I take it a table fee would be picked up from each player at periodic intervals,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

depending on the size of the game; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And that is the amount set forth in there under the heading "Tables"? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now the second column is headed "Returns"; to what does that refer?

A. The returns are the amounts of money that were turned back to the cashier from the amount of money that had been loaned to different players that played during the day or during that specific time of the day.

Q. Will you state whether or not such players were playing for the house?

A. They played for both the house and themselves, if they borrowed the money from the cage.

Q. Will you explain that arrangement? [1158]

A. At times, in order to make up a game—there may be three or four players come in to the card room and they might want to play a dollar game or a dollar limit. If there is no dollar limit game going on at that time, the house tried to accommodate them and will put in some extra players to make up a game. A game usually consisted of six or seven players. Most players like to play with seven players at a table.

Q. With respect to the men the house would put into the game for, you say, the accommodation of the players, will you state whether or not those men were regular employees of the club?

A. Some were regular employees, but the greater majority were not.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. And what arrangements, if any, were had with those players in the event they won in a game?

A. If they won, the profits would be divided, the house got half and they would keep half.

Q. And if they lost? A. The house lost.

Q. So that the "Returns" column that you referred to refers to amounts turned back to the house by the players who had been financed by the house?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now as to the column headed "Loans," to what does that refer?

A. Well, that was the amount of money that was loaned to the [1159] players.

Q. To these same players who were put into the game for, as you say, the accommodation of the players? A. That's right.

Q. Now, I observe under date of December 31, 1946, you have three sets of figures under each of those headings, the first with a notation in the lower left-hand column of 8-4, 4-12, 12-8, to what does that refer?

A. That was the different shifts of the day, eight o'clock in the morning until four, four in the afternoon until midnight, midnight until eight the next morning.

Q. Now I will ask you what is the amount shown on the record which you hold in your hand, government's Exhibit 126, for the 8 to 4 shift under the heading "Tables"?

Mr. Gillen: Is that the same date, December 31st?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Campbell: December 31, 1946.

A. $315.50.

Q. And what is the amount shown under the heading "Loans" for that same period, 8 to 4?

A. $415.00.

Q. And what is the amount shown under the heading "Returns"? A. $182.00.

Q. And will you state what the figures show as to the 4 to 12 shift?

A. On tables, $627.25; on loans, $410.00; on returns, $249.75. [1160]

Q. And will you state what is shown under those columns for the 12 to 8 shift, of December 31, 1946?

A. $419.75 for tables; loans, $233.50; returns, $181.25.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, were records similar to those which you have described kept as to each day's operation?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Maundrell, I believe you were reading from May 31, 1946, rather than December 31, 1946.

Mr. Gillen: Was that all in error?

Mr. Campbell: I find he was reading from May 31st rather than December 31st, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Mr. Gillen: What is correct? I don't understand. May I ask the Court through counsel, is it my understanding instead of being December——

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

The Court: Put a question to clear this up.

Q. Mr. Maundrell, I originally asked you to turn to the figures of December 31, 1946. However, did you erroneously turn to the page as to some other date?

A. Yes, I did. There is a blank following that, I thought that was the end.

Q. Now will you turn to December 31, 1946?

Mr. Gillen: Then are those figures all of May 31st, [1161] is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now you have December 31, 1946, in mind, do you not? A. Yes.

Q. Now on the 8 to 4 shift, what is the amount shown there as having been received from the table rental? A. $438.25.

Q. I am going to show you the first sheet of government's Exhibit 114, the poker sheet for 12-31-46, and ask you if the same amount appears thereon as table rental for that shift?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I am going to ask you, Mr. Maundrell, will you state what is shown in government's Exhibit 126 for the shift 8 to 4 as to the amount of returns?

A. $208.00.

Q. Now will you examine the 8 to 4 shift on plaintiff's Exhibit 114 and state the amount that is shown there as to returns? A. $208.00.

Q. Will you state what is shown in Exhibit 126, which you have in your hand, as to the amount of loans for the 8 to 4 shift? A. $252.50.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. And will you examine the 8 to 4 shift on government's Exhibit 114A and state whether or not that same amount appears [1162] as loans for that shift? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now as to the second sheet, which appears to be the shift of 4 to 12, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now will you examine the record which you hold in your hand, government's Exhibit 126, and state what is shown thereon for the shift 4 to 12 as the amount received from rental of the tables?

A. $538.50.

Q. Now will you examine this 114A as to the 4 to 12 shift and state the amount shown thereon as to the amount received from table rental?

A. $538.50.

Q. Will you again refer to Exhibit 126 on the 4 to 12 shift, and state what is shown thereon as to amount of returns? A. $277.

Q. And will you examine the 4 to 12 shift on government's Exhibit 114A and state the amount of returns shown thereon for that shift?

A. $277.

Q. And will you examine government's Exhibit 126 and state what is shown thereon as to the amount of loans to the players whom you have described for the 4 to 12 shift?

A. $405. [1163]

Q. And will you examine again the 4 to 12 shift on government's Exhibit 114A and state what is shown thereon as the amount of loans?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. $405.

Q. Will you examine the corresponding three columns—do this to yourself—on Exhibits 126 and 114A on the 12 o'clock midnight to eight morning shift and state whether or not the same figures appear on the two records? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, during the recess, Mr. Maundrell, I am going to ask you to make a similar comparison with the record you hold in your hand, government's Exhibit 126, with Exhibits 114 and 114B, so as to determine whether or not the figures appearing on government's Exhibit 114 and 114B are the same as reflected in government's Exhibit 126, which you hold in your hand.

May I suggest a recess at this time?

sheets for the date of January 1, 1946, with plaintiff's Exhibit 126, which you have identified as the book maintained in the course of business of the Menlo Club? A. Yes, I did.

Q. And do you find that the same figures as set forth in plaintiff's Exhibit 114 as to the returns from tables, amounts of loans and returns, are the same in each of the exhibits?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive.

The Court: Well, it is leading.

Mr. Campbell: I was trying to save time. I can take it through each one.

Mr. Gillen: We offered to save time.

The Court: It is leading, but he may answer the question.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now with respect to government's Exhibit 114A, the poker sheets, for December 31, 1946, and directing your attention to the first page thereon, purporting to be the shift from 8 to 4, will you state—I call your attention to the upper left-hand corner, the first entry that appears, amount drawn $100, Miller, returned $81.00, to what does that refer?

A. That means that Miller borrowed $100 and played cards and after he completed his game he returned the $81.00.

Q. Now who was Miller?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you recall whether or not Miller was an employee of the [1165] Menlo Club as of December 31, 1946?

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, my understanding was that up to this point counsel was laying further foundation for Exhibit 114 series, but it appears he is now going into the contents of it and if that is so, we would like to be heard on our motion to strike these documents, on the ground no proper foundation is laid.

The Court: What is the situation? Have you finished your foundation?

Mr. Campbell: I think we have certainly shown sufficiently here.

Mr. Avakian: May we be heard?

The Court: I am satisfied with the foundation. The exhibits will stand admitted in evidence.

Mr. Avakian: May we request an opportunity to be heard, your Honor, because we would like to explain to your Honor our feeling as to foundation not laid with respect to other entries. The document has been corroborated as to certain entries, but counsel apparently wants——

The Court: I think that can be taken care of by taking a recess and letting this witness go through and make comparisons of all the different dates that are mentioned in the exhibit.

Mr. Avakian: I respectfully state to your Honor I believe there are entries on those poker sheets which the witness [1166] will not be able to corroborate by reference to the book.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

The Court: I do not feel each and every one would have to be accurately corroborated.

Mr. Avakian: But, your Honor, it is only those others that are material, but as to those corroborated, they are already in the record and counsel apparently wants to use other entries.

The Court: The purpose I have in mind is whether these 114 are the actual poker sheets entered in the record business of the club.

Mr. Avakian: And both witnesses have said they don't know.

The Court: And if it should appear that the entries correspond to a great extent as to different items, I think the foundation would be satisfactorily laid in that respect.

Mr. Avakian: But, your Honor, the point is counsel apparently wants to use other entries on these poker sheets that are not corroborated.

The Court: It doesn't make any difference whether he does or not, if the Court feels that those are established as the poker sheets of this organization.

Mr. Avakian: Both witnesses have said they don't know.

The Court: That is a matter to be considered. Both witnesses have said, Mr. Kyne and this witness, that [1167] they are similar——

Mr. Avakian: In form.

The Court: He did not say in form. He said similar.

Well, that is the way I feel about it.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Avakian: May the record show that these sheets were produced not by Mr. Kyne or Mr. Maundrell, but by the government's counsel?

The Court: The record certainly shows that now. So the order admitting Exhibits 114, 114A and 114B will stand. They are all admitted in evidence.

(Question read.)

A. No, I do not.

Q. First let me ask you this, do you know what Miller that refers to? A. No, I do not.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that also on government's Exhibits 114 and 114B, sheets for January 1, 1946, and January 1, 1947, also contain the name of Miller as having received a loan and made returns, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Does that in any way refresh your recollection as to who was Miller?

Mr. Gillen: May I suggest the name Miller, without any initial or anything?

Mr. Campbell: Just the name Miller [1168] appears.

A. Well, they had a great many employees there and I didn't know them. I would say of all those employees I knew none of them except maybe one or two. I didn't inhabit the place, I was never around there except in the morning.

Q. I call your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 124A, the pay roll record for 1946, and call your attention to the name of Oliver D. Miller, showing only one day of employment, May 22nd, do you know whether or not that is the Mr. Miller as referred to on these sheets? A. No, I don't.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Now I call your attention to the fact that also under the heading "Return" on this sheet 114A for December 31, 1946, under the heading "Return" appears in blue pencil "Telephone Remit $10.25," do you recognize that writing?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know to what that item refers?

A. No, sir.

Q. I call your attention to the upper right-hand corner, where there appear various names with amounts ranging from $20 to $6.00 set against them, to what does that refer?

A. The salaries paid to the men, the employees, whose names appear there.

Q. And I call your attention to three additional items appearing in here, Meals, $20; Linen, $6.25; Trim cards, $60, will you state whether or not those refer to expenses which were paid on [1169] that day and during that shift? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now I call your attention to the fact that the amount "Loan" shows a total $252.50, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Consisting of $100 loaned to Miller, $100 to a man by the name of Caswell, who also appears as an employee, is that correct?

Mr. Gillen: I object to counsel suggesting that he also appears as an employee, because it is just a surname——

Mr. Campbell: I will amend the question.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. The name Caswell also appears as an employee of the club?

A. Yes, Mr. Caswell as an employee.

Q. And $50 advanced to one Carcilla, and I will ask you if the name Carcilla also appears among employees at the rate of ten dollars?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the balance of $2.50 is made up of two items, $1.00 and $1.50, against the word "Players," is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now in the right-hand column to which you have referred, upper right-hand portion of the page to which I have directed your attention to the items which you say represent wages paid employees, plus certain expenses, make a total of $279.25, is that correct? [1170] A. Yes, sir.

Q. And also your attention is directed to the amount picked up from tables, $438.25?

A. That's correct.

Q. Now will you examine this page particularly and state whether or not, on the basis of the figures to which I have directed your attention, there was any profit for that shift in the operation of the club, after the payment of salaries and the expenses enumerated, taking into account the amounts advanced to the players whom you have described and the amounts returned by them and taking into account the amount received from the rental of the tables arrived at?

Mr. Gillen: What date is that?

Mr. Campbell: That is December 31, 1946.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And is that done in the calculations set forth in the middle column at the middle of the page?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now in order to arrive at that, I notice that you have added, have you not, the amount of the returns from players, is that correct, to the amount received from rental of the tables?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that you have arrived at a total of $646.25? A. Yes, sir. [1171]

Q. From that you have subtracted, have you not, the amount loaned to players and the amount of expenses paid by way of salary and the other expenses as set forth in the column, incidentals?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. A total of $531.75? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that for that shift you have arrived at what profit?

Mr. Golden: Your Honor, I do not understand that this witness said he had done this.

Mr. Campbell: I will reframe the question.

Q. So according to that sheet there is shown how much profit from that shift?

Mr. Avakian: May it be understood all prior sheets likewise was not the witness' subtraction on the sheet.

The Court: No, I can't go back over the record.

(Last question read.)

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

The Court: Have you any objection to that question?

Mr. Avakian: Not to that. We would like to strike the answers prior on the ground it assumes something not in evidence.

The Court: There was no objection made at the time they were offered. The answer may be given to this question.

A. $114.50. [1172]

Q. Immediately below that figure appears the figure $10,000, do you know to what that refers?

A. The bank roll.

Q. And imediately below that, after having added $114.50, there appears the figure of 10,114.50, what does that represent?

A. Well, that was the bank roll at the completion of the day, this particular shift.

Q. Now turning to the second page, I direct your attention to similar entries in the nature of those you described on the first sheet appear on the second? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is as to wages, expenses, loans, to players, and return and tables? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I direct your attention to the figure you referred to, bank roll, at the end of the first shift shows $10,114.50, to the words appearing below, "Top $10,114.50," does that also refer to the bank roll as found at the end of the first shift?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now this particular sheet shows a loss, does it not? A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Gillen: What sheet is that?

Mr. Campbell: Second sheet, government's Exhibit 114A, the shift 4 to 12. [1173]

Mr. Gillen: Is that December 31, 1946?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, sir.

Q. And that loss was in what amount for that particular shift? A. $111.50.

Q. Now it is a fact, is it not, that included in the expenses of that shift were purchase of six gross of Bee cards at $365.50?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive.

The Court: It may be preliminary. Answer the question.

A. It is so stated on the poker sheet.

Q. So that according to this sheet the new top for the new bank roll is what at the end of that shift? A. $10,003.

Q. Now referring to the third sheet of the series, also in government's Exhibit 114A, and referring to the shift 12 to 8, of the 12 midnight to 8 in the morning, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. What does that sheet show as to wins or losses?

A. It shows that they won $156.

Q. What does it show as to the bank roll as at the end of the third shift?

A. It shows $10,159.

Q. I take it from your testimony, Mr. Maundrell, that that amount is arrived at after deduction of all the expenses as set forth on these three sheets, is that correct? [1174] A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Now I direct your attention, still referring to Exhibit 114A, to certain notations which appear in the lower left-hand corner under the heading "Floor," Atkinson, Lefky, Anderson, Parrish, and certain amounts set forth opposite each one. Do you know to what that refers?

A. Those are floormen that worked there from time to time, they would go to the cage and get money, usually in chips which they carried in their pockets, and in the event a player wants chips immediately, say $50 or $100 worth of chips, they gave them the chips. At the end of the day that money is returned to the cage.

Q. You say floormen, do you know what their duties were other than cashing chips?

A. Yes, they ran games, each one had so many tables. They got the players for the games, put the games together, kept them going, collected the table fees that were due, sometimes they go in the dining room and buy them a cup of coffee, that is what those charges of meals were for. They supplied them with those.

Q. I call your attention, still referring to plaintiff's Exhibit 114A, to the right-hand lower corner, in which appears various names, this particular one, Hastings, Rice, Chappy, Posey, Smthy, Pesty, Duke, and so on, some 15 names, opposite which are set amounts, some of which have been scratched out, [1175] and ask you to what those refer, if you know?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Those are the amounts of money that were owed to the club and they had markers in those different figures, different amounts, instead of IOUs.

Q. What, if anything, does it indicate when the figure has been scratched out, as opposite Hastings, there was five hundred, does that refer to $500 or $5.00, do you know? A. That was $500.

Q. And I observe that this is scratched out. What, if anything, if you know, would that indicate? A. He paid back $500 he owed.

Q. Would that be during this particular shift, the 8 to 4 shift? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I observe opposite the name Chappy there appears $130 scratched out, $200 scratched out and $100, what would that indicate?

A. Well, that means he borrowed $150.

Q. Is that 130 or 150?

A. Well, it might be 130—borrowed $200, he also borrowed $100, but he paid it all back except $100.

Q. And that would be during the course of this shift?

A. Yes, sir. It doesn't necessarily mean that that money was borrowed in the course of that shift, but the scratches would mean it was paid off. [1176]

Q. Calling your attention, still referring to plaintiff's Exhibit 114A, to the fact that similar items appear on each of the shifts, are they amounts owed by the players which they have borrowed, put on each page of the shift for the day?

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, sir. Let me make myself understood. Some of these items were not borrowed on that particular day or shift. They carried over maybe the day before, or maybe a week previous to that.

Q. What I was getting at is this, on each shift is there set forth, if you know, in the lower right-hand corner the amount outstanding, owing to the club, by those who have borrowed from the club?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that each cashier, as he goes on duty for the shift, has the entire list before him, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that player may or may not play during that shift or may or may not pay anything on his account during that shift, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now I call your attention to the fact that in this list on the first page, still referring to government's Exhibit 114A, of the money owed, appears the word "Floor, $100," and apparently scratched out. Do you know to what that refers?

A. No, sir. [1177]

Q. On the second page is carried "Floor, $400," which is on the 4 to 12 shift, and on the 12 to 8 shift it is carried at various amounts, scratched out until there remains $100 with the word "TR" opposite it. Do you know to what that refers?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Now will you glance over briefly at Exhibit 114 and 114B, the poker sheets for January 1, 1946, and January 1, 1947, and state whether or not they contain the same type of information as you have described with relation to plaintiff's Exhibit 114A?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, they do.

Mr. Gillen: The question is objectionable on the several grounds, your Honor, but I won't waste the time objecting.

The Court: It has already been answered.

Q. Now referring to plaintiff's Exhibit 126, I will ask you first if there is set forth herein the amount of income derived by the Menlo Club for the year 1946 from the table rentals which you have described? In other words, is there an annual figure or is that set forth in monthly figures?

A. In monthly figures.

Q. Is that also true of the heading "Loans," which you have described as advances to players?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I believe you stated, did you not, that loans also include the salaries and incidental expenses, is that correct? A. Yes, sir. [1178]

Q. And that is also set forth by monthly figures? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I mean monthly totals.

A. Monthly totals, that is right.

Q. And is that also true of the returns, which you have described as the amount returned by those financed by the house to play the games?

A. Yes, sir.

resumes the witness stand on further

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Mr. Avakian: May we have the last few questions read?

(Questions read.)

Mr. Avakian: I believe Mr. Campbell in advertently made a wrong description.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, I was going to correct that.

Q. Mr. Maundrell, apparently there was some misunderstanding between us this morning concerning one of the records, 1946. I recall you testified there was set forth on the right-hand side of these sheets the pay roll and certain incidental [1179] expenses which in arriving at the day's profit as set forth here, you have deducted from income, is that correct, was deducted on these sheets rather in arriving at the daily profit, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. However, in Exhibit 126, in which figures from poker sheets have been transposed into the ledgers of the Menlo Club fund, does the figure

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

"Amount Loan" include the pay roll and other expenses set forth on the poker sheets?

A. No, it does not.

Q. Those were handled separately, were they?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. So I take it then that your monthly total appearing in that record, government's Exhibit 126, under the heading "Income" would represent the gross take prior to the deduction of expenses, such as wages, salaries and other expenses of doing business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You stated, I believe, that you did not have a yearly total but that you did have, in that government's Exhibit 126, monthly totals of gross statement? A. Yes.

Q. Will you state what they were by months for the year 1946?

A. As of January 31, 1946, the total for the month taken in on tables was $53,293.75; the amount of the returns, $33,923; the [1180] amount of the loans was $48,706.50.

Q. Making a gross income of what amount?

A. The gross revenue is here.

Q. Net revenue?

A. The gross net revenue was $38,510.25. That is monthly. February 28th, 1946: tables, $49,245.25; returns, $29,903.50, and loans, $43,993; gross revenue, $35,155.75. March 31, 1946: tables, $53,509; returns, $32,101.25; loans, $48,223.25; gross net, $37,397.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we are a little bit

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

confused by the term "gross net." I wonder if we could ask counsel to clarify that so we could clarify these figures?

Mr. Campbell: Finish the figures first, Mr. Maundrell.

A. I just gave the figures as of March 31, 1946. I will repeat them. The amount of money taken in on the tables amounted to $53,509. The amount of money taken in on returns was $32,101.25. They are added together and the loans are deducted from that amount. The loans, $48,223.25, which would leave a balance on hand of $37,397.

Q. Proceed.

A. April 30, 1946: tables, $50,455.75; the loans, $45,880.25; the returns were $27,444.25, leaving a gross net revenue of $32,019.75. May 31, 1946: tables, $31,764.50; loans, $22,013.00; returns, $17,193.85, leaving a gross net revenue of $26,945.35. June 30, 1946: tables, $38,307.25; loans, $35,103.10; returns, [1181] $26,049.85; gross revenue, $29,234. July 31, 1946: tables, $48,225.25; loans, $45,028.50; returns, $29,199.50; gross revenue, $32,396.25. August 31, 1946: tables, $55,914; loans, $47,896; returns, $28,351.25; gross revenue, $36,369.25. September 30, 1946: tables, $54,130.25; loans, $44,714.50; returns, $26,695; gross revenue, $36,116.75. October 31, 1946: tables, $52,067; returns, $26,484.50; loans, $41,437.50; gross revenue, $37,114. November 30, 1946: tables, $50,927.25; returns, $26,849.45; loans, $41,645.25; gross revenue, $36,-

BLURRED COPY

131.45. December 31, 1946: tables, $50,175; returns, $26,851; loans, $41,872; gross revenue, $35,154.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, did you have a written agreement with Mr. Remmer as to a share in the profits of the operation of the Menlo Club?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you have that with you? This is the original of such an agreement? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask that this be marked with government's next number.

The Clerk: No. 130.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I want to say, by way of explanation, in comparing 130 for identification with our copy, I inadvertently wrote on the original rather than the copy and with the permission of the Court I will strike that out [1182] and it will be understood that was placed on there erroneously.

Mr. Campbell: No objection.

Mr. Avakian: We have no objection to 130 going in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: It will be offered.

The Court: 130 is admitted in evidence.

Q. Now when was it, Mr. Maundrell, that you first started your association with the Menlo Club?

A. I arrived in San Francisco around the 20th of May, I believe it was, 1945.

Q. And was that the time that you commenced your association there?

A. Well, no. I had several conversations with Mr. Remmer. I was living at the time in Beverley

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Hills in southern California and we had four or five conversations relative to my employment there.

Q. What is your best recollection when you began your active employment?

A. From May 1, 1945.

Q. Now I direct your attention to the fact that this agreement is dated the 4th of November, 1946.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I will ask you if there was an agreement prior to that time with Mr. Remmer?

A. Yes, sir. [1183]

Q. Was that a written or oral agreement?

A. Oral agreement.

Q. And I will ask you whether or not the oral agreement was substantially in the same terms as embodied in this written agreement?

A. Yes, I would say yes.

Mr. Campbell: Could it be agreed, rather than read the document, that the document is in the same terms as that heretofore read in respect to to the witness, William Kyne, with the exception that the interest referred to herein is a 10 per cent interest?

Mr. Avakian: And on the second page in the next to the last paragraph the amount——

Mr. Campbell: Yes, whereas Kyne's is 26 thousand, the amount set forth herein is $17,500, but in all other particulars and with the exception this calls for ten per cent rather than 15 per cent, the document is identical.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Avakian: Yes, I believe they are word for word.

Q. Now I am going to show you, Mr. Maundrell, plaintiff's Exhibit 129 for identification, marked "Menlo Bar, 1946," and ask you if you recognize that as a book kept in the regular course of the business of the Menlo Bar?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that book maintained by you?

A. Yes, sir. [1184]

Q. And the entries made by you?

A. Not all of the entries. Some were made by my secretary. There are a great many entries made by me.

Q. Well, were the entries made by you or under your supervision? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: This will be offered as Exhibit 129.

Mr. Golden: No specific objection other than the objection we have to all this material, that it has been in the hands of the government.

The Court: It will be understood and the objection will be overruled.

Q. I show you plaintiff's Exhibit 127 for identification, a book entitled "Tiny's Restaurant, 1946," and I will ask you if you recognize that as a book maintained in the regular course of that business and entries made by you or under your supervision? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I will offer this as government's Exhibit 127.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Golden: Same objection and motion, your Honor.

The Court: Same ruling. The exhibit will be admitted in evidence, No. 127.

Q. At this time also I will show you government's Exhibit 112A for identification, a book bearing the title, "110 Eddy Street, 50 Mason," and ask you if you recognize that book? [1185]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that a book maintained by you in the course of your employment, with the entries either made by you or made under your direction and supervision? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And to what enterprise or enterprises does this particular record, 112A for identification, refer? A. 110 Eddy Street tavern.

Q. I notice also the address 50 Mason on the front.

A. There are a few entries I notice in the back kept of my office, have nothing to do with 110 Eddy Street.

Q. Do they relate to the premises known as 50 Mason Street?

A. Yes, only to the office, the office that I maintained.

Q. Without stating the entries, what is the nature of the entries relative to the address 50 Mason Street?

A. Well, the different expenses paid at the office, paid by my office.

Q. Relative to what enterprise or enterprises?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Well, there are different things, office supplies and stamps.

Q. Well, state whether or not they are expenses of maintaining the office where you were keeping the records of the various enterprises?

A. That is right.

Q. So in a sense they relate to all of the enterprises, is [1186] that correct, for which you kept records?

A. Well, no; 110 Eddy, the Day-Night, the 186 Club.

Q. Those three enterprises?

A. Those three paid a certain fee each month. When I first went to work for Mr. Remmer, I went into the Day-Night Cigar Stand, my original talks and topic of conversation with relation to going there and the other clubs were not mentioned at that time. It was after I came to San Francisco that we talked about it and then I took over the books later on.

Q. Your original employment was with reference to the Menlo Bar and Menlo Restaurant?

A. Yes, sir, Menlo Club.

Mr. Campbell: I offer Exhibit 119 in evidence.

Mr. Gillen: I would like an opportunity to examine Mr. Maundrell on voir dire in regard to 50 Mason Street expenses, to see whether he recalls whether those are his personal expenses or something to do with the defendant.

Mr. Campbell: I don't believe that is a matter for voir dire. If counsel desires to question him,

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

he can go into it at a later time. It is not a matter of voir dire on qualifications.

The Court: You may ask.

Q. (By Mr. Gillen): Mr. Maundrell, in regard to expenses at 50 Mason Street, do you have any recollection whether or not those were personal expenses of your own or expenses to do with [1187] Mr. Remmer?

A. They were expenses of mine. In other words, I collected from 110 Eddy $75 a month for expenses and I collected from the Day-Night Cigar Store a certain amount of money for expenses and those expenses went to pay some of the expenses at 50 Mason Street. They were not charges against any other account.

Mr. Gillen: I think they should be eliminated.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, I am willing to extract those pages from the book which you have identified.

Mr. Gillen: Of course, your Honor, the record should show that we interpose the same objection to the admission of the entire book.

The Court: The same objections Mr. Golden referred to?

Mr. Gillen: That is correct.

The Court: So understood. Otherwise those objections will be overruled and the exhibit admitted in evidence, 112A.

Q. (By Mr. Campbell): Now, Mr. Maundrell, you have extracted one page from the book, is that the only page which referred to personal expenses?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. It is.

Mr. Campbell: May this be given a number simply for identification?

The Court: 112B for identification, 112 series.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, you stated, I believe, that some time [1188] after you became associated with the San Francisco enterprises of Mr. Remmer's, you also took care of the books and records of the 186 Club, is that correct?

A. Not until 1946. I took care of some of the books.

Q. From whom did you take over the keeping of the records for that enterprise?

A. Mr. Slater.

Q. Do you recall approximately the date in 1946 when you took over those records?

A. It started as of the first of the year.

Q. That is the first of 1946? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And at that time were certain books and records turned over to you for that club?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the nature of those books?

A. They were records kept by Mr. Slater, although at the time he had an agreement——

Q. (Interrupting): No, that is not responsive. I am asking for a description of the books that you maintained during 1946 for the 186 Club.

A. We had a ledger and journal I believe.

Q. Now did you subsequently, Mr. Maundrell, turn certain of those records over to the agents of the Bureau of Internal Revenue who were investigating this case? [1189] A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. And subsequent to that did you request, and was there returned to you, those records?

A. Yes, I made a request for certain books that I needed and they were returned to me.

Q. I call your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 122 for identification, and ask you if that is your signature? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And is that the receipt given by you to the agents at the time the records were returned to you? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: At this time I will ask that plaintiff's Exhibit 122 for identification be received in evidence.

Mr. Golden: No objection.

The Court: It may be admitted in evidence.

Q. Mr. Maundrell, this document reads as follows:

(Reads Exhibit 122.)

Q. Incidentally, who was R. W. Morgan?

A. He was a man working for the Bureau.

Q. The Internal Revenue agent?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now when did you last see those records which are referred to in this receipt, Mr. Maundrell? A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you know whether or not they were at 50 Mason Street at [1190] the time you terminated your connection with the enterprise?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as having been asked and answered. He said he doesn't know.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. I don't remember.

Q. I believe you stated that in connection with that enterprise——

The Court (Interceding): When you say "that"——

Q. 186 Club—in connection with the 186 Club, you prepared certain of the tax returns, that is to say, the social security returns, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now with reference to the black book referred to in this receipt, showing daily win and lose from March, 1943, to December 31, 1945, do you know who kept that record? A. No, sir.

Q. Was that a record which was turned over to you at the time you began keeping records of the 186 Club?

A. Those were records that were turned over to me by Mr. Slater and I merely filed them on the shelf.

Q. So far as you know, were there any other records maintained for that period from March, 1943, to December 31, 1945?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Now referring to the ledgers set forth in this receipt, showing daily analysis of take and distribution of expenses for [1191] the period January 1, 1946, to June 30, 1946, was that a record which you kept? A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. And as to the loose-leaf sheets showing daily take and distribution of expenses for the period July 1, 1946, to December 31, 1946, was that also a record which you kept? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the source of information which went into the record which you kept?

A. The poker sheets and certain bills that were presented to me from time to time.

Q. And by poker sheets, are you referring to poker sheets which were similar in nature to those you have identified with respect to the Menlo Club?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I am going to show you a group of sheets headed "Poker," being Exhibits 110 to 110F, and using plaintiff's 110F, which bears date December 31, 1946, and ask you if you recognize that document? A. No, I do not.

Q. Can you state whether or not that document is similar to those which you used in posting the books of the 186 Club?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive. That question is not cross-examination.

Mr. Campbell: It does not suggest the answer, your Honor. [1192]

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recognize any of the names appearing thereon?

A. Only one name, that is the name of Busterno.

Q. Who was Busterno?

A. He was one of the partners.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. You stated, I believe, that in connection with your employment you made out the social security and federal insurance contribution returns for the 186 Club? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I will ask that this group, consisting of some five documents, headed "Employers Tax Return," be marked for identification as 131 for identification, as one group.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, the defense is agreeable to stipulate that plaintiff's Exhibit 131 may be received in evidence if the prosecution desires to offer it.

The Court: It may be admitted in evidence, Exhibit 131.

Q. Mr. Maundrell, I show you plaintiff's Exhibit 131 and ask you if you recognize these as employer's tax return of the 186 Club for the quarter ending December 31, 1945, and the four quarters of 1946?

A. Well, I didn't prepare these. These were done by Slater, 1945.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that the return is dated December 31, 1945, and the balance are for 1946? [1193]

A. Those in '46 I prepared, yes.

Q. Were those prepared by you?

A. Yes, sir, 1946.

Q. As a matter of fact, isn't that your handwriting thereon, that notation? A. No.

Q. You did, however, prepare them?

A. 1946.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Now I direct your attention to the one dated December 31, 1946, and again calling your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 110F for identification, you have stated that these sheets, I believe, were similar to those which you utilized, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that on each of these sheets there appears opposite various names on that date, December 31, 1946, the word "Wages," together with amounts, and I will ask you to examine these poker sheets as to those names and find if some names are listed as employees of the 186 Club as of the calendar year ending December 31, 1946?

A. There is Stewart here, Bert W.

Q. Is the word "Wages" under his name? I am referring to those that there are amounts listed as wages, to which there is Busterno, 25—do you find Busterno listed as an employee on the [1194] return? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The next I call your attention on the poker sheet, Divodi, wages $25, do you find him listed on the tax return as an employee? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The next is Grafford, wages $15, do you find him listed on the tax return as employee?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. The next is Osnato, $15 wages, do you find him listed as an employee for that quarter? You do not find that one? A. No, sir.

Q. The next sheet of 110F is the name of

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Shenave, wages $12.50, do you find him on the tax return? Do you find that name?

A. Mike Shenave, yes, sir.

Q. Now you stated you did not find the name Osnato on the one you have before you?

A. What is the date of the return?

A. 12-31-46. I show you the balance of plaintiff's Exhibit 131, Mr. Maundrell, and direct your attention to the fact that on each of the other returns of employers tax returns there is listed as an employee the name Frank C. Osnato, do you see that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On the second of these documents, as an employee, Frank C. Osnato, do you see that?

A. Yes, sir. [1195]

Q. And the third one of these as an employee the name of Frank Clement Osnato?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And on the last of these which I hold in my hand, as employee for the quarter ending September 30, 1946, Frank C. Osnato, as employee?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I am directing your attention to the second page of plaintiff's Exhibit 110F for identification, and the name of Romero, wages $12.50, do you find his name listed thereon? A. Yes, sir.

Q. As an employee on the tax return filed?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now I direct your attention to the return for the period ending March 31, 1946, portion of government's Exhibit 131, and I also call attention to plaintiff's 110E for identification, which bears date of Juanry 1, 1946, and the heading "Poker" sheet, calling your attention to certain names appearing thereon with the word "Wages," Reggio, wages $15. Do you find him listed as employee for that period on the tax return?

A. Joseph Reggio, yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to O'Neil, wages $15, referring to 110E for identification, and I ask you, do you find his name listed as employee?

A. Roma O'Neil. [1196]

Q. I call your attention to the name Osnato, wages $15, and ask you if you find his name listed as employee? A. Frank Clement Osnato.

The Court: I take it when you repeat the names it is on that tax return?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention now to the tax return for the quarter ending December 31, 1945, portion of government's Exhibit 131 in evidence, and call your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 110D for identification, which bears a date 12-31-45, and direct your attention under the name of Riggio, wages $15, was he listed as an employee for that period on the tax return? A. Yes, sir.

Q. O'Neil, $15, was he listed as an employee?

A. Ramon O'Neil.

Q. He was listed on the tax return?

A. Yes.

Q. Estano, $15? A. Right, C. S.

Q. Tasons, $12.50, was he listed as an employee?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. George Tasos.

Q. Gabriel, wage $12.50, was he listed for that period? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you find on here as an employee for that period one Gabriel Sorantino? [1197]

A. Yes, there is Gabriel Sorantino.

Q. Louis Segalio, still referring to 110E for identification, do you find him listed for that period as an employee? A. Yes.

Q. Nick Valle, wages $12.50, do you find him listed as an employee? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: At this time, if the Court please, I am going to offer in evidence the poker sheets which form group 110 to 110F for identification.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we have several grounds for objection to that offer. First of all, if these are being offered as purportedly the authentic poker sheets of the 186 Club, we make our usual grounds of objection that we have been making to all documents produced by the prosecution which they have declined to let us see, and make the same motion. Secondly, we object on the ground that no proper foundation has been laid because no witness from the witness stand has testified that he could identify these particular documents as the actual documents of the 186 Club and we are placed, your Honor, in this situation—there has not been produced so far any witness whom we can cross-examine as to whether these are the records. This is a very strange, and to me a very new manner, of introducing documentary evidence. If these actually are poker sheets taken from 186 Club by the government, then we submit the proper [1198] foundation would consist of something from the agents who took them, to the effect that these are records they took, and testimony from any other agent who had custody of them in the interval, to the effect that these are the records that were turned over to him by the prior agent, and we could then establish a chain of authenticity, we could then cross-examine somebody as to whether they are the authentic records or transcripts made up by somebody during the four or five years since they were taken, and if they are transcripts, whether they are complete and accurate in every respect, but if these documents are received in this manner of foundation, then, your Honor, there is no sworn testimony that these are documents of the 186 Club and there is nobody whom we can cross-examine to determine on cross-examination whether these are the actual records which were taken from the 186 Club, and I submit, your Honor, as a matter of proper procedure, since these documents are produced by the prosecution, the prosecution should advise this court, through the witness, not the witness on the stand, who obtained these documents, when and where they were obtained, who has had custody of them from that time until now and then we could properly cross-examine on them.

The Court: Objection overruled and Exhibits

110, 110A, 110B, 110C, 110D, 110E, and 110F are admitted in evidence.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, in connection with your employment concerning [1199] the operation of the Menlo Club, the Menlo Bar and Tiny's Waffle Shop, was there a bank account maintained in your name? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in what bank was that maintained?

A. Crocker National Bank.

Q. I show you plaintiff's Exhibit 27, which has heretofore been produced in evidence, relating to an account at the Crocker National Bank in the name of Elmer Remmer or Harold H. Maundrell, and ask you if that is the account to which you refer? A. Yes.

Q. The witness has called attention to the first document in this account produced here by the representative of the Crocker National Bank, namely, what purports to be a signature card. Now I will ask you if those account ledger sheets which are in the name of Elmer Remmer or Harold H. Maundrell, refer to that account, if you know?

A. Yes, the account was Elmer Remmer or Harold H. Maundrell.

Q. You did have such an account, however, in the Crocker National Bank? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who were the authorized signators?

A. Elmer Remmer or myself.

Q. When was that account opened, to the best of your recollection? [1200]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. I think that was opened on or about the last of May or the beginning of June, 1945, I believe.

Mr. Gillen: The record would be the best evidence.

The Court: Yes.

Q. There is date appearing June 21, 1945, does that refresh your recollection? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, in respect to what businesses was that bank account used?

A. That was receipts that were taken in from Tiny's Waffle Shop and Menlo Bar and Cocktail Lounge, and then monies that were advanced to me from time to time.

Q. For various purposes?

A. For various purposes.

Q. Now to your knowledge did all of the receipts of the Benlo Bar and Tiny's Waffle Shop go into that account? A. Yes, sir.

Q. With the exception, I presume, of small daily payments?

A. Well, any cash accounts, no.

Q. With that exception? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And from that account did you handle the payment of expenses of those two enterprises?

A. Yes, sir. [1201]

Q. Now did you handle at any time the receipts of the Menlo Club? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you have any bank account, either in your name or to which you had access, in which the receipts of the Menlo Club were placed?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. No, sir.

Q. Were you an authorized signator on any account other than this Crocker National Bank account? A. Day-Night Cigar Store.

Q. And who else was on the Day-Night Cigar Store with you, if you recall?

A. I think Willie Kyne. My signature was on that because of the fact that Willie Kyne was going into the service.

Q. That is when your signature was placed on there?

A. Well, it wasn't put on there until some time in, I think, of 1945, I don't know the exact date.

Q. Aside from those two accounts, did you have access to any of the other bank accounts with respect to various businesses? A. No, sir.

Q. Now did you maintain any safety deposit boxes in your name with respect to any of the businesses? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you have any access to any safety deposit box with relation to these businesses, that is to say, were you an authorized [1202] entrant to any safety deposit box? A. No, sir.

Q. Now you stated that in addition to the receipts of the Tiny's Waffle Shop and the Menlo Bar that from time to time other funds would be given to you to be placed in the Crocker National Bank? A. Yes, sir.

Q. By whom would those funds be given to you?

A. Well, as I needed them they might be given to me by Mr. Remmer or one of the managers of the Menlo Club.

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. You say as you needed them, was that with respect to the operation of either the Waffle Shop or the Menlo Bar? A. Yes, sir.

Q. From that account did you pay any of the expenses of the Menlo Club? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And upon whose instructions?

A. I would say Mr. Remmer.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to ask to have marked for identification certain exhibits at this time, the first as government's Exhibit 132 for identification, a book consisting of check book stubs, together with certain adding machine tabs, and as 132A for identification a group of some five checks. As 133 for identification, a second group of check stubs, and as 133A for identification a group of 17 checks, together with [1203] document entitled "Office Memorandum for Checks Withdrawn." As 134 for identification a third group of check stubs and as 134A for identification a group of 4 checks. As 135 for identification a fourth group of check stubs, and as 135A for identification a group of 9 cancelled checks. As 136 for identification a fifth book of check stubs, and as 136A for identification a group of 6 cancelled checks. I presume counsel will desire a little time to examine these.

Mr. Avakian: These are documents we have never seen before, your Honor, so it will take a little time.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Maundrell, I will show you what has been marked plaintiff's Exhibit 128 for identification, bearing the pencil heading, "Tiny's Restaurant and Menlo Bar 1945," and ask you if you recognize that as a book of accounts which was maintained by you [1204] or under your direction in connection with the operation of those businesses for the year 1945? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recognize this sheet here?

A. No, I don't recognize that.

Mr. Campbell: Pardon me.

(Shows exhibit to counsel.)

Mr. Avakian: It appears, your Honor, there is a loose sheet which was included in the volume

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

which neither the defense or the prosecution is able to identify now.

Mr. Campbell: I will have it marked for identification. I will ask that Exhibit 128, consisting of one sheet marked Tiny's Restaurant and Menlo Bar, 1945, be admitted in evidence and I will ask to have this yellow sheet, pencil written with the initials E. R. at the top, marked 128A for identification.

Mr. Avakian: May I ask whether this particular set of records were taken from the box deposited with the clerk?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, it was.

Mr. Avakian: We make our usual objection.

The Court: Objection overruled and 128 admitted in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: At this time also I will produce the last book remaining of those in the custody of the clerk and ask to have it marked for identification next in order, being book entitled "Transit Smoke Shop, 1946."

The Clerk: 137. [1205]

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, with respect to the proposed exhibit 137 for identification, which has been produced from the box of records deposited here by the defense, we are willing to stipulate it is an authentic document and our objection to it goes only to the grounds previously stated in respect to these documents.

The Court: Do I understand it has been offered?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Campbell: Yes, I will offer it in evidence or I can have the witness further identify it.

The Court: Objection overruled and 137 admitted in evidence.

Q. Will you examine this 137, Mr. Maundrell, and state whether or not that is a record kept by you in the course of your duties which you have described, with respect to the various enterprises, or kept under your supervision? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Maundrell, in relation to the Menlo Club operations, will you state how many poker tables were operated there? A. I believe about 20.

Q. And in that connection will you state, if you know, the manner in which the take from each table of the table rental was arrived at?

A. The floor man in charge of that particular table, they collected the money from each player at the time the allotted time was up. [1206]

Q. Will you describe the allotted times and how the amounts were arrived at to collect from each player?

A. That I don't know at this time. However, there is a book here which has it in here.

Q. One of the books which you have seen?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall which particular book it is?

A. Right here, it is in Exhibit 126.

Q. Now will you show me the place. You have called my attention to a pencilled list which has been affixed by Scotch tape to the inside front cover of Exhibit 126, is that correct? A. Yes.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Campbell: I will read this if I may: "$2 limit, 50 cents every 40 minutes; $4 limit, 50 cents every half hour; $6 limit, $1 every 40 minutes; $10 limit, $1 every half hour; $20 limit, $3 every hour; $40 limit, $5 every hour; 5-cent ante poker, 25 cents every half hour. The time is collected as stated."

Q. Now referring to the amounts collected half hour, 40 minutes and hour intervals, was that amount collected from each player in the game?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that was collected by the house manager? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now at this time, Mr. Maundrell, I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 132 for identification, and ask you if you [1207] recognize this exhibit? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what is the book?

A. That is check book of the account of Elmer Remmer and Harold Maundrell in the Crocker National Bank.

Q. Is that the account which you described as being the one in which were placed the receipts of the Menlo Bar and Tiny's Waffle Shop, together with other funds which would be advanced to you for particular purposes? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were the entries thereon made by you or made under your direction? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: This will be offered as government's Exhibit 132.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, may the record show that that proposed exhibit was produced by the prosecution from its own files and we object to that on all the grounds which we have heretofore urged, as records of the Menlo Club which were obtained by the prosecution under a promise to return, which was not kept?

The Court: Objection will be overruled. Exhibit 132 is admitted in evidence.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, I am going to extract at this time certain of the cancelled checks which have heretofore been marked [1208] Exhibit 132A for identification. I show you first a check dated June 15, 1945, check No. 1056, and ask you if that is your signature thereon? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And is that a check drawn by you in the course of the employment which you have described? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I will offer this check in evidence as 132B.

Mr. Avakian: Is that in group marked 132A?

Mr. Campbell: That is check No. 1056.

Mr. Avakian: It is now given a new number, is that correct?

Mr. Campbell: That is correct. I am simply withdrawing certain check from 132A.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we offer the same objection with respect to this proposed exhibit as to Exhibit 132.

The Court: Objection overruled and 132B is admitted in evidence.

Q. Mr. Maundrell, I call your attention to this check of June 15, 1945, payable to the Pacific Gas

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

& Electric Company in the amount of $3800. I hand you government's Exhibit 132 and ask you if you will state for what purpose that particular check was drawn?

A. It was for deposit on Pacific Gas & Electric Company for [1209] Tiny's Cafe, Menlo Club, Menlo Bar.

Q. And can you state whether or not that deposit which was made on June 15, 1945, remained as deposit with the Pacific Gas & Electric Company as of December 31, 1945? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It did? A. I believe so, yes.

Q. Are there any records here in which an entry would be made showing that fact, Mr. Maundrell?

A. I don't know at this time. I wouldn't be able to say.

Q. In what book or books was that deposit entered?

A. That would be Tiny's Waffle Shop.

Q. I show you government's Exhibit 127, which is entitled, "Tiny's Waffle Restaurant," and ask you if you will examine that and state whether or not that deposit was outstanding as of December 31, 1945, and whether or not it was also outstanding as of December 31, 1946?

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, in the interest of saving time, we object to the question as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, having no bearing whatsoever on the question of whether this defendant fraudulently evaded his income tax.

The Court: Let me have the question.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

(Question read.)

The Court: The objection is overruled. Answer the question. [1210]

A. May I have the date of that check?

Q. June 15, 1945.

A. This is the 1946 book.

Q. Will you look at that book and examine to see if that deposit was outstanding as of December 31, 1946?

A. I can't tell from the books whether it was or not.

Q. I call your attention also to 1945 book, plaintiff's Exhibit 128, an entry of this check No. 1056. Are you able to ascertain from that book whether or not it was outstanding as of the dates indicated?

A. Well, to the best of my knowledge I would say yes, it was still in the hands of the Pacific Gas & Electric Company.

Q. As of both dates? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At this time I show you a second check withdrawn from 132A for identification, being check No. 1115, and ask you if that is your signature thereon?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was that a check drawn by you in the course of your duties as described by you in your previous testimony? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: This will be offered as 132C in evidence.

Mr. Avakian: And to that, your Honor, we make the same objection as to Exhibits 132 and 132B.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

The Court: Same ruling. Admitted in evidence, 132C. [1211]

Q. I hand you plaintiff's Exhibit 132, check stub book, together with 132C, check for $500, dated July 10, 1945, check No. 1115, payable to Neon Corporation, and ask you for what purpose that check was drawn?

A. That was for a new Neon sign that was erected in front of the Menlo Bar and Cocktail Lounge on the outside of the building.

Q. Can you state upon which book or record an entry was made regarding the purchase of this sign for the Menlo Bar?

A. I would like to see the book of the Menlo Bar, 1945.

Q. You are referring to government's Exhibit 128?

A. 128. It is in government's Exhibit 128, Neon Corporation, $500.

Q. And was that treated in the books, that is to say, as expenses or capital expenditure?

A. Sign for bar, I imagine, was a capital expenditure.

Q. Would you indicate where?

A. It doesn't show in the book here.

Q. Are there other records here which would indicate that?

A. No, sir. I don't know how the auditor treated it finally.

Q. At this time I am going to show you a further check withdrawn from 132A for identification,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

dated August 18, 1945, No. 1247, and ask you if that is your signature thereon? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And is that a check drawn by you in the course of your official duties as described by you in your previous testimony? [1212]

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: This will be offered as government's Exhibit 132D.

Mr. Avakian: Same objection as to the previous one in this series, your Honor.

The Court: Same ruling. Admitted in evidence, 132D.

Q. Will you examine this check, 132D, Fred W. Shell, in amount $2500, and state for what purpose that check was issued?

A. That check was paid on account of new office that was built at 50 Mason Street.

Q. Who, incidentally, was Fred W. Shell?

A. Contractor.

Q. You say a new office was built. By that do you mean new building or interior construction was done?

A. No, it was the old game room they had there, took out the whole front of the building, took out the old cigar stand and main room and built a whole new office in there, composed of four different rooms.

Q. From what source did you obtain the funds for that purpose?

A. I either received this from Mr. Remmer or the manager of the Menlo Club.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Avakian: Objected to, the checks speak for themselves.

The Court: Objection overruled. The answer may stand.

Mr. Avakian: May we have that [1213] stricken?

The Court: The answer may stand.

Q. Now I am going to show you, Mr. Maundrell, plaintiff's Exhibit 133 for identification, and ask you if you recognize that book? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what is that book?

A. Check book of Elmer Remmer and Harold Maundrell account Crocker National Bank.

Q. That is the same bank account to which you previously testified, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was maintained by you as part of your duties of your employment which you have described? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I offer this in evidence, 133.

Mr. Avakian: May the record show that the proposed Exhibit 133 was produced by the prosecution from its own records and we object on the grounds heretofore stated with respect to documents obtained from any of these clubs on promise to return and which promise was never kept.

The Court: Objection overruled. 133 admitted in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: At this time I am going to withdraw certain of the checks which have heretofore been marked for identification as government's Exhibit 133A for identification. [1214]

Q. At this time I will show you check dated September 13, 1945, No. 1344, and ask you if that is your signature thereon? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And is that check drawn by you in the course of your duties as you have described them?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: This will be offered in evidence as government's Exhibit 133B.

Mr. Avakian: Same objection, your Honor.

The Court: Same ruling. Exhibit 133B is admitted.

Q. Mr. Maundrell, I am going to show you a group of checks, all of which have been withdrawn from 133A for identification, and ask you to examine them and state whether or not those are your signatures appearing thereon and if so, if each of these checks was drawn in connection with the duties of your employment as you have described it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Each of these was drawn in connection with your duties? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I also show you a document heading of the Crocker First National Bank, Office Memorandum for Checks Withdrawn, referring to check 1565, name of maker, and ask you if you recognize that document?

A. I don't remember this document but I do remember the check.

Q. Do you recall whether or not you withdrew

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

from the bank prior [1215] to the receipt of your monthly statement that particular check?

A. I don't remember that.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to offer in evidence the following checks to take the numbers in the 133 series as 133C, check No. 1396; as 133D check No. 1401; as 133E check 1536; as 133F check 1537; as 133G check 1538; as 133H check 1540; as 133I check 1566; as 133J check 1568; as 133K check No. 1569; as 133L check No. 1572; as 133M check No. 1574; as 133N check No. 1575, and as 133O check No. 1576. Offered in evidence.

Mr. Avakian: As to all those, your Honor, in addition to the objections we have been making to all of these documents offered in these series, I wish to make the further objection that they are incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial to the issue in this case, fraudulent evasion of income tax by this defendant during the years mentioned.

The Court: Objection overruled and exhibits 133C to 133O inclusive are admitted in evidence.

Q. Now drawing your attention first to check No. 1344, payable to the California Jockey Club, in amount of $108, dated September 13, 1945, will you state for what that check was drawn, Exhibit 133B?

A. For the purchase of a box at the California Jockey Club.

Q. By a box you are referring to a box for viewing the races, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir. [1216]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. And for whom was that purchased?

A. Well, it was purchased for the employees and for the members principally and friends of the members of the Menlo Club. I don't know who occupied it.

Q. Showing you check 133C, No. 1396, dated October 2, 1945, payable to Tinneman Bridgford Company, in the sum of $296.06, will you state for what purpose that check was drawn?

A. That was insurance check. It was drawn for Mr. Remmer's account.

Q. Drawn from Mr. Remmer's account?

A. For Mr. Remmer's account. It was drawn out of the Crocker National Bank.

Q. Was that in payment of personal insurance?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. For Mr. Remmer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I show you Exhibit 133D, No. 1401, dated October 4, 1945, payable to Fred W. Shell, $1050, will you state for what purpose that check was drawn?

A. That was another payment to Mr. Shell for work done at 50 Mason Street.

Q. For constructing the offices there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you recall the source of the funds which were used for this purpose? [1217]

A. The Crocker National Bank.

Q. And where did you obtain the funds, from what business or enterprise?

A. That check I would get the money from either Mr. Remmer or the manager of the Menlo Club, deposit it in the bank and then draw a check against it.

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Were those offices occupied by the Menlo Club? A. They were the main offices.

Q. For all of the enterprises? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And as to those improvements upon what record or records of what enterprises was that set up?

A. Well, it was set up principally for Mr. Remmer's private office and also for the office of the Day-Night Cigar and 110 Eddy.

Q. The B & R Smoke Shoppe?

A. B & R Smoke, Tiny's Waffle Shop, Menlo Bar.

Q. Which of those enterprises were actually located there?

A. Well, the only enterprise itself located there was the back room, about ten feet wide.

Q. What enterprise was in the back room?

A. That was the B & R Smoke Shoppe.

Q. I show you plaintiff's Exhibit 133E, check No. 1536, dated November 12, 1945, payable to Fred W. Shell, in amount of $2,303, was that also drawn in connection with the construction [1218] work there?

A. I believe that was the final check given Mr. Shell.

Q. That was the same construction work to which you have referred? A. Yes.

Q. I show you Exhibit 133F, No. 1537, dated November 12, 1945, in amount $1075.44, Saltzman Stanley, and ask for what purpose that check was drawn?

A. That was for new office equipment.

Q. At the same location, 52 Mason Street?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the source of funds from which you drew that check?

A. Well, that was—all those funds were given to me by either the manager of the Menlo Club or Mr. Remmer.

Q. Incidentally, in what form did you receive the funds in connection with that construction and with the office equipment? A. Cash.

Q. Did you receive any of it by way of check?

A. No, sir.

Q. I show you plaintiff's Exhibit 133G, check No. 1538, dated November 16, 1945, payable to Lou Brice, in amount of $6,000, and ask you for what purpose that check was drawn?

A. Well, that was given to Mr. Brice as payment on night club [1219] Mr. Remmer had an interest in in New York.

Q. What was the source of the funds on which you drew this check?

A. The money was given to me in cash by either Mr. Remmer or the manager of the Menlo Club. If Mr. Remmer wasn't around, I always got the money from the manager.

Q. And this money was given to you in cash?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I will ask you whether or not a further check for $6,000 was also drawn for that purpose?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I will ask you to refer to the record, particularly check No. 1565, and ask you to state the amount of that check and to whom drawn?

A. Six thousand.

Q. On what date?

A. November 26th. Matty Silverman.

Q. Will you state whether or not Matty Silverman was a partner of Lou Brice in the New York night club?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive.

A. Yes.

The Court: Yes.

Q. Who is Matty Silverman?

A. He was connected with Lou Brice also in the club in New York. [1220]

Q. Now directing your attention to a portion of government's Exhibit 133A for identification, a memorandum of the Crocker First National Bank as to check overdrawn, do you recall at this time whether or not you obtained that cancelled check from the bank on or about December 11, 1945?

A. No, I do not.

Mr. Gillen: What check is that?

Mr. Campbell: The last check referred to, No. 1565.

Q. I call your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

133H, check No. 150, dated November 20, 1945, payable to John Hagner, $66.45, and ask you for what purpose that check was drawn?

A. It was for carpenter work.

Q. Carpenter work where?

A. At the new office, 50 Mason Street.

Q. That was part of the construction cost there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who supplied you with that money?

A. Got it from the same source.

Q. That is to say, from either Mr. Remmer or the manager of the Menlo Club? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to check No. 1566, Exhibit 133I, payable to Habenicht & Howland, $22.87, and ask you if that check was also used for the same purpose? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it obtained from the same source?

A. Yes, sir. May I make a statement? [1221]

Mr. Campbell: I think not.

The Court: I think you had better just answer each question. If you want to explain any answer——

Mr. Avakian: I believe that is what the witness wishes.

The Court: We will find out from the witness. Do you want to explain your answer?

A. He asked me every time if the checks were from the same source. They are, but I don't go each time and get $22 or $30. I will get a larger amount.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. I understand and then drew these checks against it? A. That's right.

Q. I am going to call your attention to a group of checks which are 133J to 133O inclusive, the first five of which are all dated November 2, 1945, Nos. 1568, 1569, 1572, 1574 and 1575, and the last being 133O, dated November 28, 1945, No. 1576, and ask you to examine those and state whether or not those checks also represent costs of the improvements made at 52 Mason Street in regard to the construction of the new office?

A. Check 1568 Tinneman Bridgford for $46.50 was paid for insurance for Mrs. Remmer.

Q. Let us withdraw that. That is 133J. Now as to the others?

A. Check 1569 made to H. C. Evans & Company for $920, was for equipment to be used in the Menlo Club.

Q. That is 133K.

A. Check 1572 to the American District Telephone Company for [1222] $340.85 was to pay for putting in a complete burglary alarm system in the new offices.

Q. That is 133L.

A. Check 1574, John Hagen, $76.46, was for further office repairs at 50 Mason Street.

Q. That is 133M.

A. Check 1575 to Pacific Gas & Electric Company for $650, was for deposit.

Q. Now did that deposit remain with the Pacific Gas & Electric Company——

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. ——at the end of 1945 and end of 1946?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: May the answer be stricken until we can object?

The Court: Yes, sir. The answer will go out.

Mr. Gillen: We object on the ground it is completely incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial to the issue in this case of whether there was fraudulent tax evasion.

The Court: Objection overruled. The answer may stand.

A. Check No. 1576 to John Hagen for $55.06 was for further office repairs. He worked around there for about three or four weeks.

Q. Referring to 1330. Now as to all of these checks which you have just described, what was the source of the funds from [1223] which you drew the checks?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as already asked and answered.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. I drew the money from either the manager of the Menlo Club or Mr. Remmer.

Q. At this time I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 134 for identification and ask you if you recognize that book? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what is that book?

A. That is a check book of the Elmer Remmer and Harold Maundrell account at the Crocker National Bank.

Q. And maintained by you in the course of your employment as you have previously described?

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I offer 134 in evidence.

Mr. Avakian: May the record show that this book was likewise produced from the prosecution's own records and we make the same objection we have been making right along to these records.

The Court: Objection overruled and 134 is admitted in evidence.

Q. I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 134A for identification, consisting of some 4 cancelled checks, and ask you if those are your signatures appearing thereon? A. Yes, sir. [1224]

Q. Were those checks drawn by you in the course of the official duties which you have described? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to offer these checks in evidence as exhibits 134A, 134B, 134C and 134D respectively, checks Nos. 1799, 1805, 1811 and 1874.

Mr. Avakian: We make the same objection as to Exhibit 134 and the additional objection that the expenditures represented by these checks are incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial to the issues in this case.

The Court: Objection overruled. Exhibits 134A, 134B, 134C and 134D are each admitted in evidence.

Q. Showing you Exhibit 134A, check dated February 6, 1946, payable to St. Francis Hotel, $33.21, will you state for what purpose that check was drawn? A. For Mr. Remmer's account.

Q. For his personal account? A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. What was the source of the funds with which you paid that check?

A. The Crocker National Bank.

Q. Where did you obtain the funds from which you drew that check?

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, that has been asked and answered. The witness has testified that in the Crocker National Bank account he deposited regularly the proceeds of certain of [1225] these businesses and from time to time he obtained money from Mr. Remmer or the manager of the Menlo Club, additional funds, and I object to it, being repetition.

The Court: Objection will be overruled.

Q. What is your answer?

A. Well, the funds were derived from either the manager of the Menlo Club or Mr. Remmer.

Q. In what form? A. Cash.

Q. I show you 134B, check in favor of the California Jockey Club, No. 1805, in amount of $108. Is that expenditure similar to that which you described regarding another check in the same amount?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as calling for conclusion.

Mr. Campbell: Very well.

Q. What is the check and for what purpose was it drawn and what was the source of the funds?

A. This was drawn for the season, this was for a later season. The other was for 1945 and this is for 1946; it was drawn for the California Jockey Club for box.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. And the source of the funds upon which that check was drawn?

A. Crocker National Bank.

Q. Well, who supplied the funds from which you drew this check from the Crocker National Bank?

Mr. Gillen: Same objection. [1226]

The Court: Same ruling.

A. Either the manager or Mr. Remmer.

Q. Calling your attention to 134C, check dated February 15, 1946, No. 1811, in the amount of $830, payable to Bernhards, I will ask you for what purpose that check was drawn?

A. Bernhards Furniture Company on Mission Street in San Francisco.

Q. For what purpose?

A. That was, I believe, for a new carpet and booths for the Menlo Bar.

Q. And what was the source of the money against which that check was drawn?

Mr. Avakian: Same objection.

The Court: Same ruling.

A. I received the money for payment of this check from either the manager of the Menlo Club or Mr. Remmer.

Q. I direct your attention to Plaintiff's Exhibit 134D, check No. 1874, dated March 6, 1946, to W. C. Finley Company, in amount of $644, and ask you for what purpose that check was drawn?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. That was for office furniture.

Q. At what location?

A. At 50 Mason Street.

Q. And what was the source of the money in the Crocker Bank against which you drew that check? [1227]

Mr. Avakian: Same objection.

The Court: Same ruling.

A. I received the money either from one of the managers of the Menlo Club or Mr. Remmer.

Q. And in what form? A. Cash.

Q. At this time I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 35 for identification and ask you if you recognize that book? A. Yes, I do.

Q. What is that book?

A. That is a check book of the account of Harold H. Maundrell and Elmer Remmer for the Crocker National Bank, San Francisco.

Q. That is the same account which you have previously identified? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I offer this in evidence as Exhibit 135.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we make the same objection to Exhibit 135 which I would like to have the record show likewise was produced by the prosecution from its own records, as we have made to 134, 133 and 132.

The Court: Same ruling. Exhibit 135 admitted in evidence.

Q. Mr. Maundrell, I am going to show you a group of checks marked 135A for identification,

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

and ask you if that is your signature as to each one of those checks? A. Yes, sir. [1228]

Q. And were each of those checks drawn by you in the course of the duties which you have described as being your official duties in your association with Mr. Remmer? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I will offer these checks in evidence in the following order: 135A check No. 1929; 135B check No. 1954; 135C check No. 1955; 135D check No. 1981; 135E check No. 1982; 135F check No. 1986; 135G check No. 2037; 135H check No. 2085; 135I check No. 2106.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we make the same objection to that group as to Exhibit 135, and the additional objection that the expenditures represented by those checks are incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial as they would not indicate anything with respect to the issue in this case of fraudulent tax evasion.

The Court: Objection overruled and exhibits 135A to 135I inclusive are admitted in evidence.

Mr. Avakian: Would your Honor care to look at the checks before ruling?

The Court: No, I don't think so. The ruling will stand.

Q. I am going to show you, Mr. Maundrell, plaintiff's Exhibit 136 for identification, and ask you if you recognize that exhibit?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. What is that? [1229]

A. That is a check book on the Crocker National Bank of Elmer Remmer account and Harold Maundrell.

Q. That is the same account to which you have previously referred? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: This exhibit will be offered in evidence as 136.

Mr. Avakian: May the record show that that likewise was produced by the government from its records and we make the same objection which we have been making to other documents which have been presented here by the government, which were obtained on promise to return, which was not kept.

The Court: Objection is overruled. 136 is admitted in evidence.

Q. Mr. Maundrell, I am going to show you a group of checks which have heretofore been marked 136A for identification, and I will ask you to examine those and state whether or not that is your signature appearing on each of those checks? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were those checks drawn by you upon the account at the Crocker National Bank which you have identified? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were those checks drawn by you in the course of the employment which you have described? A. Yes, sir. [1230]

Mr. Campbell: These checks will be offered in evidence as follows: As 136A check No. 2226; as 136B check No. 2251; as 136C check No. 2311; as 136D check No. 2426; as 136E check No. 2436; as 136F check No. 2465.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Avakian: We object to this group of exhibits on the same grounds as the objection made to 136, and the additional objection that these checks are incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial because they have no bearing on the issue of fraudulent tax evasion, and may I respectfully request your Honor to examine the checks.

The Court: Objections will be overruled and exhibits are admitted in evidence, 136A to 136F inclusive.

resumed the witness stand on further

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, at the close of yesterday's session we were going into the matter of certain checks which you have identified as being checks issued by you in the course of your employment. At this time I am going to refer you to a series of checks which bear the markings 135A to 135I inclusive, and I am going to hand you plaintiff's Exhibit No. 135, the check stub book which you have previously identified as being on the Maundrell-Remmer account, together with plaintiff's Exhibit 126, which you have identified as a record of the Menlo Club. I first direct your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 135A, a check to John Hagen, dated March 22, 1946, in amount of $178.71, and ask you for what purpose that check was issued?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. That was for carpenter work that was done at 50 Mason Street.

Q. At the offices? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I notice you refer to the ledger which contains an account of expenses of the Menlo Club of 1946, do you fail to find that check listed there?

The Court: What exhibit number is that ledger? [1232]

Mr. Campbell: That is Exhibit 126.

A. This is the Menlo Club. I have to have Tiny's Waffle Shop.

Q. I hand you government's Exhibit 127, purporting to be a ledger of Tiny's Restaurant, 1946.

A. That was for repair work done at Mason Street, as an expense.

Q. And how did it happen that that was charged on the books of Tiny's restaurant?

A. Well, that 50 Mason Street was the headquarters and main office for Tiny's Restaurant and the Menlo Club and the Menlo Bar. That was the head office there.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. None of those, however, were located on the premises of 50 Mason Street, were they?

A. No, sir.

Mr. Avakian: May I ask the answer be stricken for the purpose of objection?

The Court: Yes, sir.

Mr. Avakian: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial whether the main office is located on the same premises or other premises. He has testified it was the main office of that enterprise against which he charged it, so the location would be immaterial.

The Court: Objection overruled. The answer will stand.

Q. Did you make any entry in connection with that expenditure on the books of all the other enterprises which you say had their main [1233] office there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you examine the Menlo Club books and state whether or not any entry was made with respect to that expenditure?

A. No, no entries were made in the Menlo Club book itself.

Q. And is that true of the other enterprises?

A. All expenses for 50 Mason Street were entered into the book of the Tiny's Waffle Shop and the Menlo Club Bar.

Q. Can you state the nature of repairs you refer to there?

A. I believe this was for fixing up the back room and a lot of carpenter work was done in there.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Was that in connection with the construction of the offices there which you have referred to in your testimony? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now I refer you to plaintiff's Exhibit 135B, check dated March 23, 1946, payable to Bullock & Jones, in amount of $569.44, and ask you for what purpose that check was issued?

A. Well, that was issued for Mr. Remmer's account to Bullock & Jones and if my memory serves me right, a good portion of that was for merchandise orders that he purchased.

Q. Was that a personal account or an account of one of the enterprises?

A. This was a personal account at the time.

Q. And was it so charged on the books?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 135C, a check [1234] in the amount of $100.01, issued to the Transcontinental & Western Air Incorporated, dated March 23, 1946, and I will ask you for what purpose that check was issued?

A. That was to pay transportation.

Q. For whom? A. For Mr. Remmer.

Q. I show you plaintiff's Exhibit No. 135D, check dated March 31, 1946, No. 1981, in the amount of $79.60, to United Studios, and ask you for what purpose that check was issued?

A. That was for electric work that was done on the new offices at 50 Mason Street.

Q. And was that paid from funds furnished to you as you have heretofore described?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 135E, check dated March 31, 1946, No. 1982, payable to Saltzman Stanley Company in amount of $208.13, do you know for what purpose that check was issued?

A. I believe that was for an icebox that was put in the office at 50 Mason Street.

Q. And will you state whether or not that was paid from funds which were furnished you in the same manner in which you have previously described? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 135F, a check [1235] dated April 5, 1946, No. 1986, payable to Edward M. Dobkin, in amount of $1500, and ask you for what purpose that check was issued?

A. This check was issued at Mr. Remmer's request.

Q. And who provided the funds against which that check was issued?

A. It came from the same source as before.

Q. That is to say, either Mr. Remmer or from the manager of the Menlo Club? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And how was that entered on the books?

A. Charged against Mr. Remmer.

Q. Mr. Remmer's personal account?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know Edward M. Dobkin?

A. No, I don't. I remember the check at the time because he owed somebody some money and asked me to make out a check for $1500.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Do you know anything about the transaction which this represents? A. No, sir.

Q. I call your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 135G, check dated April 19, 1946, No. 2037, payable to Gene Murphy, in amount of $200, and ask you for what purpose that check was issued? [1236]

A. Well, that was a donation to the campaign fund they had over in Oakland, going to change some statute on the books.

Q. And what was the source of the money on which you drew this check? A. Same source.

Q. As the other checks which you have described? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I draw your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 135H, dated May 10, 1946, No. 2085, payable to J. W. Sneed, in amount of $60.00, and ask you for what purpose that check was drawn?

A. That was drawn for Mr. Remmer's account, personal account.

Q. And so charged on the books?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know who J. W. Sneed is?

A. No, sir.

Q. Or do you know anything about the transaction which this represents? A. No, I do not.

Q. And what was the source of funds against which this check was drawn?

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, to save time we are willing to stipulate as to all checks in the 135-136 series, that the source of the funds in the bank account——

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

The Court: I think these offers to stipulate should be made privately. [1237]

Mr. Avakian: We will be glad to do it in any way you suggest, in order to save time.

The Court: If counsel wants to consider the stipulation, all right, but I do not think it should be made openly.

Mr. Campbell: As to that stipulation, I will accept it in the interest of time. That the source of funds in that bank account were cash given to him either by Mr. Remmer personally or by the manager of the Menlo Club.

Mr. Avakian: Or deposit of receipts of the business known as Tiny's Restaurant.

Mr. Campbell: No, I will not say so.

Mr. Avakian: So we are getting into difficulties. May we ask that instead of saying the same source, the witness state what the source is.

The Court: I am not going to direct counsel how to try the case.

Mr. Avakian: No, sir, but the same source means nothing unless it is related to something and we would like to make that request.

The Court: Very well, but I still say I am not going to instruct counsel as to the manner of presenting his case. If you have objections, I will entertain them.

Q. What was the source of the funds on which the Sneed check was drawn? [1238]

A. Same source I previously stated.

Q. What was that source?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. It was funds that were given to me either by the manager or Mr. Remmer.

Q. By manager, you are referring to the manager of what business?

A. Of the Menlo Club.

Q. As to all the checks which you have identified here, are the source of any of those funds receipts coming into your hands from Tiny's Waffle Shop or the Menlo Bar?

A. The receipts I received from Tiny's Waffle Shop or the Menlo Bar were not enough to pay the expenses of the bar and Tiny's Waffle Shop and also pay the rent, so from time to time I had to go to the Manager of the Menlo Club and draw from them, in order to replenish my bank account.

Q. Yes, and as I understood you also from time to time funds would be given to you and you would be instructed to issue checks, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now calling your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 135I, dated May 10, 1946, No. 2106, drawn to S. Peterson & Sons, in amount of $232.64, I will ask you for what purpose that check was drawn?

A. May I have the check book, please?

Q. You have the check book before you, do you not? [1239]

A. Oh, I beg your pardon. That was for installing of a lavatory for the employees.

Q. At what location?

A. This was at, I believe, 18 Turk Street.

Q. And what business was located there?

A. The Menlo Bar and Cocktail Lounge.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. And from what source did you receive these funds?

Mr. Avakian: Just a minute. Could we have permission to question the witness on voir dire as to his knowledge regarding this matter, so we can make an objection?

The Court: No.

Mr. Avakian: It hasn't been established he had knowledge of this particular item.

The Court: I can't see the necessity of such examination at this time. You can take it up on cross-examination.

Mr. Avakian: May the record show the request?

Q. What was the source of funds from which this check was paid?

A. Same source as previously stated.

Q. That is to say, from either Mr. Remmer or the manager of the Menlo Club?

A. It is out of funds of the Crocker National Bank.

Q. I know, but where were the funds obtained which were placed in the Crocker National Bank?

A. The funds for that particular bill were given to me by [1240] either the manager of the Menlo Club or Mr. Remmer.

Q. At this time I am going to hand you Exhibit 136, stub book which you have previously identified, and I call your attention to a group of checks which are numbered 136A to 136F inclusive, and I first direct your attention to a check No. 136A which is dated June 15, 1946, No. 2226, payable to

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

S. Peterson & Sons, in the amount of $356.90, and ask you for what purpose that check was issued?

A. That was issued for the installation of a new bar at 18 Turk Street.

Q. That is the Menlo Bar? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the source of the funds against which you issued that check?

A. This is dated June 15, 1946. On or about this date I received the funds from either Mr. Kyne or the manager of the Menlo Club. I am not quite sure as to what time Mr. Kyne started taking over the money, but it was on or about this time and from then on I received the money from Mr. Kyne.

Q. Rather than Mr. Remmer?

A. Yes, he had charge of the money at that time.

Q. Now will you refer to the next of the series, 136B, check dated June 24, 1946, No. 2251, to United Studios, in the amount of $105. Will you state for what purpose that check was issued?

A. That was for installation of Neon tubing in the bar at 18 [1241] Turk Street, the Menlo Bar.

Q. What was the source of the funds from which that was issued?

A. Either the manager or to the best of my knowledge at this moment from Willie Kyne.

Q. And when you state the manager in each instance, do you refer to the manager of the Menlo Club? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who was that that time?

A. Oscar Nelson.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Q. I direct your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 136C, dated July 3, 1946, No. 2311, payable to cash, in the amount of $126.40. Will you state for what purpose that check was issued? I call your attention also to the endorsement, S. Peterson & Son.

A. The endorsement on the check is William E. Kyne.

Q. For what purpose was that issue?

A. That was buying an adding machine.

Q. For use in connection with what business or premises?

A. For use of the Menlo Club, Tiny's Waffle Shop and the Menlo Bar. I might state that Mr. Kyne bought this machine and paid cash for it——

Q. That was reimbursement?

A. Beg pardon.

Q. Was that check to reimburse him? [1242]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the source of the funds against which you issued that check?

A. The funds were supplied me by Mr. Kyne or the manager.

Q. I call your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 136D, check No. 2426, dated August 30, 1946, payable to the United Studios in amount of $105, and ask you for what purpose that check was issued?

A. That was for electrical work that was completed in the Menlo Bar on Turk Street.

Q. And the source of the funds from which it was drawn?

A. Either Mr. Kyne or the manager of the Club.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Of the Menlo Club? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: There is another item of $105, Exhibit 136B, I would like to know the date of that check.

Mr. Campbell: The Exhibit 136B is dated June 24, 1946.

Mr. Gillen: And this is August 30th, for $105, the same Studio?

Mr. Campbell: Yes.

Q. I call your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 136E, a check dated September 6, 1946, No. 2436, payable to B. & H. Refrigeration Service, in amount of $276.89, and I will ask you for what purpose that check was issued? Do you find that check, Mr. Maundrell? [1243]

A. I do not find it at the moment.

Q. The book you are examining is plaintiff's No. 127. Are you looking under date of September 6th, check No. 2436?

A. I find August 30th, check 2439.

Q. In that connection, on August 30th, check 2439, to whom does it show that check was issued, check No. 2439?

A. It was issued for payment of the bar.

Q. To whom? A. It doesn't show here.

Q. And in what amount?

A. It doesn't show. Just shows bar check.

Q. It doesn't show how much it was issued for?

A. No, sir.

Q. Calling your attention to the fact that in government's Exhibit 136, check No. 2439 is dated

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

September 6, 1946, and is payable to the California General Linen Company?

A. That is a bar check, linen supplies.

Q. But in the ledger to which you refer it is shown under an August date, is it not?

A. That's right.

Q. Will you examine in government's Exhibit 136 the stub of that check No. 2439?

A. Date September 6th.

Q. Now will you refer back to the exhibit which you have in your hand, which is check [1244] No. 2436. A. Yes, sir.

Q. I direct your attention to the fact that in the check stub, plaintiff's Exhibit 136, it also is dated September 6, 1946, payable to B. & H. Refrigeration Service, in amount of $276.89, which is the same payee and same amount as set forth on government's Exhibit 136E. Are you able to find that in the ledger, government's Exhibit 127, of Tiny's Restaurant?

A. No, I don't find it at this time.

Q. Very well. Do you recall for what that check was issued?

A. I believe that was issued for—it was a monthly service charge and installation of a new unit which was ordered in August for the bar on Turk Street, the Menlo Bar.

Q. And what was the source of the funds from which that was paid?

A. Either from Mr. Kyne or from the manager of the Club.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. The Menlo Club? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 136F, check dated September 12, 1946, check No. 2465, payable to B. & H. Refrigeration Service, in amount of $322.27, and ask you for what purpose that was issued?

A. That was also for refrigeration service on the bar, Menlo Bar.

Q. Wasn't that for a complete new unit?

A. Well, it is a new unit. There are four or five bills for [1245] the new bar installation that we put into the bar.

Q. Was that the purpose of that check?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that entered on the ledger which you hold in your hand, government's Exhibit 126?

A. Yes, sir, charged to the bar.

Q. And as an expense?

A. Not on the ledger here.

Q. How was it charged on the ledger?

A. Just to the bar.

Q. Well, will you state whether or not it is shown in those books as an expense or as an investment, capital investment?

A. I think it was charged to capital investment.

Q. Will you point to me where it is so charged?

A. May I have the ledger of the Menlo Bar?

Q. I hand you government's Exhibit 128, Menlo Bar of 1946.

A. May I see the last two checks, please?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. I am handing to you government's Exhibits 136E and 136F.

A. Check No. 2465, dated September 12th, was charged as repairs and replacements.

Q. Yes. That is Exhibit 136F?

A. That's right.

Q. All right, sir.

Mr. Gillen: I assume that would be the Menlo Club that was charged to? [1246]

A. The Menlo Club Bar.

Mr. Gillen: Rather the Menlo Bar I meant to say.

Q. Do you find the other check on the Menlo Club bar which you are examining; that is to say, 136E?

A. No, I don't find it charged to the bar.

Q. Now with regard to the further operation of the Menlo Club, Mr. Maundrell, do you recall who was the first manager of the Menlo Club after you came to San Francisco and accepted the employment in connection with this enterprise?

A. Masse Ditto.

Q. And how long did Mr. Ditto remain as manager?

A. Well, it was up until about the first of the year, 1946.

Q. And who succeeded Mr. Ditto as manager?

A. Mr. Nelson.

Q. You refer to Mr. Oscar Nelson?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he remain manager throughout 1936?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, during the time that Mr. Ditto was the manager what, if anything, was done with the daily receipts of the Menlo Club?

A. Well, Mr. Ditto kept them in the safe over at the Menlo Club and at times he would bring them over to 50 Mason and they were deposited in the safe at 52 Mason Street.

Q. 52 Mason Street was the warehouse, was it not?

A. Yes, and a small office in the [1247] front room.

Q. And the safe was maintained in those premises? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At 52 Mason Street? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now in order that we understand the physical set-up at 50 and 52 Mason Street, could entrance be obtained from one premise into the other without having to go out to the street?

A. Yes, sir. There was a door from the front office of 50 Mason Street directly into the front office of 52 Mason Street.

Q. And you refer to the front office at 50 Mason Street, was that the front of the B & R Smoke Shoppe? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was the location of the cigar store which Mr. Kyne and Mr. Lando described?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. The same location.

Q. Now you say at times Mr. Ditto kept the money at the Club, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. There was a safe there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What then was done with the money? To whom was the money delivered?

A. I beg your pardon?

Q. To whom did Mr. Ditto deliver the money?

A. When he came to 50 Mason Street with it, he would give it [1248] to Mr. Remmer, or at times when Mr. Remmer wasn't in, I would put the money in the safe.

Q. And in what manner was the money brought there? That is to say, was it in a package or envelope or how?

A. Yes, it was usually in an envelope.

Q. And on the occasions, while Mr. Ditto was manager and he brought the money over and it was handed to you, did you on those occasions count the money? A. No, sir.

Q. Will you state whether or not the envelope in which the money was brought was sealed or unsealed? A. Sealed.

Q. And when the envelope would be handed to you, what would you do with it?

A. I would give it to Mr. Remmer if he was present, or put it in the safe if he wasn't there.

Q. What subsequently would happen to the envelope containing the money, do you know?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Mr. Remmer would take it and put it in—he had a private box in the safe.

Q. In regard to that safe, was there more than one box in that safe? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many?

A. Well, 12 small boxes and there was one box built across the [1249] top of the safe.

Q. How large was the large box you refer to?

A. It was about 6 to 8 inches in height, about maybe 14 inches wide by 12 inches deep.

Q. You say 8 inches in height and then you say 12 inches deep?

A. In width, maybe 14 inches in width.

Q. And how far in length?

A. Well, that is the length. In depth, going back, it was about 12 inches.

Q. And how high was it, did you say?

A. About 8 inches.

Q. Now did you have access to that box?

A. No, sir.

Q. Will you state whether or not that was a locked box? A. Had a combination lock on it.

Q. On the box itself? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you state whether or not that was in addition to the combination on the safe itself?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have the combination to that box?

A. Not the box, no.

Q. Simply to the safe? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that, in the event Mr. Remmer was not there, when Mr. [1250] Ditto brought the receipts, where would you put those in the safe until you turned them over to Mr. Remmer?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Well, there were about four or five empty boxes in the safe. I would utilize one of those boxes.

Q. Until such time as you turned the receipts over to Mr. Remmer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. After Mr. Ditto left there, you say the end of 1945 or beginning of 1946—incidentally, that was by reason of illness, was it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Oscar Nelson became manager of the Menlo Club, did that same arrangement continue?

A. Well, Mr. Nelson, during the times he was there, kept the money most of the time in his own safe in the Menlo Club.

Q. What would he do with it after he put it in his own safe? A. I don't know.

Q. At any rate, it was not brought to you?

A. No, sir.

Q. How long did that continue?

A. That continued until such time as Mr. Kyne came back from the armed services in '46. I would say until somewhere around the middle of June.

Q. What change was made in the arrangement at that time?

A. Well, Mr. Kyne took care of [1251] the money.

Q. You say he took care of the money. Did he then manage the Menlo Club?

A. No, he wasn't the manager. Mr. Nelson was

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

the manager but Mr. Kyne had charge of the receipts.

Q. Well, do you know whether or not Mr. Nelson delivered the receipts to Mr. Kyne?

A. Well, Mr. Kyne either received the receipts from Mr. Nelson or in the morning he received them from the day manager. Mr. Nelson didn't arrive until late afternoon. He worked evenings.

Q. You were present on such occasions?

A. I was never present on those occasions.

Q. How did you learn Mr. Kyne received the money?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as argumentative. This is his own witness on direct examination.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. From conversation with Mr. Kyne.

Q. Do you know, of your own knowledge, what was done with the money after Mr. Kyne received it?

A. No, I do not, outside of the fact that sometimes he would bring it over and put it in the safe at 52 Mason Street.

Q. You would observe that from time to time?

A. Yes.

Q. And in what box in the safe would Mr. Kyne put the money?

A. Well, I didn't observe. It had several small boxes in the safe. [1252]

Q. You say you didn't observe what box he used?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. No, it was in the other office. I didn't go over there.

Q. Now during the year 1945, Mr. Maundrell, if you know, who were listed as partners in the Menlo Club?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. We have exhibits that were introduced by the prosecution as to partnership and I think they would be the best evidence.

The Court: He may answer the question if he knows.

A. Mr. Remmer, Kyne, Mr. Nelson, Mr. Ditto, Mr. Fricker, Mr. Turner and myself.

Q. And do you know the respective working percentages of each?

Mr. Gillen: Same objection, the records would be the best evidence, the exhibits that have been introduced.

The Court: I think that is true, Mr. Campbell.

Q. By reference to any of the records which you kept in the course of the business, Mr. Maundrell, would you be able to state the purported percentages of each of the parties to whom you have referred? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And to what particular records?

A. I would have to refer to the ledger.

Q. I hand you plaintiff's Exhibit 126, Menlo Club for 1946, and ask you if that is the ledger to which you refer?

Mr. Gillen: Counsel asked — I don't know whether it is going to conflict with the information

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

he is seeking—but counsel [1253] asked regarding partners during the year 1945. I think there were some changes, deaths, and various things.

The Court: Of course that book was suggested to counsel by the witness. Counsel inquired of the witness what record would show.

Mr. Gillen: It may not mean any confusion at all, but counsel's question is directed to 1945 and this is 1946.

The Court: We will find it out in a moment and see.

Q. There is also a ledger headed "Menlo Club 1947," plaintiff's 125, if that will be of any assistance to you. Well, Mr. Maundrell, let us pass that for the time being and you can look at this during the recess this morning. Now during the year 1946 will you state, if you recall, who the individuals were having a working interest in the Menlo Club?

Mr. Gillen: I lost what happened to the last question.

Mr. Campbell: I told him to look it up during the morning recess.

A. Mr. Remmer, Mr. Kyne, Mr. Nelson, Mr. Turner and myself.

Q. Now you have named the same individuals with the exception of Mr. Ditto and Mr. Fricker. Will you state whether or not they dropped out at the end of the year 1945?

A. Yes, sir, they were both ill.

Q. I was going to ask you that. I believe you stated Mr. Ditto was ill. Was Mr. Fricker also ill?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, sir. [1254]

Q. Incidentally, what is Mr. Fricker's first name? A. William.

Q. You are referring to——

A. Memorandum.

Q. That is a memorandum which you made yourself?

A. Yes, sir. He was known also as Mr. Fisher. I made that memorandum after looking through the books here the other day.

Mr. Avakian: May we also see the memorandum?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, it may be marked for identification.

The Clerk: 138 for identification.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Maundrell, just before the recess I asked you as to the percentages as shown by the records

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

as to each of the persons you described as having a working interest in the Menlo Club in 1945, and during the recess you examined certain records. Are you able to state at this time what the records disclose as to the percentages of each of the people whose names [1255] you gave.

A. I find that the capital accounts of the different partners in the Menlo Club was taken out of the Menlo Club ledger and put into this Menlo Club return. This was not made up by me at all. This was made up by some auditor or bookkeeper in 1948. However, there——

Q. (Interrupting): May I ask you this in connection—you say this was not made up by you and you have called attention to two small sheets which are contained in government's Exhibit 125, which is entitled "Menlo Club 1947," the first of which bears the heading, "Maundrell, Harold H." on the upper right-hand corner, and the second of which bears the heading, "Remmer, Elmer F." Are those the two sheets to which you refer?

A. Yes, sir, those were made up by me.

Q. These were made up by you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And at the time you left the business there, in what records were they contained?

A. They were contained in, I believe, 1946 Menlo account book they brought in here.

Q. The Menlo Bar account. Are you referring to the loose pages, which is government's exhibit?

A. The loose pages, I believe they are in here.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. And you have referred to Exhibit 126?

A. Yes, sir. [1256]

Q. I think you will observe that the size of the pages in government's Exhibit 126 are the same size and type of accounting pages as the two pages to which you have made reference and which are now bound in plaintiff's Exhibit 125.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You say, however, these pages were made up by you. I am referring to those in the bound ledger.

Mr. Gillen: Are those the same two pages, the Maundrell page and the Remmer page?

Mr. Campbell: Yes.

A. These were made up by me somewhere. They were taken out some time in 1948.

Q. After you left? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now by referring to each of those pages, will you state what the percentages were of the various individuals in 1945, the working percentage?

A. Well, on the first was Harold Maundrell 10 per cent, Thomas Turner 5 per cent, I believe William Kyne had 15 per cent, Oscar Nelson 15 per cent.

Q. May I ask you first, what did you say your percentage was? A. Ten.

Q. And Mr. Turner?

A. Five. Now I am only calling this from memory because it is not noted here in [1257] the book.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Does this book refresh your recollection as to percentages?

A. No, it wouldn't unless we deciphered these figures down.

Q. What is your best recollection?

A. That is what I am trying to give you.

Q. All right, proceed. You have not yet referred to Mr. Remmer, Mr. Ditto and Mr. Fricker.

A. I think Mr. Fricker had 10 per cent.

Q. And Mr. Ditto?

A. I believe he had likewise.

Q. Ten per cent, and what did Mr. Remmer have?

A. Mr. Remmer, I believe, at that time had—I am not quite sure whether he had 50 or 55 per cent.

Q. Now from the figures which you have given, Mr. Maundrell, you have accounted for over 100 per cent. I am going to call your attention to the partnership return of income of 1945, government's Exhibit 89, and call your attention to certain percentages set forth thereon. Have you seen that return previous to this time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I call your attention to the percentages and ask you if that refreshes your recollection as to percentages? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What are those percentages?

A. Elmer Remmer 40 per cent, William Kyne 15 per cent, Masse Ditto 10 per cent, Oscar Nelson 10 per cent, Harold Maundrell 10 [1258] per cent, William E. Fricker 10 per cent, Thomas Turner 5 per cent.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Now, in 1946 what were the percentages as shown by your records?

A. 1946 William Kyne 15 per cent, Oscar F. Nelson 15 per cent, Thomas Turner 5 per cent, Harold Maundrell 10 per cent.

Q. And Mr. Remmer?

A. Mr. Remmer 55 per cent.

Mr. Avakian. May the record show from which exhibit the witness was giving these figures?

A. Menlo Club 1947, Exhibit 25.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to ask at this time that the two sheets concerning which the witness has testified be given numbers 125A and 125B, being the sheets respectively headed "Maundrell, Harold H." and "Remmer, Elmer F."

The Court: They are out of exhibit already admitted in evidence?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, your Honor, and I am giving sub-numbers to those particular portions so they may be identified, 125A and 125B respectively.

Mr. Gillen: They are sheets out of a ledger?

Mr. Campbell: Yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, during the period of time that you worked there, what salary or wages did you receive?

A. The year 1945 I received $2100. [1259]

Q. At what rate per month, do you recall?

A. I think it was $300 a month.

Q. During 1946 what was your rate of compensation?

A. I received, I believe, either $4500 or $4600.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Was that by way of salary?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. During that time that you were there, particularly in 1945 and 1946, did you have any interest or working percentage arrangement as to any of the organizations other than the Menlo Club?

A. Yes, in 1946 Day-Night Cigar Store paid $75 a month and the 110 Eddy paid $75 a month.

Q. Was that by way of a percentage or by way of a salary?

A. No, it was charge for taking care of their books.

Q. A charge which you made against them?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. My question was—you have produced here an agreement whereby purportedly you had some working arrangement on percentage basis and ultimately you would become a full partner in the Menlo Club. Did you have any such arrangements as that as to any of the other concerns?

A. No, sir.

Mr. Gillen: I move the answer go out.

The Court: That may go out.

Mr. Gillen: I object to the form of the question and use [1260] of the word "purportedly."

Mr. Campbell: I will withdraw the question and reframe it.

Q. You have produced an agreement here between yourself and Mr. Remmer, with relation to the Menlo Club. Did you enter into any similar contracts with respect to any of the other businesses? A. No, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Either in writing or orally? A. No, sir.

Q. Now during the years 1945 and 1946 did you receive any percentage or was there paid to you any percentage of the income of the Menlo Club?

Mr. Avakian: Object to the question as complex. First he asked whether he received any percentage and then asked whether anything was paid to him. Those are two different words which may have the same ultimate meaning, but I think the question should be such as a clear answer should be given to it. I object to the form.

Mr. Campbell: I will reframe it.

Q. During the years 1945 and 1946 was there paid over to your interest any percentage or portion of the net profit of the Menlo Club?

A. Not in actual cash, but it was paid on my capital account on the books.

Q. There was set up, was there not, a capital account on the [1261] books to which certain of the profits were credited? A. Yes, sir.

Q. However, was any of that money actually paid over to you?

Mr. Avakian: Objected to as asked and answered.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. In the years 1945 and 1946?

A. I received no cash.

Q. Now at the time you ultimately left your association with Mr. Remmer and his various businesses, which I believe you stated was in 1948, did you at that time receive some cash settlement?

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, I did.

Q. What was the amount of that?

A. Twelve thousand dollars.

Q. At the time you left in 1948 was the Menlo Club still in operation?

A. Yes, it was. I became sick thereafter.

Q. But at the time you left was it still in operation, the time you left the active employment?

A. I don't remember at the moment.

Q. Will you state whether or not the Menlo Club operated throughout 1947? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: Now at this time I wish to have marked for identification this document headed "Sales Order," to be marked [1262] 139 for identification.

Q. Now referring to government's Exhibit 125, marked "Menlo Club 1947" and to the sheets herein which have been marked 125A and 125B, will you state whether or not, at the time that Mr. Masse Ditto and Mr. Fricker left at the end of 1945 if any settlement was made or any payments made to them with respect to the capital accounts shown under their names?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. And up until the time that you left there in 1948 had any settlement been made?

Mr. Avakian: If he knows.

Mr. Campbell: If he knows.

A. I don't know.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Do the records disclose any settlement made?

Mr. Avakian: The records speak for themselves, your Honor, they are in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: This is a negative fact.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. They do not.

Q. Now I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 139 for identification and ask you to examine it. Can you state whether or not that refers to the safe on the premises at 52 Mason Street?

Mr. Avakian: Objected to, no proper foundation laid as to the witness' knowledge of the transaction—long before [1263] he came there. If your Honor will examine the document, I think you will see my point. You will observe the date and recall this witness' testimony as to the date of his employment.

The Court: He may answer the question.

(Question read.)

A. It appears to be the same safe that we had there at that time.

Q. Do you recognize the description set forth thereon? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is the safe to which you referred as having the 12 boxes?

Mr. Gillen: I think this is pretty much calling for his opinion and conclusion. I mean, there is no harm in the matter one way or another, but it is asking him to speculate on something that was purchased a year before he went to work there.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

(Question read.)

He may answer the question.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you recognize the signature hereon over the sub-heading "Purchaser"?

The Court: Answer that yes or no.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And whose signature is that?

A. William Kyne.

Mr. Campbell: This will be offered in evidence, No. 139. [1264]

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we object to the introduction on the ground no proper foundation has been laid for the document. The witness simply states it seems to describe a safe similar to the one that they had when he later came there and the introduction of the document in this manner deprives us of the opportunity to cross-examine regarding it. Your Honor will recall Mr. Kyne, the witness for the prosecution, was on the stand for four days and if they had presented that when Mr. Kyne was here, we could have cross-examined Mr. Kyne at that time.

The Court: I think Mr. Kyne was excused subject to call.

Mr. Avakian: Yes, but if we had tried to cross-examine Mr. Kyne on this document, we would have been met with the objection it was not within the scope of his direct examination.

The Court: I will permit you to cross-examine him.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Avakian: And you will also instruct that he is brought back at the prosecution's expense?

The Court: The objection is overruled. I will not make any commitments now on the expense.

Mr. Avakian: Then we would have to bring him back at our expense to cross-examine him?

The Court: Very well. Objection overruled. If you want to bring him back, you may.

Mr. Avakian: We request that he be brought back at government's expense.

The Court: These discussions should be had outside the [1265] presence of the jury. They have no place in the record at this trial of the case.

Mr. Avakian: We have to take them up as they come.

The Court: Just suggest it to the Court and we will take it up later. Objection overruled.

Q. Mr. Maundrell, was a change fund kept at the Menlo Bar in connection with the operation of that business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you explain what a change fund is?

A. That was a fund that was used in the Bar to pay petty cash receipts and also for the money for the bartenders to make change in the cash registers.

Q. And will you examine your books and records and state the amount of the change fund of the Menlo Bar as of December 31, 1945, and December 31, 1946?

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Maundrell, during the period of your employment, will you enumerate the safes that were maintained in the various [1266] businesses and the locations of those safes?

A. Well, there was a safe at 52 Mason Street.

Q. That is the one to which you referred?

A. That is the one.

Q. Who had access to that safe?

A. Well, I had access, Mr. Kyne, Mr. Remmer, Mr. Pritchett, I think Mr. Nelson. That is all I can think of at the time.

Q. Now by access, did each of the individuals that you have enumerated have a combination to the safe? A. No, sir.

Q. Who had the combination to the safe?

A. Only Mr. Remmer, Mr. Kyne and myself.

Q. Now as to the various boxes which were in that safe which you have described, you have described a large box with a combination on it, which Mr. Remmer used, is that correct?

A. And Mr. Kyne.

Q. And is that before he left to go into the service or after he returned?

Mr. Gillen: Just a minute——

Q. Was that after his return from the service?

A. Well, as soon as he came back to the office.

Q. Now were the other boxes in the safe—incidentally, were they lock boxes? [1267]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did they have combinations or key to open them? A. Key.

Q. And who utilized those boxes?

A. Well, Mr. Remmer had one of them he kept papers in.

Q. One of the smaller boxes?

A. Yes, sir. Mr. Kyne had, I think two of them he kept most of his papers in, and Mr. Pritchett had one and Mr. Nelson had one and I had the keys to all the rest of them, but they were not used.

Q. But now as to the boxes which belonged to it, first the combination box, the large box, and then as to the boxes which you say the others used, did you have the keys to those and the combination to the combination box?

A. I didn't have any key to the combination box.

Q. As to the lock boxes though?

A. Oh, the keys were left right in the boxes. The person that had a box kept their own keys but the empty boxes the keys were left in the box.

Q. But the people who had a box, did you have a key to their boxes? A. No, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. And as to the combination box, did you have the combination to that? A. No, sir. [1268]

Q. What other safes were maintained in connection with those businesses?

A. The safe maintained at Tiny's Waffle Shop, a small safe in the office of the Waffle Shop.

Q. Was that utilized for anything other than keeping receipts over night?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as calling for opinion and conclusion, what was the safe used for.

A. That was a small safe and kept petty cash and change.

Q. In regard to petty cash, I asked you before the recess if you would ascertain the amount of petty cash kept on hand at Tiny's Waffle Shop. What was that? A. Why, I don't know.

Q. Do the books show?

A. No, sir; because I have the 1945 books.

Q. You examined the books which are here, did you not? A. 1946.

Q. Now as to 1946, what did they show as to the amount of petty cash at the beginning and end of the year? A. They don't show.

Q. What is your best recollection as to the amount of petty cash maintained?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to, he said he didn't know.

The Court: I think he said he didn't know.

Mr. Campbell: I am asking him for his best recollection. [1269]

The Court: You may answer the question. Do you have the question?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes. We had, I believe, $300 in the Menlo Bar.

Q. Was that cash fund kept constant at all times?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment—he was asking a moment ago about Tiny's Waffle Shop and he answered he doesn't know what cash was in the fund at Tiny's and he jumped from that to the bar.

Mr. Campbell: I will come back to that.

Q. You refer to $300 kept at the Menlo Bar, was that a constant fund? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It is, is it not, the general practice with a petty cash fund to renew it as bills are paid, isn't that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now with respect to the Waffle Shop, what is your recollection as to the cash fund there?

A. They had a $500 cash fund.

Q. And was that maintained as a constant fund?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now at the time you gave an answer with respect to this cash fund, you were enumerating the safes and stated there was a safe at Tiny's Waffle Shop, in which you kept books and petty cash. What other safes were maintained in connection with those businesses? [1270]

Mr. Gillen: They are talking about two things, change fund and petty cash fund.

The Court: Let me get the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: I will ask that question.

Q. Are petty cash and change fund one and the

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

same thing or are they different funds?

A. They are one and the same thing.

Q. Now, will you enumerate other safes that were maintained in connection with the businesses, if you know?

A. There was a safe in the Menlo Club.

Q. How large a safe was that?

A. It was a small safe.

Q. Who had access to that safe?

Mr. Gillen: I am going to offer an objection, your Honor, that the answer is not clear—it is a small safe.

Q. Well, approximately how large a safe was it?

A. It might have been 30 inches wide and about 35 or 40 inches high.

Q. Are you referring to outside or inside dimensions?

A. Outside dimensions; and about maybe 24 or 30 inches deep.

Q. Did that safe contain any boxes?

A. That I don't know.

Q. Did you ever see the interior of that safe?

A. No, sir. [1271]

Q. Do you know who had access to that safe?

A. I think the only one that had the combination to that was Mr. Nelson.

Q. And prior to Mr. Nelson coming there, the manager?

A. I don't think it was used prior to Mr. Nelson's time.

Q. What other safe was maintained?

A. There was a safe at 110 Eddy Street.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. That was a bar operation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How large a safe was that?

A. About the same size I just described.

Q. And who, if you know, had access to that safe? A. Mr. Cavani.

Q. Did you have access to that safe?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever see the interior of that safe?

A. No, sir.

Q. What other safes were maintained?

A. That is all I know.

Q. Do you know whether or not a safe was maintained at the 186 Club? A. No, I do not.

Q. Or the Day-Night Cigar Store?

A. No, sir.

Q. Or at the B & R Smoke Shoppe? [1272]

A. No, sir.

Q. Now, I don't recall whether I asked you this or not—did you have access to any safety deposit box in connection with the operation of these businesses? A. No, sir.

Q. Were any safety boxes, if you know, maintained in your name in respect to any of these businesses? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you at any time given any slips or other records with relation to money placed in safety deposit boxes? A. No, sir.

Q. By any one? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you at any time given any records as to money kept in the various safes which you have described? A. No, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. I am going to call your attention to government's Exhibit 110, which is one of a series being a poker sheet of the 186 Club, and in the lower left-hand corner of each sheet appears the notation "Tax box $700." Now, do you know what the tax box was with relation to the 186 Club? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know if some box was kept which was known as tax box? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know for what purpose money designated on these [1273] sheets as tax box was used?

A. No, sir.

Q. You stated, I believe, that after you commenced the keeping of records with relation to the 186 Club, poker sheets were delivered to you, is that a fact? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you recall observing that expression, "tax box" with a sum of money set forth on those sheets? A. No.

Mr. Avakian: Objected to, the records are the best evidence.

The Court: It is already answered.

Q. Do you know whether or not, in the conduct of these various businesses, if there was any method utilized of segregating the withholding taxes or social security taxes?

A. The 186 Club paid me their withholding and old age pension and social security direct.

Q. Now, as to the other businesses?

A. As to 110 Eddy, that was charged against the 110 Eddy bank account. As to the Tiny's Waffle Shop, Menlo Bar and Menlo Club, those funds to pay those taxes were given to me, during the time Mr. Kyne wasn't there, by one of the partners, occasionally by Mr. Remmer, or he would order them given to me. During the time Mr. Kyne was there, he gave them to me.

Q. Do you know whether or not that money was kept separately [1274] daily or weekly?

A. That I do not know.

Q. Now, referring again to the records of the Menlo Club, and particularly to plaintiff's Exhibit 126, the Menlo Club records for 1946, I believe you stated, did you not, that that was a record in which the entries were either made by you or under your direction, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, when were entries made therein with relation to the dates recited?

A. Well, some of these entries were made the day after or two days after, some of them were not made until the week after.

Q. And were some made later than that?

A. Some of these entries may have been made as late as two weeks perhaps.

Q. Now, you identified government's Exhibit 125, headed "Menlo Club 1947," what are now plaintiff's Exhibits 125A and 125B, which you stated were maintained by you as part of the record which is now marked 126, is that correct, referring to these two sheets marked 125A and 125B?

A. These sheets were out of the 1946 ledger.

Q. Which is 126, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Were those sheets made up by you?

A. These sheets were put in by my secretary, according to the [1275] writing.

Q. The entries thereon are hers?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, referring to the further partners' account, as the succeeding three pages are labelled, which immediately followed 125A and 125B, were those sheets prepared by you? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know by whom they were prepared?

A. These were put in by my secretary.

Q. And were they prepared during the time of your employment, do you know?

A. Not all of them.

Q. Up until what time?

A. Up until on or about May 1, 1948.

Q. And after that you had terminated your employment, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Although the entries after that date, do you recognize the handwriting on those?

A. Same writing.

Q. What was your secretary's name?

A. Miss DeGregoria.

Q. Did she remain employed there after you terminated your connection?

A. Yes, sir. [1276]

Q. When you say your secretary, will you state by whom her wages were paid?

A. Her wages were paid by the Menlo Club, Tiny's Waffle Shop and the Menlo Bar.

Q. You say your secretary, did she perform secretarial duties as well as making entries in the books? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And who originally engaged her services?

A. I did.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to ask to have a photostat marked for identification as Exhibit 140 for identification.

Q. I am going to show you 140 for identification, which is a photostat, and ask you if you recognize the writing and entries thereon? A. Yes, I do.

Q. And whose writing is that? A. Mine.

Q. And were those entries made by you in the course of your employment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when were they made?

A. Well——

Q. (Interrupting): I will ask you this, were the entries made on or about the date which the entries bear? A. Yes, sir. [1277]

Q. And as a part of your business there?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I offer this in evidence as plaintiff's Exhibit 140.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, may I preliminarily inquire whether that is simply a photostat of a record already in evidence?

Mr. Campbell: No, sir, it is not.

Mr. Avakian: May we then inquire this, your Honor, is that a photostat of some document produced by the prosecution from the records obtained originally from the Menlo Club? If so, we would want to make our usual objections to that category of records.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Campbell: I will state that that photostat was made from records which were in the government's possession, returned to Mr. Semenza, and subsequently record which was deposited in this court but that that particular sheet is not here in evidence.

Mr. Gillen: May we have a moment?

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we have no knowledge of any such record having been included in any of those we have returned. Perhaps this is a matter we ought to delve into further before your Honor rules on that.

The Court: That isn't a very good ground for objection.

Mr. Avakian: Well, your Honor, we do not want any impression [1278] left that we removed any document from any of these books and it is a matter that perhaps should be explored with counsel.

The Court: I do not understand that counsel——

Mr. Gillen (Interrupting): Mr. Campbell did say when it was returned to Mr. Semenza and it is not there now. Now, that statement has implications that might be unfavorable.

Mr. Campbell: I am simply offering this at this time for what it may be worth and I am going to follow it with questions of this witness.

Mr. Avakian: Well, your Honor, our point is simply this—the statement Mr. Campbell made carried certain implications which may have been in-advertent or may be just counsel's state of mind. Whatever it is, we want to clarify any such implications.

The Court: I think it is not at all unlikely that in such a mass of material a record could be lost. Anybody could have lost that.

Mr. Avakian: Yes, it could have been lost by the government before it was returned to Mr. Semenza.

The Court: It might be lost by somebody. I think that could be considered as probable.

Mr. Avakian: I think that could be clarified.

The Court: I don't see any implication there is any wrong doing. [1279]

Mr. Avakian: As long as that is understood.

The Court: It hasn't appeared yet.

Mr. Avakian: Fine. We just have our usual objection on that ground.

The Court: So it will be admitted in evidence, Exhibit 140.

Mr. Gillen: I wonder if we could have Mr. Campbell's statement read?

(Statement read.)

The Court: This photostat, the original is not already in evidence, that is what I understood him to mean.

Mr. Gillen: He didn't mean it wasn't found?

The Court: No, he meant to tell you it wasn't a duplication, isn't that it?

Mr. Campbell: That is correct.

Q. Now, I will ask you, Mr. Maundrell, if the original sheet, of which that purports to be a copy,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

whether or not it was maintained by you also as a portion of plaintiff's Exhibit 126, the 1946 records of the Menlo Club?

A. I won't say positively that it was in the Menlo Club, it may have been in the Tiny Waffle Shop record.

Q. I am going to show you those 1946 records of Tiny's Restaurant and Menlo Bar and you have before you the 1946 ledger of the Menlo Club, and ask if you will examine those and see if the original, of which that is a photostatic copy, was [1280] maintained there?

A. This would have been in the 1945 ledger. This was a copy of the 1945.

Q. The 1945 ledger which is not here present?

A. Yes, sir; that is, I haven't found it.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that certain 1946 entries are there on the last entry. Now, Mr. Maundrell, is the information as set forth thereon accurate information as entered by you from information then in your possession at the time of the entries? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I am going to direct your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 125, Menlo Club ledger, with the notation 1947, and under the heading "Assets," the second sheet thereof, which bears a typewritten notation, "Tiny's Restaurant, Menlo Bar, Menlo Club Furniture, Fixtures, Equipment and Lease" and ask you if that was a record kept by you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that your writing?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. No, my secretary's writing.

Q. When was that written?

A. That was written August 8, 1945, up to and including May 1, 1947.

Q. And when did you prepare that? When did you make each entry?

A. Those were made all about the time of the date. [1281]

Q. I call your attention to compare the two sheets and to observe that the entries are different on each of them.

Mr. Gillen: I move the question be stricken. I object to the form.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: May it be stricken?

The Court: Any answer to it will be stricken. The question will remain in the record but the objection will be sustained.

Q. Mr. Maundrell, I am going to direct your attention first to plaintiff's Exhibit 140, which you have identified as being made by you in the course of the business and that the entries are correct, and that first entry appearing thereon appears to be as of April 30, 1945. Now, referring to plaintiff's Exhibit 125, the ledger of the Menlo Club, to which your attention has been directed to the account of furniture, fixtures, equipment and lease, and ask if you find thereon any entry or entries under date of April 30, 1945?

A. No, the date is not there for that particular entry.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Do those two sheets, Mr. Maundrell——

Mr. Avakian (Interrupting): I thought the witness was continuing his answer.

The Court: Was your answer interrupted?

A. I think so.

(Question read.) [1282]

Mr. Campbell: If the Court please, that can be answered yes or no.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor——

The Court: We are wasting so much time over things that do not amount to anything. I am going to have the question and answer read as so far given and let Mr. Maundrell add to it if he desires to. Read the question and answer as given and see if he wants to add anything to it.

(Question and answer read.)

The Court: You were about to finish.

A. There is quite a little explanation, Judge.

The Court: You can make it if you want to.

A. It seems at the time of purchase of the property—I wasn't there—but there was 25 thousand dollars, as I understand it, given in cash which was afterwards taken up and paid for by a check which was issued on August 8th to Mr. Schriber. In other words, it was just washing the original 25 thousand dollars, as I understand it, so when it was set up on the books it was set up that way. The original credit was in there for 25 thousand dollars, but that was drawn down and a check given for that 25 thousand.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Now, which of those two exhibits which you hold in your hand, Mr. Maundrell, represent your original entries with regard to those [1283] transactions? A. The photostatic copy.

Q. Now, to what general transaction do both of the ledger sheets relate?

A. They relate to the description of the property, the cost of the lease, cost of inventory, and the balance at that time of 175 thousand dollars.

Q. And with whom was the transaction had?

A. With Gene Schriber.

Q. Now, the photostat which you hold in your hand, as I understand your testimony, you first set up, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I notice the last entry is February 28, 1946? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that was there any other record made up until the time of that last entry of February, 1946?

A. With reference to the purchase?

Q. In reference to the transaction with Gene Schriber, as described by this photostatic copy?

A. No, sir, that was up to that time, up to the last payment I made.

Q. Did you have any other ledger sheet up until February, 1946, of this last payment, relating to that transaction?

A. That was transferred then to this sheet here, when that payment was made.

Mr. Campbell: May I have the question read?

(Question read.) [1284]

A. I don't know at that time.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Can you state whether or not the page which is a part of 1947 Menlo records, Exhibit 125, was made up before or after February, of 1946?

A. No. I believe it is a copy of the record.

Q. Will you look at the two and see if the record, which is the account in the ledger, is a copy of the original record?

A. With the exception of that 25 thousand dollars dated April 30th, I wasn't there at the time that transaction took place.

Q. It is a fact, is it not, that on the ledger sheet before you there are no entries as of April 30, 1945, while on the photostatic copy there are two entries under date of April 30, 1945?

A. Well, the first entry is the description of the property, cost of the property, which is in here.

Q. The first entry by date on the ledger sheet is August 8, 1945, is it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the first entry by date on the photostatic copy is April 30, 1945, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the second entry on the photostatic copy is April 30, 1945, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And there are no entries whatsoever as of April 30, 1945, on [1285] the ledger sheet which is part of plaintiff's Exhibit 125, is that correct?

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, I am going to offer an objection—I do not know just what counsel is doing, he is cross-examining his own witness, and your Honor will well recall that the prosecution introduced as their witness one Mr. Gene

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Schriber, who described this entire transaction in detail, the amount of money he received for the purchase of the Menlo Club and its fixtures and operation and the two adjoining businesses, restaurant and bar, and went into considerable detail. Frankly, your Honor, I am at a loss to follow counsel. I do not know whether he is trying to impeach a witness that he earlier in the trial introduced, who gave some explanation of how——

The Court (Interceding): Perhaps if he answers this question we will get on the right track and let us see what it is.

Mr. Gillen: I object to the form of examination as cross-examination of the witness.

The Court: Objection overruled. We will see what this question will bring forth.

(Question read.)

Mr. Gillen: I think I will offer the objection it has been asked and answered by what Mr. Maundrell described as a long explanation of the transaction. [1286]

The Court: You may answer the question. Objection overruled. A. No, there is not.

Q. Now, I wish to draw your attention to another matter. On plaintiff's Exhibit 140, the photostat, the cost of the lease is set up at 100 thousand dollars and the cost of equipment and inventory is set up at 75 thousand dollars, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. I draw your attention to Exhibit 125, the ledger of the Menlo Club 1947 and will you state the figures shown as the cost of the lease on that account? A. $143,801.50.

Q. And what is shown as cost of the equipment and inventory? A. $31,895.50.

Mr. Gillen: What is the total shown?

A. 175 thousand.

Mr. Avakian: On both sheets counsel, same total on both?

Mr. Campbell: Yes.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that as of the end of the year 1945, on plaintiff's Exhibit 140, the balance due on that account is shown as 100 thousand dollars, is that correct?

A. No, it is not correct.

Q. What was the balance due according to plaintiff's Exhibit 140 at the end of 1945, according to Exhibit 140? [1287]

A. According to that exhibit it is 100 thousand dollars.

Q. Now, according to the ledger sheet, which is a part of plaintiff's Exhibit 125, what was the balance due at the end of 1945? A. 125 thousand.

Q. Now, I am going to show you plaintiff's 132A for identification, which consists of two checks, one dated June 11, 1945, No. 1033, in amount of four thousand dollars——

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment—we might as well have it in evidence as read it in.

Mr. Campbell: I beg your pardon.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. I show you signatures on those checks, are these your signatures? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And were they issued by you in the course of your duties? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to offer these checks in evidence as 132A.

Mr. Avakian: Same objection as to the 132 series.

The Court: Objection overruled and Exhibit 132 is admitted in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: As 133A for identification I am going to withdraw a pink slip and ask that that be given a number for identification in the 133 series, which would be 133P for identification. [1288]

Q. I now show you 133A for identification, consisting of three cancelled checks, and ask you if that is your signature on each of those checks?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And were those checks drawn and signed by you in the course of your duties which you have described? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: We will offer these three checks in evidence, No. 133A.

Mr. Avakian: Same objection as to all checks of the 133 lettered series.

The Court: Same ruling and the exhibit now offered is 133A admitted in evidence.

Q. Now, referring to government's Exhibit 132A, which consists of two checks, one dated June 11, 1945, payable to Gene Schriber, in amount of four thousand dollars, signed Harold Maundrell, being check 1033, the second check dated August 8, 1945, being check No. 1242, payable to Gene Schriber, in amount of 25 thousand dollars, I will ask you to state for what purpose those checks were drawn?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. The first check for four thousand dollars, check No. 1033, was drawn for deposit on the lease with Mr. Schriber; check No. 1242 to Mr. Schriber, 25 thousand dollars, was the first payment on the purchase price of the property.

Q. I show you government's Exhibit 133A, consisting of three [1289] checks, each bearing date of September 8, 1945, each payable to Gene Schriber, and being numbered respectively 1334, 1335, and 1336, and being in the respective amounts of 15 thousand dollars, 8500 dollars and 1500 dollars, and ask you for what purpose those checks were drawn?

A. Check No. 1334 to Gene Schriber was payment of the purchase price of the property. Check 1135, September 8th, the same date as the previous check, made to Gene Schriber, for $8500, was to apply to the purchase. Check No. 1336, same date, to Gene Schriber, was to be applied on purchase price, making total of 25 thousand dollars.

Q. Now, with reference to Exhibit 132A, four thousand dollars and 25 thousand dollar check, and 133A, three checks totalling 25 thousand dollars, what was the source of the funds against which you drew those checks?

A. These funds were given to me by either the manager or Mr. Remmer, of the Menlo Club.

Q. What is your recollection?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Well, I don't know offhand. It was either one of the two that gave it to me.

Q. In what form did you receive it?

A. Cash.

Q. Which you subsequently deposited in the Crocker National Bank? A. Yes, sir. [1290]

Q. Now, at the time of the first entry on plaintiff's Exhibit 140, April 30, 1945, had you then entered your employment with reference to the Menlo Club? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, I call your attention on government's Exhibit 140 to an entry under date of February 28, 1946, in amount of 25 thousand dollars to Gene Schriber, and ask you in what manner that was paid?

A. All the payments that I made to Gene Schriber were checks.

Q. Well, did you issue a check for that payment?

A. May I see the check book.

Q. Yes indeed. I am handing you government's Exhibits 134, 135 and 136.

The Court: Perhaps we had better take our recess. We will recess now in this case until Thursday, December 27th, at 10:00 o'clock, and the members of the jury and alternate jurors please bear in mind this admonition you have heard so many times. You are admonished do not discuss among yourselves or with any one else any matters connected with the trial of the case or form or express any opinion of the case until the case is finally submitted to you. When I admonish you to report any one to the Court who might talk to you, after being informed that you are a member of the jury or alternate juror, I do not want you to have the idea that I am inferring [1291] that any one connected with this case would do anything of that kind or have anything to do with it, but some person might busy themselves in other people's business and try to talk to you. If any person talks to you or persists in talking to you, any one connected with this case or not connected with this case, it is your duty to inform that individual you are a member of the jury or alternate juror and if that individual then persists in talking, you should report him or her to the Court.

All witnesses under subpoena and present here will be instructed to appear at that time, December 27, 1951, at 10:00 o'clock.

MR. MAUNDRELL

resumed the witness stand on further

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Maundrell, I am going to direct your attention to check stubs of the Crocker First National Bank for the period June 4, 1945, to September, 1945. I direct your attention to check stub No. 1240, in amount of 50 thousand dollars, date August 8, 1945, payee Gene Schriber, across which is written the pen notation "cancelled," and appended to it is the upper portion of a check bearing the same number and date, with the lower portion torn off, so the only writing appearing there is "Gen" and ask you for what purpose that check was drawn?

A. As I understand it, at that Mr. Remmer was

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

to have paid 75 thousand dollars for the Menlo Club and the Menlo Bar and Tiny's Waffle Shop.

Q. Did you draw that check? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you thereafter cancel it?

A. Then afterwards I cancelled the check.

Q. Do you know, of your own knowledge, whether or not the sum of 25 thousand dollars was paid in cash at that time?

A. I was not there when that transaction took place. [1293]

Q. Then did you know whether or not 25 thousand dollars in cash was paid?

A. I was told it had been paid, yes, sir.

Q. In cash? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to the next check stub, No. 1241, in amount of 25 thousand dollars, dated 8-8-45, Gene Schriber, across which is written the word "Cancelled" and attached to it is a portion of check of the same number, 1241, pay to the order of Gene Schriber, 25 thousand dollars, with the printed portion signature Harold H. Maundrell, but the written signature torn off. Now, was that a check which was drawn by you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was that cancelled under similar circumstances? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And were you present at that time?

A. At the time it was cancelled?

Q. At the time it was drawn?

A. Yes sir, I drew the check.

Q. Do you know whether or not cash in that amount was paid to Mr. Schriber in lieu of that check? A. No, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. I draw your attention to stub No. 1242, in amount of 25 thousand dollars, also dated August 8, 1945, pay to Gene Schriber, now was that a check also issued by you? [1294] A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that the check to which you refer where the check was cashed and the cash turned over to Mr. Schriber?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment—the check was cashed and turned over to Mr. Schriber?

Mr. Campbell: The proceeds.

Mr. Gillen: I am going to object as assuming something not in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: I will withdraw the question.

Q. What was done with that check?

A. That check was given to Mr. Schriber.

Q. And withdrawn? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, directing your attention again to plaintiff's Exhibit 140, which is a photostatic copy of a ledger sheet entitled "Furniture, Fixture, Equipment and Buildings," referring to certain payments made to one Gene Schriber and which you testified, I believe, was in your writing, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. All of that is in your writing?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And were the entries that appear thereon made by you on the dates which are set forth thereon? A. No, sir. [1295]

Q. When were they made?

A. That I don't remember.

Q. What is your best recollection?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. As to the date of April 30th, I wasn't there at that time. That was made some time in the month of May, I would say.

Q. Of 1945? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, as to the subsequent entries, subsequent filing entries?

A. I wouldn't say it was made the same day.

Q. Well, were they made on or about the same day, that is, within a day or two?

A. The entries may have been put in the book maybe after a week or two weeks. At that time I was spending more of my time at Cal-Neva Lodge.

Q. Did any longer period of time elapse between the transaction you have set forth there and your entry on the records of that transaction, longer than two weeks' time?

A. Well, it may have been a month. I don't know. I don't remember at this time.

Q. What is your best recollection as to how soon the entries were made there with relation to dates thereon?

Mr. Gillen: I think this whole subject was explored last week, may it please the Court, and I offer the objection it has been asked and answered.

Mr. Campbell: No, your Honor. [1296]

The Court: Objection will be overruled.

A. I don't remember.

Q. I am going to show you ledger, plaintiff's Exhibit 125, which is headed "Menlo Club 1947" and call your attention to a sheet upon which is typewritten, "Furniture, Fixtures, Equipment and

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Lease," and for the purpose of this examination I will ask to have this marked 125C in evidence.

Mr. Avakian: That is the second sheet?

Mr. Campbell: It is the second sheet under the heading "Assets." I ask to have this given a number, 125C. Now, I direct your attention to this page marked 125C—I may have asked you this Friday but if so I will ask you again—is the pen and ink writing thereon your writing? A. No, sir.

Q. Whose writing is it?

A. I believe that is my secretary's.

Q. To whom do you refer?

A. Mrs. DeGoria.

Q. As I understood you Friday, she remained in the employ of the organization after you left, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you present when those entries were made?

A. Well, when the actual entries were made, I wouldn't say I was present.

Q. That is what I am referring to, when the figures were put [1297] down here in pen and ink, were you there?

A. I had charge of the office at the time but I wouldn't say I was there when the actual typing was put on it. I wouldn't know.

Q. Can you state, Mr. Maundrell, whether or not that sheet was made up during the time you were still employed there? A. Yes, sir, it was.

Q. When did you first see that sheet?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. I don't remember that.

Q. I observe that the last entry thereon purports to be as of May 1, 1947. Can you state when you saw it with reference to that date?

A. No, I don't remember.

Q. Can you state whether or not that sheet was actually made up at that time?

Mr. Gillen: Of course, I think that would be calling for his opinion and conclusion.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, that may be stricken.

Q. At the time you first saw that sheet, Mr. Maundrell, will you state whether or not all the entries that appear there now were on that sheet?

A. That I don't remember.

Q. Do you have a recollection of ever having seen the sheet?

A. As a matter of fact, I don't know whether I ever saw that sheet or not. [1298]

Q. You don't know whether you ever saw it?

A. No, I don't.

Q. But as to government's Exhibit 140, which purports to relate to the same general transaction, does it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is in your handwriting?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was made up by you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In connection with your employment?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, with regard to the books and records which you maintained for the Menlo Club, will you

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

state, Mr. Maundrell, whether they were a double or single entry system?

A. They were simplified double entry system.

Q. Will you state what you mean by that?

A. Well, I mean by that it showed the receipts and it also showed the disbursements.

Q. Did the record which you kept show inventories for 1944, 1945 and 1946 for the Menlo?

A. There was inventory made for the Menlo bar and also for Tiny's Waffle Shop.

Q. So far as the Menlo Club was concerned?

A. There was one entry made of the furniture and fixtures and also the inventory of the bar supplies and the Tiny's [1299] Waffle Shop grocery supplies.

Q. So far as the Menlo Club was concerned, do you have any record of cash on hand?

A. The Menlo Club, as I understand, started out with a bank roll.

Q. My question was, did you maintain any record of cash on hand for the Menlo Club?

A. No, sir.

Q. That was not reflected in the records which you kept? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you have access to the cash on hand?

A. No, sir.

Q. Was that reported to you from time to time by any one?

A. It was only reflected in the daily sheets, daily poker sheets.

Q. Did you ever at any time check the daily poker sheets against the cash? A. No, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. So that I take it, in making such entries as you made, you relied upon the accuracy of the poker sheets which were handed to you, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, is that also true of the other businesses for which you kept books, so far as the cash on hand is concerned?

A. Well, Tiny's Waffle Shop and the Menlo Bar a complete record [1300] was kept.

Q. By you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. But now as to the Day-Night Cigar Store?

A. A complete record was kept.

Q. Did you receive the cash from the Day-Night Cigar Stand or count it?

A. No, sir, I did not.

Q. What was the source of your information as to the daily receipts and cash on hand?

A. The Day-Night Cigar Stand had a manager.

Q. Who was that? A. Mr. Taylor.

Q. What years was he there?

A. He was there during the period of time that I was there, 1945-'46.

Q. How often did he report those matters to you? A. Every day.

Q. Now, did you count and check the cash as against the figures given you?

A. I didn't count the cash personally because he banked his own money every day, but he brought into my office the take of the cash register, the total receipts of the day and plus any petit cash items he had to pay out.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Now, as to 110 Eddy Street, what information did you receive [1301] as to receipts and cash on hand?

A. The same condition existed there. Every day I would receive from Mr. Carvani, the manager, the takes of the cash registers, or I would say cash register, and also any petit cash that he had paid out during the day, that is, receipts for petit cash, and he banked his own money. I didn't count the money, and a report was made each day on a slip of paper.

Q. And you accepted that, I take it, for your purposes? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you testified Friday that from time to time sums of money would be handed to you either by Mr. Remmer or from some one at the Menlo Club and you would be requested to draw checks for various purposes, do you recall that testimony?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What entries would you make and in what books regarding such transactions?

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, I think it is a repetition of what was carefully gone into on Friday with Mr. Maundrell. He was shown a whole series of checks, he was asked where he got the money to cover those checks, and they were checked against his books as to the ledger on his check book and the checks themselves. I think this is repetition of something we have probed thoroughly.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Campbell: I do not believe so, no, sir. He checked as to what checks were issued for. I am asking him now how [1302] those were charged on the various books.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. May I have the question, please?

(Question read.)

A. The bank account that I had was at the Crocker Bank and all the checks were put in the ledger of the Tiny's Waffle Shop.

Q. Yes; now that money you say was advanced from other sources, were they shown as liability for funds advanced or funds loaned to Tiny's Waffle Shop?

Mr. Gillen: May I offer the objection that it is not the best evidence. The books would be the best evidence.

Mr. Campbell: I am asking a general question first. I have the books with me if you desire to see them.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. As I stated, from time to time the amount of money that I would receive to deposit for the benefit of the Tiny's Waffle Shop and the Menlo Bar was not enough to take care of the bills that were presented to me from time to time and as I needed that money I would present the bills and tell them the amount I needed and they would give me that amount and I would deposit that to the Tiny's Waffle Shop account in the Crocker Bank.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. And would you set up any liability for funds for Tiny's Waffle Shop for the money advanced for that operation?

A. No, only the checks themselves would show in the ledger as to what the checks were for and for what acount they were [1303] for.

Q. Was there set up any loans payable or similar account in the records? A. No, sir, no.

Q. Now, with relation to the type of expenditure which you testified which had no relation to Tiny's Waffle Shop and the money which passed through that account where you issued the check, how would those be handled on the books of Tiny's Waffle Shop?

A. As I stated before, each check was entered on the books and for what purpose the check was issued. There was an explanation for every check that was issued.

Q. Well, was any liability account set up?

A. No, sir.

Q. Or were any entries made on the books of any of the businesses from which you received that money?

Mr. Avakian: We object to that as assuming facts not in evidence because the evidence shows that these three types of businesses, the Menlo Club, bar and Tiny's Waffle Shop, were only one partnership, in one business, they were one business entity and Mr. Campbell's question assumes they were different and that is contrary to the evidence.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

The Court: Let us have the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the question. [1304]

A. Tiny's Waffle Shop, the Menlo Bar and Menlo Club were all one business, all doing business under the name of William Remmer, doing business as——

Q. Each of the three? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And where were they shown in that record?

A. Well, the tax return and the license was taken out in the name of William Remmer.

Q. And who was William Remmer?

A. William Remmer was a nephew of Mr. Elmer Remmer.

Q. Did he, to your knowledge, have anything to do with the business other than the use of his name?

A. No, sir. It was Mr. Remmer's intention——

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute, you can't state——

Mr. Gillen: I ask that the witness be permitted to explain his answer.

The Court: That objection is sustained, to this last statement——

Q. Now, let us take an example——

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court——

The Court: Let us have the last question read.

(Record read.)

The Court: There is nothing before the Court.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor, I direct the witness to explain his answer. [1305]

The Court: I have already ruled, that that statement he was about to make will not be allowed. There is nothing before the Court.

Mr. Gillen: Mr. Campbell shut him off and I ask that he be permitted to explain.

The Court: Yes, and the Court feels the matter should not be given in the record.

Q. For example, Mr. Maundrell, let us refer to two of these checks, being 136E and 136F, dated September 6 and 12, 1946, respectively, both payable to B. & H. Refrigeration Service Company, in amounts of 276 some odd cents and 322 and some odd cents. I believe you testified that those were used for the purchase of refrigeration equipment for the bar, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I believe you also testified that the money to pay that was given to you either by Mr. Remmer or the manager of the Menlo Club, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, it is a fact, is it not, that so far as these three businesses were concerned, Tiny's Waffle Shop and the Menlo Bar and Menlo Club, separate sets of books were kept for each of those businesses?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive. The exhibits are the best evidence. [1306]

The Court: That may be——

Mr. Campbell: It is a preliminary question.

The Court: Yes, I do not believe it is going to be injurious, as far as the leading matter is concerned.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

So you may proceed. Objection will be overruled.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, I am going to hand you records which have heretofore been introduced in evidence. I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibits 125, Menlo Club 1947, and 126, Menlo Club 1946, together with plaintiff's Exhibit 127, Tiny's Restaurant for 1946, Exhibit 128 Tiny's Restaurant and Menlo Bar 1945, and Exhibit 129 Menlo Bar for 1946, and I will ask you to refer to the expenditure as set forth on the two checks which I have handed you, payable to the Refrigeration Company, and ask you to point out what entries were made in the records with respect to that payment apparently made on or about September 12, 1946?

Mr. Gillen: May I inquire 128A, which is not in evidence, I do not know whether that was handed to the witness, marked for identification—was that handed to the witness?

The Clerk: No, I have it.

Mr. Campbell: Counsel has referred to 128 for identification. I believe you stated, did you not, that you did not know whose handwriting that was in?

Mr. Golden: I just got mixed up in the numbers.

Mr. Campbell: As I recall his testimony, he didn't [1307] identify it.

Mr. Golden: That's right.

A. Check dates September 12, 1946——

Q. You are referring to plaintiff's Exhibit 136F?

A. May I refer first to check No. 2465, dated September 12th?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. I thought that was the one you were referring to, plaintiff's Exhibit 136F.

A. That was a check issued for the account of bar, which appears in Tiny's Waffle Shop ledger.

Q. How does it show on Tiny's Waffle Shop ledger?

A. It shows that it was issued for account of bar. It is "paid to" and it is a bar check. In other words, the check number is entered in the book as of the same date check No. 2465, it is marked "bar," referring to the bar, the account that was set for the bar.

Q. Now, the first book to which you refer is the Waffle Shop, exhibit 127. You are now referring to Exhibit 129, books of the Menlo Bar?

A. And referring to the Menlo Bar it shows check No. 2465 paid to the B. &. H. Refrigeration Service for $322.27, and charged against repairs and replacements.

Q. Now, was any asset account set up on the books of the Waffle Shop reflecting an indebtedness from the Menlo Bar to the Waffle Shop?

A. No, sir. [1308]

Q. Now, with respect to that refrigeration equipment which was purchased, was any capital account set up in the books of the bar to reflect that purchase?

A. No, sir, because this was put in for repairs and replacements, was put in as direct charge.

Q. As I understand your testimony, that was for the purchase of new equipment?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, is your testimony the same as to the second check to which I referred?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Handled in the same manner?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, so far as the three businesses were concerned, that is, the Waffle Shop, the Bar and the Menlo Club card room, I believe you have previously identified, have you not, returns which were filed for each of those enterprises?

Mr. Avakian: No, your Honor, that is assuming facts contrary to the evidence. The partnership returns which Mr. Campbell had introduced show return in the name of the Menlo Club only, the return covers all three businesses combined and it is in Mr. Campbell's exhibit; Menlo Club returns, both 1945 and 1946.

Mr. Campbell: Mr. Avakian may be right. Yes, I will withdraw that question. I think that is correct. I withdraw [1309] it.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, referring again to plaintiff's Exhibits 114 and 114A and 114B, I believe you identified as the poker sheets of the Menlo Club for the dates shown thereon and from which I believe you testified you obtained the information which was entered by you in the Menlo Club books, is that correct?

Mr. Avakian: Objected to again assuming facts not in evidence because Mr. Maundrell's testimony was not that he identified these sheets, but simply that these were similar to sheets which he had seen.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

The Court: Objection overruled.

(Question read.)

A. Partially so. My testimony, as I remember it, is the fact that these were similar sheets and that a great many entries on these I did testify to——

Q. Were the same entries as you made in your books, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, I direct your attention to the fact that in the lower right-hand corner of each of these sheets appear certain names with amounts set opposite them. What do they represent?

Q. Well, they represent IOUs, or markers as we call it in the business.

Q. Were they IOUs which were owing to the Menlo Club on the dates which they were entered on the sheets? [1310]

A. Yes, I would say they were owing at that time.

Q. Now, other than the poker sheets themselves, did you set up any records of the amounts owing to the Menlo Club by way of IOUs or markers?

A. No, sir.

Q. Is it correct then that the only record in that regard would be that set forth on the poker sheets?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Maundrell, in your testimony Friday you identified a number of checks which are parts of Exhibits 132, with its various subdivisions, 133,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

134 and 135, as being checks drawn to pay for constructing an office on the premises at 50 or 52 Mason Street, do you recall that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, I believe you testified that money for that purpose against which to draw those checks, was given to you by either Mr. Remmer or the manager of the Menlo Club, as you required the funds, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you state whether or not entries were made in the Menlo Club books reflecting those advances for that purpose?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to, the books are the best evidence.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. The entries for it were in Tiny's Waffle Shop books. The reason for that was that the Crocker bank account was all [1311] handled through the Tiny's Waffle Shop accounts.

Q. I am going to hand you the records which refer to Tiny's Waffle Shop, being government's Exhibit 127, Tiny's Restaurant for 1946 and 128, Tiny's Restaurant and Menlo Bar for 1945, and ask you the nature of the entries made with respect to such expenditures for setting up of the office at 50 and 52 Mason Street.

A. The entries were put in the books because—I am referring to Exhibit 128—for instance, Fred Shell, contractor, $2,500, he was given a check for $2,500.

Q. How was that recorded on the books of the Waffle Shop?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Well, it was on the right-hand side of the page under "Payments," that was account of Mr. Remmer, $2,500. He had given me the $2,500 to pay for this carpenter work.

Q. Do you know the source of that money?

A. Well, I presume that came out of the receipts of the Menlo Club.

Q. You say you presume that. Did you make any such entry in the Menlo Club books?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you set up any capital account with respect to improvements in the records?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you set up any liability account or any asset account in any books and records in regard to that expenditure? [1312] A. No, sir.

Q. The entry to which you refer simply reflects the expenditure of that $2,500 through the bank account which you maintained, does it not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, were the other expenditures to which you refer carried in a similar fashion?

A. Yes, sir.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Maundrell, I will ask you whether or not in the course of your employment by Mr. Remmer, you prepared any personal income tax returns for him or for his wife, Helen Remmer?

A. No, sir.

Q. And did you, at any of the years of your employment, supply figures to any one for the purpose of preparing the returns?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered on Friday. He said he gave the information to Mr. Mooney.

The Court: He may answer the question. Objection overruled. [1313]

A. I did. I talked to Mr. Mooney on two or three occasions.

Q. And do you recall now in respect to returns for what years?

A. I believe that the '45 returns I assisted him, and also the '46 returns. I know I supplied him some information for both of those years because we had several conversations about it.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit No. 3, the individual income tax return for the year 1945 of Elmer F. Remmer and ask if you will point out what figures that are set forth on that return that you supplied to Mr. Mooney?

A. I believe I supplied him with the Menlo Club, the 110 Eddy and Day-Night Cigar Store.

Q. I direct your attention to this language with respect to the San Diego Social Club and 21 Club; "Deduct 10% commission to the following: re J. Billington, doing business as San Diego Social Club; deduct 10% Anthony Riggardo, 110 Eddy, $1,982; Andy Desmoni, 110 Eddy, $1,982.97; Dave Billington, 110 Eddy, $198.97," did you supply him with those figures? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know any of those individuals?

A. I know who they are. I met some of them.

Q. Who is Anthony Riggardio?

A. Well, he went to Cal-Neva one season when I was there.

Q. You knew him there?

A. Yes, sir. [1314]

Q. That is when you were employed, I believe, by Mr. Remmer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who is Andy Desmoni?

A. He was one of the managers of the game room. As a matter of fact, he is the man I didn't remember his name the other day.

Q. Who is Dave Billington? A. Dave?

Q. Yes, Dave Billington, 110 Eddy. J. Billington is referred to right immediately above there, the person in whose name was conducted. This is Dave Billington set forth 10 per cent income from the San Diego Club?

A. Dave Billington I don't know.

Q. I call your attention that all three of those names listed as receiving 10 per cent were of the San Diego Social and 21 Club and addresses were listed as 110 Eddy Street, and I believe you testified that you kept the records with respect to 110 Eddy Street. Do you know whether or not any of those individuals were employed by or had any connection with the business of 110 Eddy Street?

A. No, sir, they did not.

Q. Have you ever heard of a Dave Billington in connection with your employment?

A. The only Billington I know is a man named as Frankie Denny. I didn't know of Dave.

Q. Frankie Denny, you saw him in the courtroom? [1315] A. Yes, sir.

Q. And he identified himself as Joseph Billington? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: May I ask counsel through your Honor, his mention of J. Billington, is that just the initial or Joseph Billington?

Mr. Campbell: Initial J period Billington, doing business as.

Mr. Gillen: It is obvious you could say Dave for J.

Mr. Campbell: I object to argument.

The Court: It will be stricken from the record.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

The remarks will be stricken from the record. There is nothing before the Court.

Q. I am going to call your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 5, 1946, individual income tax return of Elmer F. Remmer, Cal-Neva Lodge, Lake Tahoe, Nevada, and ask you what figures, if any, you supplied in connection with the preparation of that return?

A. I supplied the Menlo Club return, 110 Eddy Street, Transit Smoke Shop and Day-Night Cigar Store.

Q. Now, what was the source of the figures which you supplied Mr. Mooney, both with respect to the 1946 return and to the 1945 return?

A. Statement that was made up by Mr. Ayton and the partnership returns that were filed.

Q. Now, which was it that you utilized giving Mr. Mooney the [1316] information, that is to say, the figures given you by Mr. Ayton or the figures taken from the partnership returns, or both?

A. Both figures for the Menlo Club were made up by Mr. Ayton.

Q. Do you know the source from which he made up those figures? A. The books.

Q. The books which you kept?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And those are the books which you identified here? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And is that also true with respect to figures

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

of the other enterprises, those were made up from the books?

A. 110 Eddy, Day-Night Cigar Store and Transit Smoke Shop, yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to figure on income return, "Net gambling gains $5,000," did you supply that figure? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you maintain any records regarding such matters? A. No, sir.

Q. With regard to the Day-Night Cigar Store and the 110 Eddy Street, did you maintain books and records for the calendar year 1946 with respect to the assets and liabilities of those two businesses?

A. The only records I kept were reflected in the books of both institutions.

Q. Let us take the 110 Eddy Street, and I call your attention [1317] to government's Exhibit 112 and 112A and ask you to examine them and state whether or not records of assets and liabilities were kept for the calendar year 1946?

A. Exhibit 112 is kept by Mr. Slater.

Q. Well, did you keep records for 1946 of the assets and liabilities?

A. The only records I kept were the income and the expenses.

Q. And you kept no asset and liability accounts for 1946 for that enterprise?

A. Only as to the partnership.

Q. I am asking you as to the year 1946, did you make any entries in regard to the capital accounts in 1946?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Well, they would be reflected in the books of 1947.

Q. Well, did you make any entries in 1946?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Other than January 1st entry?

A. No, sir. As to Kyne, as to Turner and Cavani, I did.

Q. Did you keep any other asset or liability accounts? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you maintain any, for example, inventory account for the year 1946 at 110 Eddy Street?

A. Yes, there was monthly account that was kept.

Q. Is that reflected in the books?

A. It was reflected in the work sheets that went with the books. [1318]

Q. Do you know where those work sheets are?

A. No, sir.

Q. I am going to hand you records of the Day-Night Cigar Store, Exhibits Nos. 117 and 117B.

A. 117 was kept by Mr. Slater. That is the 1945.

Q. I am referring to 1946?

A. Yes, I kept it in 1946.

Q. Did you keep records of the assets and liabilities in 1946?

A. Yes, there is an explanation——

Q. Other than what purport to be the capital accounts of the partners?

A. That's all, just the capital accounts were taken off.

Q. Were any other assets or liabilities reflected in those records? A. No, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. I am going to show you government's Exhibit 118 for identification and ask you if you recognize the documents that are there? Do you recognize those?

A. Yes, I recognize some of them. Some of them I made at the time before I was employed.

Q. Now, as to those which you do recognize, Mr. Maundrell, what is the general nature of the documents?

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, the exhibit is only in for identification so we may not go into the contents.

Mr. Campbell: I am not going into the [1319] contents.

Q. ——of the various businesses by which you were employed? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And as to those which you say were before your time, had you seen those previous and in connection with your employment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were all of those records records which were maintained there in the course of the various businesses to which they refer? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: Of course, he couldn't answer as to those he didn't prepare himself or familiar with.

The Court: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Gillen: My point is that some of those were prepared before he became identified with the organization.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

(Question read.)

A. I can only answer that as to the inventories that I made up personally or had made under my supervision. I notice just one, at a glance, made up January 1, 1945. I would not be employed there at that time.

Q. Well, will you answer this—was that a record which you found there among the books and records when you accepted your employment?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive. [1320]

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. Yes, those were the records that were turned over to me by Mr. Slater.

Q. And you have previously identified Mr. Slater as the bookkeeper from whom you took over, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I will offer these in evidence as government's Exhibit 118.

Mr. Gillen: May we see them?

Mr. Campbell: Oh, I beg your pardon. I thought you had seen them when they were marked for identification.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, as to this entire exhibit, we offer the usual objection as has been heretofore made, that the exhibit is improperly before the Court for the reasons heretofore given, and then as to the specific portions of the exhibit referred to as "inventories" that were put there, not either by Mr. Maundrell or under his supervision, but prepared by some other person, we offer the objection that no proper foundation has been laid as to those.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

The Court: Objection overruled and Exhibit 118 is admitted in evidence.

Q. I believe you stated, did you not, Mr. Maundrell, that these represented inventories of various businesses and on the dates set forth, is that correct?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and [1321] answered.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Gillen: The exhibits speak for themselves and as to certain of those exhibits, he said he couldn't state when they were made.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. I can only answer that by stating that the inventories that were made under my supervision or by myself would be as of the dates marked on the inventories, but there are inventories here that I had nothing to do with.

Q. But after your employment, did you personally take the inventories? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 120, check dated December 2, 1946, payable to Wm. E. Kyne, in amount of $16,005.50, signed Menlo Club, the signature of William E. Kyne and the endorsement of William E. Kyne, with the notation on the front in handwriting, "Loan for Transit," and ask you if you ever saw that check before?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When was the first time you ever saw it?

A. The date it was drawn.

Q. Now with respect to this check, did you make any entry in the books of the Menlo Club?

A. No, sir. Mr. Kyne had charge of that. He kept those entries himself. [1322]

Q. Now as I understood you, on December 2, 1946, you were keeping the records of the Menlo Club?

A. Yes, sir, but that particular account on the Menlo Club was handled by Mr. Kyne. I had nothing to do with that.

Q. Did the account which was handled by Mr. Kyne and against which this was drawn, was that entered into the Menlo Club record which you kept? A. No, sir.

Q. So that books or ledgers of the Menlo Club which you have identified as keeping here, I take it, would have no reference to this check; is that correct? A. No, sir.

Q. Now do you know the source of the funds which went into the bank account of the Day-Night funds under the name of the Menlo Club?

A. Those were the funds from the Menlo Club.

Q. Were you given any record as to the amount of those funds?

A. Only from the poker sheets that I received each day which were recorded in the books of the Menlo Club.

Q. Did you ever check the poker sheets which

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

you received with the amount of monies which were being placed in the bank account?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered this morning.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. No, sir. [1323]

Q. Did you ever examine the bank account, for the purpose of determining whether or not all of the money reflected in the poker sheets was deposited there? A. No, sir.

Mr. Campbell: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Maundrell, you were educated as a lawyer, were you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And practiced law for a time in California?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And still maintain your status as a licensed practitioner under the State Bar of California; is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And aside from your association with the enterprises that we have been discussing here, did you engage in the management of any other hotels or restaurants other than Cal-Neva and places we have talked about here? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you relate what enterprises you have been identified with during the years and what capacity?

A. Well, I was executive manager for Mr. Cliff for the Cliff Hotel for a number of years.

Q. In San Francisco? [1324]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, sir. Assistant manager of the St. Francis Hotel.

Q. In San Francisco?

A. Yes, sir. I was manager of the Amona Mission Inn about six years.

Q. At Boyes Springs in California?

A. Yes, sir. Manager of the Antlers Athletic Club in Oakland four years.

Q. Similar to the Olympic Club in San Francisco?

A. Yes, sir. I had an operating agreement in the management of a hotel in Palm Springs for two years, called the Colonial.

Q. That is Palm Springs, California?

A. Yes.

Q. Now in addition to the restaurant enterprises which you mentioned here, such as Cal-Neva, Tiny's Waffle Shop, have you ever managed any other restaurants and been identified with them?

A. Cliff Hotel, I had direct charge of the dining room.

Q. Were you identified with the Trader Vic enterprises?

A. Well, in Honolulu I was a partner there. That is how I happened to go to Honolulu in '48.

Q. That is how you happened to leave Mr. Remmer's association to take over the partnership of Trader Vic; is that correct?

A. That's right.

Q. Now you presently own your own restaurant,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

known as Maundrell's on Waikiki Beach; is that correct? [1325] A. That is correct.

Q. Mr. Maundrell, you were asked this morning by Mr. Campbell whether or not you had furnished any information to assist in the preparation of individual income tax returns for Mr. Remmer and his wife, Mrs. Helen Remmer, and you stated, as I recall, that you had furnished some information and had had conversations with Mr. Mooney with reference to the 1945-1946 individual income tax returns of Mr. Remmer and Mrs. Helen Remmer; is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. While Mr. Campbell is examining that document, I will ask you whether or not——

The Court (Interceding): I think we had better wait until Mr. Campbell finishes his examination.

Mr. Gillen: I will ask that this be marked for identification.

Q. I ask, Mr. Maundrell, if you recall having any written correspondence with Mr. Mooney with regard to the individual income tax returns of Elmer Remmer and Helen Remmer?

A. Yes, I believe Mr. Mooney wrote me and——

Mr. Campbell: We object, the correspondence is the best evidence.

The Court: This portion of your answer may stand.

Mr. Campbell: I mean the further answer.

Q. Do you recall writing him? [1326]

A. I may have, but——

Q. I show you here what purports to be a carbon

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

copy of letter and it has been marked as defendant's Exhibit for identification "X." I will ask you to examine that, please, and tell us whether or not that refreshes your recollection as to whether you at any time wrote to Mr. Mooney on that subject or topic? A. Yes, I did.

Mr. Gillen: I will offer the letter, may it please the court, as defendant's Exhibit "X" in evidence.

The Court: It may be admitted in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: Mr. Gillen, I presume you are going to lay it further that it was sent to Mr. Mooney?

Mr. Gillen: All right.

Q. Do you recollect whether or not the original of this letter was sent to Mr. Mooney?

A. Yes, I remember the incident.

Mr. Gillen: With the Court's permission, I would like to read this letter to the jury at this time.

The Court: Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: The carbon copy of the letter is dated March 12, 1947, Mr. Pat Mooney. (Reads Exhibit "X.")

Q. Now the data that you have referred to here, relative to the individual income tax returns of Elmer Remmer and Helen Remmer, you obtained, did you not, depending upon what year it was, from Mr. Kyne, Mr. Slater, the public accountant, [1327] now deceased, who prepared the accounts of the various enterprises from the inception of the Menlo Club, and Mr. Ayton, who prepared the Menlo Club returns, and whatever other records were furnished you in the way of daily sheets, etc.?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as a compound question.

The Court: Do you understand the question?

A. Yes, sir.

The Court: You may answer it.

A. I received my data from Mr. Slater and from Mr. Ayton for filing of the different income tax returns.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, can you tell us in detail what your personal duties were in connection with these various enterprises from the time you went to work?

A. Well, when I was first approached by Mr. Remmer, I was in Beverly Hills at the time and he told me that he——

Mr. Campbell (Interrupting): I am going to object as not responsive. He was asked what certain duties were.

The Court: Don't state what Mr. Remmer told you—I withdraw that remark—just proceed and state the duties.

A. Mr. Remmer asked me to go to San Francisco to take care of the Menlo Club, Tiny's Waffle Shop and Menlo Bar. He was about to purchase the same. This was my first conversation with him——

Q. Those three enterprises in one had not yet been acquired?

A. Not at the time, not consummated. [1328]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not responsive to the question. He was asked to enumerate the duties he had to perform. He is referring now to various conversations he had with Mr. Remmer.

The Court: Just state your duties, Mr. Maundrell, please.

A. I was to take care of the books. I was to take care of the supervision of the Waffle Shop; I was to take care of all the inventories.

Mr. Campbell: Same objection. He is stating what he was supposed to do. The question calls for what he did.

The Court: Objection overruled. He may proceed.

Mr. Gillen: I think he is trying to tell us that later additional work was put on his shoulders.

The Court: You may proceed.

Q. Try to confine yourself to what your actual duties were, what you did.

A. Take care of all pay roll accounts for the three different branches of the Menlo Club; take care of all filing of tax——

Q. When you say pay roll accounts, you mean you prepared deductions and so on necessary for social security?

A. Prepared income returns, old-age pension returns, social security returns; had to do all those things that were pertaining to the business such as the bar and the coffee shop and the card room.

Q. How many employees were there in the

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Menlo, the three [1329] entities in one, approximately, if you recall?

A. I don't recall how many.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Maundrell, at the close of the morning's session, I believe I had questioned you regarding the recollection on your part as to how many employees there were whose pay roll and social security deductions and so on you took care of during the time that you were working there?

A. Well, it was approximately about the Menlo——

Mr. Campbell: Do I understand that is an overall territory during the time he came and left, or a particular time?

Mr. Gillen: I was going to break it down.

Q. I mean the average pay roll, and by that I might tell you, to assist your memory, you can

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

break it down as to the three Menlo units you took care of.

A. I would say the three Menlo units altogether 200.

Q. About 200, you believe?

A. Yes, sir. [1330]

Q. How many of those businesses ran 24 hours a day?

A. The Menlo Club, Tiny's Waffle Shop, the Bar from eight in the morning until two in the morning, closed at two o'clock.

Q. So that in the three Menlo units, that is, the social club, the bar and Tiny's Waffle Shop, there were approximately 200 employees; is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now when you originally became associated with the Menlo units, was that originally supposed to be your exclusive employment?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Subsequently, did you undertake to look after the books and pay rolls of other units, other enterprises? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And those were what—the Day-Night Cigar Store?

A. Yes, sir; 110 Eddy and afterwards the Transit Smoke Shop.

Q. The Transit Smoke Shop; and how soon after you became identified with the Menlo Club did you take over the additional work?

A. Not until 1946.

Q. Now you went to work in what, May of 1945?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then within the year you took over these other obligations, these other enterprises?

A. Yes, sir. [1331]

Q. How many additional employees did that make, approximately? I don't expect you to remember exact.

A. Made about 60 or 65, approximately; I don't know the exact number.

Q. Now would it be a fair estimate, in your opinion, based upon your recollection, Mr. Maundrell, to say that when you were looking after all those enterprises that you handled a pay roll or pay rolls, and also the government deductions, for approximately 260 employees?

A. Yes, I would say that is about right.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, you were assisted in that work, of course, by the managers of the various enterprises; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And after you had done your work of looking after the pay rolls and making the deductions and so on, then so far as returns were concerned, you were assisted by the public accountants; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And those public accountants, as I recall, were Mr. Ayton for the Menlo enterprises, and Mr. Slater for the other organizations?

A. Well, Mr. Ayton also assisted in the other enterprises, and then for 1945 returns I had the assistance of a Mr. Shaw, who was also an accountant.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Was he connected with either Mr. Ayton's or Mr. Slater's [1332] office? A. No, sir.

Q. I see. He was an independent accountant. Now did the defendant, Elmer Remmer, during any of the time that you were employed there, from 1945 to 1948, carrying on the duties that you described here, did he at any time have anything to do with the matter of keeping the records or keeping the books or preparing any returns or pay rolls or anything of the sort? A. No, sir.

Q. Did the defendant, Elmer Remmer, ever direct you concerning how the books should be kept or should be charged where, or anything of that sort? A. No, sir.

Q. The matter of the checks that you issued, Mr. Maundrell, and which have been mentioned during the course of your testimony here, and how you charged those checks up to the various accounts, was that done on your own initiative and according to your best judgment as to how the books should be set up and how the charges should be made?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And without the suggestion of Mr. Remmer or anyone else?

A. He made no suggestions whatever.

Q. Now if I recall your testimony as you described it, Mr. Maundrell, with regard to the social clubs or the cards rooms, each card room, namely, the Menlo Club, the 186 Club, operated [1333] 24 hours a day; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. And there were three shifts of employees headed by three cashiers; is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then there was an over-all manager; is that true? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now the so-called daily sheets, or poker sheets, that have been referred to here, they were prepared by whom?

A. They were prepared by the cashier on his particular shift.

Q. In other words, each cashier worked eight hours; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And at the beginning and end of his time he made out his sheets; is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. As to money taken in, receipts and disbursements; is that true? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And showed the balance at the end of his time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the next man took up from there, I take it; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And those were the sheets that were ultimately turned over [1334] to you, from which you obtained the information that you put in the books?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now do you know of your own knowledge, Mr. Maundrell, how the markers or IOU's were treated on the accounts?

Mr. Campbell: I do not understand that question, treated on the books of account?

Mr. Gillen: I am asking how they were treated on the poker sheets and carried on the books.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to. The question is compound.

The Court: We will see if the witness understands it. Do you understand the question?

A. May I have the question again?

Mr. Gillen: I will withdraw the question. I can break it down very easily, your Honor.

Q. You were shown this morning, Mr. Maundrell, some poker sheets or daily sheets; do you recall that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I take it those were the sheets that you have described as the sheets which were kept by each cashier on his shift; is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And those sheets showed the bank roll he took over when he came on duty and when he left?

A. Yes, sir. [1335]

Q. And it showed any charges in the intervening eight hours while he was on duty?

A. Yes, it did.

Q. Now do you recall Mr. Campbell showing you a list of names on the right-hand side of the page and asking what they referred to?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you said IOU's or markers; in other words, names of men who owed money to the Menlo Club or 186 Club, as the case might be; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now do you know, of your own knowledge, how those markers or IOU's were treated on the poker sheets first?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as unintelligible, how they were treated on the sheets. He testified they were put on the sheets.

The Court: Clear that up a little bit as to what you mean by treated.

Q. How were they looked upon and put down, as cash or obligations, or what?

A. They were put down as an obligation against the person whose name was on the sheet.

Q. An obligation against the person, but was that treated as part of the cash bank roll?

A. Oh, yes; that was part of the ten thousand dollar bank roll. [1336]

Q. Now let me see if I got it clear. I said treated—I meant to convey how was it recognized or put down. If the cashier had a full ten thousand dollar bank roll when he came on duty and two thousand dollars worth of markers were taken during his eight hours, the bank roll would still show ten thousand dollars at the end of his eight hours, provided there were no other changes, eight thousand being in cash and the other two thousand put down as part of the bank roll as IOU's or markers; is that correct? A. That's right.

Q. So to reduce it to a word, whatever the bank roll was included the markers?

A. That's right.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, when you obtained these sheets and when you obtained from the bars the cash register tapes and when you entered whatever was reflected in those records in your books,

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

were they, to the best of your knowledge and belief, an accurate and true account of the financial status of the particular enterprise? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now do you recall, Mr. Maundrell, that reference has been made here in the course of your examination, I believe, to the original 1945 return for the Menlo Club; do you recall that?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I am going to show you prosecution's Exhibit 89, [1337] Mr. Maundrell, and ask you to look particularly at a letter attached thereto, directed to the Collector of Internal Revenue, San Francisco, California, under date of May 10, 1946, and signed Elmer F. Remmer by initial "M," which I believe you identified as your handwriting. Do you recall the incident of the writing and attachment of that letter to the Menlo Club return of 1945?

A. That is an amended return.

Q. I beg your pardon?

A. I believe it was an amended return.

Q. I may have been in error saying that you identified that as your handwriting. I believe a previous witness identified it as your handwriting, Mr. Kyne. Will you look at that now and tell us whether or not the name under the signature line, Elmer F. Remmer by "M," is your handwriting?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I believe you said it was an amended return. It does not appear to be designated an amended return. However, Mr. Maundrell, this is the return for the Menlo Social Club, the Menlo Bar and Tiny's Waffle Shop, all in one; is that correct?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Campbell: Is that an amended return?

Mr. Gillen: It does not say. I think he is in error about that.

A. I made an error on that. I was thinking of another one that was attached to an amended return. No, that is correct.

Q. You were thinking, were you not, Mr. Maundrell, of a [1338] statement that you attached to a return referring to an amortization arrangement?

A. Yes, that is right.

Mr. Gillen: Now with the Court's permission, I would like to read this letter and to invite the witness' attention and recollection to the incident that gave rise to the writing of this letter. This letter, which is part of prosecution's Exhibit 89 in evidence, is typed at the top, Menlo Club, 30 Turk Street, San Francisco, May 10, 1946, Collector of Internal Revenue: (Reads from Exhibit 89.)

Q. Does that refresh your recollection as to what happened in connection with those particular records, Mr. Maundrell?

A. Well, in 1945 I was dividing my time between the Menlo Club and Cal-Neva Lodge for the summer period. The poker sheets were taken over to the office and they were put in a box.

Q. What kind of box?

A. Some boxes that had liquor in them, size of a whiskey box.

Q. Were they wooden boxes or cardboard?

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Cardboard boxes, and they were put in the warehouse at 52 Mason. At that time my office was a front portion of the warehouse at 52 Mason. Then later on we started to build a new office at 52 Mason Street and during that period of time, while we were building, the poker sheets were put in those same boxes in the warehouse after the new offices were completed and we moved in, sometime in the latter part of October, [1339] I believe, or beginning of November; I have forgotten the date.

Q. Was that in 1945?

A. In '45. The warehouse, which was in such a terrible state—I mean it was very neglected and it had a great many boxes filled with sheets from the B & R Smoke Shop, sheets which registered bets, etc., and had accumulated there for a period of years, and these boxes were all in the warehouse and the boxes with the sheets, the poker sheets, were also in the warehouse——

Q. That is the 1945 Menlo sheets?

A. That's right—right next to these other boxes. We had a sort of a flood there. This warehouse was underneath a three-story hotel and someone had turned on the water in their bathtub and the water didn't run, it was turned off at the time, but they left their faucet open and had left and the water flowed up over the bathtub and for some period of time went right down in our room where we had all the records stored, plus these other boxes, and the water dripping over these boxes, a great many of them were broken, fell to pieces, some of the liquor dropped on the floor, a few bottles were destroyed, so I decided I wanted to clean this whole room up and in doing so I got hold of a man we called John the Doorman and asked him if he would clean up the whole room and fix the cases in the proper way, etc., and to get rid of all the old race track sheets and all the rest of the junk that was in the place and clean it all out, and in doing so he called in the scavenger department and [1340] he cleaned the whole room out and he cleaned out along with it the boxes that had the poker sheets in it, not knowing that they had a relative value at that time.

Q. Mr. Maundrell, then the statement that you wrote to the Collector of Internal Revenue, to the effect that you had used the receipts and promotion expenses for a like period of the preceding year of 1944, did you resort to the accounts that had been kept by the predecessor of the new bars, Mr. Remmer and his partners?

A. Mr. Ayton, who had charge of the books for the previous owner for a period of ten years or more——

Mr. Campbell: I submit this statement he is launching into is not answering the question.

The Court: Read the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Answer that yes or no.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. From whom did you get that data?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Mr. Ayton.

Q. Mr. Ayton had been the bookkeeper for the predecessor of Mr. Remmer and his partners for a period of some ten years, had he not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. So he had the 1944 records available; is that correct? A. Yes, sir. [1341]

Q. And was he the one who prepared them, based on the preceding years? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I notice that you mention in your statement that some records you did have available and you used those original records that were available for 1945, is that correct, such as disbursements for rents, salaries, wages, cards, and miscellaneous other expenses? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, during the time that you were acting in the capacity that you have described here, agents of the Internal Revenue Department interviewed you, did they not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Concerning the affairs of the Menlo Club and the other enterprises? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who were those agents, by the way?

A. Well, the first agent, as I remember, was Mr. Ezralow, and then after that Mr. Morgan and another gentleman, I am not sure if his name is Poole or not; Mr. Morgan originally and also a little later on by Mr. Harkness.

Q. Now did you discuss with any of those agents the statement that had been sent in with the 1945 return of the Menlo Club, the manner in which you happened to arrive at certain of the figures? [1342]

A. No.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent and immaterial, discussions he had with the agents.

(Question read.)

The Court: Answer yes or no.

A. No, sir.

Q. Did any of those agents, or anybody from the Internal Revenue Department, ever tell you that there was anything wrong about that statement and the manner in which you arrived at certain of the figures in the 1945 return?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent and immaterial, calling for hearsay, and the ultimate fact, what we are interested in here, is not statements made back and forth by the agent and this witness, if there was any such conversations.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Well, did anybody ever reject this 1945 return or statement that you made concerning it?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection, same grounds.

The Court: Same ruling, objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor, this case is made up almost exclusively on circumstantial evidence—I should say exclusively—and return is made in a certain way. I think we should be told whether there was any rejection on the grounds this was wrong. There was testimony regarding one enterprise that it should be set up as a corporation rather than a partnership. [1343]

The Court: I will let him answer the question.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Campbell: May I be heard on that question, if the Court please?

The Court: Very well. We will send the jury out.

(In the absence of the jury.)

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Maundrell, you recollect, do you not, that during a considerable portion of your direct examination Mr. Campbell showed you check stubs and in many instances checks, wherein various accounts or bills were paid by you; do you recall that?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then in connection with those checks and check stubs he asked you how they were set up, where they were charged on various ledgers to various enterprises, how they were reflected on the ledgers; do you recall that?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, sir. [1344]

Q. Now in one particular instance I recollect—and I am going to hand you the exhibits which make up the check stubs, which I think have been identified as prosecution's Exhibits 132, 133, 134, 135 and 136—do you have these in mind, counsel?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, I have those — those are Crocker First National Bank.

Q. I will leave these available to you, in case you wish to refer to them, Mr. Maundrell. Do you have a recollection there was one question asked you this morning concerning the manner in which there was reflected, either on your check stubs or on the ledger or both the payment of checks to a refrigeration company for installation of the bar, or portions of bar equipment at the Menlo Bar; do you recall that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I believe you stated that your books reflected that you had charged those to repairs and replacements; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now in that particular instance, did anybody tell you how to charge those? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you charge them as repairs and replacements based upon your own personal judgment as to how they should be set up? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now had there been a bar at the Menlo Bar and some bar [1345] fixtures prior to the time that this installment was made? A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. And was the installment that was made a replacement of what had been there before?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. For what reason? For the reason that the previous bar was out of repair or in bad condition?

A. Well, it was worn out; it was leaking, in bad shape, and needed entirely new replacements.

Q. And you replaced the equipment; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you charged that up as a repair and replacement; is that true? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now with reference to the other charges that you made, Mr. Maundrell, did you in each instance act upon your own best judgment as to how they should be accurately reflected in your records?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now were you ever at any time told by the defendant, Elmer Remmer, or anyone else, to charge those charges a certain way, or were all those charges made based upon your judgment as to where they accurately belonged? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is your answer—it is rather a confusing question? [1346]

A. Based upon my own judgment.

Q. Now I recall on Friday you were asked concerning bills that were paid on behalf of Mr. Remmer, and I believe in a number of instances you said you had charged those to Mr. Remmer's private account; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I believe one of those was an insurance bill for some insurance on the home or some personal property; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. And in another instance there was—I don't have in mind the other bills now, but there were two or three instances where you did state that you charged those to Mr. Remmer's personal account; is that correct?

A. Yes, there were a few bills that were charged to his account.

Q. In other words, if it was an expense that had nothing to do with the business, but rather had to do with Mr. Remmer's affairs, it would not be charged to his business affairs but charged to his personal account as personal expense; is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. And of course you had in mind that business expenses were deductible and personal expenses were non-deductible expenses under the income tax law; is that correct? A. That's right.

Q. When you did make these classifications of expenses and paid these bills, to the best of your knowledge, your best [1347] judgment, that was where they should have been classified?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as asked and answered.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now I will hand you here, Mr. Maundrell, prosecution's Exhibit 91 in evidence, which is the amended partnership return of the Menlo Club for 1946, together with defendant's Exhibit I for identification, and I will ask you to refer to them so you may possibly refresh your recollection in connection with the next question which I will ask you. I will ask you to look at these documents and tell us whether or not you recall preparing the statement that has been designated defendant's Exhibit I for identification to be attached to the amended return for the Menlo Club?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

The Court: Read the question.

Mr. Gillen: I would like to withdraw that question. It has erroneous data in it.

Q. You have in your hand the amended return for the Menlo Club for the year 1946. I will ask you whether or not you recall the incident of having proposed to you a statement to be submitted with that return and the previous year's return, the proposed statement being defendant's Exhibit I for identification?

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object to that question, if the Court please; Exhibit I for identification is not here in [1348] evidence. There has been no foundation laid and the question, I think, is incompetent, in that it asks him to compare an exhibit which is in evidence with an exhibit with which he has not heretofore testified any familiarity and asks him to draw a conclusion therefrom, and I object on the grounds the question is incompetent for that reason.

The Court: You asked him to compare——

Mr. Gillen: No, I am not asking him to compare. I am asking him if he recalls receiving such a proposed statement as is before the Court for identification, with the suggestion that it be attached to the return which is in evidence, Exhibit 91.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to further, it calls for him to state whether he received a similar document to Exhibit I for identification, which, of course, is not in evidence, and prior to any foundation laid that he has either seen it or has knowledge of it.

Mr. Gillen: Perhaps I can clarify this for everybody if I remind your Honor and counsel that the witness Mooney, called by the government, was shown this Exhibit I for identification and he testified, and it is in the record, that he mailed that to Mr. Maundrell, or submitted it to Mr. Maundrell as a proposal, proposed statement, to be attached to the amended return of 1945 and 1946. I am not endeavoring to complete the foundation for admitting that in evidence. [1349]

Mr. Campbell: Then I think we can have a direct question here, whether he ever saw it and where it came from.

Mr. Gillen: In the interest of time, I can withdraw it.

The Court: What I had in mind, this suggestion from somebody else that was embodied in that question. Go ahead, Mr. Gillen.

Mr. Gillen: Let me ask this question, which may not be objectionable.

Q. Mr. Maundrell, would you look at defendant's Exhibit I for identification and tell us whether or not you ever saw that same statement before?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. I do not remember seeing this statement.

Q. Do you recall receiving from Mr. Mooney a proposed draft of a statement to be submitted with an amended return for the Menlo Club, requesting an amortization arrangement for income tax returns?

A. I remember sitting down with Mr. Mooney and discussing it.

Q. And do you remember that Mr. Mooney sent you a proposed statement of what he thought should be put in that and do you remember, instead of taking Mr. Mooney's statement, that you prepared a statement of your own? A. Yes, sir; I did.

Q. Now will you take a look at Exhibit 91 and see if there is not attached to Exhibit 91, which is the 1946 Menlo Club amended return, the statement that you prepared yourself [1350] instead of accepting the proposed statement of Mr. Mooney?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: I would like at this time, may it please the Court, to offer defendant's Exhibit I in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to on the ground no proper foundation laid. The witness stated he has no recollection of having seen——

The Court: I have not seen any connection between the statement prepared by this witness, as he recollects, as being part of the exhibit, part of Exhibit I.

Mr. Gillen: I will ask one or two more questions.

Q. You say you have a recollection of sitting down with Mr. Mooney and discussing an amortization plan for the Menlo Club to be used in connection with the returns? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what was the proposal of Mr. Mooney?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to——

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. What was the amortization plan supposed to do?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to. The return and statement of the witness thereto speaks for itself. The books speak for themselves.

The Court: Let me have the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Objection sustained. [1351]

Mr. Gillen: Well, here is a man who prepared this statement, your Honor, that accompanied as part of Exhibit 91.

The Court: That statement is in evidence, will speak for itself, but I can't see what that has to do with Exhibit I.

Mr. Gillen: I would be very happy to explain to your Honor what it has to do with Exhibit I. Exhibit I was proposed by Mr. Mooney as to how a request for an amortization plan could be submitted to the Collector of Internal Revenue, in order to adjust payment of income tax as to the club to amortize investment over a period of years. Instead of taking and accepting that and using it, Mr. Maundrell prepared a more comprehensive statement himself, based on the suggestion of Mr. Mooney.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

The Court: But Mr. Maundrell stated he had never seen the Exhibit I.

Mr. Gillen: He stated he did not recall seeing I.

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Gillen: Now I am asking him whether or not he knew what this amortization statement was supposed to do in the way of any adjustments on income tax returns.

Mr. Campbell: My objection is, so far as Exhibit 91 is concerned, a statement attached thereto, that is in evidence and speaks for itself.

The Court: Objection sustained. [1352]

Mr. Gillen: I have a recollection, your Honor, that this morning Mr. Campbell pursued a number of questions based on recollection of the witness rather than the exhibits themselves, and his reasons for doing certain things.

The Court: I think that was a little different situation than this.

Mr. Gillen: All right.

Q. When you prepared this statement, which is attached to the 1946 amended partnership return of the Menlo Club, for what reason did you prepare that and submit it with the amended return?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent, if the Court please.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. Well, at that time I believed they were entitled to an amortization over a period of five years on the purchase of the Menlo Club.

Q. Now will you tell us what you mean by say-

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

ing that you believed you were entitled to an amortization over a period of five years?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as asking for a statement or exposition of argument by the witness. The document speaks for itself.

The Court: He may answer the question.

(Question read.)

A. I had been informed by Mr. Mooney that in cases of clubs [1353] or businesses such as the Menlo Club, that we could amortize the business over a period of five years because of the fact that it was a very precarious business. It was a business that could be outlawed perhaps at any time. A new ordinance at that time was being drafted in San Francisco and also the State legislature drafted a new law——

Mr. Campbell: I object to that.

Mr. Gillen: I think the answer should be completed.

Mr. Campbell: I wish to renew my objection to this type of answer and explanation, if the Court please, based upon hearsay, as giving arguments and conclusions. I do not think this type of answer is competent.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, we have a statement I am going to read to the jury in a moment, introduced by the prosecution itself.

Mr. Campbell: I say that is the best evidence.

Mr. Gillen: All right. You pursued a lot this morning that wasn't the best evidence. We are going to read this to the jury, with the Court's permission, of course, but I see nothing in Mr. Maundrell's answer that is objectionable.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

The Court: I think he has answered the question now.

Mr. Gillen: I don't know. He was cut off in the middle of a word.

The Court: Any further answer you want to make to that question? [1354]

A. Well, there are quite a few circumstances, although I believe the statement itself is complete.

Mr. Gillen: With the Court's permission, I am going to read the statement that was submitted with the amended return for 1946 of the Menlo Club, which is designated here as prosecution's Exhibit 91.

Mr. Campbell: What is the date of that document?

Mr. Gillen: It is an amended return for 1946, 1946 return — May 2, 1947. That is when the amended 1946 return was prepared. The statement reads as follows: (Reads Exhibit 91.)

Q. Now was that statement prepared by you and submitted with that return for amortization consideration to the Collector of Internal Revenue?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was there also a similar statement attached to the 1945 amended return, the previous year?

Mr. Campbell: I submit that the return would be the best evidence. Is that in evidence?

Mr. Gillen: Where is it?

MR. MAUNDRELL

resumes the witness stand on further

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Mr. Campbell: At counsel's request, we have produced the amended return of the Menlo Club, an amended partnership return of 1945, which I will ask to have marked for identification.

The Clerk: Plaintiff's 141.

Mr. Campbell: I have no objection, if you wish to offer it in evidence as defendant's exhibit, having been filed with the Collector of Internal Revenue on the 15th of May, 1947.

Mr. Gillen: We will offer it.

The Court: Exhibit "Y."

Mr. Gillen: That is formerly 141 for identification.

Mr. Campbell: That number will then be removed.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Gillen: Now it is "Y" in evidence.

The Court: That is right.

Q. Mr. Maundrell, with the Court's permission, I will show you defendant's Exhibit "Y" in evidence now, which purports to be amended return for the year 1945 of the Menlo Club, and I will ask you to look particularly to the statement attached thereto, which I believe you will find is identical to the statement which I read attached to the amended partnership return of 1946 of the Menlo Club, and ask you if you prepared that statement likewise? [1356] A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in requesting that consideration for amortization for the reasons that you set forth in that statement, you wanted the depreciation spread over the period of five years; is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Maundrell, with relation to the request for amortization plan as set forth in your statement, attached to the exhibits which you have just looked, prosecution's Exhibit 91 and defendant's "Y," did Mr. Remmer direct you to do this or have anything to do with it, or was it something that you prepared in the belief that you were entitled to such deductions?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming something not in evidence, that is request for amortization.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. Mr. Remmer did not have anything to do with it. I discussed the matter with our auditor,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Ayton, and we came to the conclusion that was the proper thing to do.

Q. You concluded that that was something to which that enterprise, under the circumstances, was entitled to; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In that statement, Mr. Maundrell, you set forth that the Menlo Club had been purchased—and that included, of course, Tiny's Waffle Shop and the Menlo Bar, did it not? [1357] A. Yes, sir.

Q. (Continuing): ——that the Menlo Club had been purchased for the total sum of 175 thousand dollars, of which $31,985.50 was allocated to the investment in furniture and fixtures and merchandise; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the remaining sum of $143,801.50 toward the capital investment, that is the lease; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Now you will recall, Mr. Maundrell, that Mr. Campbell questioned you this morning—I think also on Friday—regarding the transactions, Exhibits 140 and 125, and I will identify those to you as the rewritten ledger page setting up the investment; do you recall that?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming a fact not in evidence—rewritten ledger page. This witness stated he did not believe he had ever seen the page, Exhibit 125.

Mr. Gillen: I think this has been identified as 125C, this one page of the Menlo Bar and Tiny's Restaurant ledger, and that page is designated "Furniture, Fixture, Equipment and Lease."

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Now I will ask you if it isn't a fact, Mr. Maundrell, that originally, as of April 30, 1945, the capital set-up of the Menlo units purchased set forth that the lease was designated at 100 thousand dollars, the value of the lease, and the fixtures at 75 thousand dollars? [1358]

Mr. Campbell: Objected to on the grounds the books and records speak for themselves.

The Court: I think that is correct.

Q. Showing you prosecution's Exhibit 140, isn't it so that it shows the set-up to be 100 thousand dollars allocated as costs of the lease and 75 thousand dollars as cost of the furniture and fixtures and merchandise on hand? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now I will show you also prosecution's Exhibit 125C and ask you if this does not reflect a change in those figures, where in the lease cost was placed at 143 thousand odd dollars and the merchandise, furniture and fixtures cost placed at something in the neighborhood of 31 thousand odd dollars?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to on the grounds the record speaks for itself. Further, the witness testified he did not recall ever having seen 125C.

The Court: Then I think it is just a matter of reading the exhibit, isn't it?

Mr. Gillen: Well, this is preliminary in asking how those matters were arrived at, your Honor, and I think Mr. Maundrell testified that the amended or corrected return was done at his direction and under his supervision.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. May I have the question?

(Question read.) [1359]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Both of those pages were set up either by you or under your supervision or direction, isn't that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you tell us how the first set-up, as it appears in Exhibit 140, where you first set up the respective costs at 100 thousand dollars for the lease and 75 thousand dollars for furniture, fixtures and merchandise, and then how you subsequently corrected that to 143 odd thousand dollars for the lease and 31 thousand odd dollars for the furniture, fixtures and merchandise?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to on the ground—possibly I am confused—I understand the witness testified he had never seen that paper before and didn't know when it was made.

The Court: He said these records were kept under his supervision and he can answer this question if he knows.

Mr. Campbell: May I ask a question on voir dire?

The Court: Yes, sir.

Q. (By Mr. Campbell): Mr. Maundrell, prior to this trial did you ever see that page, 125C.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the court, we object to that as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, whether he ever saw the page. I dictate a lot of things to my secretary that I never see after they are dictated, but they are done under my [1360] supervision and direction.

The Court: I think he can answer if he knows. Objection overruled.

A. I don't remember at the moment that I looked at this particular page.

Q. Did you ever dictate to any one the contents of that page, and if so, to whom?

The Court: I mean the question he can answer, the question asked by Mr. Gillen.

(Last question by Mr. Gillen read.)

A. When I first arrived in San Francisco and met Mr. Schriber for the first time and Mr. Remmer in the Menlo Club, and I asked Mr. Schriber how this set up account of the lease was——

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not in response to the question that was asked.

The Court: Let me have that question again?

(Question read.)

Mr. Gillen: I submit he is explaining how he got his information to set up the first page and I assume he will explain what brought about his changing that to change the allocation of the amounts.

The Court: He may proceed with his answer.

A. ——as to lease and cost of inventory and he told me the lease was 100 thousand dollars and the cost of the equipment and inventory was 75 thousand dollars. [1361]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Those were the prices he placed on them for you?

A. The prices he placed on them and I put them in the books at that time.

Q. Now what, if anything, occurred at any later time to cause you to set up a different figure, allocating the respective costs?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection.

The Court: Same ruling. He may answer the question.

A. About maybe two months later—it might have been a little longer than that—the tax department of the State of California came in to see me——

Mr. Gillen: Mr. Maundrell, may I interrupt you —so the jury may be enlightened, it is true in California, in addition to federal income tax, there is also a State income tax, which is handled by the State Franchise Commission, wherein a State sales tax are set? A. That's right.

Q. When you refer to the California Tax Department, you refer to the agents who handle the matter of the State Sales Tax in the State of California?

A. Well, every time a piece of property like a bar, changes hands, has a sale, the State collects 2½ per cent sales tax on it. It seems that they had not paid the sales tax somewhere along the line, we hadn't done so, so he asked us what the cost of our equipment was and inventory. [1362]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. That was the man from the California State Sales Tax Department?

A. Yes, sir; so I asked him if he would put a value on the property and on the inventory, so he said, "Well, we do that if we have to, that is our business."

Q. Does that Department have regular appraisers that go out and appraise values of properties in addition to figuring California tax sales?

A. Yes, the very next day, or two days later, he came in with another gentleman from the Tax Department, and we went all over the building.

Q. Do you mean the bar and office and Waffle Shop and Menlo bar?

A. And they noted everything in the books they had and finally came to the conclusion that $31,-895.50 was a proper cost of equipment and inventory.

Mr. Campbell: I ask the last be stricken as conclusion of the witness. The report of the record is the best evidence.

The Court: It may stand.

Q. In other words, Mr. Maundrell, the California State Tax man handed you that as their appraisal of the value of the fixtures, furniture and merchandise, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir, and we had to pay tax on that.

Q. And you paid the tax on that?

A. Yes, sir. [1363]

Q. And then the difference between that and

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

175 thousand dollars was allocated as the value of the lease, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And based on that you deducted those figures in making your statement to the Collector of Internal Revenue on the amortization plan, is that correct? A. That's right.

Q. And the result of that appraisal that was made and those figures that were arrived at, as a result of that you had to pay taxes on 31 thousand odd dollars for merchandise, furniture and fixtures, is that the reason why you set up the new page using the official figures that were given to you by the State of California? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, you have stated here in direct examination, and it has been shown in the exhibits, that when you affiliated yourself with the Menlo units that you became a one-tenth partner, or rather that you became a partner to the extent of 10 per cent in the Menlo Social Club, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you have an oral agreement originally with regard to your partnership interest?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you at any later time insist upon, or suggest, that those partnership agreements be reduced to writing? [1364] A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you do that in regard only to your partnership or with regard to the other partners' interests in the Menlo Club?

A. All of the partners had an agreement.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Now who prepared the written agreements setting forth those partnership returns?

A. Mr. Haughey.

Q. Is that Joseph Haughey, the California lawyer who appeared as a witness here?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who assisted him with regard to the details and data what sort of agreement was to be drawn?

A. Why I gave him all the facts and all the data and when they were drawn it was submitted to Mr. Remmer.

Q. And did Mr. Kyne have the same kind of an agreement that you had, with the exception of possibly difference in the amount of interest?

Mr. Campbell: The agreement is here in evidence of Mr. Kyne.

The Court: The agreement will show.

Q. Well, let me ask you this—were all of the agreements the same, with the exception of the difference in a percentage part? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I will show you here prosecution's Exhibit 130 and hand it to you, with the Court's permission. This is the agreement [1365] that was signed between you and Mr. Remmer, as defining what would be your interest in the Menlo Club, is that not correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now that sets forth, does it not, that you were to have, retroactive as of May 1, 1945, a 10 per cent working interest in the profits of the Menlo Club, isn't that correct? A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Campbell: I suggest that the document speaks for itself—well, he answered yes.

Q. And it is also provided in your agreement, is it not, that you hold in your hand, that after your profits had reached the equity of 10 per cent of the cost of the purchase of the Menlo unit, to wit, $17,500, then you would have a one-tenth interest in the physical assets of the property?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to, the document speaks for itself.

Mr. Gillen: He is holding it in his hands. If counsel would rather have me go through the reading again.

The Court: I think it would be better to read that from the document.

Mr. Gillen: I am also thinking of the time involved, your Honor. It will take three-quarters of an hour.

Q. Maundrell, in the original document you hold in your hand it sets forth, does it not, in paragraph 8 thereof: "* * * as of May 1, 1945, first party does hereby assign, transfer, set over [1366] and convey to Harold H. Maundrell, second party herein, a ten per cent working interest in and to the profits derived from the operation of the aforesaid social room and restaurant business situated as aforesaid * * *." That appears, does it not, on the original agreement? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: Same objection.

The Court: The answer may stand.

Q. And that 10 per cent interest, as against the

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

total purchase price, required you to build up an equity of $17,500 out of the profits, did it not?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for his conclusion or interpretation of the document now before the Court.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Now I will ask you to look at the prosecution's Exhibit 113, which is the Kyne agreement, the photostatic copy of the Kyne agreement, and I will ask you if you will compare this Exhibit with the document that you have before you, which is 130, prosecution's Exhibit 130, and tell us if those two agreements are the same, with the exception of the difference in the name of the party of the second part and the fact that Mr. Kyne had a 15 per cent interest as against your 10 per cent interest?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to, the documents speak for themselves. They have both been read before.

The Court: I think it would show in the documents. [1367] Objection sustained.

Q. Well, to your knowledge, did all the partners receive the same kind of agreement with the exception of difference in percentage?

A. That's right.

Q. Now you have prosecution's Exhibit 125, do you not, the books there? Now, will you take and look at the capital accounts appearing in that book —I can't tell you what page—look at your own capital account. A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what shows on that?

Mr. Campbell: The books speak for themselves.

Mr. Gillen: Yes, your Honor, I can walk up and get the book and read it. The cross-examination is being very badly hampered by these technical objections.

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Campbell: It seems to me these entries could be very quickly read to the jury, if there are any particular entries.

The Court: I can't see any reason why the witness or counsel couldn't read it. It doesn't make any difference.

Mr. Campbell: Very well.

A. May I have the question, please?

(Question read.)

Q. Would you be kind enough to read the first entry and the second entry, and so on, and tell us what those entries mean? [1368]

Mr. Campbell: I object to the general interpretive question of that kind. Reading a document is one thing and interpreting it is something else.

The Court: Yes, just have it read.

Q. Will you read the first entry?

A. The heading Harold H. Maundrell, under that is balance of 1945, shows that I had $13,003.37 credit, on the books to my account. Second item, June 14, federal income tax under debit, $3,874.35, which left me a balance of $9,131.02, and then of the same date, June 14, franchise tax—that is for the State of California, debit $123.45, leaving a balance on the books of that date of $9,007.57.

Q. Are those all the entries in regard to you?

A. That is all under Maundrell. The next is Turner.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Do you have another Maundrell page there of capital accounts? A. No, sir.

Q. I think that same exhibit you will find another Maundrell page. Will you just go through and pick that. I think it was marked 125A.

A. Yes, I have it here.

Q. Now will you read the first entry there?

A. Partners account Tiny's Restaurant, bar and Menlo Club, Harold H. Maundrell, balance 1945, $13,003.37. 1946 profit 1946 $8,349.65, leaving a balance of $21,353.02. June 14 paid out for my account to the Collector of Internal Revenue [1369] $3,874.35, leaving a balance of $17,478.67. June 14, franchise tax $123.45, leaving a balance of $17,-355.22. 1947, 3-12, Collector of Internal Revenue, estimated tax, $900, leaving a balance of $16,455.22. 7-29 estimated tax $900, leaving a balance of $15,-555.22. 9-11, estimated tax $900, leaving a balance of $14,655.22. 1948, January 14, estimated tax $900, leaving a balance of $13,755.22. January 20, $7500 drawn, leaving a balance of $6,255.22; 19th of February $2500 drawn, leaving a balance of $3,-755.22; February 19, $2000 drawn leaving a balance of $1755.22.

Q. Leaving balance due on the books?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now when were those items set up under your name as capital account?

A. That is the amount of money I had coming to me from the partnership.

Q. In other words, that is how you kept track

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

of your profits derived from your working interest, 10 per cent of the profits of the Menlo unit, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that was how you kept track of how your equity was being built up in the physical assets of that property, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And were there similar pools set up for other partners, showing their equities? [1370]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then those were furnished to Mr. Ayton, the public accountant, and were included in the returns, were they not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now I will ask you to look at prosecution's Exhibits 89 and 90, which are the 1945 and 1946 income tax returns of the Menlo Club and with particular reference to partnership interests, I will ask you if under Schedule I on each of those if the partnership interests as they appear in the ledger are set forth there? In other words, those partnership interests are reflected on the income tax return, are they not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, will you explain to the jury what was the working interest that was created between the various partners and Mr. Remmer in the Menlo enterprise?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to on the ground that the document speaks for itself; as calling for conclusion, including legal inclusion, as to the nature of the document.

The Court: Objection sustained.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Gillen: I had in mind, your Honor, that this is the man who helped create it and placed it in a crystallized form in writing.

The Court: Yes, but we have the documents here.

Mr. Gillen: That is true, excepting that you had a good deal of difficulty the other day. As your Honor pointed out, [1371] it is a rather complicated document, complicated working arrangement.

Q. It is true, is it not, that you did, between the period of time that was at the starting point of May, 1945, until you withdrew from the organization in 1948, you participated in 10 per cent of the profits of the Menlo Club? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And it is true, is it not, that you drew on your credit to pay your income tax on those profits, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And it is true, is it not, that on the occasion of your departure in 1948, your withdrawal from the organization, that you still had a credit on the books, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now let me ask you whether or not you withdrew from the enterprise any cash based on the credit that you had on the books of the organization from the one-tenth working interest in the profits of the organization?

A. Well in the first place I drew down my income tax return.

Q. You did that each year, did you not?

A. Yes, sir, and finally I was paid $12,000 in cash.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. That was when you withdrew from the organization, is that corect? A. Yes.

Q. Now was there any additional balance on the books that you [1372] left there?

A. Yes, there was.

Q. What was the additional balance you left on the books? A. Seventeen hundred odd dollars.

Q. Did that still remain as a credit in your favor on the books, or did you settle your entire interest for 12 thousand dollars?

A. No, still on the books.

Q. So when you left that organization to go to Honolulu you had some 13 odd thousand dollars credit on the books, is that correct? A. 1700.

Q. I mean before you drew down your 12 thousand, you had 13 or 14 thousand dollars credit coming to you did you not? A. I had $13,755.22.

Q. And when you pulled out to go to Honolulu you drew down 12 thousand dollars of that in cash, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And left the balance of $1700 odd dollars on the books, is that true? A. That's right.

Q. Now you had invested no money in the business in the way of cash? A. No, sir.

Q. You invested your time in the business and had drawn some [1373] salary for several of the enterprises, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now you have stated, Mr. Maundrell, that originally you were supposed to only identify yourself with and do work for the three Menlo enterprises which you referred to, namely, the social club, the bar and restaurant, is that correct?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. But at some subsequent time you were asked to do additional work? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It is true then that you undertook to keep the pay rolls and records, insofar as social security, etc., were concerned, for 110 Eddy, Day-Night Cigar Store, 186 Club, and Transit Smoke Shop, is that true? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the Transit Smoke Shop, I believe, came into existence in 1946, was it?

A. On the first of November, 1946.

Q. Now, I believe you stated that you did draw some salaries for keeping books from several of these, one or more?

A. 1946 I drew down $75 from the 110 Eddy, Transit Smoke Shop, Day-Night Cigar Store, that was expense money.

Q. Do you mean that you drew down those amounts per month? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would you say that your duties and your work in connection [1374] with those other enterprises, the 110 Eddy, Day-Night, 186 Club and Transit Smoke Shop, were about the same as the Menlo, or did you do more work in the Menlo?

A. Well, the Menlo Club took up the matter of 8 hours a day and the others took up an average of about two or three hours a day.

Q. In connection with your duties in behalf of the Menlo Club, did you have anything to do with suggesting or directing what should be done in connection with the creation of good will towards customers and business manager and employees?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Not with the club itself. My work was principally with the restaurant part of it in that respect.

Q. Did you have anything to do with giving out of Christmas presents at the end of the year?

A. Well, I did in this respect, that I helped box them and wrap them up as Christmas presents.

Q. Did you participate at any time in wrapping up any Sulka ties to give away as Christmas presents? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Were you ever given any Sulka ties as presents? A. Oh, yes.

Q. How many times, would you say?

A. Not less than two dozen, 25 Sulka ties.

Q. Did you ever receive as Christmas presents any merchandise orders from Bullock & [1375] Jones? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever receive as a present of any kind any suit that was made by Greenhouse and Cordova? Of New York?

A. Yes, sir, I have it on.

Q. When did you receive that? A. 1944.

Q. And that is when you were connected with Cal-Neva Lodge, associated with Mr. Remmer in Cal-Neva Lodge? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was, of course, before the inception of the Menlo Club under the partnership that we are talking about, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. You stated you were interviewed by agents of the Internal Revenue, Mr. Ezralow, Mr. Morgan, Mr. Harkness and Mr. Weaver?

A. Only once by Mr. Weaver.

Q. And were you requested at any time by any or all of those agents to turn over any of the books of the various enterprises that you had charge of?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you tell us by whom and when?

A. I believe the request came from Mr. Morgan and Mr. Harkness.

Q. What were you requested to turn over?

A. Well, they asked me—of course, I knew there was an investigation at the time—and they asked me if they could take [1376] certain books. They had books that related back to 1943, '44 and '45 that I had in my possession at that time and were given to me by Mr. Slater, and I turned over everything that I had that they asked for.

Q. When you say everything you had, do you mean in the way of cash books, ledgers, and so on?

A. Ledgers, and everything they asked for, yes.

Q. Now were the books of the year 1946 included in that request?

A. If they were not included, I believe they were the second time.

Q. Isn't it a fact that ultimately you were asked to turn over all the books that you kept for the various enterprises in which Mr. Remmer was interested, from the year 1943 up to the year 1948?

A. I believe—I am not quite positive of the date

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

—I believe the latter part of '46 or beginning of '47 that I turned over all the books up to 1947.

Q. Now was there a subsequent—you said something about subsequent request—was there a subsequent request for additional books?

A. Well, later on—I might state that during this interview I gave them the books with the understanding that I could have back the books whenever I wanted them and occasion arose where I asked them to bring me back certain books, which Mr. Morgan [1377] did. I don't remember just now what the books were. I don't remember what they all were, just certain books I had to have and then at a later date the books were all taken away again, I don't remember the date.

Q. At a later date they were taken out of the possession of Mr. Kyne, isn't that correct?

A. I believe they were. I believe he turned them over at that time.

Q. Now when you say you gave them the books with the understanding that they were to be returned to you when, if, and as you needed them, I take it from that that they actually took them physically away, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And when you had to refer to some of the books, they had to bring them back to you, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. That meant in other words, when they left the office, they took them away?

A. Yes, the first time they took them away in two large boxes. I mentioned to Mr. Morgan at the time, how are you going to carry those two big boxes?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Did you get a receipt for these books?

A. I don't remember whether I received a receipt the first time.

Q. Did you at any time receive a receipt? [1378]

A. I don't remember.

Q. Did any of the agents at any time question you concerning any of the items that appeared in your books, either by way of inquiry or anything of that sort?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: May I put one more question—I am not in disobedience to your Honor's ruling?

The Court: Yes, sir.

Q. Did any agent at any time require from you any explanation of anything that appeared in any of your books?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent.

The Court: Same ruling.

Mr. Campbell: May I suggest a recess at this time?

(Jury and alternate jurors admonished and recess taken at 4:00 o'clock.) [1379]

MR. MAUNDRELL

resumes the witness stand on further

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Maundrell, in your direct testimony yesterday you stated that the name of William Remmer was on one of the social security forms or the employer's forms of the Menlo units, do you recall that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you identified that William Remmer as the nephew of Elmer Remmer, the defendant?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you also stated that returns had been made for the Menlo Club originally in the name of William Remmer doing business as the Menlo Club, do you recall that testimony? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now I will show you the prosecution's Exhibits 89, 90 and 91 and defendant's Exhibit "Y." I will further identify these for you as the 1945 return and amended return, 1946 return and amended return of the Menlo Club. I will ask you to look at these and see if it isn't a fact that the returns were made, not in the name of William Remmer, doing business as the Menlo Club, but in the name of the Menlo Club? A. Yes, sir. [1380]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Now you were mistaken about that, were you not, Mr. Maundrell?

A. I was as to the—that is the income tax return of the partnership.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, I am going to hand you the prosecution's Exhibit 125, which you will recall as the Menlo Club ledger, and with regard to the payments that were made to Gene Schriber on account of the purchase of the Menlo Club units, namely, the social club, the bar and the restaurant, will you tell us just how those payments were made?

A. Well, the first payment was made before I entered into the picture.

Q. That was the payment of 25 thousand dollars cash on April 30 of 1945, is that correct?

A. That's right.

Q. And at that time you were employed and had engaged yourself at the Cal-Neva in the capacity you have heretofore described, is that correct?

A. Well, not at that moment. I was in southern California when it all took place.

Q. Well, you went to Cal-Neva in May in the season, did you not?

A. No, not until the latter part of June.

Q. Then when you went up to Cal-Neva, an arrangement was made for you to also employ yourself at the Menlo Club. During the balance of that summer season, I understood you to say that [1381] you spent part of your time in Cal-Neva and only a part of your time in San Francisco at the Menlo Club, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Then in the month of August of 1945, you were setting up books for the Menlo Club, were you not? A. That's right.

Q. And when you commenced to set up the books for the Menlo Club, from there on what were the payments that were made to Gene Schriber on account of the purchase price of the Menlo Club and the two other units, the bar and the restaurant?

A. Well, in the first place we decided, what I wanted——

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object on the ground the answer will not be responsible.

The Court: Just listen to the question, Mr. Maundrell, and confine your answer to the matters responsive to the question.

A. May I have the question?

(Question read.)

Mr. Gillen: Let me withdraw the question and ask you this.

Q. Did you initially, when you set up the books for the Menlo Club, do anything with relation to the initial payment of 25 thousand dollars cash?

A. Well, when I originally set up the books the 25 thousand dollars cash was set up in the [1382] books.

Q. Yes, and that was reflected on the page out of the ledger which is now prosecution's Exhibit 140, isn't that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that showed there had already been made, as of date of April 30th, the payment of 25 thousand dollars cash? A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Now did you thereafter, in the month of August, do anything with relation to that 25 thousand dollars cash that had already been paid?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what did you do?

A. I called in Mr. Schriber and Mr. Remmer and told them that we had better make out a check for 25 thousand dollars and to just exchange it for the 25 thousand dollars in cash.

Q. In other words, you asked Mr. Schriber to give you back 25 thousand dollars in cash, which you would deposit in the bank, and issue him a check for that payment, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did Mr. Schriber return the 25 thousand dollars cash?

A. He returned that to Mr. Remmer.

Q. And was that turned over to you to put in the proper account? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you put it in the proper account?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you thereupon issue check for 25 thousand dollars? [1383] A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that check was paid out of the proper account, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Thereafter what was the next payment that was made?

A. Next payment was made September 8th.

Q. And that was in the sum of 25 thousand dollars, was it not?

A. Made in three separate payments.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Three separate checks, all dated the same day, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. One check for 15 thousand dollars, one for $8500 and one for $1500, making a total of 25 thousand dollars, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall why it happened to be three checks instead of one check?

A. Mr. Schriber made a request that I make out the checks that way.

Q. In other words, he wanted three separate checks? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In the amounts specified, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now Mr. Campbell asked you regarding a 50 thousand dollar check that had been made out on August 8th and invalidated by tearing off the signature, or something of that sort. Do [1384] you recall the circumstances under which that check was made out and then invalidated?

A. Well, originally I made out the check for 50 thousand dollars. Twenty-five thousand of that was to take care of the original 25 thousand cash that had been paid in the original——

Q. Half of that check was to be covered by the money, the 25 thousand dollars Mr. Schriber was to return to you?

A. That's right. And then the other 25 thousand was for an additional payment.

Q. That was September payment or the second payment?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. It was for the second payment.

Q. And do you recall why or under what circumstances you caused the check to be invalidated?

A. Well, when Mr. Schriber came to the office, I told him at the time that we didn't have 50 thousand dollars in the bank and asked him to hold it and he decided at that time he didn't want the check. He said, "You had better make me out a check for 25 thousand dollars," so the check was cancelled at that time and I made a further check out for 25 thousand dollars.

Q. So you made out a check for the cash he gave you for the 25 thousand dollars?

A. And then I made out an additional 25 thousand dollar check for the second payment and at that time I asked him to hold the check.

Q. I see. [1385]

A. And then after that he decided, "Well, I will just take the one check now." The check was cancelled out for the 25 thousand dollars cash and just forget about that check and cancelled that for the time being?

Q. So the 50 thousand dollar check was cancelled and one of the 25 thousand dollar checks was cancelled? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now on the following month, when you paid him the 25 thousand dollars in three separate checks at his request, did he tell you why he wanted the checks in those particular amounts?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Objection overruled.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. He wanted the checks made in different amounts because he had some obligations, he told me, that he wanted to pay.

Q. In other words, he wanted to use the checks directly to cover obligations of his own?

A. Yes.

Q. Now when was the next payment, or the third payment, made to Mr. Schriber on the purchase price of the Menlo units?

A. February 28, 1946, 25 thousand dollars.

Q. And that was made by check? A. Yes.

Q. And when was the next payment made?

A. May 1, 1946, 25 thousand dollars.

Q. And when was the next payment after that made? [1386]

A. May 1, 1947, 25 thousand dollars.

Q. Now do you recall, Mr. Maundrell, that there was one payment that was held up for a time because Mr. Schriber was unable to furnish the Menlo bar with a liquor license?

A. Yes, sir, that's correct.

Q. And that delayed the payment. The payment was retained, wasn't turned over until that liquor license was cleared, is that correct?

A. That's the reason the payment was not made until February.

Q. Of 1946?

A. '47. No, I beg your pardon, '46.

Q. That was the third payment that was held out? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now the amounts due on these payments had

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

been evidenced by promissory notes, is that correct?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to—the notes are the best evidence.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. I believe there were notes in existence at the time.

Q. Now after you had——

Mr. Campbell: Pardon me—I ask that the answer be stricken, based upon his belief.

The Court: Oh, it may stand.

Q. Mr. Maundrell, after you had arranged for Mr. Schriber to return the 25 thousand dollars in cash, so that you could issue [1387] a check for that 25 thousand dollars to have a check record or a bank record of that first payment or down payment, you did then, did you not, set up a new page in the ledger showing the transaction? A. Yes.

Q. And in other words, the page that is now marked prosecution's Exhibit 140, which is the photostat before you there, was corrected by the page which is in prosecution's Exhibit 125 and which has been marked 125C? A. 125C.

Q. So there were two corrections on that original page, 140, is that correct, one correction being the allocation of the value of the furniture, fixtures and merchandise and the lease, which was originally set up as 100 thousand dollars for the lease and 75 thousand dollars for the furniture, fixtures and merchandise, that was corrected after the State appraisal, isn't that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then the matter of payments to Schriber

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

was also corrected on 125C? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: I will ask the clerk to mark these two pages for identification.

The Clerk: Defendant's "Z."

Q. Mr. Maundrell, the exhibit 140, which is a photostatic copy [1388] the page originally made in the ledger for the Menlo Club, incorrectly reflects the transcripts thereon, while Exhibit 125, the rewritten page, correctly reflects the transactions, is that true? A. Yes, sir.

The Court: When you mention 125 do you mean 125C?

Mr. Gillen: Yes, I do, your Honor, 125C is the page that we are interested in.

Mr. Campbell: Counsel you stated I had a copy of this. I have never seen that document.

Mr. Gillen: It was supplied by your office or the Internal Revenue.

Mr. Campbell: I have never seen the document.

Mr. Gillen: If counsel will check his files, I am sure you will find it.

Q. Mr. Maundrell, I will show you defendant's Exhibit "Z" for identification. I will ask you to look at it and tell us whether or not that fully reflects the status of payments by the Remmer interest to Schriber on account of the purchase of the Menlo units?

Mr. Campbell: If the Court please, the document itself purports to be document, shows in 1949, not signed by this witness, but signed by other individuals, and purports to be a recitation of some kind and I submit that the document of this kind is not the best evidence for any purpose. [1389]

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, by this very witness in direct examination Mr. Campbell used the identical procedure in establishing the matter of the purchase of a safe. He presented a bill from Herman Bros., reciting a safe had been purchased by Mr. Kyne. He asked Mr. Maundrell to look at it and if that described the safe which was at 52 Mason Street and he asked Mr. Maundrell if he recognized the signature of William Kyne and on that foundation laid, he put that exhibit before the jury and read the exhibit. The identical procedure.

The Court: Let me see this exhibit please. Objection will be sustained.

Mr. Gillen: Well, I would like to read your Honor the transcript on that ruling your Honor made and your Honor will see it is the identical procedure that was used and as a matter of fact, Mr. Maundrell in that instance was called upon——

The Court (Interceding): This ruling will stand.

Mr. Gillen: May I finish my statement to your Honor?

The Court: There is nothing before the Court.

Q. Mr. Maundrell, you look at defendant's Exhibit "Z" for identification, on the signature page, the last page, and tell us whether or not you can identify the two signatures on that page?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent and immaterial.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer that question.

A. Yes, I recognize both signatures. [1390]

Q. And whose signatures are they?

A. The first signature is Gene Schriber. The second signature is Elmer Remmer.

Q. Now I will ask you to read that document and tell us whether or not that truly reflects the status of the payments on the purchase of the Menlo Club as you, of your own knowledge, know them to be?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent and immaterial and an attempt to summarize the testimony through the use of a document to which the witness was not a party.

The Court: Objection is sustained. After reading and examining the Exhibit "Z," I would not permit it to be introduced in evidence, so I don't see any sense in going along identifying it further.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, he was first permitted to answer whether or not 125C truly reflected the transaction as he knew it. Now he is being asked to identify another document evidencing the status of the transaction as he knew it.

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Mr. Gillen: All right. Then on the foundation of his having recognized the signatures of both parties, may it please the Court, I will ask that defendant's Exhibit "Z" for identification be admitted in evidence.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Campbell: We object on all the grounds heretofore [1391] stated.

The Court: Objection will be sustained.

Mr. Gillen: Then, may it please the Court, I would like to be heard on the matter under whatever conditions your Honor imposes.

The Court: We will excuse the jury.

(Jury and alternate jurors admonished and excused at 10:30.)

(Argument in the absence of the jury.)

(NB 329 P. 26-33.)

The Court: The ruling will stand.

MR. MAUNDRELL

resumes the witness stand on further

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Maundrell, after you had assembled your data for the returns for the Menlo Club, you turned them over to Mr. Ayton to prepare the returns, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then they were turned back to you by Mr. Ayton for the signature of Mr. Remmer, is that true? A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. I will show you the prosecution's Exhibits 89 and 91 and defendant's Exhibit "Y" and I will identify them as 89, 1945 return of the Menlo Club, 91, the amended 1946 return of the Menlo Club, defendant's Exhibit "Y" the amended 1945 [1392] return for the Menlo Club, and I will ask you to tell us whether or not Mr. Remmer's signature appears on those three returns? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you present those to Mr. Remmer for his signature? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did Mr. Remmer read those returns at the time he signed them?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for the witness' conclusion.

The Court: Objection overruled; if he knows.

A. No.

Q. He did not read them? A. No, sir.

Q. Now. Mr, Maundrell, I am going to hand you the prosecution's Exhibit 125, which contains several pages. This is the ledger of the Menlo Club, which contains a number of pages, some of which have been identified by letters accompanying the No. 125, and I will ask you to turn to the capital accounts of partner's page and will you look at the account of Oscar Nelson. Do you have that before you now? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now on the 1945 Menlo Club return, the account of Oscar Nelson, under Schedule I of that return, shows that Oscar Nelson had a 10 per cent interest in the profits and that the profits credited to his account for the year 1945 was $11,548.88.

BLEED THROUGH-- POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Campbell: From what exhibit are you reading? [1393]

Mr. Gillen: This is prosecution's Exhibit 89.

Q. Will you look at that account for Oscar Nelson and tell us what your ledger sheet reflects as to credit of profits to Mr. Nelson for the year 1945?

A. Mr. Nelson in 1945 had a balance of $11,548.88.

Q. What is that page designated, 125C?

A. This page I am looking at now is 125A.

Q. Will you look at 89 and see if that is the same figure, $11,548.88? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, you have seen that figure is identical as reflected in your book, the credit of profits to Mr. Nelson for the year 1945, $11,548.88 and as appears in the schedule, Schedule I for the 1945 return of the Menlo Club. Does that figure reflect Mr. Nelson's interest or equity in the business as of that time, built up by the profits?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for his conclusion in a legal matter which is in the province of the court, under the contract.

The Court: Objection will be overruled. You may answer the question.

A. Yes, it does.

Q. In other words, that represents the equity that Mr. Nelson had acquired at that time by leaving his profits in the business, is that correct? [1394]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is what he paid income tax on as partner in that business, as being a partner with one-tenth interest in that business, $11,548.88, isn't that correct?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for his conclusion as to what Mr. Nelson paid income tax on; not the best evidence.

The Court: Isn't that merely reading from the exhibit itself?

Mr. Gillen: That's right.

Mr. Campbell: Well, Mr. Nelson's returns were not here. He is asking if that is the amount Mr. Nelson reported on his individual income tax.

Mr. Gillen: No. If counsel understands it that way, let me put it this way.

Q. That is what Mr. Nelson was charged with in the partnership return, that much profit?

Mr. Campbell: I don't object to that question.

Mr. Gillen: That is nice. Then we can get along.

Q. I will show you, Mr. Maundrell, prosecution's Exhibit 89, 1945 return.

A. May I have the question?

(Question read.)

Q. Do you understand now?

A. Mr. Nelson had in his capital account a balance in 1945 of $11,548.88, the same as reflected in the partner's shares [1395] in the return of the Menlo Club for 1945.

Q. Maybe my question isn't clear. That is what he is charged with in the income tax to pay tax on?

Mr. Campbell: I object to the question in that form. I think it is evident, if the Court please, that the same amount that is in the books is reflected in the partnership return.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Gillen: But insofar as profits out of the partnership, he would be responsible to pay taxes on that amount?

Mr. Campbell: I object to that question, calling for conclusion of this witness.

Mr. Gillen: He may have some other income he paid income taxes on over and beyond this enterprise.

The Court: Let me have the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. I do not understand the question.

Mr. Gillen: I will withdraw it.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, you were questioned about two checks that you issued—I took your book away from you too soon, Mr. Maundrell—with the Court's permission I will hand you this ledger again, prosecution's Exhibit 125, and reading from prosecution's Exhibit 90 in evidence, which is the 1946 return of the Menlo Club the following year; I will ask you to turn to the capital accounts of the partners, Mr. Oscar Nelson again, [1396] and reading from this return under Schedule I, it appears in this Exhibit 90 that Mr. Nelson's interest had increased to 15 per cent and that it is reflected here that he reported on the profits for the year 1946 as a partner with a 15 per cent interest in the Menlo Club in the sum of $12,524.49. Will you read what the ledger sheet reflects was his profits as reflected on your capital account for Mr. Nelson for the year 1946? A. 1946 profit, $12,524.49.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. And will you look at prosecution's Exhibit 90 and tell us is that the identical amount that appears in the income tax return for the year 1946?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now that entry in your ledger means that Mr. Nelson, as a result of leaving his profits in the business, had acquired, as of that time, that is of the balance of the year 1946, the end of the year 1946, an equity or interest in the business to the extent of $12,524.49?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for his conclusion. He is calling for a legal conclusion which is in the provice of the Court.

The Court: Doesn't it amount to this—couldn't the question be put this way: "Did a credit of that amount remain on the books at the end of that year?"

Mr. Gillen: Yes, acquired from the profits that he had participated in? [1397]

The Court: I think it amounts to the same thing, so the objection will be overruled. He may answer the question.

Mr. Campbell: That is the latter question, the question suggested by the Court?

The Court: Of course, I can not suggest questions to counsel.

Mr. Gillen: I think the Court's suggestion is right.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

The Court: Very well; you may answer the question.

A. In 1946 he had credited to his account $12,524.49. At that time he had a balance of $11,548.88, which gave him a total balance of $24,073.37.

Q. So that accumulated profits that he left in the business, they gave him that interest in the business, is that correct?

Mr. Campbell: I object to the question in that form.

Mr. Gillen: This is cross-examination.

The Court: I think it amounts to the same thing. Objection overruled.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. These partners did, from time to time, draw on their accounts to pay income taxes on the amount of their profits, isn't that so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is the next entry that appears after the 1946 that you have read there? What is the next entry that appears on [1398] the Oscar Nelson account?

A. Pay Collector of Internal Revenue $3,282.16, leaving a balance of $20,791.21.

Q. In other words, that means that out of the credit on the books Mr. Nelson drew enough money to pay his income tax on those profits, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, will you read us the next entry of the Oscar Nelson account?

A. Franchise Tax Commission—that is for the

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

State of California—$96.13, leaving a balance of $20,695.08.

Q. That last amount was payment of the individual income tax to the State of California?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the next item after that?

A. In 1947——

Q. Pardon me just a moment. That means, does it not, that Mr. Nelson also withdrew 96 odd dollars to pay his income tax to the State of California on those profits? A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right, what is the next item?

A. 1947 he collected $750, paid to the Collector of Internal Revenue, leaving a balance of $19,945.08.

Q. And that means he withdrew from his credit on the books 700 odd dollars to pay the Internal Revenue Collector, is that [1399] correct?

A. Yes.

Q. What is the next item on Mr. Nelson's sheet?

A. Paid to Collector of Internal Revenue for 1947, $1,878.24, leaving a balance of $18,066.84.

Q. All right, what is the next item?

A. He withdrew to pay the Franchise Tax Commission, State of California, $67.90, leaving a balance of $17, 998.94.

Q. All right, what is the next item?

A. In march of '47 he drew on the account $2000, leaving a balance of $15,998.94.

Q. All right, and what is the next item?

A. August 8th——

Q. This is 1947?

BLEED THROUGH-- POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, sir. He drew to pay Collector of Internal Revenue $18.78, leaving a balance of $15,980.20.

Q. What is the next item?

A. September 1st he paid the Collector of Internal Revenue on estimated tax $1500, leaving a balance of $14,480.16

Q. What is the next?

A. September 23rd on the amended tax return he paid $40.89, leaving a balance of $14,439.27.

Q. And now will you give us the next item?

A. September he drew on the account $2,000, leaving a balance of $12,439.27. [1400]

Q. And what is the next item?

A. In November he drew $2,000, leaving a balance of $10,439.27.

Q. This is still 1947, is it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is the next item?

A. December he drew on the account $2,000, leaving a balance of $8,439.27.

Q. And what is the next item after that?

A. 1948 paid Collector of Internal Revenue $750, leaving a balance of $7,689.27.

Q. What is the next item?

A. That is the last item in the book.

Q. There was a credit left on the books there, was there not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. About $7600. A. $7,689.27.

Q. So that the equity, something in excess of 20 thousand dollars he built up out of the profits, he withdrew for his own use and benefit, all but $7600, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, you were questioned concerning two checks that were issued by you in November of 1945—November 16th, I believe was the date—for six thousand dollars to Lou Brice and Mattie Silverman. Those two checks, totalling 12 thousand dollars, represented a 12 thousand dollar investment [1401] that Mr. Remmer made in a night club in New York with Mr. Brice and Mr. Silverman, is that correct? A. Yes, sir

Q. And that night club failed, did it not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. In how short a time? A. About 8 days.

Q. It operated about 8 days and failed?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did Mr. Remmer ever get back any of the proceeds of those two checks for 12 thousand dollars?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for his conclusion.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Up until the time you left the association with Mr. Remmer in 1948, to your knowledge did any of that money ever come back? Did he recover any of that 12 thousand dollar investment?

Mr. Campbell: Also calling for conclusion

The Court: Same ruling.

Mr. Gillen: I am asking if he had knowledge. He is the man that handled that.

The Court: Answer that question yes or no.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Do you have the question in mind?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Some of the money did come back?

A. Yes, sir. [1402]

Q. Part of the 12 thousand dollars?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How much did he get back out of the 12 thousand dollars?

A. I believe around eight thousand dollars.

Q. And in what form did that come?

A. That I do not know.

Q. Did it pass through your books?

A. No, sir.

Q. It didn't pass through your books?

A. No, sir.

Q. So that there was lost on that investment how much?

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute—objected to as calling for his conclusion. He knew some money came back but otherwise it would be conclusion as to whether the balance was paid.

The Court: It is just a matter of deducting 8 thousand from 12 thousand.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, but he wouldn't know whether or not the balance of the four thousand was returned.

The Court: Objection will be sustained.

Q. Do you know when that 8 thousand dollars came back and in what form?

A. No, I do not.

Q. It didn't pass through your hands?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. No, sir.

Q. I ask you for your knowledge on the subject. Did it come [1403] back after 1948?

A. It was way before 1948.

Q. Well, do you know when it came back? Do you have any knowledge on the subject?

A. No, I don't remember at this time.

Q. You don't remember when it came back?

A. No, sir.

Q. What is your information on the subject, based on what somebody told you or what you saw yourself?

Mr. Campbell: That is objected to——

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: I asked for his knowledge, your Honor. The objection was made by counsel to my initial question that I was calling for his opinion, calling for hearsay.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. May I have the question?

(Question read.)

A. I had a conversation with both Mr. Remmer and Mr. Brice.

Q. And when was that conversation?

A. Well, the conversation with Mr. Remmer was about four or five months, I believe, after the ill-fated night club folded up in New York, at which time he told me he received back about 8 thousand dollars.

Q. And when was your conversation with Mr. Brice?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. I had a conversation with Mr. Brice about two months ago in [1404] Honolulu.

Q. So that your information on the subject is based on what was told to you by these two men?

A. That's right.

Q. You have no personal knowledge of how much was returned, from your own knowledge?

A. No, sir.

Mr. Gillen: Well then, may it please the Court, I move the testimony be stricken as not responsive. The question was based upon his personal knowledge on the subject. When the initial question was asked, when I used the word "knowledge," counsel offered the objection I was calling for hearsay evidence and your Honor ruled that if the word, "his own personal knowledge" was included in the question, he could answer on the basis of his own personal knowledge.

The Court: Motion denied, the answer will stand.

Mr. Gillen: Not that it is based on hearsay?

The Court: Motion denied.

Q. Your knowledge then, outside of the issuance of checks for 12 thousand dollars, was based on hearsay?

Mr. Campbell: Just a moment——

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, in the course of your duties in keeping the books of account of the Menlo Club and various other enterprises that you have stated that you kept books for, including [1405]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

some attention to Mr. Remmer's personal account, did you ever prepare a promissory note for Mr Remmer's signature? A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute.

The Court: The answer may go out.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to on the ground it is not within the scope of direct examination.

(Question read.)

The Court: What is your objection?

Mr. Campbell: Not within the scope of direct examination.

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the question.

A. Yes.

Q. And that promissory note was for the sum of 50 thousand dollars that Mr. Remmer borrowed, was it not?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not the best evidence, if the Court please. He says "that promissory note." He asked him first, "Did you ever prepare a note?" and then he says "that promissory note was for 50 thousand dollars." I submit the promissory note is the best evidence.

Mr. Gillen: I will withdraw the question.

Q. It is true, is it not, that you prepared a promissory note for Mr. Remmer's signature for the sum of 50 thousand dollars borrowed from a certain person? [1406]

Mr. Campbell: I make the same objection.

The Court: Objection sustained.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Gillen: That isn't the best evidence?

The Court: I don't know how this witness can testify why Mr. Remmer wanted the note.

Mr. Gillen: I will ask this be marked for identification.

The Clerk: Defendant's A-1.

Q. Mr. Maundrell, I will show you defendant's Exhibit A-1 for identification. I will ask you to look at this and tell us if you recognize this instrument? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Whose letterhead was that?

A. My personal letterhead.

Q. And that is the letterhead you used during the time that you were managing the affairs that you have described here for the Menlo Club and other enterprises? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And at whose instance and request, if anybody's, did you make out that document?

A. At Mr. Remmer's.

Q. Who else was present when that was made out? A. Mr. Jeffres.

Q. Where is Mr. Jeffres now, if you know?

A. I understand he passed away.

Mr. Gillen: I offer this, may it please the Court, as [1407] defendant's exhibit next in order.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as no proper foundation laid as to the time of preparation. Further, it was not prepared within the scope of events set forth in the indictment; secondly, in addition to the lack of proper foundation, that it is not within the scope of direct examination of this witness, as will appear upon examination of the document itself.

Mr. Gillen: I will ask a couple of more questions, your Honor.

Q. Look at this document again and tell us whether or not it was made out on the date it bears?

A. Yes, it was made out September 27, 1946.

Q. And by whom was it prepared?

A. I prepared it.

Q. Did you type it yourself? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And as to the purported signature on there, whose signature is that, do you know?

A. Mr. Remmer's.

Q. Did you see him sign that?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. In whose presence?

A. In the presence of Mr. Jeffres and myself.

Q. Where was that signed?

A. At Mr. Remmer's office, 50 Mason [1408] Street.

Mr. Gillen: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to on the grounds of immateriality and not within the scope of direct examination.

The Court: Objection overruled. It may be admitted in evidence. Exhibit A-1.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, will you relate from the begining to end under what circumstances you were directed to, and did, prepare that exhibit?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent, call-for a narrative statement.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

The Court: I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Gillen: Well, I would like to be heard on that, your Honor.

The Court: Very well, I will excuse the jury. I think the question is rather indefinite and it can't be anticipated what will be expected in the way of an answer or what will come.

Mr. Campbell: I can not interpose proper objections to a question of this kind.

Mr. Gillen: All right.

Q. Mr. Maundrell, on the day that this document was made out, where were you?

A. I was in the office, 50 Mason Street.

Q. Was Mr. Remmer there?

A. Yes, sir. [1409]

Q. Was Mr. Remmer in the same room that you were in? A. Part of the time.

Q. Now were you present when Mr. Jeffres first appeared there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did Mr. Jeffres bring anything with him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did he bring?

A. He brought a package with some money in it.

Q. What was the appearance of the package?

A. Wrapped up in a newspaper.

Q. What, if anything, did he do or say about the package with the money in it when he arrived?

A. He told me he had a package for Mr. Remmer.

Q. What did you do?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. I told him Mr. Remmer was in his own office, so he went back to Mr. Remmer's office.

Q. What happened next?

A. About—I don't remember the time, 10 or 15 minutes later, Mr. Remmer came out of his office and asked me to come into his office, which I did.

Q. Who was present in the office when you went in? A. Mr. Remmer and Mr. Jeffres.

Q. What was said then?

A. Mr. Remmer asked me to make out a note to Mr. Jeffres for 50 thousand dollars. [1410]

Q. What, if anything was said then by any one?

A. Well, I think at the time I asked him whether he wanted an installment note or just a straight note. Mr. Jeffres said, "Just a little simple note so I have something to show for this."

Q. Mr. Jeffres said, just a little simple note so he would have something to show for it?

A. Yes.

Q. And as a result of that, did you make out that note? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You took your own stationery and went out to your typewriter and typed up that note, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You brought it back in and saw Mr. Remmer sign it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you see what Mr. Remmer did with the note? Did he give it to Mr. Jeffres?

A. He gave the note to Mr. Jeffres.

Q. In your presence? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: At this time, may it please the

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Mr. Gillen: During the noon recess, in order to shorten the balance of the cross-examination, which will be very brief, we asked Mr. Maundrell if he would personally total up the figures that Mr. Campbell had him read of the monthly gross totals of the Menlo Club. We have just discovered that we gave Mr. Maundrell one wrong figure which throws him out $400. We would like to correct that.

Q. Mr. Maundrell, at the noon recess, and in the interest of time, you were requested, were you not, by defense counsel if you would take the figures that Mr. Campbell had you read in direct examination from your records of the monthly totals of the Menlo Club reported income, do you recall that?

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And there was one figure given to you for the month of May, 1946, I believe total figures of January 2nd to and including December, 1946—what figure were you given? A. $26,545.35. [1412]

Q. I think the correct figure is $26,945.35. Will you, Mr. Maundrell, add $400 to the $26,545.35 and tell us what your total is? A. $412,543.80.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, having made that correction, I will ask you, you recall, do you not, that Mr. Campbell, in his direct examination, asked you to examine Exhibit 126, prosecution's Exhibit 126, which purported to show the monthly totals of the Menlo Club, total receipts and returns, do you recall that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall that Mr. Campbell had you read from your records the totals for January through and including the month of December of 1946, do you recall that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now those totals that you read to Mr. Campbell, did they represent the gross totals or the net totals after the payment of salaries and expenses, and so on? A. They were the gross totals.

Q. Without the deduction of salaries or other expenses, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now I am going to place in your hands, in case you wish to refer to it, prosecution's Exhibit 126 in evidence, and I am going to ask you to compare, if you wish, the monthly gross totals against the monthly gross totals that you have—— [1413]

Mr. Campbell: If you state they are the same figures you supplied, I have no objection.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, what was the grand gross total shown for the 12 months of 1946, according to the addition which you made at the noon hour from the monthly figures?

A. $412,543.80.

Q. Now I am going to show you prosecution's Exhibit 90 in evidence, and that I will identify as the 1946 return of the Menlo Club, and I am going to ask you to look at item 1, where it is described as gross income, and tell us what is the grand gross total of the income of the Menlo Club as reported on that 1946 return? It is the first item at the top of the page. A. $412,543.80.

Q. Now will you read your total from the figures that were given to you again? A $412,543.80.

Q. Looking at that return, will you tell us what that return shows as deductions for salaries and other expenses paid out of that gross of 412 thousand odd dollars?

A. It shows under cost of goods sold, that is scratched out and under No. 2(a) promotion expenses, $3,263.00; under (b) playing cards $22,037.53, making a total of those two lines, $25,300.53, leaving a gross profit of $387,243.27. Now the next line is income from Tiny's Waffle Shop for the year showed deficit of $18,661.42. Under No. 8, rents, which was the rental [1414] of the cigar stand, $1200, $100 a month for rent of the cigar stand in the entrance to the Menlo Club. That left a balance of $369,781.85. Next is salaries, $227,008.52; rent, $7800; repairs, $782.47; taxes, $7,545.68; depreciation, $200.00; other deductions authorized by law, $33,248.61.

Q. Those are all the deductions out of that gross amount, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now Mr. Campbell didn't ask you to state what the net income was. Will you state what the return shows to be the net income after those deductions from that 400 thousand odd dollar figure?

Mr. Campbell: I object to the first statement of counsel and ask that be stricken, as to what I did or did not ask.

The Court: That may be stricken.

A. Line 26, on the ordinary net income, $93,196.57.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, the last figure that you read, $93,196.57, that represented the total net income for the entire partnership in the Menlo Social Club, Tiny's Waffle Shop and the Menlo Bar, is that correct?

A. According to this return, yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: I think that concludes the cross-examination.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Maundrell, I am going to refer to defendant's Exhibit [1415] A-1, the purported promissory note dated September 27, 1946, in amount of 50 thousand dollars to Robert L. Jeffres and signed Elmer F. Remmer, concerning which you testified on cross-examination. Now, Mr. Maundrell, did you type up this note on the date that it bears, September 27, 1946? A. Yes, sir.

Q. There is no doubt in your mind as to that?

A. No, sir.

Q. Now do you recall what time of day these various matters took place?

A. It was in the afternoon, early afternoon.

Q. Do you recall approximately what time?

A. It might have been around noon or around one o'clock.

Q. Had you known Mr. Jeffres prior to that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long a time had you known him?

A. About five years, I believe.

Q. And where had you known him?

A. I met him for the first time at Cal-Neva Lodge.

Q. Was he associated or connected with Cal-Neva Lodge? A. An office manager there.

Q. And was he office manager there at all times that you were employed there? A. No, sir.

Q. Over what period of time was he office manager, do you know? [1416]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. I think he was there two years while I was there.

Q. Do you know on September 27, 1946, what his occupation was?

A. I believe he owned the Tuxedo Bar.

Q. Is that a bar located in what is known as the Ambassador Hotel in San Francisco?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know the nature of his interest, whether employed or partnership?

A. No, I don't know. It was a partnership, I believe.

Q. Do you know how long he had been in there?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know who supplied him with the money with which to purchase the partnership in that bar? A. No, sir.

Q. On this occasion of September 27, 1946, I believe you stated that Mr. Jeffres, Robert L. Jeffres, came into the office carrying a bundle wrapped in a newspaper? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you at any time see what was contained in that bundle? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When was that?

A. That same day in Mr. Remmer's office.

Q. And was that during the time that Mr. Jeffries, Mr. Remmer and yourself were present?

A. Yes, sir. [1417]

Q. Was the bundle opened in your presence at that time?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. No, it had been opened and there was money on Mr. Remmer's desk.

Q. Did you count the money? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know how much money was there?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you observe the denominations of the bills? A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you see the money after that occasion?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you, yourself, have anything to do with the handling of the money? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you make any entries in your books with regard to that money? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know the source of that money, other than the fact that you saw Mr. Jeffers come there with a package on that day? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know, of your own knowledge, whether or not Mr. Jeffers was the owner of that money? A. No, sir.

Q. I believe you stated that you yourself typed up this note, defendant's A-1, is that [1418]correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was this note signed in your presence?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was done with the note?

Q. Gave it to Mr. Jeffers.

Q. Did you see him again on that day?

A. After this period?

Q. After it was given to Mr. Jeffers?

A. No, sir.

Q. When was the next time you saw the note?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. When it was presented to me today in court.

Q. In the meanwhile, I will ask you whether or not you had seen a photostatic copy of the note?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when did you see that?

A. During this last week.

Q. Do you recall when?

A. It might have been last Tuesday or Wednesday—not Tuesday—it might have been before Christmas.

Q. And where did you see that?

A. I think it was Mr. Avakian showed it to me.

Q. Was that the first time you had seen the note, or photostatic copy of it, since the date of September 27, 1946? A. Yes, sir.

Q. During the last week did you see the photostatic copy on [1419] more than one occasion?

A. No, just the once, I believe.

Q. Where was it shown to you?

A. I think I saw it in Mr.—I am not sure whether in Mr. Avakian's room—I believe it was—at the hotel.

Q. Now were you ever present at any time when this money was wrapped? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know when the money was wrapped, if it was? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not it was wrapped that same day? A. No, sir.

Q. You have no knowledge on that subject?

A. No knowledge at all.

Q. Do you have any knowledge to what purpose

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

the money was placed, if it was placed to any purpose, by Mr. Remmer?

A. I have no knowledge at all.

Q. During the period of your employment, either at Cal-Neva or with the Menlo Club, did you see Mr. Jeffers on many occasions? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And how often would you see him?

A. Well, I might see him two or three times a week.

Q. During the entire period?

A. Well, the time of my employment at Cal-Neva Lodge, while [1420] he was there, I saw him every day.

Q. I mean subsequently, when you became associated with the Menlo Club? A. No.

Q. How often; did you see him often?

A. Oh, maybe several times a week, he would drop in to 110 Eddy.

Q. On the occasions when you saw him, will you state whether or not he was in company with Mr. Remmer?

A. No, sir. I have seen him in company with Mr. Remmer, but not every time I would meet him.

Q. Do you recall how large this package was that you saw in Mr. Jeffers' possession?

A. Well, a fairly large size package, I can't say at this time.

Q. Well, your best recollection as to the size?

A. Well, I imagine it was about, it might have been four or five inches thick, I don't remember.

Q. I don't know whether I asked you or not, did you observe the denomination of bills?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Gillen: You did ask him and he said he didn't.

A. I didn't.

Q. Now I believe you stated to Mr. Gillen that this note is drawn up on stationery which you had printed; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you have that stationery printed?

A. I don't remember at this time. [1421]

Q. Do you recall when you had it printed?

A. Yes, on or about maybe September or October of 1945.

Q. 1945? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Isn't it a fact that you had more than one order of this stationery printed?

Mr. Gillen: Of course, may it please the Court, I am going to object to the form of the last question. It is a cross-examination question and not redirect—isn't it a fact—he is cross-examining his own witness throughout this redirect examination.

The Court: Try to avoid leading as much as you can.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, your Honor.

Q. Did you have more than one order of this stationery printed up?

A. I may have, I don't remember at this time.

Q. I ask you did you have an order of this stationery, that is, bearing the heading, "Property Management," printed up subsequent to September 27, 1946? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall when you had that printed up?

A. No, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Is the name Lauber Printing Company familiar to you? A. I don't remember at this time.

Q. Now directing your attention to government's Exhibit 125, [1422] the ledger of the Menlo Club, 1947, Mr. Gillen asked you to turn to certain accounts which he denominated "Capital Accounts," do you recall that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And will you turn to the same accounts. Are you referring to the accounts which have been marked plaintiff's 125A and 125B?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are you referring to any additional accounts there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. To what additional accounts are you referring?

A. Well, there are three pages in this book.

Q. Which are headed in what manner? What is the top heading? A. Partner's Account.

Q. And those were also accounts to which you referred when Mr. Gillen was asking you as to what was shown by the capital account of the various partners?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as assuming something not in evidence. I did not ask him about any other accounts but just an example of one account.

The Court: Let us get the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Gillen: The only account we referred to was Mr. Maundrell's account and Mr. Nelson's account, to merely get [1423] examples of how the accounts were carried through.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

The Court: I take it that the accounts which he is now examining would be one or the other of these two.

Mr. Campbell: I will reframe the question.

Q. When Mr. Gillen was asking you in regard to Mr. Nelson's capital account, are those the pages to which you referred? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Gillen directed your attention on Exhibit 91 to Schedule I of the partner's shares of income and credit, calling your attention, I believe under that schedule to Oscar F. Nelson, 15 per cent, $8,238.06, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you stated, I believe, that that was shown on this capital account in the book?

Mr. Avakian: What is that exhibit?

Mr. Campbell: Amended 1946 return of the Menlo Club.

Mr. Avakian: I think the record will show that we asked about Exhibit 90.

Mr. Campbell: Very well.

Q. I will show you Exhibit 90, which is the original 1946 return, and your attention was directed under Schedule I to Oscar F. Nelson, 15 per cent, $12,524.49? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you stated, I believe, that that same amount was shown in Mr. Nelson's capital account as being his distributive share? [1424]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now let me also call your attention to that exhibit to the balance sheet, Schedule H under the heading "Partners' Capital Accounts, Oscar F. Nelson," under the small letter "c" beginning of taxable year, $1580, end of taxable year, $2340. You observe those figures? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now will you show me where in the books such a capital account is set up reflecting that as being the capital investment by Mr. Nelson as of the beginning and end of the taxable year 1946, in the Menlo Club?

A. That was handled by Mr. Ayton. He would have that in his work sheets.

Q. Do you have anything in your records relative to that? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, with reference to these accounts which are before you, are they in fact capital accounts or drawing accounts?

Mr. Gillen: I submit the records speak for themselves. The exhibit was introduced by the government. This is calling for an interpretation.

The Court: Objection will be overruled. You may answer the question.

A. Capital accounts.

Q. Well then can you state—you stated, I believe that you [1425] supplied the information that went into the making of plaintiff's Exhibit 90—how the capital account of Oscar F. Nelson figure of $2340, was arrived at?

A. That I don't know. That was done by Mr. Ayton, the auditor.

Q. And is there anything in your records which you maintained which would reflect this figure?

A. No, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Now directing your attention again to plaintiff's Exhibit 90, and to the capital account of the partners, I direct your attention that in the balance sheet for partner's capital accounts at the beginning of the year there is listed Masse Ditto, $1580, but no amount at the end of the year and for Wm. C. Fricker at the beginning of the year $1580, but no amount at the end of the year. Do you have anything in your records there that would indicate the manner of the disposal or writing off of the capital account of those two individuals during 1946?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as improper redirect examination. It is immaterial so far as the evidence going in but counsel is reviving his direct examination. Nothing was asked in cross-examination about any partner's accounts except Mr. Maundrell's own account and Mr. Nelson's, merely to demonstrate how the accounts were carried over and the same figures reflected in income tax returns. It is improper redirect and we object on this ground.

The Court: It seems to me it is. [1426]

Mr. Campbell: I might state this, your Honor, I disagree with counsel. The matter of the capital accounts and the manner of their keeping and withdrawals was gone into by Mr. Gillen on cross-examination. It is true that he used two of them as illustrative, as he said. Then he went on and asked this witness if it was not a fact that he, this witness, supplied to Mr. Ayton all of the figures which were used to make up the returns and that subsequently Mr. Ayton would return these partnership returns to him, so that he could secure the signature. Now I think on the basis of that, we are entitled to show that the figures set forth on the returns in certain respects are not reflected in the books. I think the subject was opened up to the extent that we were permitted to do so, and if the Court feels that this is not proper redirect examination, I will ask permission, for this purpose, of reopening the direct examination.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: You may ask those questions on direct.

Mr. Gillen: May I offer this objection. Counsel refers to accounts as purported accounts. These exhibits are exhibits that the prosecution put in as their own exhibits and they relied on them and they are bound by them.

The Court: Well, the word "purported" will be stricken.

Mr. Campbell: I object to counsel's statement.

The Court: The jury have been instructed three or four times, and I will do it again, get back to the [1427] fundamental things. You will decide this case only upon the evidence that you hear from this witness stand, the testimony of the witnesses and the exhibits, and remarks of the Court, remarks of counsel, arguments of counsel, are not evidence, any exchanges between the different counsel and the Court and counsel are not to be regarded by you or to influence you in any respect. Just remember you are to decide the case entirely upon the evidence.

Mr. Gillen: May I say this, your Honor, I do not know what counsel had to complain about. I merely gave the reason for my objection and the Court ruled upon it.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

The Court: Well, I think we will have no trouble about that.

Mr. Gillen: Now we understand Mr. Campbell is being permitted to reopen his direct examination?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Campbell: I will indicate when I am going back to redirect. This is a direct examination question.

(Last question read.)

A. No, I do not.

Q. Do you know how that figure was arrived at?

A. No, sir.

Q. After the year 1945 were either Mr. Ditto or Mr. Fricker connected with the operation of the Club? [1428] A. No, sir.

Q. Now there is shown, is there not, on the books of account that you have there, a credit to their accounts for profits in 1945? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And were those profits, to your knowledge, ever paid to them? A. Not to them.

Q. Had they been paid to them up to the time you terminated your employment?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Mr. Campbell: Now I will resume redirect examination.

Q. Now with regard to Oscar Nelson, Mr. Gillen asked you to read certain entries made in his account, where various sums were drawn payable to the Collector of Internal Revenue and to the State franchise tax commission, and in addition certain sums of two thousand dollars which were shown as withdrawn by Oscar Nelson, do you recall that?

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have that sheet before you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now with relation to the amounts paid to the Collector of Internal Revenue and State Franchise Commission, were they withdrawn in cash or by check? A. Most of those were by check.

Q. And to whom were the checks payable in case of amounts withdrawn [1429] for the purpose of the Collector of Internal Revenue and State Franchise Tax Commission?

A. I believe they were drawn directly to the Collector of Internal Revenue.

Q. And to the State Franchise Tax Commission?

A. I believe so.

Q. Well, do you recall upon what account those were drawn?

A. Yes, sir, on the Crocker National Bank, I believe.

Q. That would be the account that you maintained, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now what is the first check number of checks so drawn? A. 1946, June 13th.

Q. No, the check number, does it show there?

A. Check No. 108.

Q. And the date again? A. June 13th.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. 1946? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I have here the check stubs for the period June 11, 1946, to September 28, 1946, do you find the stub there or do you have additional check books which were used simultaneously?

A. It must have been in another check book.

Q. Do you recall whether these check books which have been shown to you were all the check books which you had? You do not [1430] find the stub there? A. No, sir.

Q. It is, however, I take it, your recollection that that was drawn directly to the collector?

A. I believe it was.

Q. What is the next check drawn to the collector for which you show a number?

A. August 8, 3358.

Q. That was of what date?

A. August 8th.

Q. Of what year? A. 1947.

Q. That period is beyond the period for which we have the check stub. Now in regard to the several withdrawals of two thousand dollars, what do the books indicate as to the manner in which that was paid to Mr. Nelson?

A. It was drawn cash.

Q. Now will you examine the records and state whether or not, from any cash fund there was shown a corresponding charge for the withdrawal of two thousand dollars?

A. No, I have no account of that.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. What was the source of the money, the two thousand dollars? What paid it?

A. It was taken out of the Menlo Club receipts.

Q. Well now what counter-entry was made with respect to paying [1431] him the two thouand dollars?

Q. I do not believe there was any outside the fact it was entered on this book against his account as having withdrawn from those receipts.

Q. Was there any record made of depletion of the cash fund by two thousand dollars?

A. That I do not know.

Q. Did you know at that time, or at any time, how much was in the cash fund? A. No, sir.

Q. You had no record of that?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not Mr. Nelson delivered these sums of two thousand dollars to Mr. Remmer?

Mr. Gillen: We offer the objection, may it please the Court, that it is leading and suggestive. It is improper redirect examination and I assign it as misconduct to ask such question.

Mr. Campbell: Well, I will withdraw the question.

Mr. Gillen: It is purely to prejudice the minds of the jury and throw some suspicious suggestions in their mind.

The Court: Counsel has withdrawn the question.

Q. Do you know what use Mr. Nelson made of that money? A. No, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. In regard to the amounts charged against Mr. Nelson's account, [1432] did you yourself pay him that money? A. No, sir.

Q. What was the source of the information which you placed in your records there?

A. Given to me by Mr. Remmer and Mr. Nelson both.

Q. Now you were asked on cross-examination relative to making of certain tax returns in the name of William Remmer, a nephew, and I think you were shown certain partnership returns of the Menlo Club and you stated that you did not make any income tax returns for that name. Did you make any income tax return in the name of William Remmer?

A. Federal old-age pension returns, I believe.

Q. And to what agencies were those returns made?

A. The federal government and also to the state.

Q. And in what name were they made?

A. I am under the impression it was under William Remmer, doing business as——

Mr. Gillen: I do not think this is proper redirect. We are not interested in Mr. William Remmer, the nephew's personal returns. All I did in that connection, your Honor, was to correct the impression Mr. Maundrell had that the returns were made in the name of William Remmer doing business as the Menlo Club. I showed him prosecution's exhibits, asking him if it corrected the impression

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

in his mind. He was mistaken. It has no part in the issue of this case. [1433]

Mr. Campbell: I think the matter will be straightened out. I will ask to have marked for identification file of what purports to be copies of social security and old-age pension returns and I will ask that this file be given a number for identification.

The Clerk: No. 142.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, we have no objection to the contents of these as evidence, but do offer the objection, first of all it is improper redirect examination; secondly, it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, which does not touch the issues of income tax here. We think it is cluttering up the record with immaterial data. If your Honor will look at it, you will agree with us.

Mr. Campbell: I didn't intend to offer it into evidence but to refresh the witness' recollection.

The Court: There was a question before the Court on which objection was made a little while ago. It seems to me you are going beyond the scope of cross-examination.

Mr. Campbell: No, on direct examination this witness testified that he, in the course of his duties, prepared certain tax returns in relation to the Menlo Club under the name of William Remmer, the nephew, and testified further that William Remmer had nothing to do with the operation of the business. On cross-examination counsel brought out that that did not apply [1434] to the income tax returns and left the matter there, with apparently the inference, and asked the witness if he had not been mistaken in his testimony as to preparing the tax returns. Now I intend to refresh the witness' recollection.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

The Court: You may proceed. Objection will be overruled.

Q. Refreshing your recollection, if it does, I show you plaintiff's Exhibit 142 for identification and ask you to examine it and then state whether or not it refreshes your recollection as to whether or not you prepared certain tax returns for the Menlo Club in the name of William Remmer and if so, the type of return which was prepared under that name?

Mr. Gillen: Now, may it please the Court, that does not help the situation at all. Mr. Maundrell testified that the income tax returns, federal income tax returns he recollected were made out William Remmer doing business as the Menlo Club. I showed him those income tax returns on cross-examination, which were prosecution's exhibits, and which showed that they were not such and I merely corrected that mis-impression he had. He admitted he was mistaken about that. This is something else. This has to do with social security and other things. We do not think it is material. It isn't doing anything to the case we have here except cluttering up the record.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. May I have the question?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

(Question read.) [1435]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you state the type of returns which was prepared under the name of William Remmer, doing business as the Menlo Club?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, also assuming something not in evidence.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. Employers tax return for the federal government and for the State of California and contribution return, which is known as unemployment insurance.

Q. Under what name were they prepared by you?

A. William Remmer, doing business as Tiny's Waffle Shop, Menlo Bar and Menlo Club.

Q. And were those prepared by you in the course of the performance of the duties which you have described? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I am going to direct your attention to government's Exhibit 90—I think you have that before you, have you not?—income tax, partnership return of income of the Menlo Club for 1946—and directing your attention to the schedule set up for the Tiny's Restaurant and bar and for the Menlo Club, and calling your attention to the expense item of the social security tax, amount $980.16, and unemployment tax employer, $2,646.50, on this return and ask you whether or not the employers and contribution and social security tax, as set up in the returns prepared by you under the name of William Remmer, doing business [1436] as Tiny's Waffle Shop, Menlo Bar and Menlo Club, were taken as deductions upon the partnership return of the Menlo Club?

Mr. Gillen: We will stipulate that it was.

Mr. Campbell: Very well, so stipulated.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, you stated on cross-examination that before you began your active employment with the Menlo Club they had a bank account; do you recall that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was that bank account located?

A. Bank of America.

Q. At what branch?

A. Day and Night Branch.

Q. In whose name was that account?

A. I think in the name of Muriel Bourque.

Q. Who was Muriel Bourque?

A. She was a secretary.

Q. For whom?

A. Well, secretary for the Menlo Bar and the Menlo Club and Tiny's Waffle Shop.

Q. Now at the time you commenced that employment, were you given any records in regard to that bank account? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know where those records are?

Mr. Gillen: I don't think this is proper redirect unless counsel is going to ask the Court to permit him to go onto [1437] direct again. We asked nothing about any early bank accounts.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

The Court: I don't recall.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, counsel asked the specific question whether or not there was any specific bank account when he commenced.

Mr. Gillen: No, I challenge counsel to find any reference to any bank account other than the Crocker Bank.

Mr. Campbell: May I ask the witness his recollection?

The Court: No, we will have the record searched.

Mr. Campbell: Very well.

The Court: Is it at the beginning of cross-examination or when?

Mr. Campbell: According to my notes, it will be close to the beginning of the cross-examination, and I will examine it during the recess. Now may I have defendant's Exhibit "X"?

Q. Showing you defendant's Exhibit "X," which is carbon copy of letter dated March 12, 1947, addressed to Pat Mooney, 800 South Center Street, Reno, I believe you testified, in response to Mr. Gillen's question, that you dictated that letter, signed the original and mailed it to Mr. Mooney at that address; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know what that address is on there?

Mr. Gillen: I submit the letter speaks for itself what the address is. [1438]

A. No.

Mr. Campbell: I will reframe my question.

The Court: The answer may go out.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Do you know whether or not that is the residence or office of Mr. Mooney, or was at that time?

A. No, I do not.

Q. I direct your attention to the fact that the address is 800 South Center Street; are you familiar with those premises? A. No, I am not.

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: He already answered he didn't know, Mr. Gillen.

Q. Now directing your attention to the contents of the letter itself, you say: "The total payment is $175,000, of which $100,000 has been paid down. Up until this time no credit of any kind to cover the capital investment has been entered on the books." Was that the fact as of March 12, 1947?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Well, will you examine the records of the Menlo Club which I show you, plaintiff's Exhibit 125—and may I have 126—I also show you plaintiff's Exhibit 126.

A. May I have the question, please?

(Question read.)

A. Well, all the capital investment is entered on the books. [1439]

Q. And was it entered as of March 12, 1947, of the date of that letter?

A. Yes, sir; I would say yes.

Q. I call your attention to plaintiff's No. 140, photostat, of furniture, fixtures and building, under date of April 30, 1945, that purports to set up the capital account in that record, does it not?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when was it, Mr. Maundrell, that you set up that page for which you hold photostatic copy?

Mr. Gillen: The page speaks for itself.

The Court: When it was set up—I don't believe you understood the question, Mr. Gillen.

Mr. Gillen: I believe so. I believe the page will show for itself.

Mr. Campbell: I asked him when he entered this.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. I don't remember when I entered them.

Q. What is your best recollection?

A. I imagine it was done on or about the 8th of August.

Q. What year? A. Of 1945.

Q. Now as I recall your testimony on cross-examination, you stated on August 8th a check for 25 thousand dollars was issued, was cashed and the cash restored to Mr. Remmer; is that [1440] correct, in regard to the Schriber transaction?

A. I didn't see the actual cash restored to Mr. Remmer.

Q. What was done with the cash?

A. It wasn't on August 8th that I received that cash. It was a little bit later because at the time I remember speaking to Mr. Schriber and asking him to hold the check up if he would and let me know

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

when he wanted to cash it and I would have the money in the bank at that time.

Q. I am referring to the transaction whereby you stated on cross-examination that in order to obtain some written record of the first 25 thousand dollars, a 25 thousand dollar check was issued; do you recall that? A. Yes.

Q. What were the circumstances there as you related them, Mr. Maundrell?

A. It seems that previous to my employment, Mr. Remmer had given Mr. Schriber 25 thousand dollars cash.

Q. Yes?

A. I had spoken to both Mr. Schriber and Mr. Remmer about the fact that it would be a whole lot better if we issued a check for the sum, so it would be reflected in the books, the books of the partnership. At the time I gave the check to Mr. Schriber I asked him at that time if he would hold it because I didn't have the 25 thousand dollars at that time. I would have to deposit in the bank to take care of the check and Mr. Schriber told [1441] me, "That is all right, I will let you know when I want to deposit it in the bank," and at that time I made a deposit to cover the check.

Q. And is that check No. 1242 to which you have referred, dated August 8, 1945? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now isn't it a fact, Mr. Maundrell, that you entered that on the records which you noted as additional payment of 25 thousand dollars?

Mr. Gillen: What record is he referring to now?

BLEED THROUGH-- POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Campbell: Exhibit 140.

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered and explained not once, but several times, in direct examination and on cross-examination, and not only by this witness but by two other witnesses.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. No, it was not an additional payment.

Q. Now I ask you to examine this record, the first entry shows April 30, Gene Schriber, a debit of 75 thousand dollars for building and equipment and credit for payment of 25 thousand dollars, leaving a balance due of 50 thousand dollars; is that correct?

Mr. Gillen: What is that, 140?

Mr. Campbell: 140.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, this witness has [1442] already testified that 140 was corrected by rewriting of the page which is now known as 125C, prosecution's Exhibit 125C, and he explained that very fully. There were two corrections made, if your Honor will remember, one correction as to the allocation of purchase price as against lease and furniture and fixtures, after the State of California had made its appraisal, and the other one the correction to show that a check had been given instead of 25 thousand dollars that had been given in cash. In other words, had taken back the 25 thousand dollars cash and replaced it with a check for 25 thousand dollars and that he corrected that in 125C, and 140, which was still retained by Mr. Maundrell, was the incorrect and inaccurate reflection of the transaction and that was corrected by 125C. Now counsel, after that explanation, is trying to use that again. He has already said this is incorrect.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

The Court: The witness may answer, and if he has any explanation he would like to make, he may make it.

A. May I have the question again?

Mr. Campbell: I will reframe the question.

Q. I call your attention simply to the first item here of April 30, showing credit of 25 thousand dollars, further credit of August 8, No. 1242, 25 thousand dollars, next three items September 8, 1945, giving three check numbers with total of 25 thousand dollars, and the final item February 28, 1946, a payment to Gene Schriber of 25 thousand dollars. Now, Mr. Maundrell, [1443] I believe you testified all of the entries there were made by you, were they not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that this record was maintained by you up until February 28, 1946, the date of the last entry, was it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now when was it that you made what has been referred to as the corrected sheet, 125C, in which the two changes to which Mr. Gillen referred, were made?

Mr. Gillen: I am going to offer for the record, may it please the Court, the objection that this has all been asked and answered and they are both prosecution's exhibits. 125C was offered by the prosecution and 140. It has been explained by Mr. Maundrell as to why the pages were rewritten, first of all because an appraisal different from the figure he had down had been given him by Mr. Schriber as Mr. Schriber's valuation, had been made by the State of California and tax was paid on that appraisal, and that is why he changed that to meet the appraisal made.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

The Court: Objection will be overruled. He may answer the question.

A. I don't remember the exact date.

Q. Well, does the fact that the last entry made by you on government's Exhibit 140 is dated February, 1946, does that refresh your recollection as to whether or not plaintiff's 125C [1444] was made subsequent to some date in February of 1946?

A. Yes, it could have been.

Q. You say it could have been. Were you keeping two records simultaneously? A. No, sir.

Q. What is your best recollection?

A. It was made after that.

Q. Now you stated, I believe, in response to Mr. Gillen's question, that Mr. Ezralow was the first agent who called upon you; is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you recall when he first made his appearance? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you recall that his investigation was commenced prior to your writing up 125C?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive and not proper redirect examination.

The Court: It may be leading.

Mr. Campbell: Well, I will reframe the question.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Do you recall when Mr. Ezralow started his investigation with relation to the time that 125C, the corrected ledger sheet, was set up?

A. No, I do not.

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as calling for the witness' opinion and conclusion. [1445]

The Court: It is already answered. The answer may stand.

Q. Do you recall ever having seen that corrected sheet prior to your appearance here?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. When did you see it?

A. I saw it in the office.

Q. When?

A. I don't know when, but sometime during my employment there.

Q. What is your best recollection?

Mr. Gillen: What is this referring to now?

Mr. Campbell: 125C.

Mr. Gillen Well, your Honor——

The Court: There is nothing before the Court.

Mr. Gillen: Well, I am going to offer an objection to this. It is a very strange examination. He puts in records through witnesses and then tries to destroy his own records. It is not proper redirect examination.

Mr. Campbell: I ask the remark be stricken.

The Court: There is nothing before the Court. The remark will be stricken from the record.

Q. In response to counsel's question you stated

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

about two months after you were there the State tax men came in; is that correct?

A. No, it was later than that. [1446]

Q. Do you recall when they came in?

A. No, I don't. I don't recall exactly the date they came in.

Q. As I recall your testimony, you said it was about two months after——

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive and cross-examining his own witness.

Mr. Campbell: I am trying to get his testimony straightened out.

Mr. Gillen: I know what he is trying to do and it is not permissible.

The Court: Try to avoid leading questions.

Q. What is your present recollection as to how soon it was after you commenced your employment that the State sales tax men, as you call them, came in there? A. Sometime in '45.

Q. In 1945. Can you state when it was in relation to the time when the 1945 partnership return of the Menlo Club was filed, before or after?

A. It might have been after. I don't quite remember now, but it could have been in 1945.

Q. When was it in relation to the time the '46 partnership return of the Menlo Club was filed?

A. It was way before that time.

Q. Now calling your attention to 125C, the corrected ledger sheet, your attention was directed to the change in capital [1447] set-up of the acquisition of the lease, equipment and inventory; do you recall that? A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. So that where on plaintiff's Exhibit 140 it had been divided 100 thousand dollars as cost of lease and 75 thousand dollars as cost of equipment and inventory, the new figures utilized were some 31 thousand odd dollars for inventory and equipment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the balance as being the cost of the lease. Now do you recall upon what basis, which of those two bases, the 1946 return was filed?

Mr. Gillen: That return would be the best evidence.

Mr. Campbell: Yes I will show it to him.

Q. Calling your attention to Exhibit 90, partnership return of the Menlo Club. It might take a few minutes to examine this. May I suggest a recess?

(Jury and alternate jurors admonished and recess taken at 2:30.)

2:40 P.M.

MR. MAUNDRELL

resumes the witness stand on further

By Mr. Campbell:

(Last question read.)

Q. I am referring to bases set forth in 140 of 100 thousand [1448] dollars for the lease and 75 thousand dollars for the inventory or basis as set forth in 125C of 31 thousand dollars for the inventory and equipment and the balance for the lease.

A. Well, on this return it was on 125C. It was not on that, it was on the photostat; it was on the other.

Q. Now you were examining 91, which is the amended return—90, which is the original return—I apparently handed you the wrong exhibit. I beg your pardon. Will you examine that?

A. Well, the 1946 was made out previous to 125C.

Q. And the amended return was made out after 125C, is that correct, or used the same basis?

A. Well, has the same basis as 125C, yes.

Q. Calling your attention to the amended return and to the statement attached, which you testified in response to Mr. Gillen's question was drawn up by Mr. Haughey, Mr. Remmer's attorney, with your assistance, do you recall that? That is on the amended 1946 return, which is plaintiff's 91, and the statement, the long written statement which is made a part of that return?

Mr. Gillen: That wasn't drawn up with the assistance of Mr. Haughey and I never said so. My question was, wasn't it a fact that Mr. Maundrell had prepared——

Mr. Campbell: I will reframe the question.

Q. Who actually wrote that statement?

A. I actually wrote it. [1449]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Did you have any assistance in writing it?

A. Previous to writing it, I got all my information from Mr. Mooney.

Q. And you wrote that yourself?

A. Yes, I wrote it with the assistance of Mr. Ayton. I asked Mr. Ayton what he suggested and I wrote it.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that stated here the term of the lease is five years.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now what was the term of the lease?

A. Well, at that time I thought the term of the lease was five years, but they had an option for five additional years.

Q. Had you examined the lease at that time?

A. No, I hadn't seen the lease.

Q. And when you did examine it, you found it to be for ten years?

A. Well, I didn't find that until later. I was under the impression all the time it was a five-year lease with option for 5 years.

Q. Now directing your attention to government's Exhibit 89, return of 1945, which I believe you testified, in response to counsel's question, that you gathered the figures and gave to Mr. Ayton to prepare the return and then he returned it to you; is that correct?

A. The figures for Tiny's Waffle Shop were prepared by Mr. Shaw. [1450]

Q. Yes.

A. Those for Tiny's Waffle Shop and Bar.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. Yes.

A. Those figures I turned over to Mr. Ayton.

Q. How about the Menlo Club?

A. The Menlo Club, I gave Mr. Ayton the pay roll and utilities and rent and all the bills that I received from the Menlo Club.

Q. I call your attention to Item 9, promotion expense, $286,837.75. What was the source of that figure?

Mr. Gillen: I was going to suggest to your Honor that this sounds to me like reopening direct examination rather than redirect. I think it is improper redirect and I will object to it on that ground.

Mr. Campbell: Counsel inquired to the source of the figures, also brought out this man had collected figures and turned them over to Mr. Ayton or to the other accountant for preparation of return.

Mr. Gillen: I withdraw my objection.

A. The Menlo Club in 1945, as I stated before, all the poker sheets had been lost, and taking the matter up with Mr. Ayton, he had been the auditor for the Menlo Club the previous years, he finally came to the conclusion that there was only one thing to do and that was to submit to the government the returns for 8 months during the previous year and make the same return to the government for 1945. [1451]

Q. Is that the source of this promotional expense?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, sir. Mr. Ayton handled all income tax returns.

Q. From your knowledge of the operation of the Menlo Club, was any such sum spent during 1945 for promotion?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as improper redirect examination.

The Court: Objection overruled. He may answer the question.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. There was? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in what manner was it spent?

A. The practice that was used previously by Mr. Ayton and the people who owned the Menlo Club, they called promotion the difference between the money that was given to players and the balance that was finally concluded after the returns were made. In other words, a man was staked to $100 to play a game and he brought back $80, there would have been a loss, and that is where those promotion expenses came in.

Q. Are you referring to the house men, that is, employees who were given money to sit in a game?

Mr. Gillen: This was answered in direct examination. He said some men were employees and some not, and some men required seven persons to play before they would enter a game.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question. [1452]

A. I am referring to any house man that happened to play and the outside men who also played.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. You say outside men, they had no connection with the set-up? A. That's right.

Q. Was there some term used to apply to those individuals?

Mr. Gillen: That is objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, what term is used. Not proper redirect.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. I believe you stated that similar agreements, in response to Mr. Gillen's question, similar partnership agreements to that which you produced here as between yourself and Mr. Remmer, relating to that 10 per cent interest, were also entered into by the other individuals?

A. There was an agreement given to every one of the partners.

Q. And will you state, were those all written agreements, do you know? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You saw them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were they all drawn at one time, if you know? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now will you state whether or not more than one agreement was given to any of the individuals?

Mr. Gillen: Do you mean more than one copy of the agreement? [1453]

Mr. Campbell: No, separate, different agreements.

A. I don't know.

Mr. Gillen: We will stipulate in one instance——

The Court: The witness said he didn't know.

Q. Now directing your attention to the fact there has been shown in the returns for 1945 and 1946 of the Menlo Club, the interest of Mr. Nelson, according to the returns, an increase from 10 per cent to 15 per cent, the interest of Mr. Remmer an increase from 40 to 55 per cent, the interests of Mr. Ditto and Mr. Fricker of 10 per cent, were new agreements drawn with respect to those changing interests?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Avakian: Objected to as contrary to the evidence because the witness testified the written agreements were in November, 1946, which was after the date these other partners dropped out. The evidence shows that.

(Question read.)

The Court: Is that contrary to the evidence introduced here?

Mr. Campbell: The two contracts which have been introduced here, those of this gentleman and Mr. Kyne, are dated in 1946, but are retroactive to 1945, April or May of 1945. Now the returns of the Menlo Club in 1945 purport to show interests in Remmer of 40 per cent, Kyne of 10 per cent, and so on down the line, Ditto and Fricker and Nelson for 10 per cent each. In 1946 return filed for that year showed the partnership [1454] interest to be Remmer 55 per cent, Kyne 15 per cent, Nelson 15 per cent, an increase of 5 per cent.

The Court: What is the objection?

Mr. Avakian: The testimony has been that these written agreements were drawn in November

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

of 1946, Mr. Maundrell testified they were all drawn at the same time, and November, 1946, is after the time that Mr. Fricker and Mr. Ditto dropped out.

The Court: Is it after the time the 1946 return was filed?

Mr. Avakian: It is after the time 1945 was filed.

The Court: Is it after the time the 1946 return was filed?

Mr. Avakian: No, prior to the time 1946 was returned.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Avakian: I would like to explain further. I do not think your Honor got my point.

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Avakian: The point is, this is the purpose of the question, first, find out whether there were new partnership agreements drawn.

The Court: I do not think any of us now know what the question is.

Mr. Campbell: I will have to reframe the question.

Q. You were asked, Mr. Maundrell, if partnership agreements were drawn as to all partners. Directing your attention to the [1455] 1945 return, which lists the partners as Remmer 40 per cent, Kyne 15 per cent, Ditto 10 per cent, Nelson 10 per cent, Maundrell 10 per cent, Fricker 10 per cent and Turner 5 per cent, now were partnership agreements drawn as to all those individuals?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that included Ditto and Fricker?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And were they likewise drawn in November of 1946? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When had they terminated their relationship with the Menlo Club? A. At the end of '45.

Q. Now the 1945 return shows Oscar Nelson as having a 10 per cent interest. Was an agreement drawn with Mr. Nelson as to that 10 per cent interest? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now the 1946 return shows that he had a 15 per cent interest. Was a new agreement drawn?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. After the end of 1945 were any further amounts accrued in the account set up on the records for Mr. Fricker and Mr. Ditto?

A. No, sir.

Q. Now you stated, I believe, that with respect to the bank roll at the Menlo Club, that a portion of that was made up of [1456] markers or IOUs, as shown at the right-hand lower corner of the page, poker sheets; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever yourself verify the amount of cash on hand in the bank roll?

Mr. Gillen: That has been asked and answered at least seven times.

The Court: That has already been answered.

Mr. Campbell: Except on cross-examination, your Honor, it was brought out for the first time the assertion of the witness——

The Court: You may answer the question.

Mr. Gillen: Now, may it please the Court, that is not the truth. Mr. Kyne testified that markers were considered the same as cash and Mr. Kyne was the government's witness.

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Campbell: I am referring to this witness' testimony.

The Court: Objection is overruled. Answer the question.

A. May I have the question?

(Question read.)

A. No, sir.

Mr. Campbell: At this time I am going to ask to have marked for identification three sheets bearing date January 13, 1946, headed "Poker Sheets," as one exhibit.

The Clerk: 143.

Q. From what source, Mr. Maundrell, did you receive your [1457] information that markers were counted as part of the cash on hand or bank roll?

A. Right at the beginning. Mr. Fricker was the man that acquainted me with the whole operation of the club.

Q. Did you at any time have any personal observation with regard to the amount of cash that was actually there or the treatment of the markers as a part of or as not a part of the bank roll?

A. I did not.

Q. I am going to call your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 143 for identification and ask you if you recognize those sheets?

A. They are similar to the poker sheets we used.

Q. Now will you compare the entries thereon

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

with the entries made by you in your records from the poker sheets for that day, for the purpose of ascertaining if the employees listed were employees on that date and if the amounts set forth on those poker sheets were utilized by you in keeping the books and records of the Menlo Club?

Mr. Avakian: We object to the use of these documents in any manner unless they are first received in evidence, and we object further to the prosecution's use of them at this time on the usual grounds that we have made to all of these records, which were taken by the government upon the assurance that they would return them but which was not kept.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object to that statement, [1458] if the Court please.

The Court: That will be stricken from the record.

Mr. Avakian: The evidence from this witness shows——

The Court (Interceding): There is no evidence to that effect.

Mr. Avakian: Yes, there is. This witness and Mr. Kyne both testified that records were turned over to the agents——

The Court (Interceding): The remark will be stricken.

Mr. Avakian: I believe I am correct in my statement.

The Court: You have heard my ruling.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Avagian: Yes, I heard your ruling, naturally.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Avakian: But I wish to have an objection to the use of these.

The Court: The usual objection made before?

Mr. Avakian: Yes, and an additional objection.

The Court: All right.

Mr. Avakian: No proper foundation has been laid for the use of these sheets because there is no showing of the authenticity of them. If your Honor will look at the sheets, there is nothing on the sheets to show to what business they related. This witness has testified simply they are similar. The record will show that these sheets were produced not by the witness, but rather by the government from their own files and we object to the use of any such document unless and until the government [1459] produces witnesses who obtained these documents to show how and where they obtained and to testify that these are the very ones they did obtain, because in the absence of that we have no way of knowing whether these are the actual sheets or copies.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. Do you still have the question in mind?

(Question read.)

A. As to the amounts of the records that were kept by me, this is a sheet of 11-3-46, No. 1 shows the tables took in $421.50, which is correct.

Q. The same on both records which you have before you?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Gillen: I object——

Mr. Campbell: That may go out.

The Court: I do not think the contents of this should be allowed to go in the record. It will be stricken.

Q. Just make a comparison to yourself without stating, so you can answer the main question yes or not.

(Question read.)

Mr. Gillen: Of course, your Honor, that certainly is by indirection and subterfuge getting before the jury the contents of a document before it is introduced.

The Court: I think it is a means of laying the foundation.

Mr. Gillen: I do not think he can do it that way unless this gentleman has some knowledge of those being authentic [1460] sheets.

The Court: I think he could.

Mr. Gillen: Well, if you want to let it go in, what is in the document.

The Court: Oh, I don't want anything like that. The question has two departments. Break that question down, first as to employees, then as to figures.

Mr. Gillen: Of course, you see there is nothing to indicate whether any names are employees, or if employees, of what place. What we are complaining about, this man has to conclude a lot of things before he can answer that.

The Court: We will see what happens.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. I am handing you Exhibit 124A, which has previously been identified as the payroll record of the Menlo Club, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, I ask you to examine plaintiff's Exhibit 143 for identification and for the purpose of ascertaining if the persons set forth on 143 for identification as employees were on the date shown on 143 for identification employees of the Menlo Club and receiving the amounts as set forth on 143 for identification?

Mr. Gillen: We ask again for your Honor to look at 143 and your Honor will see there is nothing there that satisfies anybody in showing him as an employee. That is an assumption. [1461]

The Court: I don't understand the question in that light. You may proceed.

A. I recognize——

The Court (Interceding): Don't state the contents. Just answer the question. I wish that the question could be broken down in two parts, first as to the persons and secondly as to the figures, then we could get answers yes or no.

Q. I will ask you first if the figures shown on 143 for identification, under the headings, "Amount Loaned," "Return" and "Amount," are the same figures that were used by you in the records of the Menlo Club, Exhibit 126, for the date of January 13, 1946?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to, the document speaks for itself, is the best evidence of what it contains,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

and also it is a leading question on the contents of a document not yet admitted in evidence.

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the question. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, do you recognize whether or not on Exhibit 143 for identification, whether there appear to be the names of employees of the Menlo Club and if so, if the records heretofore introduced in evidence as pay roll records of the Menlo Club, being government's Exhibit 124A, indicate that those persons were [1462] employed upon that date?

Mr. Gillen: I am going to offer the objection——

The Court: Objection to that question will be sustained.

Q. Will you examine Exhibit 124A and state whether or not on January 13, 1946, there was employed a man by the name of Byrne, and if so, what was his rate of compensation?

The Court: What exhibit are you referring to? Did you ask this witness to examine Exhibit 143?

Mr. Campbell: I asked him to examine this, yes, sir, and to also examine a record which is here in evidence and see if the same information is contained on both this and the record which he took and which he previously testified he obtained from the poker sheets which are here in evidence, as to certain dates.

The Court: I wonder if we couldn't have the question framed to show just names without showing any implication as to whether they are employees or not?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Gillen: There is a very simple way of laying foundation——

The Court (Interceding): We don't need any further remarks.

Mr. Gillen: I would like your Honor to listen to the grounds of my objection.

The Court: I don't want to listen to you.

Q. Let me ask you this—referring to 143 for identification [1463] and to the names appearing in the upper right-hand corner, and using, if necessary, Exhibit 124A, pay roll record, which is in evidence, to refresh your recollection, if necessary, I will ask you whether or not the individuals set forth there on this exhibit for identification were employees of the Menlo Club on that date?

Mr. Gillen: I am going to offer an objection, may it please the Court, if your Honor will look at 143 and see there are last names used. There happens in this very courtroom to be two men named Gillen, a man I never met before, the crier, and here is a bunch of last names and nicknames and how can this man say they are the same names as appeared as employees? I object to the question as leading and suggestive, calling for opinion and conclusion of the witness, getting before the jury matters in a document not admitted by your Honor into evidence, improper redirect examination, incompetent, irelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the questions.

A. Yes, I recognize some of these names.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Q. As being employees on that date?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you state whether or not this is the type of sheet from which you made up the books and records of the Menlo Club as to income and as to wages? [1464]

Mr. Gillen: What is he referring to now, this type of sheet?

Mr. Campbell: 143 for identification.

Mr. Gillen: I object as having been asked and answered. He said they were similar to the poker sheets.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. The wages were not taken off that sheet. The wages were taken off Exhibit 124A.

Q. From what source was 142A written up?

A. It was written by the secretary of the Menlo Club.

Q. And do you know from what source she obtained those figures?

A. She received those from the cashiers every day.

Q. I believe you previously stated the poker sheets were kept by the cashiers?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I offer this in evidence as Exhibit 143.

Mr. Gillen: To which we object, no proper foundation laid and we haven't any opportunity to examine the person who obtained those sheets. They were obtained undoubtedly by some government agent who is probably present here in court.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

The Court: Objection overruled. The exhibit may be admitted in evidence.

Q. Calling your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 143, bank roll of ten thousand dollars, did you observe that figure? A. Yes, sir. [1465]

Q. I call your attention, what are these items in the lower right-hand corner, if you know?

A. Markers.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that the total amount of markers as shown thereon is $10,400. I further call your attention to, under the advances, as I believe you have identified them, there is amount of $480. Do you observe those figures?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, do those figures refresh your recollection as to whether or not the markers were considered or taken as part of the bank roll?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: I am going to offer the objection counsel is cross-examining his own witness and it is an attempt to impeach, through this prosecution witness, Mr. Kyne, who related the meaning of markers and names of the markers and differences in figures on the poker sheets, namely, that it might mean a man had picked up a marker and that might have changed the figure on the markers, and that they were treated as cash and treated as part of the general bank roll.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

The Court: Objection will be overruled. He may answer the question.

Q. That is your recollection?

A. Yes, sir. [1466]

Q. Will you state your recollection as to whether they were a part of the bank roll?

A. I have always been under the impression they were.

Q. That day then there would be a minus bank roll, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir. That is in the morning only.

Q. That is at the start of the day's business?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Before any profits were realized for that day?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Avakian: Now, your Honor, may we have an opportunity to make an objection to that question?

The Court: No, we will let it stand.

Mr. Avakian: We move to strike the answer.

The Court: Motion denied.

Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, at the time that Mr. Nelson increased his interest from 10 to 15 per cent and Mr. Remmer increased his interest from 40 to 55 per cent, was any amount paid by both or either of them, if you know, for that increased percentage?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as not proper redirect examination.

The Court: I think that objection is good.

Mr. Gillen: Nothing was gone into——

The Court: I think that objection is good, not proper [1467] redirect.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

Mr. Campbell: Then for the purpose of that question, I ask permission to ask on direct examination.

Mr. Gillen: May I respectfully suggest counsel should not be given seven or eight to reopen. He should conduct his direct and be through with it and I respectfully submit we object to his being accorded seven or eight opportunities.

The Court: He may ask the question on direct examination.

Direct Examination

(Last question read.)

A. Not to my knowledge.

Mr. Campbell: That's all. You may cross-examine.

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Maundrell, did you ever see an agreement, wherein Mr. Ditto acknowledged—the agreement was signed by Mr. Ditto and Mr. Remmer—Mr. Ditto acknowledged that he received from his interest at the time he withdrew from the partnership of the Menlo Club 14 thousand odd dollars?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not the best evidence.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, with regard to Mr. Nelson's withdrawals of two thousand dollars at various times, not including the money that he withdrew to pay income tax, either to the federal government [1468] or to the State of California, there was an entry made deducting his withdrawal from his credit there in your book, was there not, in the ledger?

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that in effect was his marker or IOU that was deducted from whatever credit he had on the books, isn't that true?

Mr. Campbell: I object to the question in that form.

The Court: He may answer the question.

Q. Isn't that so?

A. Well, that was a direct payment to Mr. Nelson against his capital account.

Q. And that was the record of Mr. Nelson's credits or his debits, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, with regard to Mr. William Remmer, the nephew of Mr. Elmer Remmer, isn't it a fact that Mr. Elmer Remmer originally planned on placing his nephew, William Remmer, in charge of the Menlo Bar and Tiny's Waffle Shop?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for his conclusion as to what Mr. Remmer may or may not have had in mind.

The Court: He may answer if he knows.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was the explanation that you were attempting to make the other day to Mr. Campbell, was it not, in your direct examination? [1469]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

A. Well, I started in and was stopped.

Q. Now it is true, is it not, that in contemplation of that Mr. William Remmer's name was put up as the employer's name in the various security, withholding and contribution taxes, isn't that so?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. It is within your knowledge, is it not, and a fact, that Mr. William Remmer decided not to quit his place of employment where he was and enter into this enterprise, isn't that true?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent.

Mr. Gillen: I am asking him if it isn't a fact. If he doesn't know, he can answer he doesn't know.

The Court: Objection will be sustained.

Q. Well, do you know whether or not Mr. William Remmer remained at his place of employment and did not go into the business?

A. He did not go into the business. He stayed on the job where he was working.

Q. Now it is true, is it not, that as a result of having originally put his name as employer the first year, you had to make the return in his name as employer, isn't that so?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for a legal conclusion.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. The employer's number was requested in his form and as long [1470] as the number had been issued to us in his name, I left his name right on the return.

Q. However, Mr. William Remmer never appeared as a partner or an employer or owner in any of the income tax returns that have been introduced here by the prosecution, isn't that true?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. All the partners were set forth in those tax returns and Mr. William Remmer was not mentioned in those tax returns, isn't that true?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now referring again to the prosecution's Exhibits 140 and 125C, the fact is, isn't it, Mr. Maundrell, that after the State of California sales tax man had made an appraisal of the furniture and fixtures and merchandise of the Menlo units and had placed their appraisal figure, that that was your reason for making one correction from the original sheet, Exhibit 140, to the sheet 125C, isn't that true? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And also the other correction that we went into this morning, with regard to the amount of money paid for the Menlo Club originally a cash payment, which was later substituted by a check payment, was the other correction, isn't that true?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to—that has been asked and answered several times.

The Court: Objection overruled. [1471]

Q. Isn't that true? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the initial payment for that 25 thousand dollars and the check was the one single 25 thousand dollar payment, isn't that true?

A. Right.

Q. And it was not two payments of 25 thousand

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold H. Maundrell.)

dollars apiece, one by cash and one by check, isn't that true?

A. Well, they were made; one was withdrawn.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. In response to counsel's questions, you said you had seen some kind of agreement between Mr. Remmer and Mr. Ditto? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you see that? A. Last night.

Q. Where did you see that?

A. Mr. Gillen's apartment.

Q. Had you ever seen it prior to that time?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever have any knowledge with reference to it prior to that time? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know, of your own knowledge, whether any 14 thousand dollars was paid to Mr. Ditto? [1472] A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever talk to Mr. Ditto about any such agreement? A. No, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I think that is all.

The Court: Any further questions?

Mr. Gillen: That's all.

The Court: Any reason why this witness can not be permanently excused at this time?

Mr. Campbell: Subject to recall if necessary.

The Court: You are satisfied to have him return to his home?

Mr. Campbell: Yes.

Mr. Gillen: We are satisfied.

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Will you state your full name?

A. William J. Graham.

Q. Where do you reside?

A. 524 California Avenue, Reno.

Q. What is your business or occupation?

A. Hotel business and club business.

Q. In Reno, Nevada? A. In Reno, yes.

Q. Are you acquainted with the defendant in this case, Elmer Remmer? A. Very well.

Q. How long have you known Mr. Remmer?

A. Since 1912.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William J. Graham.)

Q. Have you at any time been associated with Mr. Remmer in any business enterprise?

A. Yes, Cal-Neva Lodge.

Q. When did you first become associated with him in connection with Cal-Neva Lodge? [1474]

A. '24—'26.

Q. And for the purpose of the record, Cal-Neva Lodge is located at the State line on California and Nevada at Lake Tahoe, is that correct?

A. That is right.

Q. And as I understand a small portion of the building is on the California side and the balance is on the Nevada side? A. That's right.

Q. What year was it, did you say, you became associated in that enterprise?

A. I think around '24. I believe it was '24 or '26, we bought it.

Q. When you say we bought it, to whom are you referring?

A. Well, when we first bought it, it was the old Cal-Neva. I forget the man's name, from Australia. He built it and I think it was around '26.

Q. I was asking you when you say "we bought," to whom do you refer?

A. Myself and Mr. McKay and Mr. Hall and we went to the bank and borrowed the money from the bank and put Mr. Remmer in as equal partner.

Q. As I understand your answer, you and Mr. Hall and Mr. McKay went to the bank and borrowed the money and you say you put it in Mr. Remmer as equal partner? A. Yes. [1475]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William J. Graham.)

Q. Did Mr. Remmer contribute any money or capital toward the acquisition of the club?

A. No, sir.

Q. Was all of the money that was utilized for that purpose borrowed from the bank?

A. Yes. It was paid off to the bank, all the indebtedness.

Q. Was the business subsequently incorporated under a corporation known as the Cal-Neva, Inc.?

A. That's right.

Q. And at this time do you recall approximately when it was that the business was incorporated?

A. No, right off I couldn't tell you. I would have to look at the records. Mr. Woodburn has those records.

Q. Was it in 1930 as you recall?

A. I think it was incorporated before that.

Q. Incorporated shortly after you acquired it?

A. I think so, yes.

Q. How were shares issued, if you recall, that is to say, were they in equal amounts as among four individuals?

A. Yes. I think the stock was kept in Mr. Woodburn's office.

Q. As to shares issued of the corporation, were they issued in the name of each of the four individuals equally? A. Yes, that's right.

Q. Is Mr. Hall still alive?

A. No, Mr. Hall died. [1476]

Q. Do you recall approximately when Mr. Hall died? A. I can't say the year.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William J. Graham.)

Q. Well, within a year or two do you recall?

A. Mr. Hall is dead about ten years.

Q. Now at the time of Mr. Hall's death, what, if anything, was done in relation to the stock standing in his name?

A. Well, we bought his stock from his wife.

Q. When you say "we"?

A. The corporation bought it.

Q. That is Cal-Neva, Inc., purchased the stock from his wife, is that correct?

A. Yes, that's right.

Q. Now I will ask you whether or not you and Mr. McKay at some subsequent time sold your stock in Cal-Neva, Inc.?

A. At any time—did you say up until when?

Q. Well, at any time? A. Sold it in 1946.

Q. To whom did you and Mr. McKay sell your stock? A. Sold to Mr. Remmer.

Q. So that I take it all the stock was then in Mr. Remmer's name, is that correct?

A. He didn't have the stock. The stock was in Mr. Woodburn's office. They hold the stock until it was paid and we still have the stock.

Q. Mr. Woodburn held it as escrow? [1477]

A. Still has it as escrow until the place is paid off.

Q. All outstanding stock was then sold to Mr. Remmer through this escrow, is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. During the time and up until the time that you and Mr. McKay sold your interest in Cal-Neva,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William J. Graham.)

through this escrow to Mr. Remmer, who was in active management of Cal-Neva Lodge?

A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. Did you or Mr. McKay take any active part in the management?

A. Yes, we used to go up and stay around in the summer time, but Mr. Remmer ran the business all the time.

Q. Now it is a fact, is it not, Mr. Graham, that you and Mr. McKay were away from the State for a period of time prior to the sale of the stock?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what period of time was that?

A. 1939 to 1945.

Q. During that period of time did you or Mr. McKay take any part whatsoever in the management of Cal-Neva?

A. No. We were away, we couldn't take part in it.

Q. And then it was after your return that you sold this stock? A. Yes.

Q. I am going to have this document which is headed "Memorandum and Receipt" marked for identification as 144 for identification. I show you government's Exhibit 144 for identification and ask [1478] you if you recognize the three signatures appended thereto? A. Yes.

Q. Whose signatures are they?

A. One is mine, one is Mr. McKay's and one Mr. Remmer's.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William J. Graham.)

Q. And I will ask you whether or not this document had to do with the sale of yours and Mr. McKay's stock to Mr. Remmer?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to, the document speaks for itself.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Campbell: I was laying the foundation. I will offer it in evidence, 144.

Mr. Gillen: I think, may it please the Court, we will have to offer the objection that there is no foundation laid to show that this document was ever delivered to the parties involved and I think that foundation should be laid.

Mr. Campbell: The signatures of the three parties.

The Court: Can you go a little farther with it, Mr. Campbell?

Mr. Campbell: Well, I had asked this question, to which the objection was sustained.

The Court: Can you meet this suggestion of counsel?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, your Honor.

Q. Were you present at the time the three signatures were affixed here? A. Yes.

Q. And you you recall where this document was signed? [1479]

A. In Mr. Thatcher's office, Mr. Thatcher's room.

Q. You have referred to an escrow being held in Mr. Woodburn's office with relation to the sale of stock to Mr. Remmer; was this the document which was drawn in connection with that escrow?

Mr. Gillen: Same objection—what happened to the document when it was prepared——

The Court: Objection overruled.

(Question read.)

Mr. Gillen: We offer the same objection, that the document itself is the best evidence of what it was.

(Question read.)

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. The stock and receipt was kept and they still have it.

Q. Was it drawn in connection with the sale of the stock?

A. Yes, it was drawn for the sale of the place.

Mr. Campbell: I offer it in evidence.

A. They still have it.

Mr. Gillen: Our objection is still no foundation laid to show what was done with the document. Like a deed, a deed can be signed—whether it is ever delivered or not is another matter.

The Court: Objection overruled. The exhibit will be admitted in evidence, 144 admitted.

Mr. Campbell: At this time I wish to read this document:

there in fact paid to you and Mr. McKay the sum of $466,666.66? [1481] A. No, sir.

Q. Was any money at all paid to you on that occasion or up to that time in connection with the sale of that stock? A. No.

Q. Did you subsequently and during the year 1946 receive any sums of money on account of the sale of that stock?

A. Yes, the first payment was in September, we received 100 thousand dollars, fifty for myself and fifty for Mr. McKay. That was the first payment.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to ask a photostatic copies of two checks be given 145 for identification.

Q. Do you recall the date in September that you received those payments, Mr. Graham?

A. September 24th it says here. I think it was around September 24th.

Q. Now, during the year 1946 did you or Mr. McKay receive any further payments in connection with the sale of that stock?

A. No, that was all that year. We received——

Q. No, we must confine it to that year.

A. Oh.

Mr. Gillen: The defense will stipulate that this photostat may go in evidence.

The Court: Will you accept the stipulation?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, I accept.

The Court: Exhibit 145 will be admitted in evidence. [1482]

Q. Mr. Graham, I show you government's Exhibit 145, photostat of two checks, both dated September 24, 1946, each in amount of 50 thousand dollars, one payable to William C. Graham and one to James C. McKay, bearing signature Cal-Neva Lodge by James B. Jeffers, and bearing respective endorsements William J. Graham and James C. McKay, and ask you if those were checks received by you in respect to the 100 thousand dollars paid to yourself and Mr. McKay in September, 1946? A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. Calling your attention again to plaintiff's Exhibit 144, "Memorandum and Receipt," wherein it is alleged the sum of $466,666.66, does that represent the sale price of yours and Mr. McKay's stock to Mr. Remmer? A. Yes.

Q. And after the payment of the 100 thousand dollars, what amount remained due as of December 31, 1946 from Mr. Remmer to you and Mr. McKay?

A. Just take 100 thousand off and that is what remained due us.

Q. That would be $366,666.66, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Calling your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 145, the two checks bearing the signature of James B. Jeffers, are you acquainted with James B. Jeffers? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know what his connection, if any, was with Cal-Neva [1483] Lodge at the time these checks were issued?

A. Well, he was supposed to be manager around there with Mr. Remmer, bookkeeper or manager.

(Testimony of William J. Graham.)

Q. Had he been there, if you know, prior to the time you sold out to Mr. Remmer?

A. Yes, he worked there four years.

Q. Now during the period of time that you and Mr. McKay remained interested in Cal-Neva Lodge, were any profits or dividends distributed?

A. Just one dividend. That was in '34, I think.

Q. In 1934? A. Yes.

Q. And aside from that year were any profits distributed?

A. If we made anything in the place we built more cabins and put it in the property.

Q. But so far as distribution of profits to the partners? A. Yes, that's right.

Q. I believe you stated during that period of time the bank loan was paid off, was it not?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. And improvements made on the property?

A. That's right.

Q. Now, during the period of time that you were there and aside from the year 1934, when a dividend was distributed, was any salary or compensation paid to Mr. Remmer? [1484]

A. No.

Q. Incidentally, what period of the year was the Cal-Neva Lodge open during the period that you and Mr. McKay were interested in it?

A. End of June—the 15th of June until September; sometimes the 30th of June.

Q. Did you at any time, up to and including the period of December, 1946, have any other business interests with Mr. Remmer? A. No.

Q. Are you acquainted with former revenue agent A. V. Barcy? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall an occasion upon which Mr. Brady made examination of Cal-Neva, Inc., as well as some other unrelated enterprises in which you were interested? A. Yes, I do.

Q. Do you recall in what year that was?

A. I can't tell you the year off-hand.

Q. Well, do you recall whether or not that was prior to your leaving the State for the period of time you have referred to?

A. Oh, yes; that was before that.

Q. And you left when? A. '39.

Q. The latter or early part?

A. The latter—October.

Q. Do you recall when it was in relation to that time? [1485] A. Right around '34.

Q. What were the circumstances surrounding the sale of yours and Mr. McKay's interest to Mr. Remmer?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, what the circumstances were. I don't know what bearing it would have on the issues in this matter.

The Court: I think it is a rather broad question, Mr. Campbell.

Mr. Campbell: Very well, I will withdraw it.

Q. Now, I will ask you, Mr. Graham, whether or not, during the years 1944-1946 inclusive, you had occasion to loan Mr. Remmer personally any money? A. 1946, yes.

Q. And in what month was that?

A. February.

Q. And what was the amount involved?

A. Ten thousand.

Q. And how was that given, by your personal check? A. Yes, that's right.

Q. And will you state whether or not that amount was still outstanding as of the end of 1946? Did he still owe you?

A. He still owed me, didn't pay it until, I think in 1947.

Q. So he still owed that money at the end of 1946? A. Yes.

Q. Did you loan him any other money in 1946? [1486]

A. Yes, he phoned me from San Francisco and he said, "I have my income tax to pay," he said, "Will you loan me seven thousand dollars? I will send an attorney over to pick up the money," so I gave him a check for seven thousand.

Q. Did he say when he would pay it back?

A. He said he would pay it back in a week or so, so he came up in ten days and paid that money.

Q. So that was not outstanding in 1946?

A. No.

Q. Did he owe you any other money in 1946?

A. He owed me ten thousand.

Q. That is all?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William J. Graham.)

A. Outside the money he owes for the corporation.

Q. You are referring to the purchase of the stock? A. Yes.

Q. But he owed you no other personal loans?

A. No, I don't remember that he owed me other than that ten thousand he owed.

Q. Did he owe you any personal loans at the end of '45?

A. No. '45, I didn't get home until October, 1945. I was away all them years.

Q. Now, during the period of time that you and Mr. McKay were interested in Cal-Neva up to the time that you sold your interests to Mr. Remmer who, if any one, supervised the keeping of the records at Cal-Neva? [1487]

A. The records were kept by Mr. Semenza.

Q. That is Mr. Lawrence Semenza of Reno?

A. Yes, the auditor.

Q. Were they kept by him from the inception, from the beginning of Cal-Neva Lodge?

A. Yes, I am sure they were.

Q. He has, has he not, been accountant for Mr. McKay and yourself for a number of years?

A. Yes, he has been our accountant for a number of years?

Mr. Campbell: You may cross-examine.

and Mr. McKay selling to Mr. Remmer your interests, that was prepared in Mr. Thatcher's office?

A. The office of Woodburn and Thatcher. Mr. Thatcher is the one who prepared it.

Q. Although it recited that that day, as I understand your testimony, you and Mr. McKay sold to Mr. Remmer for $466,666.66 and that he had paid you, that wasn't actually the fact at that time?

A. Oh, no; he didn't pay any. He was to pay us that money. That is why Mr. Thatcher drew that up.

Q. In the year 1946 then, as I understand it, the only payment that you and Mr. McKay received were those reflected by these [1488] photostat checks in Exhibit 145, which would be 50 thousand dollars check to each of you, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And that was the check of Cal-Neva Lodge, was it not, or Cal-Neva corporation, drawn on the Nevada bank; is that correct?

A. Cal-Neva Lodge, that's right.

Q. And the check was signed by Mr. James B. Jeffers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So it was out of Cal-Neva account of the Main Office of the First National Bank of Nevada, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And then, as I recall, you received no other payments that year? A. No.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Graham, this total of 100 thousand dollars of these two checks that were paid, 50 thousand to you and 50 thousand to

Mr. McKay, in 1946 was borrowed by Mr. Remmer out of Cal-Neva?

A. I don't know where he got it.

Q. All you know it came from Cal-Neva bank account?

A. Cal-Neva, but I don't know where he got it. When we sold out to Mr. Remmer there was seventy-five thousand in the corporation.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all.

Mr. Campbell: That is all.

(Witness excused.) [1489]

Mr. Campbell: At this time I wish to have marked for identification what purports to be a general ledger of Cal-Neva, Inc., 146 for identification, and a volume purporting to be pay roll records of Cal-Neva, Inc., as 146A for identification. These two records, which were produced pursuant to subpoena for the corporation records will be offered in evidence.

Mr. Gillen: Well, may we examine them first of all?

The Court: Yes, you may, certainly.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, we have no objection to the admission of these two exhibits, once they have been properly identified and proper foundation laid, but merely having them marked and offering them now, without having a witness identify them and without being able to cross-examine as to the contents, we think counsel should lay the foundation.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Campbell: Now, if the Court please, these were produced pursuant to subpoena which was served on Mr. Semenza and were produced at that time by counsel, who stated they were making no objection as to the production of these corporate records. They were delivered to the clerk and just now taken from the clerk's custody. In view of those circumstances, I hardly see that the objection is proper.

Mr. Gillen: The subpoena does not authenticate records. They may be the wrong records and we would like a witness on the witness stand who might explain the contents and details concerning them and we can have an opportunity to cross-examine. [1490] If they are merely put in and read, we are bereft of any opportunity to cross-examine.

The Court: I think the objection is well taken.

Mr. Campbell: In view of the circumstances of the production?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Campbell: Very well, your Honor.

Q. What is your business or occupation?

A. I am a bookkeeper for the Bank Club.

Q. In Reno, Nevada? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And who are the owners of the Bank Club?

A. Who were?

Q. Who are?

A. The owners of the Bank Club are Bank Club of Reno, a corporation.

Q. And during the years up to and including the end of 1945 who were the owners? [1491]

A. The owners were Mr. Graham, Mr. McKay, and Mr. Sullivan. He was known as Sullivan. His legal name was Scarlett, but he was known as J. B. Sullivan throughout Reno and in the Bank Club.

Q. And he is now deceased, is he not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long have you been bookkeeper for the Bank Club, Mr. Perkins? A. Since 1940.

Q. Now, Mr. Perkins, in the course of your duties as bookkeeper for the Bank Club, did there come to your attention a transaction whereby certain cases of Gallagher & Burton whiskey, which were stored at the Nevada Transfer and Warehouse Company's warehouse, were acquired by the Bank Club? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were asked to produce the records with relation to that transaction. Have you done so?

A. They are right here.

Q. You have produced what you refer to as an

A. That's correct.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask to have document entitled "Invoice" marked 147 for identification. I ask that the check be marked 147A for identification.

Q. With regard to this ledger sheet, will you point out to me, [1492] without a statement of any kind, Mr. Perkins, the items to which reference was made? (Witness indicates.)

A. Here is the check record. The general ledger sheet—it is included in that figure there.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask to have the ledger sheets marked 147B for identification. Do you have copies?

The Court: Will counsel accept the stipulation?

Mr. Campbell: Well, I hadn't intended to offer the ledger sheet.

Mr. Gillen: Well, whatever he wants to offer.

The Court: You offer 147A? [1493]

Mr. Campbell: 147 and 147A.

The Court: I understand there is no objection. They will be admitted in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: I will read Exhibit 147. Typewritten document headed in typewriter, "Elmer Remmer Cal-Neva Lodge, Crystal Bay, Nevada. License 11757, November 22, 1946. hibit 147A is a check account of "Bank Bar, 239 No. Center Street, Reno, Nevada, First National Bank, dated July 30, 1947, pay to the order of Elmer Remmer $29,979." Signed "Bank Bar by Rodrick Perkins," bearing the pen written endorsement, "Elmer Remmer" and the stamp endorsement of the Bank Club of Reno.

Mr. Avakian: May we inquire whether all of Exhibit 147 was read? Is there a paid designation?

Mr. Campbell: I beg your pardon. There is also on 147 a notation, partially in pen and ink and partially by a date stamp, "Paid July 30-1947 check No. 3813," which is the date and check number as shown on Exhibit 147A.

You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Perkins, the document which is 147, plaintiff's exhibit in evidence, is the document that recited the sale of 900 cases of Gallagher & Burton whiskey for the total sum of $29,979, that [1494] was merely relating the transaction, was it?

A. It is an invoice.

Q. Now, the check, which is plaintiff's exhibit 147A, was issued by you on account of the Bank Club at the time? A. That's right.

Q. Now, the endorsement on the back of 147A indicates that the check, which was made to Elmer Remmer as payee by yourself, as payer, for the Bank Bar, was endorsed by Elmer Remmer?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Rodrick Perkins.)

A. Yes, it was.

Q. And then there is below Elmer Remmer's ink endorsement, your bank stamp endorsement of the Bank Club of Reno, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And that would indicate that Mr. Remmer endorsed this check and turned it back to the Bank Club, which endorsed it again?

A. The Bank Club cashed the check for Mr. Remmer.

Q. Now, do you personally recall the transaction itself? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It is a fact, is it not, that when the check was issued by you to Mr. Remmer, he endorsed it, turned it back to you, and you cashed it, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And it is true, is it not, that you retained out in the sum of 23 thousand odd dollars to cover an indebtedness to the Bank Club from Robert Jeffers? [1495] A. That is correct.

Q. And Robert Jeffers had become obligated to the Bank Club in that amount and Mr. Remmer paid 23 thousand dollars out of this 29 thousand dollar check? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And it had been brought to your attention, had it not, by Mr. Robert Jeffers that Mr. Remmer owed Mr. Jeffers some money and Mr. Remmer would pick up Mr. Jeffer's obligation?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as hearsay.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Can you relate under what circumstances

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Rodrick Perkins.)

Mr. Remmer agreed to pay Mr. Jeffer's obligation, or under what circumstances did you happen to collect Mr. Jeffer's obligation from Mr. Remmer?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection—by indirect sought to be the same answer that could not be obtained by direct.

The Court: Same ruling.

Mr. Gillen: Of course, your Honor, the man handled the transaction. He must have some personal knowledge how he happened to collect one man's obligation from another. Here is the man, who is a witness on the stand, who issued the check and had it endorsed by the payee and then had taken back the check and deducted therefrom the sum of 23 thousand dollars. I have in mind, your Honor, he has some personal knowledge on the matter.

The Court: The ruling will stand. [1496]

Mr. Gillen: I don't know how else to get at it, your Honor. That's all.

Mr. Campbell: That's all.

(Witness excused.)

Mr. Gillen: May I ask this witness—I am sorry—to just resume the stand for a moment?

WILLIAM K. WOODBURN

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. William K. Woodburn.

Q. Where do you reside?

A. 835 Arlington.

Q. In the City of Reno? A. Yes.

Q. What is your business or occupation?

A. Attorney at law.

Q. What is the name of your firm, Mr. Woodburn?

A. At present Woodburn Foreman and Woodburn.

Q. And what was formerly the name of your firm, during particularly [1497] the period 1944 to 1946? A. Thatcher and Woodburn.

Q. Are you acquainted with William Graham and James McKay? A. Yes.

Q. And are you acquainted with the defendant here, Elmer Remmer? A. Yes.

Q. In your capacity as an attorney, have you previously represented each of the three individuals whom I have named?

A. Yes, for many years.

Q. And I will ask you whether or not, in your capacity as an attorney, you also represented the corporation known as Cal-Neva, Inc.?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William K. Woodburn.)

A. That is correct.

Q. As a matter of fact, you or members of your firm incorporated that business?

A. I believe that is correct. That is a matter outside my knowledge.

Q. You, however, did represent Cal-Neva, Inc.?

A. That is correct.

Q. And did you or did you not during the year 1946? A. Yes.

Q. Now, during the year 1946 were you present at various negotiations relating to the sale of the interests of Graham and McKay in Cal-Neva, Inc., to the defendant, Elmer Remmer?

A. No, sir. [1498]

Q. Did you, in connection with any such transaction, draw any papers?

A. No, sir. I might explain, Mr. Campbell, my law partner, Mr. George B. Thatcher, drew all the papers in connection with the sale of Cal-Neva, Inc., in connection with the sale of the stock.

Q. Mr. George Thatcher is now deceased?

A. He died about three months after this transaction took place.

Q. And with respect to the papers which he drew, was he at that time your partner in the company? A. That is correct.

Q. And after his death did you yourself personally look after the transactions?

A. Well, there really wasn't anything to look after, Mr. Campbell.

Q. Was there an escrow set up in your office, if you know? A. Yes.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William K. Woodburn.)

Q. And are you still holding that escrow?

A. Correct.

Q. You were asked to produce here such records as you may have with respect to that escrow, have you done so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you produce those at this time, Mr. Woodburn?

A. I might say at this time, Mr. Campbell, before I produce these record, that these records were given to me by reason of [1499] my relationship as attorney and client for both Mr. Remmer and McKay and Mr. Graham. I believe Mr. Graham has waived any objection he might have to my so testifying, but as yet I have not received waiver of Mr. Remmer.

Q. Might I ask you one question? I believe you stated in connection with these papers you were acting as an escrow agent for all parties?

A. We represented all parties.

Q. And you are holding the escrow at this time?

A. That is correct.

Mr. Campbell: I submit, your Honor, it is not a matter of confidence.

Mr. Gillen: I am sure Mr. Remmer will waive any privilege.

Mr. Campbell: I do not believe it is a matter of privilege.

Mr. Gillen: Well, if it is.

The Court: It does not seem to be. He is merely an escrow agent.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William K. Woodburn.)

Mr. Gillen: However, we will waive any privilege that might attach.

Q. You have produced a document, Mr. Woodburn, entitled "Memorandum and Receipt."

A. That is correct.

Q. I am going to show you what has already been introduced as plaintiff's Exhibit 144 and ask you if that is a duplicate original [1500] of the document which you hold in your escrow?

A. It would appear to be.

Q. I will ask you whether or not there were any other memoranda or contracts setting forth the purported terms of the transaction?

A. None I know of, Mr. Campbell.

Q. That is the only document which so sets forth? A. That is correct.

Q. What else are you holding in that escrow?

A. The stock that was issued to Mr. Remmer.

Q. You have in your hand what purports to be stock certificates held by you in the escrow?

A. That is correct.

Mr. Campbell: Possibly we can avoid putting these in evidence.

Mr. Gillen: The defense would have no objection to Mr. Woodburn testifying verbally from these exhibits.

Mr. Campbell: That is what I was going to ask.

Q. You have stated that you hold certain stock certificates in the escrow and you have produced here what purport to be some eleven stock certificates of Cal-Neva, Inc. Mr. Woodburn, do you know that those purport to represent all of the capital stock outstanding of Cal-Neva, Inc.?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William K. Woodburn.)

A. I believe that is correct, Mr. Campbell.

Q. And in whose name are those stock certificates made? [1501]

A. Well, one for six thousand in Elmer Remmer and ten for 1800 in Elmer Remmer.

Q. And they all stand in the name of Elmer Remmer? A. That is correct.

Q. By whom are they signed?

A. Well, the first one for six thousand is signed by H. O. Hall as secretary and Mr. McKay as president. The others——

Q. What is the date of that certificate?

A. June 30, 1929.

Q. Now, the others are signed by whom?

A. Digressing a moment—1929 was the date Mr. Remmer and Mr. McKay and Mr. Graham and Mr. Hall acquired Cal-Neva. The others are all signed by Rodrick Perkins, assistant secretary, and Elmer Remmer as president.

Q. What date do the 10 certificates of 1800 bear? A. July 10, 1946.

Q. Now, Mr. Woodburn, do you have any written instructions with reference to the escrow as to what disposition is to be made of those certificates?

A. No. Mr. Thatcher's secretary, who is still with the firm, told me that Mr. Thatcher gave her this receipt and the stock and said, "Put this in the safe until I give you further instructions."

Q. And you, yourself, received no instructions with reference to that escrow? [1502]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William K. Woodburn.)

A. None at all.

Q. From anyone? A. No, sir.

Q. Has money passed through you with relation to that escrow, passed through your hands?

A. Well, not exactly, not with that escrow. Now, when Mr. Remmer subsequently sold Cal-Neva, or sold the assets of the corporation, to its present owners, we did collect some money, some money that was disbursed in our office.

Q. Will you state whether or not that money was collected through your office on account of the 466 thousand dollars? A. Yes.

Q. As set forth in that receipt and memorandum? A. If you wish, I can tell you exactly.

Q. Yes, will you do so?

A. There was an original balance due to Mr. McKay and Mr. Graham of $233,333.33.

Q. That would be one-half of the price set forth in the memorandum?

A. That's right. Now, in 1946 Cal-Neva paid directly to each of them 50 thousand dollars. On March 2, 1949, 50 thousand dollars was paid to Mr. McKay and Mr. Graham through the First National Bank through the Trust Department.

Q. Is that 50 thousand each?

A. That's correct. The Trust Department at the bank was the [1503] escrow agent handling the deal between Mr. Remmer and Mr. Adler, the present owner.

Q. As I take it then, Mr. Woodburn, from a subsequent sale of the property——

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William K. Woodburn.)

A. That is correct.

Q. ——through an escrow set up for the purpose of effecting that sale and monies were paid by that escrow over to you or directly to Graham and McKay in relation to those transactions?

A. That is correct.

Q. So that, I take it, according to your records of the purchase price of $466,666.66 there had been paid by the end of 1946 a sum of 100 thousand dollars, is that correct?

A. Not according to my records because that payment didn't go through our office, but I believe I got that information from Mr. Semenza.

Q. And if that information was accurate, there would still be outstanding as of December 31, 1946, from Remmer to Graham and McKay the sum of $366,666.66? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, as attorney for Cal-Neva, Inc., do you know who kept the records of that corporation?

A. Well, I think that the manager, Mr. Jeffers, kept some, and my best recollection is Mr. Semenza used to audit their records, but I am not positive of it at all.

Q. Have you ever examined the records of the corporation yourself? [1504]

A. Well, what records, for instance, do you mean, the books?

Q. Yes, the books. Have you even seen them?

A. No.

Q. Do you know in whose custody they were kept? A. No.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William K. Woodburn.)

Q. Do you know in what city they were kept? That is, maintained, the books themselves?

A. I couldn't tell you.

Mr. Campbell: That's all. You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Q. Mr. Woodburn, I believe you stated that following the sale of the Cal-Neva assets by Mr. Remmer to the Adler group, your office disbused certain funds out of the proceeds of that sale to Mr. Graham and Mr. McKay on behalf of Mr. Remmer?

A. That is right.

Q. Out of the proceeds of that money did you also disburse, on behalf of Mr. Remmer, the sum of 25 thousand dollars to one Mr. Scarlett, also known as Sullivan? A. That is correct.

Q. Who was Mr. Scarlett?

A. Mr. Scarlett was one of the former partners in the Bank Club.

Q. Partner of Graham and McKay?

A. That is right. [1505]

Q. He was also known as Mr. Sullivan?

A. That is right.

Q. Did you have any records showing when you disbursed that money to Mr. Sullivan on behalf of Mr. Remmer?

A. I do not have any direct record of it. I do know it was some time after the sale by Mr. Remmer to Mr. Adler.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William K. Woodburn.)

Q. And that sale was in 1949?

A. Well, the escrow was set up, I believe, in January, 1949.

Q. Was that in the amount of 25 thousand dollars? A. That is right.

Q. Did that represent a repayment to Mr. Scarlett of that sum, in repayment of loan from Mr. Scarlett to Mr. Remmer at some earlier date?

A. That's right.

Mr. Campbell: If he knows.

The Court: Do you know?

A. Yes, I know. I know Mr. Sullivan was very, very happy to get the money.

Q. Do you know whether Mr. Sullivan had loaned that money to Mr. Remmer prior to December 31, 1946? A. No, I do not.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. In that connection, Mr. Woodburn—incidentally, what was the sale price of Cal-Neva to Mr. Adler?

A. I couldn't tell you offhand. [1516]

Q. Do you recall it was the sum of 800 thousand dollars?

A. I didn't handle that deal, Mr. Campbell. I believe either my father or John Thatcher handled it.

Q. Now, with regard to this 25 thousand dollars that was paid to Mr. Scarlett, sometimes known as Mr. Sullivan, he had, had he not, prior to his death, been a partner in the Bank Club with Mr. Graham and Mr. McKay? A. That's right.

Q. Did you see any note in connection with that transaction? A. No.

Q. Do you know yourself when the loan was made? A. No.

Q. If it was a loan?

A. No. I remember Mr. Sullivan saying to both my father and myself that Remmer owed him 25 thousand dollars.

Q. Now, do you know whether or not the 25 thousand dollars referred to had been money borrowed by Mr. Remmer, or borrowed by someone else whose obligation Mr. Remmer had guaranteed?

A. I do not have any knowledge.

Q. I think you stated you did not know the date of the obligation? A. That is correct.

Q. Were you holding any security, either by note or any other form, in respect to the 25 thousand dollars?

A. I don't recall, Mr. Campbell, I don't think we did, though. [1507] I know I asked my father about that and he couldn't recall whether we had a note or not.

Mr. Campbell: I think that is all.

Q. Did he tell you that on more than one occasion?

A. Oh, yes, he was rather concerned about it and when this sale by Mr. Remmer to Mr. Adler came up, he asked us to be sure and see he was looked after.

Q. Do you recall the date of any occasions on which he told you Mr. Remmer owned that money?

A. Well, it would be subsequent to the sale.

Q. In other words, the sale had been set up and he wanted to make sure that you collected it for him? A. That's right.

Mr. Avakian: That is all.

Q. Well——

A. We handle a lot of money down there over many periods of years.

Q. Did you at any time, in behalf of Mr. Sullivan, or Mr. Scarlett, handle a loan transaction from Mr. Sullivan to one O'Brien in San Francisco?

A. I do not recall. Mr. Sullivan handled most of the loans himself of that nature.

Q. Referring to this 25 thousand dollar repayment made to Mr. Scarlett, do you have any knowledge of the original transaction?

A. No, I heard that——

Q. No, not hearsay—but you yourself?

A. I don't have any direct knowledge, no sir.

Q. Did you keep any books or records for Mr. Sullivan? [1509]

A. I occasionally kept track of his interest receipts from bonds and dividend payments, occasionally.

Q. What was your former business or occupation?

Q. And during that period was that your sole employment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you state the basis upon which you were employed, that is to say, by salary, commission or in what manner? A. By salary.

Q. And what was that salary?

A. It varied. I think I started in around sixty a week and at the end I was getting a hundred.

Q. Now, for a portion of that period of time were you in charge of the business of the B & R Smoke Shoppe?

A. I kept the financial end of it.

Q. Did you manage the financial end of it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What period of time was that?

A. During 1945.

Q. Was that after William Kyne went into the service? A. Yes, sir. [1511]

Q. Did you continue in that capacity until Mr. Kyne returned from the service? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you recall approximately when it was that you left in 1946?

A. I left about the end of '45 and I was back there for a few days the end of March or middle of March.

Q. How long did you remain at that time?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

A. Oh, about a week.

Q. When you left in March, was the business still operating? A. No, sir.

Q. And that was March of '46?

A. That's correct.

Q. And will you state whether or not up until the first time you left at the end of 1945 the business operated continuously?

A. No, sir. It was a few months in 1945.

Q. Do you recall what months those were?

A. No, I do not. It was the end of '45.

Q. Was that at a period when the race tracks were closed down? A. Yes, sir.

Q. But aside from that, during the time that the race tracks operated from 1941 to the end of 1945, was the business continuously in operation?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, prior to the time of Mr Kyne's entry into the service, [1512] what was the nature of the duties that you performed for the B & R Smoke Shoppe?

A. I used to figure the winning books.

Q. By figuring the winning books, do you refer to the figuring out the amount that should be paid to the holder of a ticket? A. Yes, sir.

Q. During that period of time, did you, yourself, handle the cash which came in?

A. I used to have to balance the room at the end of the day and I used to put the bank roll in in the morning.

Q. When you say you helped to balance the

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

cash count at the end of the day, do you refer to the operation of amount of cash on hand as checked against the wagers, less the pay-outs? A. Yes.

Q. Did those pay-outs include running expenses, as well as payment of wages?

A. Now what I used to do.

Q. You had nothing to do with that at that time? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, what did you have to do with the bank roll in the morning?

A. I used to go down to the bank and get the sack with the money in it for the cashier.

Q. Who was the cashier at that time?

A. Well, we had a couple of them at different times. Employees, [1513] one of them might be a ticket man and he would probably move up to cashier. Sometimes I would do the cashing also.

Q. By cashier, you refer to other employees who took in and paid out the money during the course of the day, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. For example, when a person would place a bet, I take it it would be written out and money paid to the cashier or to the ticket rather?

A. That is right.

Q. Who, in turn, would turn it over to the cashier, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. And I take it on each race, as the results and odds became known, it would be figured on the winning ticket, the amount to be paid, is that correct? A. That is correct.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

Q. And the cashier would then make such return as the fortunate winners called for?

A. That is correct.

Q. When you got the money at the beginning of the day—that is during the period when Mr. Kyne was still there—from what source did you receive it, what bank?

A. The sack would be made up at the end of the day with the bank roll and it used to be around five hundred and a couple of [1514] hundred or so in small bills.

Q. What bank was that kept in?

A. Day and Night Branch of the Bank of America, 1 Powell Street.

Q. Was it kept there in safety deposit boxes or banking account? A. In a deposit box.

Q. Do you recall the number of that safety deposit box? A. No, I don't.

Q. In whose name was that safety deposit box?

A. Myself and Willie Kyne.

Mr. Campbell: I would like to have these two photostats marked for identification, 148 for identification.

Q. I show you Exhibit 148 for identification, consisting of photostatic copies of two cards, and I draw your attention to the signatures appearing on those photostatic copies, and ask you if you recognize those?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

A. Yes, sir, that is my signature and Mr. Kyne's.

Q. Now, I will ask you to examine that and state whether or not that refreshes your recollection as to the number of the safety deposit box to which you had access? A. Yes, 39813.

Q. And I will ask you whether or not that refreshes your recollection as to when that box was opened? I draw your attention—— [1515]

A. February 24, 1943.

Mr. Campbell: This will be offered in evidence as Exhibit 148.

The Court: 148 admitted in evidence.

Q. Now, during the period of time that you were employed there and prior to the entry of Mr. Kyne into the armed forces, did you maintain or were you an authorized signator on any bank account with reference to the operation of the B & R Smoke Shoppe? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, after Mr. Kyne entered the services and after you took over the running of the financial affairs, as you have stated, was a bank account opened in connection with the B & R Smoke Shoppe, of which you were an authorized signator?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I show you plaintiff's Exhibit 24 in evidence, bank account in the name of E. F. Remmer or A. F. Fritchett, and drawing your attention specifically to the signature card, and also to the ledger sheets and ask you if that is the bank account to which you refer? A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

Q. And during the period of time that this bank account was operated, will you state who made the deposits? A. I used to.

Q. And will you state the source of the money which was [1516] deposited into this account?

A. I would take it from money that I had on hand.

Q. At the B & R Smoke Shoppe?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you given any instructions by anyone as to what money should be placed in that account, what amount? A. None at all.

Q. Now, with regard to any checks drawn on this account, who drew those checks? A. I did.

Q. Do you know whether or not Mr. Remmer drew any of the checks?

A. I believe he did, yes, sir.

Q. Did you at any time keep any of your personal funds in this account? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know of your own knowledge whether or not Mr. Remmer deposited any monies in this account other than monies arising from the B & R Smoke Shoppe?

A. I don't remember. I don't believe so.

Q. What is your answer?

A. I do not remember.

Q. Now, in addition to the box at 1 Powell Street, the Day and Night Branch of the Bank of America, during the time that you were in charge of the B & R Smoke Shoppe, did you also have access [1517] to any other lock box?

A. To the safe at 52 Mason Street.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

Q. Will you state whether or not there was assigned to you in that safe at 52 Mason Street a box? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that a lock box? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How was it opened, that is to say, by key or combination or both? A. By key.

Q. Who, if you know, in addition to yourself, had a key to that box? A. I had both.

Q. You had the only two keys?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. For what purpose was that box used?

A. To keep my cash in from the business.

Q. Over what period of time would a particular deposit be kept in there, that is to say, at the close of the day's business, when you were putting money in, how long would that money remain there, as a matter of practice?

A. It would be there all the time different amounts, and it was mostly in checks.

Q. When you say checks, you are referring to checks of customers? [1518] A. That's right.

Q. How would they subsequently be cashed?

A. I used to give them to Mr. Maundrell.

Q. During the next business day, is that correct? A. That's right.

Q. Cash that was taken during the day's business, what was done with that?

A. Put that in the box.

Q. Was that subsequently deposited in the bank? A. No, it was kept in the box.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

Q. So that money deposited in the bank just represented checks, is that correct?

A. When I needed more money, I would put cash in.

Q. Then, do I understand your testimony to be that this bank account only carried whatever funds you needed to draw against, is that correct?

A. That account was opened with Mr. Kyne went into the army. There was no business in the place. That was opened and I was put in charge of it in order to pay the rent, phone bills, and the utilities.

Q. And you would deposit sufficient money in this account to cover those items, is that correct?

A. That is right.

Q. But so far as any other money coming in, the checks would [1519] be given to Mr. Maundrell and the cash retained in the safe, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you state whether or not from time to time the money that was retained in the safe at 52 Mason Street, if you turned that over to anyone or passed that over to anyone? A. No, sir.

Q. During the period of your employment there were there any accounting times, any accounting period? A. No.

Q. So far as you know? A. No.

Q. Now, during the period of time in 1945 when you took charge and this bank account was opened —appears to be, according to this exhibit, February 17, 1945, referring to plaintiff's Exhibit 24— did you maintain any books or records of account showing the amount of money received and paid out in connection with the B & R Smoke Shoppe?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And were those daily records?

A. Daily records, yes, sir, then they would go into monthly records.

Q. And in what form were they kept?

A. Just on sheets of paper.

Q. Individual sheets of paper for each day, is that correct? [1520] A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you say the monthly records, what form was that, also sheet of paper?

A. Just one sheet of paper.

Q. What would be done with the daily record at the time you made the monthly record?

A. They would be destroyed.

Q. Now, so far as monthly record which was taken from your daily records, what was done with them? A. I kept them in my desk.

Q. Where? A. 52 Mason Street.

Q. When was the last time you saw that record?

A. December, 1945.

Q. At the time you left? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you have not seen that since that time?

A. No, sir.

Q. I show you Exhibit 111B, which is labeled "Standard Daily Journal 1945," and which was previously identified with Mr. Kyne, who made but one entry in this book, and ask you if you recognize this as one of the books maintained by the B & R Smoke Shoppe?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

Mr. Gillen: By him.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask him first if he recognizes it. [1521] A. I never saw this before.

Q. During the period of time that you were in charge there, did you keep a record in any similar volume to this? A. No, sir.

Q. Calling your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 111A, which is marked on the outside, "Daily Reminder 1943," I will ask you if you ever saw that record before?

Mr. Gillen: We offer the objection as asked and answered. This witness described during the period he was in charge how he kept his accounts. These are accounts of Mr. Kyne, as I recall; also this is year 1943, which is prior to the starting point in the indictment.

The Court: Objection will be overruled.

A. I may have seen this before.

Q. Now, during the time you were in charge did you keep any record in a book similar to this?

A. No, sir.

Q. Or did you keep any record of entries of a similar nature to entries shown in this book?

A. No, just on the sheets of paper.

Q. Now, with respect to the records which you kept, you say daily and then on monthly recapitulations, at which time you stated you destroyed the daily sheets, were any formal books kept, do you know? A. Not by me. [1522]

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. I offer the objection it has been asked and answered, how he kept his records. This "formal" books, of course, is characterization by counsel, but I do not think it is proper characterization. This is his witness on direct examination.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

(Question read.)

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. No.

Q. Now, with respect to the checks which you delivered to Mr.——

Mr. Gillen (Interrupting): Pardon me, I am going to ask leave of the Court to strike out the word "formal" in connection with books. That is merely characterization of counsel. A book can be just a volume in a covering and accurately kept, or on a piece of paper. I think the word "formal" of his own witness is improper characterization and should be stricken.

The Court: Motion denied.

Q. Now, with regard to the checks which you say you delivered to Mr. Maundrell, did you keep any record of those checks? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you keep any record in any form as to those checks? A. No, sir.

Q. With regard to the cash which was kept in the safe, did you keep any record of any count from day to day or month to month as to the amount of cash on hand? [1523]

A. Well, I kept the sheet and the cash would balance with what was either won or lost and what was there.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

Q. Was that carried on to the monthly sheets at the time you destroyed the daily sheets?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, at the time you left the business at the end of 1945, do you recall the amount of cash on hand? A. No, I do not.

Q. What is your best recollection?

A. I think it was around five thousand dollars cash.

Q. Do you recall whether or not there were also on hand at that time any accounts receivable?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the amount?

Mr. Gillen: I think the records would be the best evidence of what those amounts were. No foundation laid to show that those were not available to the prosecution.

Mr. Campbell: He stated the last time he saw the records.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. I don't recall what it was?

Q. What is your best recollection?

A. I believe around 15 thousand outstanding.

Q. At the time you left there at the end of 1945, were there, to your knowledge, any outstanding obligation? [1524]

A. You mean money that the place owed?

Q. Yes. A. None.

Q. Now, calling your attention again to the bank account which you recognized of the B & R Smoke Shoppe, plaintiff's Exhibit 24, and the signature card on which I believe you identified the signature of Mr. Elmer F. Remmer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to the information set forth on the card, "business liquor warehouse 52 Mason Street, joint business, parts introduction W. E. Kyne, address A. F. Fritchett, 56 Mason Stree, San Francisco," to what firm is the reference, if you know, about liquor warehouse, 52 Mason Street.

A. That is where the liquor was stored, 52 Mason Street.

Q. As I understand your testimony, the premises of the B & R Smoke Shoppe were at 50 Mason Street, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. 52 Mason, I take it were adjoining premises?

A. Yes.

Q. What liquor was stored there?

A. I had nothing to do with the liquor, but there was a lot of liquor in there, cases, stored.

Q. You say you had nothing to do with that operation? A. No.

Q. Over what period of time did you observe that liquor stored [1525] there?

A. I think when I first went in, around 1943.

Q. Was the liquor still stored there when you left at the end of 1945?

A. Yes, sir, there was some there.

Q. Did you observe at any time the quantity or amount of liquor stored there?

A. Several hundred cases.

Q. Did you at any time participate in an inventory of that liquor?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

A. I helped Mr. Kyne take inventory at the time.

Q. Do you recall on what dates?

A. No, sir.

Q. Prior to Mr. Kyne's going to the service or after his return?

A. No, before he went into the service.

Q. Did you at any time during 1944 assist in taking an inventory of that liquor?

A. It is possible I did.

Q. What is your best recollection?

A. I couldn't say.

Q. Do you recall at that time the quantity of liquor which was stored there at the time of the last inventory that you took?

A. No, sir. [1526]

Q. Now, I observe, with regard to this signature card, that the address is listed A. F. Fritchett, 56 Mason Street, San Francisco? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was located on 56 Mason Street premises?

A. 56 Mason Street is the Crystal Hotel, which is immediately over 50 and 52.

Q. Did you reside at 56 Mason Street?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention further to the signature card after the notation "business" in typing appears, "Liquor warehouse, 52 Mason Street, joint business partners." Will you state to what that refers?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

A. That is the first time I ever knew I was a partner to this minutes.

Q. Now, Mr. Fritchett, did you at any time assist in preparing a 1945 partnership return for the B & R Smoke Shoppe? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you have anything to do with any return that was put in? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not a 1945 partnership return for the B & R Smoke Shoppe was prepared? A. I do not.

Q. Now, there has been some testimony here regarding the [1527] acceptance of lay-off bets from others in the bookmaking business. Did you have anything to do with that end of the business?

A. No, sir.

Q. During the period of time that you were managing the B & R Smoke Shoppe was any such business conducted? A. Yes.

Q. And did you handle it during that period of time?

A. Just mailing away of the checks, cashing of the checks and the receipt.

Q. Who handled that business during the time that you were manager?

A. Mr. Lando and Mr. Remmer.

Q. Now with regard to those bets, do you know whether they were carried by the B & R Smoke Shoppe or if they were passed on to others?

A. I do not know.

Q. During the course of your employment, did it ever come to your attention any instances in which bets were received from other bookmakers and passed on to third persons?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

A. Well, I knew they used to do that.

Q. To whom were they passed on?

A. Oh——

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. I think we are getting to a matter upon which your Honor has passed upon at an earlier [1528] witness. We offer the objection it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and offer the further objection that your Honor has already indicated by rulings the immateriality of persons to whom bets were passed.

The Court: I don't see that the answer to that question would be material. If you want to argue the matter, I would like to hear from you.

Mr. Campbell: I think it is material, your Honor.

The Court: We will excuse the jury then.

(Jury and alternate jurors admonished and excused at 1:40 p.m.)

(In the absence of the jury.)

Mr. Gillen: We will locate the transcript in which similar rulings have been made.

The Court: I have in mind that ruling to which you refer.

Mr. Campbell: If the Court please, I think it is material to the matter of profits derived from the B & R Smoke Shoppe as to the amount of business which consisted of what counsel has referred to as so-called courtesy bets, compared to business which was accepted as a regular business. Now, for example, the first page here of Exhibit 116F relating to 1943, that, as an example, shows that during 1943 there were purchased nearly half a million dollars of cashier's checks, which were largely sent to other bookmakers, without designating the names—the names are denominated here, but the [1529] testimony of Mr. Kyne was that with the exception of those made to the Collector of Internal Revenue and I think two or three others he pointed out, the rest were made to those in the bookmaking business. Now I think it is material to ascertain as far as possible how much of that 428 thousand dollars, for example, shown in those cashier checks represented business of the B & R Smoke Shoppe which they were handling as a part of their business, as compared to what has been termed courtesy handling, and that is the purpose of this question.

The Court: I think this covers the same situation we had quite a while ago. I do not believe it would be proper to allow the names of notorious people to go to the jury unless it was impossible to get the evidence before the jury without disclosing these names.

Mr. Campbell: Well, of course—pardon me——

The Court: You see the thought I have.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, I do, your Honor.

The Court: That these names are names of such characters as might possibly—although I doubt it would prejudice the members of this jury—but I think the Court should guard against any possibility of that kind.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

Mr. Campbell: I think that was counsel's characterization rather than my characterization.

The Court: I think we can safely say that he came pretty [1530]

Mr. Campbell: Yes, I think that is true. However, of course, these individuals were business associates——

The Court: Can we get this evidence that you desire before this jury without disclosing these names to the jury?

Mr. Campbell: Well, I can attempt to have him identify on here by mark of some kind, I presume, yes, which represented so-called courtesy bets which he knew about.

The Court: If it was impossible to achieve your point here without disclosing these names, that would be another thing, but if you can do it without disclosing these names to the jury, I think in the interest of justice we should try to avoid disclosing these names.

Mr. Campbell: I will attempt to approach it from that method.

The Court: That is what you have in mind, Mr. Gillen?

Mr. Gillen: Yes, and further, may it please the Court—of course, here we have a witness whom it becomes obvious to us, by reason of what we know from other testimony, was only in charge in the absence of Mr. Kyne for a period of perhaps seven months. In 1945, the first five months there were no races at all, so for a period of about seven months. Now he testified he had nothing to do with that end of the business except he sent off the checks and I doubt that particular [1531] information could be obtained by this witness. Furthermore, this whole field was probed by counsel with Mr. Lando and Mr. Kyne, as your Honor will recall, particularly with Mr. Kyne. Mr. Kyne gave a very comprehensive description of how matters were handled, and it was explained how they were handled and what were courtesy and why courtesies were extended, so I think that it is here in the record, if your Honor cares to glance at it.

The Court: Well, go along and see what the questions of this witness develops, but I am interested in this matter that we discussed here. I do not see any reason why names should go before the jury of people the mention of whose names might possibly be prejudicial to the defendant. I do not see any reason why those names should go before the jury. Of course, if this—if this evidence which you desire to introduce here, if it is admissible otherwise and can't be shown without disclosing names, we just can't help that. That is all.

Mr. Campbell: I will proceed along that line, your Honor.

The Court: Very well. We will call in the jury.

(Jury returned into court at 1:50.)

resumes the stand on further

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Now, Mr. Fritchett, directing your attention to plaintiff's [1532] Exhibit 116, which purports to be a summary of cashier's checks purchased through the Bank of America, Day and Night Branch, I will ask you first to examine this list——

Mr. Gillen: I wonder if we might have counsel show it to us. It is my recollection Mr. Kyne said they were checks he had purchased.

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Campbell: Some were purchased by him.

Mr. Gillen: I just want to see. I would like your Honor to look at the exhibit. There is no 1945 in this list.

The Court: The exhibit has been admitted in evidence.

Mr. Gillen: That is true, but this witness, if I followed the testimony, and I have taken careful notes, is being questioned now as to what he did in 1945 in connection with purchase of cashier's checks. There are no 1945 checks reflected here.

Mr. Campbell: I have not propounded the question yet.

Mr. Gillen: Let us hear the question before the jury was excused. The question was as to what date did Mr. Pritchett in 1945, when he was——

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

Mr. Campbell: I am about to ask another question at this time.

The Court: Yes, proceed.

Q. I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 116, which purports to set forth cashier's checks purchased through the Day and Night Branch of the Bank of America, on the dates indicated, purchased [1533] by the persons whose names are indicated, payable to the payees as indicated and the amounts as indicated, and ask you if you will examine this list and state whether or not, from your association with the business, for the date of your employment in the business, if you are able to distinguish the money which was handled by those checks simply as courtesy and not as regular business of the B & R Smoke Shoppe?

Mr. Gillen: I offer the further objection it should be confined to the period involved in the indictment. Anything before 1944 would be incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and if it is subsequent to the time that Mr. Fritchett left the place of employment would be incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, calling for his opinion and conclusion.

The Court: Well, I take it that—if he can answer the question he may do so, because it would indicate to me his answer is from knowledge he gained during the course of his employment.

Mr. Campbell: This calls for yes or no answer.

Mr. Gillen: Prior to 1944 would not be material.

The Court: How about the starting point? I have heard something about a starting point.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

Mr. Gillen: The starting point is 1944. The first day of the year 1944, and the finishing point of the indictment is the last day of the year 1946.

The Court: Objection overruled. [1534]

A. I don't know.

The Court: Do we have stipulation of counsel that the jury and alternate jurors were present at all times?

All Counsel: So stipulated.

Q. Mr. Fritchett, do you recognize the names of the payees as set forth here? That should be answered yes or not.

Mr. Gillen: I offer the objection we are not concerned with matters that occurred before the time of the indictment. We are called upon to face charges set forth in the indictment, as your Honor has stated, and that is all. Now this is an exhibit, I forget how many years it goes back, back to '42 or '43, and as to those matters, we offer the objection it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and outside the realm of this case, the boundary of the indictment.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. Yes, I recognize it.

Q. Now, do you know, Mr. Fritchett, during the time of your employment, cashier's checks were being received from these persons whose names are listed here as payees?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

A. I can only answer for 1945, because previous to that I had nothing to do with that.

Q. You knew nothing about that prior to 1945?

A. No, sir.

Q. During 1945, what was the situation?

A. We received checks, yes, sir.

Q. Who would receive those? [1535]

A. I would.

Q. What would you do with them?

A. Give them to Mr. Maundrell.

Q. Did you keep any record of those checks?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you have any record at this time, or did you maintain any record as to what that money represented by way of payments or otherwise?

A. No, sir.

Q. During the period of time that you were in charge there, how often would cashier's checks be received?

Mr. Gillen: That is in 1945?

Mr. Campbell: When he was in charge.

A. Well, due to the condition of the business.

Q. Well, was it a daily matter of what?

A. Well, some of them would be a week, some by a few days, some probably about 2 weeks.

Q. You say some would be by a few days or week or month, are you referring to different individuals?

A. Well, the same account would carry on sometimes until it got to be five thousand dollars or so.

Q. And then there would be a cashier's check paid out or received, is that correct?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

A. That is correct. [1536]

Q. Who kept the record of those accounts?

A. I did.

Q. And was that a part of your daily and monthly recapitulation? A. Yes.

Q. Well, then, did I understand you—or possibly we are talking at cross purposes here—you stated that you kept no record of the bank and cashier's checks?

A. I kept records of the amount of money that was owed.

Q. And when you referred to the 15 thousand dollars accounts receivable at the end of 1945, are you referring to such accounts represented by payments from time to time by cashier's checks?

A. They could be money that was owed, that was delinquent.

Q. Now, do you recall at this time what the volume of the business was during the period of time that you were manager and handling these affairs as to amounts received from out-of-town bookmakers and amounts paid out to out-of-town bookmakers?

A. No, it would show in the records with the checks that I bought and sent away.

Q. Now, as to the incoming checks, do you know where they were deposited and in what account?

A. No, sir.

Q. You simply turned them over to Mr. Maundrell? A. That's right. [1537]

Mr. Campbell: You may cross-examine.

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Fritchett, in the year 1945, Mr. Kyne went into the service on February 14th, if I recall his testimony, is that about your recollection of it?

A. It was in February, I don't remember the date.

Q. And for the first five months of 1945, there were no races? A. That's correct.

Q. So that, as a matter of fact, you were in charge of this business yourself only for a period of about seven months, is that correct?

A. That's right.

Q. And this 15 thousand dollars that you mentioned here as accounts receivable, I take it that that included markers or IOU's, is that correct?

A. That is right.

Q. And when you left the business in December of 1945, Mr. Slater was the auditor or accountant who took care of the books and so on. Did you turn over your accounts to him?

A. I don't recall; I believe I did.

Q. Then as I understand, during the year 1946, you just went back to work there for about a week?

A. Correct.

Q. Do you recall what time of year that was?

A. About the middle of March. [1538]

Q. About a week and then you left the place again? A. That's right.

Q. Mr. Fritchett, during the period of time that you were in charge in the B & R Smoke Shoppe in the year 1945, there having been no racing for the first five months, there was no business for that period of time, was there? A. No.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

Q. And is it your recollection that the B & R Smoke Shoppe for that year operated at a loss?

A. I believe it did.

Q. Mr. Fritchett, calling your attention to prosecution's Exhibit 148, you will recall that this is the signature card and application for opening of safe deposit box, and this refers to the box that was opened in the name of William Kyne and A. F. Fritchett, Box No. 39813, Day and Night Branch of the Bank of America, who was it that opened this box, you or Mr. Kyne, do you recall?

A. You mean took out the box?

Q. Gave the information and took out the box, do you know?

A. I think we were both there together.

Q. Were you ever a partner in the B & R Smoke Shoppe? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you ever a partner in any liquor warehouse at 52 Mason Street?

A. I was strictly salary. [1539]

Q. And that salary, you say, commenced when you first went to work in 1941, around sixty dollars?

A. That is right.

Q. And ultimately you were raised up to one hundred a week? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever see any of the B & R partnership income tax returns? A. No, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

Q. So far as you know, you were never shown, as a partner, anything of those returns, is that correct? A. No, sir.

Q. Mr. Fritchett, with the permission of the Court, I will show you these prosecution's Exhibits 77, 78, and 79, which are the partnership returns for the B & R Smoke Shoppe partnership for the years 1943, 1944 and 1946, and if you look on the reverse side, which is called Schedule I, you will see set forth there the members of the partnership. I will ask you if your name appears on that schedule?

Mr. Campbell: If counsel so states, I will stipulate it does not appear. The witness says he has never seen it before.

The Court: The witness may answer.

A. I don't see it.

Q. There are three partners mentioned in that schedule, Mr. Remmer, Mr. Kyne, and Mr. Lando, is that correct? A. That is correct. [1540]

Q. Now, those daily accounts that you kept on separate sheets of paper and then recapitulated them into a monthly account at the end of each month, are those the records that you believe you turned over to Mr. Slater when you left in December, 1945?

A. The monthly accounts up to the 12 months of the year.

Q. The daily accounts you destroyed at the end of each month when you made up the monthly account?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

A. They had names on them and they were destroyed.

Q. And to the best of your knowledge and recollection at this time did your daily sheets reflect truly the business that was done by the B & R Smoke Shoppe and did the monthly accounts truly reflect a recapitulation of the daily accounts?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to, the books are the best evidence. The witness has testified he is not familiar with certain of the aspects of the business.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. To the best of my knowledge, they were true and correct.

Mr. Gillen: That's all.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Counsel asked you whether or not the 1945 operation of the B & R Smoke Shoppe was at a profit or loss, and you stated you believed it to be operated at a loss. Do you know that to be a fact?

A. No, I don't. [1541]

Q. Do you know what the records show as to whether it was a profit or loss?

A. My records show a profit but if the delinquent accounts were not collected, it would show a loss.

Q. Now, you referred to the fact as to destruction of the daily sheets and you said they had names on them and were destroyed; to what do you refer?

A. Each daily sheet, like Joe Brusso a thousand,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

and Charlie Jones, five hundred; I kept them for a while and then I was told to destroy them and destroy the evidence of the names.

Q. Who gave you those instructions?

A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. When you then destroyed those and set up your monthly sheet, your monthly sheet did not reflect who owed you and whom you owed money to by name?

A. The monthly sheet I refer to would be just how much was won or lost for the month.

Q. And wouldn't show who owed you or who you owed money to?

A. No, that would be carried on the daily sheet.

Q. The sheet after you destroyed it?

A. Yes, after it was all paid off, that would be destroyed.

Q. So no permanent records were ever kept to show who you owed money to at any given time——

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as assuming something already in evidence. He already testified to 15 thousand dollars in markers. [1542] Certainly they were kept. Leading and suggestive and not proper redirect.

The Court: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Q. No permanent records were kept showing from day to day who owed you money and who you owed money to?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive and not proper redirect examination. It has been asked and answered and explained.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Gillen: I object to the word "permanent." It is characterization of counsel.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. After the money was paid I didn't see any reason to keep any.

Q. Did you keep any? A. No.

Q. Those were the sheets that were destroyed, is that correct? A. Yes.

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive, asked and answered. This is his witness. He is cross-examining his own witness. He stated he kept a daily record and at the end of the month made a recapitulation and when he left there, there were 15 thousand dollars markers.

The Court: You may answer the question. [1543]

A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: That's all.

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Fritchett, do I understand that daily you kept a record of the money taken in and the money paid out, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And also who you owed money to and who owed money to you, is that correct? A. Yes.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

Q. And then in the case of markers the records were kept? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when the end of the month was reached, you made a recapitulation of the total month's business, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. And if somebody owed money on markers as long as a month, that marker was kept until paid?

A. That is true.

Q. And when you left there were 15 thousand dollars in markers unpaid? A. Correct.

Q. And if those markers had not been paid, the B & R would have had a loss in 1945?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you don't know whether they were paid any part or not? A. I don't know. [1544]

Q. And you don't know, therefore, whether the B & R Smoke Shoppe made or lost money in 1945—it all depended on whether the markers were paid?

A. I don't know.

Mr. Gillen: That's all.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Just what did your monthly recapitulation show?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. What did it consist of?

Q. Yes, did it consist of more than one figure?

A. How much was won and how much was lost and how much was still owed.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Albert Frederick Fritchett.)

Q. Did your monthly recapitulation, was that more than one sheet or one sheet?

A. Just on one sheet.

Q. And showing the winning, loss, and how much was owed, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Was the amount which you owed in one figure or more than one figure?

A. The amount which we owed?

Q. Yes.

A. It would be in more than one.

Q. And the amount owed to you? [1545]

A. Would be more than one figures.

Q. The names of those that owed you, were they on that monthly recapitulation sheet?

A. Yes.

Q. And the names that you owed, were on that sheet, is that correct? A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: That's all.

Mr. Gillen: That's all.

(Witness excused.)

MR. BERT BUSTERNA

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Will you state your name?

A. Bert Busterna.

Q. Are you sometimes known as Bert the Barber? A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

Q. That was your occupation at one time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where do you reside, Mr. Busterna?

A. 50 Laguna.

Q. In the City of San Francisco?

A. City of San Francisco, yes.

Q. What is your business or occupation.

A. I have a cigar store. [1546]

Q. Are you acquainted with Elmer Remmer, the defendant? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long have you known him?

A. Oh, 14 or 15 years.

Q. Have you at any time been associated with him in the conduct of business?

A. Just one place.

Q. What was the name of that place?

A. 186 Club.

Q. And that is located at 186 Eddy Street, in San Francisco? A. Yes, sir.

Q. There was, I believe, also on the same premises a concern known as the Day-Night Cigar Store?

A. In front, yes.

Q. Did you have any connection with that?

A. No, sir.

Q. Of any kind? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, when did you first become associated in the 186 Club? A. It was the year of 1943.

Q. Do you recall approximately what part of that year? A. I don't remember.

Q. Well, now, in what manner did you become associated with the 186 Club?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

A. Well, I heard that the place was for sale and I went over [1547] to him and asked him if he would like——

Q. You went over to whom?

A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. All right, proceed.

A. And I told him about it and he said, "Well, I will look into it," so about a week later he bought it and put me in charge of it.

Q. As manager? A. As manager, yes.

Q. What was the business of the 186 Club?

A. Well, it was a card room.

Q. And it operated, did it, on the back of the premises in which the Day-Night Cigar Store was located? A. That's right.

Q. Now, how long did you remain there as manager of the 186 Club?

A. Well, from that time until 1947.

Q. And you continuously managed over that period? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, did you at any time invest any money or pay any money to any one in connection with the acquiring of the 186 Club?

A. You mean, did I invest any money to buy the place?

Q. Yes. A. No, sir.

Q. Who, if you know, put up the money for that property? [1548]

A. Well, it was the only one that talked to me, was Mr. Remmer.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

Q. Do you know how much was paid for that club? A. No, I do not know, sir.

Q. Now, will you state wether or not in the operation of the club if a bank roll was used?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who put up the bank roll?

A. Well, Mr. Kyne put up the bank roll.

Q. Do you know whether or not it was Mr. Kyne's money? A. That I couldn't say.

Q. How much was the amount of it?

A. I couldn't give the correct figure because I don't remember.

Q. You don't recall at this time?

A. No, sir.

Q. Let me show you exhibit here in evidence, Mr. Busterna, plaintiff's Exhibits 110 to 110F inclusive, which have heretofore been identified as poker sheets from the 186 Club, and ask you if you are familiar with sheets of this character used in connection with that business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were such sheets kept daily in connection with the operation of the business?

A. Well, as far as those sheets is concerned, I recognize them all right, but I don't know how they kept them because I don't know much about the office work and I had some people [1549] working in there who kept the sheets themselves.

Q. Were such sheets kept by the employees?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were they employees operating under your direction as manager? A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

Q. Who kept the poker sheets? Who were those individuals, what were they known as?

A. They were kept in the office.

Q. By office, do you refer to a room in the building on the premises?

A. In the office in the club room.

Q. Well, were the people who kept these also known as cashiers? A. Cashiers, yes.

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive, leading his own witness.

The Court: The answer may stand.

Q. Now, I observe that there are several sheets apparently for each day. Can you state how that came about, Mr. Busterna? A. What, sir?

Q. There are several sheets for each day.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How does that come about?

A. I don't know; I couldn't say.

Q. How many hours a day was the club [1550] open. A. Twenty-four hours a day.

Q. Did the employees work in shifts?

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, this sounds like a waste of time. It has been established in the record there were three eight-hour shifts. I think that has all been established in the record, just wasting time going over that again. We will stipulate there were three shifts of work and the place was open 24 hours a day.

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the question.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

(Question read.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now isn't it a fact, Mr. Busterna, that different sheets were kept for each shift?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to. He is cross-examining his own witness. The question is a cross-examination question—isn't it a fact, and setting forth the facts.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. I don't know anything about the office, whatever they did, sir. They kept the sheets themselves. I didn't know anything about it.

Q. Who directed what should be put down on the sheets? Who gave instructions to the employees in that regard? A. Themselves.

Q. Did you give them any instructions as to keeping of these [1551] sheets? A. No, sir.

Q. Who did instruct them?

A. Themselves. They got along together and thought that was the best way to keep them.

Q. Who are they?

A. The office; boys that worked in the office.

Q. What were done with the sheets at the end of each day?

A. They were put away in the drawer.

Q. Then was happened to them?

A. Well, somebody come and picked them up the next day or something.

Q. Who picked them up the next day?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

A. Well, there was Mr. Slater to start with, he was one of them. Mr. Kyne picked them up a few times.

Q. Yes?

A. Then certain times, or times I got around earlier, I made them up myself.

Q. You made them up? A. Yes.

Q. What do you mean?

A. Well, figured them out.

Q. Figured what out, Mr. Busterna?

A. Figured to see how they stood, how much money we made or whether we made any or [1552] not.

Q. Then what would you do with the sheets?

A. Turned them over to 50 Mason Street.

Q. Were any books or records kept on the premises at 186 Club?

A. I don't know, sir. I think there was only the sheets kept.

Q. Well, you say they were delivered over to 50 Mason Street? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that done daily?

A. Well, sometimes daily; sometimes every two or three days or a week.

Q. What was done with the money that was taken in?

A. Well, when there was any money it was brought up to 50 Mason Street and when there wasn't any, it was still brought up there.

Q. What?

A. When there was money in the sheets, it was taken out and put here and sent over to 50 Mason Street.

Q. Where was it put over there?

A. Just left it on top of the table, or if somebody was in charge, Mr. Maundrell or Mr. Slater, or someone, Mr. Kyne. Someone was there all the time.

Q. Was that office open 24 hours a day, too?

A. No, that was in the afternoon.

Q. It was left on top of the table?

A. Well, when there was a man there to receive it, then we gave it to him. [1553]

Q. During the time you were manager there, did you receive any salary?

A. I got twenty-five a day.

Q. Did you receive any other amounts of money?

A. Yes, sir; I got five thousand dollars a year for three years.

Q. For what three years did you get that five thousand? A. 1943, '44 and '45.

Q. What did that represent? What did you get that for? A. Well, 25 per cent.

Q. You were supposed to have 25 per cent?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who told you that? A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. Did you have a written agreement regarding that? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you familiar with the fact that a corporation was formed?

A. No, I never heard anything about it.

Mr. Gillen: We offer the objection it is assuming something not in evidence and misinterpretation of the evidence in the case.

The Court: Well, it has already been answered.

Mr. Gillen: What is it?

The Court: The question was answered.

Mr. Gillen: I know, but the question doesn't contain the facts.

The Court: It has already been cancelled.

Mr. Gillen: The way the question was asked, it would indicate——

Mr. Gillen: All right, if you want the record to be in error, leave it.

error. Did you say if I want to leave the record in error?

Mr. Gillen: No, I said if we want the record to be in error. I was trying to explain something I thought was misleading.

The Court: It may stand.

Q. Mr. Busterna, I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 87, stated to be corporation income and declared value excess profits tax returns for the fiscal year July 1, 1943, to [1555] June 30, 1947, for the 186 Club, and drawing your attention to the signature appearing immediately before the provision "President," I will ask you if you recognize that signature? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: What year is that for?

Mr. Campbell: Fiscal year ending June 30, 1946.

Q. Whose signature is that? Is that your signature? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now did you prepare this return, Mr. Busterna?

A. Well, I can't tell you this because I don't know anything about the keeping or anything about the profits or tax or anything else there; I just don't know.

Q. Who, if anyone, presented that to you for your signature?

A. I think this was presented to me by Mr. Kyne.

Q. Did you read it at the time?

A. No, sir; I did not read it at the time.

Q. Do you, yourself, know whether or not the figures set forth thereon, as relative to income and profit, are correct?

A. That I couldn't tell you, sir; I don't know.

Q. I call your attention to the other document, which is a part of this Exhibit 87, which is entitled "Tentative Return Corporation Excess Profits Tax Return Fiscal Year Beginning July 1, 1943, and Ending June 30, 1944," and ask you if that is your signature there as president?

A. That is my signature. [1556]

Q. Who, if anyone, presented this to you for your signature?

A. I think that was also Mr. Kyne.

Q. Do you know whether or not the figures set forth thereon are true and correct?

A. I don't know, sir; I couldn't tell you.

Q. Now when you signed this as president, to what did you refer? A. Sir?

Q. When you signed that as president, to what did you refer?

Mr. Gillen: Object to that, it speaks for itself, may it please the Court, we object to it on that ground.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. I don't know. I just signed it. It was presented to me and that's all, I signed it.

Q. I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 88A, the corporation income and declared value excess profits tax return of the 186 Club fiscal year beginning July 1, 1944, and ending June 30, 1945; directing your attention to the signature thereon,

Q. You did not put that on there?

A. No, sir.

Q. Are you familiar with the figures set forth in this return and the schedule set forth in this return? A. No, sir; I am not.

Q. Do you know whether or not the figures set forth herein and the information set forth herein are true and accurate?

A. I couldn't tell you, sir.

Q. This is noted as signed the 15th day of February, 1945. Do you recall who, if anyone, presented this to you for your signature?

A. That would only be one man to me, Mr. Kyne, that's all.

Q. I direct your attention to the fact that there has been testimony that Mr. Kyne was at that time in the service.

A. Well, I couldn't say; either he or Mr. Slater, that is the only two ever presented me this kind of papers.

Q. I am going to direct your attention to defendant's Exhibit A, which purports to be the Articles of Incorporation of the 186 Club, as certified to by the Secretary of State of the State of Cali-

Q. Will you examine it?

A. I couldn't recall having seen. [1558]

Q. You couldn't recall having seen the document set forth on the 2nd and third pages following the certificate? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever attend any directors' or officers' meetings of the 186 Club?

A. No, sir; we had none.

Q. Do you know whether or not any minute books were kept of the 186 Club?

A. That I couldn't tell you, sir.

Q. Do I understand you that you were to have a 25 per cent interest in the 186 Club?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who else, if anyone, had an interest in that club?

Mr. Gillen: I think the record would be the best evidence, the books and records of the club.

The Court: He may answer the question.

Q. Yes? A. Supposed to be Mr. White.

Q. Mr. White?

A. Well, Mr. Dutch White; I don't know his name.

Q. Are you referring to Attilio Casselini?

A. Casselini, that's right. There was another one, Niels—he is dead now.

Q. Nelus?

A. Nelus and Kopstick. They are all supposed to have a part of the club.

Q. Do you know what interest they had?

A. I can't tell you.

Q. Do you know whether or not Mr. Remmer had an interest?

A. Yes, sir; he was supposed to have an interest also.

Q. Do you know what his interest was?

A. I couldn't tell you, sir.

Q. You say in addition to your daily wage or salary of $25, also in each of the years 1943, 1944 and 1945 you received the amount of five thousand dollars? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who paid you that money?

A. Mr. Remmer gave it to me.

Q. And what did that money represent? [1560]

A. My 25 per cent.

Q. Of the profits? A. Of the profits.

A. It was given to me in cash.

Q. By cash, do you refer to currency?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it given to you at any particular time of each of the years?

A. The end of the year, along about this time, maybe around about Christmas week.

Q. In other words, at the end of the year or beginning of the following year; is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that the returns which you signed, which show the 186 Club to be on a fiscal year basis ending June 30th each year. Were you ever paid any of those sums around about June 30th of any of the years involved?

A. What was that?

Q. Were you ever paid this five thousand dollar amount around about June 30th of any of the three years in which you received it? [1561]

A. I can't recall.

Q. You stated, I believe, in reference to the poker sheets, that on occasions you made these up yourself? A. Occasionally, yes.

Q. I am going to ask you to examine these and state whether any of these were made up by you? I am referring to the 110 series.

A. There are some by me; yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I will come to that in a moment.

Q. Do you recognize any of those?

A. Yes, sir; here is one.

Mr. Campbell: The witness has handed me 110 (e).

A. There is another one.

Mr. Campbell: The witness has handed me 110 (d).

A. That is all, those three.

Q. Now in regard to Exhibit 110F, which purports to be for December 31, 1946, when you say you made this up, to what portions of the exhibit do you refer? What did you make up on [1562] that? A. I can't see from here.

Q. I ask you, Mr. Busterna, what portion you made up. What figures did you put in, either on the face or the back of those sheets, 110F?

A. Well, here, there, sir; right over here. This 479 and 355, we taken off.

Q. You are referring to the totals of the columns on the sheet? A. That's right.

Q. Showing the amounts of loans and the returns and the take from the table; is that correct?

A. No, show the ins and outs and receipts of the day. As far as the IOU's and stuff like that, I don't know much about it. I don't know a thing about it.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

Q. By IOU's are you referring to items on the right-hand column? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You didn't make those up? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you keep any record of those yourself?

A. No.

Q. Whose duty was that?

A. That was the clerk at 50 Mason Street.

Q. Do you know who at 50 Mason Street kept those records?

A. Well, the bookkeepers there, like Mr. Slater for one. [1563] After Mr. Slater was gone, I think Mr. Maundrell or the girl. There was other people working there.

Q. Now with regard to this sheet and to the portions on the left side where you have total. Calling your attention to the column, "Amount loaned," against which amounts are set forth opposite names in the left-hand column, to what does that refer?

A. This refers to when you start the games, you have different people to play, you might have to put somebody in or yourself, you have to play yourself in order to keep the games going, you have to fill in. It is losses and winning.

Q. Do those refer to amounts advanced to people employed by the house to keep the games going?

A. Not employed by the house. For people who would be around there, that you could put in. For instance, you have a game $22 limit, you have to have $20 to play and some people haven't got $20.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

Q. The house advances it?

A. The house advances, or else somebody that stays there a long time, you give them the money.

Q. What was done with the profits?

A. If they won, they get half; if they lose, it don't cost them nothing.

Q. On this 110F first page, I notice amount loaned is 355 and the amount returned is [1564] 480.50. A. That's right.

Q. It was a winning sheet, as far as the players that the house was backing, was concerned?

A. That's right.

Q. You have also included in the 355 the wages of four house men, is that correct, that is yourself and three employees? A. I don't know.

Q. I call your attention to $25 Busterna wage?

A. Yes, it is there. Evidently that is where they put it. I never know how they kept sheets or nothing.

Q. And you yourself know nothing about whether the club was operating at a profit or loss?

A. Well, we operated at a profit, sir.

Q. At a profit? A. A little profit, yes.

Q. Is that true during the years 1944, 1945 and 1946? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you operated at a profit for each year?

A. If I recall it right, yes, sir.

Q. What was the source of your knowledge in that regard; that is to say, was it from books or records or from your personal observation?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

A. Personal observation. I don't know anything about the books, never seen a book or nothing.

Q. Had you been in that business before, Mr. Busterna? [1565]

A. No, that is the first time.

Q. Do you know whether or not a bank account was maintained for the business?

A. Bank account?

Q. Yes. A. I don't know, sir.

Q. Did you have access to any safety deposit box in connection with the business? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you have access to the safe at 52 Mason Street? A. No, sir.

Q. Now what was done with the winnings each day? You stated you delivered the poker sheets to 50 Mason Street? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You also delivered the winnings there, or did you? A. Delivered all; yes, sir.

Q. On those occasions would you receive a receipt from anyone? A. No, sir.

Q. In addition to the $25 a day which was paid you and the five thousand dollars you say which was paid you for 1943, 1944 and 1945 by Mr. Remmer, did you receive any further compensation?

A. No, sir, except that I owed some money myself to the club.

Q. You borrowed some money from the club?

A. I didn't borrow it. I just used it for myself to play lowball with.

Q. Did you owe that money at the end of [1566] 1946?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

A. I owed it for a period of a couple of years; yes, sir.

Q. Will you state whether or not that represented your personal gambling or gambling in behalf of the club?

A. That was my own personal gambling.

Q. Will you state whether or not that was an account owed by you to the 186 Club?

A. Well, just wrote an IOU, that's all.

Q. But it was owed by you to the club? You owed that to the Club? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How much did that amount to?

A. I am not sure whether 30 or 35 thousand, something of that sort.

Q. Do you recall the amount at the end of 1946?

A. That was the end. I didn't go any further with it.

Q. How much did you owe December 31, 1946, do you recall?

A. Supposed to be in the books. I don't remember whether 30, 31, 32, 33, or 35 thousand.

Q. I call your attention to 110F, the poker sheets for December 31, 1946, and to the column which you stated represented the IOU's or markers, and ask you whether or not your name appears upon that list?

A. No, it doesn't appear here, sir.

Q. Now will you state whether or not on that date you owed any money? [1567]

A. Well, I don't remember when I owed it. I know I owed within a period of a couple of years.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

What date I just couldn't tell you, I don't know.

Q. I show you the sheet January 1, 1944, and call your attention to the item on what you have called Marker, Bert, $3500.79; does that represent the amount you owed on that date?

A. That is my name here; yes, sir.

Q. Is that the amount that you owed on that date? A. It might have been.

Q. What is your best recollection?

A. Well, I couldn't say. It is my name, all right.

Q. I call your attention to 110 (d), poker sheets for December 31, 1945, and the item Bert, $8500.

A. That's right.

Q. Is that the amount that you owed on that date? A. It must have been; yes, sir.

Q. Now you say it amounted to 30 or 31 thousand dollars. Do you recall when it reached that amount? Do you recall what date it was that you owed that amount?

A. I couldn't recall the date. It was around '46.

Q. Do you recall what date in 1946?

A. No, sir; I can't recall the dates, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to ask to have these two photostatic pages marked government's next in order for identification. [1568]

Q. Showing you plaintiff's Exhibit 149 for identification, I will ask you if you ever saw the original document of which that is a photostatic copy?

A. Yes, I have seen this.

Q. Where did you see it?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

A. Well, they do carry a sheet like that in the office of the club.

Q. Do you know what date this particular sheet was made up?

A. No, unless it is dated, sir, I couldn't tell you.

Q. Do you recognize the handwriting on this?

A. They are the sheets in the office—some one's handwriting, one of the boys, I don't know which one.

Q. Now calling your attention to the poker sheets 110(e) for January 1, 1946, and under the right-hand column, which you say represent the IOUs, there first appears Kyne, $28,170. Do you know what that refers to?

A. Well, it might have been a credit due to him, I couldn't tell you.

Q. That did not represent an IOU from Kyne to the club then? A. I couldn't say.

Q. The next appears "Tax box $1769." Do you know what that is?

A. That is when we run short of money, I think Mr. Kyne had this much money coming to him, credit to him. This tax box, we run short of money sometimes and we use the tax box money if we did need cash. [1569]

Q. What was the tax box money?

A. The tax box money is money that they take out for employers.

Q. That is withholding?

A. I don't understand, but that is the way I got it.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

Q. That was used in the conduct of the business?

A. That was put away and certain times we didn't have enough money to cash checks, we used that for replacement.

Q. As I understand, as to those first two items, Kyne and tax box, they represent money that the 186 Club owed rather than money that was owing to it?

A. I guess so, that's the way I figured.

Q. We have here Clemente $9115, what does that represent?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. I think that is not assisting the tryers of the fact. If a man knows, he knows; if he doesn't know, he can say so.

The Court: Well, the jury will understand. That is a matter on credibility.

Mr. Gillen: If the witness only thinks so, believes that to be so, it isn't very helpful to us.

The Court: The answer may stand.

Q. I call your attention to Clemente, $9115, what does that represent?

A. Sir, truthfully I couldn't tell you whether they owed us money or had money coming. I couldn't say because I don't [1570] know anything about the books. I am sorry to say I don't.

Q. There is an item here, Busterna $8500.

A. Well, that is money I owed, I guess must be, can't be any other way.

Q. That was money you owed or money owed to you? A. No, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

Mr. Gillen: He is cross-examining his own witness.

Q. Now, Mr. Busterna, do you recall whether or not a 1946 return for the 186 Club was prepared?

A. No, sir. For that year I never even filed one myself.

Q. I am referring to the fiscal year ending June 30, 1946. Do you know whether or not a return was prepared or filed for that year?

A. I don't know anything they done outside the 186 Club.

Q. I am asking about the 186 Club, if a return was filed?

A. I don't know anything they done, sir, whether they made returns or not. I don't know anything about it.

Mr. Campbell: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Busterna, you testified that you originally heard that the 186 Club was for sale, is that true? A. That's right.

Q. And that hearing that, you went to Mr. Remmer and asked him if he would be interested in purchasing the 186 Club?

A. That's right. [1571]

Q. Of course, you had in mind when you made that proposal that you would become identified with it, have an interest in it, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

Q. Did you negotiate for the purchase of that at all yourself, or did you leave that to Mr. Remmer and his associates?

A. I didn't do anything of the kind.

Q. Just advised him of the availability of the place, that is, it was for sale, is that correct?

A. That's right.

Q. And then subsequently you became a president of the enterprise and got $25 a day salary, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. What hours did you work there?

A. Well, I worked, you might say all hours.

Q. I mean what was your usual time, night or day time? A. I never had any usual hours.

Q. Now you stated the place was open 24 hours a day, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And there were three 8-hour shifts, were there not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And for each shift there was a cashier in the cage, isn't that so? A. That is right. [1572]

Q. And he was the man who kept track of the money for his 8-hour shift, is that correct?

A. That is right.

Q. And at the end of this 8-hour shift he would make out a sheet as to how things stood at the end of his shift, is that true? A. That's right.

Q. The other man would take over from that, the succeeding cashier? A. That is right.

Q. Then there were employees, were there not, who took care of games from the floor and supplied chips, etc., floor men, so called?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

A. That's right, floor men.

Q. Now you were there from 1943 until 1947?

A. That's correct.

Q. Directing your attention to defendant's Exhibit A, the 186 Club was already incorporated when it was purchased by Mr. Remmer and his associates, isn't that true? A. That's right.

Q. In other words, that was incorporated on July 7, 1939, according to this exhibit, so that at the time you suggested to Mr. Remmer that he buy the place, it was already an incorporated club, incorporated under the laws of the State of California, is that true? [1573] A. That's right.

Q. Now do you recall an Internal Revenue agent, a Mr. Mooser, coming to the club and checking the club for a period of about a month, for the purpose of determining the approximate amount of business it did?

A. I remember something about it, yes.

Q. Is it within your knowledge that Mr. Mooser stated that the club would have to make the return as a corporation rather than partnership?

A. No, I never got into a conversation with him. I don't know anything about it.

Q. Was Mr. Slater the accountant who attended to the books of the club there?

A. At the time, yes.

Q. And during the time that Mr. Kyne was in the army, who was it that attended to the affairs of the club, 186 Club?

Mr. Campbell: Object to the question in that

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

form as assuming that Mr. Kyne had anything to do with the affairs.

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the question.

A. I don't know. I don't remember exactly but I think Mr. Slater was still active at that time.

Q. Was there any other accountant that had anything to do with the affairs of the 186 Club?

A. I can't recall it. [1574]

Q. Was there a Mr. Shaw took care of some of the books? A. Never heard of him.

Q. Never heard of Mr. Shaw.

A. Never heard of him.

Q. Do you remember a Mr. Byrne, a public accountant? A. Mr. Byrne?

Q. Yes, do you remember a Mr. Byrne? Do you recall whether he had anything to do with the accounts of the 186 Club?

A. No, sir, I can't recall him.

Q. Now I understood you to testify that in addition to the money that you drew out of the club by way of salary and by way of any other dividend or profit, that you also took out of the club funds, money, to indulge in some personal gambling, is that correct?

A. Yes, I played the house play low-ball.

Q. That wasn't for the club or the corporation, it was on your own?

A. My own personally, yes.

Q. And you simply took from the funds of the club and put your marker in?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

A. Put chips in and lost them and had to be paid, so charged them to me.

Q. So you put your marker in?

A. That is right.

Q. There were other markers beside yours, were there not? [1575] A. Oh, yes.

Q. There were quite a considerable number of markers?

A. There was quite a few markers, yes.

Q. And I take it that this 31 thousand or 35 thousand, whatever it was, that you ultimately owed the club, didn't happen all at the same time, at once? I mean, it was something that went over a period of time?

A. No, it wasn't all at once. It was over a period of time.

Q. So if the records showed one time you owed 8 thousand or 86 hundred, you might say that might be so? A. Yes.

Q. And then if another time in 1946 the records showed that you owed $31,600, you would say that that might be accumulation—I wonder if I can cross-examine the witness without——

Mr. Campbell: I was simply holding up my hand.

Mr. Gillen: It is very distracting.

Q. (Continuing): ——of your markers over a period of time?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming a fact not in evidence. The books are the best evidence.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

The books and records here show no such figure.

The Court: You say the books do not show?

Mr. Campbell: $31,000, no, your Honor. Such records in evidence here do not reflect such a figure.

The Court: I thought they reflected a figure of 30 thousand. [1576]

Mr. Campbell: No, your Honor, as of the end of the period I read the item to the witness, $500.

The Court: I think that is correct. There was no such entry in the books. Let us have the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: I think, Mr. Gillen, there is nothing in evidence——

Mr. Gillen: I understand there is no documentary evidence, but certainly evidence of his indebtedness from his own testimony.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Well, did you owe 31 thousand dollars at any time?

A. I might have, I don't know whether 31 or 35, it may be 36, I don't know. I am not positive whether it was thirty.

Q. Are you certain it was over thirty thousand dollars?

A. It was over thirty thousand dollars, yes.

Q. It was over thirty thousand dollars?

A. Yes.

Q. And that was an accumulation, was it, over a period of time?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

A. That was over a period of a couple of years, sir, if I recall it right. I am not positive.

Q. I understand you to say that you had no interest whatever or participation in anything concerning the Day-Night Cigar Stand, which was the liquor store and cigar stand in the front of the [1577] 186 Club? A. That's right.

Q. Now you testified it was your recollection that the amount of your markers, 31 thousand or 35 thousand, whichever it was, what was you owed at the end of 1946, is that correct?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as stating a fact not in evidence. He didn't testify as to any particular date.

Mr. Gillen: Let us have the record.

The Court: That is my understanding at this time.

Mr. Campbell: No, your Honor, I went to considerable length to fix the date.

The Court: Let us look at the record.

(Question read.)

The Court: Answer the question.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever pay those markers, 30 or 35 thousand dollars markers off? A. No.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial. I ask the answer be stricken.

The Court: It may go out. What is your objection?

Mr. Campbell: My objection is it is immaterial

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

what is the subsequent history for the obligation owing at that date. It is the obligation owing at that time, the last date of the period. [1578]

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. No, sir, I never paid it.

Q. You still owe the 186 Club 30 to 35 thousand dollars? A. That's right.

Q. Now do you have any recollection of how much the other markers amounted to, other than your own?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to—the books and records are the best evidence.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. Really I couldn't tell you, sir.

Q. Do you know what the status was the end of 1946 with regard to markers other than your own?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection, the books and records are the best evidence.

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the question.

A. There are quite a few markers out. I couldn't recall the right amount.

Q. Isn't it a fact that practically all the profits of the 186 Club went out in markers?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. Well, I don't think all the profits went out for markers, but it was so we didn't make as much money as we thought we would make.

Q. Isn't it a fact that you had to replenish your

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

bank roll [1579] frequently from other enterprises.

A. Certain days we run short of money, that is right, we had to go ask the office for funds.

Q. That is because you had markers rather than cash? A. That's right.

Q. And sometimes you even had to go to the social security box, the tax box, to get money, isn't that so? A. I just said that, yes, sir.

Q. And you presently have no independent remembrance of how the marker situation stood in regard to the 186 Club at the end of 1946?

A. All I know, the man working in the office took care of all books. I don't know anything about it, what they did or didn't do. The only time I knew when they run short of money and they asked me for money and I called up the office and got some whenever I could.

Q. Now, Mr. Busterna, I am going to hand you, with the clerk's permission, two photostatic sheets, designated plaintiff's Exhibit 149 for identification. Mr. Campbell showed you those two sheets before and you testified that they were the type of sheet that was kept by the club, do you recall that?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now does that refresh your recollection as to how the marker situation stood at the 186 Club, aside from your own markers? [1580]

Mr. Campbell: As of what date? I object unless the date is stated.

The Court: Can you supply the date you have in mind?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

Mr. Gillen: I asked him with regard to 1946 but I am asking him now if that assists him in recalling anything about the situation?

A. Well, this was the way they kept the markers.

Q. There is no date on either of those pages?

A. No.

Q. Is there anything about those pages that assists you to recall when that page may have been made out?

A. I couldn't recall even if there was a date in it, because I don't remember.

Q. Mr. Busterna, I am going to ask you to look at the left-hand column of the first page of this exhibit, the third entry from the bottom of the page, and I will ask you if you know who that refers to and what it refers to?

Mr. Campbell: I am going to make objection that the document until further identified—this can be supplied by stipulation—it is not in evidence, if the Court please. I think he can lay the foundation for the document.

The Court: It is not in evidence, Mr. Gillen. What is your purpose? If the question is just to have presented in the record the contents of the instrument, I think the objection is good. [1581]

Mr. Gillen: No, my purpose is to show a certain item to the witness and see if that aids him in identifying the document.

The Court: Then can't you reframe your question so it will appear to him that this is the purpose, rather than have him read something.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

Mr. Gillen: All right. I will withdraw the last question.

Q. I now ask you, Mr. Busterna, to look at the third from the last item on the left-hand side of the first page of that exhibit and tell me whether, looking at that, that refreshes your recollection in any respect as to the time that that sheet was made out or what period of time it represents?

Mr. Campbell: I am going to make an objection. As previously stated, in response to counsel's question and my questions, he does not recognize the handwriting, he doesn't know when it was made and he has never seen it before.

The Court: Objection will be overruled. It goes to the weight.

Q. Do you have the question in mind?

A. I don't know when this was made, sir. All I read here is my name, Bert, $31,600, that is all I know about it and there is no time or date I can recall.

Q. Do you have any independent recollection at this time of any period of time that you owed $31,600 to the 186 Club?

A. Will you repeat that again please? [1582]

Q. Do you have any independent remembrance in your mind now of when you owed, if you did at any time owe, the sum of $31,600 to the 186 Club?

A. Well, just as I went along, within a period of a couple of years.

Q. Now my question is now do you remember

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

any particular time when the amount you owed the 186 Club was $31,600?

A. I am not positive whether I owe 31 thousand or 36 thousand.

Q. So your answer is you don't remember any specific time when you owed that exact amount?

A. I don't remember, sir.

Q. I understand you to say when Mr. Kyne was connected with the enterprise and other than the time he was in the army Mr. Kyne used to come and pick up the poker sheets on occasions and the money from the 186 Club, is that correct?

A. He did, yes.

Q. And they were taken over to Mr. Maundrell, or whoever was keeping books?

A. I don't know what he did, but the only time I can say Maundrell got the sheets is when I brought it over.

Q. And then when Mr. Kyne was away, you on occasions brought the sheets over to 50 Mason Street? A. That is right.

Q. And if there was some money, you brought over the money and turned it over to whoever was in charge of the office at that [1583] time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Some times Mr. Maundrell? A. Yes.

Q. Sometimes Mr. Slater?

A. Sometimes a lady there.

Q. A lady there, the secretary?

A. Secretary, yes, sir.

Q. Now among the persons who had an interest

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

in the 186 Club was Mr. Nelus and Mr. Kopstick, you testified? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know what interest they had?

A. I couldn't tell you, sir. There were five or six in it, I don't know.

Q. And you said Mr. Nelus was now deceased?

A. Yes, and so is Mr. Kopstick.

Q. He is also dead? A. He is also dead.

Q. Did Mr. Nelus and Mr. Kopstick remain in the organization or withdraw?

A. I don't know. I heard they were partners but they never took active part in it, either one. It was seldom they come in.

Q. Was anything brought to your attention about reimbursing them for the investment that they made in the place? [1584] A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know that they were reimbursed for the investment that they made in the one-sixth interest in the enterprise between them?

A. I couldn't say, sir.

Q. Now you were designated as president of the club, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the returns that you made on taxes for the corporation to the government was not prepared by you?

A. The only tax returns I made was for money I got and Mr. Slater made them for me. Nothing else, I don't know anything about that.

Q. In other words, Mr. Slater helped you with your own personal return?

A. Yes, I just took care of my personal.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

Q. Do you know who made out the income tax returns for the corporation? A. No, sir.

Q. You said they were presented to you either by Mr. Kyne or Mr. Slater?

A. Yes, papers I signed, yes.

Q. Those papers Mr. Campbell showed to you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And as to the details of those, I assume that you left that [1585] up to the accountant to work it out? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now do you recall how long Mr. Mooser, the Internal Revenue agent, was around the 186 Club?

A. No. There was one time I heard his name is all. I never had any conversation.

Q. Regardless of conversation, do you remember seeing him there? A. No, sir.

Q. You were there every day yourself, were you not, through the period of years that you were identified with the place? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you were present there mostly at night or in the day time?

A. Well, just a question of when I must go there, whenever I felt like it. Sometimes I go out and sleep and eat and come back and go to work again.

Q. Did anybody point Mr. Mooser out to you or introduce you to Mr. Mooser, the Internal Revenue agent? A. No, sir.

Q. Did any one tell you Mr. Mooser was there checking the average business of the place regarding what tax should be paid?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as hearsay.

The Court: Answer the question yes or no. [1586]

A. No, sir.

Q. When you say you heard Mr. Mooser's name mentioned, by whom did you hear it mentioned?

A. Mr. Willie Kyne.

Q. And what did Mr. Willie Kyne say about Mr. Mooser? Did he say he was an Internal Revenue agent?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Did he identify Mr. Mooser for you?

A. No, sir.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling—he answered.

Q. How did you know it was Mr. Mooser the revenue agent Mr. Kyne was referring to?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. He never pointed him out to me. I just don't know Mr. Mooser.

Q. I understand that, but you heard Mr. Mooser's name—how do you know it was Mr. Mooser, the revenue agent?

A. I don't know, I am just thinking about Mr. Mooser's name. I don't know where he was. Mr. Kyne just mentioned some time or other.

Q. Earlier I asked you question, do you recall Mr. Mooser, the Internal Revenue agent, was in the 186 Club for some period of time checking the Club, and you said you had heard something [1587] about that, do you recall?

A. I heard the name Mooser but didn't hear about his being in the club.

Q. Did you hear he was an Internal Revenue agent?

A. I can't recall. It was quite a long time ago.

Q. You don't remember anything but hearing the name Mr. Mooser from Mr. Kyne?

A. Yes, sir.

January 3, 1951, 10:00 A.M.

(Defendant present with counsel.)

(Presence of the jury and alternate jurors stipulated.)

Mr. Campbell: May it please the Court, at this time, pursuant to stipulation which has been entered into, I wish to substitute photostatic copies for the original exhibits 147, 147A and 147B for identification.

Mr. Gillen: No objection.

The Court: Very well, the copies may be substituted.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, in connection with the examination of Mr. Busterna, the government has previously produced the series 110 to

BLURRED COPY

110F, which your Honor will recall were so-called daily poker sheets from the 186 Club. At this time I would like to request counsel, through the Court, to produce the balance of the poker sheets for the 186 Club. This series of exhibits represents the first and last day of the years involved in the indictment, with no intervening poker sheets. It was my information those were all turned over to the government and were in the hands of the government and I would like to have them produced at this time.

Mr. Campbell: We have no objection. It will take a minute or two.

Mr. Gillen: In the interest of time, I can proceed with the examination. [1589]

MR. BUSTERNA

resumes the witness stand on further

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Busterna, although you testified that you personally had nothing to do with the keeping of books or records of the 186 Club, you do know, do you not, that the daily poker sheets that were kept by the cashiers represented the income and the output for that particular shift of each cashier, is that correct?

A. Well, the bookkeepers they kept their own books.

Q. Well, what I am getting at is this—each cashier did keep a sheet for his shift, did he not?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

A. For his own shift, yes.

Q. To show what money he disbursed and what money he took in, am I correct?

A. That is right.

Q. And those were the sheets that were turned over to Mr. Slater and from which the records of the club were kept and from which the income tax returns were made, isn't that true?

Mr. Campbell: Object to that question in that form, assuming a fact not in evidence. The evidence is they were delivered at 50 Mason Street.

The Court: Let us hear the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: I submit further it is a compound question which can not be answered with a yes or no. [1590]

Mr. Gillen: I am not asking for a yes or no answer.

The Court: Let me have the question again.

(Question read.)

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. Well, they were sheets that were turned over to Mr. Slater or else the office at 50 Mason Street.

Q. And those were the records that were turned over from which the books were kept or income tax returns made for the club, isn't that so?

A. That's the sheets, yes.

Q. Outside of the cashiers and the floor men, you were the only partner or member of the corporation or officer of the corporation that put in full time, isn't that correct? A. That's right.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

Q. The other men were employees, such as the shifts of cashiers and the floor men who looked after the floor, they were the only other full-time employees; is that true?

A. Put in full eight hours and they were through.

Q. And you were the only partner or official of the club who put in full time, is that true?

A. That's right, sir.

Q. Now you stated yesterday that you received $25 a day or that you took out $25 a day out of the bank roll of the club, that is true, is it not?

A. That's right. [1591]

Q. Now did you put that $25 in your pocket or did you use that for expenses in and about the club?

A. Well, I didn't file for the $25 a day I received from the 186 Club for the reason is that it was put in my pocket—well, there are a lot of fellows, small gamblers, whatever you call them, small players, lose five or ten dollars, after they had lost that they come to me always for a half dollar or dollar or two and by me giving to them at the end of the day I wound up with nothing.

Q. I understood you to say that you were not familiar at all with Mr. Mooser, the Internal Revenue man, spending about a month at the club checking on the average business that the club did. You were not familiar with that? A. No, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

Q. You did state, however, that you received for three different years five thousand dollars a year, which you believed was a dividend on the profits of the club, is that correct?

Mr. Campbell: Assuming something not in evidence. He said he was paid——

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: It is assuming a fact not in evidence, your Honor?

The Court: Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: I understood his testimony to be that he thought he was receiving 25 per cent of the profits of the club. [1592]

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Q. Well, you did testify that you received each year for three years, 1943, 1944 and 1945, five thousand dollars each year? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now is it your understanding that the club each year made the same amount of money?

A. That I don't know. All I say is that at the end of the year that there was five thousand dollars handed to me.

Q. Now I am going to direct your attention to the prosecution's Exhibit No. 87A and that exhibit shows on the face that it was prepared by Louis H. Mooser, Jr., Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue at San Francisco, California, and it is the return of the 186 Club for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1943, and ending June 30, 1944, and I am going to read you a portion of this return and ask you if this refreshes your recollection of what you received, Mr. Busterna. Schedule I reads as follows:

"During the month of June, 1944, Louis H. Mooser, Deputy Collector from the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue at San Francisco, California, called at the office of the above-stated corporation and examined its books and records for the fiscal period ending June 30, 1943, and required said corporation to file forms 1120-21 and 707 for said period. These returns were filed under Section 2606 of the I. R. code, which gives a deputy collector the authority to file such returns [1593] where either no records are kept or where records are not adequately kept. In the case of the 186 Club the records reported only the daily net take and were therefore not adequately kept and this was the status of the accounts of said corporation up to and including June, 1944, the date on which the Deputy Collector Mooser made his audit.

"Mr. Mooser determined from an examination that he made of the daily tally sheets that the daily average net take was $70. Mr. Mooser believes that this determination would cover the entire period up to June, 1944.

"The returns filed by the corporation for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1943, were prepared on this basis and have been approved by the Collector.

"In 1944 the taxpayer filed an application with the deputy commissioner Salary Stabilization Unit for the following annual salaries for its officers: Bert Busterna, president, $6,000; Attilio Casselini, vice-president, $4,000; W. E. Kyne, secretary,

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

$5,000; Sylvan Lando, treasurer, $4,000; total $19,000. The Salary Stabilization Unit has approved said applications.

"The books of account for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1944, disclose a total net take of $13,265.15. In preparing corporation returns (112- and 1121) for the [1594] said fiscal year, the corporation is reporting its total net take for the year on the same basis as that which was used by Deputy Collector Mooser, $70 per day; 366 x $70, $25,620.00 (a)."

Let me ask you there, was it brought to your attention that although the net take shows for the club for that fiscal year was only $13,265.15, that the Club nevertheless used the figures of $70 a day which had been set up by Mr. Mooser and paid on $25,620 take, was that brought to your attention?

A. I don't know anything about that, sir.

Mr. Gillen (Continuing to read):

"However, when the returns for the prior period were prepared by the Deputy no provision was made for the compensation of administrative officers. This, however, has now been approved at $19,000 per year by the Salary Stabilization Unit. Therefore, the net taxable corporate income for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1944, is calculated as follows: (a) net take on the basis of Deputy Collector Mooser's findings (before administrative salaries) $25,630; (b) administrative salaries allowed by S. S. Unit, $19,000; net taxable income, $6,620."

Q. Now does that refresh your recollection, Mr. Busterna, that for that fiscal year you received $6,000? A. No, sir. [1595]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

Mr. Campbell: May the record show that there has now been produced, and we will turn over to the clerk, some three cartons, purportedly containing poker sheets of the 186 Club.

Mr. Gillen: It will be practical, from my standpoint, for me to continue my examination.

Mr. Campbell: I simply want the records to show that they have been produced and we are delivering them to the custody of the clerk.

Q. Now, directing your attention to the prosecution's Exhibit 88A, which is the tax return of the 186 Club corporation for the fiscal year commencing July 1, 1944, and ending June 30, 1945, there is set forth here, Mr. Busterna, a similar statement regarding the audit made by Mr. Mooser and the formula set by him at $70 a day, as in the other one, and in addition to that he set forth the following language:

"In 1944 the taxpayer filed an application with the Deputy Commissioner Salary Stabilization Unit for annual salaries for its officers, which has been approved, as follows: Bert Busterna, President, $4,500; Attilio Casselini, vice-president, $3,000; Wm. E. Kyne, secretary, $3,600; Sylvan Lando, treasurer, $3,000."

Attilio Casselini has an (a) in brackets and that shows Attilio Casselini resigned April 15, 1945, net salary paid during the fiscal year, from July 1, 1944, to June 30, 1945; and W. E. Kyne has a (b) behind his name and that (b) shows, "Served 7½ [1596] months, succeeded by Elmer F. Remmer, who served during the remaining 4½ months at the same rate, said W. E. Kyne earning $2,250 and Elmer F. Remmer earning $1,350.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

"The books of account for the year 1944 disclose a total net of $20,533.15. In preparing the corporate returns, (1120 and 1121) for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1945, the corporation is reporting its total net take for the year on the same basis as that which was used by Deputy Collector Mooser, $70 per day; 70 x 365, $25,555. (c) However, when returns for the prior period were prepared by the Deputy, no provision was made for compensation of administrative officers. This, however, has been approved at $14,100 per year by the Salary Stabilization Unit, as stated hereinbefore, total salaries actually paid during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1945, were $11,100. Therefore, the net taxable corporate income for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1945, is calculated as follows: (c) net take on the basis of Deputy Collector Mooser's findings (before administrative salaries paid) $25,550. Administrative salaries allowed by Salary Stabilization Unit actually paid by the corporation, $11,100; net taxable income $14,450."

Now was that brought to your attention or explained to you? [1597] A. No, sir.

Q. Does that refresh your recollection that during that period you received salary in the sum of $4,500, received compensation for your full time services in the 186 Club in the sum of $4,500?

A. The only thing I got was $5,000 a year,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

whether it was from 25 per cent or anything else, I don't know.

Q. That is what you made your income tax return on?

A. That is what I returned my income tax on.

Q. Who made your return out?

A. Mr. Slater.

Q. And Mr. Slater didn't make your return out on $25 a day, but only for the actual amount you received, is that correct?

A. That's all. I tried to explain to him and he filed my income at five thousand dollars.

Q. You gave him the information and he prepared the return and you signed it, is that correct?

A. That is right.

Q. Now, there were other officers in this corporation who did not receive a salary, is that correct? A. You mean in the club room?

Q. Other officers of the corporation of the 186 Club?

A. Well, I don't know anything about it. Nobody received wages but me except for the rest of the help.

Q. Now, isn't it a fact that the reason the other officers didn't [1598] get any salary was because the 186 Club was so heavily laden with markers there was no more money to pay?

A. That I don't know. I can't answer.

Q. Isn't it a fact that by the end of 1946 there was something in excess of 60 thousand dollars worth of markers or IOUs in the 186 Club instead of cash?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

A. Yes, sir, there was a lot of markers, but I don't know just how much.

Q. Isn't it a fact in addition to the markers there were five thousand odd dollars in bad checks at the 186 Club?

A. There was a few bad checks, yes, sir.

Q. Do you know whether there was five thousand dollars or more?

A. No, sir, I can't recall.

Q. Do you know whether the markers were 60 thousand dollars or more?

A. I can't recall that.

Q. Would it be your recollection at the time William E. Kyne returned from the service, which was in June, 1946, that you were obligated to the 186 Club in the sum of about 35 thousand dollars for markers or IOUs?

A. I owed that money within a p[illegible]d of a few years up until the end of '46.

Q. Mr. Busterna, just another question or two. Your recollection is that in 1946, or the end of 1946, you owed, you said, between 30 to 35 thousand dollars, or it might have been 36 [1599] thousand, that is what you said yesterday, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were the other markers from other people as large as that, if you know?

A. I couldn't say how much. There was a lot of markers.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

Q. You don't recall how much?

A. No, sir.

Q. You don't recall whether another 35 thousand or 60 thousand over and above your markers?

A. I couldn't say. There were quite a few markers but I don't know just how much.

Q. One of your duties was to OK people who bet on markers, isn't that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And also OK checks in instances, is that correct? A. That's right.

Q. The markers were treated the same as money on the account books, weren't they, on the sheets?

A. That I can't understand. It is up to the bookkeeper to explain that. They know how to carry it somehow. I don't know just how to carry it. All I know, when we run short of money we had to get it some place, so we called the office, 50 Mason Street, and informed the bookkeeper that we needed some money or Mr. Kyne, and naturally we got it, whether that day or the next day, we would give him the markers. [1600]

Q. In other words, so you could have money instead of markers?

A. You have to have cash money to work with, yes, sir.

Q. So the markers were then counted as money?

A. They were counted as money, yes.

Q. You called on 50 Mason Street quite often during the operation of that 186 Club, didn't you?

A. Well, not very often. Sometimes I would go

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

every day and sometimes every other day or fourth day, just depends how I had time and so on.

Mr. Campbell: I think the question was confusing, when he called—whether he was making a visit or calling for money.

The Court: I think the witness understands.

Q. You understand when I said call on Mason Street I meant that you asked Mason Street for money quite often over the period of years?

A. Well, I never had to go over there, just to bring the sheets. When I needed money I generally go up.

Q. When you took over as manager of the 186 Club, the 186 Club was already a going concern; I mean, it had been operating as a social club and card room, had it not?

A. Yes, it was in operation.

Q. And it is true, is it not, that you kept some of the employees who had worked for the earlier owner on the job? A. That's right.

Q. And when you say that the cashiers or the bookkeepers or employees [1601] there worked out the way to keep track of the take or disbursements, it is true, is it not, that they continued with the same system as the club had been using before it was purchased by your group, isn't that so?

A. Yes, sir; there was some old-timers I kept there and they kept on using the same method as they did.

Mr. Gillen: Now, may it please the Court, that will conclude my examination at this time, with this

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

exception, when we have an opportunity to go through the balance of those sheets, it may be we might want to ask Mr. Busterna some further questions.

Mr. Campbell: I think possibly that should be done at this time. I have some re-direct. It would seem better to dispose of this at this time.

Mr. Gillen: It will take a little time to go through those cartons.

The Court: In the event further cross-examination might suggest to you any additional redirect, we could handle it that way, Mr. Campbell, so you may proceed with your redirect now.

Mr. Campbell: Very well.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Busterna, on occasions when you delivered the sheets and the cash at 50 Mason Street, did you also deliver the markers which had been received during that same period? [1602]

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. I am going to object to that as having been asked and answered in direct examination and improper redirect examination. Unless I am wrong, it is my understanding that the sheets reflected the markers and naturally if the sheets were delivered, the markers would be delivered also.

Mr. Campbell: That is what I am asking for.

The Court: Objection overruled. He may answer the question.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

A. I don't just know whether they kept the markers entirely in the office or whether they give them to me when I delivered the sheets.

Q. Where were the markers kept?

A. Well, the markers were kept like in one sheet.

Q. Now, were there separate individual IOUs?

Mr. Gillen: May I offer a suggestion? I think the witness is confused by the records of markers or the marker itself.

Mr. Campbell: I am attempting to bring that out.

Q. There were separate slips for each marker signed by the person who owed for it, is that correct? A. They kept one long sheet.

Q. I understand that.

A. And I don't know whether I turned in every day or every other day.

Q. By long sheet, are you referring to the entries on the poker [1603] sheet?

A. The same kind of a sheet, yes.

Q. Now, at the time a person would obtain money and put in a marker, as you say, was there an IOU which that individual signed?

A. No, sir. They carry the names just right down the line.

Q. Yes; did you have a signed acknowledgment or signed slip of paper from the player who got that money, that you advanced money to?

A. No, sir.

Q. That was entirely a matter of trust?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

A. Well, entirely a matter the fellow that was supposed to be ok, all right, and they come and asked me, we want a hundred dollars' worth checks or a thousand dollars and I see fit to let them have it with the understanding they would pay that day or the next day.

Q. Now, do I understand that the sheets on which that appeared were delivered to 50 Mason Street? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know what, if any, efforts were made by the people at 50 Mason Street to collect on those markers? A. Can you repeat that, please?

(Question read.)

A. I wouldn't know, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not some of those who are shown on [1604] the poker sheets with markers made payments directly to 50 Mason Street? A. I couldn't say.

Q. Do you know yourself whether or not the markers, as shown by the poker sheets that were shown by you truthfully and correctly set forth the amount of markers?

A. To the best of my knowledge it should have been, yes, sir.

Q. Do you know that for a fact, that they are correct?

A. I would say to the best of my knowledge they should be correct.

Q. Now, with regard to the markers, where you say you advanced a player a hundred or two hundred or a thousand dollars in chips, how soon ordinarily would those amounts be repaid?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

A. Well, they should pay them whenever they did say they would, but most of them didn't pay.

Q. Well, what was the average in that regard?

A. Well, we got a lot and possibly kept on adding up to it. One guy would pay off and then another guy add so much.

Q. At the time these sums were advanced and further sums were advanced, I presume that you considered that the account was a reliable account, is that correct?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive and improper redirect.

The Court: It might be. Objection sustained.

Mr. Campbell: On the ground it is [1605] leading?

The Court: Leading and suggestive.

Q. Now, Mr. Gillen asked you something about having been named president of the corporation. When did you first learn that you were president of the corporation?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as having been asked and answered yesterday on direct examination. He testified he never attended any meetings, was simply given papers to sign.

The Court: Objection overruled. He may answer the question.

A. I don't know, sir.

Q. What is your best recollection of the first time that you learned that you had been named

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

president? A. I can't recall.

Q. At the time you started to work there or some time after that?

A. Well, I just can't recall it whether it was '43 or '44. I just don't know.

Q. How long did you continue to serve as president, do you know?

A. Nothing was said any more after I signed the first time. Just went on to 1947, I guess.

Q. As far as you knew, you continued to be president until 1947?

A. To tell the truth, I never paid much attention to it.

Q. I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 87A, the corporation [1606] income and declared value excess profits tax return of the 186 Club for the fiscal year July 1, 1943, to June 30, 1944, and call your attention to the signature at the bottom, Attilio Casselini, president. Do you recognize Mr. Casselini's signature?

Mr. Avakian: May we have that question read?

(Question read.)

Mr. Avakian: May I see the return before the witness answers the question? I call attention to the fact that this is Attilio Casselini vice-president and not president.

Mr. Campbell: I did not catch that myself. That is correct.

Q. Do you recognize the signature of Attilio Casselini? A. Well, I don't recognize it.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Bert Busterna.)

Q. Do you know whether or not he was vice-president? A. I couldn't tell you.

Q. And the signature of William E. Kyne, secretary, do you know whether or not he was secretary? A. I couldn't say.

Mr. Campbell: That's all.

The Court: Any further questions at this time, Mr. Gillen?

Mr. Gillen: No further questions at this time.

The Court: So you will please remain available in the event counsel desires to call you back as a witness again. [1607]

ATTILIO CASSELINI

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. Attilio Casselini.

Q. Are you also known by another name, Mr. Casselini? A. Dutch White.

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Casselini?

A. 56 Laurel Drive, Fairbanks.

Q. That is in California?

A. In Marin County, yes.

Q. What is your present occupation?

A. At the present time nothing.

Q. What has been your occupation in the past?

A. Restaurant business.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Attilio Casselini.)

Q. Are you acquainted with the defendant, Elmer Remmer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you at any time associated with him in any business? A. 186 Club.

Q. And when did you become associated in that business?

A. Well, when he first went into it.

Q. When was that? A. In '43.

Q. How long were you associated in that business?

A. About two years and four months. [1608]

Q. I call your attention—I believe you were in the court room when Mr. Gillen read from Exhibit 88A, the income tax return of that corporation, which recited that you resigned on April 15, 1945—does that refresh your recollection as to the actual time you left that business?

A. I resigned in April, 1944.

Q. April, 1944? A. No, '45.

Q. Now, did you take any active part in the management of the business?

A. No, none at all.

Q. What was the nature of your interest in the business?

A. Well, he give me a working part in the business and officer.

Q. When you say "he," who do you mean?

A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. What part did he give you?

A. Well, he gave me just a little part, which I don't understand nothing about it.

Q. Do you know how much?

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Attilio Casselini.)

A. It was one-sixth involved.

Q. Did you pay anything for that?

A. No, I paid nothing for it.

Q. Did you invest any money in it?

A. None at all. [1609]

Q. You say that was a working interest?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you perform any services?

A. No. The only thing I did was to cash checks that was cashed in the club.

Q. You say you cashed checks, did you have an establishment close to the club at that time?

A. No, I had my business, I was running on Mason Street.

Q. How far was that from the 186 Club?

A. Two blocks.

Q. What was your business?

A. Restaurant business, and saloon.

Q. What was the name of the business?

A. Vanderbilt Club.

Q. Did Mr. Remmer have any interest in that?

A. No.

Q. You say the services you performed were occasionally cashing checks at your restaurant and bar?

A. Mr. Busterna used to send them up to me and I used to send them the cash there for the Club.

Q. How often did you do that?

A. Twice a week.

Q. Do you recall on the average the number and amount of checks that you cashed in that fashion?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Attilio Casselini.)

A. Well, they varied, some 400 to 500 hundred, some varied [1610] varied 10 to 12 hundred, some varied to 16 hundred.

Q. In cashing those checks, is that the amount of the checks or the number?

A. That is the amount of the checks.

Q. Now, in cashing those checks, how did you perform that service?

A. Well, they used to send to me and I just worked in the afternoon and he would send them up, one of the employees, and my bookkeeper used to sign it with the Vanderbilt Club stamp.

Q. With your bank stamp?

A. No, the Vanderbilt Club stamp.

Q. Then what was done with the checks.

A. Then I would go down and cash them.

Q. And would you deposit them?

A. No, I would bring them right back to the club.

Q. In the event that any of the checks were subsequently dishonored, what occurred?

A. Well, I would have to phone him and leave word to call me and I would ask him about different checks that come back and he would send the money to me.

Q. It would be made good to you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not the 186 Club had a bank account of its own at that time? [1611]

A. I don't think so.

Q. Now, when you say you had a working one-

(Testimony of Attilio Casselini.)

sixth interest, what do you mean by working interest?

A. Well, I used to place a lot of seamen that hung around there.

Q. That is around the Vanderbilt Club?

A. Yes and naturally he knew these men were coming off the ship and asked me would I send them a card or something for the club, so I naturally did.

Q. You were to steer the customers there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was that the only service you performed?

A. The only thing I done.

Q. Now, at the time you cashed these checks, to whom would you turn the cash over to?

A. I would either send it over or bring it over.

Q. I couldn't understand?

A. I either sent the money or bring it over.

Q. To whom?

A. To the cashier's office.

Q. What cashier's office?

A. At the 186 Club.

Q. Yes, or——?

A. Or I would bring it to them.

Q. How often were you on the premises?

A. I used to go in and play cards after I closed at night [1612] five or six times a month.

Q. Other than cashing checks and steering the sailors who came into your place to the 186 Club, did you perform any other duties?

A. None at all.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Attilio Casselini.)

Q. Now, did you at any time receive any compensation by way of salary or wages from the 186 Club?

A. Well, I was to get so much at the end of the year.

Q. Did you ever receive that?

A. I never received it. The only thing I received is my tax money.

Q. By your tax money, to what do you refer?

A. I refer that I was to get so much by the year and the money that I was to get I had to pay taxes on.

Q. Do I understand that you were given sufficient money to pay the taxes on the salary, is that correct? A. $3,600 a year.

Q. Do I understand that you did not receive that money? A. No, sir.

Q. That is the salary itself?

A. I did not receive the salary. I received the money for the taxes on the salary.

Q. Now, were you aware that the 186 Club was incorporated?

A. Well, I was told by Mr. Kyne about 7 or 8 months after I was in there. [1613]

Q. Is that the first time you learned it was incorporated? A. That is the first time.

Q. Were you aware that you were listed as an officer of the corporation?

A. I was listed as an officer at that time, yes.

Q. When did you first learn that?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Attilio Casselini.)

A. About four or five months after I was in there.

Q. What officer did you hold?

A. I held vice-president.

Q. Now, did you have any certificate or written agreement or anything in writing from any one, signifying the amount of your interest, or extent of your interest in the 186 Club?

A. None at all.

Q. Now, at the time you say you resigned——

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you receive anything in return for your interest? A. Nothing at all.

Q. Did you continue to have any interest in the club? A. Nothing.

Mr. Gillen: What was the last question?

(Question read.)

Mr. Gillen: I think that is asking for a legal construction. I move the answer be stricken.

The Court: Motion is denied.

Q. At the time you resigned, did you turn anything over by way [1614] property or documents to any one? A. No.

Q. Now, with regard to the tax money that was paid you while you were there, in what form did you receive that? A. In bills.

Q. Currency? A. Currency, yes.

Q. Who gave you that? A. Mr. Kyne.

Q. Where did he give it to you?

A. At my office.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Attilio Casselini.)

Q. At the Vanderbilt Club? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know who the other officers of the corporation were?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment—the record is the best evidence of that, may it please the Court, and it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial whether he knew or not.

The Court: Objection is overruled. He may answer the question.

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Who were the other officers?

A. Mr. Lando.

Q. What office did he hold?

A. I think he was treasurer.

Q. Yes. [1615] A. And Mr. Busterna.

Q. What office did he hold?

A. He was president.

Mr. Gillen: This is all, your Honor, set forth in the returns. I don't know why he should be calling on a witness on the stand to try to remember the officers, when it is in the record, introduced by the government. It is just a waste of time.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. And there are two I didn't know are implicated, Mr. Nelus and some other fellow, a Mr. Kopestake.

Q. You say you didn't know they were implicated, what do you mean?

A. I didn't know they were in the club interest.

Q. When did you first learn that Mr. Nelus or Mr. Kopestake had any interest in it?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Attilio Casselini.)

Mr. Gillen: Objected——

The Court: Overruled.

A. About five or six months.

Q. Five or six months from when?

A. The time when we started.

Q. Did Mr. Remmer have an interest, do you know? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know what the amount of his interest was? A. I don't know. [1616]

Q. Did you know the extent of the interest of any of the other parties? A. No, I didn't.

Q. Now, do you know whether or not books and records were kept of the corporation?

A. Well, I wouldn't know that.

Q. Did you ever see any books or records?

A. No, never did.

Q. Were you familiar with the daily poker sheets? A. No.

Q. Did you ever see them?

A. Well, I saw the red sheet Mr. Busterna had. I used to ask him occasionally——

Q. What was the red sheet?

A. Sheet they had all the IOUs on.

Q. Did you see daily sheets showing the take and the payouts? A. No, never did.

Q. Now, I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 87A, the corporation income declared value excess profits tax return, July 1, 1943, to June 30, 1944, and ask you if that is your signature?

A. Yes, this is mine.

Q. I call your attention to the printing, "vice" immediately before the "president," is that your printing? A. Yes, sir. [1617]

Q. Now, did you prepare this return?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. Who did, if you know?

A. I wouldn't know. I think some boy by the name of Schrader or something like that. I didn't even know him.

Q. Are you familiar with the figures set forth herein? A. No, I wasn't.

Q. It shows on here that this was signed in the presence of the Deputy Collector Louis H. Mooser, do you recall him? A. Never knew him.

Q. Do you recall who was present at the time you signed this return?

A. At the time I signed it I think Mr. Kyne was there.

Q. Yes; any one else there?

A. Not that I know of.

Q. What is that? A. No.

Q. Now, there is attached to this return Schedule 1, document which has been read here this morning, setting forth your salary as four thousand dollars, did you ever receive that? Did you see that at the time you signed the return?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. Did you read the return at the time you signed it? A. No, I never.

Q. Did you ever, as vice-president or as holding an interest [1618] in the 186 Club, attend any meeting of the officers? A. None whatever.

resumes the witness stand on further

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Now, Mr. Casselini, at the time you left the 186 Club, did you submit any letter of resignation or any document of any kind?

A. None whatever.

Q. Did you at that time inform anyone that you were leaving?

A. Yes, Mr. Busterna, when I told him.

Q. At the time you left?

A. I was leaving.

Q. And you recall when that was?

A. That was in April, about the middle of April.

Q. Of 1945? A. Yes.

Q. And after that did you have any connection whatever with the 186 Club? [1619]

A. None whatever.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Attilio Casselini.)

Mr. Campbell: I think that is all.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Casselini, your name of Dutch White you carried since you were a boy?

A. That is right.

Q. That is because you happened to have very blonde hair, they used to call you Dutch White?

A. When I was a young fellow, yes.

Q. Now, aside from the Vanderbilt Club, which you have mentioned here, you formerly were the owner of what is called Charles Fashion Restaurant on O' Farrell Street, San Francisco?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you sold your interest out there some time ago?

A. Sold out about two years and three months ago.

Q. At the Vanderbilt, which was described by you as restaurant bar on Mason Street, two blocks away from the 186 Club, you say that you had the patronage of a lot of merchant seamen, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And they used to ask you a good place to play cards and you would direct them to the 186 Club?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You used to go there yourself to play cards?

A. Five or six times a month I used to [1620] play.

Q. Now, you said, Mr. Casselini, that you weren't familiar with the poker sheets, but that you did see a sheet with a lot of IOUs on it, is that correct? A. That is correct.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Attilio Casselini.)

Q. And you inquired about the IOUs on occasions, isn't that so? A. I did.

Q. Now, as a matter of fact, isn't it true that the reason you inquired about the IOUs and the reason you finally resigned in '45 was because you were told by Mr. Busterna that there were no profits to pay your salary? A. Right you are.

Q. And you decided not to be bothered any more and you offered your resignation, isn't that correct? A. That's right.

Q. And were you shown the number of markers in explanation of why there was no money to pay your salary?

A. Well, they did for about six months, they showed me every two or three weeks.

Q. Did you check the markers yourself to determine in your own mind or get any idea approximately how many markers there were or what they amounted to? A. No, I didn't.

Q. Were there a good many of them?

A. Quite a few of them. [1621]

Q. Now, Mr. Campbell asked you when you did withdraw from the corporation whether or not you turned in any documents, do you recall his question? A. I did not.

Q. Now, you knew, did you not, that a social club of this nature, under the laws of California,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Attilio Casselini.)

has no stock? There is no stock issued to the stockholders? A. That's right.

Q. Now, you say that the returns for the corporation were prepared by some man by the name of Slater? A. Shrader or something.

Q. Did you think Mr. Slater was a lawyer?

A. He was a lawyer, I think, for the 186 Club.

Q. As a matter of fact, aren't you referring to Mr. Slater, the public accountant?

A. Public accountant, that's right.

Q. Now, when you signed, Mr. Campbell asked you if you signed the returns as vice-president of the corporation in the presence of any one?

A. I did.

Q. And your answer was that you signed it in the presence of Mr. Kyne. You don't recall that there was anybody else present? A. No.

Q. Now, Mr. Mooser, I note, in prosecution's Exhibit 87A, has signed as the officer administering the oath and on the 15th [1622] day of November you appeared before L. A. Mooser, Jr., a Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue. You signed that you appeared before him—you don't recall his being present when you signed?

A. No, I don't recall him.

Q. Did you know that the 186 Club had initially started out as a partnership and due to the fact that Mr. Mooser said it would have to make a return as a corporation, that is why officers were elected and corporate officers were put in office?

A. Well, I was told by Mr. Kyne at the time.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Attilio Casselini.)

Q. Did you know that Mr. Mooser had audited the books and had stayed around the 186 Club for a period of approximately a month to check the average of the business being done?

A. Mr. Kyne told——

Mr. Campbell: I will object to conversation.

The Court: Listen to the question and answer the question. Do you know? If you do, say yes, if you don't say so.

Q. Do you know of your own knowledge?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. Did you ever meet Mr. Mooser?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. Did you ever see Mr. Mooser around the 186 Club? A. I never did. [1623]

Q. You didn't know him to see him?

A. No.

Q. So if he was there, you wouldn't know him?

A. No.

Q. When you refer to Mr. Nelus and Mr. Kopestake, that was Jesse Kopestake, was it not? Did you know Mr. Kopestake? A. Yes, I did.

Q. And Mr. Nelus, did you know him?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. You said that you learned some time after you became identified with the organization that they also had an interest, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you didn't know what the extent of their interest was? A. No.

Q. Did it come to your attention that their investment was paid off to them out of the proceeds and profits of the 186 Club? Did that come to your attention? A. I wouldn't know.

Q. You didn't know that they had withdrawn and that they had been paid off the cash investment that they had made? A. I didn't know that.

Q. Now, Mr. Casselini, who was it that made out your individual income tax return?

A. Well, it was my bookkeeper at the time, but then later on [1624] Mr. Hubner took care of it.

Q. Mr. Hubner is the tax lawyer in San Francisco? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Conrad Hubner? A. That is right.

Q. You say initially your bookkeeper made out your individual income tax return? A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial as to his individual tax return.

The Court: He has already answered the question. The answer may stand.

Q. Who was the bookkeeper that made out your income tax return, your individual return?

A. I can't think of his name.

Q. Was he the person who kept——

A. Keep books for the Vanderbilt Club.

Q. When you first became identified with the 186 Club, did he make out your return?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. This bookkeeper? A. Yes.

Q. How many years did he make out your return? A. Two years.

Q. So that the time while you were identified with the 186 [1625] Club your own bookkeeper made out your returns, is that correct?

A. That is right.

Q. It is true, is it not, that he told you where you were credited with salary and entitled to salary, that you were required to pay taxes on that, whether you received it or not?

Mr. Campbell: I object—it is calling for hearsay.

The Court: Let me have the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Well, did you ever inquire as to why you had to pay income taxes on a salary that you didn't receive?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial, incompetent.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. Yes, he had told me——

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute—I am going to object.

The Court: Answer that yes or not. It has been answered.

Q. Did you inquire as to why you had to pay an income tax on salary even though you did not receive the salary? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Were you informed the reason was that under the law you would have to pay where you were credited with salary or credited with profits or dividends, whether you received them or not?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Attilio Casselini.)

A. Yes, that's right. [1626]

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Mr. Campbell: I have some redirect, but first I ask that some exhibits be brought down. While we are waiting for them, I am going to ask to have given an identification number this certified document dated October 26, 1951.

Clerk: 150.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask a question or two while I am waiting for the return.

Q. Mr. Casselini, referring again to plaintiff's Exhibit 87A, the corporation income and declared value excess profits tax returns for the fiscal year July 1, 1943 to June 30, 1944, for the 186 Club, on which you have identified your signature, I call your attention appearing on the 3rd sheet under the heading, "Questions": Question 10: "Is this return made on the basis of cash receipts and disbursements," and the typewritten answer, "Yes." Now at the time you say you conferred with whoever it was told you you had to report the salary whether or not you received it, do you know whether or not this return and that statement of cash receipts and disbursements as the basis for filing of the return was before you?

A. Was before you?

Q. The person who told you that you had to re-

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Attilio Casselini.)

port the salary whether you received it or not?

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment. That is objected to, your [1627] Honor, as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, because the material point there would be whether Mr. Casselini's return was prepared on cash accrual basis, not whether the corporation's return is on a cash and accrual basis.

The Court: Let me have the question.

(Question read.)

Q. Was before him, the person giving that advice.

The Court: I do not understand the question. I don't see how the witness can understand it.

Mr. Campbell: Very well.

Q. Mr. Casselini, Mr. Gillson asked you if you were advised that you should report on your individual return the salary from the 186 Club whether or not you received it. Do you recall that?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, who was it that gave you that advice?

A. My bookkeeper.

Q. Now, at the time that he gave you that advice, do you know whether or not he had seen the returns as filed by the 186 Club?

Mr. Avakian: Now, your Honor, we make the same objection I made that the material thing would be whether Mr. Casselini's return was on cash or accrual basis, not whether the corporation's was. He would report his income on one basis or the other, regardless of what the corporation did.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Attilio Casselini.)

The Court: Let me have the question. [1628]

(Question read.)

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. He had not.

Q. Now, do you recall, Mr. Casselini, whether or not the salary as set up in the 186 Club returns was reported by you individually on your original returns or on an amended return?

A. I do not remember.

Q. For the purpose of refreshing your recollection, I am going to show you what purports to be your 1943 individual income tax return.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we object to this method of attempting to refresh his recollection for the reason he is attempting to show a 1943 return, whereas the testimony is a corporation tax return showed a salary to him from the corporation for the first time in 1944 and the corporation returns specifically says that no salary was set up for the year 1943, so his individual 1943 return would be completely immaterial.

The Court: There is nothing before the court.

Mr. Avakian: He is attempting to show the witness——

The Court: He has a right to show the witness anything.

Mr. Gillen: He said to refresh his memory.

The Court: There is nothing before the Court.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Attilio Casselini.)

Mr. Campbell: I would like to have this given a number for identification, your Honor.

Clerk: 151. [1629]

Mr. Gillen: May I ask counsel's statement, for the purpose of refreshing his memory, be stricken from the record. May we have it read?

The Court: It may stand. Read the question to the witness.

(Question read.)

Q. (Continuing.) And will ask you whether or not on your return of income tax for 1943, your original return, if you reported any salary from the 186 Club?

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment. I object to that, your Honor, as not proper re-direct, because there is nothing in the cross-examination as to salary for 1943. The only salary talked about in cross-examination or direct examination was for the years 1944 and 1945 and it is only for those years that the tax income returns show any salary, and moreover the tax returns specifically state that no salary was set up for the year 1943. That is not a proper re-direct question.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question. A. I don't remember.

Q. Let me ask you this, is that your signature?

A. Yes, this is my signature.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to offer this in evidence as government's Exhibit 151.

The Court: Admitted, 151.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Attilio Casselini.)

Q. Do you recall whether or not subsequently in 1943 you filed [1630] an amended tax return?

A. What is that?

Q. Do you recall whether or not you later filed an amended 1943 individual return?

A. I do not remember.

Mr. Campbell: May this document be numbered the same number A for identification, 151A for identification?

Q. I am going to show you government's Exhibit 151A for identification and ask you if that is your signature? A. Yes.

Q. I will ask you to examine this return, which purports to be for the year 1943 and ask you whether or not that refreshes your recollection on the matter of whether or not on the amended return you reported salary from the 186 Club for the year 1943? A. Well, I didn't get any salary.

Q. I know, but that is not the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment. I offer the objection that the document is the best evidence. It hasn't been offered in evidence, so no statement from it should be read.

Mr. Campbell: In view of counsel's statement, I will offer it in evidence as government's 151A.

The Court: It may be admitted in evidence, 151A.

Mr. Campbell: I would like to read from government's [1631] 151, the individual income tax

Schedule C-3 contains no information. Exhibit 151, amended individual tax return for the calendar year 1943 of Attilio Casselini, reports dividends four thousand dollars, income from partnerships $6,221.50, and under the heading of "Income from Partnerships" "See Schedule C-3," and on C-3 is mentioned Club Vanderbilt $6,221.50. Nothing further set forth.

Mr. Avakian: May we inquire whether 151A shows anything about salary in the amended return?

Q. Mr. Casselini, the item of dividend for four thousand dollars, will you state to what that refers?

A. Well, I don't know.

Q. Did you receive dividends from any source for that year? A. None whatever.

Q. Do you know what the four thousand dollars as set forth on your return represents?

A. I do not.

Q. Who prepared this return for you?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered.

The Court: Objection overruled.

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Casselini, I am going to show you defendant's Exhibit "P," which purports to be a partnership return income for the calendar year 1943 of the 186 Club, which is signed by William E. Kyne, and ask you if you have ever seen that document before? A. No.

Q. Do you recognize the signature of Mr. Kyne?

A. No, I don't.

Q. This document recites under partner share of income, credits Attilio Casselini, $2,000. Did you receive any such sum in 1943? A. None at all.

Mr. Campbell: You may cross examine.

Mr. Gillen: No further questions, your Honor.

(Witness excused.)

Mr. Campbell: May I inquire through the Court, your Honor please, in regard to the witness Busterna, whether or not he can be released also?

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, having been previously sworn, was recalled and testified as follows on

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Perkins, in connection with your employment by Mr. Graham and Mr. McKay, did you also have as part of your duties the making of any entries in the books of the Cal-Neva, Inc.?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 146 for identification, and ask you to examine it and state whether or not, in the course of your duties, you made entries in that book? Do you find entries you made there?

A. Yes, sir, these, I made and here.

Q. Now, what is that book that you have?

A. General ledger of Cal-Neva, Inc.

Q. That is general ledger of the Cal-Neva?

A. Yes, sir. [1634]

Q. And you recognize it as such?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Rodrick Perkins.)

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: This will be offered in evidence as government's 146.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, as a matter of clarifying through this witness, the prosecution is offering the entire document and not simply the entries he made?

Mr. Campbell: No, I am offering the entire document.

The Court: Admitted in evidence, 146.

Mr. Campbell: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Q. Mr. Perkins, I believe you stated that you made some of the entries in this general ledger, plaintiff's Exhibit 146? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you do that in the course of employment by the Cal-Neva, Inc.? A. Yes, sir.

Q. During what period of time were you employed by that corporation?

A. I first did the work in 1930 and I think I left it in '35 and went back again in 1939 or 1940, I am not sure, and I left in 1941, although there are probably some entries in 1942.

Q. Were you employed by Cal-Neva subsequently to 1942?

A. I think that in the wintertime I made out checks and paid a few bills. [1635]

Q. During what years, Mr. Perkins?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Rodrick Perkins.)

A. I think it was in 1942 and 1943, but I am not positive about it.

Q. And your duties, during the time you were employed there, were of a bookkeeping nature, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you keep records other than this general ledger, which is prosecution's Exhibit 146?

A. What do you mean by records?

Q. Well, did you do any other bookkeeping besides what is reflected in these books?

A. I do not think so.

Q. The general ledger which you have identified, prosecution's Exhibit 146, contains certain accounts for the owners of the stock of the corporation, does it not? A. I think it does.

Q. I call your attention, Mr. Perkins, to several sheets under the general designation of "Assets," entitled J. C. McKay account No. 8; W. J. Graham account No. 9; and E. Remmer account No. 10, will you examine those three sheets and state to us what each account represents?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to on the grounds that the records speak for themselves, except as to such entries as this particular witness may have made.

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the question.

A. Well, there are various items for each one of these gentlemen, various amounts of charges against their personal account.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Rodrick Perkins.)

Q. Well, let us take the first one, the sheet that relates to Mr. McKay, what is the first entry on that sheet?

A. The first sheet shows Lambeth for radio repairs, $7.90.

Q. Does that represent a payment made by Cal-Neva on behalf of Mr. McKay in that amount?

Mr. Campbell: If he knows. The books speak for themselves.

The Court: State that if you know.

A. Yes, I think that is what it does.

Q. With your experience as a bookkeeper, that is what that entry means to you, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that then charged on the books of account against Mr. McKay, that amount?

A. Yes, that is what is charged.

Q. That means then, does it not, Mr. Perkins, that on account of that transaction Mr. McKay owes the Cal-Neva corporation the amount you just read, seven odd dollars?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for his conclusion and opinion. The man has not been qualified as an expert; it [1637] is not within the scope of direct examination.

The Court: Well, during the course of this trial we have had many exhibits here and permitted the custodian bookkeeper to explain items. I think it is a good thing to do. Objection will be overruled.

(Question read.)

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Rodrick Perkins.)

A. Yes, that is what it means.

Q. Are there a number of entries in that account showing payments made by Cal-Neva on behalf of Mr. McKay? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And is the entry made showing the amount owed by Mr. McKay to Cal-Neva on account of each of these transactions?

A. Well, there are various credit items.

Q. What do you mean by credit items?

A. Well, Mr. McKay, for instance, would pay for some items that belonged to Cal-Neva. Then his account would be credited with the amount of money he spent on behalf of the corporation.

Q. Can you give us an example from the book before you of one of those?

A. There is an entry in the amount of $14,606.95.

Q. What is the date of that?

A. Date is September 30, 1937. That was for money spent by Mr. McKay for furniture and fixtures, namely, a safe and construction account of 13 thousand dollars and gambling equipment and publicity of 25 thousand. Mr. McKay spent that money for improvements. [1638]

Q. That, then is a transaction in reverse—transaction of Mr. McKay making payment on behalf of the corporation, is that right? A. Yes.

Q. So then that reduces the amount he previously owed the corporation on the books, is that right? A. That is right.

Q. And is that a running account that reflects

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Rodrick Perkins.)

transactions of that nature from time to time as they appear?

A. This account goes from '37 to '39.

Q. Is it continued on the next page?

A. No, that is all for Mr. McKay.

Q. Isn't the final entry in Mr. McKay's account in June of 1946?

A. Yes, that's true. The final entry was in June of 1946.

Q. And in connection with each of the transactions, does this account show the balance of the account after each transaction?

A. Not after each month. After a series it does.

Q. At periodic intervals, is that correct.

A. Yes.

Q. And in every instance where there is a balance entered there prior to June of 1946, would you state whether the balance shows an obligation owing by Mr. McKay to Cal-Neva or an obligation owing by Cal-Neva to Mr. McKay?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial. [1639]

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. It looks like Mr. McKay owes the corporation.

Q. That is true in every instance where the balance is entered?

A. Well, in one part of 1947 there is a credit balance. The rest of them ore debits.

Q. By debit balance you mean that Mr. McKay owed the corporation? A. Yes.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Rodrick Perkins.)

Q. When was that account cleared to the zero balance? A. In June of 1946.

Q. And was a payment made by Mr. McKay to or on behalf of Cal-Neva at that time to balance the account?

A. It shows check record 37, $3,602.04, but I can't find the check at this time.

Q. At any event, was there a payment there to or on behalf of the corporation made by Mr. McKay?

A. It was made to Mr. McKay probably by the corporation.

Q. Immediately prior to that entry, didn't Mr. McKay owe the corporation that amount of money?

Mr. Campbell: I submit, this is all immaterial.

The Court: Well, I don't think it is proper cross-examination, but I have not heard any objection on that ground.

Mr. Campbell: I will object on that ground.

Mr. Avakian: May I be heard on that. [1640]

The Court: I do not want to rule that out now at this late state where you have gone into it so far. I can't see where any of it is proper and the witness identified the record.

Mr. Campbell: I thought I made that objection.

The Court: I didn't hear it.

Mr. Campbell: I thought I had. If not, I will make it at this time.

The Court: Well, it will be overruled.

Q. Let us take the entry just prior to June of 1946, Mr. Perkins, what does it show?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Rodrick Perkins.)

A. A balance of $3,602.04.

Q. A debit balance against Mr. McKay of $3,602.04 to the corporation, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Since that debit balance was wiped out and reduced to zero by entry of June, 1946, does that not mean that in June of 1946, Mr. McKay made payment of $3,602.04, either to the corporation or on behalf of the corporation?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative. The records speak for themselves.

The Court: It is. Objection sustained.

Q. Can you tell us what that entry means?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as asked and answered.

The Court: Objection overruled. [1641]

A. I didn't make the entry myself, but here is the original entry, if you want to look at it.

Q. Will you tell us what it is?

A. It just says, "Credit accounts receivable Remmer, McKay and Graham," with the various items to those accounts.

Q. Will you turn to the next sheet in that ledger, namely, the account of Mr. Graham. Have you found that? A. Yes.

Q. And does that likewise reflect the number of transactions in which the corporation advanced money to or on behalf of Mr. Graham and in which Mr. Graham in some instances advanced money to and on behalf of the corporation?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as opening a new subject matter not within the scope of the subject matter.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: I would like to be heard on that because we think it is important.

The Court: I can't see where it is proper.

Mr. Avakian: I would like to explain where I think it is important.

The Court: I do not think it is. I do not want to take up the time.

Mr. Avakian: Isn't your Honor going to let me explain why I think it is. It is an exhibit that the government introduced. [1642]

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Q. Would you refer to the next account, that of Mr. Remmer. Have you found that?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And does that account of Mr. Remmer's contain a number of entries showing transactions between Cal-Neva and Mr. Remmer?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection.

The Court: Same ruling.

Mr. Avakian: I would then request, for the record, an opportunity to explain why we think this is material.

The Court: My view of it is make this gentleman your own witness.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, they presented these books.

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, doesn't any question relating to this book relate to direct examination, because that is in evidence?

The Court: The ruling will stand. The ruling will stand.

Q. And do I understand your Honor——

The Court (Interceding): I am not going to make any more explanation. I said the ruling will stand. Now, don't pursue it any further.

Mr. Avakian: Might I ask another question?

The Court: Go ahead and ask.

Mr. Avakian: Of your Honor? [1643]

The Court: No, I am not on the stand.

Q. Are there entries in prosecution's Exhibit 146 which show loans made by Cal-Neva Corporation to Mr. Remmer during the year 1944, 1945, and 1946?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection.

The Court: Same ruling.

Mr. Avakian: In view of your Honor's ruling, I would respectfully like to move that prosecution's Exhibit 146 be stricken from the evidence on the ground that we are not being permitted to cross-examine and if we are not being permitted to cross-examine on the theory the exhibit is not within the scope of direct examination, it should not be in evidence.

The Court: Motion denied.

Q. Mr. Perkins, did you yourself make any entries in that book relating to transactions between Mr. Remmer and the corporation?

A. I made some of them.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Rodrick Perkins.)

Q. Would you identify for me the entries which you made of that nature?

A. I have one here on the 7th of November, 1938.

Q. What is that entry?

Mr. Campbell: Pardon me. That is objected to as being not within the scope of the direct examination.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: May I be heard on that, your Honor?

The Court: No, sir. [1644]

Q. Are there other entries there reflecting transactions, entries which you made, reflecting transactions between Mr. Remmer and the corporation?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not within the scope of direct examination.

Mr. Avakian: He was questioned on that, as to whether he made some entries in that book.

The Court: You may answer that question, yes or no. A. Yes.

Q. Will you find the next entry which you made.

Mr. Campbell: Is that a question?

Mr. Avakian: I am asking him to find it. When he finds it, I will put the question to him.

A. Yes, sir

Q. Will you state what that reads?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not within the scope of direct examination.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Are there other entries which you made reflecting transactions between Mr. Remmer and the corporation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would you state what the next entry is?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not within the scope of direct examination.

The Court: Objection sustained. [1645]

Mr. Avakian: May it be understood, your Honor, that I am being precluded from inquiring——

The Court (Interceding): No, I only make rulings when the occasion arises.

Mr. Avakian: Very well.

Q. Will you then find the next transaction? Let me know when you have found it, Mr. Perkins.

A. I have found it.

Q. Would you first give me the date of it?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not within the scope of direct examination.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Will you state what the entry is?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection.

The Court: Objection sustained. I think we have enough.

Mr. Avakian: That was my suggestion.

The Court: It is my suggestion you desist from pursuing this matter any farther.

Mr. Avakian: I just wanted to make the record, your Honor.

The Court: You have already made the record.

Mr. Avakian: May I have prosecution's Exhibit 146, Mr. Perkins. Your Honor, at this time I would like to read to the jury certain portions of this exhibit.

The Court: You may read it. [1646]

Mr. Avakian: Reading to the jury from the section of Exhibit 146 entitled "Assets," "Account No. 8, J. C. McKay," under date of May, 1937, balance forwarded $2,687.92; August 2, 1937, Lambet for repair radio, posting reference D-6, charge $7.90; August 27, 1937, Cash, posting reference D-7, charge of $5,000; September 30, 1937, posting reference J-2, a credit of $14,606.95 and a credit balance of $6,911.13. On September 30, 1937, posting reference D-9, a charge of $1520. September 30, 1937, posting reference D-9, a charge of $7986.95, with a debit balance of $2595.82. On September 30, flowers for Blight funeral, posting reference D-12, $25.75. September 30, 1937, King's fire extinguisher, posting reference D-12, $6.25, and a debit balance of $2627.82.

With the Court's permission, I am going to read only some of the entries that intervene here, unless counsel desires to have me read them all. Do you care to look at this, counsel, first to determine?

Mr. Campbell: No.

Mr. Avakian: On October 31, 1937, a debit balance of $6895.82. Several entries later on, August 26, 1938, a debit balance of $11,395. Several entries below that on May 13, 1938, a debit balance of $16,037.02. Several entries below that on January 31, 1939, a debit balance of $3,455.67. A number of entries below that on September 30, 1939, a debit balance of $3,602.04, and in the next entry, which is final entry of [1647] this account, June, 1946, showing a credit of $3,602.04, with a balance of zero.

From the next sheet in prosecution's Exhibit 146, entitled, "W. J. Graham Account No. 9," I would like to read certain of the entries. On May 1, 1937, balance forwarded $2,817.26. On October 31, 1937, a debit balance of $6,904.01. On August 29, 1938, a debit balance of $11,404.01. Skipping a number of entries and going to November 30, 1942, a debit balance of $4,002.30, and a final entry following that, June 30, 1946, a credit of $4,002.30, leaving a balance of zero.

Turning next to the next sheet, which is entitled "E. Remmer Account No. 10." The first entry is May 1, 1937, balance forwarded, $5,292.40. Skipping a number of entries and going to April 30, 1943, a debit balance of $10,652.77. Skipping a number of entries and going to December 31, 1944, a debit balance of $17,886.66. April 30, 1945, a credit of $24.98. Another entry April 30, 1945, a credit of $7,500. Another entry on April 30, 1945, showing a charge of $8,000 and a debit balance at that time of $18,361.68. On July 31, 1944, a charge of $2,000 and on August 31, 1944, a charge of $5,000, leaving a debit balance on that date of $25,361.68. On April 3, 1946, a charge of $2,500. On April 30, 1946, cash and charge of $51,086.34 and on the same date, April 30, 1946, by checks included in cash, showing a credit of $2215.69, and a debit balance on that date of $76,732.33. On April 30, 1946, a charge [1648] of $7,000 and debit balance of $83,732.33. June 30, 1946, a credit of $83,732.33, leaving a balance at that time of zero. September 30, 1946, a credit of $50,000. October 31, 1946, a credit of $47,300. March 31, 1947, a credit of $5,000. July 31, 1946—I am sorry—under heading of July 31, 1947, but under column description year 1946 is entered there is charge of $7,724.11. Under date of August 30, 1947, with description 1946, there is a charge of $7,724.11. Under date of September 30, 1946, Graham and McKay $100,000 as a charge. January 31, 1947, E. Remmer charge $40,000. April 30, 1947, charge $15,000, with a balance shown on that date, a debit balance, of $68,148.22. April 30, 1947, a credit of $20,000. April 30, 1947, a charge of $97,300. April 30 of 1947, a credit of $34,705.83, leaving a debit balance of $110,742.39. On April 30 of 1948, a credit of $100,000, leaving a debit balance on that date of $10,742.39, and that is the final entry in this account.

May I ask the Court's permission to reconsider its ruling and permit me to examine?

The Court: The ruling will stand. Any further questions?

(No further questions.)

Mr. Campbell: At this time we will offer into evidence plaintiff's Exhibit 150.

Mr. Campbell: At this time, if the Court please, I wish to offer in evidence the exhibits which have been marked government's Exhibits 150 and 150A for identification.

The Court: They will each be admitted in evidence, of course subject to the objections. The record will show the proceedings we have had in regard to them.

Mr. Campbell: If I may read very briefly from these documents.

The Court:

Mr. Campbell: Plaintiff's Exhibit 150 is document which is headed "Certified October 22, 1951." The Certificate sets forth: (Reads) All of which is set forth under the seal of the Treasury Department and there are attached some ten pages, [1650] setting forth some information, giving names and numbers of bonds, places of issue, serial number of bond, denomination of bond and if bond has been redeemed by the United States, the date of the redemption. Plaintiff's Exhibit 150A is also certified under the seal of the Treasury Department of the United States and contains figures of a large number of bonds, United States Savings Bonds, of the original bonds, bearing also the date of redemption of the bond, amount paid and the paying officer, in most instances banks, bearing the endorsement of the person in whose name the bonds were issued, either that of Elmer Remmer or Helen Remmer. Without reading the individual bonds, and subject to correction, these exhibits would show that at cost price there were outstanding at the end of each of the years indicated cost price of bonds in the following amounts, as shown by these exhibits: as of December 31, 1942, $1200; December 31, 1943, $562.50; December 31, 1944, $10,481.25; December 31, 1945, $17,081.25; December 31, 1946, $17,081.25.

FRANK CAVANI,

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Will you state your name please?

A. Frank Cavani.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

Q. Where do you reside, Mr. Cavani?

A. 323 19th Avenue, San Francisco, California.

Q. What is your business or occupation? [1651]

A. Bartender.

Q. Where are you presently employed, Mr. Cavani? A. No place.

Q. Are you acquainted with the defendant, Elmer Remmer? A. Yes, I am.

Q. How long have you known him?

A. Oh, quite a while, about 36 or 37 years.

Q. Have you ever been associated with him in business? A. Yes, I have.

Q. When did you first become associated with him in business? A. At the 110 Eddy, 1943.

Q. Now there was some testimony here, the fact that you had been interested or acquired from Mr. Remmer a tavern in Tracy, California?

A. How far back do you want to go?

Q. Well, at any time did you acquire it?

A. I did, year 1925.

Q. And did you acquire a tavern from him at that time? A. No, no tavern.

Q. What was it you received?

A. Rooming house and liquor store, card room.

Q. What was the name of the establishment?

A. I believe Ludwig rooming house.

Q. What was the name of the card room?

A. I don't remember; just a card room. [1652]

Q. Did you have any other business transactions with him from that time in 1925 until you became associated in 110 Eddy Street?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

A. Not outside working for him.

Q. Where did you work for him?

A. At Cal-Neva Lodge, 1934, '35, '36, '37, '38, '39, '40, '41, '42, '44, and '45.

Q. Now let us see, that is 1934 to 1945?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you say you worked for him there as a bartender? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was your method of compensation, that is to say, was it by way of salary or wages?

A. Salary, yes.

Q. Did you have any interest in Cal-Neva by way of interest in the profits? A. No.

Q. Or working interest?

A. No, just working.

Q. Now that was, was it not, seasonal employment, Mr. Cavani?

A. Yes, during the summer time, summer months.

Q. The Lodge was only open during the summer months?

A. Yes, that is right, from June, around June 10th until September 6th or 7th.

Q. When did you become associated with him in 110 Eddy Street? [1653]

A. Well, I come back from Cal-Neva in the fall of '42 and about a month or so later saw Mr. Remmer and he asked me if I wanted to go to work at 110 Eddy as a bartender and I told him I would. After all, I had to work some place, so I worked during that year 1942 and on in 1943 and he told me if I was interested in the proposition in El Cerrito, California.

Q. He asked you if you were interested in the proposition in El Cerrito? A. Yes.

Q. During 1942 until the spring of 1943, when you say you were working for him as bartender, that was at 110 Eddy Street? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you receive for your services there?

A. Just bartender wages.

Q. Union scale, I presume? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have any interest in the business itself? A. Not in 1942.

Q. Up until the spring of 1943?

A. That is correct.

Q. Did you then go to work over in El Cerrito?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. Did you at any time work in the 21 Club and San Diego Social Club in El Cerrito? [1654]

A. Not one day.

Q. Do you know whether or not the licenses of the 21 Club were in your name?

A. Yes, sir, I do.

Q. Over what period of time were they in your name? A. The year of 1943.

Q. Do you recall whether or not you reported the income from the 21 Club? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you have any interest of any kind in the 21 Club? A. Not at all.

Q. I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibits 72 and 72A, being respectively the partnership return of income for the fiscal year January 1, 1944, to September 30, 1944, being 72, and 72A being partnership return of income for the calendar year 1944, and ask you if it is your signature which is attached to each of those? A. Yes.

Q. And I call your attention on Exhibit 72A that the signature here is Frank Cavani over the typewritten word "Partner." Were you a partner in that enterprise?

A. No. Is this the 21 Club?

Q. What is your answer? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you recall ever seeing this before? [1655]

A. I believe I have if my name is there.

Q. Do you recall who presented it to you?

A. Yes, a fellow named John Simmons I believe.

Q. I call your attention to the name of the person preparing the return, Slater?

A. Bob Slater. Yes, I know him well.

Q. Who is Bob Slater?

A. Bookkeeper for Mr. Remmer at 110 Eddy.

Q. Does that refresh your recollection as to who gave you this return to sign?

A. Well, all I know, Mr. Simmons that year he informed me that I had to file my income tax for the 21 Club because I had the license in my name.

Q. And you signed the document which was presented to you? A. I did.

Q. I understand you, you never worked a day there? A. Not one day.

Q. Now I am going to ask to have this letter, with the attached two sheets, marked for identification, 152 for identification. I am going to show you this document, 152 for identification, which is purportedly addressed to you, and ask you if you received that document? A. No, I never did.

A. No, I never did.

Q. Did you ever see it before?

A. I do not believe I have, no, sir. [1656]

Q. Examine the top sheets and state whether or not you have seen those before, or copies of them? A. No.

Q. Now, Mr. Cavani, did you have any connection with any place in El Cerrito in connection with Mr. Remmer? A. Not at all.

Q. Now with respect to 110 Eddy Street, aside from your employment by Mr. Remmer at Cal-Neva, is that the only business in which you were associated with Mr. Remmer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At any time? A. That is the only one.

Q. Now I believe you stated you began to work there in 1942? A. That is right.

Q. Who hired you to work there?

A. Clarence Bent.

Q. Mr. Bent is presently deceased?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall when he died?

A. He died in the spring of '43. It was around Easter time.

Q. Who managed 110 Eddy Street during that period of time in 1942 and until the spring of 1943?

A. Mr. Bent, Mr. Clarence Bent.

Q. After his death who managed the place?

A. Well, I believe I took over. [1657]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

Q. After you took over the active management of the place, what arrangement did you have for compensation?

A. Well, Mr. Remmer gave me the same compensation he was giving me at the 21 Club in El Cerrito.

Q. What was the proposition he gave you?

A. I was to get 25 per cent of the business.

Q. You say you were to get? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you explain what you mean by that?

A. Well, that is what he told me, I was going to get 25 per cent of the business?

Q. When were you given that?

A. As soon as I went to work, as soon as I took charge of 110 Eddy, right around May of that year.

Q. Did you have any written agreement of any kind? A. No, not at all.

Q. Will you state whether or not that was to be 25 per cent of the profits or 25 per cent of the assets of the business? A. The whole thing.

Q. How long did you continue there at 110 Eddy Street?

A. Until we closed on the 19th of October, 1947.

Q. What happened to the assets of the business at that time? A. Well, we moved out.

Q. Yes?

A. The landlord raised my rent from $210 to $730 a month, so [1658] we decided it was too much rent and couldn't afford it.

Q. What did you do with the equipment?

A. We stored part of it in 53 Mason and part of it in the basement of the Menlo Club.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

Q. Where is it now? A. It must be there.

Q. What was done with the stock on hand, liquor? A. We moved it to 52 Mason Street.

Q. Where is it now?

A. Well, what is left is at the 186 Club.

Q. Do you still have an interest in that liquor?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you receive anything for your interest in the partnership at the time the business closed up?

A. No, there was money in the bank when we closed 110 Eddy and it was used for 186 Eddy Street to remodel it, in other words, and it took quite a bit of money.

Q. Were you interested in 186 Eddy?

A. Yes, up until July of this year.

Q. When did you become interested there?

A. Well, when we opened up, around 1948, I think June, '48, I am not sure. It was in '48.

Q. So that that particular operation you are speaking of was not in operation in 1946?

A. No. We were at 110 Eddy in '46. [1659]

Q. What is the operation at 186 Eddy Street which you became interested in?

A. Well, there was a store there and we remodeled it and made a bar.

Q. What is the name of the establishment?

A. Bones Corner.

Q. That is at the corner of Eddy and Taylor?

A. Correct.

Q. Now during the years 1943, 1944, 1945, and

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

1946 did you receive anything from the 110 Eddy Club other than your salary or wages?

A. Yes, I did, I received $1500.

Q. When did you receive that?

A. I believe it was in '46.

Q. Do you recall when in '46?

A. No, I don't off-hand. It should be in the book.

Q. For what purpose were you paid that?

Mr. Avakian: Object to that, the books are the best evidence. They are in evidence.

The Court: Let me get the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. Well, there was money in the bank and Mr. Remmer decided to get some money out of it, so he took some money and I did and so did Mr. Thomas C. Turner, he was another partner at 110 [1660] Eddy also.

Q. Is that all that you ever received at any time other than your wages? A. That's all.

Mr. Gillen: Objected—the books are the best evidence. They should be referred to to get the best evidence.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. That is all.

Q. At the time the business was closed up, what was done with the license?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

A. I brought it up to the State Board and I left it to the State Board to be used with this new 186 Club.

Q. That same license was used in connection with your present 186 Club?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now when you became associated with the 110 Eddy Club, the 25 per cent interest, who else had an interest in that club? A. In 1943?

Q. In 1943 when you became interested?

A. Later in that year——

Q. I mean at the time you became interested, not later in the year, the time you first acquired any interest?

A. There was Mr. Kyne, Mr. Remmer and myself.

Q. Later on was anybody else connected?

A. Yes. [1661]

Q. Who? A. Thomas C. Turner.

Q. When did he come into the arrangement?

A. Oh, he come in the middle of that summer, August.

Q. Summer of what year? A. '43.

Q. How long did he remain in the business?

A. He remained until we closed.

Q. So that after he came in there remained four of you continuously? A. That's correct.

Q. Do you know an Arthur Pratt?

A. I know of him, yes.

Q. Do you know whether or not he purportedly had an interest in 110 Eddy Club?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

A. Before I came in, when I went to work at 110 Eddy, Mr. Arthur Pratt was the sole partner or owner under the establishment, but I never saw him come in the place, only once or twice.

Q. Do you know when he sold out his interest in 110 Eddy? A. No, I don't.

Q. You say you became interested in 1943?

A. That is correct, sir.

Q. What is your recollection as to whether or not Mr. Pratt was still in the business when you were there? [1662]

A. I don't believe he was. I understood Mr. Pratt went to Portland, Oregon, which is before I went in, before I took the place at 110.

Q. I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 8, partnership return of income for the year 1943 for 110 Eddy Street, and the listing of partners as being W. E. Kyne and Arthur Pratt. Did you ever see that return before?

A. No, I don't believe I have.

Q. Now I understand from your testimony that you were a partner during 1943?

A. That is correct.

Q. Do you find anything on this return indicating that? A. No, I don't.

Q. Now who kept the books and records of the 110 Eddy Street when you were there?

A. First of all, when I first moved in there, there was a fellow by the name of Bob Slater.

Q. Yes?

A. He kept the books and I don't know just exactly when, the last part of '44 I believe, Harold Maundrell took over from then on.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

Q. Now did Mr. Slater, and then Mr. Maundrell, keep those books on the premises at 110 Eddy Street or was the information supplied to them somewhere else?

A. No, they had their own office. [1663]

Q. In what manner was information as to receipts and disbursements supplied to them?

A. Well, Mr. Slater had the key for the premises at 110 Eddy and he used to come in the morning and he had also the combination to the safe, and he would open the safe and go in the safe and take the sacks out of the safe, the sack of the previous day's receipts of the cash register and he would take them to his office, count the money, and he would deposit the money in the bank and then tell us if there was any shortage or anything like that. Mr. Slater used to do that himself.

Q. You say a cash register tape was kept?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now was there other income there or other sources of revenue besides the selling of drinks at the bar?

A. No, that's all, just strictly a bar.

Q. Were there pin ball machines?

A. No, just a juke box.

Q. Now during the period of time that you were connected with 110 Eddy Street, to whom did you look for your instructions, Mr. Cavani?

A. Instructions for what?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

Q. For the conduct of the business?

A. Well, from Mr. Remmer, from Mr. Turner, so on, from all of us.

Mr. Gillen: All of us? [1664]

A. Yes, me and Turner were inside the place; I worked day shift and Turner worked night shift, or opposite.

Q. Now during the time that you were there, were there any occasions upon which Mr. Remmer took money out of the business?

A. Not at 110 Eddy. Mr. Remmer had nothing to do with the cash at 110 Eddy. I would take it over to Harold Maundrell or Mr. Slater, he used to take the money himself, and when Harold Maundrell took over I went over in the afternoon and took the money over to Harold Maundrell. I would take the slip and tape from the register and Mr. Maundrell would tell me how much to bank.

Q. My question was, during that period of time did Mr. Remmer ever withdraw any money from that business?

A. He might; if he did, it should show in the book.

Q. Do you recall occasion on which Mr. Remmer drew some nine thousand dollars?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. When was that?

A. I don't know the date but I knew he withdrew nine thousand dollars. He asked me how much money we had in the bank. I said I would have to go down and see, so I did and I came back and told him how much we had, so he said, "Get a check for nine thousand."

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

Q. Did you get the nine thousand dollars?

A. Yes. [1665]

Q. Who did you get it from?

A. The bookkeeper made out the check for nine thousand dollars and I went down to the bank and got the cash.

Q. What did you do with the cash after you got it? A. I took it to Mr. Remmer.

Q. What size bills were involved?

A. One hundred dollar bills.

Q. Do you recall in what year that was?

A. Well, it was either the year 1945 or 1946.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to have this document marked for identification as 153, for identification.

Q. Mr. Cavani, did you pay anything, incidentally, with regard to acquiring your 25 per cent interest in the 110 Eddy Club?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

(Question read.)

A. No, not a cent.

Q. Will you state whether or not you had any arrangements with any one whereby your share of profits was accumulated for that purpose?

A. That is right.

Q. With whom did you have that arrangement?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. What was the amount of interest that was to be accummulated [1666] for your 25 per cent interest?

A. My part of the payment was fifteen thousand.

Q. For the 25 per cent interest?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what were your arrangements as to how that fifteen thousand was to be paid?

A. Well, took it out of the profits as we go along.

Q. Now do you know how much of that had accumulated by the end of the year 1946?

Mr. Avakian: Objected to, the records are the best evidence. The records are in evidence, your Honor.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Campbell: This is one of the parties to the transaction.

A. Their record should be in the book.

Q. What is your recollection?

A. I don't know. I couldn't answer that because the bookkeeper took care of all the financial end.

Q. Did you pay any attention to that?

A. Not exactly, no. I was getting my wages and I was going along with that.

Q. I am just going to ask you to read over this first, 153 for identification.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Cavani, before the recess on Thursday you were testifying concerning the 110 Eddy Street bar and I believe you stated that you had some interest in that establishment, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. What was the extent of your interest?

A. Twenty-five per cent.

Q. And when did, or when were you to receive that 25 per cent interest?

A. Well, when my part was paid.

Q. How much was to be paid for your part?

A. Fifteen thousand dollars.

Q. During the period of time that that operated, was that amount paid, do you know?

A. No.

Q. You had not acquired your interest up to the time the place was closed?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to; this was asked and answered on Thursday last. My recollection is Mr. Cavani spoke of change [1668] from one establishment to another, the rent was raised and they moved to another establishment and reinvested in another establishment.

The Court: He may answer the question.

(Question read.)

A. No, I did not.

Q. Are you acquainted with Arthur Pratt?

A. Slightly.

Q. When did you first meet him?

A. Well, I was tending bar at 110 Eddy the fall of '42 and part of '43 and I seen Mr. Pratt come in and out of the place. I didn't even know he was a partner, to tell you the truth.

Q. When did you first learn he was a partner?

A. Well, I heard Clarence Bent talk about it.

Q. He was one of the partners there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When was that that you first learned that?

A. Well, probably in 1942, I imagine. Mr. Pratt took no part in the operation at any time.

Q. How long did Mr. Pratt continue to be a partner there, if you know?

A. I don't know. He was a partner in '43.

Q. Will you state whether or not, during the period of time that you were to acquire a partnership interest if Mr. Pratt was also a partner? [1669]

A. No, I didn't think he was.

Q. Do you know when Mr. Pratt ceased to be interested in 110 Eddy Street?

A. No, I don't.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

Q. Do you know any of the details surrounding that? A. I don't.

Q. At the time you entered into this oral agreement as to your acquisition of the 25 per cent interest, who did you discuss that matter with?

A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. Did you at that time learn who, if any one, were also partners or were to become partners in 110 Eddy Street?

A. No, the only thing I know Mr. Clarence Bent was a partner. I know that when I was working, and I know Mr. Remmer was a partner and Mr. Kyne. That's all.

Q. Were you told, or did you learn at that time as to the extent of their purported partnership interest? A. No, I didn't.

Q. Do you recall when Mr. Bent died?

A. Yes.

Q. When was that?

A. Well, it was around Easter time in '43.

Q. Do you know whether or not any one replaced him as a partner there?

A. No, I don't, outside of me. [1670]

Q. Was that when you acquired your interest?

A. Well, it was in that year, around May some time, last part of May.

Q. Was that before or after Mr. Bent died?

A. After.

Q. Was that the same year in which you had this talk with Mr. Remmer about becoming a partner?

A. Yes, Mr. Remmer called me. I was in Liver-more with my daughter when Mr. Bent passed away.

Q. You had previously worked for Mr. Bent?

A. That's right.

Mr. Campbell: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Cavani, first of all, with regard to the 21 Club and the San Diego Social Club in El Cerrito, California, it is a fact, is it not, that you had initially been offered a 25 per cent interest in those two enterprises, which were together in the same building, is that correct?

A. The 21 Club, sir.

Q. The 21 and San Diego Social Club, you had been offered a 25 per cent interest?

A. In the 21 Club, yes.

Q. Not in the San Diego Social Club?

A. No, sir.

Q. That was the bar and restaurant? [1671]

A. Bar and restaurant.

Q. And it is true, is it not, that while that 21 Club was being prepared for opening, that is renovated, by putting fixtures and everything in, that you applied for on-sale liquor license?

A. That is correct.

Q. And took it out in your name, contemplating you were going to become a partner and manage the 21 bar and restaurant, is that correct?

A. Right.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

Q. It is true, is it not, that before the 21 Club opened and before you became actively engaged in the operation of it that Mr. Bent died, isn't that so?

A. That is right, sir.

Q. And I believe you said a moment ago at the time he passed away you were at your daughter's home in Livermore and Mr. Remmer called you and advised you of Mr. Bent's death? A. Yes.

Q. It is true, is it not, Mr. Remmer then suggested to you that since you had worked for some time at the 110 Club that it might be practical for you to take the same kind of interest, that is, 25 per cent interest, in the 110 Club and stay there rather than go to the 21 Club at El Cerrito, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you agreed to do that? [1672]

A. I did.

Q. And thereafter you acquired your partnership interest in the 110 Club where you had been working as bartender, is that true?

A. That's right.

Q. Then, if I recollect your testimony, it was to the effect that you never did a day's work at the 21 Club? A. Never.

Q. But your name was on the license because you had applied for it while they were getting ready to open the 21 Club? A. That is right.

Q. And thereafter Mr. Simmons, who was the accountant who took care of the 21 Club's accounts for the year 1944, had you sign the partnership income tax return, is that true?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

A. Yes, that's right.

Q. Now, when you signed the partnership income tax return, I take it that you had no independent knowledge of the business doings of that enterprise, the 21 Club? A. I did not.

Q. The accountant merely sent you the return to sign and you signed it, is that correct?

A. That's right.

Q. Now, I take it that you made your own individual income tax return that year for your personal return? A. Yes, I did. [1673]

Q. Who prepared your personal return?

A. Mr. Slater.

Q. And that was the man who took care of the enterprises in San Francisco, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. So then the facts of the matter are that Mr. Simmons, George E. Simmons, prepared the partnership return for the 21 Club and your own individual income tax return was prepared by Mr. Slater? A. That is correct.

Q. And likewise Mr. Slater prepared the return for the 110 Club, is that correct?

A. That is right.

Q. Do you recall how it was brought to your attention by Mr. Simmons that he wanted you to sign the return?

A. Well, bartender working——

Mr. Campbell: I object—it is obvious the answer is not responsive to the question. It calls for a yes or no answer.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

The Court: Let us have the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: You can answer that yes or no. Do you recall? A. No, I do not.

Q. How did the return come into your hands?

A. Mr. Simmons sent it over by a fellow I knew working at the [1674] 21 Club.

Q. And was it delivered to you or left with some one? A. It was left at 110 Eddy.

Q. With whom was it left?

A. One of the bartenders.

Q. Do you recall the bartender's name?

A. No, I do not recollect. He was working there at the same time.

Q. Was there any note or instructions with it?

A. Yes.

Q. What was the note?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to—the note is the best evidence.

Q. Have you found the note since last testifying? A. Yes, I found it last week.

Q. Do you have it in your possession?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. Will you produce it?

A. Funny, I had it last night. I can't find it now. I wonder if I left it in my coat. Can I go look?

The Court: Yes.

A. Here it is.

Mr. Gillen: May I have this marked for identification, please? This note which you handed me and which has been marked defendant's Exhibit B-1, is that the note that accompanied [1675] the 1944 income tax return for the 21 Club, sent to you by Mr. Simmons to be signed by you because the liquor license was in your name?

Mr. Campbell: I object to the question in that form. It is assuming a fact not in evidence. It contains a number of elements.

The Court: The witness has already testified there was a note.

Mr. Campbell: The question assumes that Mr. Simmons sent it to him on account of something in Mr. Simmons' mind.

The Court: May I have the question?

Mr. Gillen: May I state that was testified to on Thursday by Mr. Cavani that Mr. Simmons had him sign the income tax return because the liquor license was in his name.

The Court: May we have the question?

(Question read.)

The Court: Objection sustained. The first part of the question may stand, not the latter part.

Mr. Gillen: Is your Honor——

The Court (Interceding): I sustain the objection to the entire question.

Mr. Gillen: I have the answer on Thursday, page 1566 of the transcript, on Mr. Cavani's testimony, that that was information given to him to sign the return because the liquor license was in his name, if your Honor wishes me to read it. [1676]

The Court: I don't think that would alter as to the ruling here. The ruling will stand.

Q. Is this the note that accompanied the 1944 tax return Mr. Simmons sent you?

A. That is right.

Q. It was left by a man named Len at the 110 Eddy Club?

A. No, he was working at the 21 Club.

Q. Who was Len? A. A bartender.

Q. Was he the man sent over with the return?

A. He is the one that left it at 110 Eddy.

Q. Was this note you have handed me left with the return at the 110 Eddy Club?

A. That is right.

Mr. Gillen: I offer this in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: No objection.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Mr. Gillen: With the Court's permission——

Mr. Campbell: May I suggest to the court, on numbering of defense exhibits we went through the alphabet and are now starting A-1. I think there might be some confusion whether or not A-1 relates to A, so may I suggest on this second group we use 1 followed by the letter A.

The Court: Let it stand this way.

Mr. Gillen: With the Court's permission, I would like to [1677] read this exhibit and then I should like to pass it to the jury so we may——

Mr. Campbell: I will stipulate that is in Mr. Simmons' handwriting.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

The Court: You may read it and pass it to the jury if you desire.

Mr. Campbell: I will stipulate it is in his handwriting.

Mr. Gillen: I think the jury can see his handwriting.

Mr. Campbell: Very well.

Mr. Gillen: This is Exhibit B-1: "Len, have Frank Cavani sign and then drop in mail box. G. E. Simmons." And the Court has indicated I will be permitted to show this Exhibit, B-1 and prosecution's Exhibit 72-A, being income tax return for the year 1944, made out for the 21 Club and on the reverse side of the return, at the left lower corner will be found the signature of Mr. G. E. Simmons.

Q. Now, Mr. Cavani, referring now to plaintiff's Exhibit 72A, did you examine it when you signed it? A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you know that there was shown for 1944, 21 Club, a five thousand dollar loss, $5540.87, did you notice that?

Mr. Campbell: At the time he signed it?

Mr. Gillen: Yes, at the time he signed.

A. That is what it shows, yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall whether you noticed that at the time and that you [1678] discussed it with anybody? A. Yes, I did.

Q. You did notice it at the time? A. Yes.

Q. Now, you were never a partner in the 21 Club as you have stated, is that correct?

A. Never, no.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

Q. Now, what salary did you draw at 110 Club?

A. At the 110 Club?

Q. Yes. A. In San Francisco?

Q. Yes.

A. I started at $75 and worked for a little short while and then I was raised to $100 a week.

Q. Mr. Cavani, in answer to a question by Mr. Campbell on Thursday last, you stated while you were working there as bartender in 1942, and before you acquired an interest, that you were receiving the standard wage of bartenders, is that correct? A. That's right.

Q. And then when you became a partner in this 25 per cent working interest, you received a salary of $75 a week and then $100 a week subsequent, is that correct? A. That's right.

Q. Now, that $75 a week which you received at first and later $100 a week by way of salary, you put that in your pocket, [1679] did you not? I mean, that is what you took home? A. Sure.

Q. Now, as to the profits over and above your salary, you did not take out any of those profits—they were left on the books to acquire your interest in the physical assets of the business, is that right?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to—the books are the best evidence.

The Court: I think that is a good objection. Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: I am going to show him the books, your Honor, but what I am trying to get at, and I think it is proper for me to do, I want to show what he did with the profits and what he did with his salary. In other words, the salary he lived on and the profits he left in the business. I just wanted to ask that question so the jury can get it in their minds.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

The Court: You may answer the question. Read the question.

Mr. Gillen: I think I can save time by asking another question.

The Court: Very well.

Q. Mr. Cavani, you were really then deriving from that partnership two types of income, one by way of salary, which you lived on, and another share in the profits of the business toward [1680] acquiring a full interest in the business, is that right? A. That is right.

Q. I believe you stated the other day you had drawn out of the business from profits the sum of $1500? A. That is right.

Q. And that was over and above your salary, isn't that correct? A. That is right.

Q. So then that we may get it fully in our minds, the salary you always drew and you lived on that, that was your living? A. That is right.

Q. And the profits you did not draw, except you say at one time you drew $1500?

A. That is right.

Q. Now, Mr. Cavani, is it not a fact that you drew more than $1500—as a matter of fact, you drew $2900, some of which was devoted to the payment of your income tax on the profit that was credited to your account in the books?

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

A. Well, the books will show.

Q. I am going to show you the prosecution's Exhibit 112, which has been identified, as I recall, as ledger of the 110 Eddy enterprise, and I am going to invite your attention particularly to the page headed "Frank Cavani." Will you look at this page, Mr. Cavani, and tell us if that refreshes your recollection as to the credits you had and what withdrawals you made?

Mr. Campbell: May I ask a question on voir dire? [1681]

The Court: Yes.

Q. (By Mr. Campbell): Mr. Cavani, did you have anything to do with keeping that record?

A. No, none whatsoever.

Q. Did you ever see that record before?

A. Well, the bookkeeper might have shown it to me.

Q. Do you have any recollection of ever having seen it before? A. No, I do not believe so.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object to the question. The record speaks for itself.

Mr. Gillen: The question is perfectly proper, may it please the Court.

The Court: Read the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Do you understand that question? Does the fact that looking at that book calls to mind that you knew something about the amounts there stated?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

A. Well, the bookkeeper was telling me when I paid anything like income tax——

The Court (Interceding): But does it call to your mind, to your own recollection?

A. Well, it is my name there, yes.

Q. Reading from your account, it shows that as of December 31, 1944, the net profit credited to you for the year 1944, out of the 110 Eddy Street enterprise was $3170.30. Do you recall [1682] whether or not that was the amount credited to you at that time. A. For the year?

Q. Yes, for the year 1944, that your share of the net profits was $3170.30? A. I think so.

Q. And then the next item shows that on March 14, 1945, you drew for payment on federal income tax the sum of $580.11, which reduces your credit on the books to $2590.19. Do you recall that you did draw down that amount of money to pay your income tax on the profits of that organization?

A. Yes.

Q. Then on the same date, March 14, 1945, it shows the withdrawal for a 1945 estimate of the profits that would be made for the year 1945, the sum of $150, which was paid to the Internal Revenue Department, does that refresh your recollection that you paid on an estimate?

A. That is correct.

Q. And that was charged against you as a debit and reduced your credit on the books to $2440.19.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

On April 12, 1945, there is an item here for 1944 State income tax—that is the State of California income tax—for the sum of $29.75, and you were shown to have withdrawn that for payment of your State income tax on the net profit for that year, 1944? A. That's right. [1683]

Q. And that reduced your credit on the books to $2410.44. Now, on May 31, 1945, there is an item here showing for 1943 net profit, you were credited with $3121.74, which raised your credit on the books to $5532.18. Do you recall that you were given a credit for net profit more than you had in 1943?

A. Well, if it is in the books, it must be right.

Q. Now, on June 6, 1945, on your 1945 estimate for the second quarter you are shown to have been deducted with another $150 to pay the Internal Revenue Department on your estimated second quarter installment, which reduced your credit on the books to $5382.18. Do you recall that you did make installment payments on that estimate for the year 1945? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Then on September 12, 1945, the third installment on estimate for 1945 shows that you were debited with another $150 drawn for payment to the Internal Revenue Department, which reduced your credit on the books to $5232.18. You did make your third installment payment to the Internal Revenue Department, is that correct?

A. The bookkeeper would have it in the books, I don't know. He asked me to sign those checks and I did accordingly.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

Q. Now, on December 28, 1945, it shows a withdrawal by you of the sum of $1500 from your credit on the books, which reduces your credit on the books to the sum of $3732.18. This is the $1500, I take it, that you referred to in your examination by [1684] Mr. Campbell on Thursday? A. That is right.

Q. You drew that on your credit on the books, $1500, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. On December 31, 1945, there shows for estimate on 1945 income tax return, fourth quarter, payment of the sum of $150, which reduces your credit on the books of 110 Eddy Club to $3582.18. Do you recall that you did make your fourth quarter payment, is that correct?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Now, the 110 Club returns, I believe you testified, the 1945 return was prepared by Mr. Maundrell and the 1946 return was prepared by Mr. Ayton? A. Yes.

Q. Another public accountant who worked there for the enterprises? A. That's correct.

Q. Now, did Mr. Remmer, the defendant here, have anything to do with the actual operation of the 110 Club during all the time that you were there, either during the time you were employed there as salaried bartender or during the time that you were there as 25 per cent working interest partner and serving also in the capacity of bartender?

A. Well, he used to come in and out once or twice a week, not [1685] every day, but he never had any part of operating the tavern at all.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

Q. Did he take any part, to your knowledge, in keeping any books or accounts of the tavern there?

A. No, sir.

Q. Now you, however, did take out cash register tapes and put the money in a sack and put it in the safe, is that correct?

A. That's right; either me or Mr. Turner. There was another man there too.

Q. Whoever happened to be there?

A. Whoever happened to be there at night time, yes.

Q. I believe you said that during the time Mr. Slater kept the books there, it was Mr. Slater who used to come there in the morning and take off the money and take the cash register tapes and go on over to his office, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And that he would count the money over there, make deposits in the bank and bring back the necessary change, is that true? A. That is true.

Q. Then during the time that Mr. Maundrell succeeded Mr. Slater in keeping the books, it was your practice to take the cash register tapes and the money over to Mr. Maundrell; isn't that correct? A. Yes, sir. [1686]

Q. And then Mr. Maundrell would make the bank deposits and you would pick up the change that was necessary to operate the establishment; is that correct?

A. Well, I go to Mr. Maundrell with the daily receipts and he would figure it out, how much I have to bank; he gave me the bank book and slip with the amount of money to bank and I would bank it and then bring the bank book to Mr. Maundrell.

Q. I understood you to say that at one time—I don't have the date in mind now—that the landlord of the premises known as 110 Eddy raised the rent. Did the lease expire, Mr. Cavani?

A. Yes, expired sometime in 1947, I believe around June.

Q. And when the lease expired, under the new lease the rent had been raised materially; is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. Can you give us the figures?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial, if the Court please. It is past the indictment date and would have no bearing on the issues here.

Mr. Gillen: We are pursuing this man's interest, who is a partner in an enterprise.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. It was raised from $210 a month to $750 a month.

Q. And it was determined that was excessive; I mean, you couldn't operate with that expense?

A. Yes, I told Mr. Remmer about it and he said just to move [1687] out of the place.

Q. So then I understood you moved out of the place and at some later time some of the fixtures and some of the stock and so on was moved into the 186 Club? A. Well, later on, yes.

Q. Now with regard to Mr. Arthur Pratt, you stated in your testimony on Thursday that it was your recollection that Mr. Pratt had moved——

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. I asked you, Mr. Cavani, regarding Mr. Pratt. I believe you stated on Thursday that it had come to your attention while you were in the 110 Club that Mr. Pratt had moved to the State of Oregon from California; is that correct?

A. That is what I was told; yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall about when that was?

A. No, I do not. [1688]

Q. Was it in 1943?

A. I believe it was that year.

Q. Now my associate called my attention this morning when I said in two different questions that after closing the 110 Eddy that you moved into 186 Club. What I had in mind was to say that you moved into the 186 Club and that was converted from a storeroom into a cafe and tavern?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

A. That is correct.

Q. Now I talked to you this morning about the 1944 income tax return that was filed on behalf of the 21 Club. I am referring now to the one that was prepared by Mr. Simmons, prosecution's Exhibit 72A. At the heading of that it is designated, is it not, "Frank Cavani, doing business as 21 Club"; is that correct? A. That's right.

Q. Now do you have a recollection now, Mr. Cavani, that within a few days thereafter Mr. Slater submitted for your signature—and I will show you prosecution's Exhibit 72 in evidence—another partnership return for the 21 Club for the year 1944, or at least for the period of time from January 1 to September 30, 1944, showing the same loss of $5540.27, that that was merely put down as the 21 Club, without Frank Cavani's name being in the title; isn't that correct? A. 21 Club, yes.

Q. Now do you have a recollection of this second return being [1689] submitted to you for your return? A. I don't believe so.

Q. Well, this was prepared by Mr. Slater, was it not, as it appears on this exhibit?

A. Yes, that's right.

Q. Mr. Slater's signature appears in the lower left-hand corner and your signature appears in the lower right-hand corner? A. That is right.

Q. Do you recall whether or not you called attention of Mr. Slater at the time he presented that to you to sign, that you had already signed an income tax return for the 21 Club?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And you stated in your direct examination the other day that Mr. Simmons told you that, although you were not a partner, it was necessary for you to sign because your name was on the license? A. That is correct.

Q. When did he tell you that?

A. He told me before the filing for the income tax.

Q. Before the income tax was filed?

A. Yes.

Q. He was going to have to have you sign it because your name was on the license; is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. Subsequently your name was taken off the license? [1690] A. That is correct.

Q. That was while you were working for the 110 Club; is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. This morning I did not have at hand the continuation of your personal account as a partner of the 110 Club. The last item here read this morning from prosecution's Exhibit 112 was an item on December 31, 1945, you paid the fourth quarter of 1944 estimated tax, $150, leaving a balance to your credit in the 110 books of $3582.18. Do you recall me asking you about that this morning?

A. Yes.

Q. Now plaintiff's Exhibit 112A—I will show

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

you here, Mr. Cavani—that is the pick-up or continuation for the next entry of your account.

Mr. Campbell: May I question on voir dire?

The Court: Yes.

Q. (By Mr. Campbell): Mr. Cavani, have you ever seen that record before?

A. Well, I don't know. I might have. The bookkeeper kept the books.

Q. Did you have anything to do with keeping that account? A. No.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for conclusion.

The Court: Objection sustained. [1691]

Q. I will ask you to look at it and tell us whether or not the first entry on this account, as of January 1, 1946, shows a balance to your credit?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to—the record speaks for itself.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. What does it read on that page?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection.

Mr. Gillen: Well, your Honor.

The Court: Either counsel or the witness may read the exhibit.

Q. What is the first entry that appears there?

A. I don't know a thing about bookkeeping, Mr. Gillen; that's out.

Q. Well, at the extreme right of the page, the first entry, January 1st, at the extreme right of here, what is entered there?

A. You mean the amount?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

Q. Yes. A. $3548.18.

Q. Isn't $3582.18? A. That's correct.

Q. Now showing you prosecution's Exhibit 112, I will ask you that in the year 1945, December 31st, it shows a balance of $3582.18; is that correct?

A. That is what it says here.

Q. Now, Mr. Cavani, on the same date, January 1, 1946, there [1692] appears to your credit, as one-fourth of the profits for the year 1945, to balance $5532.50, bringing your total of your credit to $9114.68. Does that refresh your recollection you were given a credit at the beginning of 1946 for the 1945 profits and that you had, as of the beginning of the year 1946, a $9114.68 credit?

A. I wouldn't know.

Q. Well, was it approximately that, do you recall?

A. Well, if the books say so, it must be. I don't know anything about keeping the books.

Q. On March 13, 1946, there is shown here to have been drawn by you for the Collector of Internal Revenue the sum of $999.12. Do you recall that you did draw $999.12 to pay your income tax for 1945? A. If that is in the book, it is correct.

Q. Well, is it your recollection that you paid your income tax on all the profits that you made in the 110 Club by drawing from your credit account?

A. That's right.

Q. And also there appears another item on the same date, March 13, 1946, payable to the Collector of Internal Revenue, check No. 448, for $225, apparently an estimate on your 1946 return, leaving a balance to your credit on the books of the 110 Club of $7890.56. Does that refresh your recollection that is approximately the amount you had on hand at that time? [1693]

A. It must be, Mr. Gillen, if it is in the book. I had nothing to do with keeping the books.

Q. On April 13, 1946, check No. 591, there was paid to the Franchise Tax Commissioner, that would be California, who collects the California tax, the sum of $49.16, leaving a balance to your credit on the books of $7841.40. Do you recall that you also drew from your credit account on the books to pay your State income tax?

A. Whatever the books say; I don't know.

Q. Now there appears also on the books a payment on June 13, 1945, to the Collector of Internal Revenue, the sum of $225, and item September 12, 1945, by check No. 744, payable to the Collector of Internal Revenue, in the amount of $225, and on January 12, 1946, check No. 825, the sum of $225, payable to the Collector of Internal Revenue. Would it be your recollection that those were the installments on your estimated income tax for the year 1946 that you paid, installments of $225 apiece?

A. Probably it is.

Q. That left you, as at the end of the year 1946, a balance of $7166.40 as of the end of 1946. Does that refresh your recollection that this was what you had on hand by way of credit out of your profits that you permitted to remain on the books of the

110 Eddy Club as your working interest in one-fourth the profits at that time? [1694]

A. Well, it must be if it shows in the books.

Q. You don't have any independent recollection of these amounts, I understand?

A. No, I haven't.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Cavani, with relation to these books shown here, I believe you testified you had nothing to do with keeping them? A. No.

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. What was your answer?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. Did you, particularly during the years 1944, 1945 and 1946 and the first half of 1947, examine the books and records of 110 Eddy Street?

A. Did I examine them?

Q. Yes.

A. No, I just took the word of the bookkeeper; what he told me to do, I done it.

Q. And that bookkeeper you say was who?

A. The first bookkeeper was Bob Slater, next Harold Maundrell.

Q. And who hired Mr. Bob Slater, if you know?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, not proper redirect [1695] examination.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. That I wouldn't know. He was bookkeeper when I was working at 110 Eddy.

Q. Who hired Mr. Maundrell to keep the books there? A. I believe Mr. Remmer.

Q. During that period of time did you ever receive a profit and loss statement? A. Yes.

Q. Do you still have those?

A. No, I didn't keep them. Mr. Maundrell was telling me if we went in the red or showed a profit or something.

Q. Were you given written statements in regard to profit and loss? A. Yes.

Q. Do you still have those?

A. I believe I still have some of those.

Q. Do you have those with you?

A. No, I haven't.

Q. Now in regard to the amounts that were charged against your account on the books for payment of taxes, who arrived at the amounts of those payments? A. The bookkeeper.

Q. Did you have anything to do with figuring those out? A. No.

Q. Did you sign the checks with relation [1696] to those? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Prior to the drawing of those checks, did you have discussions with anyone concerning them?

A. Well, Mr. Maundrell told me about paying the tax. He give me the amount and made the check out and I signed the check and sent it to the Revenue Department.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

Q. Did you have anything to do with figuring out the amount? A. No, no.

Q. Did you have anything to do with figuring out the amount on returns that you signed?

A. No.

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered several times.

The Court: The answer may stand.

Q. Now, as I understand your testimony, you stated that before Mr. Bent's death you were working only at regular Union bartender's wages; is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. And then after Mr. Bent's death, when you entered into this arrangement with Mr. Remmer, that you were to ultimately receive 25 per cent; is that correct?

A. Whatever the profit showed, yes.

Q. After $15,000 was paid?

A. That is right.

Q. And you then went on to a salary of $75 a week? [1697] A. That is correct.

Q. Who fixed that salary?

A. Well, myself, I believe; me and Mr. Turner decided to take $75 a week.

Q. Did you and Mr. Turner discuss that with anybody? A. No, just me and Mr. Turner.

Q. Mr. Turner is dead, is he not? A. Yes.

Q. When did he die?

A. He died in '48 or '49; I am not sure.

Q. Was his arrangement, if you know, similar to your arrangement?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

A. That I couldn't tell you.

Q. You don't know? A. I don't know.

Q. Now when you raised to $100 a week, how was that arranged? Who arranged that?

A. We did it ourselves.

Q. You and Mr. Turner? A. That's right.

Q. Now you say that this arrangement which you had with Mr. Remmer was made in the spring, I believe, of 1943, after Mr. Bent's death; was that correct? A. Yes, in May.

Q. When did Mr. Turner come into [1698] 110 Eddy? A. Later that year.

Q. Now were the terms under which Mr. Turner was to come into the business discussed with you?

A. No. I was sick that year, around the middle of July.

Q. Did you ever learn the terms of Mr. Turner's being in the business? A. No, never did.

Q. Did you conduct any of the negotiations with Mr. Turner about coming into the business?

A. No.

Q. Now you stated that originally you had been offered a 25 per cent interest in the 21 Club. Who offered you that?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. Now relating to the matter of license of the 21 Club being in your name, did you confer with anyone other than Mr. Remmer regarding that?

A. No, I didn't.

A. I don't know. This has been in my possession for the last seven or eight years.

Q. Did you, Mr. Cavani, make a particular point of saving that document?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as improper redirect. Counsel is cross-examining and attempting to impeach his own witness in cross-examination.

Q. Now you found it for the first time last week? A. That's right.

Q. I presume you showed that to Mr. Gillen then; is that right? A. This morning, yes.

Q. I don't recall whether or not you identified the person whose first name was Len that appears on this note? A. Len, yes.

Q. Did you identify him as to his last name?

Mr. Gillen: He said he was a bartender. [1700]

Q. Do you recall his last name?

A. Len Wylie.

Q. Do you know where he is located at the present time?

A. He is a bartender in San Francisco.

Q. You testified, I believe, both on direct examination and cross-examination, regarding $1500 that was paid to you in addition to your salary. Who paid that money to you?

A. The bookkeeper wrote the check and I signed the check and I cashed the check.

Q. Who, if anyone, determined the amount that was to be paid at that time?

A. I don't remember. My partner, I believe.

Q. Was there any meeting of anyone before those checks were written out?

A. No, not that I recall—myself, Mr. Turner, Mr. Remmer and Mr. Maundrell.

Q. And who decided how much was to be paid each individual at that time?

Mr. Gillen: Of course, that is improper redirect and assuming something was decided. It is my recollection this man said he merely drew $1500 out of his account.

A. No, I haven't. I know I drew this $1,500, that is all I know, and I don't know if we had a meeting or not, I don't remember.

Q. Do you recall whether or not at that time amounts were also paid to Mr. Remmer and Mr. Turner?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to, the books are the best evidence of that.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Campbell: Very well. At this time I wish to read, if the Court please, from Plaintiff's Exhibit 112, heretofore identified as the ledger at the 110 Eddy Street, under account of heading "Personal" account headed "Frank Cavani," under date of December 28, 1945, on account check 102, debit of $1,500. On account of William E. Kyne, the last entry appearing herein is as of May 31, 1945. The account of Elmer Remmer, there is shown a debit on December 17, 1945, item United States Treasury bonds, check 104, $3,000. The account of Thomas C. Mr. Gillen: May I ask counsel the way he reads the Kyne account shows nothing drawn?

Mr. Campbell: I stated the last entry shown on Kyne as of May 31, 1945. [1702]

Mr. Gillen: It shows no amount drawn?

Mr. Campbell: The only amount drawn, on

Mr. Campbell: That's all.

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Cavani, you mentioned finding that paper, a note from Mr. Simmons, which is Defendant's Exhibit 1-B, among your papers last week. You recall answering Mr. Campbell that?

A. Yes.

Q. You returned to San Francisco over last week end, did you not? A. That's right.

Q. You returned to San Francisco what date?

A. Last Thursday night. I don't know the date.

Q. And you returned to Reno when?

A. Last night about 12:00 o'clock.

Q. When you say you found this old note among your papers, do you mean you found that among your papers in San Francisco over the week end when you were home? [1703]

A. Yes, Friday.

Q. And you showed that to me at the Golden Hotel in Reno?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

A. I showed it to you in court.

Q. I mean this morning, at the Golden Hotel, you showed me this note, did you not?

A. I told you I found it, yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Cavani, you stated in your redirect examination to Mr. Campbell that you did not know the arrangement of Mr. Turner in connection with the 110 Club. You knew he had a one-fourth interest, the same as you had?

A. No, I didn't. He had never consulted with me at any time.

Q. Let me show you prosecution's Exhibit 82, 1945 income tax return for the 110 Eddy Club, prepared by Harold Maundrell, signed by yourself, in which it sets forth, does it not, in Schedule I, that Mr. Thomas C. Turner had a one-fourth interest, the same as you? Isn't that so?

A. Yes, that is what it says here.

Q. Does that refresh your recollection that you knew that Mr. Turner had a one-fourth interest the same as you?

A. I believe it was the same partnership, yes.

Q. I show you prosecution's Exhibit 83, which is income tax return for the partnership of 110 Eddy Street for the year 1946, prepared by Mr. Slater and signed by yourself, in which it is set forth also that Mr. Thomas C. Turner had a one-fourth interest, the same as you. [1704]

A. That is what it shows.

Q. Now you stated that you were ill when Mr.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Frank Cavani.)

Turner first became associated with the 110 Eddy enterprise? A. That is right.

Q. How long were you laid up?

A. I was laid up quite a bit. I broke my right shoulder and I was laid up with that for almost three months.

Q. Was there some other illness that kept you away from your business?

A. Also had an ulcer.

Q. For what period of time over the year were you laid up?

A. The first time from the first week of July until about the middle of August.

Q. After the broken shoulder?

A. No, broke my shoulder afterwards.

Q. Then what period of time were you laid up after that?

A. I was laid up most of the year.

Q. And Mr. Turner came in when you were first ill? A. That's right.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all.

Mr. Campbell: That is all.

The Court: Any reason why the witness could not be finally excused?

Mr. Gillen: I think not.

The Court: You may be excused. [1705]

SOL SANFORD EZRALOW

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Will you state your name?

A. Sol Sanford Ezralow.

Q. Where do you live? A. Los Angeles.

Q. What is your present business or occupation?

A. Certified public account, engaged in practice for myself.

Q. Engaged in private practice of your profession? A. Yes.

Q. Were you formerly connected with the Internal Revenue Department? A. Yes, I was.

Q. In what capacity?

A. I was a revenue agent out of the San Francisco division.

Q. And for what period of time?

A. 1944, and I separated from the Internal Revenue service the early part of '47, but my last work I did was in 1946.

Q. In other words, I take it, you had some accumulated leave? A. Right.

Q. Which was used at the end of your service?

A. Right.

Q. Now, in connection with your duties as an Internal Revenue agent, were you assigned to make certain investigations with [1706] relation to the affairs of Elmer Remmer? A. Yes.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Q. Do you recall approximately when you commenced that investigation?

A. I believe the returns was assigned to me the latter part of 1945, November or December of 1945.

Q. Was that investigation still in progress at the time you terminated your connection with the Internal Revenue service; that is to say, your active connection? A. Yes, it was.

Q. And had you completed your investigation at that time? A. No.

Q. And at the time that you terminated your connection with the Internal Revenue Service, what did you do with whatever material and records you had gathered to that point?

A. I turned them over to Mr. O'Connell, who is also in the agent's office.

Q. Are you referring to Mr. John O'Connell?

A. Yes, I believe that is correct.

Q. What is his position with the Internal Revenue?

A. Well, I am not exactly sure. I think he was head of what is called the Fraud Squad.

Q. At any rate, you left the survey record with him? A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. Now, in connection with your investigation of Mr. Remmer's [1707] affairs during the period of time that you were connected with the case, did you secure various books and records of various enterprises in which Mr. Remmer had, or was purported to have an interest? A. Yes, I did.

Q. And in that connection did you also obtain

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

certain income tax returns, including individual income tax returns and partnership returns of Mr. Remmer in these various enterprises of the partnerships and corporations, and also of the individuals who purported to be partners in those various enterprises? A. Yes, I did.

Q. With regard to the various returns and records, which you obtained, did you analyze those returns for the purpose of ascertaining what they disclosed as to the purported ownership as shown on the returns of the various individuals whose names appeared thereon in the various enterprises?

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor——

Mr. Campbell: It is a preliminary question.

Mr. Avakian: The question is so broad, I feel we should object unless narrowed down to the particular returns or people or enterprises he is talking about so we will have an opportunity to know how to cross-examine.

Mr. Campbell: That will be the next question.

The Court: You may answer the question. [1708]

A. The answer is yes.

Q. In that regard, Mr. Ezralow, did you prepare charts for each of the years, 1943, 1944, and 1945, which analyzes those returns to which you have referred and in the manner in which I have indicated? A. Yes, I did.

Q. I am going to ask to have these documents marked the government's next number in order, with the number 154, 154A, and 154B respectively, for 1943, 1944, and 1945 respectively. Now, without referring to the contents themselves, and to assist counsel in examining these documents, Mr. Ezralow, I notice that there are certain squares in your charts in red and certain squares in blue. Will you distinguish between the purpose of the blue and the red squares in general terms, without referring to the contents?

A. The blue squares indicate entities. The red squares indicate individuals.

Q. And by entities are you also referring to the entity filing a return, either partnership, individual or corporation? A. Correct.

Q. And the red squares indicating the individuals would be those reflected on those returns as having an interest in those entities?

A. Correct.

Q. Incidentally, were these charts prepared by you during the [1709] period of time that you were employed as an Internal Revenue agent and as a portion of your duties as an Internal Revenue agent? A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: It may take a little time for counsel to examine these.

The Court: We will take a short recess for about 10 minutes.

(Jury and alternate jurors admonished and recess taken at 1:45 p.m.)

BLURRED COPY

2:00 P.M.

(Defendant present with counsel.)

The Court: I understand counsel have a matter they would like to present in the absence of the jury.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, since the jury was already out, we thought we might anticipate the offering of these documents.

The Court: You contemplate offering them?

Mr. Campbell: Yes.

Mr. Avakian: We thought we would raise the objection at this time, your Honor. These three sheets, 1943, 1944, and 1945, purport to be charts—if your Honor can see them from that distance; I will hand them up in a moment—and apparently what Mr. Ezralow did for his own guidance and as part of his own work papers was set forth in blue square, for example, [1710] the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe, and then connect that up with lines with red squares, for example, Remmer, Kyne and Lando, to show, I believe from his testimony, that the 1943 return of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe listed Remmer, Kyne and Lando as having an interest in the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe, and there are a number of these blue squares which list the business in which different people have an interest and then by connected red squares the names of the people purported to have an interest in them. Now, our objection to these three sheets, your Honor, is this—at the top of each one is the heading "Related Interest" and then the year, and the implication of that obviously, if this goes before the jury, is that every entity listed on each of these sheets is an interest which is related in some way with the income tax investigation of Mr. Remmer.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Campbell: I will agree that the word "related interest" can be eliminated to shorten the argument.

Mr. Avakian: The exhibit itself sets forth the names of many entities that are not connected with this case; at least, so far as the evidence goes. For example, on the chart for 1943 there is a blue square entitled "Club Vanderbilt." Now, there is no evidence in this case that Mr. Remmer had any interest in the Club Vanderbilt, and on the contrary Mr. Cavani, who did have an interest in the Vanderbilt, specifically testified, in response to Mr. Campbell, that Mr. Remmer did not have an interest in the Club Vanderbilt. [1711] Then an entity entitled Clark Creek Lodge, and there has never been mentioned in this case and nothing here to show that Mr. Remmer had any connection with that, and then there are names of various individuals in red squares connected with Clark Creek Lodge, who likewise have not been mentioned in this case; for example, Edwin D. Chioso.

The Court: I have this thought now. Matters relating to entities or establishments which are not connected here with Mr. Remmer in the evidence, would have no place in the case.

Mr. Campbell: That is probably true, your Honor.

The Court: Such as the Club Vanderbilt and Clark Creek Lodge.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, there is an extensive list of names that have no connection in this case and it would also show that the connecting lines and squares are so intertwined that the squares would be blocked out. Let me read additional names of entities.

The Court: First, if this exhibit is to be admitted at all, or an exhibit similar to this, I would suggest that new documents be prepared which enter only matters in evidence here.

Mr. Avakian: That is our thought, your Honor.

Mr. Campbell: That can be done. We will have charts prepared which will eliminate these entities that [1712] have no connection.

The Court: Do you agree with the thought I just expressed, that if any charts are to be introduced here they should be based entirely matters having to do with the evidence in this case, matters covered by the evidence having to do with the defendant.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, your Honor, but inasmuch as such charts will be prepared from these charts I would put in here for identification and showing the derivation prior to substituting other charts which will be prepared.

Mr. Avakian: May I suggest in that connection, your Honor, that the charts which are placed in evidence here should be prepared from evidence in this case, not from unrelated material. The evidence in this case connects up Mr. Remmer with various businesses——

The Court: We don't know what this witness is going to testify to.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Avakian: Whatever his testimony is, will be part of the record and the charts should be based on the record at the time the charts are produced.

The Court: We will see what develops.

Mr. Campbell: The objection should be made then rather than at this time.

The Court: We will see what the new charts will have. [1713]

Mr. Avakian: Perhaps this one point will obviate the question. Under Cal-Neva, as a blue entity, there is only one red square in 1943, 1944, and 1945, in which are the names of Elmer F. Remmer and Helen Remmer. The evidence in this case shows William Graham and James McKay also had an interest in Cal-Neva during those three years. Now, it could be that Mr. Ezralow did not investigate those other cases, but the evidence in this case shows that the people interested in Cal-Neva were not simply Remmer, but also McKay and Graham.

The Court: Maybe so, but it is my view we have just seen this witness on the stand for a few moments and it may be that his evidence will cover a long period of investigations and if those investigations and results can be summarized by a chart, I think it will tend to simplify the case for the Court and the jury.

Mr. Avakian: As long as it is based on evidence in the record at the time, we have no objections.

The Court: We can meet that when it comes. I understand these documents, 154, 154A, and 154B, are merely marked for identification, will not be offered in evidence.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Campbell: No, your Honor.

The Court: Now, are we ready to proceed with the jury?

Mr. Golden: There is one matter, if your Honor wishes [1714] to take it up while the jury is out. Your Honor reserved ruling on defendants' Exhibit E for identification.

The Court: I do not remember reserving any ruling in this entire case.

Mr. Avakian: Last Thursday at the end of the day Mr. Campbell asked you to reserve ruling admitting Exhibit E for identification.

Mr. Campbell: I have not been able to locate copy of the record. We thought we had Mr. Mooney's testimony written up, but I have not been able to locate that.

The Court: You want further time?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: Very well. Call in the jury.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Now Mr. Ezralow, prior to the recess you testified that you, during the course of your employment in this matter, secured certain books and records. Incidentally, during that period of time, that is to say, from May, 1945, through the termination of your services in December, 1946, were you also engaged in other investigations unrelated to this case? A. Yes. [1715]

Q. So that I take it that all of your time was not devoted to this matter?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now, with regard to the records which you received from Mr. Kyne and Mr. Maundrell, in the course of your investigation, will you state generally what those records were and of what concerns?

A. Well, I asked Mr. Kyne for some records. I also asked Mr. Maundrell for some records, and I specifically recall Mr. Kyne furnished me with a list of cashier's checks. I asked for any information that I could use as a basis to determine the income of, I think the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe. I think it was a horse race betting——

Mr. Avakian: The witness is not answering the question. He was asked to identify records and I ask that portion be stricken, particularly as to his characterizing the business. He is relating conversations and conclusions.

The Court: Let us have the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: I will reframe the question.

The Court: The answer will go out.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Q. Will you state the names of the various enterprises concerning which you received books and records? You are referring to work sheet that you made, Mr. Ezralow?

A. That is correct. When I left the Bureau I prepared a summary [1716] of the work I had done and that is what I am referring to.

Q. Was that prepared by you in December of 1946? A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. And that is a matter that is in your handwriting?

A. That is right. It is in my handwriting.

Mr. Campbell: That may be marked for identification and you may refer to it for the purpose of refreshing your recollection. 155 for identification, consisting of some 4 pages, containing handwritten memorandums in pencil.

Mr. Avakian: May we see it, counsel?

Mr. Campbell: Well, it is marked for identification, not in evidence.

(Question read.)

A. Well, there is the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe, which was in a diary form and for each day there was an amount listed which represented——

Q. Before you come to any description of the records, will you state the various enterprises concerning which you received books and records?

A. The B. & H. Smoke Shoppe, 110 Eddy, Day-Night Cigar Store, 186 Club.

Q. Does that complete the list concerning which you received books and records?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

A. I believe that is correct.

Q. And concerning which of these enterprises did you receive [1717] records from Mr. Kyne?

Q. Mr. Kyne gave me a list of cashier's checks. That was on the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe. He also furnished me with a diary that was on the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe, and there was some journals and ledgers in connection with the 110 Eddy and Day-Night Cigar Store. I either got those from Mr. Kyne or Mr. Maundrell, I am not sure which. And then on the 186 Club Mr. Maundrell gave me a carton full of what he referred to as poker sheets. They were wrapped up in a rubber band. Each day had several sheets wrapped in a rubber band in a carton, grocery store size carton.

Q. Now, at the time you received these various records from Mr. Kyne and from Mr. Maundrell, do you recall whether or not receipts were given for them?

A. I do not think so. I am not sure, but the relationship was very friendly and I think either they did not ask for them or the question just wasn't raised as to receipts.

Q. Now, what, if any, arrangements did you have—or did you have any arrangements, for returning the records or for making them accessible?

A. Well, at the time these records were given to me, at that time I said I would meet them for a little while because I wanted to analyze them in my office and if they ever wanted to refer to them or look at them while I had them, they were free to do so, that when I was through with them they could have them [1718] back.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Q. And was that arrangement still in effect at the time you left the service? A. Yes, it was.

Q. And will you state whether or not, during the time you had them and while you were still in the service, access was obtained to them by Mr. Kyne or Mr. Maundrell or any one in their behalf, if you recall?

A. No, I do not recall any one ever asking for them.

Q. Were any requests ever made of you for their return? A. I do not recall, no.

Q. Now, with relation to the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe, will you state, to the best of your recollection, what records were shown you and for what years? You have already referred to cashier's checks.

A. Well, I recall a diary, I guess it was about size 5½ by 9, where there is one figure shown for each day and had a "W" next to the figure or an "L." I asked Mr. Kyne what that meant. He said the "W" represents win and the "L" represents loss and when the day's transactions were over, the result was put down.

Q. I am going to show you plaintiff's exhibits 111 and 111A, which purport to be diary or daily reminder for the years 1942 and 1943, and ask you if you saw those two exhibits in the course of your investigation?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

A. This appears to be 1942. These both look familiar as the [1719] books I looked at.

Q. Would it be your best recollection then that these were seen by you in the course of your investigation? A. Yes.

Q. Now, did you also, in the course of your examination of the records which were made available to you of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe, see a similar book with relation to the year 1944?

A. Yes.

Q. Will you describe the appearance of that book, to the best of your recollection?

A. To the best of my recollection it was almost identical with those I have just seen.

Q. That is to say 111 and 111A?

A. Those two books you just showed me.

Q. What were the nature of the entries that you observed in that 1944 book?

Mr. Avakian: Objected to—the book itself is the best evidence.

The Court: Objection will be overruled.

Mr. Avakian: May the witness be instructed not to answer as to the contents then, your Honor.

The Court: Yes, I will watch that and see what develops here.

Mr. Avakian: Thank you.

(Question read.) [1720]

The Court: Just state generally the nature of the entries, without stating what they were.

A. They were similar to the book I just looked at.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Q. That is to say 111 and 111A?

A. These black books, that show win and loss for each day.

Q. Do you recall whether or not more than one entry per day was shown in that book, 1944?

Mr. Avakian: Objected to—the record is the best evidence. May I call your Honor's attention that the exhibits introduced by the government show that the 1943 and 1945 books were returned to Mr. Semenza, but no showing that the government ever returned 1944 books so the last record is it is in the possession of the government and I think that the book itself should be produced.

(Question read.)

The Court: You may answer this question.

A. I do not think so.

Mr. Avakian: May we ask that that be stricken, if he doesn't know.

Q. What is your best recollection?

Mr. Avakian: He says he doesn't think so.

The Court: Let him answer the question.

A. My recollection is that there was one figure for each day. That is my best recollection.

Q. I call your attention to the diary for 1943 and to the fact [1721] that under each day there is one figure with "Win" or "Lose" opposite, that is, aside from certain side notations, and ask you if the entries in the 1944 diary which you observed were similar in nature to the entries which you observe in that book?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Mr. Avakian: Object, the 1944 diary itself is the best evidence and unless and until its absence is explained in some way, its contents should not be put in the record.

The Court: We are not going to let the contents be put in the record.

Mr. Avakian: He has asked if it is similar to something in the record—that is giving the contents.

The Court: He did not say definitely. Objection overruled.

A. Yes, it was similar.

Q. Do you recall when you last saw the 1944 diary?

A. It was in my office at the time I left the Bureau in 1946.

Q. Have you seen it since that time?

A. No, I have not.

Q. Do you know, of your own knowledge, what became of that diary? A. No, I do not.

Q. Now, will you answer this yes or no—did you make an examination of that diary for the purpose of ascertaining the profit or loss incurred by the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe for the calendar year [1722] 1944?

Mr. Avakian: May that be answered yes or no?

Mr. Campbell: I asked him to answer yes or no.

A. Yes.

Q. And in making such examination, did you also have before you the partnership return of income as filed by the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe?

A. Yes.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Q. As a result of that examination, did you have a discussion with any one as to the figures which you ascertained as being the profit or loss incurred by the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe as shown by the 1944 diary to which you have referred? Answer yes or no. A. Yes.

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment. May the answer be stricken until I object?

The Court: Yes, it may go out.

Mr. Avakian: I object to that part of the question which states as a result of his examination, because that implies a question which is conclusion. We think it should be a factual inquiry as to whether he did or not.

Mr. Campbell: I will reframe the question.

Q. Having completed your examination of the 1944 Diary and 1944 partnership return of income, did you have a discussion concerning those matters with any one? Answer yes or no?

Mr. Avakian: Objected to as contrary to the evidence. [1723] He already testified when he left the Bureau he had not completed his examination, that the investigation was still in progress and he turned his work over to some one else.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. Yes.

Q. And with whom did you have that discussion?

A. Mr. Kyne.

Q. Now, as a result of the examination of that diary and of the 1944 return, did you prepare, in the course of your official duties, and as a part of your official duties, a report relating to such examination?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Mr. Avakian: Objected to, your Honor, as leading and suggestive and again calling for a conclusion with that phrase, "as a result." It is not a factual question, but a conclusion as to what the result was for something he did. We think a simple direct question of factual nature would serve this purpose.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

(Question read.)

A. I prepared an information report.

Q. Is that a report which is prepared as part of the official duties of a Revenue agent?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Do you have before you now a copy of that report? A. Yes, I do. [1724]

Mr. Campbell: May this be marked 156 for identification.

Q. Calling your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 78, the partnership return of income for the calendar year 1944 for the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe, I will ask you to examine that and state if that is the partnership return of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe which you had before you at the time you examined the diary to which you refer? A. Yes, it is.

Q. Now, subsequent to your examination of the diary you stated that you had a conference with Mr. Kyne, is that correct? A. Yes.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Q. Now, I will ask you whether or not at the time of such conference, if any agreement was reached as to the amount of profit and loss for the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe for the year 1944?

Mr. Avakian: This is a question which obviously calls for hearsay.

The Court: Let me have the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Campbell: May I point out two matters in that connection, your Honor?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Campbell: The testimony here shows the records of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe for the year 1944 were kept by the witness Kyne; that record further shows that he purported to [1725] be a partner in the enterprise. I am not asking for the language of the conversation in my question. The question, I believe, calls for a yes or no answer, as to whether or not agreement was reached at that time.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, that obviously is a conclusion.

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Mr. Campbell: Very well. If the Court please, may I withdraw this witness for a few moments to lay further foundation for certain testimony?

The Court: You may do so.

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Mr. Campbell: I intend to call him for a limited purpose at this time.

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. Lynn Harkness.

Q. What is your business or occupation?

A. Internal Revenue agent.

Q. To what office are you assigned?

A. San Francisco.

Q. How long have you been an Internal Revenue Agent? A. A little over six years.

Q. Now, as a part of your employment, were you assigned to the investigation of the affairs of Elmer Remmer? [1726] A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when was that assignment made, if you recall? When did you come into the picture?

A. I came into it about October 15, 1947.

Q. And was that after Mr. Ezralow had left the service? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, do you recall at the time you came into the case, were certain records and books turned over to you in connection with the investigation?

A. They had previously been——

Mr. Avakian: That can be yes or no, your Honor.

The Court: Read the question.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

(Question read.)

The Court: Answer, yes or no. A. Yes.

Q. By whom were they turned over to you?

A. They were turned over to me by either Mr. Kyne or Mr. Maundrell.

Q. I think you misunderstood my original question. Were certain records turned over to you that were already in possession of the Internal Revenue service?

A. They were not turned over to me directly.

Q. Did you use certain books and records in connection with your investigation?

A. I used certain books and records, yes. [1727]

Q. In connection with that, did you examine what purported to be the 1944 diary or record book of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. At a subsequent date did you have occasion to deliver such records as you had of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe to any one else?

Mr. Avakian: Objected to as leading and suggestive. Every question Mr. Campbell asks contains testimony and calls either a yes or no answer.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. What records we had that we were using were left in Special Agent's office in care of Mr. Weaver.

Q. I believe you stated that you had seen this 1944 diary? When was the last time you saw that record?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

A. Well, some time during the investigation and prior to the time that we turned them over to Mr. Weaver.

Q. Have you subsequently made a search for that record? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know what has become of it?

A. No, sir.

Q. Have you searched the files and records of the Internal Revenue agent in San Francisco?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in the Reno Internal Revenue Agent's?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you also made inquiries of the Special Agent? [1728] A. Yes, sir.

Q. And have you been able to locate that record?

A. No, sir.

Q. During the course of your examination did you make a complete transcript of the entries in the 1944 diary? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you have that?

A. I do not have it with me. I can get it.

Q. Where is it? A. Upstairs.

Q. Would you get that? You have handed me a three-page pencil document consisting of three accounting pages. I will ask you if that is the transcript to which you refer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Does that set forth the daily entries as you observed them in that 1944 record?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: May this be marked for identification?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

Q. Is this transcript made by you, Mr. Harkness? A. Yes.

Q. Were you able to ascertain what happened to the original record? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, I notice about the third page, after the red letter "A" appears certain figures. Were those taken by you from the diary [1729] or were they obtained from some other source? Appearing under the red letter "A." Answer that yes or no. Pardon me—will you answer whether they were obtained from the diary or some other source?

A. Obtained from some other source.

Mr. Campbell: This lower portion then I will remove.

Q. The totals appearing hereon and the summary by months are your totals? A. Yes, sir.

Q. But taken from the transcript as set forth on the preceding page? A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: I will cause to be removed the portion appearing from other sources.

Mr. Avakian: May the removed portion be marked for identification, your Honor?

The Court: Very well—157A for identification.

Mr. Campbell: At this time I offer in evidence Exhibit 157.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we object to the admission in evidence of Exhibit 157 in the present state of the record, because no proper foundation has been laid for the introduction of secondary evidence. Mr. Harkness testified he turned the 1944 diary, the actual original record itself, over to Mr.

Weaver. We haven't heard from Mr. Weaver as to what happened [1730] to it.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Campbell: That is not his testimony.

The Court: Objection sustained. I think that is the testimony.

Mr. Campbell: May I ask the witness a question as to what he did with the 1944 diary?

The Court: Yes.

A. I said I turned over what books and records as were there to Mr. Weaver.

Q. Did that include the 1944 diary?

A. No, it did not.

Mr. Avakian: May I ask the witness on voir dire?

The Court: Yes.

Q. (By Mr. Avakian): Did you have such record to turn over to Mr. Weaver? A. No.

Q. When did you first learn that the 1944 diary was missing?

A. At the time I looked up the records to leave in Special Agent's office I noticed that the diary was missing.

Q. When was that?

A. I would say March or April, 1949.

Q. You testified that you were assigned to this case in October of 1947, is that correct?

A. Correct. [1731]

Q. And some time after that you saw the 1944 diary? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall when you last saw it?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

A. Well, I couldn't say exactly. Some time in that period I worked on it during that period.

Q. Was Mr. Weaver also working on the case at that time? A. Not actively.

Q. When did Mr. Weaver start actively working with these records, if you know.

Mr. Campbell: These records?

Q. These various records that you had in your possession in connection with this case after you were assigned?

A. He was assigned to the case the entire time, but he wasn't active on the work.

Q. Was he active at all?

A. I wouldn't say at all.

Q. He was inactive, although assigned?

A. He was assigned to do some work.

Q. Prior to the time you say you boxed these records? A. Yes.

Q. Did he actually look at any of these records prior to the time you boxed them? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know whether or not Mr. Weaver looked at the 1944 diary prior to the time you boxed these records? [1732]

A. I really don't know.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I submit Mr. Weaver is here and we should have the proper foundation laid for secondary evidence.

The Court: I think so.

Mr. Campbell: Very well.

Q. Let me ask—you stated you are an agent.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

What was the position occupied by Mr. Weaver?

A. Mr. Weaver was special agent.

Q. In making an examination of this nature, what are the responsibilities of a revenue agent and what are the responsibilities of a special agent?

A. A revenue agent's responsibility is determining the tax liability.

Q. And what is primarily the responsibility of a special agent?

Mr. Avakian: Objected to——

Mr. Campbell: I will withdraw the question.

Q. Mr. Harkness, in regard to determining the tax liability, whose function is it in the investigation to make examination of the books and records?

A. That is the revenue agent's.

Q. And that was your function in connection with this case? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I think that is all. You may cross-examine. [1733]

Mr. Avakian: I understand this witness will be called later?

Mr. Campbell: Oh, yes.

Mr. Avakian: May we defer our cross-examination until that time?

The Court: Very well.

MR. RAY A. WEAVER

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Will you state your name?

A. Ray A. Weaver.

Q. What is your business or occupation?

A. Special Agent of the Intelligence Unit of the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Q. How long have you been connected with the Bureau of Internal Revenue?

A. Sixteen years.

Q. You are also a certified public accountant?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. As part of your official duties as special agent of the Intelligence Unit, did you participate in the investigation of the affairs of Mr. Remmer?

A. Yes, I did.

Mr. Campbell: I might say to your Honor, I am calling this witness for limited purpose at this time and will recall [1734] him for general purposes at a later stage.

The Court: Very well.

Q. Mr. Weaver, will you state in general the duties of an Intelligence Unit agent in an investigation of this nature, where there is also assigned revenue agents in the case?

Mr. Avakian: The general question we think is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. What he did in this case may be material, but as to the general nature of duties in the general situation, we do not think that is proper here.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. The general duties of a special agent are to determine whether any reported income is the result of a fraudulent act on the part of the taxpayer and if so, to secure whatever evidence may be available of such acts.

Q. Does that include the auditing of the books?

A. Not ordinarily, although it may in certain circumstances require some auditing.

Q. Now, turning specifically to the records of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe, will you state whether or not there came into your possession during your connection with the investigation the 1944 diary record of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe?

A. I have no recollection of ever seeing the 1944 diary itself. I remember at one time discussing the transcript which the revenue agents had made from the 1944 diary and at that time noticing the large discrepancies between the diary—— [1735]

Mr. Campbell: Never mind the findings.

A. At that time I asked where the 1944 diary was and commenced looking for it.

Q. Were you able to find it?

A. No, sir.

Q. Was a search made at that time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you participate in the search?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

A. I did.

Q. Have you since examined any records to which you have access? A. Yes.

Q. Have you been able to find that record?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know what became of it?

A. I have no idea what became of it.

Mr. Campbell: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Q. Mr. Weaver, will you tell us when you made this search for the 1944 diary?

A. I have no recollection of the exact time. I would say it would probably be late in 1948 or early in 1949. That would be my best recollection.

Q. Do you recall when Mr. Kyne was on the witness stand in this case? A. Yes. [1736]

Q. Do you recall while he was on the stand Mr. Campbell asked him to step down and look into a certain box to see if the 1944 diary was there?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as improper cross-examination. The record will speak for itself; not within the scope of direct.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: I am asking him if he recalled that request was made of Mr. Kyne.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: It is part of the search made for the record, your Honor.

The Court: Objection sustained.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

Q. At the time Mr. Kyne was on this stand testifying, did you know that the 1944 diary was missing?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial and not within the scope of direct examination.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: May we be heard on it your Honor?

The Court: No.

Q. At the time Mr. Kyne was on the stand did you make a suggestion to Mr. Campbell that he have Mr. Kyne step down from the stand to look at that box?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to——

The Court: Objection sustained. [1737]

Mr. Campbell: I ask the jury be instructed not to draw any inference——

The Court: I do not think the jury will draw any inference. They have been instructed many times, and I will instruct them again, they are to be guided and rely only on the evidence which is properly admitted in evidence coming from the witness or documents. The remarks of counsel or the remarks of court and interchanges between counsel and between the court and counsel are not evidence and not to be considered.

Mr. Avakian: We think it is material.

The Court: There is nothing before the court.

Mr. Avakian: We want to be heard on that objection.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

The Court: I do not want to stop to hear it now. Let's proceed.

Mr. Avakian: You mean you are not going to let me explain why I think it is material?

The Court: I made a ruling and I am not going to hear any further about it.

Mr. Avakian: Well, you can see the position I am in.

The Court: I can see your position and that is it.

Q. You said it was late in 1948 or early in 1949 that you made this search for that diary?

A. That is my best recollection. [1738]

Q. And that you also requested the assistance of any agents of the Bureau in making that search?

A. The revenue agents who had done the investigation.

Q. Who were those?

A. Revenue agents Morgan and Harkness.

Q. What is Mr. Morgan's first name.

A. Robert.

Q. And Mr. Harkness is the witness who just left the stand? A. That is correct.

Q. Were you completely satisfied after that search had been made that that diary was lost?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you make any report to any other officials of the Bureau to the effect that that dairy was lost?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial and incompetent, not within the scope of direct.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

The Court: He may answer the question yes or no.

A. No.

Q. Did you at any time make any report to any government representative connected with this case, to the effect that that document was missing?

A. Yes, I believe so.

Q. And to whom?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Objection overruled. He may [1739] answer the question.

A. We did; the attorneys connected with the case.

Q. Who specifically? A. Mr. Shelton.

Q. Mr. Shelton is sitting here at the counsel table? A. That is right.

Q. Who else?

A. I am not sure whether I told Mr. Campbell or not.

Q. When did you tell Mr. Shelton?

A. It would be at least a year ago.

Q. And you do not recall whether or not you told Mr. Campbell? A. No, I do not.

Q. Now do you recall during the summer of 1949 you returned certain records of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe to Mr. Semenza? A. Yes.

Q. Did you tell him at that time that the Bureau had lost the 1944 diary?

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute. That question is objected to as not within the scope of direct examination.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

The Court: He may answer.

Mr. Campbell: Further assuming a fact not in evidence.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. No, because I was not sure the Bureau had lost it.

Q. Did you tell him it was lost, it was missing?

A. It wasn't in the records turned [1740] over to him.

Q. Answer my question.

A. I didn't say that specifically, no; it wasn't necessary, it just wasn't there.

Q. And you never said it was missing?

A. He had a list of the records himself, he could see.

Q. Do you understand my question? Did you say anything to Mr. Semenza about the 1944 diary being missing?

A. I don't know as I made any specific comment on the diary.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we feel in order to make proper showing on our objection to the transcript to be offered that we ought to be permitted to explore further on certain factors in which objections have been sustained and we again respectfully ask the Court to reconsider the objections.

The Court: No, the ruling was made to one of your objections excluding Exhibit 157, that was this transcript was it not—and then counsel requested permission to call a witness, counsel for the government, in aid of a further laying of foundation and I think that has been made and I am going to admit the exhibit in evidence, No. 157 is admitted.

Mr. Avakian: My point is, we have not been permitted to develop our objection——

The Court: You have already stated your objection.

Mr. Avakian: Yes, and our objection, your Honor, is that we have not been permitted to cross-examine properly on the [1741] foundation as to the loss of the original record.

The Court: Have you any further cross-examination?

Mr. Avakian: Yes, on questions on which objections have been sustained, that is what we want to be heard on.

The Court: I am not going to hear it. The exhibit is admitted in evidence, No. 157. Any further questions?

Mr. Avakian: I understand he is going to be recalled?

Mr. Campbell: For general purposes, yes.

Mr. Avakian: We will defer further cross-examination.

recalled to the witness stand on further

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Now, Mr. Ezralow, based upon your examination of the diary, 1944, of the B. & R. Smoke Shop, what did that book disclose as being the net profit of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe for the year 1944?

Mr. Avakian: Just a minute. Now, your Honor, we object to that because the transcript of that book, 157, which has been received as secondary evidence, was prepared not by this witness, but rather by Mr. Harkness and if there is going to be any questioning as to what that contains, I think it should be addressed to the man who prepared it, not to the man who left the service before it was prepared. It is not a proper question of this witness.

The Court: The objection is sustained. The exhibit is [1742] in evidence and counsel may read from it.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, I will read from this exhibit and I will withdraw the question. Reading from plaintiff's Exhibit 157, which is headed, "B. & R. Smoke Shoppe. Summary of Wins and Losses 1944, taken from diaries supplied by William E. Kyne." There is set forth in two columns the date and then "Win" or "Lose," lose or win figures in parenthesis for each day. At the end is a total, 12/30/44, total $11,834.35. There is also set forth a monthly summary showing January

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

$1342.10, February $1090.50, March $348.50, April loss $3354.50, May gain $2883, June $289, July loss $1105, August gain $2704, September $4191, October $1333.50, November $1202.74, December $910; total $11,834.85.

Q. Now calling your attention to this exhibit, at the time you made your examination did you observe—to the best of your recollection, Mr. Ezralow—the figures which are set forth in this transcript in the records which you saw?

A. If I can see Exhibit 156 I could tell you.

Q. Exhibit 156 for identification, for the purpose of refreshing your recollection.

A. What was the question now?

Mr. Campbell: I will reframe the question.

Q. Going into that transcript, do you now recall whether or not you saw substantially the same daily figures as set forth in that transcript? [1743]

A. Well, the result of the transcript is the same as the figure on the letter that I wrote at that time, so I assume they are the same.

Q. You have compared the figure on the memorandum which you made on October 8, 1946, with the figure used in Exhibit 157, is that correct?

A. Within $10 of being the same.

Q. Now after you made that examination, I believe you stated at the time you had before you plaintiff's Exhibit 78, return of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe for 1944, which shows a total income of $1200, do you recall that? A. Yes.

Q. Now, did you discuss, Mr. Ezralow, with

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

any one, the difference between the profit as shown by the diary which you examined and the return which has been filed for the year 1944?

A. Yes.

Q. And with whom was that discussion?

A. Mr. Kyne.

Q. Now did you at that time have any discussion relative to the accuracy of the figures as set forth in the diary? Answer yes or no.

Mr. Avakian: Unless it is shown that the defendant was present, we do not think——

The Court (Interceding): Answer yes or no.

A. What was the question again? [1744]

(Question read.)

A. Yes.

Q. Now will you state what that conversation was?

Mr. Avakian: Now, your Honor, we object. This is obviously hearsay, no showing the defendant was present.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Campbell: May I make one statement for the record, your Honor?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Campbell: The evidence shows Mr. Kyne held Mr. Remmer's power of attorney at that time.

The Court: The ruling stands.

Mr. Campbell: Very well.

Q. Now do you know whether or not subsequent to your examination of that diary and of that return, if an amended 1944 return was filed with respect to the partnership net income of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe?

Mr. Avakian: May we have the question read?

The Court: Yes, you may.

(Question read.)

Mr. Avakian: May we point out the return and amended return are in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: I am asking if he knows.

The Court: Answer the question yes or no.

Q. Do you know? [1745] A. No, I do not.

Q. I call your attention to defendant's Exhibit "O," a partnership return of income for 1944 of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe, reporting net income of 12 thousand dollars and marked "Amended" and with file date April 14, 1947, Collector of Internal Revenue, and ask you if that date of April 14, 1947, was subsequent to your leaving the service? A. Yes, it is.

Q. Was that date, however, subsequent to your examination of these books and records and the conversation you have referred to as having had with Mr. Kyne?

Mr. Avakian: I think the answer to that is plain. It is in the record and I think counsel is just trying to emphasize something.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. Yes.

Q. Now aside from the list of cashier's checks and the diaries did you see any other records of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe, do you recall?

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

A. I do not recall any other records of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe.

Q. Do you recall whether or not during a portion of the time that you were assigned to this case that Mr. Kyne was away in the service?

A. To my recollection while I was on the case he was not in the [1746] service.

Q. I believe you stated you came into the case in 1945?

A. 1945. I believe my first interview with the taxpayer's representative was in 1946.

Q. Do you recall when in 1946 that you first interviewed any one purporting to represent the taxpayer?

A. I am very very vague as to exactly when it was. Probably the early part of 1946.

Q. Do you recall when it was that you first saw Mr. Kyne?

A. I know I saw him after he was out of the service. I do not know if I could exactly fix the month, but I remember talking to him about his having been in the service.

Q. Was that the first time you saw him upon the matter after he came out of the service?

A. I believe so.

Q. Now will you state for what particular years, or in relation to what particular years, you were examining the records of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe and the other enterprises which you examined into?

A. Well, I was examining for all open years.

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Q. Up to and including what year or years?

A. '45, '44, '43, I believe '42.

Q. Now with regard to the year 1945, did you see any records of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe?

A. Just the diary. [1747]

Q. I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 11B, the red covered diary for the year 1945—there is only one entry in this book, appears under date of January 1, 1945—and ask you if you saw that book in the course of your examination?

A. I don't recall seeing it.

Q. Do you recall seeing any other book in relation to 1945? A. I don't believe so.

Q. Do you recall seeing any record which relates to 1945?

A. My only possibility would be the checks. I can't recall.

Q. Did you see anything by way of the daily account of profits or losses either in the diary or ledger or any other form?

A. No; of course, this is a long time ago.

Q. I understand. I am asking for your best recollection. Now, you stated that you were shown certain records of cashier's checks and in that connection I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 116, which purports to set out certain lists of checks issued between December 31, 1943, and December of 1946. Of course, that includes a period of time after you left the service, is that correct?

A. Correct.

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Q. It was in December, 1946, that you left the service? A. That is right.

Q. Will you examine these and see if those contain the lists which were shown to you as you stated by Mr. Kyne?

A. Yes, many of these sheets are familiar to me; given to me by Mr. [1748] Kyne.

Q. Now subsequent to your examination of the list of cashier's checks and of the diary records or check records and what other books and records, if any, were made available to you, did you have any discussions with any one connected with the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe as to the adequacy of records maintained for the purpose of reflecting true and correct income? Answer that yes or no.

A. Yes.

Q. And with whom was that discussion had?

A. Two people. I mentioned it to Mr. Kyne and I also mentioned it to Mr.—I have forgotten his name now.

Q. Maundrell?

A. Maundrell, exactly.

Q. During the period of time that you were engaged in this investigation, did you ever have any discussions with Mr. Remmer? A. No.

Q. Did you at any time request to or attempt to see or meet with Mr. Remmer for the purpose of discussing matters relating to the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe and the other businesses?

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment. This is objected to, your Honor——

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Now in connection with your investigation, did you see books and records purporting to be those of 110 Eddy Street? [1749]

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Incidentally, who turned those over to you for examination?

A. Either Mr. Maundrell or Mr. Kyne, I don't recall which one now.

Q. Do you recall of what they consisted?

A. Yes; cash receipts and disbursement record, the check disbursement record, general ledger, general journal, and cancelled checks arranged numerically and bank statements arranged chronologically.

Q. I am going to show you plaintiff's exhibits 112 and 112A, purporting to be records of 110 Eddy Street, and ask you if those were among the records which you examined and which you stated were given to you, you believe by Mr. Maundrell, for examination?

Mr. Avakian: Mr. Maundrell or Mr. Kyne, he said.

Q. Mr. Maundrell or Mr. Kyne?

A. This book, 1946, I never saw it.

Q. 112A? A. I believe I saw this one.

Q. Referring to plaintiff's Exhibit 112?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now at the time you left the service had you completed your investigation into the affairs of 110 Eddy?

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

A. I believe that is correct with regard to 110 Eddy.

Q. What is correct? [1750]

A. I had examined the records for the open years and I set forth all my questions and work papers and did come to a conclusion as to what the understated or overstated income was. I didn't come to a conclusion, but set forth all I had done and what questions were raised by my examination.

Q. But had the investigation been completed?

A. No, if I understand your meaning of conclusion conferences with the taxpayer and writing of the final report, the answer is no.

Q. I also include in that the making of the final determination as to the amount of income or loss from business for the years examined.

A. No, no, had not reached that point.

Q. Now with regard to the 186 Club, will you state what records were made available to you?

A. 186 Club I was given a box of poker sheets, wrapped in a rubber band, in a cardboard box the size of a vegetable can box, cardboard box. This was given to me by Mr. Maundrell.

Q. Were you given any other records in relation to the 186 Club or did you observe other records with relation to the 186 Club?

A. I think—well, there was a binder that summarized these poker sheets, but I couldn't make very much sense out of it. I couldn't come to any conclusion on it.

Mr. Avakian: I ask that the last part be stricken as [1751] not responsive, as opinion and conclusion.

The Court: It may stand.

Q. Were you given any other books or records or were you shown any other books or records?

A. Well, no, I guess not. I talked to a fellow by the name of Byrne to help me interpret these sheets.

Q. Who was Mr. Byrne?

A. Mr. Byrne, as I recall, was an accountant that had some connection—I am not sure—I think Mr. Byrne was accountant during the year——

Q. Of the 186 Club? A. I believe so.

Q. Did you observe or were you shown any minute books, corporate minute books?

A. No, no, not at all.

Q. Did you make inquiry of any one regarding corporate minute books?

A. Well, I asked questions concerning whether or not it was a corporation——

Q. We can't go into your conversation, that is conversation you had now. Who did you have discussions with concerning the affairs of the 186 Club, the individuals?

A. I talked to Mr. Kyne. I talked to Mr. Maundrell. I talked to Mr. Mooser.

Q. Mr. Mooser who is the deputy [1752] collector? A. That is right.

Q. Who made some previous examination?

A. Yes. I also talked to Mr. Slater concerning the 186 Club.

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Q. Did you have any discussions with Mr. Turner or Mr. Casselini?

A. No, I don't recall ever meeting those people.

Q. Or with Mr. Remmer concerning the 186 Club? A. Never saw Mr. Remmer.

Q. Did you have any discussions with Mr. Remmer regarding any of these organizations?

Mr. Avakian: Objected to. He said he never saw him. He couldn't have had.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. I never saw him, never spoke to him over the telephone; I don't know what he looks like.

Q. Did you also examine the books and records of the Day-Night Cigar Store?

A. Yes, I believe I did.

Q. Of what did they consist?

A. They are very similar to the 110 Eddy, and they were maintained by Mr. Slater.

Q. I am going to show you plaintiff's exhibits 117 and 117B, purporting to be the records of the Day-Night Cigar Store, and ask you to look at those and state whether or not those records were shown to you in the course of your [1753] examination?

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we object to the continual use of "purported" in describing the exhibits. They are in evidence, he has presented them himself.

The Court: Objection will be overruled.

A. I recall seeing this 117B.

Q. The entries therein are at a date later?

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

A. Items for 1946 that I examined for that year. I believe this is the record I examined.

Q. You are referring to plaintiff's Exhibit 117?

A. Yes, that is correct.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask to have this group of ledger sheets marked 158 for identification. You stated, Mr. Ezralow, that in connection with your examination of the 186 Club there were made available to you, I believe you stated by Mr. Byrne, certain ledger sheets with respect to that concern, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. I will ask you to examine this 158 for identification and state whether or not you recognize that exhibit?

Mr. Avakian: May we look at it?

The Court: Proceed with the identification and then you can look at it.

Mr. Campbell: May I ask preliminary questions first? A. I don't recall seeing these.

Q. You do not recall them? [1754] A. No.

Q. In what form were the records which were shown to you?

A. They were on white sheets wrapped in a rubber band, rolled up.

Q. Were those accounting sheets or poker sheets to which you refer? A. Poker sheets.

Q. I am going to show you series 110 to 110F and ask you if these are the nature of the records which you saw, without referring to the specific items, if those were the type of poker sheets to which you refer? A. Yes.

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Q. I believe there have been marked for identification a couple of cartons of those in the court room. You stated, however, in addition to them, you were shown some record by Mr. Byrne which you state you couldn't make much out of. Do you recall the nature of that record?

A. Well, when I talked to Mr. Byrne he was compiling the record for 1946 and at that time he showed me how he was handling it and I explained to him I did not think that was adequate, did not give sufficient information.

Q. Did you see the records themselves which he was compiling, or did you simply discuss the nature of the records?

A. I think we just discussed them.

Q. Are you familiar with Mr. Byrne's handwriting? [1755]

A. No, I am not. I think I only saw him on one occasion.

Q. Can you then or not state whether or not the group of yellow sheets which I showed you were in Mr. Byrne's handwriting?

A. I could not state.

Q. Now other than the poker sheets then, were you shown any ledger or books of account pertaining to the 186 Club for the years for which you were examining?

A. I believe I saw a summary of these poker sheets.

Q. Do you recall in what form that was?

A. It was in a book form.

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Q. And where did you see that?

A. I think Mr. Maundrell—in regard to these poker sheets, I had most of my discussions with Mr. Maundrell. Now I don't know whether he gave those to me or whether I saw them and left them there.

Q. You haven't a definite recollection one way or another in that regard?

A. No, I have no recollection as to whether I took this summary or whether I left that with him.

Q. Do you recall whether or not you made a summary from the record which you saw?

A. I don't recall that.

Q. During the evening recess couldn't you examine your work sheets which are here when court adjourns? I know you are [1756] anxious to get back to Los Angeles, but you won't be able to do so.

A. I will be happy to occupy my time with the records.

Mr. Campbell: May it please the Court, I have concluded my direct examination with the exception of further pursurance in line which he will have to examine the papers which he left at the time he left the service. I think it would be preferable if we could complete our direct examination.

MR. EZRALOW

resumed the witness stand on further

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

(Last question read.)

Q. Did you examine your work sheets for the purpose of determining that?

A. I didn't hear the question.

Q. You testified you had seen, in relation to the 186 Club, a book in which there was purported a summary of the poker sheets, which I believe you testified you saw in the possession of Mr. Maundrell. I asked you if you had made a summary of that book? You were to examine your work sheets during the recess. Do you now recall whether or not you made a summary?

A. I do not recall that I made a summary at that time. I might have, but it escapes me at the moment.

Q. Did your work sheets that you examined disclose any such summary? A. No.

Mr. Campbell: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Q. I take it, Mr. Ezralow, that over night you examined some files somewhere to look for any

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

possible summaries that might have been in your work sheets, is that correct? [1758]

A. Well, I just looked at them very hastily.

Q. And where was that?

A. In Mr. Campbell's office.

Q. That is upstairs in this building?

A. That is correct.

Q. Were there a lot of records pertaining to this case?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to—that calls for his conclusion. I will stipulate there are a lot of records.

The Court: You may answer.

A. I saw a lot of books and records but I didn't look through those.

Q. You looked over certain portions of them, is that it?

A. No, I just looked through certain files. There were about three files of work papers. I just glanced through them to see which contained my writing.

Q. I believe you said you were first assigned to this case in 1945? A. That is correct.

Q. And you actually started work on it some time in 1946, is that correct?

A. Either the latter part of '45 or early '46.

Q. And then you left the Internal Revenue at the end of '46?

A. My last working day was in December of 1946.

Q. And at that time, of course, the returns for

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

the year 1946 had not yet been filed, [1759] had they?

A. I don't know whether they had or not. The 1946 returns were not required to be filed at that time that I left the Bureau.

Q. With the exception of the 186 Club, the various businesses that you were investigating were on a calendar year basis, were they not?

A. I don't recall that.

Q. In any event, the year 1946 was not assigned to you for investigation, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. The last year that was assigned to you is 1945, is that right? A. That is correct.

Q. And when you stated in your direct examination that you had not seen certain books which Mr. Campbell showed you, for example Exhibits 111A and 112A, those particular books related to the year 1946, isn't that correct?

A. He showed me four books——

Mr. Campbell: I submit the books speak for themselves.

Mr. Avakian: Yes, if he is in doubt, I will show him the books.

Q. One of the books which Mr. Campbell showed you, which you stated you had not seen during your investigation is prosecution's Exhibit 112A, which is entitled "110 Eddy Street" and on the first page there is designated "1946," is there not? [1760] That is one of the books you did not see, is that correct?

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

A. Well, I might have seen this book and I made no notes on it.

Q. And that is because you were not interested in the year 1946? A. That is correct.

Q. And you did not mean to imply, when you said you had not seen some of these books Mr. Campbell showed you, that those books had been withheld, did you? A. No.

Q. As a matter of fact, I believe you said your relationship with Mr. Kyne and Mr. Maundrell was a friendly one? A. That is correct.

Q. And they turned over to you all the records which you asked for, did they not?

A. To the extent that they had them they did.

Q. They withheld no records from you, isn't that correct?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for his conclusion.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. As far as you know, all the records which they had were turned over to you?

A. Well, I don't know what all records they had.

Q. To the extent that you know, that is all you can say? A. Right, to the extent that I know.

Q. Now in the course of your examination during the period that you were working on this case, I believe you said you had [1761] a number of conversations with Mr. Kyne?

A. That is correct.

Q. And you also had a number of conversations

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

with Mr. Maundrell? A. That is correct?

Q. And as a matter of fact you had a conversation about this case with Mr. Kyne on the very first day that he was at work after his return from his service in the army, did you not?

A. I didn't know that that was his first day.

Q. Didn't you have a conversation about that?

A. I talked about his being in the service. I didn't make any point as to when he was released. I don't recall that.

Q. After that first occasion, did you have numerous conversations with Mr. Kyne about this case? A. Yes.

Q. Were you investigating the year 1942 as a part of your work? A. I believe so.

Q. And 1943, '44 and '45, is that correct?

A. I believe so.

Q. You examined the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe for those years, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. And 110 Eddy Street?

A. Yes, to the extent that 110 Eddy Street was in existence. When I say yes, I mean as long as they were in operation.

Q. In other words, from the time Mr. Remmer was connected with [1762] 110 Eddy Street to and including the year 1945, is that correct?

A. That's right.

Q. And with respect to the Day-Night Cigar Store, do you remember what years you investigated?

A. I can't exactly recall the years, but if any

BLEED THROUGH

years fell in between 1942, '43, '44 and '45, then I made a record to investigate whatever records were available.

Q. There has been testimony in this record to refresh your recollection that 1943 was the first year in which Mr. Remmer and his associates became interested in the Day-Night Cigar Store and if I am correct in that statement, would you say that it was 1943 through 1945 that you investigated the Day-Night Cigar Store? A. Yes.

Q. And then would that also be true with respect to the 186 Club? A. Yes.

Q. You recall, do you not, that the 186 Club was a corporation?

A. Well, I recall corporation returns were filed, but I never felt it was proper filing of returns. I did not feel actually it was a corporation, in my opinion.

Q. Do you recall the first return filed by the 186 Club was a partnership return in the year 1943?

A. To my recollection it was a corporation return.

Q. I believe you testified in connection with your examination [1763] of the 186 Club you also talked to Mr. Mooser, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And Mr. Mooser was deputy collector of the Bureau of Internal Revenue in San Francisco?

A. That is correct.

Q. And you learned, did you not, that Mr.

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Mooser had been of the opinion that the 186 Club should file corporation returns rather than partnership?

A. At the time I talked to him he wasn't certain just what to do. I don't know what he did with it, in view of the fact that he couldn't classify his own thinking on it.

Q. In other words, Mr. Mooser thought it should be a corporation and your own personal opinion was it should be a partnership?

A. That's correct.

Q. I call your attention to defendant's Exhibit "P" in this case, which is partnership return of income for the year 1943 for the 186 Club, and ask you whether that is one of the returns that was assigned to you in connection with this investigation?

A. Yes. I had this return in my file at the time I was an agent. I discussed this return with Mr. Slater——

Mr. Campbell: There is no question pending. You will have to wait for the question.

Q. I also show you defendant's Exhibit "J" in this case, which is a corporation income and declared value excess profits tax [1764] return of the 186 Club for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1943, and ask you whether that is a return which was shown to you in connection with your investigation?

A. This return looks familiar to me.

Q. I show you defendant's Exhibit "Q," which is a corporation excess profits tax return for the year ending June 30, 1943, of the 186 Club, and ask you whether that return was assigned to you in connection with your investigation?

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

A. I believe it was.

Q. And then I show you prosecution's Exhibit 87A, which is the corporation income and declared value excess profits tax return of the 186 Club for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1943, and ending June 30, 1944, and ask you if that also was a return that was assigned to you during the course of your investigation? A. I believe it was.

Q. I call your attention to the statement which is a part of Exhibit 87A, the return for the period ending June 30, 1944, reading in part as follows:

"During the month of June, 1944, Louis H. Mooser, Jr., Deputy Collector from the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue at San Francisco, California, called at the office of the above-stated corporation and examined its books and records for the fiscal period ending June 30, 1943, and required said corporation [1765] to file Forms 1120, 1121 and 707 for said period."

Did you notice that particular language in this return? A. Yes, I believe I did.

Q. You were aware then, were you not, that the 186 Club had filed a partnership return for the calendar year 1943? A. Yes.

Q. You were aware of that during the time you were making this investigation?

A. That is correct.

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Q. And during the time of that investigation you were also aware, were you not, that for the very same period, that is, for the year 1943, at the insistence of Mr. Mooser, corporation returns had been filed covering exactly that same period?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for his conclusion as to the insistence of Mr. Mooser.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Well, you were aware of the fact, were you not, that for exactly that same period, namely the year 1943, corporation returns were filed?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming a fact not in evidence. I think counsel has inadvertently stated it wrong because it was on a fiscal year basis.

The Court: He may answer the question if he can.

A. The corporation return covered a period that overlapped the calendar year partnership [1766] return.

Q. One corporation return covered a portion of 1943 up to June 30, 1943, did it not, that is one of those periods? A. That is right.

Q. And then the corporation return for the next fiscal year included, did it not, the last six months of 1943? That is prosecution's Exhibit 87A which is for the period beginning July 1, 1943, and ending June 30, 1944, is it not? A. That is correct.

Q. So the last six months of 1943 were included in Exhibit 87A?

A. That is correct. It would appear that way.

Q. Let me ask you then, during the course of

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

your examination were you aware of the fact that the income of the 186 Club for the year 1943 had been reported on a partnership return and also subsequently had been reported in corporation tax returns? A. Yes.

Q. Now in your capacity as a revenue agent, and also in view of your position as a certified public accountant, were you then aware of the fact that the income of the 186 Club for the year 1943 had been taxed on a corporation basis and also been taxed on a partnership basis?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming a fact not in evidence. Partnership return is non-taxable return and so shows on its face. I suggest the question is misleading and also assuming a fact not in evidence.

The Court: Let me have the question. [1767]

(Question read.)

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. The answer is I was aware that there were two returns filed but there wasn't double taxation because a partnership is not a taxable entity.

Q. But the partners paid taxes on their share of profits in their individual income returns?

A. I didn't ascertain that.

Q. Were the returns of the individual partners of the 186 Club also assigned to you for investigation? A. Some were, not all of them.

Q. And didn't you find in some of those returns

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

any reference to the partnership income for the 186 Club?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to on the grounds the returns themselves are the best evidence.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Did you inform anybody connected with the 186 Club, during the course of your investigation, that the income of the 186 Club should be taxed on either a partnership or a corporation basis but not on both? A. Yes.

Q. Who did you inform of that?

A. I spoke to Mr. Kyne about it. I spoke to Mr. Slater about it extensively. He gave me an explanation how it came about.

Q. Mr. Slater was the accountant for the 186 Club? [1768]

A. Yes, he filed the partnership return and he felt that the corporation return was in error.

Q. And he told you, did he not, that Mr. Mooser had insisted that they file corporate returns?

A. He did not say that.

Q. Didn't he tell you it was on Mr. Mooser's advice that they did it?

A. That is what he said.

Q. You confirmed that with Mr. Mooser, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. Did you, in any report which you filed to the Bureau, recommend that the corporate tax be refunded on the theory that this should be treated as a partnership rather than a corporation?

A. I didn't complete my case, didn't make rec-

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

ommendation as to the tax liability or overestimate.

Q. Did you make any statement in any of the reports which you left at the time you severed your connection with the Bureau, calling attention to that fact or that matter?

A. I have to review my papers before I could state.

Q. You don't recall having done it, is that right?

Mr. Campbell: I submit, if the Court please, the papers are the best evidence.

Q. Are they here?

A. Well, I think it is prosecution's Exhibits 155 and 156. [1769]

Q. I am handing you prosecution's Exhibit 155 for identification and would you refer to that and see whether it refreshes your recollection as to whether or not you made any recommendation that the corporate income tax be refunded?

Mr. Campbell: I submit that wasn't the question, if the Court please.

The Court: I don't think we ought to have a witness give an instrument not in evidence.

Mr. Avakian: I asked him whether it would refresh his recollection, your Honor, that is all I am asking.

A. At the time I wrote this report, at the time I worked on this case, I had a statement here that shows——

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment. Don't read from the statement. Just state whether or not it re-

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

freshes your recollection? A. Yes, it does.

Q. Will you tell us what your recollection is?

A. What is the question?

The Court: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Q. During the course of your investigation, or at the time you left the Bureau, did you make any report or any recommendation to the effect in substance that the corporate tax paid by the 186 Club should be refunded for the reason it was not a corporation?

A. I pointed out the duplication and also pointed out that [1770] some adjustment should be made because the duplication does exist in great detail. I have a whole paragraph on that.

Q. And do you know whether or not any such adjustment was ever made? A. No, I do not.

Q. Did you talk to any accountant other than Mr. Slater regarding the 186 Club?

A. I believe I talked to Mr. Byrne.

Q. And he was also a public accountant?

A. I think so.

Q. Both Mr. Slater and Mr. Byrne were what is referred to as outside accountants, isn't that correct, people in public accounting business?

A. I assume that they were.

Q. And they were public accountants who had been retained by the 186 Club in connection with the preparation of their tax returns and records?

A. I do not think Mr. Byrne prepared any tax return.

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Q. He had just come into the case?

A. I think that is right.

Q. And he was the accountant who worked on the return for the next year?

A. That is the impression I had.

Q. But Mr. Slater had been retained in connection with returns that had been filed in the past? [1771] A. Right.

Q. You know, do you not, that Mr. Slater is now deceased?

A. I was told that yesterday, yes.

Q. Did you talk to any other public accountants in connection with the 186 Club?

A. Well, at the time I was working on the case there was an accountant that said he was considering handling it for the taxpayer and I talked to him for about 15 or 20 minutes. Never heard from him again; outside of that, I don't recall any other accountant.

Q. Is that Mr. Ayton?

A. No—I don't recall—Menckoff, I think he is with Arthur Anderson. I don't think he ever actually undertook the job, but he said he was considering it and he wanted to talk to me about the case. I didn't give him any information. I said when he showed me power of attorney, I would be happy to discuss it.

Q. And you heard nothing further?

A. Right.

Q. Still in connection with the 186 Club, I call your attention to the following language on a sheet which is pasted to the corporation return for the year ending June 30, 1944, namely, prosecution's Exhibit 87A, reading as follows: "Mr. Mooser determined from an examination that he made of daily tally sheets that the daily average net take was $70. Mr. Mooser believes that this determination would cover the entire period up to [1772] June, 1944." Did that particular language come to your attention during the course of your examination? A. Yes.

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Q. And did you discuss that matter with Mr. Mooser? A. I believe I did.

Q. And you learned, did you not, that Mr. Mooser had spent approximately a month in his examination of the 186 Club?

A. I wasn't aware at the time but I recall parts of the conversation.

Q. But you do recall that he spent quite a bit of time, do you not?

A. Yes, he said he spent some time just investigating how much attendance there was.

Q. And did he confirm to you the correctness of this statement that he had determined the daily average on the take of $70?

A. That was strictly an estimate on his part.

Q. But he confirmed to you that it was his estimate, did he not? A. That is right.

Q. So this statement in the return, so far as you are able to determine, was a correct statement,

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

that Mr. Mooser was the one who had made that determination of $70?

A. Yes, Mr. Mooser made that determination.

Q. Do you know whether Mr. Mooser is still employed by the Bureau of Internal Revenue?

A. No. [1773]

Q. What was your answer?

A. I do not know.

Q. Have you not learned in conversations with the prosecution's staff, while you have been here in Carson City, that he is still a deputy collector in San Francisco?

A. I never discussed it.

Q. Now with respect to the Day-Night Cigar Store, can you tell us with whom you discussed the affairs and records of that business during the course of your examination, with what particular individuals?

A. I spoke to Mr. Slater, I spoke to Mr. Kyne, and I spoke to Mr. Maundrell.

Q. Mr. Slater is the same Mr. Slater that you mentioned a moment ago, the public accountant?

A. Yes.

Q. And Mr. Slater had prepared the income tax returns of that business which you were examining, is that correct?

A. I do not recall whether or not he prepared it.

Q. I call your attention to prosecution's Exhibit No. 84, which is the partnership return of the Day-Night Cigar Store for the year 1944, and ask you whether that was a return which was assigned to you in the course of your investigation?

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

A. Yes, this was assigned to me.

Q. And on the back page of that return it says, does it not, that Mr. Slater was the man who prepared it? [1774] A. Yes.

Q. Does that refresh your recollection on that point? A. Yes.

Q. And you had your discussions regarding that business with Mr. Slater, Mr. Maundrell and Mr. Kyne only? A. Yes.

Q. And did they show you any records in connection with that business? A. Yes.

Q. I show you prosecution's Exhibit 117, which is a ledger of the Day-Night Cigar Store, and ask you whether that is one of the records that was showed to you in connection with your investigation? A. Yes, I believe I got this book.

Q. And that covers the period up to the end of 1945, does it not? A. Appears to be.

Q. And you examined that book in connection with your work? A. Yes.

Q. Would you turn to the page which I have marked with a small slip of paper, setting forth the capital account of Sylvan Lando. Have you found that? A. Yes.

Q. And do you find there that Mr. Lando's share of the profits for the years 1943 and 1944 was credited to his account? [1775] A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Ezralow, in reporting income from a partnership, is it proper for the individual partner

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

to report on his individual tax return his share of the partnership profit or the amount of money that he actually happens to draw out during the year of the partnership?

A. His share of the partnership profits.

Q. The amount he draws is immaterial in determining the amount of money that he should put into his individual return as income from that partnership, is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. Now when a partner is a member of a partnership, which has a particular amount of profit for the year, is it proper accounting to credit the amount of his share of the profits to his capital account? A. Yes.

Q. And is it also proper accounting to charge his account or subtract from his account any withdrawals that he happens to make during the year?

A. Yes.

Q. And does the balance which remains in his account after he has been given credit for his share of the profit and after the amount of his withdrawals have been subtracted represent his equity in the business? A. Yes. [1776]

Q. And so then, if a partner does not withdraw his full share of the profits from the business, then the amount that he does not withdraw represents an increase in his equity in the business?

A. His profit and increase since the beginning of the year, due to the profit and no withdrawals, is the amount it is increased.

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Q. The amount of profits he has not withdrawn represents equity in the business?

A. In the partnership, yes, sir.

Q. If a partner happens to withdraw in a particular year more than his share of the profits, the excess that he withdraws over and above his share of the profit for that year represents a decrease of his equity in the business, does it not?

A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming facts not in evidence. Most of these matters are matters of law.

The Court: Well, he can answer this question.

A. Yes.

Q. In your private accounting practice, since you left the Bureau of Internal Revenue, have you had accounts dealing with partnerships?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Let me ask you this—is it proper accounting to credit a [1777] partner in his capital account with the amount of investment which he originally makes to the business?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent, calling for opinion and conclusion of the witness.

The Court: I would ordinarily sustain such an objection but it seems to me we have had so much of it here without objection, the objection is overruled. You may answer the question.

A. Yes.

Q. And, Mr. Ezralow, if one of the partners

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

makes a larger investment in the business than another partner does, is it not frequently and commonly the case that the partners will, through the years, balance their capital accounts by the one who made the larger investment making heavier withdrawals until their capital accounts reach the desired proportion?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming facts not in evidence; incomprehensive and incompetent.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: On the grounds assuming facts not in evidence.

The Court: On the grounds it is asking for opinion and conclusion of this witness on matters of law.

Mr. Avakian: This is a matter of accounting practice, your Honor, and this man is also here as a former revenue agent and certified public accountant, and the question relates directly [1778] to one of the issues in this case. They are charging fraud and wouldn't it be proper to show that the practice they charge is fraudulent is common accounting practice?

The Court: I am not answering your questions, but I am going to let the ruling stand.

Q. Now among the businesses which I believe you stated you inquired into in the course of your examination is the 110 Eddy Street, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And in connection with that examination you were shown certain records, were you not?

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

A. Yes.

Q. I show you prosecution's Exhibit 112, which is a ledger of the business known as 110 Eddy for the period up to the end of 1945, and ask you if that is one of the books which you were shown?

A. I believe it is.

Q. I call your attention to a particular sheet in this exhibit entitled "Frank Cavani," and I will ask you to examine that. Can you tell us whether or not you examined that particular page in connection with your examination?

A. It is pretty hard to recall the specific sheet out of 200 sheets.

Q. That is the capital account of Mr. Cavani, is it not? A. Yes. [1779]

Q. What is your best recollection as to whether or not you examined the capital accounts of the partners? A. I believe I saw this.

Q. And on that page there are entered, are there not, Mr. Cavani's shares of the partnership profit for the years indicated in the book?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to calling for his conclusion as to the fact that they were shares of Mr. Cavani's profit.

The Court: Let me have the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. There are entries here marked one-fourth net profit.

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Q. And those amounts are the same as the amount of profit allocated to Mr. Cavani on the income tax return for the same year for 110 Eddy, is that correct? A. I would have to see the return.

Q. Now I will read to you from prosecution's Exhibit 81, the 110 Eddy Street partnership return of income for the year 1944, the data in Schedule I shows as a distributive share of F. Cavani $3,-170.30. Is that amount entered in the book before you as a credit to his capital account?

A. Yes.

Q. And Mr. Ezralow, if the figure which I read to you from the partnership return is correct, then was that the proper amount to enter in the capital account? [1780]

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for his conclusion. The records speak for themselves.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. I believe you already testified, did you not, that the share of a partner's income in a partnership should be credited to his account in the books of the partnership?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to on the grounds the record speaks for itself.

The Court: He may answer this question.

A. Yes.

Q. Now is there an entry in that book as reflecting the share of the profit for the year 1945?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for his conclusion as to what it reflects. The entry speaks for itself.

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

The Court: Well, the objection will be overruled.

Q. Or is that in the next book?

A. Answering your question, no.

Q. It is not in the book, is that right?

A. It is not on this page.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Q. I believe you stated in the 1945 book you did not find any entry relating to the crediting of the share of the 1945 profit? A. Yes.

Q. I hand you prosecution's Exhibit 82, which is the 110 Eddy Street partnership return of income for the year 1945, and first of all would you find in Schedule I the amount of the partnership profit which is allocated to Frank Cavani. Let me know when you have found that. A. Yes.

Q. Now from prosecution's Exhibit 112A, which is the 1946 return for the 110 Eddy Street, I am going to read to you the entry dated January 1,

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

1946, reading as follows: "Frank Cavani Balance 1945, $3582.18, one-fourth credit $5532.50." Is that the same amount that is entered on the 1945 partnership return as to Mr. Cavani's share of the profit for that year? A. Yes.

Q. And is it frequently the case that in partnership capital accounts the share of a partner's profit for a particular year is not entered in the books until the early part of the next year?

A. Yes.

Q. Referring again to the exhibit before you, which I believe is 82, is it? A. Yes. [1782]

Q. The 1945 partnership return of income. Will you state who is shown on that return as the person who prepared it? A. Harold Maundrell.

Q. And did you discuss the affairs of the 110 Eddy Club with Mr. Maundrell? A. Yes.

Q. As well as with the other gentlemen?

A. Yes.

Q. And so far as you know, did Mr. Maundrell and Mr. Slater and any one else whom you talked to in connection with the 110 Eddy turn over to you all of the records of the businesses?

A. Turned over the journals and the general ledger.

Q. Were there other records there of the businesses? A. That is all I asked for.

Q. Were there bank statements?

A. I do not know.

Q. Did you ask for bank statements?

A. No.

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Q. Were there cancelled checks?

A. I do not know.

Q. You didn't ask for them? A. No.

Q. The things you asked for you got, is that right? A. Right.

Q. Now in connection with the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe, I believe [1783] you testified that Mr. Kyne showed you a list of cashier's checks, which is in evidence here. I show you prosecution's Exhibit 116, which contains a number of pages, listing cashier's checks. You testified, did you not, that Mr. Kyne turned that over to you? A. Yes.

Q. And it is a fact, is it not, Mr. Ezralow, that Mr. Kyne had that list of cashier's checks prepared for him by the bank at your request?

A. I don't know that to be a fact.

Q. Well, let me reframe the question. It is a fact, is it not, that after you asked him for a list of cashier's checks, he then had a list prepared and turned it over to you?

A. He turned this list over to me. I don't know if he had it prepared.

Q. Did he turn it over to you on the very same day you asked for it or at some later time?

A. No, at a later date, about a week later.

Q. And he didn't make any objection, did he, to obtaining that list of cashier's checks for you?

A. No.

Q. Now in connection with the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe, you investigated the years 1942 through 1945, is that correct?

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

A. I believe that is correct.

Q. We do not have in evidence here any return for the year 1945 [1784] for the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe and I believe the testimony is that no return was found for that year and no return has been offered for the year 1942 either, but we do have in evidence prosecution's Exhibit 77, B. & R. partnership return for the year 1943 and Exhibit 78 for the year 1944. Were those two returns assigned to you for examination in connection with this matter? A. Yes.

Q. And you were shown diaries for the years 1943 and 1944, were you not? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Kyne gave those to you? A. Yes.

Q. Diaries containing the amount of winnings or losses on a daily basis? A. Yes.

Q. And you were shown a similar diary for the year 1942, is that correct? A. I believe so.

Q. You heard the testimony yesterday, did you not, that some time after you left the Bureau the other people who were working on this case misplaced or lost the 1944 diary?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to. The record speaks for itself.

The Court: Objection overruled. He may answer.

Q. You heard that testimony, did you not? [1785] A. Yes.

Q. I will you show you prosecution's Exhibit 111, the diary for 1942 and 111A, which is the diary for 1943, and ask you whether those were the two diaries that were showed to you?

A. I believe they were.

Q. And did you, in the course of your investigation, total the receipts shown in those two books and compare them with the amount of income shown on the partnership returns for those two years? A. I believe I did.

Q. Would you refer to the 1943 return, which is before you—I believe it is Exhibit 77—have you found that? A. Yes.

Q. Exhibit 77, the 1943 return shows a net income for the partnership of 8 thousand dollars even, does it not? A. Yes.

Q. And in totalling the receipts shown in the 1943 diary you found, did you not, that the total of the receipts shown was an amount in dollars and cents slightly below eight thousand, isn't that correct? A. I don't recall the totals now.

Q. Don't you recall that the total of the receipts in 1943, that is, total of net wins shown in the 1943 diary, was the amount of $7,796.15; or did you have any work papers to which you could refer to give us the answer to that? [1786]

A. I don't think I have any work papers on it. I don't recall. I believe I totalled it at the time. As to whether or not they were substantially the same as on the return or a great difference, I don't recall.

Q. Let me see if this refreshes your recollection. Do you recall, Mr. Ezralow, that the returns of the

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

B. & R. Smoke Shoppe for each of the years that you investigated contained as net income a figure in a larger amount rather than exact dollars and cents figure? A. Right.

Q. And do you recall also that, with the exception of the diary for the year 1944, the net wins and losses shown in the diary came to a total figure slightly under the round amount shown in the return?

A. Well, I do recall one year of discrepancy which you mentioned, 1944. As to the other years, I have no recollection.

Q. In comparing the diary with the returns, you found nothing to question as to the other years in question, is that what you are saying?

A. I don't know. I don't recall any large discrepancy for every year.

Q. Did you find in the papers upstairs in Mr. Campbell's office work sheets or summaries to which you can refer over the noon recess to refresh your recollection?

A. There is nothing contained in my papers regarding that. [1787]

Q. I believe that you stated that after you found that total of wins and losses in the 1944 diary was in excess of the amount shown on the 1944 return, you discussed that matter with Mr. Kyne?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Didn't Mr. Kyne tell you at that time that the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe returns had been prepared on the basis of rounding off the total of net

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

wins and losses upward to the next round figure in preparing the returns? A. I don't recall that.

Q. You testified, I believe, that the net wins and losses shown in the 1944 diary came to within $10 of the figure obtained by Mr. Harkness, $11,834.85? A. Right.

Q. Actually, an eight dollar difference between you and Mr. Harkness?

A. Within ten dollars.

Q. I show you prosecution's Exhibit 157, which Mr. Harkness testified was the summary that he made of the 1944 diary before it was lost, showing total net wins and losses of $11,834.85. I call your attention to the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe amended return for the year 1944, showing net income in round amount of 12 thousand dollars. Does that refresh your recollection that the practice of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe for the years you were investigating was to put on the returns a round figure slightly [1788] in excess of the actual figure shown in the diary?

A. This return was filed after I left and at that time I do not recall any recollection about rounded figures. The return was filed a year after I left.

Q. Isn't it your recollection the 1942 return likewise contained a rounded-off figure?

A. A 1942 return was not filed, as I recall.

Q. Do you have records which would show that?

A. My recollection is I never saw a 1942 return.

Q. Were you investigating 1942?

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

A. Yes, I was. The first return I have, I believe, for the B. & R. Smoke shoppe was 1943.

Q. Now let us see if this will refresh your recollection. You stated after going through these diaries for 1942, 1943 and 1944, the only diary you recall as raising any question in your mind was the 1944 diary?

Mr. Campbell: I do not believe that is the testimony.

The Court: I do not recollect it.

Mr. Avakian: My question is whether he found any discrepancies in other returns.

A. My recollection——

Mr. Campbell: The question is as to what raised any question in his mind. It is entirely different as to testimony as to discrepancies between income tax return and the diary.

The Court: I will sustain the objection. [1789]

Q. Well, in your examination of the diaries for the years 1942, 1943 and 1944, was the diary for 1944 the only one in which you found some reason to question a return that had been filed?

A. When I compared the return—if it was available—with the diary and there was a discrepancy, I called Mr. Kyne's attention to it. In the case of 1942, there was no return so I can not if there was a discrepancy.

Mr. Campbell: I do not think he answered the question. May the question be read to the witness again?

The Court: Let us have the question.

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

(Question read.)

A. No.

Q. Did you discuss with Mr. Kyne the matter of whether or not a 1942 return had been filed?

A. I believe I did.

Q. Would your work sheets show that a 1942 return had not been filed, if that were the case?

A. Probably not.

Q. You mean to say if you found no return had been filed, you would make no reference to that in your work sheets?

A. My work sheets were not on a completed case and although I covered many things, I did not make a special point mentioning returns I did not have. At the time I left the case, I did not feel as though I had done all the field work and therefore did not attempt to mention all the things that were not [1790]

Q. The failure to file a return, in an investigation, is an important matter, is it not?

A. It certainly is.

Q. Wouldn't you then have made a comment if that was the case?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative.

The Court: It is argumentative.

Q. Are you prepared to say now that there was no return filed for 1942?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative and incompetent as to what he is prepared to say and not prepared to say.

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: I will change the form of the question.

Q. Is it your testimony now that the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe did not file a 1942 return?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you have before you the original 1944 return of the B. &. R. Smoke Shoppe?

A. Yes.

Q. And what is that exhibit number?

A. Plaintiff's 78.

Q. Now whereas the amended return showed a net income of 12 thousand dollars, that one shows a net income of 12 hundred, does it not?

A. The one filed in 1947?

Q. The amended return shows 12 thousand, does it not? A. It appears to be that. [1791]

Q. Any doubt of it?

The Court: What is the exhibit number of that amended return?

Mr. Avakian: Defendant's "O."

Q. You have no difficulty reading the figures, have you? A. No.

Q. Twelve thousand, is it not? A. Yes.

Q. The original return was 12 hundred, is it not?

A. Yes.

Q. When you discussed with Mr. Kyne the fact that the 1944 original return showed an income of 1200, whereas the totalling in the diaries showed $11,834.85, did he make any statement to you as to how that might have occurred?

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for hearsay.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. You did discuss the matter with Mr. Kyne, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. Did Mr. Kyne tell you that the 1944 original return——

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute—I am going to object.

The Court: I have already sustained the objection on the rule of hearsay and this question can call for nothing but hearsay.

Mr. Avakian: Well, you haven't heard the question.

The Court: I have heard enough of it. [1792]

Q. The original 1944 return, which is plaintiff's Exhibit 78, that is before you, is it not?

A. Yes.

Q. And that is signed by William E. Kyne?

A. Yes.

Q. And the signature of the person that prepared the return is A. B. Slater? A. Yes.

Q. And what is the date shown after Mr. Kyne's signature? A. 2-10-45.

Q. And what is the date on the face of the return as the filing date?

A. February 14, 1945.

Q. And you knew, did you not, that Mr. Kyne had entered the service on February 14, 1945?

A. I didn't know that.

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Q. Do you know that this return had been prepared just before Mr. Kyne went into service?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. I didn't know that.

Q. Did you learn that at any later time?

A. No.

Q. Mr. Ezralow, do you recall the occasion on which Mr. Kyne turned over to you the diaries of 1942, 1943, and 1944? [1793]

A. You mean the date?

Q. No, I do not mean the date. I mean do you recall the occasion on which he did turn them over to you? Did he turn them all over to you at the same time? A. I do not recall.

Q. You do not recall one way or another?

A. No, I have no exact recollection whether I got them all at once or separately.

Q. Do you recall whether you had any difficulty in getting any of those diaries?

A. No, I recall that I did not have difficulty in obtaining them.

Q. He turned all three of them over to you when you asked for them, is that correct?

A. Well, I don't recall whether all at once or separately.

Q. But when you did ask for them, whether on one occasion or more, you received them?

A. That is correct.

Q. And that applies to the 1944 diary as well as to the others? A. Yes.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we would like to present to your Honor our belief that the law permits hearsay on cross-examination on a point that has been covered on direct and we would be glad to go into that and explain that to you and submit authorities, if you want, and for that purpose I would request [1794] an opportunity to be heard on the matter before this witness is excused.

The Court: Well, the ruling will stand on hearsay.

Mr. Avakian: Even though it is cross-examination covered on direct?

The Court: Unless the conversation was opened up on direct. If it was, you could pursue it on cross and vice versa, if you opened up conversation on cross they may pursue it on redirect, but under no other circumstances.

Mr. Avakian: We believe when a witness——

The Court (Interceding): I will not change that ruling. I am not going to take time to hear argument.

Mr. Avakian: You won't take time to hear argument?

The Court: No.

Mr. Avakian: I think that is all of this witness.

minated your service, prepared a partial report and inquired of you as to certain contents of that report, particularly with relation to the 186 Club.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, that is not true.

The Court: Let us have the question.

(Question read.) [1795]

Mr. Avakian: He simply refreshed his recollection by looking at it.

The Court: Answer the question.

A. Is that a question?

Q. I call your attention to the testimony. I am showing you plaintiff's Exhibit 155 for identification, and ask you if that is the report to which you referred? A. Yes.

Q. And is that the report which you examined for the purpose of answering Mr. Avakian's question with relation to what you reported for the 186 Club and filing of both partnership and corporation returns? A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: I offer this in evidence.

Mr. Avakian: May I ask on voir dire?

The Court: Yes.

Q. (By Mr. Avakian): You simply referred to that for the purpose of refreshing your recollection?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to—it speaks for itself.

Mr. Avakian: Let us have the record read.

The Court: We will not take the time.

Q. Was this report ever delivered to Mr. Remmer? A. No.

Q. Was it delivered to any representative of any of the businesses which you investigated? [1796]

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. No.

Q. That was simply a report for your own superiors in the Bureau, isn't that right?

A. Yes.

Mr. Avakian: No proper basis, your Honor, for receiving that in evidence.

The Court: The exhibit will not be admitted.

Mr. Campbell: May I suggest one point, your Honor; that is counsel asked him specifically what he had reported to his superiors and if he had reported in a written form with relation to the 186 Club. He then said he would have to refresh his recollection and submitted his document and I submit the document is the best evidence.

The Court: The ruling will stand. The exhibit will not be admitted.

Q. (By Mr. Campbell): Now counsel asked you that question in substance as follows—that in your examination of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe of the diaries for the years 1942, 1943 and 1944 and such partnership returns as you saw, namely, those of 1943 and 1944, if the year 1944 was the only year you questioned and your answer was no.

Mr. Avakian: May we have that read?

Q. I will ask you, Mr. Ezralow, if you questioned other years [1797] than 1944?

Mr. Avakian: May I have the entire statement and question read?

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

(Question read.)

Mr. Avakian: The question I asked him was rather in comparison of his diaries——

The Court: Have you an objection?

Mr. Avakian: My objection is based on the ground the statement is not correct.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Avakian: May we have the record read on that question?

The Court: No, let us get along.

A. Yes.

Q. What other years did you question?

A. Questioned all the years.

Q. You were asked whether or not you had discussions with Mr. Kyne during your examination of the B. &. R. Smoke Shoppe. Did those discussions embrace the question of all of the years you had under investigation for the B. &. R. Smoke Shoppe? A. Yes.

Q. Will you state first over what period of time those discussions took place?

A. The period of time that they related to, or the time that they took place? [1798]

Q. The time that the discussions took place?

A. Took place during the year 1946 before I left the Bureau.

Q. And was there more than one such discussion? A. Yes, there were several.

Q. That was after Mr. Kyne's return from the the service? A. Yes.

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Q. Where did they take place?

A. 50 Mason Street.

Q. Who else, if any one, was present in addition to yourself and Mr. Kyne?

A. Mr. Maundrell.

Q. Now will you relate the discussions you had with reference to the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe returns for the years which you had under investigation?

Mr. Avakian: Objected to as hearsay. Mr. Campbell objected to my asking——

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell: [1799]

Q. Now, Mr. Ezralow, on cross-examination you were shown plaintiff's Exhibit 112, a ledger of the 110 Eddy Street, and were referred specifically to a page thereof which has a heading, "Frank Ca-

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

vani," and which you identified, or was identified, as being the capital account of Frank Cavani?

A. Correct.

Q. Now you were also asked by Mr. Avakian relative to the accounting procedure, proper accounting procedures, in a partnership of crediting to a capital account the profits for any particular year. Do you recall that? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Ezralow, were you in the court room when Mr. Cavani testified concerning his arrangement with Mr. Remmer, wherein the value of the interest to be acquired by him, the price was placed at $15,000, which amount was to be received by Mr. Remmer out of the profits before he obtained his partnership? Do you recall that testimony? A. Yes.

Q. Now if those facts as testified by Mr. Cavani are the correct facts, what would then be the proper accounting procedure with reference to that account to which your attention has been directed?

A. Well, if Mr. Remmer was to get 15 thousand dollars before Mr. Cavani was to participate in the profit, there should be no——

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment—he has changed the facts of [1800] hypothetical question and Mr. Cavani's testimony, which was he was to get a quarter interest for 15 thousand dollars, to be paid for out of the share of profits, and I do not believe Mr. Ezralow either correctly understood the testimony or the question.

The Court: Let me hear the question.

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

(Last two questions read.)

The Court: Strike out the answer so far given and begin the answer again.

A. Well, if 15 thousand dollars—my understanding of the testimony was that the price was 15 thousand dollars Mr. Cavani was supposed to pay—then there should be a credit to begin with, Mr. Cavani's account of 15 thousand dollars, showing that this is his equity in the partnership. On the other hand, if I understand another interpretation that occurs to me, and if this second interpretation is that Mr. Cavani is supposed to start participating in the profits when Mr. Remmer gets 15 thousand dollars, then there should be no entry in the capital account, to my knowledge of accounting, until such time as that contingency is met.

Q. By contingency do you refer to the receipt by Mr. Remmer of the 15 thousand dollars for that interest?

A. Yes. In either case, it seems to me, that this ledger account is incorrect.

Mr. Campbell: I think that is all. [1801]

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Q. Mr. Ezralow, if the arrangement between Mr. Remmer and Mr. Cavani were that Mr. Cavani was to receive immediately a 25 per cent working interest in the profits and that he was going to leave his share of the profits in the business until it accumulated—that is, the accumulated profits—reached the figure of 15 thousand dollars, at which time he was to become a one-fourth owner of the assets of the business, what would be the proper accounting entries to make with respect to Mr. Cavani's share of the profits?

BLEED THROUGH

A. Well, it seems to me if he has a one-fourth interest which is to be paid for out of the profits that accumulate in his account, it seems to me the record should indicate that at such time as there is an understanding that he has a liability for 15 thousand dollars, that an entry should be made indicating that he has a 15 thousand dollar capital account. Now the payment of this, adjustment should be made as the payment is made for it and I do not see any figure in here indicating the 15 thousand dollars interest that he has. Whether or not it is paid for, I do not think should be a part of the partnership records, but the fact he has a 15 thousand dollar interest should appear on the partnership records. The accumulation of profits, it seems to me, relates only to the terms of payment and not to what his equity is or what his interest is.

Q. If the arrangement were as I stated in my question—do you [1802] recall that or would you like to have me repeat it? A. Repeat it.

Q. If the arrangement were that Mr. Cavani was to have immediately a 25 per cent interest in the profits and that he was going to use those profits to purchase or to pay for his one-fourth interest in the business, would it not then be proper accounting to credit his account on the partnership books with his share of the profits for each year?

A. Yes.

Q. And that is what was done in the book that you have before you, is that not right? Answer that yes or no. Do you find the entry, or would you like to have me point it out to you?

A. I see the entry.

Q. You see the entry. Your answer was yes then?

The Court: He hasn't answered yet.

A. This account does not reflect my understanding. This account indicates that one-fourth of the profits were credited to the Frank Cavani account.

Q. That was my question—the account shows that, does it not?

A. Yes, it shows that one-fourth of the profits were credited.

Q. Mr. Campbell asked you about what the proper accounting procedure would be—let me ask you, in your experience as a certified public accountant, have you had any contact with partnership businesses in which one partner put up a larger proportion of the capital investment than his share of the profits? [1803]

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, it goes directly to the redirect examination.

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the question.

A. Yes.

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Q. And then the other partner correspondingly had initially put up less an investment of his proportionate interest, to complete the picture?

A. I have seen that happen.

Q. Have you come in contact with situations of that nature, where through the amounts of their withdrawals the partners balanced their capital accounts?

A. I have seen that happen sometimes.

Q. Now isn't that done, Mr. Ezralow, through this means—the partner who put up more than his share of the investment draws more than his share of the profits, whereas the partner who put up less than his share of the investment draws less than his share of the profits, until their capital accounts, which were initially disproportionate, had balanced?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial, because it is not the situation in evidence here.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. You asked me with relation to these records?

Q. I am asking you about situations you have run into in your [1804] experiences. Would you like to have the question read? A. Yes.

Mr. Avakian: May we have Mr. Campbell's remark on the situation stricken?

The Court: It was just an objection. It will stand. It was overruled.

(Question read.)

A. Yes.

Q. And that is not an unsual situation, is it?

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

A. No.

Q. Now this morning, Mr. Ezralow, I asked you if you recalled whether, in your examination of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe diary for the year 1943, you found that the net wins and losses shown in that diary was slightly under the 8 thousand dollar figure shown in the return, do you recall my asking you that? A. Yes.

Q. And you stated that you did not remember. After coming off the stand at the noon recess, did you call to my attention that in the 1943 diary, which is in evidence here, which is prosecution's Exhibit 111A, that there was an adding machine tape? Do you call that to my attention?

A. Yes.

Q. Now I will hand you this exhibit, which contains that tape, and you recall that I asked you if the net wins and losses in this diary added up to the figure of $7,796.15. Would you read [1805] to me the total on that adding machine paper?

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object until the foundation is laid for the tape and offered in evidence.

Mr. Avakian: The tape is in evidence as part of the exhibit.

Mr. Campbell: I understand it was something found in the book.

Mr. Avakian: The book is in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: May I question on voir dire?

The Court: Yes.

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Q. (By Mr. Campbell): Is that permanently affixed to that record? A. The paper?

Q. There are other slips of paper, I notice, in there? A. Yes.

Q. I think your attention was called in examining the records of 110 Eddy Street by counsel to a slip of paper he had put in there, marking the account.

Mr. Avakian: Does counsel imply I inserted this?

Mr. Campbell: I am not implying anything.

The Court: Just a moment.

Q. Have you ever seen that adding machine tape before you were on the stand? A. No.

Mr. Campbell: I make my objection, the proper foundation [1806] be laid for the tape.

Mr. Avakian: I am only asking him to read the figure.

The Court: I don't understand the tape is in evidence.

Mr. Avakian: It is out of the book Mr. Campbell offered.

Mr. Gillen: Part of an exhibit of the prosecution's.

The Court: I do not understand that was part of the exhibit.

Mr. Campbell: If counsel states he has compared it with the record, I have no objection. I have no recollection of the adding machine tape.

Mr. Avakian: I will state Mr. Semenza totalled the receipts in the book and it is the same figure.

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Mr. Campbell: I will accept that statement without asking the witness.

Q. Would you read that figure?

Mr. Campbell: I thought we had stipulated? The tape sets forth the same figure in the book?

Mr. Avakian: That is right.

Mr. Campbell: I have no objection, if you state that is the figure.

Q. What is that figure? A. $7,796.15.

Mr. Avakian: No further questions. [1807]

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Ezralow, you were asked on recross-examination relative to the Cavani account in the books of 110 Eddy Street, Exhibit 112, which is before you, and Mr. Avakian asked you a hypothetical question. I will state it as best I can—assuming that Mr. Cavani was to pay for a one-fourth interest the amount of 15 thousand dollars out of the accumulated profits, he asked you if it was proper then to credit those to Mr. Cavani's account. Do you recall that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now would additional entries then—if such were the situation—would additional accounts be necessary to reflect any such situation in the books?

A. Yes.

Q. And what would they consist of?

A. They have to show actual transfer from the Cavani account to the Remmer account.

Q. In other words, as I take it, there would have to be something set up in the books to show that Mr. Remmer, or whoever was to receive it, was to receive 15 thousand dollars of that amount, is that correct? A. Yes.

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Q. Did you find any such entry in those books?

A. I don't recall any.

Q. You don't recall seeing them? [1808]

A. No.

Mr. Campbell: That is all.

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Q. When you say additional accounts and entries should have been set up, you mean, do you not, that from the viewpoint of setting up a complete set of records that would satisfy a certified public accountant, those additional accounts should be set up, isn't that correct?

A. No. I mean it from the viewpoint of basic bookkeeping. This does not tell the complete story.

Q. Would the setting up of those additional entries, which you say are not in that book, make any difference in the amount of income which each partner should report?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for conclusion.

Mr. Avakian: That is calling for his answer as an expert accountant. I think it is proper.

The Court: Let us have the previous answer. I do not think he completed his answer.

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

(Answer read.)

The Court: Did you complete your answer?

A. Yes.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. Yes.

Q. In what way?

A. My understanding of the agreement, to be properly reflected [1809] on these records—it may be my understanding is incorrect——

Mr. Avakian: Let me restate——

The Court: I don't know how we are going to get along if you keep interrupting the witness.

Mr. Avakian: He is stating his own understanding.

The Court: Let us have the question.

(Question read.)

A. Yes.

Q. In what way?

A. Frank Cavani should not report any income.

Q. Even though he is a partner?

A. He is not a partner until such time as Mr. Remmer gets his 15 thousand dollars.

Q. Let me restate again the basis for this question. If Mr. Cavani's arrangement with Mr. Remmer is that Mr. Cavani is to become immediately a partner, sharing in the profits of the business, and that in view of the fact that Mr. Remmer has put up the investment and Mr. Cavani has not put up any investment, Mr. Cavani is to pay for his interest in the business out of his profits, by leaving them in the business, would it make any difference on the amount of profit that each partner should report in his tax return, whether the 15 thousand dollar indebtedness from Mr. Cavani to Mr. Remmer is set up in the books or not?

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming facts not in evidence. [1810]

(Question read.)

The Court: I don't understand that is the situation here.

Mr. Avakian: That is Mr. Cavani's testimony. He became a partner in the business and he was to pay for his one-fourth interest out of the profits at a figure of 15 thousand dollars.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: May we read Mr. Cavani's testimony to your Honor then? That is his testimony.

The Court: De we have to stop and read that record now?

Mr. Avakian: I think we can find it in just a moment.

The Court: My recollection of it is that he was to get a one-fourth interest for 15 thousand dollars.

Mr. Avakian: He was to become immediately the owner of a working interest in the profits and he was to acquire interest in the assets of the business for 15 thousand dollars when he built that up out of his profits. It is the same sort of arrangement as the agreement that is in writing with Mr.

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Kyne, same sort of arrangement, your Honor. From page 1658 from the transcript, which is part of Mr. Campbell's direct examination of Mr. Cavani, there is this testimony. The question is relating to 110 Eddy:

"Q. After you took over the active management of [1811] the place, what arrangement did you have for compensation?

"A. Well, Mr. Remmer gave me the same compensation he was giving me at the 21 Club in El Cerrito.

"Q. What was the proposition he gave you?

"A. I was to get 25 per cent of the business.

"Q. You say you were to get?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Will you explain what you mean by that?

"A. Well, that is what he told me, I was going to get 25 per cent of the business.

"Q. When were you given that?

"A. As soon as I went to work, as soon as I took charge of 110 Eddy, right around May of that year.

"Q. Did you have any written agreement of any kind? A. No, not at all.

"Q. Will you state whether or not that was to be 25 per cent of the profits or 25 per cent of the assets of the business?

"A. The whole thing."

Now I submit that this is testimony that he had a 25 per cent in the profits of this business from the time he went in in 1943.

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

The Court: You mean to say that he was to share the profits regardless of whether or not the 15 thousand [1812] had been paid?

Mr. Avakian: The whole agreement was that he was to pay 15 thousand dollars and he was to become immediately a partner; in other words, he was given credit for the 15 thousand dollars which he was going to pay later on, but his testimony is he immediately became a partner in the place. Now my question to this witness is that if he immediately became a partner to the extent of 25 per cent interest, then would it make any difference in taxing the profits of that partnership whether his 15 thousand dollar liability was set up in the books or not. That is my question.

The Court: But the evidence is he wouldn't be a partner until the 15 thousand dollars was paid.

Mr. Avakian: I just read it, your Honor. He said he was to get it immediately—"As soon as I went to work, as soon as I took charge of 110 Eddy, right around May of that year."

Mr. Campbell: May I see the transcript?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Campbell: Now, if the Court please, the portion read is on its face the proposition made to Mr. Cavani. He testified the proposition was made to him by Mr. Remmer. Further along in his testimony as to what actually took place, reading from page 1666:

"Q. Mr. Cavani, did you pay anything, inci-

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

dentally, with regard to acquiring your 25 per cent interest [1813] in the 110 Eddy Club?

"A. No, not a cent.

"Q. Will you state whether or not you had any arrangements with any one whereby your share of profits was accumulated for that purpose?

"A. That is right.

"Q. With whom did you have that arrangement?

"A. Mr. Remmer.

"Q. What was the amount of interest that was to be accumulated for your 25 per cent interest?

"A. My part of the payment was fifteen thousand.

"Q. For the 25 per cent interest?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. And what were your arrangements as to how that fifteen thousand was to be paid?

"A. Well, took it out of the profits as we go along.

"Q. Now do you know how much of that had accumulated by the end of the year 1946?

"A. Their record should be in the book.

"Q. What is your recollection?

"A. I don't know. I couldn't answer that because the bookkeeper took care of all the financial end."

Now this from page 1668 and recess was taken at that time until Monday morning:

"Q. Mr. Cavani, before the recess on Thursday you [1814] were testifying concerning the 110 Eddy Street bar and I believe you stated that you had some interest in that establishment, is that correct?

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

"A. That is correct.

"Q. What was the extent of your interest?

"A. Twenty-five per cent.

"Q. And when did, or when were you to receive that 25 per cent interest?

"A. Well, when my part was paid.

"Q. How much was to be paid for your part?

"A. Fifteen thousand dollars."

Mr. Avakian: That is exactly it, your Honor.

Mr. Campbell: Now the first part of the testimony which Mr. Avakian read was relative to the proposition that was made to him. The questions and answers which I have read is with reference to what the arrangement actually was, which was that was to be acquired by payment of the 15 thousand dollars, that he was to get his 25 per cent interest when it was paid, and I submit the record, your Honor.

Mr. Avakian: Now, your Honor, the first statement that Mr. Campbell read was a direct statement by Mr. Cavani that he was to pay the 15 thousand dollars out of his share of the profits. Now we have here the same agreement that we had in the Menlo Club that your Honor ruled on before, a partner who puts up investment has arrangement with a partner who does not [1815 put up an investment to share the profits immediately, and the new partner would use his share of the profits to pay for the interest in the assets which he is acquiring.

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

We have here an interest in the profits immediately to be paid as they go along for interest in the assets of the business. Now Mr. Cavani's statement that I read and Mr. Cavani's statement that Mr. Campbell read in the first portion of the testimony both show that the arrangement was that Mr. Cavani immediately got one-fourth interest in the profits, that one-fourth interest was entered in the books as they went along. Now my question to this witness is that if that is the arrangement between the parties, there is to be an immediate sharing of profits to the extent of 25 per cent, did Mr. Cavani, with that 25 per cent immediately, to be used as a means of paying for his interest in the business, does it make any difference in the amount of income that is reported by each partner, whether the obligation to pay for the interest is actually set up in the books or not. That is my question to this witness.

The Court: He may answer the question.

Q. Do you understand the question, Mr. Ezralow?

A. I understand the question, yes. There is one part you said that I can't agree from what I heard Mr. Cavani say. You said many things and finally asked the question the last part of your whole statement.

Q. Would you like to have me reframe the facts upon which I [1816] wish you to base your answer?

A. I would like to have you state the part of the question.

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Mr. Avakian: I will reframe it.

Q. Mr. Ezralow, if the agreement between Mr. Remmer and Mr. Cavani were that Mr. Cavani was to receive immediately a 25 per cent interest in the profits of the business and that he was going to use his share of the profits as the means of paying off the 15 thousand dollar price for the interest in the business, would it make any difference in the amount of income to be reported by the partners, Mr. Remmer and Mr. Cavani, whether or not Mr. Cavani's 15 thousand dollar obligation was set up in the books? A. No.

Q. But in order to have the full facts of the arrangement set forth in the books, proper accounting would call for setting up an account which would show the 15 thousand dollar obligation, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And isn't that what you meant when you stated there should be additional entries if that is the arrangement?

A. If that is the arrangement, yes.

Q. Now these books were kept by a Mr. Slater, who is the accountant, I take it, in connection with 110 Eddy? A. Yes, sir. [1817]

Q. And he kept the books, did he not?

A. I assume he did.

Q. Mr. Slater is a public accountant?

A. Yes.

Q. Is there a distinction between a public accountant and certified accountant under the laws of California? A. Yes.

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sol Sanford Ezralow.)

Q. A certified public accountant is a higher level in the profession, is that right? A. Yes.

Q. Have you not found, both in your experience as a revenue agent and in your experience as a certified public accountant in private practice, that quite frequently public accountants set up books with which you, as a certified public account, are not satisfied as a full and adequate set of books?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent and immaterial and certainly not within the scope of any direct.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: That is all.

JAMES C. McKAY,

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. James C. McKay. [1818]

Q. Where do you reside, Mr. McKay?

A. Washoe Valley.

Q. What is your business or occupation?

A. I have been in real estate, gambling business. I am a rancher.

Q. Are you acquainted with the defendant, Elmer Remmer? A. Yes, I am.

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of James C. McKay.)

Q. For how long a period of time have you known him? A. Since 1920.

Q. Now have you since that time been associated with him in any business? A. Yes, I have.

Q. And in what business or businesses?

A. Cal-Neva Lodge.

Q. Is that the only business venture in which you were ever associated with Mr. Remmer?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. You are a partner, are you not, of Mr. William Graham? A. Yes, sir, I am.

Q. Were you in court the other day when Mr. Graham testified concerning the details of the organization of the Cal-Neva Lodge?

A. No, I was not.

Q. Do you recall when you and Mr. Graham took over Cal-Neva Lodge?

A. '29, I think it was. [1819]

Mr. Gillen: The defense is willing to stipulate that Mr. McKay's testimony would be primarily the same as Mr. Graham's, if counsel wishes to accept, in the interest of time.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, that is his testimony with relation to the original acquisition and conduct and final sale of his interest to Mr. Remmer would be the same substantially as that given by Mr. Graham.

Mr. Gillen: Yes, everything that Mr. Graham has testified to, in the interest of time, we are willing to stipulate that Mr. McKay's testimony would be the same.

Mr. Campbell: So stipulated.

POOR COPY

(Testimony of James C. McKay.)

Q. Now, Mr. McKay, the testimony indicated that you and Mr. Graham sold out your two-thirds interest in Cal-Neva to Mr. Remmer in 1946, do you recall that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now up until that time, up until the time that you and Mr. Graham sold your interests and from the time of the inception of the business, you say 1929, were any dividends declared?

A. I just don't recollect that.

Q. Do you recall whether or not a dividend had been declared with relation to the year 1934?

A. No. There may have been, but I don't remember.

Q. Do you recall any dividend ever having been declared?

A. It seems like there was something sometime or other, ten thousand or something, I am not sure. [1820]

Q. Do you recall for what year that was declared? A. No, I don't.

Q. Approximately what year?

A. I have no recollection. I do not remember the exact date of it.

Q. Mr. Graham testified a dividend was declared with relation to the year 1934, would you say that would be correct?

A. I would say it was if he testified to it.

Q. Now during the period of time that you and Mr. Graham were still interested in Cal-Neva Lodge together with Mr. Remmer, will you state whether or not any salary was paid to Mr. Remmer, if you know? A. Not that I know of.

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of James C. McKay.)

Q. Now do you recall an occasion in about the month of May, 1937, when a revenue agent by the name of A. V. Brady made an examination of the books and records of the Cal-Neva? Do you recall the instance?

A. I believe I do remember Mr. Brady.

Q. You are acquainted with Mr. Brady, are you?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. Was that the occasion of your first becoming acquainted with him? A. It could have been.

Q. You recognize Mr. Brady here in the court room? A. Yes, I do. [1821]

Q. Do you recall, with respect to that examination, whether or not an individual income tax return for the year 1934 was secured by Mr. Brady from Mr. Remmer? A. I do not remember it.

Mr. Gillen: May I suggest—that exhibit is in evidence counsel just asked about. We will stipulate it is. We tried to stipulate to all testimony to save time and it was accepted and we are still going on.

Mr. Campbell: If the stipulation covers this matter and the time of that examination that the return was picked up——

Mr. Gillen: My stipulation was intended to cover both direct and cross-examination and any redirect or recross, that Mr. McKay would testify substan-

Mr. Campbell: Very well, I will accept that stipulation and I will have no further questions of Mr. McKay.

Mr. Gillen: No cross-examination.

(Witness excused.)

Mr. Campbell: At this time I would like to recall Mr. Mooney, if the Court please.

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Gillen: For the record, Mr. Mooney is being recalled for further direct or redirect or what?

Mr. Campbell: If the Court please, I wish to recall him at this time for further identification with reference to defendant's [1822] Exhibit E for identification.

Mr. Gillen: In the nature of redirect?

Mr. Campbell: It would be redirect examination, concerning which there is an exhibit offered in evidence.

MR. MOONEY,

having been previously sworn, testified as follows:

Q. Is that your handwriting, Mr. Mooney?

A. Yes, Mr. Campbell.

Q. And do you recall when you prepared that?

A. I believe it was in either the last of '45 or '46.

Q. Now did you at the same time prepare a similar document with the name of Elmer Remmer on it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, will you state whether or not either of those documents, that is to say, copies of those documents, originals of those documents, were filed with the Collector of Internal Revenue?

A. I can't say. The money was paid.

Q. Do you recall whether or not the returns were filed? [1823]

A. I don't know. I don't believe I ever could get Mr. Remmer to get his signature on it.

Mr. Campbell: At this time I will ask to have this document, purporting to be an affidavit, marked for identification as 159 for identification.

Q. Now, Mr. Mooney, after you prepared this document, "E" for identification, and you say a similar document with regard to Elmer Remmer, for the year 1944, did you advise Mr. Remmer as to whether or not such amended return should be filed?

A. No, I didn't advise Mr. Remmer of that. Willie Kyne gave me the figures. He said the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe——

Q. I didn't ask you for conversation, Mr.

A. I wouldn't say positively.

Q. Were these matters more freshly in your mind in 1948 than they are today?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as calling for opinion, conclusion and speculation.

The Court: Objection will be sustained.

Q. Mr. Mooney I am going to show you a document which has been marked 159 for identification, and I will ask you to read this and after you have examined it, I will then ask you some [1824] questions.

Q. And will you state whether or not this document was signed and sworn to by you on the 13th day of April, 1948, as shown hereon?

A. I signed it on April 13, 1948.

Q. Now does this document refresh your recollection as to whether or not as of April 13, 1948, the amended returns for the year 1944 which you prepared had been filed?

Mr. Gillen: I would like the Court to look at that document. There is nothing in the document that calls for refreshing any recollection, because there is no departure from the answer that the witness has previously given from his own recollection.

The Court: What number is that exhibit?

Mr. Campbell: The return is Exhibit "E" for identification. [1825] The document which he has identified, the affidavit which I have asked him to refresh his recollection, is 159 for identification.

The Court: He may answer the question.

Q. Do you have the question in mind, Mr. Mooney? A. Will you repeat the question?

Q. Does that refresh your recollection as to whether or not about the 13th day of April, 1948, the amended return for 1944, exhibit "E" for identification, had been filed?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. I think perhaps I didn't make myself clear, your Honor. I want your Honor to look at the affidavit, not Exhibit E.

The Court: I don't see any necessity. He can answer this question without any necessity of me reading the document.

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

Q. Will you answer the question?

A. As far as I know the returns or the posting slips were filed.

Q. Were they filed or not?

A. As far as I remember. I do not know whether they were filed or not except the posting slips for the money. I have forgotten whether the returns were ever presented.

Q. Were the facts with relation to the filing of those returns, amended returns, fresh in your mind when you made this statement which you have read, plaintiff's Exhibit 159 for [1826] identification?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. May it please the Court, you have already ruled on that same question. It is calling for his opinion, conclusion, guess and speculation as to refreshes his memory.

The Court: I think this objection is sustained.

Q. Mr. Mooney, based upon your examination of this affidavit, 159 for identification, which is dated April 13, 1948, did this affidavit speak the truth as you then knew it at the time you made the affidavit? A. As far as I know, yes.

Mr. Gillen: Pardon me just a moment—we make the same objection.

The Court: The answer may stand.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to offer this in evidence as plaintiff's Exhibit 159.

Mr. Gillen: Now I would like your Honor to see it. It is no departure from the man's testimony on the stand, your Honor. Before your

BLEED THROUGH

Honor rules, I would like to make a further observation to your Honor and offer a further ground.

The Court: Now, Mr. Gillen?

Mr. Gillen: My further objection, your Honor, is that it is hearsay as to the defendant Remmer and it is not a departure or contradiction of the witness' testimony given here in court, both on this occasion and on the occasion of his [1827] earlier appearance. It is merely a summarization of the same testimony, not a departure or contradiction. That could only be used as an exception to the hearsay rule if the document contradicted the testimony of the witness and counsel could have this witness declared a hostile witness and call upon your Honor to release him of the obligation of being bound by his own witness' testimony.

The Court: From what I have heard here now, as you call my attention to the fact ruling was reserved on the exhibit "E" the other day, at the request of Mr. Campbell, and as I understand the situation here now, there is no recollection on the part of Mr. Mooney whether or not that Exhibit "E" was ever filed.

Mr. Gillen: That is correct, except he did testify the posting in the collector's office showed the money was paid.

The Court: Therefore Exhibit "E" is not admitted in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: I have no further questions of this witness. I will withdraw the offer of Exhibit 159.

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Mooney, in answering a question by Mr. Campbell a few moments ago, you stated that you had no present recollection of whether the amended return for Helen Remmer, which is defendant's Exhibit E for identification, or an identical one for [1828] Elmer Remmer, prepared by yourself, had ever actually been filed.

A. I do not know whether it has. I have forgotten. It may have been filed and got lost. Once in a while a return gets lost.

Q. Now you did state, however, that the posting showed that they had been filed?

Mr. Campbell: I object to that. That wasn't the testimony.

Mr. Gillen: Let's get the record. I think I can reframe the question.

Q. Mr. Mooney, I think what you stated was—and correct me if I am wrong—that you had no recollection of whether the amended returns that you prepared for Elmer Remmer and Helen Remmer were filed or were not filed, but that the posting slips showed the money was paid, is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. Now what are the posting slips, will you advise us on that?

A. The posting slip goes into the office as a credit or debit, as the case might be.

Q. And there has to be money to balance that posting slip?

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

A. There must be money. That money goes in to the cashier.

Q. So the posting slip showed that the additional money called for on the amended returns had been paid?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming a fact not in [1829] evidence.

The Court: It seems to me that was the evidence.

Mr. Campbell: No, there is here in evidence, as Exhibits 13 and 14, records of all of the posting and payments, if the Court please, has already been put into evidence here.

The Court: He is talking about Mr. Mooney's testimony.

Mr. Gillen: Yes, I was summarizing his testimony.

The Court: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: I object on the ground it is not the best evidence.

The Court: Objection will be overruled.

Q. Do you have the question in mind, Mr. Mooney? Would you rather have me repeat it?

A. I would rather have you repeat it.

Q. All right, sir. My question is, your testimony is that the posting slips showed that the additional money called for in those amended returns for Elmer Remmer and Helen Remmer had been paid? A. Yes.

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

Q. Mr. Mooney, do you recall what additional amount was called for on the amended return to be paid or to have been paid by Elmer Remmer and Helen Remmer?

A. Six thousand dollars, three thousand dollars each.

Q. And is that the amount shown in defendant's Exhibit "E" for [1830] identification?

A. That is the amount called for.

Q. Three thousand dollars from Helen Remmer and three thousand dollars from Elmer Remmer, or six thousand dollars?

A. Six thousand dollars total; three thousand from each.

Q. Each spouse? A. Yes, additional.

Q. Mr. Mooney, was that six thousand additional that you told us about six thousand tax due or income? It was six thousand additional income, was it not, reported?

A. Six thousand additional income from the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe, 50 Mason Street.

Q. In other words, the three thousand apiece that you mention was not three thousand additional tax, but three thousand dollars additional income report for each spouse? A. Income, yes.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all.

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. It is my recollection, your Honor, that they were introduced during the testimony of Mr. Forrester, the deputy collector for this district, of Nevada, [1831] and it is my recollection—and I would like to have the opportunity to find it—that Mr. Forrester had something to say about either the inaccuracy or incompleteness of those two documents. I think we can find it, your Honor, immediately.

The Court: Well, he may answer the question.

Mr. Campbell: He stated he was not familiar with these documents, which probably answers the question, Mr. Gillen.

Mr. Gillen: You mean Mr. Mooney stated he was not familiar with those documents?

Q. Do you know what this type of document is?

A. No, sir.

Q. You never had anything to do with this type of document? A. Not that I know of.

Mr. Campbell: At this time I am going to offer in evidence the affidavit, plaintiff's Exhibit 159, in the Court pleas, based upon the testimony and cross-examination that he has no present recollection of the filing, and I offer on the basis of past recollection recorded.

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor has already ruled on that matter. Your Honor said that this matter was inquired into for the purpose of determining what should be presented to your Honor on defendant's Exhibit E. Your Honor has found that defendant's Exhibit E should not be admitted in evidence and ruled on that. The 159 was withdrawn as a moot matter because your Honor ruled against the admission of "E." [1832]

The Court: Objection to the exhibit will be sustained.

Mr. Campbell: That is all.

Mr. Gillen: No further questions.

(Witness excused.)

Mr. Campbell: If the Court please, Mr. William Kyne, who has previously been on the stand, has made request of Mr. Gillen and myself, I believe, that he be permitted to take the stand to correct a portion of his testimony, and I will ask that he be called at this time.

Mr. Gillen: We will either do that or be willing to stipulate.

Mr. Campbell: I think Mr. Kyne desired that he voice it in the record.

MR. KYNE

having been previously sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Kyne, you have been previously sworn?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I believe you stated to Mr. Gillen and myself yesterday and again today that you desired to correct certain of your testimony with relation to the matter of powers of attorney given to Mr. Remmer, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you state what it is that you have in mind in that connection? [1833]

A. I have a letter here from my attorney. I had him look into the files and see what powers of attorney were given to Mr. Remmer and aside from the power of attorney given to Mr. Remmer while I was in the service, there appears to be no other.

Q. Do you have a copy of that power?

A. No, I have not.

Q. And you refer to the power of attorney that was produced and put in evidence here?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is the only power of attorney which you have given Mr. Remmer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now in that connection, what powers of attorney did you have from Mr. Remmer?

A. I believe there is one power of attorney from Mr. Remmer to me.

Q. Do you have that power of attorney?

A. I believe there is a record of it in the Bank of America.

Q. That is the same power of attorney which was introduced here, giving you power of attorney to sign checks? A. I believe that is it.

Q. And so far as you know, there was no other

POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

power of attorney from you to Mr. Remmer or from Mr. Remmer to you?

A. That's correct.

Mr. Campbell: Do you have any question in this connection? [1834]

Mr. Gillen: Yes.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Kyne, what bothered you and what you were trying to straighten out in that testimony was that you were asked by me on cross-examination if it was your recollection, prior to the power of attorney you gave Mr. Remmer at the time you entered the service, if there was not in existence an earlier power of attorney and you recall me asking you that question on cross-examination?

A. Yes.

Q. And on cross-examination you answered you believed there was in existence an earlier power of attorney, earlier than the one than the time that you were in the service?

A. That was why I had the files searched.

Q. So you searched the papers and found no other written power of attorney other than the power of attorney that you gave in writing as prepared by Mr. Haughey at the time you were about to go in the service? A. That is correct.

Q. You did not want to leave for the service without giving power of attorney? A. No.

Q. It is true you and Mr. Remmer did have an oral understanding that you would sign checks for each other, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir. [1835]

Mr. Gillen: That is all.

Mr. Campbell: While Mr. Kyne is on the stand, if the Court please, I wish to recall him as to redirect as to one matter.

The Court: Very well.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Kyne, I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 153 for identification and ask you if you will examine that. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that your signature? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was this document subscribed and sworn to by you on or about the 15th of November, 1945?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: May I see that document?

Mr. Campbell: Yes.

Q. Mr. Kyne, with relation to the 110 Eddy Street, as of the month of November, 1945, will you state what the interests were in that concern?

A. Well, the money put into the place was supposed to be met with and then we would be partners.

Q. Now as of that date, as of the month of November, 1945, who owned the business?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment—that is calling for opinion and it is cross-examination. We have exhibits introduced by the [1836] government. Now he is asking Mr. Kyne to enter an opinion.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. The books would show that.

Q. Would you answer my question? I am asking you? A. I say the books would show that.

Mr. Gillen: Mr. Kyne has testified the books reflect the partnership of that enterprise at that time and the books are the best evidence. That is the same objection we have heard constantly from the prosecution, and properly so.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. That is the only answer I have, that the books would show it.

Q. What was your interest at that time?

A. The books would show that.

Q. What is your recollection of your interest?

A. I forget.

Q. You do not recall what your interest was then? A. No, I don't.

Q. Did you know at that time what it was?

A. No, I don't.

Q. Did you at that time in November of 1945?

Mr. Gillen: What was the question?

Q. Did he know in November of 1945 what his interest was.

Mr. Gillen: I submit, if he knew in 1945 and remembered he would remember now what his interest was. He has explained [1837] to Mr. Campbell as best he can whatever his interest was is reflected in the books.

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Campbell: Well, I will withdraw that.

Q. Does this Exhibit 153, for identification, which you identified as being your signature, refresh your recollection in that regard?

Mr. Gillen: I am not fearful of responses, but I do not quite follow counsel. This is a government witness, counsel's own witness. He called him as a witness and Mr. Kyne was on the stand some four days and related to his best recollection, refreshing his recollection from books and stated what the status was. It appears he is attempting to impeach his own witness in further direct examination. I think your Honor has in mind Mr. Kyne was pretty well informed witness, when he had the books in front of him, he recalled what transpired in regard to various businesses. This appears to be an attempt to impeach his own witness on something that the witness has already testified to with the assistance of books that were kept at the time.

The Court: He merely stated he did not remember. If there was a document here which might refresh his memory, I do not see any reason why it could not be used. It isn't a question of contradicting any of his testimony.

Mr. Gillen: No, but he already testified to the status [1838] and refreshed his recollection from books kept as the thing went along. Now he is showing him an affidavit—that would be hearsay—taken from him in North Carolina or South Carolina while he was in the army, when he did not have the books in front of him.

Mr. Gillen: I respectfully suggest he be shown the exhibits which were introduced through his testimony, which were books of various enterprises, as the best evidence to refresh his recollection, because they were accounts that were kept at the time. Here is hearsay affidavit made in South Carolina.

The Court: I do not want to put myself in the position of directing counsel how to conduct his examination.

Mr. Gillen: But your Honor is the arbiter of rules of evidence.

The Court: I can't see any harm in answering this question. Objection is overruled.

A. It does not refresh my memory.

Q. Mr. Kyne, will you examine this document. Will you read it through——

A. I have read it through.

Q. ——and state whether or not it sets forth the truth as you understood it at the time you made that affidavit? A. Yes.

Mr. Gillen: We submit the witness already stated it does not refresh his recollection as to the facts stated thereon or [1839] existing facts. We have exhibits introduced by the prosecution. Those were exhibits he used on direct examination and shown on direct examination to refresh his recollection as to various transactions and enterprises over the years.

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: He has already answered the question.

Mr. Gillen: If he has answered the question, I ask that the answer be stricken and I be allowed to make an objection.

The Court: It may go out. The objection is overruled. He may answer the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: The answer is stricken. Now what is your answer?

A. You say the answer was stricken?

The Court: Yes, the question is put to you afresh.

(Question read.)

A. It does.

Q. Now will you state at this time your understanding as to the ownership of the business known as 110 Eddy in 1945?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment, may it please the court. We object as to cross-examination of his own witness and improper redirect or direct. It is already asked and answered. The witness has said that the books would refresh his recollection as to the status. Those books were introduced, not by the defense, but by the prosecution, in support of testimony of this witness and I submit the matter is already before the jury and [1840] already in the record.

Mr. Campbell: I will withdraw the last question and offer the document in evidence on the basis of the witness' testimony that he does not recollect at this time but that this document states the truth as he knew it at that time, and submit the document to the Court.

POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Gillen: I ask your Honor to reserve ruling until we have an opportunity, without taking up the time of the jury or the Court, to show to your Honor how this witness testified on direct and cross-examination with the aid of the books that he participated in keeping, as reflecting the true status. Counsel is doing a very peculiar thing here to me—and I have been trying cases for 25 years almost. He has introduced some records kept in the ordinary course of business of the man who kept them personally, was shown those records, identified them and from them and with the aid of them testified to the status of things. Now he is producing an affidavit made in 1945 when the man is in the service somewhere in North or South Carolina. We have evidence as to the books that were kept in the ordinary course of business which were introduced at the time. I believe, your Honor, that the ruling should be reserved. May we be afforded an opportunity to present to your Honor particular portions of the transcript that reflects that testimony of Mr. Kyne.

Mr. Campbell: I would like to be heard on that matter. [1841] I would also like the Court to examine this particular document and I believe its competency and materiality will be apparent.

Mr. Gillen: May I ask counsel, through your

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Honor, is he trying to impeach his own witness, who was on the stand for some four days? If he is, I am going to have another form of objection.

The Court: The theory on which this was offered was that it would call the witness' attention to a fact that he appeared at this time to have no recollection.

Mr. Gillen: The witness at the very outset of his testimony said he would have to rely on the books that were kept at the time in the ordinary course of business and he also said it didn't refresh his recollection and in answer to the question whether or not that was true as he recalled it——

The Court: What is your theory in offering this exhibit, Mr. Campbell?

Mr. Campbell: My theory is this—past recollection recalled as of the time that the document speaks about. Now so far as the books and records are concerned, it is true they were identified.

The Court: I will hear you. I would like to have some authorities on that question supporting that theory.

Mr. Campbell: May we defer this matter until tomorrow [1842] morning and go on with some other witness in the meanwhile?

The Court: Yes.

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Will you state your name?

A. Arthur Pratt.

Q. Where do you live?

A. Fresno, California.

Q. What is your present business or occupation?

A. I have a cigar store, restaurant and beer tavern.

Q. Are you acquainted with the defendant, Elmer Remmer? A. I am.

Q. How long have you known him?

A. Since about approximately 1936.

Q. And I will ask you whether or not you were acquainted with one Clarence Bent?

A. I was.

Q. Mr. Bent is now deceased, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall when he died?

A. No, I don't recall the date of his death, but I was at his funeral. I imagine it was in——

Q. You do not recall the date?

A. No, other than I think it was the early part of 1943. [1843]

Q. Now were you at any time associated with Mr. Remmer in any business enterprise?

A. In 110 Eddy.

Q. Is that the only business enterprise in which

BLEED THROUGH

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

you have ever been associated with Mr. Remmer?

A. Yes.

Q. Now prior to your association with Mr. Remmer in that business, did you have any association or any contemplated association with Mr. Bent in that business at 110 Eddy Street? A. Yes.

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. I think that question was rather confusing question and the answer does not tell us which it was, whether an actual interest or contemplated interest. Both were asked.

Mr. Campbell: I am just coming to that.

A. Well, it was a contemplated interest.

Q. Now was any actual interest acquired by you prior to the time you became associated with Mr. Remmer in the business? A. No.

Q. Incidentally, prior to your entry into that association with Mr. Remmer at 110 Eddy Street, what was the name of the establishment at 110 Eddy Street?

A. It was known as 110 Eddy then.

Q. Was it also known as the Crystal Bar?

A. If it was, I never heard it mentioned that way. [1844]

Q. Or the Crystal Tavern?

A. Not to my knowledge. It was always known, my knowledge of the place would go back probably five or six years to that date, and always known as 110 Eddy Bar, as I knew. It could have been licensed under another name, but it was generally known as 110 Eddy.

Q. Now at the time of your association in 110

POOR COPY

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

Eddy Street with Mr. Remmer, did you invest any money in the enterprise? A. I did.

Q. Do you recall the date of that investment?

A. No.

Q. Do you have any records which would indicate that?

A. No, I have no records, but I imagine the date would be possibly the latter part of July or August, 1942, I think is approximately the date.

Q. What was the amount of your investment?

A. $3400.

Q. And to whom did you pay that amount?

A. Well, now that I can't recall, but I gave it either to Mr. Kyne, and that was who I think I gave it to, or left it with Mr. Syl Lando for Mr. Kyne.

Q. Who did you have your negotiations with as to your acquiring that interest?

A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. Were those entirely with Mr. [1845] Remmer? A. Yes.

Q. And how did it happen that you gave money to Mr. Kyne or left money for Mr. Kyne?

A. Well, Mr. Remmer wasn't always there. He was out of town quite a lot and it was understood that I was to leave the money.

Q. Who told you to leave it with Mr. Kyne?

A. Nobody.

Q. How did you happen to leave it with him?

A. Well, because he was more or less acting for Mr. Remmer.

Q. What were you to acquire for your $3400?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

A. I was to acquire one-third. In other words, it wasn't set at $3400. I invested $3400 but the total amount was to be—the figure was never arrived at—but $3400 is what I did invest.

Q. Was the amount of your investment contingent upon some event? A. No.

Q. How was the amount arrived at?

A. Well, the amount arrived at was that is how much up to that point I had go toward the investment of a one-third and I could never find out what the one-third actually called for.

Q. What did you understand that you received for your $3400?

A. One-third interest in the business, bar at 110 Eddy.

Q. Did you at any time have an agreement or an understanding with Mr. Remmer, or any one else, as to how much you were to pay in total for the one-third interest?

A. Well, no, because I could never get a statement given to me [1846] whether I owed or not.

Q. Now after you paid that money in later 1942, did you take any active part in the business?

A. None whatsoever.

Q. Did you conduct any of the operations there?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you exercise any supervision over the management of the business?

A. No.

Q. What was your understanding, Mr. Pratt,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

as to whether or not that was a partnership or what type of business?

Mr. Gillen: I think the term "understanding" is calling for speculation.

Mr. Campbell: I will reframe the question.

Q. Was there any written agreement?

A. No.

Q. There was an oral agreement, was there?

A. Just an oral agreement.

Q. With whom did you have that oral agreement? A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. Now, will you state what that oral agreement was?

A. Well, we were to give Clarence Bent, who possessed the license and the physical business as of the day we took it, as one representing one-third. Mr. Remmer and myself were to supply the remodelling, refurnishing and credit Clarence [1847] Bent with one-third and regardless of what we put in, that we would have two-thirds of it.

Q. As I understood you, you were to have of that two-thirds, one of the two-thirds, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. And it was in connection with that arrangement that you advanced the sum of $3400?

A. That is right.

Q. Now, do you know, or will you state, who was in active management of the business?

Mr. Gillen: At that time, your Honor?

Mr. Campbell: At the time you advanced this $3400?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

A. Until Clarence Bent's death he was the manager.

Q. And do you know who succeeded him as manager? A. No, I do not.

Q. During that period of time were you ever consulted with reference to the operation of the business? A. No.

Q. Now, some time after making that investment you left San Francisco, did you not, Mr. Pratt? A. I did.

Q. And went to the City of Portland, Oregon, I believe, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Where you became engaged in [1848] business? A. That is right.

Q. Now, when was it that you left San Francisco?

A. I wasn't a resident of San Francisco. I lived in Vallejo.

Q. When was it that you left the Bay area?

A. In May, 1943.

Q. Now, did you, Mr. Pratt, subsequently dispose of or sell your one-third interest, or whatever interest you acquired by your investment, to any one?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. I move that the portion, "whatever interest you acquired from your investment" be stricken. This is Mr. Campbell's witness. He testified he purchased one-third interest.

Q. Did you subsequently sell your interest to any one?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

A. The only time I sold my interest was to Mr. Remmer in 1944.

Q. You say the only time——

A. Well, you put the question up to I couldn't quite understand, you said at any time.

Q. Well, you did sell in 1944, is that correct?

A. All my interest, which was one-third.

Q. Just prior to selling your interest, did you have negotiations with Mr. Remmer relative to the selling? A. I did.

Q. And how and where were those negotiations carried on?

A. Over the long distance telephone between Portland and San Francisco. [1849]

Q. And over what period of time did those negotiations take place?

A. Well, I would say possibly over a period of at least two months.

Q. And will you state whether or not those negotiations were personally with Mr. Remmer over the telephone?

A. They were only with Mr. Remmer on the telephone.

Q. Now, as a result of those negotiations you sold your interest, is that correct

A. That's right.

Q. And at the time that you sold your interest, did you execute a bill of sale? Did you sign a bill of sale?

A. I signed a bill of sale after the sale was made.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

Q. You mean after you agreed to the sale?

A. After I agreed to the sale.

Q. Do you recall the date of the sale?

A. It was after March 15, 1944, I am quite certain.

Q. Now, have you produced with you here your copy of the bill of sale, together with correspondence which you had or received forwarding the bill of sale to you and forwarding your payment in return for such bill of sale? A. Yes.

Q. Will you produce it?

A. Well, the government has it—I haven't the original, but that is a copy of it from the original. I lost the originals. [1850]

Q. You no longer have the originals of those documents?

A. I think my wife threw them away when we moved from Portland back to California this spring.

Q. However, will you state whether or not prior to the time that they were thrown away by your wife——

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment—we don't know whether they were thrown away or not, neither does Mr. Pratt. He says he believes his wife threw them away.

Mr. Campbell: All right.

Q. Do you have them now?

A. To my knowledge I have not and during the recess, the few days down there, I tried to find them and couldn't.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

Q. You made a search for them at my request, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. I will ask you whether or not in 1947 copies of those documents which were then in your possession, were made by agents of the government?

A. That is right.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to ask to have these three documents which are stapled together, marked 160 for identification.

Q. Will you examine these, Mr. Pratt, and state whether or not, to your best recollection, those are exact copies of the documents which were in your possession which you state you can no longer locate? [1851] A. Yes.

Mr. Gillen: We will stipulate they may be offered in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: Will you stipulate they may be received in evidence? We will offer them.

Mr. Gillen: The wrong term. Everybody makes mistakes.

The Court: They will be admitted in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: At this time I will read into evidence plaintiff's Exhibit 160. Each of these are marked "Copy." (Reads Exhibit 160.) Signed John G. Taffe.

Q. Now, Mr. Pratt, subsequent to the investment by you of $3,400, and prior to March 21, 1944, the receipt of this letter, had you received from William E. Kyne the sum of two thousand dollars?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall when it was received?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

A. No, I do not. It was possibly some time in the latter part of '43 when I was in San Francisco and I borrowed money, or it could have been that he sent me part of it and I borrowed part of it.

Q. What is your best recollection?

A. Well, my best recollection is that I got a thousand in San Francisco and he sent me the other thousand.

Q. With whom did you have any negotiations relative to your receipt of these two thousand dollars? [1852]

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered. He said he borrowed the money from Mr. Kyne.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. Well, I never had a receipt. He never required any.

Q. Who did you talk to about getting this money? A. Just asked Willie for it.

Q. And subsequently you got it, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you say no written memorandum of any kind was entered into? A. No.

Q. Were any arrangements made as to any charges to be made on the books of 110 Eddy Street relative to these monies?

A. Well, not to my knowledge. I have never seen any papers for that place.

Q. Have you ever seen any books of account for 110 Eddy? A. Of no kind at any time.

Q. Now, reading from plaintiff's Exhibit 160, document entitled "Bill of Sale": (Reads.)

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

Q. Now, did you execute the original of this bill of sale, Mr. Pratt?

A. That is the one he asked me to take to the notary.

Q. Is this the same bill of sale referred to in his letter of March 21st? A. Yes. [1853]

Q. Did you execute it before a notary?

A. Yes.

Q. And calling your attention to the fact that the letter to you enclosing a bill of sale is dated March 21, 1944, does that assist you in fixing the date on which you executed the bill of sale?

A. Well, whatever the notary would be is the date that I mailed the bill of sale back.

Q. Did you mail it back promptly upon receipt of Mr. Taffe's letter?

A. It would be a matter of five or six days.

Q. Reading the final document in plaintiff's Exhibit 160, a letter on the letterhead of John J. Taffe, dated March 28, 1944, marked "Special delivery." (Reads.) Signed "John J. Taffe." Now, with that letter did you receive the cashier's check in the sum of $4,800? A. I did.

Q. Now, Mr. Pratt, subsequent to the time that you invested the $3,400 in 1942 and up until the time that you sold your interest by bill of sale, apparently dated March 25, 1944, did you know who else, if any one, was interested in the business known as 110 Eddy?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered, may it please the Court.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

The Court: Objection will be overruled. You may answer [1854] the question.

A. Well, the only time that I knew was that when Clarence Bent was alive he was one-third partner, Mr. Remmer was one-third and I was one-third.

Q. And up until the time of his death, were those the only persons you knew that were interested in the business? A. That is right.

Q. After Mr. Bent's death, did you know who, if any one, was interested in the business in addition to yourself? A. I did not.

Q. Now, from the time you made your investment and up until the time of the date that you executed this bill of sale and other than the two thousand dollars which you stated that you borrowed, did you receive any sums of money on account of the profits of the operation of the business?

A. I did not.

Q. And during that same period of time did you at any time receive any reports as to the profit or loss at which the business was operated?

A. I received one letter from Mr. Slater, who was the bookkeeper and auditor.

Q. Do you recall when that was?

A. Well, it was some time after I had left and was in Oregon.

Q. And was that prior to the time you sold out your interest?

A. No, it was in the meantime. It was in '43 I received this [1855] letter.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

Q. Do you still have that letter?

A. No, I tore that up immediately. It was just a letter saying that they were going to do some remodelling to a certain extent and there had been a certain amount of leakage in the place and they were going to try to get rid of it.

Q. Did you receive any financial statement or operation statement setting forth profits or losses?

A. I have never received at any time, from the first I went in until after I got out, I had never received one.

Q. Did you, during that period of time, call for or inquire about receiving a statement of profit or loss? Just answer that yes or no.

A. Yes. In 1944, right after the first of the year, I requested a statement, but never received it.

Q. And of whom did you make that request?

A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. Did you at any other time, during the period of time that you had invested in this business, other than after the first of 1944, make inquiry of Mr. Remmer, or anybody else, at other times for a financial statement?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered. He said one instance.

Mr. Campbell: I will reframe the question.

Q. Was that the only instance were you asked for a financial [1856] statement?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. Well, when you phrase it as statement, I

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

didn't exactly have to have a statement in the sense——

Q. Did you inquire as to the progress——

Mr. Gillen: The witness hasn't finished his answer.

Q. Finish your answer.

A. You refer to a statement, that I think you mean it would have to be typewritten. I asked for a statement, that could be oral. I had an investment and I wanted to know how the business was doing and whether there was a profit, so that in my mind was a statement that I requested, but never received it.

Q. On how many occasions did you make a request for a statement?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. Well, I can't name it in numbers, but after January, 1944, I was telephoning Mr. Remmer and talking to him on the phone quite a number of times and he always came back the place wasn't making any money, but they were stealing money out of there and there just wasn't any money there and he couldn't make a statement.

Q. Did you ever receive money purporting to represent profits in the business? [1857]

A. No.

resumed the witness stand on further

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Now, Mr. Pratt, you testified yesterday concerning your investment of $3,400 in 110 Eddy Street and concerning the ultimate sale of your interest in March of 1944 for $6,800, of which you received $4,800 by way of cashier's check and two thousand dollars credit on money which you had previously received by way of loan, is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, at the time that you sold your interest in 110 Eddy Street, as evidence by the bill of sale which is here in evidence, who set the price of $6,800?

A. Well, that was the price that was agreed upon and——

Q. Agreed upon by whom?

A. Mr. Remmer and myself; and I wasn't there to manage there or he wasn't there to manage it and I was so far away from the picture I thought, well, it is better to take that and get out.

Q. Who made the price of $6,800, or what concern?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

A. Well, there was no price agreed upon until we arrived at that figure. I was offered that and I took it.

Q. You say you were offered that, by whom were you offered that? [1859] A. Mr. Remmer.

Mr. Campbell: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Pratt, at the time the 110 Eddy enterprise was taken over by Mr. Remmer and by yourself, were you acquainted with the fact that Mr. Clarence Bent was indebted to Mr. Remmer?

A. Well, I didn't know how much. I understood through Mr. Bent that he owed Mr. Remmer some money. How much it was, I don't know.

Q. It is a fact, is it not, that Mr. Bent had told Mr. Remmer that he could not pay him and offered Mr. Remmer an interest in 110 Eddy?

Mr. Campbell: Objected as calling for hearsay.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Well, do you know that Mr. Bent was unable to pay Mr. Remmer and offered him an interest? Do you know that Mr. Bent was unable to pay the money he owed him and offered him an interest in the place in lieu of the money he owed?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as hearsay.

The Court: Same ruling.

Q. You did, however, know that Mr. Bent did owe some money to Mr. Remmer when you went into the enterprise?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

A. But how much I don't know.

Q. I am not asking you that. You did know there was some money owed by Bent to [1860] Remmer?

Q. That was in July or August of 1942, I believe you said, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. Now, at the time you and Mr. Remmer went into the place with Mr. Bent, it is true, is it not, that the place was considerably run down and inadequate? A. Yes, that's right.

Q. And at the time you and Mr. Remmer became interested in the place it was the contemplated plan that the place should be remodelled, modernized, redecorated and re-equipped, isn't that so? A. Yes.

Q. And in keeping with that plan it was understood that your initial $3,400 investment that you made at the time would not be all of the investment that you would put into the place, isn't that so?

A. Yes, but I was never told how much a one-third was.

Q. All right. Isn't it true that there was first of all the question of determining how much renovating was to be done and how much the renovating would cost, isn't that so? A. Yes.

Q. And you anticipated, did you not, when you put down the $3400 that you would have to put in additional money depending how extensive the place would be renovated and modernized? A. Yes.

Q. Now, it was also undetermined at the time whether or not that [1861] additional money that you would invest would come out of your pocket or come out of the profit, if the place made a profit?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

A. Well, I expected at that time to put more money in than I had.

Q. Out of your pocket?

A. Out of my pocket, but I was never told how much one-third was.

Q. I understand that. I am asking what was the contemplated plan at the time. Now, as a matter of fact, the place was enlarged, was it not?

A. Yes.

Q. In other words, one of the things that was done to enlarge the place was to rent a store or a ground floor loft immediately laterally adjoining the bar, isn't that so? A. Yes.

Q. And also the wall between the bar and that new store, that newly acquired store, was torn out, isn't that so? A. Yes.

Q. And also there was a large circular bar put in, taking in part of the old tavern and part of the new store that was acquired?

A. That's right.

Q. And as a result of that the enterprise incurred additional rent, isn't that so, taking over the new store?

A. It was more than what was originally charged. I don't [1862] know, but I think it was double, I am not positive.

Q. In other words, when you took over an additional equal space in the form of the new store,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

the rent was practically doubled, if not doubled, isn't that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Now, also there was, in addition to enlarging the place and in addition to the installation of the circular bar, there was also extensive redecorating the place?

A. Well, it was remodelled from what it used to be into a more or less modern place.

Q. And that included painting and decorating and everything else? A. Yes.

Q. Now, at the time you invested your $3400, with the expectation of being called upon to invest even additional money, you were residing at Vallejo at that time? A. That is right.

Q. Will you tell us, particularly for the benefit of the jurors who reside in other states than California, the distance between Vallejo and San Francisco, approximately?

A. Around 35 or 36 miles.

Q. At the time you invested in the place, it was not your intention to be present there and actually operate the place? A. No.

Q. You invested in the place because you considered it a good [1863] investment, is that correct?

A. I thought it would be, yes.

Q. Now as I recall your testimony, your initial entry into this organization was in July or August of 1942? A. That's right.

Q. Now, Mr. Bent died around Easter time, did he not, in 1943?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

A. Some time in '43. I wouldn't know definitely when it was.

Q. Mr. Cavani testified that Mr. Bent died about Easter time, which would be not earlier than some time in March or later than some time in April. Would that about fix it in your mind?

A. That is about the time.

Q. And then I understood you to have testified yesterday in May of 1943 you moved your place of residence from Vallejo to Portland, Oregon, is that correct? A. Right.

Q. And of course that removed you farther away from your investment at the 110 Eddy Club, isn't that correct? A. Yes.

Q. For the benefit of the jury again, can you give us the approximate distance of Portland, Oregon, from San Francisco, California?

A. Around seven hundred miles, I think.

Q. I thought it was closer to 900 miles. It is an overnight trip on the train, is it not?

A. It is overnight. It takes about 18 hours by train, I think. Now it doesn't take that long, but it did in those days. [1864]

Q. Did you ever make an inquiry as to the financial status of the place of Mr. Slater, the man who was keeping the books of the 110 Eddy Club, as to the condition?

A. To my memory I received only one letter from him.

Q. My question is, did you ever personally make an inquiry directly from Mr. Slater? A. No.

Q. You did say, however, that you did talk on several occasions to Mr. Remmer and asked him what were the conditions and with regard to whether the place was making or losing money or the financial status of the place, is that correct?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

A. Yes.

Q. And I understood you to say that your inquiry was not in the form of a demand for a financial statement, but rather merely a casual inquiry as to the conditions?

A. Well, what I tried to find out, if I had anything coming. I wanted to get some money out of it but I didn't make that inquiry until around December or January, latter part of 1943 or early part of '44. Up to that time it was merely hearsay, that other people said the place was doing good, that is, people I met in Portland. Another man would say it is doing no good, so when I did finally get in touch with Mr. Remmer, while I didn't get any figures, I got what I said in my testimony, that he said the place wasn't making any money and that he wasn't there himself and they were stealing him blind. That [1865] is all I ever got in regard to the figures.

Q. In the year 1943 you didn't expect any money because you knew there was a large investment in the matter of modernization, is that correct?

A. Well, it wasn't that. I figured when the time came when I had some money coming, it would be sent to me.

Q. That is not responsive to my question. My question was in 1943 you did expect that they were going to spend money on the property and there wouldn't be any money coming?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

A. I won't put in that way. I would put it that the initial investment was probably large enough at the time it was put in, the money it did earn would be enough to pay that investment off.

Q. But you did expect to get more money out of it to cover your investment?

A. Yes, when I first put the money in. Not at the time we are talking about, which was later in '43.

Q. I am talking about what you expected in 1943. You knew there was a great initial investment in 1943 or in 1942 because of this remodelling, isn't that so? A. Yes.

Q. Now, you say that you never personally inquired of Mr. Slater regarding conditions?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall when you received the letter from Mr. Slater, [1866] the one letter that you received from Mr. Slater, the bookkeeper?

A. I imagine it was after Clarence died and I went to Portland, possibly in the middle of '43.

The Court: When you say "Clarence"?

A. Clarence Bent had died and this was a letter —I had been in Portland possibly three or four months by that time.

Q. You went to Portland in May?

A. That's right.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

Q. So it might have been September or October that you received the letter?

A. Well, along in August, we will say. I can't say the exact date.

Q. Isn't it a fact that on some of the occasions, however many there may have been, when you talked to Mr. Remmer and inquired as to the financial condition of the place, that Mr. Remmer told you that he was unfamiliar with the exact financial condition of the place, but that you should get in touch with Mr. Slater, the bookkeeper, or he would put Mr. Slater in touch with you, isn't that so?

A. Well, he told me in this way—words that I would substitute—that he wasn't the bookkeeper, he didn't know what it was doing but to write to Slater and Slater would send me some kind of a statement, that he didn't know anything about it and he was too busy doing other things. However, I never wrote and I never [1867] received a statement.

Q. You never wrote to Mr. Slater following Mr. Remmer's suggestion, but you did receive from Mr. Slater a letter giving you some sort of report?

A. Well, the report——

Q. First of all—without having written to Mr. Slater, you did receive from Mr. Slater in the latter part of 1943 a letter giving you some sort of report? A. Well, I received that one letter.

Q. Obviously, since you did not request anything of Mr. Slater, somebody else must have told Mr. Slater to write to you, isn't that so?

A. No, Mr. Slater wrote to me and I was to

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

sign some paper that was in that letter, accompanied the letter and in the statement, that you regard as a statement, he said that 110 Eddy they had eliminated the amusement because the cost was excessive——

Q. What do you mean by amusement—do you mean entertainment?

A. Entertainment, that was dropped at this particular time, so the letter stated, and that they hoped that after this expense was cut out that the place would start to make money. Now, that is the only statement I ever got out of 110 Eddy.

Q. Mr. Slater also told you in his letter that extensive investment had been made in the remodelling, that it cost considerable money, isn't [1868] that so?

A. This is the remodeling that was done when the place was originally opened. The place was closed three or four months, we paid the rent and Mr. Slater was drawing a salary, before the place was ever remodelled, and all the remodelling to my knowledge, unless it was remodelled after that, was done before the place was opened.

Q. My question is, isn't it a fact that Mr. Slater mentioned in his letter to you that considerable money had been put into the initial investment?

A. That I don't exactly recall, but I know there was considerable money put in other than I put in.

Q. Do you recall just when 110 Eddy Club did open?

A. As to the date, I could not, but I think it was the latter part of October, 1942.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

Q. You invested in it in July or August?

A. That is when I contracted to go in as a third partner and I put some of the money up at that time and within the next 60 days I put the balance up.

Q. And then in the latter part of 1943, as I recall your testimony, you borrowed back two thousand dollars? A. From Mr. Kyne.

Q. And one thousand of that you believe you received in person and the other thousand you believe might have been sent to you in Portland, is that correct? A. I think so. [1869]

Q. So actually then at that time you only had a $1400 investment?

A. Well, I don't figure it that way. I had actually $1400 in the company at that time, but my investment hasn't changed because when I borrowed this money, I thought I was borrowing it from Kyne personally and not from the business.

Q. Now, do you recall that you asked Mr. Remmer for money first and Mr. Remmer told you that Willie Kyne would take care of the matter for you?

A. Well, that I don't recall. It could have been possible.

Q. Do you know whether it was Mr. Remmer's money or Mr. Kyne's money that you got?

A. That I couldn't tell.

Q. Do you remember any occasion when you and Mr. Kyne and Mr. Remmer were together and Mr. Remmer said to Mr. Kyne, "If I am not available, anything that Arthur Pratt wants he is to have"? A. That I wouldn't know.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

Q. You say that on one occasion at least, when you talked to Mr. Remmer on the phone and asked him, not for a statement, but regarding the financial condition of the 110 Eddy Club, what it was doing, that he told you that they were stealing or some other such expression?

A. Well, he said that he couldn't be there to watch it and the reason it wasn't making the money that it possibly should have made was because in some manner bartenders or somebody were [1870] helping themselves; in other words, they were taking money that should have been put in the cash register and never got in there.

Q. Did Mr. Remmer tell you, or did it come to your attention, that there had been several changes of bartenders and managers?

A. Well, now that was all beyond my knowledge. My only knowledge would be people that came to Portland from San Francisco that I knew, and the report was——

Q. Well, you didn't get it from Mr. Remmer?

A. No.

Q. When Mr. Remmer told you the place was being robbed and he wasn't there to watch it, is it not a fact that he recited to you an incident of where he went into 110 Eddy establishment one night with several friends and he ordered a drink from a strange bartender and he saw the strange bartender take the money and ring up a no sale on the cash register and put the money in his pocket and he watched the bartender do that in three different instances?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

A. I didn't hear that from him but from Mr. Kyne.

Q. Did you hear Mr. Remmer say that he said to the bartender what was the matter with not ringing up the money and the bartender said, "Who do you think you are?" and he said, "I am only one of the owners; take your apron off and get out." Isn't that so?

Mr. Campbell: I move that be stricken and the previous [1871] question and answer be stricken.

The Court: The objection will be sustained to this question and the previous answer will stand. I didn't hear an objection to it.

Mr. Campbell: I didn't have a chance.

The Court: Then the answer will go out. Objection sustained.

Q. Did Mr. Remmer ever give you details as to how the place was being imposed upon by the help?

A. Well, the only conversation I can really recall by Mr. Remmer and myself was when I was trying to sell out and we must have talked for half an hour on the telephone and the only thing I could gather that was concrete that as far as the place was concerned, the place hadn't made any money, due to the fact that it was mismanaged and that funds that should have been received were being stolen.

Q. Did he tell you anything about the bartender incident I have just related?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

A. To my knowledge no, but I did, as I stated, hear that from Mr. Kyne since I have been here.

The Court: The latter part will go out.

Q. Did Mr. Remmer say to you in that conversation, or any other conversation, that he witnessed a bartender stealing money right before his eyes?

A. No. [1872]

Q. Now, do you know, Mr. Pratt, how much money was invested in the 110 Eddy Club?

A. I have no knowledge at all, only as to my own investment.

Q. Now, Mr. Pratt, I am going to show you prosecution's Exhibit 86, the 1943 partnership return of the 110 Eddy Club, and with particular reference to the distributive share of the profits. I will ask you to look at the whole document first and ask you if you ever saw that before?

A. I think Johnnie Taffe sent me a copy or Mr. Maundrell sent me a copy of this, after I completed the sale of 110 Eddy.

Q. That shows, does it not, a credit to your account of $3425 from the profits, is that correct?

A. Well, that was what I received in the profit for this sale.

Q. I am asking you if that isn't what the document shows?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to — the document speaks for itself.

The Court: I don't see much difference whether the attorney or the witness reads the document which is in evidence.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Arthur Pratt.)

A. Well, I received three thousand——

Q. I am asking you what the document shows?

A. Well, now in what respect?

Q. Right here, $3425.24, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, you initially, and your only investment in actual cash [1873] out of your pocket was $3400, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. And you received, and agreed to accept, for your interest just twice the amount you invested; in other words, $6800? A. That is right.

Q. Now, I understood your testimony to be this morning that, having moved to Portland, being unable to be close enough to keep an eye on the investment or in any way look after its management, that you determined that you would rather be out, is that correct? A. That's right.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all.

Mr. Campbell: That is all.

(Witness excused.)

Mr. Campbell: If the Court please, I wonder if I could be heard at this time on the matter of admissibility of that exhibit?

The Court: Yes.

WILLIAM E. KYNE

having been previously sworn, was recalled on behalf of the plaintiff and testifed as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Mr. Campbell: The record will show, I believe, that Mr. Kyne was on the stand yesterday under direct examination, at which time the government offered in evidence plaintiff's Exhibit 153 for identification and further proceedings were suspended at that time in view of the contemplated argument by counsel on the admissibility of the document and was deferred until this morning, in order that we could put another witness on the stand. At this time I wish to renew the offer into evidence of government's Exhibit 153 for identification, on all the grounds heretofore stated.

Mr. Gillen: At this time, may it please the Court, we object upon all the grounds stated in the absence of the jury in the argument to your Honor, and we ask at this time that we be permitted to examine Mr. Kyne on his voir dire in relation to that, which will assist your Honor in making your ruling.

The Court: You May.

Q. (By Mr. Gillen): Mr. Kyne, when Mr.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Campbell asked you yesterday this question: "Mr. Kyne, with relation to the 110 Eddy Street as of the month of November, 1945, will you state what the interests were in that concern," let me ask you whether or not you understood Mr. Campbell to mean what were the percentage of each partner, or what were the interests that had been built [1875] up in dollars and cents by each partner on the books of the enterprise?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not proper voir dire, and is not the question to which this document related.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Well, when Mr. Campbell asked you this question, "Mr. Kyne, with relation to the 110 Eddy Street as of the month of November, 1945, will you state what the interests were in that concern," what did you understand his question to mean?

Mr. Campbell: That is objected to as improper voir dire and not the question to which this document was offered in evidence.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Let me ask you this, Mr. Kyne, what did you mean when you told Mr. Campbell that in November of 1945 the interests in the 110 Eddy concern were best reflected in the books, that the books would tell, what did you mean by that?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not proper voir dire, not the matter to which this exhibit is directed. Further, the record speaks for itself.

The Court: Objection sustained.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Gillen: I thought, your Honor, the purpose of voir dire of this witness at this time was to determine what the witness was answering.

The Court: I think it was; that is why I sustain the [1876] objection.

Q. Let me ask you this—in November of 1945, Mr. Kyne, did you know what percentage each partner had in 110 Eddy Street?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not proper voir dire.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. In November of 1945 did you know what amount of interest each partner had credited to him on the books?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not proper voir dire.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. So you know now what was your interest in 110 Eddy Street, that is, what percentage of the partnership of 110 Eddy Street you had?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not proper voir dire. It is a matter for cross-examination and not the question to which this document was offered.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: Of course, the question is plain here. He said, "Will you state what your interests were in that concern as of November, 1945."

The Court: That is not the question before the Court.

Mr. Gillen: Then I am uninformed.

The Court: The ruling will stand.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Gillen: Will your Honor call my attention to what is the question?

The Court: If I can look at the transcript again I can [1877] point it out to you.

Mr. Gillen: Yes, sir. If your Honor will enlighten me as to what you have in mind.

The Court: The question is: "Now as of that date, as of November, 1945, who owned the business?"

Mr. Gillen: I don't think that question can be read separately. I think the three questions should be read.

The Court: That is my view of it.

Q. In November, 1945, did you know who owned the business, Mr. Kyne, as to percentage, and did you know who owned the business as to interests built up on the books?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not proper voir dire.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Well, what did you think Mr. Campbell meant when he asked you as of November, 1945, who owned the business?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not proper voir dire; incompetent.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: Well, your Honor pointed out to me the question that we were concerned with was who owned the business. Now I am asking this gentleman if he knows what Mr. Campbell meant when he asked that, because there are two types of interest here, a one-fourth partnership interest and interest that built up the equity in the business, and that is what is a little confusing on this. [1878]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Q. Mr. Kyne, what did you mean by your answer that the books would reflect the situation as it stood in November of 1945?

Mr. Campbell: The Court has already ruled on this question. It is not proper voir dire.

Mr. Gillen: I don't think I ever asked that question before.

The Court: Objection will be sustained.

Q. What did you think was being asked of you, Mr. Kyne, in that question that was put by counsel yesterday, who owned the business of 110 Eddy Street in November of 1945?

Mr. Campbell: That is objected to, not proper voir dire.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. I show you prosecution's Exhibit 153 for identification and I will ask you first—you did not make that yourself, did you?

A. What is the last question?

Q. First of all, you did not make that yourself, did you?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to. The witness has identified the signature and that is his affidavit.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. A government man made this document.

Q. A government from the Alcohol Tax Unit, isn't that correct?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. I thought it was an FBI man, I am not sure.

Q. You had been in the army at that time how long, from February 1945 to November? [1879]

A. To November.

Q. And you had not been back to San Francisco and looking at the books or keeping the books of 110 Eddy, is that correct?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Who did own the 110 Eddy Club in November of 1945, and you may explain, I believe, with the permission of the Court, anything that you may have to explain in connection with the partnership.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not proper voir dire.

Mr. Gillen: Certainly a witness can explain.

Mr. Campbell: The question has been asked and answered and it is not proper voir dire.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: I am asking the exact question that counsel asked, who did own the 110 Eddy Street, if you know, in November, 1945? I am asking the exact question.

The Court: We have his answer to that question here in the record. Objection sustained.

Q. What did you mean in the account which you gave in this affidavit, which is prosecution's 153 for identification? Were you talking about the ownership of the physical assets of the partnership or were you talking about the interests that had been built up by way of sharing of the profits by the partners? [1880]

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not proper voir dire and a matter of cross-examination, and I further suggest to the Court that if my objection to this question is sustained that further voir dire should be foreclosed.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: Now, your Honor, voir dire is cross-examination to enlighten counsel——

The Court: Well, there is nothing before the Court now. The Court has sustained the objection.

Mr. Gillen: Will the reporter read what the Court said was the proper question?

(Record read.)

Mr. Gillen: Now I will put that question.

Q. Now as of November, 1945, who was the owner of that business, 110 Eddy Street?

Mr. Campbell: To which I object as not proper voir dire. The matter has been asked and answered. My understanding voir dire is only as to test the admissibility of the document.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: Of course, we are testing the admissibility.

The Court: The Court has ruled twice on that very question.

Mr. Gillen: But I understood that your Honor read from the transcript and said that the question that you were interested in—— [1881]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court (Interceding): That was because you were going off on questions that had no relation. The ruling will stand.

Mr. Gillen: May I ask what question your Honor is interested in, because I want to put the proper question.

The Court: You asked to have this witness called for the purpose of voir dire and you may proceed.

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor indicated to me there was one question you were interested in.

The Court: Yes, because you were going off to questions that had no relation; to stop it.

Mr. Gillen: There must be some question your Honor is interested and if you will enlighten me, I will not waste time.

The Court: I am not on cross-examination.

Mr. Gillen: I am asking your Honor's assistance to enlighten me what your Honor feels would assist you in making the correct ruling in this matter on this exhibit and I will address myself only to that subject and nothing else.

The Court: You may proceed.

Mr. Gillen: May I ask respectfully if there is some suggestion on the point of voir dire?

The Court: I have no suggestions to make.

Q. Mr. Kyne, was there ever a time, from the inception of acquiring of the 110 Club that you had any doubt as to the percentages that each partner had acquired? [1882]

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not proper voir dire.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: Do I understand now, your Honor, that the purpose of attempting to introduce this affidavit is to refresh the memory of Mr. Kyne on something he said that he did not yesterday recollect? I am now asking him if there was any time that he did not recollect what percentage each partner owned in the 110 Eddy.

The Court: The purpose of introducing the affidavit was gone into on the argument we had in the absence of the jury.

Mr. Gillen: That is true and that is why we ask your Honor to let us examine this man on voir dire, because your Honor asked some questions that indicated to you that there could have been two interpretations.

The Court: I think your voir dire should be confined to this document, 153 for identification.

Mr. Gillen: I asked a question concerning that —let me see if I can get around it without violating the Court's order.

Q. When you signed the affidavit for the government man in November, 1945, and related what you related in that affidavit, Mr. Kyne, were you referring to the percentage of each partner, were you stating percentages, or were you stating interests that had been built up in dollars and cents on the books of the company? [1883]

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not proper voir dire. The document itself is the best evidence of its contents, which is not yet in evidence. It is offered.

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor told me to address myself to the document concerned. I am asking him what he was answering in that document.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. What did you mean by that document?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not proper voir dire.

The Court: Objection sustained.

We will take a recess at this time.

resumes the witness stand on further

Voir Dire Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Kyne, with the Court's permission, I am going to hand you prosecution's Exhibit 153 for identification, and I will ask you to read it over, if you haven't read it or don't recall from your reading if it yesterday, and when you have done so, I am going to ask you a question.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. I understand the document. [1884]

Q. My question is, do you have a recollection at the present time as to matters mentioned in that document, prosecution's 153 for identification?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as asked and answered.

The Court: Well, he may answer the question.

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: Then I submit, your Honor, in view of the fact that the witness has stated that he has a present recollection of the matters contained in this proposed exhibit, then there is no foundation laid for the admission of that exhibit, for the reason that the exhibit was only offered to him for the purpose of refreshing his recollection concerning a matter. I submit it.

The Court: He stated yesterday that he had a recollection of that instrument and that the statement in it was true as I understood it.

Mr. Campbell: That is correct.

Mr. Gillen: That it was true at the time he made it, it was the truth to the best of his recollection.

The Court: But that does not meet the situation we are confronted with here. His answer to that question is another consideration.

Mr. Gillen: He has a present recollection of it and lack of present recollection——

The Court (Interceding): He stated he had no recollection [1885] at this time in answer to this question we are dealing with. That answer was not given in relation to the document, it was given in relation to the question. He didn't know who the owners of the 186 Club were in November, 1945.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Gillen: But, your Honor, he states, having read this document, he states he has a present recollection of this document.

The Court: Yes, he has a present recollection of the contents of the document and that is what he stated yesterday. He said the document was the truth, but he won't answer this question except by saying he has no recollection as to who the owners of that club happened to be in November, 1945, and that is the matter under consideration.

Mr. Gillen: That is what I endeavored to elicit from him this morning.

The Court: Well, the exhibit will be admitted in evidence, No. 153.

Mr. Gillen: May we be heard further outside the hearing of the jury?

The Court: No, I don't think anything will be gained by any further argument on that.

Mr. Campbell: At this time I wish to read plaintiff's Exhibit 153.

(Reads.) [1886]

Mr. Gillen: May it be stipulated that A. T. U. means Alcohol Tax Unit.

Mr. Campbell: Yes. You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, is it not a fact that the set-

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

up, insofar as 110 Eddy Street was concerned, was the same as the set-up of every business in which you and Mr. Remmer had an interest in San Francisco; namely, that whatever Mr. Remmer had an interest in, you had an interest or percentage?

A. Working interest, yes, sir.

Q. Now isn't it a fact that in the case of 110 Eddy Street, as in the case of the enterprises that have been probed into here, including the Menlo Club, which interests were reduced to writing, that certain of the partners had a working interest in the profits of the organization, which meant when they met their pro rata of the initial investment would result in their having a partnership in the actual physical assets?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for his conclusion.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. That is correct.

Q. And when you made this affidavit for this alcohol tax unit agent, while you were a soldier in North Carolina, to what did you refer with regard to the set-up of the business in San Francisco?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent, if the Court [1887] please.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. It refers to Mr. Remmer's money being drawn out before the partner's share in it.

Q. In other words, that Mr. Remmer's investment would have to be——

A. Returned.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Returned or at least equalled before the partners would have actual physical ownership of the assets? A. That is correct.

Mr. Campbell: Just a moment—all right.

Mr. Gillen: Does counsel make an objection?

Mr. Campbell: Well, I was going to object and move to strike the answer, on the ground that the question, which is in the alternative, suggests a fact not in evidence.

The Court: The answer may stand. You may proceed.

Mr. Gillen: Of course, I challenge the statement, it suggests a fact not in evidence.

The Court: The answer stands.

Mr. Gillen: I move counsel's remark——

The Court: The motion is denied and there is nothing before the Court.

Q. Now did you at all times know what percentage of interest each partner had in the 110 Eddy Street? A. Yes, sir. [1888]

Q. And from the time that Cavani and Turner came in there, what was the percentage of interest that each partner had in the business?

A. One-fourth.

Q. And that is what you stated on your direct examination here December 17th, isn't that so?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now with regard to what amount in dollars and cents, or what amount in the club each partner had built up in the business as of November, 1945,

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

were you aware of those facts, without consulting the office to see what the books show?

A. Without seeing the books, I wouldn't know.

Q. You didn't even know what equity you had built up yourself as of November, 1945, without seeing the books, did you? A. That is correct.

Q. In November, 1945, you had been away from that business for nine months, serving in the army, had you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you were not acquainted at that time with what the books showed to be your interest in dollars and cents? A. That is correct.

Q. You did know that you had a one-fourth interest in the over-all business, did you not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When Mr. Campbell asked you yesterday—I am reading from [1889] page 1836 of the transcript in this case—when Mr. Campbell asked you:

"Q. Mr. Kyne, with relation to the 110 Eddy Street, as of the month of November, 1945, will you state what the interests were in that concern?

"A. Well, the money put into the place was supposed to be met with and then we would be partners."

What did you mean by that, Mr. Kyne?

Mr. Campbell: That is objected to as incompetent, if the Court please. I think he can state what the facts are, but the question calls for conclusions, opinion of the witness. I think it incompetent for that reason.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the question.

A. That Mr. Remmer's money should be returned before the partners participated in the profits or the ownership.

Mr. Campbell: I ask that be stricken as not responsive to the question.

The Court: It will stand.

Q. Now when Mr. Campbell asked you:

"Now as of that date, as of the month of November, 1945, who owned the business," and you said: "The books would show that," what did you mean by that?

A. The books would show how much each partner had. [1890]

Q. How much each partner had to his credit on the books? A. That's right.

Q. And you were uninformed as of November, 1945, as you were uninformed yesterday, as to what the books showed your interest to be built up in dollars and cents as of November, 1945?

A. I didn't see the books for nine months.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, do you remember when this Alcohol Tax Unit man interviewed you? I assume he interviewed you first and then went away and prepared the affidavit and brought it back for you to sign, is that what happened? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When that agent interviewed you at Fayetteville, North Carolina, at the army encampment, did you relate to him the intricacies and details of how these partnerships were set up? A. Yes.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: I have in mind whether or not all the facts were related to this man, preliminary to asking him another question.

Mr. Campbell: It is immaterial.

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Q. Well, who drew up the affidavit?

A. The agent. I thought he was representing the FBI.

Q. At least he went away with the data you gave him and came [1891] back with this affdavit is that correct?

A. He wanted to know the set-up and I explained it to him.

Q. And when he brought back this affidavit, you signed it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did this affidavit contain everything you told this Alcohol Tax man about the partnership setup?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent and immaterial.

The Court: Answer the question.

A. Well, we had quite a few conversations relative to the place of business.

Q. More than one conversation? A. Yes.

Q. Does this affidavit contain all of the details of the set-up of the partnership as you related them to him? A. No, sir.

Q. What is missing from that affidavit, as compared with what you told him about the set-up of the partners?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent and immaterial.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. I explained to him the working interest of different partners as explained here.

Q. As you have explained here today and on the occasion of your prior appearance on the witness stand in giving testimony?

A. That's right.

Q. And the affidavit was presented to you in the form that it [1892] is and you signed it in that form? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: Now as a practical matter, and in the interest of not unduly delaying, your Honor will recall, and I invite your Honor's attention to page 1136 of the transcript, we asked permission of your Honor to recall Mr. Kyne at some future time for further cross-examination on this direct examination if necessary.

The Court: In relation to this exhibit?

Mr. Gillen: No, in relation to his general direct examination. I think both sides reserved the right to recall the witness.

Mr. Campbell: That was a closed subject, but there was one matter I think came up at one time and counsel stated he would like to cross-examine.

The Court: If counsel is not ready to have Mr. Kyne excused——

Mr. Gillen: I will read it to your Honor. The Court said, page 1136, line 21: (Reads from Transcript. I ask if we may still reserve that right?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: For further cross-examination?

Mr. Gillen: Yes.

The Court: You may recall him if you want to.

Mr. Gillen: Thank you. [1893]

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Kyne, at the time you signed this affidavit, did you read it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you make any corrections on it?

A. No, sir.

Q. Were you given that opportunity?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Kyne, when it says here that Frank Cavani and Chub Turner did not own any business in the club except working interest, that affidavit spoke the truth, did it? A. That is correct.

Q. Is that the type of interest which you owned in the business at that time?

A. I explained that Mr. Remmer's money had to be received back before the rest of the partners participated in the revenue of the place.

Q. Before they received any of the revenue?

A. That is correct.

Q. And that applied to you as well as to the other individuals? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is true as to each of the various businesses? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not Mr. Remmer

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

received all his money back out of any of these businesses? [1894]

Mr. Gillen: Thit is improper redirect. That has been gone into fully.

The Court: I think so. Objection sustained.

Mr. Campbell: Very well. I think that is all at this time.

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Kyne, you say before participating in the revenue—as a matter of fact every partner was participating in the profits to the extent of having their interest set up on the books, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. In other words, the profits that were derived from the business were left in by the working partners, instead of being drawn down, to offset the investment that had been made by Mr. Remmer, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And that was the situation with all of these things? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now you stood in a different position with Mr. Remmer than the other people, did you not, in that you had interest in the physical assets of everything Mr. Remmer owned in San Francisco?

A. I had a working interest, yes.

Q. Well, you were to derive from the sale of any business some portion of the proceeds that were derived from the sale of the business, isn't that correct? [1895] A. Correct.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Isn't it a fact that Mr. Remmer——

Mr. Gillen (Interrupting): Is counsel going to cross-examine his own witness? This is leading and suggestive.

The Court: I have not heard the question. Let me have the question.

Mr. Campbell: I only had four words out.

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor recognizes a leading question when——

The Court (Interceding): Let me hear the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Gillen: It is leading.

The Court: There are times when the Court permits leading questions. I do not know until I hear the question.

Mr. Campbell: I will reframe the question.

Q. Mr. Kyne, in response to Mr. Gillen's question as to whether or not you, as distinguished from other individuals, had an interest in the assets, you stated that you had a working interest. What do you mean by that answer?

A. The working interest applied to the fact that when Mr. Remmer received his initial money back we would all participate in the profits. [1896]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. And was that participation to be only after he had received his money back?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. I submit that has been explained many times. In fact, the prosecution offered books in evidence which contained credits to the various partners who had built up out of the profits and drawn down and paid income tax out of the profits that were——

The Court: In view of the recent examination, I will permit the question.

(Question read.)

A. I believe I answered that question.

Q. Will you answer it again?

(Question read.)

A. That is correct.

Q. That was true as to each of the enterprises, as I understand it—none of the partners of those having a working interest were to draw any of the profits until that had been accomplished, is that correct? A. That is right.

Mr. Campbell: I think that is all.

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. In other words, when you say they could not draw, you mean by that they could not take the profits out and put it in their pocket; they had to be left in the business to build up their equal responsibility in the investment? [1897]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. That is right.

Q. Then after they had equalled the investment of Mr. Remmer, then they could put it in their pocket? A. Yes.

Q. But in the intervening time they were charged with those credits and they were allowed to draw enough money to pay their taxes?

A. That is right.

Mr. Gillen: That is all.

The Court: Mr. Kyne, you may be excused subject to call.

CHARLES M. MINER,

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. What is your name?

A. Charles M. Miner.

Q. Where do you reside, Mr. Miner?

A. In San Francisco, California.

Q. What is your business or occupation?

A. I am special agent for the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Q. How long have you been a special agent?

A. Two and one-half years.

Q. Are you also an accountant, Mr. Miner?

A. Yes, sir, I am.

Q. Now in connection with your duties as a special agent of the Bureau of Internal Revenue,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

you were asked to and did make [1898] certain examinations relative to an account in the Crocker First National Bank of San Francisco under the title of Elmer Remmer and Harold Maundrell?

A. I did.

Q. In connection with that examination, did you examine the ledger sheets of that account as maintained by the bank? A. I did.

Q. I will show you plaintiff's Exhibit 27, consisting of the signature cards and ledger sheets, photostatic copies of ledger sheets, transcript of that account, and ask you if you recognize those as being photostatic copies of the bank account that you examined? A. Yes, this is the account.

Q. Now I will ask you whether or not you examined that account for the purpose of ascertaining year-end balances in that account as adjudged by outstanding checks which had not yet been presented to the bank for payment at the end of the year?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment.

Mr. Campbell: May I finish?

Mr. Gillen: I think it is leading and suggestive. I think he could ask what he examined the account for and the witness could relate what he examined it for.

Mr. Campbell: It is preliminary.

Mr. Gillen: Preliminary questions shouldn't contain all [1899] the matter——

The Court: See if you can avoid leading questions.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

Mr. Gillen: A simple question would be, what you examined the account for.

Q. Will you state the purpose of the examination which you made of this account?

A. To determine the balances in the bank as at the end of the year 1945 and 1946 as they related to the owners' interest therein, and adjusted by outstanding checks and deposits in transit.

Q. Now will you state what you mean by deposits in transit?

A. Deposits in transit are deposits that have been reflected on the books as additions to the bank account, that is, on the books of the depositor, but which deposits have not yet been credited by the bank.

Q. Into the bank account?

A. Into the bank account.

Q. Now in connection with that examination which you made of this account, what other records and documents did you have before you?

A. I had in addition to the bank statements cancelled checks drawn against the account and I had some stubs.

Q. Check stubs? A. Check stubs.

Q. Now in that connection there has been brought into court [1900] a paper box container, containing envelopes of cancelled checks and check stubs——

Mr. Golden: Pardon me—we want to be clear on what this is. Is this carton one of the cartons that we delivered to the clerk last month?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

Mr. Campbell: I am just going to identify them.

Mr. Golden: We want to know that first. We want to make objection to it.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask to have an identification number given to this box containing——

Mr. Gillen: All we want to know is that one of the boxes brought in on the Court's order?

Mr. Campbell: No. A box containing a number of envelopes containing cancelled checks and what appears to be check stub books.

The Clerk: No. 161 for identification.

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor understands the reason we interrupted because we wanted to know if we would be required to make that general objection.

The Court: I think Mr. Campbell understands. They were not produced pursuant to court order?

Mr. Campbell: No.

The Court: I think that is clear now.

Q. Now were the contents of that box available to you and used by you during the course of your examination? [1901]

A. Yes, sir, the contents were available.

Q. Now in addition there have heretofore been received in evidence in this case, as government's Exhibits 132 to 136, inclusive, certain check stubs of the Crocker First National Bank, and were these also vailable to you and used by you, if necessary, in the course of the examination which you made for the purposes which you have outlined?

A. Yes, sir, these were available to me and examined by me.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

Q. Now I first call your attention to the fact, referring to plaintiff's Exhibit 27, transcript of this account, shows that the account was opened on or about June 21, 1945, and the balance as shown at December 31, 1945, the sum of $5492.69. Did you observe that, Mr. Miner? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Now based upon your examination of the records which you have referred to, will you state—will you answer this yes or no—if you found that certain checks had been drawn against that account but which had not yet been presented to the date prior to the end of December 31, 1945, but which had not been cleared through the records of the bank as of the close of business December 31, 1945?

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment. This question, even though it calls for yes or no, is obviously getting facts in evidence based on records not in evidence. We object to the question because it calls for matter which is not in evidence, and also [1902] I believe—counsel can correct me if I am wrong—I believe the material the witness referred to in making this examination appears to be books and records of the defendant, taken during the course of the investigation, with agreement to return, never returned and never shown prior to this moment, although we requested them, and we object on all these grounds made to the use of any of that in evidence, and in addition object to the use of any evidence which is not before the court, not the best evidence.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

A. Yes, sir, I found such checks.

Q. Now in connection with those checks which you have referred to, have you drawn up and do you have in your possession a listing of those checks, giving the dates, the check numbers and the amounts of such checks?

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, may it be understood our objection goes to the entire line of examination?

The Court: No, we will have to hear objection to each question.

Mr. Avakian: Then unless your Honor wishes me to repeat it, I will state same objection, if that will suffice.

The Court: Same ruling.

A. Yes, sir, I do have a list of such checks by check number, amount and date.

Q. And in relation to December 31, 1945, based upon the examination [1903] of the records to which you refer, did you ascertain whether or not any deposits were in transit as of that date, which had not yet been credited to the account of the bank?

Mr. Avakian: Objected to for the same reasons and the additional ground the records themselves would be the best evidence.

The Court: Objection will be overruled.

Q. Answer yes or no.

A. Yes, sir, there was a deposit made——

Mr. Gillen: He asked for a yes or no answer—he got his answer.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

Q. Now did you also draw up a schedule setting forth the same information and from the same sources with relation to the date of December 31, 1946? A. I did.

Q. Now will you produce those schedules? You have handed me two sets of schedules. The first of these refers to the year-end December 31, 1945, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And the other the year-end December 31, 1946? A. That is correct.

Mr. Campbell: I ask that these be marked plaintiff's Exhibit 162 for identification and 162A for identification, that relating to December 31, 1945, bearing the first of the two numbers. [1904]

Mr. Gillen: If counsel happens to have copies, it will save considerable time.

Mr. Campbell: I do not, I regret to say.

Mr. Gillen: These were prepared in March, 1951. They could get photostats much quicker than that.

Mr. Campbell: I do not have copies of them.

The Court: Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, we will take a recess while counsel are examining these documents.

resumes the witness stand on further

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Now, Mr. Miner, referring to plaintiff's Exhibits 162 and 162A for identification, I call your attention to the writing on the upper right-hand corner, where it is Exhibit 27, when was that placed there?

A. That was placed on these work papers in order to identify them, Exhibit 27.

Q. That is the transcript of the bank account?

A. That is correct.

Q. And when was the work done by you in connection with these [1905] documents?

A. The work was done by me during the month of March, 1951.

Mr. Campbell: These will be offered in evidence as government's Exhibits 162 and 162A.

Mr. Avakian: May we examine the witness on his voir dire before they are admitted?

The Court: Yes, sir.

Q. (By Mr. Avakian): Mr. Miner, you said you prepared these in March of 1951. Will you

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

state when you made the examinations that are reflected in these two proposed exhibits?

A. Also during the month of March, 1951.

Q. All of your work was done during that month?

A. In connection with these papers submitted, yes.

Q. You do not recall over how long a period of time?

A. Not exactly; it was several weeks.

Q. Now you said in preparing those you used various materials which are in a paper carton, which I am showing to you, now entitled Exhibit 161 for identification, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And you also used Exhibit 27?

A. That is correct.

Q. Did you use any other paper in the preparation of those exhibits? A. Yes, I did.

Q. What other papers? Are they present in court here? Can [1906] you identify them for us?

A. No, I couldn't identify them. I made reference to working papers prepared by the revenue agent, in order to check my work.

Q. And by the revenue agent, whom do you mean? Do you know his name?

A. I do not know his name. The papers were handed to me as being prepared by the revenue agent.

Q. And those work papers are not in evidence here, as far as you know?

A. Not to my knowledge.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

Q. Now I notice that in this box that is identified as prosecution's Exhibit 161, there are a number of envelopes containing cancelled checks and bank statements, which are addressed Elmer Remmer or Harold H. Maundreil. Can you tell us where you obtained these records?

A. Those were given to me by my superior.

Q. And who is that? A. Mr. Ray Weaver.

Q. And he is present in the court room, is he?

A. Yes, he is.

Q. Do you know where he obtained them?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Is he the man who also gave you the work sheets that you mentioned, the revenue agent's work sheets? A. Yes. [1907]

Q. Did he hand you or show you any other material which you used in the preparation of Exhibits 162 and 162A for identification?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Now insofar as you used the records which are in the box marked for identification as Exhibit 161—and incidentally, that includes a number of check stub books in addition to bank statements and cancelled checks, does it not? A. That it does.

Q. In connection with your use of those materials, did you know to what persons or businesses those relate?

A. I was told that they pertained to Tiny's or the Menlo Club operation.

Q. Mr. Weaver told you that?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

A. That is correct.

Q. Did Mr. Weaver also tell you that he had those records continuously, either in his possession or the possession of some other agents of the Bureau from the years 1946 and 1947?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent and further ask that the jury be instructed to disregard the question and it calls for hearsay.

Mr. Avakian: I am asking him if Mr. Weaver didn't tell him.

The Court: It is hearsay.

Mr. Campbell: And it is immaterial. [1908]

Mr. Avakian: We are inquiring as to the source of materials.

The Court: He told you he got them from Mr. Weaver.

Mr. Avakian: That is right.

The Court: All right.

Mr. Avakian: The objection is sustained, your Honor?

The Court: Yes.

Q. Did Mr. Weaver also tell you that the representatives of Mr. Remmer had been trying to get permission to examine these documents themselves for preparation of the trial?

Mr. Campbell: That has already been sustained and I ask the jury be instructed to disregard it.

The Court: Objection is sustained; calls for hearsay.

Mr. Avakian: Now, your Honor, we object to these two exhibits for all the reasons heretofore set forth with respect to the use by the prosecution of documents which were taken and as to which we were denied permission to examine in advance of the trial, and we also object as to these two proposed exhibits on the additional grounds that they are based, in part at least, on materials which so far, at least, have not been presented in this court room and are not available for examination by us, and I believe your Honor is well aware of the rule that expert witnesses may present a summary under certain conditions, providing the materials used in preparing his summary are available for examination and inspection by the [1909] other side.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

Mr. Campbell: That is not the state of the record. He stated these were materials. He was asked if he had them before him and he said he checked his work against the other agent's work for accuracy.

Mr. Avakian: He used them in preparing the exhibits and he compared them with other materials. We are entitled to have all the materials which entered into the summary he prepared so we may have an opportunity to look at them themselves.

Mr. Campbell: Are these summaries in any part the product of some revenue agent's you looked at?

A. No, sir.

Q. Are they entirely the product of exhibits shown to you or in that box marked for identification? A. That is correct.

Q. (By Mr. Avakian): Before you completed

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

these and turned them in to whoever you did as correct and complete, did you refer to certain work papers of another agent? A. Yes, I did.

Mr. Avakian: I think that was part of the examination before he completed the exhibits as correct, and I submit we are entitled to see everything he saw or used before he reached the conclusion these were proper.

The Court: I want to know from this witness, Exhibits 162 and 162A are summary of all matters in 161? [1910] They do not purport to be or have anything to do with any other material?

A. That is correct, sir. The information contained came solely from Exhibit 161. I merely referred to revenue agent's work papers as a check against possible error.

The Court: All right. The objection is overruled. The exhibits are admitted in evidence, 162 and 162A.

Mr. Campbell: Reading from government's Exhibit 162: (Reads.) Less O. S. checks.

Q. What is meant by the symbol O/S?

A. It is an abbreviation for oustanding checks.

Mr. Campbell: (Reads from exhibit.)

Q. And you have attached hereto, have you not, a list of the checks which you found to be outstanding as of the conclusion of business December 31, 1945, but which have not yet been passed through the bank, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And in that connection you have separated

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

those checks into regular checks and pay roll checks, have you not? A. That is correct.

Q. And you have also listed the checks by numbers, by the date appearing on the check, and the amount of the check, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And it is a fact, is it not, that among those outstanding [1911] checks as shown by this exhibit you have taken into consideration checks which were drawn as early as December 18th.

Mr. Gillen: Counsel is testifying again. He is putting in his question everything he wants the witness to say yes or no to.

The Court: He is just summarizing.

Mr. Campbell: I am reading from the exhibit.

The Court: That might save time rather than reading the entire exhibit.

Mr. Gillen: I want to save time, Your Honor, but to me this is a cross-examination question—"it is a fact, is it not." It is certainly leading and suggestive.

The Court: Objection will be overruled.

Q. Included in the outstanding checks as of December 31, 1945, were checks issued as early as December 18, 1945, is that correct?

A. I believe so.

Q. And you have also followed those checks through to the cashing period by summary appearing on page 3?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. Is that right.

A. That is right.

Mr. Campbell: Reading from that summary: (Reads.)

Q. Total 9063.84—does that total represent all outstanding [1912] checks that were outstanding as of December 31, 1945?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. Is that correct?

A. That is the total on outstanding checks.

Mr. Campbell: Reading from plaintiff's Exhibit 162A: (Reads.) To which there is attached a list following page of sheet No. 1 of checks, giving the check number, the date of the check, and the amount and classified as regular and as pay roll checks, totalling $7963.51. The end of the exhibit is a summary of outstanding checks paid January, February, and June, total of $7963.51.

You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Q. Mr. Miner, I notice that on Exhibit 162, the lower lefthand corner of each page there is a notation, "Miner 3-19-51." Will you explain the meaning of that?

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

A. That is the date that I prepared the work sheet.

Q. Did you prepare this particular exhibit?

A. The particular work sheet which is marked there.

Q. When you say work sheet, do you mean Exhibit 162?

A. The date on each page is the date that I compiled the information.

Q. On that particular page?

A. On that particular page. [1913]

Q. In other words, it is the date that you wrote up the page itself?

A. It is the date that I compiled the information on that page.

Q. Well, did you make some entries on one day and some entries on another day?

A. It might be possible.

Q. And in that case the date represents what, the last day that you worked on that?

A. Yes.

Q. And I note that on Exhibit 162A there is in the lower left-hand corner of each page the notation, "Miner 3-20-51." Does that represent the last date on which you made entries on each of these sheets? A. May I see the exhibit, please?

Q. Yes, surely. I will hand them both to you.

A. That date represents the date this information was completed and assembled.

Q. By this information, you mean the data that is entered on the sheets?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative.

The Court: He may answer the question. Read the question please.

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: I do not understand the question—— [1914]

The Court: I do not see any necessity for the question.

Mr. Avakian: I am trying to find out when he was working on those.

The Court: Let him answer the question.

(Question read.)

Q. Do you understand the question?

Mr. Campbell: I submit it is incompetent.

Mr. Avakian: Let me restate it.

Q. Did you first prepare this material in some other form and then on a later date put it on the sheets that are in evidence here?

A. That may be with respect to one sheet there. The other sheets were made up on or about the dates as indicated.

Q. Each of these exhibits has three sheets in it, does it not? A. That is correct.

Q. And the top sheet is sort of a summary sheet and the other two contain details?

A. That is correct.

Q. And what you mean then, I take it, is you mean you may have prepared the detailed sheets at an earlier time from the date on which you prepared the summary sheet, is that what you are getting at? I am trying to understand.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

A. I mean the sheet which you are holding in your hand and which is of a different color than the other sheets, was actually written recently as a transcription of information [1915] which I did compile in March of 1951.

Q. And by sheet of a different color, you mean the first sheet in Exhibit 162A, is that right?

A. That is correct.

Q. If I understand you correctly then, the next two sheets contain details which were prepared on or about March 20, 1951? A. That is correct.

Q. But this top sheet, although it bears the date 3-20-51, was prepared at some later date?

A. The information was prepared on or about March, 1951; however was actually written recently.

Q. This particular page was written later?

A. That is correct.

Q. Is there a similar explanation with respect to summary sheet of 162?

A. No, there is not.

Q. All three of those sheets were written on or about March 20, 1951?

A. That is correct, with the exception noted here before, Exhibit 27, written in the upper right-hand corner.

Q. That was written in recently?

A. That is right.

Q. In preparing these two exhibits, did you examine all of the cancelled checks, bank statements,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

check stub books, that are contained in the box which is Exhibit 161 for identificaton [1916]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you spend much time at that? How much time did you spend at it?

A. I can't remember the exact number of days, but it took me quite a while.

Q. Two or three weeks, is that correct?

A. Several weeks.

Q. Working continuously?

A. What do you mean by continuously?

Q. I mean were you working each day on this assignment, or did you take a few days to work on something else? A. I don't recall exactly.

Q. Do you recall whether you spent substantially all that time, two or three weeks' period doing this job?

A. Substantially all of the time.

Q. Now I note that on the second page of prosecution's Exhibit 162-A, which is designated as "Reconciliation" for December 31, 1946, there is a heading, "Checks dated in 1946, paid by bank in 1946." Would you explain what that means?

A. The statement is in error. It means that checks dated in 1946, which were paid by the bank in '47, as indicated by the specific date that they cleared the bank.

Q. So that when you wrote in there, "Paid by bank in 1946," that was a mistake? [1917]

A. That is correct.

Q. You meant to write 1947?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

A. That is correct.

Mr. Avakian: May we have the witness correct the exhibit in that respect?

The Court: Very well.

(Witness makes correction.)

Q. Now on the Summary Sheet 162-A there are three entries, the first of which is balance of a Bank Statement 12-3-46, amount of $10,632.87. That, I take it, is the figure which is shown in the bank records as the amount of money in that account at the end of December 31, 1946?

A. That is correct.

Q. And then you have subtracted from that as outstanding checks the sum of $7,963.51. That, I take it, represents the total of checks which were issued prior to the close of 1946, but which were not cleared through the bank until some time in 1947, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And by that subtraction then you have adjusted the bank balance at the end of 1946, from $10,632.87 down to $2,669.36. That represents, then, the amount which you considered as the proper amount of that balance which should be considered in the net worth of a taxpayer whose income is being computed on the net worth basis? [1918]

Mr. Campbell: I object to the question in that form, calling for conclusion of this witness, as to what use may or may not be made of it. He has testified he adjusted the account for outstanding checks, the result representing the depositors' interest in those funds in the bank, and this question calls for his conclusion and is conclusion on legal matters.

The Court: Let me have the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. How long have you been a special agent for the Bureau of Internal Revenue?

A. Since July 11, 1949.

Q. And prior to that time were you employed in any other branch of the Bureau?

A. No, I was not.

Q. How long have you been an accountant?

A. I have been doing accounting work since 1939.

Q. And prior to 1949, when you entered the Bureau, were you engaged in accounting work with a private accounting firm? A. No.

Q. For some corporation or business?

A. For the business of public accountant.

Q. In your own business? A. No. [1919]

Q. For a firm that was in public accounting business? A. Yes.

Q. In your work as an employee of a public accounting firm and in your work as special agent for the Bureau of Internal Revenue, have you engaged in computation of the net income of tax papers by what is known as the net worth method?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent, not within the scope of direct examination.

The Court: Objection sustained.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

Mr. Avakian: May I be heard on that, your Honor?

The Court: No.

Q. Mr. Miner, in adjusting a balance shown on a bank statement by taking into account either checks outstanding or deposits outstanding at the end of the year, what effect does that have with relation to the computation of the dollar value of the bank account to the owner of the account?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for conclusion, not within the scope of direct examination.

Mr. Avakian: He was examined exactly on that point on direct.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Referring to prosecution's Exhibit 162, which is your schedule as of December 31, 1945, I note that the first entry you have made is bank balance per bank statement of 12-31-45, of $5,492.69. That represents, does it, the amount of that [1920] account shown on the records of the bank as of the close of business on December 31, 1945? A. That is correct.

Q. Now your next entry is entitled "Add Deposit in Transit $4,284.45." Will you explain that item to us?

A. That was a deposit to the account which was credited by the bank on January 2, 1946, and which was presumed to have been on the way to the bank as of December 31, 1945.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

Q. You say it was presumed—upon what do you base that assumption?

A. It was presumed because it was not likely, in view of the deposits being made, the money would have been made available as of the first day of January, one day's operations.

Q. You mean the second day of January—I think you testified it was credited on January 2nd?

A. It was deposited on January 2nd. It was credited by the bank on January 2nd.

Q. You say it was not likely to have represented income of January, or something to that effect. Upon what do you base that opinion and conclusion? Was that based on some record that you saw?

A. It was based upon the experience of the deposits in the account.

Q. Did you find some record which showed that that money was on hand on or about December 31, 1945? [1921] A. No, I believe not.

Q. You simply found a record of a deposit made in the bank on January 2, 1946, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. So far as you know, can you tell us where that money came from that was deposited on January 2, 1946?

A. No, I can't say where the money came from.

Q. Can you point to any record or any evidence which will show whether or not that money was on hand at the close of the year 1945?

A. Not definite evidence, no.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

Q. Don't limit yourself to definite. Is there any evidence you can point to in the record, or any evidence of any kind you can point to?

A. The only records are, as I explained before, the method of deposits as shown by the bank statement.

Q. Will you find that record for me?

A. May I see Exhibit 27?

Q. Have you found the record?

A. I have found the record, yes.

Q. Which exhibit are you looking at, so the record will be clear? A. Exhibit No. 27.

Q. You are showing me what sheets?

A. The sheets are not numbered, but in the exhibit this is the sheet ending with the date of December 31, 1945, and the sheet [1922] for the first few days in January, 1946.

Q. Now the second sheet that you have shown me begins December 31, 1945, likewise, does it not?

A. It begins carrying balance forward from December 31, 1945.

Q. Now is there any particular entry on those two sheets which is evidence of the fact that the deposit of $4,284.45 made on January 2, 1946, was on hand with the owners of the account prior to the close of 1945?

The Court: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Q. Do you understand the question?

A. There is no evidence but there may be an indication.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

Q. What is it that indicates that, please?

A. Deposit made on December 28, 1945, $2,400; deposit made on December 31, 1945, of $3,950, indicating that in what would be presumed to be normal operations, it would take two or three days to accumulate the sum of four thousand dollars to deposit.

Q. Now there was a deposit on December 31st, was there not? A. That is correct.

Q. That is the last day of the year?

A. That is the date it was credited by the bank on the bank account, that is correct.

Q. That would be the date the money was deposited in the bank, is that right?

A. It is the date the bank credited it on its bank statement. [1923]

Q. Haven't you found, in examination of bank records, that the bank credits money in its records on the date it is deposited with the teller?

A. Not necessarily. It may be in the depository box and it would not be credited that day.

Q. You mean if a person deposits with the teller on a particular day the entry in the bank records may not be made on that day?

A. That is not what I mean.

Q. What do you mean?

A. I mean it is possible for money to be placed with the deposit bank in a depository in the bank, a sack dropped down the chute there, it might lay for a day or two until the bank opens up on the subsequent day.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

Q. Did you have any reason to believe that this deposit of December 31, 1945, was made in that manner?

A. No, I have no reason to believe so.

Q. Insofar as deposits at teller's cage are concerned, you know, do you not, that the bank credits those deposits on its records as of the day the money is handed to the teller? A. Usually.

Q. This deposit December 31, 1945, $3,950.63, and the next deposit January 2, 1946, $4,284.45, are those the two entries which lead you to believe that the four thousand dollar figure was on hand at the close of business December 31, 1945? [1924]

A. No, those are not the two figures, that led me to believe that.

Q. I thought they were the two you showed me. Are there some other figures which lead you to that conclusion?

A. As I stated before, it was deposit of $2,466.68 on December 28th, coupled with deposit $3,950.63 on December 31, 1945, which led me to believe that in the normal course of business the $4,284.45 credited to the account on January 2, 1946, would have been accumulation over several days, therefore, would have been on hand at December 31, 1945.

Q. Well, you say would have been accumulation over period of several days, do you mean several days immediately prior to its deposit?

A. Several days prior to its deposit, yes.

Q. And January 1, 1946, would be one of those days, would it not?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

Mr. Campbell: I object to this as being argument. The subject has been covered and re-covered.

The Court: I think it is just a matter of examining the calendar to answer that question. Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: If this witness has simply made an assumption based on records——

The Court: There is nothing before the Court.

Q. Isn't it a fact, Mr. Miner, that your decision to list that January 2nd deposit as having been in transit on December [1925] 31st is based simply on your own opinion and conclusion and is not based on documentary evidence showing that that money was on hand on December 31, 1945?

A. That is correct.

Q. Are there any other entries in these two exhibits which are based on your own opinion and conclusion rather than being based specifically on documentary or other evidence?

A. May I examine the exhibits?

Q. Certainly.

A. The other information is all substantiated by documentary evidence.

Q. Now in addition to making adjustment on account of that $4,284.45 item, you made a further adjustment with respect to checks in transit, did you not? A. No, I do not believe I did.

Q. Then I will show you Exhibit 162, which states, "Amounts outstanding checks $9,063.84."

A. I made adjustment on outstanding checks. It is a different terminology.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

Q. In other words, you are objecting to my term "in transit." And with those adjustments you arrived at a credit balance in that particular account for December 31, 1945, did you not?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Now, Mr. Miner, in computing the income of a taxpayer on net worth basis, is it essential from an accounting point of view, [1926] in order to make a correct determination of the net income, to have a correct figure for the bank account of the depositor whose net income you are determining?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for conclusion, not within the scope of direct.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: I would like to be heard on that because that is the issue in this case. Mr. Pike has stated that they are determining on net worth income.

The Court: No, I won't take the time. The ruling will stand.

Q. Mr. Miner, if you are mistaken in your opinion and conclusion that the January 2, 1946, deposit was actually on hand with the depositor prior to the close of business in the year 1945, would that have an effect in the determination of the net income of the depositor for both the year 1945 and the year 1946?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to, not within the scope of direct examination; calling for his opinion and conclusion as well.

The Court: Objection sustained.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

Q. In preparing the two exhibits, 162 and 162A, and in making the examination which you made for that purpose, were you aware of the fact that the Menlo Club, Menlo Bar and Tiny's Restaurant were open 24 hours a day every day of the year?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial. [1927]

The Court: He may answer the question.

Q. With the exception of the bar. I will reframe the question. Were you aware of the fact, in making that examination, that Tiny's Restaurant and the Menlo Club were open 24 hours a day, every day of the year, and the Menlo Bar was open every day of the year except between the hours of 2:00 a.m. and 8:00 a.m.?

A. No, I wasn't aware of that.

Q. And when you concluded that a deposit made on January 2nd in a large amount, such as $4,284.45, when you concluded that must represent money on hand prior to the close of business on December 31st, you were assuming, were you not, that these businesses were not open on the holiday of January 1st?

A. No, I wasn't particularly assuming that.

Q. Were you assuming anything either way on that, as to whether they were open or not?

A. No, sir.

Q. You didn't consider it either way; is that right? A. I made no assumption of it.

Q. Did you take into consideration the fact that the business of such places might be abnormally high on New Year's Eve and on the early hours of January 1st of the year?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

A. I didn't consider that.

Q. Now if you are in error in your assumption that this $4,284.45 deposit of January 2nd was on hand on December 31st [1928] would that change the amount of the credit balance on the books of December 31, 1945, which you show on Exhibit 162?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to; the document speaks for itself. The question is argumentative, if the Court please.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. So there will be no misunderstanding, Mr. Miner, you arrived at the credit balance figure shown on prosecution's Exhibit 162, of $713.30, on the assumption that the deposit of January 2nd was actually on hand on December 31st; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Mr. Avakian: No further questions.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. I have one question with relation to this amount which you have shown as deposit in transit, $4,284.45. I wonder if you will make a computation for me from this exhibit. Assuming that that money was not on hand or in transit as of December 31st, what would be the amount of checks drawn and outstanding as of December 31st, for which there were no funds on hand in the bank or in transit?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

Give me the round figure—you don't have to figure it to the cent.

Mr. Gillen: If there is a computation made, I think it should be to the cent.

Mr. Campbell: Very well, you can have it to the cent.

A. The bank account would have been overdrawn in the amount of [1929] $3,571.15.

Q. So that if the deposit of January 2nd was not in transit, there would be outstanding as of December 31st, as shown by the schedules of checks drawn for general purposes and pay roll checks to that amount; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Mr. Campbell: That is all.

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Q. That would be true, Mr. Miner, only if all checks in transit were actually presented to the bank on January 2nd prior to the four thousand dollars; is that true?

A. I do not believe that is.

Q. The bank balance would not be overdrawn until the checks would be presented to the owner, would it?

Mr. Campbell: That was not my question. Object to the question.

The Court: You may answer the question.

Mr. Avakian: He said the account would be overdrawn.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

The Court: It is obvious——

Mr. Avakian: He won't admit an obvious thing, that is the point, your Honor.

Mr. Campbell: I object to that.

The Court: Go ahead and answer the question. I do not see any reason why you should ask such a question.

(Question read.) [1930]

A. Yes, the bank account would be overdrawn. The account is considered overdrawn when the checks are issued in excess of the amount of funds to pay those checks, whether or not such checks are presented to the bank for payment.

Q. Actually, Mr. Miner, the checks you have listed as outstanding at the end of the year in total amount of $9063.84, were presented—those particular checks were cleared through this bank account in part during the month of January, 1946—they were all presented at various times during the month of January, 1946; isn't that correct?

Q. I would have to refer to the exhibit, please, before I could answer the question. No, these outstanding checks were not all presented to the Crocker First National Bank for payment in the month of January, 1946.

Q. Are there other months also?

A. Yes, sir; during the months of January, February, March and April of 1946.

Q. So when you say that if that money, $4284.45, had not been on hand on December 31st, the account would have been ovedrawn, you mean simply, do you not, that the total of checks issued as of December 31, 1945, was greater in amount than the money which was in the bank on December 31, 1945? A. That's right.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

Q. So that you would consider that the bank account was overdrawn then; is that correct? [1931]

A. Yes.

Q. And the bank account would have been overdrawn on your theory, whether the four thousand dollars was on hand or not, so long as it had not been put in the bank; isn't that correct?

A. It would not be considered overdrawn if the money were in transit to the bank.

Q. What do you mean by in transit?

A. Had been mailed or placed in the bank to deposit.

Q. But if it were simply in the office or office safe, then you would consider that the account would be overdrawn?

A. Not if it was in the safe of the bank.

Q. Not on the way to the bank but in the office safe?

A. In the office safe, to be deposited in the bank——

Q. Would you answer the question—if the money was simply in the office safe and nobody carried it to the bank and checks are drawn in a total amount more than money in the bank, you, as an accountant, would consider that overdrawn?

A. It would depend upon the circumstances.

Q. Do you know whether these checks which you have listed as outstanding checks, had been delivered to the payees on December 31st or not?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Charles M. Miner.)

A. I have no way of knowing that.

Q. In preparing this exhibit you assumed, did you not, that the checks had been delivered to the payees?

A. I assumed that the checks had been [1932] issued.

Q. By issued, you mean handed over to the payee?

A. No, I do not mean necessarily handed in the hand.

Q. What do you mean?

A. The check was written.

Q. It was written?

A. And on its way in some stage or other of going to the payee.

Q. In transit to the payee; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And you assumed that the checks were at least in transit to the payee or had been delivered to the payee in preparing this exhibit; is that correct?

A. I assumed that the checks were in transit to the payee.

Q. And if you are incorrect in that assumption, then your exhibit would likewise be in error?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative.

The Court: Objection sustained.

having been previously sworn, testified as follows, on behalf of the plaintiff:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Harkness, you have been previously sworn? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you state again your occupation?

A. Internal Revenue agent.

Q. How long have you been an Internal Revenue agent? A. Since 1945.

Q. What was your occupation prior to that?

A. I was an accountant with the Navy Department five years prior to that.

Q. And prior to your government employment, were you in accounting work? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And with whom and over what period of time?

A. With a private corporation in southern California.

Q. What is the name of the firm?

A. The Sun, San Bernardino.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

Q. What was that company?

A. Newspaper.

Q. You say you have been an Internal Revenue agent since when? A. 1945.

Q. Now in connection with your duties as revenue agent—and I believe you so testified yesterday or the day before—that you [1934] were assigned, together with other agents, to the investigation involving the income tax returns of Elmer Remmer and his wife, Helen Remmer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now in that connection did you examine such books and records of the 110 Eddy Street that were made available for your examination?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you also examine the partnership returns as filed by the 110 Eddy Street Club?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Harkness, I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 112, consisting of two ledgers of 110 Eddy, and ask you if you examined these records in the course of your investigation?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I am also going to show you plaintiff's Exhibits 80, 81, 82 and 83, being partnership returns of income for the 110 Eddy Street, as it is referred to on one of the returns, for the years 1943, 1944, 1945 and 1946, respectively, and ask you if in connection with your examination you also examined those documents? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now I will ask you as to whether or not, on my instructions, if you have drawn up a schedule or summary of the assets and liabilities of the 110 Eddy Street for the dates of December 31, [1935] 1943; December 31, 1944; December 31, 1945, and December 31, 1946, based upon the books and the returns which I have shown you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I will ask you if, in connection with such summary of assets and liabilities, you have also, pursuant to my instructions, set forth on that schedule the capital accounts as shown by the books as of the same dates? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask to have this schedule, consisting of three pages, marked 163 for identification. For further identification, I would like to ask another question.

Q. Showing you Exhibit 163 for identification, is this the summary of assets and liabilities, together with the capital accounts, as shown by the books, which you prepared and from the sources which I have indicated? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I call your attention to the schedules annexed, Schedules 1 and 2, and were they prepared from the same sources? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: There is no copy of this and it will take some little time to examine and we will meet your Honor's pleasure.

Mr. Campbell: Then may I make this suggestion—I have another similar schedule which I will also submit to counsel.

The Court: Do you want it marked as an exhibit for [1936] identification?

Mr. Avakian: I do not know whether this is a practical suggestion or not—if Mr. Campbell has other matters he could question the witness on without the use of these various documents, we could examine them perhaps overnight on some mutually satisfactory arrangement.

Mr. Campbell: We have similar schedules on the Day-Night Cigar Store and Menlo Club and I will have them marked for identification at this time so counsel may examine all three, which will expedite the procedure tomorrow morning. I am going to ask to have the statement of two schedules in the case which refers to the Day-Night Cigar Store marked 164 for identification, and those marked Menlo Club, consisting of two pages, be marked 165 for identification. If counsel wishes to withdraw them for photostating and keep them overnight, we have no objection. Let me make this suggestion, that you take a transcript of the first one before you leave this afternoon and the other two you can take overnight and have photostats.

Mr. Gillen: If you are going to trust us with one, why don't you trust us with all?

Mr. Campbell: No, I wish to work with the first one.

The Court: Exhibits 164 and 165, by consent of counsel, may be released to counsel for the defendant.

resumes the witness stand on further

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Harkness, yesterday I asked you as to certain exhibits which you had seen with reference to the summary which you stated you prepared and which was marked 163 for identification. You were shown, I believe, Exhibit 112 and also the returns of 110 Eddy Street, being Exhibits 80, 81, 82 and 83, and I will ask you also if, in connection with your preparation of the summary you also used Exhibit 112A, which is a further ledger of 110 Eddy Street?

The Court: When you refer to summary, which exhibit do you refer to?

Mr. Campbell: I refer to 163 for identification.

A. Yes, sir; I did.

Q. Now I hand you 163 for identification, which is the summary you have identified as having prepared in respect to 110 Eddy Street. Now let me ask you this, Mr. Harkness, with respect [1938] to the ledgers to which I have referred, Exhibits 112 and 112A, will you state whether or not, as you examined them, whether you found if they were posted up to and including the 31st day of December, 1946?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

A. No, sir; the general ledger was posted up to and including October 31, 1945. The profit and loss accounts were brought up to date, I imagine to prepare the income tax return.

Q. Now will you state what you found to be the situation with regard to the inventory account in this regard?

A. The inventory account in the ledger was missing until sometime in 1945.

Q. By missing do you mean there were no entries you found in the record?

A. No, there was no sheet in the record until that time.

Q. Will you state whether or not the books are adequate for the purpose of drawing a trial balance? A. No, sir; they were not.

Q. Now as I understand from your testimony, the summary which you drew was drawn from the records which you have indicated; is that correct?

A. In most cases.

Q. Well, what exceptions are there to that?

A. Well, the inventory, the figures are the figures taken from returns.

Q. Are you referring to the returns that were shown to you [1939] and the records?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And by returns you are referring to the partnership returns of 110 Eddy Street; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now in this summary I will ask you if you indicated as to each of the items of assets and liabilities which you have set forth here and as to the capital accounts as shown on the books, the sources from which you drew the figures?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. In that connection I call your attention to the third item on this schedule, in which you list Exhibit 112 and work papers. Will you state to what work papers you have referred?

A. Well, that would be work papers in regard to the cash receipts and disbursements for 1946, in which was shown that no charge was made during the year 1946 in that account.

Q. And the receipts and disbursements account to which you refer is a portion of government's Exhibits 112 and 112A; is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when you refer to work papers, do you refer to any records outside of those to which your attention has been directed; namely, Exhibits 112, 112A, and 80 to 83, inclusive? A. No, sir.

Mr. Campbell: This will be offered in evidence as [1940] government's Exhibit 163.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I am not entirely clear as to just where the work papers are. Are they in evidence here?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

Q. Do you have the work papers?

A. I have a summary of the cash receipts and disbursements.

Q. Taken from these records?

A. Taken from Exhibit 112.

Mr. Avakian: May I inquire, your Honor, whether they are his work or somebody else's?

A. They are my work papers.

Q. (By Mr. Avakian): You made up those?

A. Yes.

Q. Were those work papers used by you in preparing Exhibit 163?

A. They were referred to in preparing the exhibit.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I think those likewise should be produced for our examination. I do not believe those are in evidence or marked or presented here. Is that right, counsel?

Q. (By Mr. Campbell): Those work papers purport to be summary of what?

A. Of cash receipts and disbursements for 1946.

Q. Do you have them here in the courtroom?

A. Yes, I think so.

Q. Will you produce them? Are these the work papers which you prepared?

A. Yes, sir. [1941]

Q. You have handed me two sheets, both headed "110 Eddy Street," one of which is headed "Summary of Check Disbursements Year 1946," and the other headed "Analysis of Cash Receipts and Disbursements Year 1946." I will ask you if the figures

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

hereon were taken from the records here in evidence? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: May these be stapled together? May these be marked 163A for identification?

Q. As I understand from your testimony, in compiling 163 for identification you also referred to these summaries which you drew from the book, which summaries were used in finding the net figure as set forth in your summary 163 for identification; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Avakian: I understand from Mr. Campbell, your Honor, that he is simply marking the work sheets for identification and is not going to offer them at this time.

The Court: I am sure I can't tell what his plan is.

Mr. Campbell: I plan to defer the offer of that exhibit until counsel has an opportunity to examine them.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Campbell: At this time I will renew my offer of 163 for identification.

Mr. Avakian: Now, your Honor, in view of the fact that the rule varies in different jurisdictions regarding the extent [1942] to which an expert witness may make summary, I am going to make an objection to ascertain the rule in this jurisdiction, and in making the objection I want to state frankly to your Honor that I think it is a proper order of procedure, but some courts do not agree with that, so simply for that purpose of getting a ruling from the Court, I make the objection that a summary of this kind represents the opinion and conclusions of the witness and is hearsay and is not the best evidence. I simply request your Honor's ruling on that point for my guidance.

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

The Court: The exhibit will be admitted in evidence.

Q. Mr. Harkness, let me ask you, are the figures which you have set forth here drawn exclusively from records to which you have referred, or do any of them represent your opinion or conclusions?

A. They are drawn from the records.

Q. I am going to hand you Exhibit 163 and ask you to state what the records you examined disclosed to be the net worth of 110 Eddy Street as of December 31, 1943? A. $36,074.19.

Q. And what did such records disclose to be the net worth of 110 Eddy Street as of December 31, 1944? A. $39,998.52.

Q. And what was disclosed as the net worth of 110 Eddy Street as of December 31, 1945?

A. $44,321.40. [1943]

Q. And as of December 31, 1946?

A. $33,210.35.

Q. Now you have listed on that summary the assets and liabilities as of each of those year-ending dates, 1943 to 1946, inclusive, have you not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now as to the balance in bank accounts, from what sources did you draw those figures?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

A. I used the book figures, the figures in the general ledger.

Q. And to what exhibit do you refer?

A. Exhibit 112.

Q. Now as to the cash fund, from what source did you ascertain those figures?

A. For the years 1943, 1944 and 1945 the book figures. 1946 the same figure was used as for 1945 because it was ascertained there were no changes during the year affecting that balance of receipts and disbursements.

Q. Was there any book figure as of the end of 1946 for the cash balance? A. No, sir.

Q. So I take it that you analyzed cash receipts and disbursements for the purpose of ascertaining if any entries had been made in cash receipts and disbursements which would have affected the balance of that; is that correct?

A. That is correct. [1944]

Q. It was on that basis that you used the same figure at the end of 1946 as at the end of 1945?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. As shown by the books at the end of 1945?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now as to prepaid insurance and prepaid taxes, as set forth in the summary, from what records did you draw those figures?

A. Those figures were taken from the books, Exhibit 112.

Q. Now as to the inventory, which is shown as being on hand at the end of each of the calendar years 1943 to 1946, inclusive, from what source did you obtain that figure?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

A. Those figures were obtained from the partnership return of 110 Eddy Street, Exhibits 80 to 83.

Q. In other words, they were figures set forth as partnership return of income of 110 Eddy Street?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I believe you stated that you found no inventory record among the records which you examined; is that correct?

A. Except for a portion of the year 1945.

Q. And did that include the year-end inventory?

A. I can't recall without seeing the general ledger.

Q. Will you refer to that?

A. The first entry in this account is February 28, 1945. It is carried down through November, 1945, and then there are [1945] pencil figures bringing it down to the end of the year.

Q. And does the pencil figure conincide with the inventory figure as used in the return?

A. No, it is slightly less.

Q. And you used the inventory figure that was set forth in the return? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You say slightly less; it is a matter of just a few dollars?

A. No, it is about $1600 less. I beg your pardon—1945 figure is exactly the same as shown. I was looking at 1946.

Q. Now as to 1946, did you use the figure shown in the return? A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

Q. Did the figures reflect inventory at the end of 1946? A. No, sir.

Q. Now as to furniture and fixtures as set forth in your summary, from what source did you obtain those figures?

A. 1943 the books and return agree.

Q. And that was the source of the figure?

A. Yes. 1944 the book figures were used in 1944 and also 1945.

Q. Yes?

A. 1946 the figure was used that was shown on the return.

Q. Was any figure shown in the books for 1946?

A. No, sir. [1946]

Q. So you used the figure as established in the return, income tax return of 110 Eddy Street?

A. That is right.

Q. In the absence of any book figure?

A. That's right.

Q. Now as to the liquor license, the final item of assets, what was the source of that figure?

A. 1943, 1944 and 1945 figure was used as shown on the books. 1946 the same amount was used, one thousand dollars. Cash receipts and disbursements showed no change in that figure for the year.

Q. Was there any figure on the books as the end of 1946 for liquor license? A. No, sir.

Q. And the liquor license was carried for the first three years then as shown on the books?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And there was no change as to any of those

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

years of the amount of one thousand dollars; is that correct? A. No, sir.

Q. Now as to liabilities of 110 Eddy Street, the first item is accounts payable; from what source did you obtain that?

A. That was obtained from the books, Exhibit 112.

Q. And as to the accrued sales tax?

A. From the same source. [1947]

Q. Pay roll taxes?

A. Also the same source.

Q. And accrued expenses?

A. That was also the same source.

Q. By the same source, do you refer to the books in each instance? A. Yes, Exhibit 112.

Q. An item for reservation for depreciation, from what source did you obtain that?

A. That was taken from the books and also the partnership returns filed for 110 Eddy, Exhibit 112 and also Exhibits 82 and 83.

Q. Did the books and returns coincide on the reserve? A. I will have to check that.

Q. Would you do that? A. 1943——

Q. When you say 1943, you are referring to December 31?

A. That's right; 1943 I used the book figure, $1637.

Q. Is that the same as found on the return?

A. You have to take into consideration what had been claimed prior to 1943 to get the amount of the total reserve.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

Q. I understand what you mean; in other words, a smaller figure would be used on the return for the year, but you used the accumulated figure?

A. Up to 1943. 1944 I used the book figure, $2459. End of [1948] 1945 the book figures are used, $3341, and then to arrive at the depreciation reserve for 1946 I added to the $3341 the amount claimed on the 1946 return of $1020.

Q. Did the books disclose any reserve for depreciation set up for 1946? A. No, sir.

Q. Now I had asked you also to set up on this summary what the books disclose—that is, Exhibits 112 and 112A—as capital accounts appearing in the books. Is that the schedule which immediately follows that of "Assets and Liabilities"?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now will you refer to the books and state what, if anything, the books disclose as to any capital account of Arthur Pratt?

A. There is a liability account set up on March 1, 1944.

Q. Is that capital account?

A. It is in the section general ledger under "Personal." However, it appears to be more like accounts payable account. It is closed out within the same year; set up March 1, 1944, and closed out December 31, 1944.

Q. What items appear in that account?

A. The original entry March 1, 1944, is entry originating in check disbursements of $3400, showing a debit balance of $3400. Then at the end of

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

December 31, 1944, there is another entry originating in journal of $3400, with notation "From 1943 profit," closing the account up. [1949]

Q. Now have you examined in the records the entries to which are reference first the debit as of March 1, 1944, debit of $3400, and the reference to check record in 1945? A. I have the first one.

Q. Yes?

A. Which was from check disbursements page 45, check No. 532.

Q. And how is it issued?

A. It is issued to cash and then after the word "Cash" is Mr. A. R. Pratt.

Q. What is the date? A. March 1, 1944.

Q. Yes?

A. And it is carried over charged under general ledger, with no detail, $3400.

Q. Have you also referred to the journal entry, whereby a credit of $3400 is made to the account, credit Artur R. Pratt as of December 31, 1944, capital item 1943 profits, and the journal reference J-17?

A. I do not find the journal entries in either one of these books.

Q. Did you find the journal entries at the time you examined the books? A. I do not recall.

Q. You find no journal entries in these books?

A. Not in these books—pardon me—I find the journal—— [1950]

Q. You do find it?

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I understand that was in the front part of the book.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

A. I find it. Journal entry December 31, 1944, debit to profit and loss $3400 and credit Arthur R. Pratt $3400.

Q. Did you find anywhere in those books any reference to an initial investment by Mr. Pratt of the sum of $3400?

A. I did not find it in the books.

Q. And did you find, or do you find, anywhere in that book any record of a disbursement to Arthur Pratt of $6800 by way of return of capital or purchase of his interest or distribution of profits, or a combination of any of the three?

A. I believe the $3400 is the only item.

Q. That is the only item you find in there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now in those books, in the distribution of the profits, for the year 1944, distribution of any portion of it, do you find that any portion of the profits were distributed to Arthur R. Pratt?

A. No, sir.

Q. Are the entries with regard to Arthur R. Pratt the only entries which you recall finding wherein he is mentioned? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now there are attached to this exhibit, plaintiff's 163, two schedules, Schedules 1 and 2. Will you state what they are? [1951]

A. Schedule 1 explains how the book fund in bank account was arrived at at the end of 1945. The books were not posted subsequent to October 31, 1945, so I took the balance showing in the general ledger as of that date and added the deposits as shown in cash receipts books, Exhibit 112, and deducted the check disbursements for the last two months as shown in the same exhibit, arriving at the bank balance for the books for the year of 1945, which is $6141.46.

Q. For that particular account? A. Yes.

Q. In relation to the other bank accounts, which is Schedule 2, do you have the same information?

A. Yes, the same. Arriving at the book balance the end of 1946.

Q. In other words, one schedule refers to end of 1945 and the other to the end of 1946; is that correct? A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Q. You have Exhibit 163 before you, Mr. Harkness? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I believe you stated in connection with the item, "Furniture and Fixtures," that at the end of 1945 you used the figure $13,496.39 as a figure which you found in the books? A. Yes. [1952]

Q. And then you stated that at the end of 1946 you did not find any entry in the books as of that date for furniture and fixtures account; is that right? A. That is right.

Q. Accordingly you went to the 1946 return, which showed a figure of $10,200; is that correct?

A. That is right.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

Q. Do you find in any of these books an entry as of January 1, 1946, for furniture and fixtures?

A. I do not recall that I did.

Q. I call your attention to Exhibit 112A, the page, "Furniture and Fixtures, Equipment and Buildings," and under date January 1, 1946, there is amount of $13,496.39. Had you noted that entry on that particular page of Exhibit 112A?

A. Possibly I did; I don't recall.

Q. Now there are no other entries on that page subsequent to January 1, 1946?

A. That's right; same balance at the end of each.

Q. And that would indicate, would it not, to you as an accountant, that there were no changes in that account during the year?

A. Well, possibly so, with the general ledger set-up of the books.

Q. I refer you to the partnership return of 110 Eddy Street for the year 1946, which I believe is Exhibit 83; do you have [1953] that before you?

A. Yes.

Q. By referring to schedules, the balance sheet, do you note that that likewise shows no change in the account of depreciable assets from the beginning to the end of the year 1946? A. That's right.

Q. Would that likewise indicate to you that there was no change during the year in that account? A. Yes, that's right.

Q. By using the figure of $10,200 at the end of 1946 instead of the figure $13,496.39 that is entered as the only entry on the furniture and equipment page, Exhibit 112A, you actually reduce the net worth by the difference between those figures, do you not? A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

Q. To that extent you might say that is in favor of the taxpayer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. But would you not say, Mr. Harkness, that correct accounting, in view of the absence of any further entries in the book during the year 1946, would you say correct accounting would call for the use of the bigger figure of $13,496.39?

A. That is right, if it was determined definitely there were no additions during the year.

Q. So that to that extent on that particular item, Exhibit 163 [1954] may be incorrect?

A. It could be. As I say, as to a double entry system of books——

Q. Exhibit 112A that you have before you in the red cover is not a double entry system of books, is it? A. No, sir.

Q. That is a commercially prepared form known as the Ideal System, is it not? Look at the printing on the pages in the book.

Mr. Campbell: You are referring to the book itstelf and not the entries?

Mr. Avakian: I am referring to the characterization which the publisher gives to it. I do not mean it is an ideal set of books.

Mr. Campbell: What I want to know is whether you are asking whether the entries were made pursuant to an ideal system or ideal set-up of the publisher, or whether that is simply a book which is denominated "Ideal" book? The question is confusing in that regard.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

Mr. Avakian: Let me reframe the question.

Q. You have, Mr. Harkness, in the course of making audits of various taxpayers, you have frequently encountered the use of a book published by some publisher, as the one published there, have you not? A. I do not recall.

Q. Do you note in that book in the printing the name of a [1955] publisher of the book or the name given to the book?

A. There is a notation called the "Ideal System."

Q. That is in printing, is it not? A. Yes.

Q. Not in typewriting, but in printing?

A. Printing in the book.

Q. Now I do not see in Exhibit 163 any item of prepaid rent. Did you find any such item in the books? A. For which year?

Q. Well, for any of these years that you set forth in your summary?

A. I don't recall seeing any in the books.

Q. I call your attention to the prosecution's Exhibit 112 and to the page which is entitled "Prepaid Rent," and I call your attention to the various entries, approximately eight or ten in number, made on that page. Will you look at that and tell us whether you noted that page in your work in the preparation of this exhibit?

A. Yes, I recall that now.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

Q. But you did not set it forth in the preparation of Exhibit 163? A. No.

Mr. Campbell: Just a moment—I object to that as misleading. The record speaks for itself. There is no year-end prepaid rent there.

(Question and answer read.) [1956]

The Court: He may answer the question.

Q. What is the answer?

A. I don't have the question exactly in mind.

(Last question read.)

A. No, sir.

Q. I call your attention to the item of liquor license as set forth in Exhibit 163 and the reference to the source as Exhibit 112. Would you turn to the page in Exhibit 112 which shows the amount of that asset as of December 31, 1946?

A. The only entry I find is in the general ledger for liquor license, $1000, as set up on December 31, 1942.

Q. December 31, 1942? A. Yes.

Q. You find no entries for the years ending December 31, 1943, 1944, 1945 and 1946?

A. Same balance, only one entry.

Q. There being no further entries, you then concluded the same amount would be carried forward? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Now, with respect to the item of "Cash Fund," you have the amount of $1400 at the end of 1946, and then a footnote in Exhibit 163 which states that the general ledger for 1946 receipts and disbursements show no change affecting this account during 1946. When you say "No general ledger for 1946," you mean there is no entry in the general ledger as to that item? [1957]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

A. I mean there is no general ledger as such for 1946. It is single entry.

Q. It is a single entry system of books?

A. Yes.

Q. And in a single entry system no journal ledger is kept? A. That is right.

Q. Did you refer to Exhibit 83, the 1946 tax return, to see whether there was any entry there as to the amount of cash on hand at the end of the year 1946? A. Exhibit 83 shows cash of $100.

Q. And you show $1400 in your Exhibit 163, is that correct?

A. That's right. Of course, cash shown on the balance sheet in the partnership return should also show in the bank account.

Q. Do you know whether it did or not?

A. I do not.

Q. If you had used the figure of $100 instead of the figure of $1400, the net worth at the end of 1946 would be reduced by the difference between those two figures, would it not?

A. That is true, if they were correct.

Q. Now, you said that you determined, through analysis of receipts and disbursements, that there was no change in that cash fund during the year 1946. Is it your understanding that this cash fund was currency and silver kept on the premises for use from day to day in the business?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

A. That's right. [1958]

Q. And it is possible, is it not, that that money could have been distributed in cash to the partners without showing up in cash receipts and disbursements analysis that you made?

A. Not if it was properly handled accounting-wise; it would have to show some place.

Q. You mean if all proper entries were made in the books?

A. That is right, either through journal entry or through cash disbursements.

Q. But you have already determined the bookkeepers keeping the books on these premises frequently did not make all the correct entries which they should make? A. That's right.

Q. I ask you again then, is it possibly the $1400 cash that you show on hand at the beginning of the year may have been a smaller figure at the end of the year, by reason of cash disbursements to the partners or cash disbursements in some other way, which would not be reflected in your receipts and disbursements analysis?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative and speculative, if the Court please, not within the scope of direct examination.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. It should.

Q. If proper entries were made?

A. That's right. [1959]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

Q. What I am getting at is this, Mr. Harkness, your receipts and disbursements analysis that you mention, with respect to that particular item, would not disclose whether or not any cash disbursements or distributions had been made out of that cash fund, would it? Your test on that would be some other entry in the book, rather than your cash receipts and disbursements, isn't that right?

A. That's right.

Q. You stated that—correct me if I am wrong—but I understood you to state that there was no record in the books that any portion of the 1943 profit had been distributed to Mr. Pratt, did I understand you correctly on that?

Mr. Campbell: That was not the question. The question was as to 1944 profit.

A. That is right.

Q. Then I misunderstood—there is a showing of distribution to Mr. Pratt with reference to 1943 profits?

A. Yes, the book shows that $3400 was from 1943 profits.

Q. And then you were questioned as to whether there was any record of any distribution to Mr. Pratt over and above $3400 and I believe you said there was no entry in the books?

A. None that I recall.

Q. You did, however, hear the testimony of Mr. Pratt to the effect that he had been paid an additional two thousand dollars by cancellation of an indebtedness? [1960]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

Mr. Campbell: I suggest that this is argumentative, if the Court please.

The Court: I think so. Objection sustained.

Q. Did you examine the records in evidence here which set that forth in the documents presented by Mr. Pratt?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not within the scope of examination, whether he examined exhibits produced by some other witness.

The Court: I will sustain this objection. I think it is based on testimony of Mr. Pratt.

Mr. Avakian: Based upon the documents in evidence.

The Court: Read the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: I don't understand the question myself.

Q. I call your attention to prosecution's Exhibit 160 and ask you if you have examined the three sheets which are set forth in that document?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent and immaterial and not within the scope of direct examination. Those purport to be the bill of sale, your Honor, that Mr. Pratt testified to.

The Court: This witness did not testify that this summary was made from any reference to that exhibit.

Mr. Avakian: But he did testify as to the amount paid to Mr. Pratt.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

The Court: But he testified to what he saw in the books [1961] and records.

Mr. Campbell: He did not testify to what he was paid, but he testified to what the books showed.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Were there any other records, entries, in the books with respect to this $3400 payment to Mr. Pratt? A. I found none.

Q. Do you have the other volume of Exhibit 112?

A. The general ledger, yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to Exhibit 112, record of journal entries, page 21, month of May, 1945, and I will ask you if you find on that page any entry relating to the $3400 payment to Mr. Pratt?

A. There is an adjusting entry of the year 1943, net income, in which Mr. Pratt's name shows up for $3400.

Q. What does that entry show?

A. That is debit to W. E. Kyne Trustee account and credit to Arthur R. Pratt account.

Q. And then I call your attention also to a sheet in the other volume of Exhibit 112, entitled "Account Liability," name W. E. Kyne, Trustee, and I ask you if you find an entry there with respect to the payment of $3400 to Mr. Pratt?

A. That is the other half of this same entry.

Q. So that by entries in the book the $3400 payment to Mr. Pratt was carried forward into a capital account, was it not? [1962]

A. Yes. As I said before, his account showed a credit of $3400.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

Q. And that was carried into a capital account?

A. Yes.

Q. I note from examining Exhibit 163 that there is shown as the net worth at the end of 1946, the figure of $33,210.35, and I see that the total which you have set forth for that same date as capital accounts for the books is $39,399.77, a difference of approximately six thousand dollars. Now, first of all, Mr. Harkness, would you state, as an accountant, that the net worth of a partnership business represents the capital accounts of the partners?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as speculative and argumentative and not within the scope of direct examination.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. And with proper and complete entries in a proper set of books, the total of the capital accounts of the partners would be the same figure as the net worth of the partnership, would it not?

A. That's right.

Q. In other words, the capital accounts of the partners represent the portion of the business' net worth which each partner owns?

A. That is right. [1963]

Q. Now, I note that in capital accounts you have set forth at the end of 1946, Wm. E. Kyne, Trustee account, $5985.44. Will you refer to the page in the book which shows that particular entry?

A. Yes, sir, I have it.

Q. You have shown me from the Exhibit 112 account number "Liability" an entry under what date? A. May 31, 1945.

Q. Is there any entry showing that that was the balance of the account as of December 31, 1946?

A. No, sir.

Q. That is the last entry in the account?

A. That is right.

Q. Then it was your assumption, was it not, that that continued to be the balance in that account?

Mr. Campbell: I object to the question in that form, as to assumption. The book speaks for itself. The last balance, that entry, of course, is the final balance in the account.

Mr. Avakian: I would like to be heard.

The Court: Objection is overruled.

A. That's right——

Q. That was an assumption?

Mr. Campbell: Let him finish his answer.

A. That was the last entry in the book. I found no other entries affecting that account. [1964]

Q. And so you assumed that that continued to be the balance at the end of the year?

A. Yes.

Q. So that when you stated on direct examination that the amounts shown on the particular days of December 31, 1943, 1944, 1945 and 1946 shown in Exhibit 163 were a summary of the amounts shown in the books or any other sources that you referred to for those particular dates and were not based on assumptions, you did not mean to imply that the entries in the books were made exactly on the dates that you set forth in your summary, did you?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

A. I do not exactly understand your question. You mean all the entries made on December 31st of each year?

Q. When you have listed assets in your exhibit 163 and liabilities on that date as of December 31, 1946, you did not mean to imply that in every instance there is an entry in the sources of materials which you used, showing that to be the exact figure on that exact date? A. No.

Q. To a certain extent you relied on assumptions that if no further entries were made, there were no changes?

A. I relied on the books as they appeared when I made the summary.

Q. And in the case of "Furniture and Fixtures," the last entry in the book January, 1946, $13,496.39, in that case you did not [1965] assume that that continued the same throughout the year, did you?

A. I didn't make any assumption. I used the figure on the return.

Q. But in the case of Mr. Kyne's account of $5,985.44, shown as of May 31, 1945, in that case, in view of the fact that there was no further entries on the page, you did assume that that balance continued right down to the end of 1945, and also the end of 1946, is that right?

Mr. Campbell: Object to as being a matter of assumption.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

Mr. Avakian: If he did not assume, he can state; if he did assume he can state.

The Court: Objection will be overruled.

A. As I stated, I used the figures that showed on the books.

Q. Now, would you eliminate—and I will give you a sheet of paper if you want to work this out—would you eliminate from Exhibit 163 the item as Wm. E. Kyne, trustee account, $5,985.44, as of December 31, 1946, and tell me what the total of the capital accounts would then be?

Mr. Campbell: To which I object as not proper cross-examination.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Aren't we entitled to see what the result would be if he had not made the assumption he did?

The Court: That is a matter not within the scope of [1966] direct examination. It is a matter of calculation.

Mr. Avakian: It is a matter of testing what the results would be if he had not made the assumption that he made.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Let me recall to you, Mr. Harkness, your testimony that the capital accounts of the partners of the business represent net worth of the business and should be the same figure, and let me ask you this—if you eliminated the $5,985.44 Kyne account, which I mentioned, from your 1946 capital account closing figure, would not the total of the capital accounts then be within a few dollars of the net worth shown on Exhibit 163?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative and not proper cross-examination.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I just can not cross-examine an expert witness under these theories if I am not permitted to ask him what would have happened to his computations if certain adjustments which are supported in the evidence are made. How can I cross-examine if I can't test that, your Honor. My understanding of the rules of cross-examination of experts is that you may probe as to all things which enter into their computations and to the extent that they rely on judgment or assumptions you may question to show what would have happened if they exercised their judgments and assumptions in a different direction, so long as it would likewise be within the scope of the [1967]

The Court: I think the ruling will stand.

Q. Now, under date of December 31, 1946, you have set forth certain amounts as capital accounts in the books of William E. Kyne, Frank Cavani, Thomas C. Turner, and Elmer Remmer. Will you first of all explain the manner in which you arrived at the figures that are shown in that column?

Mr. Campbell: I object to the question in that form, as to having arrived at the figures. I think the source of the figures——

Q. Where did you get them? Do you understand the question, Mr. Harkness?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

A. Am I permitted to answer?

Mr. Campbell: I think the question was amended to "Where did you get the figures."

The Court: You may answer.

A. I got the figures from the capital accounts as set forth in Exhibit 112A.

Q. And you are referring to what particular pages? A. To the last page.

Q. And I take it that you used only the last balance figure shown during the year 1946 for each partner?

A. I believe so, but I would like to check it with the exhibit.

Q. I think that is correct, but I will have you check it. A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. Now, you stated in your direct examination that you had been [1968] an Internal Revenue agent since the year 1945, and you have been assigned to the San Francisco office during all that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And prior to that you were doing accounting work in the Navy Department about five years?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then I believe you stated that you were doing accounting work for a newspaper, the Sun Company of San Bernardino?

A. That is right.

Q. You are, I take it, of course a licensed accountant? A. Yes.

Q. And a certified public accountant?

A. No.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

Q. How long have you been licensed as a public accountant?

A. Ever since the law came in, I believe in 1946 or 1947; I am not positive of that date.

Q. And you are licensed in the State of California? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you state you were assigned, with other agents, to the investigation of the returns of Mr. and Mrs. Remmer. Can you tell us the approximate date of that assignment?

A. It was about October 15, 1947.

Q. And since that time you have been working on that matter, I take it, at various times?

A. Not all the time. [1969]

Q. I say various times. You have also been working on other cases during the same period?

A. That's right.

Q. And in connection with your assignment you made an examination of the books and records of the 110 Eddy Street? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you also made examination of the tax returns of 110 Eddy, is that correct?

A. That is right.

Q. And you analyzed the books in comparison with the returns, I believe you stated, is that correct, or is that correct? A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. In making that analysis did you find that in the year 1946 the partnership return of the year 1946 for 110 Eddy actually showed more profit on the return than the books showed?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not being within

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: He stated on direct examination he examined these returns.

The Court: No, sir.

Mr. Avakian: You won't let me be heard on the matter? [1970]

Mr. Avakian: May I make an offer of proof, your Honor?

resumes the witness stand on further

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, during the noon recess, in examining Exhibit 163 for identification, which you will recall are work papers Mr. Harkness said he referred to in part in preparing 163, we noted in these work papers there is a reference for a particular item, reads "See 1945 work papers," apparently another set of work papers. We do not want to take time on that now, but we would like to request, but we would like to request the prosecution at some convenient time in the near future to see whether those work papers are likewise available here. I think that can be done at some convenient time [1971] without interrupting the proceedings.

Q. Mr. Harkness, let me hand you again for your use prosecution's Exhibit 163, together with prosecution's Exhibit 112A, and I will again call your attention to the amounts which you have listed as December 31, 1946, in the capital accounts of the partners. Did the amounts which you have listed include in them the respective partners' shares of the 1946 profit or loss of the 110 Eddy Club?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to in that form, as calling for his conclusion, unless the question is stated as shown by the books.

The Court: I think that is what you mean?

Mr. Avakian: Well, that is what I mean.

Q. From your examination of 112A and examination of 163, can you tell us whether or not the amount which you have inserted in the closing capital accounts of 1946 include an allocation of the 1946 profit or loss of partnership?

A. No, they do not.

Q. And in order correctly to set forth the capital account of a partner at the close of a year, it would be necessary, would it not, to credit or charge his account with the profit or loss for that year, as the case may be?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for conclusion and not within the scope of direct examination.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question. [1972]

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Now, did you make an analysis of any kind for the purpose of determining the amounts of the 1946 profit or loss of the 110 Eddy Club as shown in the books of that enterprise?

Mr. Campbell: I don't understand the question. May we have the question?

(Question read.)

A. I do not recall right now if I did or not.

Q. The amounts you have set forth in 163 in the capital accounts of the partners at the end of 1946 should be reduced by the respective partners' share of any loss in the year 1946, in order to correctly reflect the amount of his capital at the end of the year, should it not?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for his conclusion and not within the scope of direct examination, what the books show.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Well, you testified a moment ago, in order to correctly set forth the amount of the capital of each partner in the business at the end of the year, it would be necessary to either credit his account with his share of the profit for the year, if there was profit, or to charge his account with the amount of his share of any loss for the year, if there was a loss. Is that correct?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to—the books speak for themselves. [1973]

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. That is true, but the figures represent figures in the books.

Q. There are also figures in the books showing 1946 income and expenses, aren't there?

A. Yes.

Q. And isn't it a fact, Mr. Harkness, that you made a determination in your examination of the 1946, 110 Eddy records, that for the year 1946, Mr. Remmer, instead of having his share of gain, $4748, shown on Exhibit 83, 1946 partnership return, actually had a loss for that year, that is, his share of the loss for that year, $1740.11?

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Campbell: Objected to on the same grounds heretofore stated to the same question, and not within the scope of direct examination.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I would like to be heard on that if I may. This witness has been offered here to present a partial net worth computation, insofar as it is reflected in 110 Eddy Street Club. He has testified in order to correctly set forth the net worth, the figures which he has in his exhibit at the end of 1946 should be adjusted by Mr. Remmer's share of either profit or loss, as the case may be. The whole purpose of this exhibit is to build up step by step, and this is one of the steps, Mr. Remmer's net worth. Now, the witness has testified [1974] in order to do that accurately, you would have to subtract his share of loss, if there was a loss. Having testified to that, my question to him is, didn't he make a determination in which he found for the year 1946, Mr. Remmer's share of the loss was the amount I just read, $1740.11, and if his answer should be yes, then obviously the amount of net worth shown for Mr. Remmer in 163 should be reduced by that sum to correctly set it forth.

The Court: You may answer.

A. As I stated before, I finally determined the net profit of 110 Eddy was considerably different than shown in the return. I do not recall making a determination of the amounts shown on the return.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

We would go by the result of our audit for 110 Eddy, our final determination.

Q. Let me ask you this first, without regard to the amount, do you recall that you did, at one time, make a determination to the effect that the 1946 operations of 110 Eddy Club resulted in a loss for Mr. Remmer? A. No, sir.

Q. You did not? A. No, sir.

Q. You are quite sure of that?

A. No, sir, our final figures will show a substantial gain.

Q. Did you at any time make such determination? A. I do not recall it. [1975]

Q. Was any other agent besides yourself assigned to make a determination of the operations of 110 Eddy Club?

A. The examination was done together all the way through by Mr. Morgan and myself.

Q. Do you know whether Mr. Morgan made such a determination? A. I can't say.

Q. Did you determine at any time from your examination of the books of 110 Eddy Club, which are in evidence here, that on the basis of the information in those books, Mr. Remmer's share of the operations for the year 1946 was a loss?

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object to that as not within the scope of direct examination of this witness.

Mr. Avakian: It is in evidence that he examined the books which are the basis for 163.

The Court: You may answer the question.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

A. I do not recall that.

Q. Do you recall making any determination as to what the books, which are in evidence here, showed as to whether there was a profit or a loss, insofar as Mr. Remmer's share was concerned, for that year? A. I recall—you are speaking of 1946?

Q. That's right.

A. As I stated before, it was impossible to take off a trial balance with any degree of accuracy from these books. The only thing that was fairly complete was the cash receipts and [1976] disbursements. I couldn't say definitely if actual book profit was determined by that.

Q. You don't know whether you did or not?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Would you be able, after you are off the stand, to determine from an examination of your papers, whether you did at any time make such an analysis of the books of 110 Eddy, for the year 1946?

A. You mean showing Mr. Remmer's distribution as being a loss?

Q. That's right. In other words, are there papers in the building from which you could determine whether or not you did make such a determination?

A. Well, I would have to look at the papers.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I have this suggestion to make with respect to cross-examination. I believe there will be other agents who will make use of the exhibit which this witness has presented in connection with their own compilation, and depending upon what else it may or may not be necessary to cross-examine Mr. Harkness further, may we terminate our cross-examination with the understanding he will be available for further cross-examination?

Mr. Campbell: He will be available, of course, but I think so far as possible on matters which he has gone into on direct, the cross-examination should be concluded.

The Court: You may have further cross-examination if [1977] it appears necessary.

Mr. Avakian: Thank you. That is all.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Harkness, Mr. Avakian asked you with relation to prepaid rent and whether or not as an asset in any of the years you had shown any prepaid rent and directed your attention to a page in the ledger of 110 Eddy Street relative to prepaid rent. Now, you have stated you have seen that page in your examination. As of the end of any of the years 1943, 1944, 1945 and 1946, did there exist any outstanding prepaid rent, as disclosed by those books?

A. The books are not complete. The last entry in the book is November 29, 1945.

Q. The account was closed out at that time, was it not?

A. Well, at that time, there would be a balance of $210.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

Q. Did your examination of the cash receipts and disbursements disclose whether that had been used up prior to the end of the year?

A. No, I don't believe it showed that.

Q. So if there was any prepaid rent, it would be in amount of $210?

A. That's right. You would also have to have the complete story before the account started. It started on May 31, 1945.

Q. And the last entry is in November, 1945, is that correct? A. That's right. [1978]

Q. And from May until November, it shows monthly debits of $210, which also represented by checks prepayment of rent, and then a counter-credit entry on the first of each month following, crediting $210, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. That would indicate what in regard to this prepaid rent?

A. Well, at the end of any one month the prepaid rent was set up and then it was closed out the following month when the rent was paid.

Q. Will you examine the dates and state what the account indicates as to the custom of paying the rent for the following month?

Mr. Avakian: If the books do show the custom. If it is going to be a conclusion——

Q. Let us take the first entry. The first entry shows debit on May 31st of $210, does it not?

A. That's right.

Q. And there is a credit on June 1st, $210?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lynn Harkness.)

A. That is correct, both from the journal entry.

Q. And the next debit is check issued June 30th for $210, which becomes the proportionate rent on that date? A. Right.

Q. And on July 1st that is credited by journal entry and the account checks out?

A. Correct. [1979]

Q. And the same thing occurs in each month thereafter, does it not? A. That is right.

Q. And payment of rent is made on the last day of the month and shows proportionate rent and then it is credited out as rent paid on the first day of the following month? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, with regard to Exhibit 163, I believe at the time this was marked for identification you pointed out to counsel where by error you had incorrectly carried over the figure of one of the income tax returns, is that correct?

A. That is right, profit figure.

Q. That is profit for 1945 as shown by the return, and that was pointed out to counsel yesterday afternoon? A. Yes.

Q. Will you correct that figure?

A. Could I have Exhibit 82. Do I understand I have permission to change it?

Q. Yes, if you will write that on the face of the exhibit, the figure that was pointed out yesterday. I think there is no objection.

Mr. Avakian: That is agreeable to have him change that.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Campbell: Makes just a dollar difference, I think.

Mr. Avakian: $1.02.

Mr. Campbell: That is right. [1980]

Mr. Avakian: I do not know whether I made myself clear. We would like to ask, through the Court, that this witness search his files to see if he did make determination I mentioned to him at any time.

The Court: That is all this witness is required at this time?

Mr. Avakian: At this time.

The Court: You may be excused.

LOUIS H. MOOSER, JR.

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Will you state your name?

A. Louis H. Mooser, Jr.

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Mooser?

A. 6815 California Street, San Francisco.

Q. What is your business or occupation, Mr. Mooser?

A. I am Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue for the Northern District of California.

Q. Where is your posted duty?

A. San Francisco.

Q. How long have you been a deputy collector?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

A. About 15 years.

Q. To what branch or division of the Collector's office are you assigned?

A. As a Deputy Collector to investigate general taxes. [1981]

Q. Are you in what is known as the field division? A. Field division, yes.

Q. And as a deputy collector, your primary duty is that of collecting taxes, is that right?

A. Yes, delinquent taxes.

Q. Now, during the year 1944, did you have occasion, pursuant to your duties and under instruction of your superiors, to be making what is known as a spot check on Eddy Street in San Francisco? A. Yes.

Q. What is meant by spot check?

Mr. Gillen: We offer the objection they are leading and suggestive questions.

Mr. Campbell: It is a preliminary question.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

Q. What is meant by a spot check?

A. Spot check means taking every taxpayer and making inquiry regarding all federal taxes, as to whether the proper returns have been filed and proper taxes paid upon them.

Q. In 1944 were you assigned to make such a check of some portion of Eddy Street in San Francisco? A. Yes.

Q. Generally speaking, what was the area in which you made such a check?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

A. Between Mason, four square blocks, around Mason and Eddy [1982] Streets.

Q. And did that include the block in which is located the address known as 186 Eddy Street?

A. Yes, it did.

Q. In what month or months were you making this so-called spot check, where you were checking each taxpayer within that area?

Mr. Gillen: He didn't give the area, he didn't say which direction.

Q. Well, will you give the particular blocks, your best recollection?

A. Well, it was down Eddy from Mason to Powell and up and over to Ellis and down to Mason again on that block.

Q. That square block, and I ask you if that area which you were covering included the address known as 186 Eddy Street? A. Yes, it did.

Q. In what month or months were you conducting that particular survey?

A. April and May of 1944.

Q. Now, in the course of your survey, spot check, did you conduct any investigation on the premises known as 186 Eddy Street?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And do you recall when that was?

A. The first time that I visited the establishment was on May 1, 1944. [1983]

Q. And had you ever been on those premises before that time? A. No.

Q. Had you been directed by anyone to go

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

specifically to those premises, or did they simply fall within the area in which you were making this investigation?

A. They fell within the area, but I was also further directed to go——

Mr. Avakian: If this is going to be hearsay, I would like to have the foundation laid to see if it is admissible.

The Court: I don't recognize it as hearsay.

Mr. Avakian: I thought he was starting to give——

The Court: Read the answer.

Mr. Campbell: We will stop at "it fell within the area."

Mr. Avakian: May the rest be stricken?

The Court: It may go out.

Mr. Campbell: I have no objection.

Q. Now, you say that was about May 1st?

A. 1944.

Q. Let me ask you this, after your first visit to those premises on May 1, 1944, did you have further visits to those premises? A. Oh, yes.

Q. And extending over what period of time?

A. Over the entire month of May, 1944.

Q. And at the end of May, 1944, was that your last visit there? [1984]

A. Yes, that I can recall.

Q. Now, at the time you entered the premises at 186 Eddy Street, will you describe the premises that you physically saw, the physical appearance of the premises?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

A. Immediately to the right of the entrance was a cigar stand and there was a barricade or rather a door——

Q. A partition?

A. Partition, yes, with door on the end and door at the right going into the rear room, as I recall it.

Q. Did you enter the rear room? A. Yes.

Q. Will you describe the premises?

A. Well, there were card tables there.

Q. Do you recall approximately how many?

A. To the best of my recollection at that time I think there were about thirteen.

Q. Now, on the occasion of your first visit there who, if anyone, did you meet and have any discussions with without relating the conversation? Who did you meet there? A. Mr. Busterna.

Q. Do you refer to Bert Busterna?

A. Yes.

Q. And during the course of your investigations there who, if anyone, in addition to Mr. Busterna, did you meet with or have discussions with concerning the operations of that establishment? [1985]

A. Mr. Slater, one of the bookkeepers, and Mr. Willis Kyne.

Q. How was he known?

A. He was known as Willie, but as I had it, it was Willis. That is all at that time.

Q. Now, as a result of your going there on the first occasion, were you shown any tax returns purporting to be tax returns filed by the 186 Club?

A. No, I was referred to Mr. Slater.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

Q. Well, as the result of reference to Mr. Slater, were you shown any returns or copies of returns?

A. Yes, he showed me the corporate tax returns, then known as Victory tax return, and social security return and the partnership return, as well as the corporation return, covering a portion of the period.

Q. Whose return did the corporation return purport to be? A. For the 186 Club.

Q. Did you subsequently ascertain that that was the return of the operators at the time you examined the club, or by some prior operators?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. This was return prepared by the previous owners of the stock of the corporation, or owners of the club, which purported to show the operations of the club up to the time of its transfer to the new owners. [1986]

Q. You say you were shown a copy of the partnership return?

A. It wasn't a copy, it was the original.

Q. What was the date that you saw that?

A. The first few days of May. I wouldn't say exactly the date.

Q. Did you take that return away with you?

A. No, I did not.

Q. I am going to show you defendant's Exhibit "P," purporting to be partnership return for income of 1943 of the 186 Club filed with the collector April 15, 1944, and ask you if you have seen that document?

A. I don't think so. May I clarify my answer to another question? When I said I had seen the original, I was referring to the corporation return and not to this.

Q. You saw an original return?

A. Yes, an original of the corporation, which never had been filed. I saw a copy of this.

Q. You saw a copy of this defendant's Exhibit "P"? A. Yes.

Q. And you were also shown, as I understand you, the original of the corporation return which had not been filed? A. That is correct.

Q. Did you make a copy of that return?

A. I believe so.

Q. Do you know where that is? [1987]

A. No, I do not.

Q. Now, at the time you were shown these returns, I will ask you whether or not you requested to see the books and records of the 186 Club?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Will you state what, if anything, you were shown?

A. Exclusive of the employment record, I saw a book of the win and loss book prepared by the day. I mean, it would show at the end of each period—I believe the club was open 24 hours a day and they had shifts—at the end of each shift an entry would be made whether a loss or gain at the end of the shift.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

Q. Just a single figure at the end of each shift, loss or gain?

A. As I recall one figure, either win or lose.

Q. And you say exclusive of pay roll records. Did you see pay roll records there?

A. Yes, I saw the complete pay roll record at Mr. Slater's office.

Q. In what form were they kept?

A. They were kept in pretty good shape, in regular employment record, pay roll record form.

Q. Did they appear to be a full and complete record?

A. I afterward got a copy of it and questioned each and every item. I think there were 150 odd employees.

Q. And you found this to be reasonably accurate? A. Yes. [1988]

Mr. Gillen: He said he found it in good shape.

Mr. Campbell: Good shape and reasonably accurate.

Mr. Gillen: I don't think so.

Mr. Avakian: I object to the word "reasonably." It calls for conclusion and opinion.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Gillen: He misquoted the record.

The Court: I wouldn't say it is misquoting the record.

Mr. Gillen: That is not what the witness said. The witness didn't say reasonably accurate at all.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. Aside from the book which you described

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

as containing a win or lose figure for each shift, did you see any other records?

A. Only the records of the current day of each cashier. I asked to see those.

Q. And in what form were they kept?

A. They were in the form of a slip, a sheet, which would show the total of the operation during that particular man's shift.

Q. May I ask you, in making your inquiries and such examination as you made there, were you examining with relation to some specific tax period?

A. Well, with regard to the withholding and social security tax.

Q. As to all the taxes?

A. As to all the taxes, whenever they should have been filed [1989] up to that time.

Q. Up to the time of your investigation?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, you say you saw these daily sheets. Do you recall what they were called? Was there any name to the sheets? A. That I can't say.

Q. And you say current sheets?

A. Well, I mean for that shift when I was there.

Q. Did you see any for the period prior to the occasion of your being there?

A. For a couple of days prior.

Q. Did you inquire as to records back beyond that? A. I was told that they were destroyed.

Q. Did you ever see any for a period back before that? A. No.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

Q. Did you inquire whether or not there were other records maintained other than the pay roll record and this book showing win and lose that you have referred to? A. Yes, I did inquire.

Mr. Avakian: May we have the names of the persons these conversations took place with so we may know?

Mr. Campbell: Very well.

Q. Of whom did you make these inquiries?

A. Of Mr. Slater and Mr. Kyne.

Q. Did you ever receive any additional [1990] records? A. No, I did not.

Q. Mr. Mooser, did you then attempt in any manner to ascertain the daily income of the 186 Club? A. Yes.

Q. And in what manner did you do so?

A. Well——

Q. Just the method that was used?

A. By comparing the slips and totalling the wins and the losses of the slips for a given period. I compared those with the amounts entered in the book.

Q. For what period of time did you do that?

A. That was just for the immediate period of time I was there, not going back more than two days.

Q. As I understood you, records were not available prior to one or two days before you went in there? A. That is right.

Q. When was this comparison made, that is to say, did you make it daily or in what manner?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

A. The first comparison I made was immediately and while I was there and it was because of the discrepancy I found there that I compared further.

Q. On the first occasion that you went there, did you make a comparison between the book you referred to and the cashier's sheets that were available? A. Yes, I did. [1991]

Q. And compared one against the other?

A. Yes.

Q. And state what you found with relation to the book you saw as reflecting fully and correctly the amounts shown on the daily sheets.

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment—objected to as calling for opinion and conclusion of the witness and also on the ground that the record of any findings that he made would itself be the best evidence of this, bearing in mind this is a matter that goes back several years. Unless a foundation is laid by showing no record was made, we object to testimony in this form.

The Court: Let me have the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. I found that in no case did the amounts totalled upon the sheets agree with the amounts entered upon the books.

Q. Which was higher and which was lower?

A. Well, I found them both ways.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

Q. Now, as a result, will you state whether or not you found any relationship or correlation, based upon your examination, between the daily sheets and the book which purported to record the wins and losses for each day?

Mr. Avakian: We object as calling for speculation, opinion and conclusion. He testified the discrepancies were both ways and as to whether there was any correlation is purely [1992] a matter of conclusion.

The Court: The objection will be sustained.

Q. Did you take that book away with you?

A. No, I did not.

Q. And when was the last time you saw it?

A. I don't think that I had occasion to look at the book again after probably the third visit. It could have been about the third or fourth of May.

Q. Where was it when you last saw it?

A. In the possession of Mr. Kyne.

Q. And you have not seen it since?

A. Or Mr. Busterna.

Q. Have you seen it since that time?

A. No, I never have.

Q. Will you state for the period of the few days that you examined, that is on your initial visit, where you compared the book and the daily sheet, if the sum total of the daily sheets was more or less than that shown in the book?

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment—I object on the ground it is calling for opinion and conclusion and there has been no foundation laid by way of showing that there is no memorandum or report which would set forth this matter accurately. I object to the use of a seven-year-old recollection when there probably must have been a report made.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question. [1993]

A. The slips showed more than was entered in the books.

Q. Now, after you made that determination, or after you found that, what then did you do, or what method of examination did you then follow, for the purpose of determining income?

A. I made a study of the slips over a period, beginning, I believe, May 16th and ending May 28th, so as to strike an average.

Q. And during that period of time did you visit the premises daily? A. Yes.

Q. Just describe what you did there.

Q. Well, I would go and pick up the slips for each day——

Q. From whom would you pick those up?

A. From whoever was in charge, mostly from Mr. Busterna, and I made a chart.

Q. As to the wins and losses for each shift.

A. That's right.

Q. And was that charge made at the time you were making that examination? A. Yes.

Q. And do you have that chart with you?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. Will you produce it. You have handed me a large sheet headed, "186 Club, San Francisco,"

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

and I will ask you if this is the charge to which you refer? [1994] A. Yes, it is.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask to have this marked for identification as plaintiff's 166 for identification.

Q. Now, for the further purpose of identification, Mr. Mooser, I call your attention first to the columns appearing at the top of the page, there are indicated certain dates. Are those the dates upon which you made the examination? A. Yes.

Q. And there are under each day two columns, one headed "Win" and one headed "Lose," under which appear various figures. Where did you obtain those figures?

A. From the cashier's ticket, I believe they call it.

Mr. Avakian: Since the examination is going into the contents and this is marked simply for identification, I wonder if we may examine it?

Mr. Campbell: I shall further identify it to assist you in examination.

The Court: You may proceed.

Q. I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibits 110 to 110F, and ask you if you, in the course of your examination, saw this type of sheet?

A. My recollection is that they were much the same type of material, but on a much smaller sheet at that time.

Q. A smaller sheet? A. Yes. [1995]

Q. At any rate, those figures, as I understand it, were obtained from the sheets which you obtained from the cashier, is that correct?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

A. Yes.

Q. And I notice there are here 7 days and below are some 5 days. Do I understand this was the period upon which you gathered this material?

A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: It will take a little time to examine this.

The Court: We will take a recess.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Mooser, referring to 166 for identification, you have identified this, have you not, as the chart which you prepared during the 10 days or two weeks that you were on the premises on the dates indicated in May of 1944? A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: This will be offered in evidence, government's 166. [1996]

Mr. Avakian: Now, we again, only for the purpose of ascertaining the ruling in this jurisdiction, object to it on the ground it represents a conclusion and not proper evidentiary material and no foundation laid. As I said earlier, it is simply for the purpose of determining what rules should be followed.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

The Court: The exhibit will be admitted in evidence, No. 166.

Q. Now, Mr. Mooser, in computing this chart, what did you find to be the average of the wins per day?

A. Eighty dollars a day was the figure determined to be a fair average.

Q. What was the actual average of the period?

A. Well, the average——

Mr. Avakian: Objected to—just asked and answered.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. The actual average for the period was about $98.

Q. And when you say $80 per day, how did you arrive at that figure?

A. Because the last week was a short week and business was much better in 1944 than it was in 1943, and therefore I made that distinction so as to reduce it to the actual figure for the previous months. In other words, business was getting better as time was going on.

Q. You were attempting to ascertain some kind of an average for 1943? [1997]

A. That's right, for the fiscal year 1943-1944, and I took into account the fact that the business was improving in that line of business between '43

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

and '44, and since this was to go back to '43, I adjusted it downward so as to reach a figure of $80.

Q. Now when you completed that examination in May of 1944, did you then pick up, Mr. Mooser, a corporation income and declared excess profits tax return of the 186 Club for the period July 1, 1942, to June 30, 1943? A. I did.

Q. I am going to show you defendant's Exhibit "J," and ask you if that is the return which you picked up? A. Yes, it is.

Q. And is that your signature as attesting deputy collector? A. Correct.

Q. I notice this is dated the 31st day of May, 1944, is that the date upon which you received it?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you recall upon what basis the gross receipts and the gross profits were arrived at in that return, if you know? A. Yes, I do know.

Q. And in what manner?

A. That could be divided into two sections, my answer. First of all I found a form 1120 covering the corporation's activities [1998] prior to the acquisition by the Remmer interests, and inasmuch as we were filing a corporation return on the fiscal year basis, the only figures that I had to include in this return were those that I found on the partially completed corporation return which was left on the premises when the former controller of the corporation, Silverman, left. I just took those figures and combined them with the figures that I took from the second part, which is based on the $80 a day for 122 days, if my memory serves me, for the balance of the fiscal year, which then gave me a gross income of $12,768 gross. I then used only the expenses that were shown on the original return, for the reason that the figures that I used in the $80 a day business were net figures, so I added the total amount of the $80 a day for the 122 days to the amount that appeared on the original return, which computed would be the tax.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

Q. Those are the figures that are set forth in this return, upon which you have acknowledged the signature of Bert Busterna and William E. Kyne, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. After this corporation return was filed, Mr. Mooser, did the Collector's office then have further jurisdiction, so far as auditing of the return was concerned?

A. No, our jurisdiction ended there.

Q. Corporation returns, as a matter of law and regulation, are audited and handled by revenue agent's office, is that correct? [1999]

A. Except where we find a delinquent return.

Q. Where you pick up a delinquent return?

A. That is right.

Q. But I mean so far as the office is concerned?

A. That's right.

Q. Now, I direct your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 87A for the fiscal year July 1, 1943, to June 30, 1944, and I direct your attention to the signature of the attesting deputy collector as to the corporate signatures and also of Mr. Slater, the accountant, preparing the return, and ask you if that is your signature? A. Yes, it is.

Q. Do you recall the circumstances—answer this yes or no—under which you affixed your signature there? A. Yes.

Q. Where did that take place?

A. In the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue in San Francisco.

Q. Can you state upon what date?

A. On the 15th of November, 1944.

Q. That is the date upon which this document is acknowledged, is that correct? A. Right.

Q. And do you recall who was present on that occasion?

A. Mr. Kyne and Mr. Slater. [2000]

Q. Was Mr. Busterna present, if you recall?

A. No, he was not. Nor were the other——

Q. I mean Mr. Casselini—it was Casselini's signature. A. No, he was not present.

Q. As a deputy collector, do you have instructions relative to attesting the signatures of corporate officers on returns? A. Yes——

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment—it has been answered.

A. Yes.

Q. What are your instructions about that?

Mr. Avakian: The instructions themselves are the best evidence. The Collector's manual on that should be produced so we can see what the instructions are.

The Court: He may answer the question.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

A. We were directed to attest one signature on a corporate return.

Q. If one of the officers appeared before you?

A. Yes.

Q. Now at the time you attested this, did you make any examination of the return?

A. None whatsoever.

Q. At the time you attested these signatures, did you then retain the return?

A. No, I did not.

Q. What, if anything, was done with it, if you know? [2001]

A. It was taken away by the taxpayer.

Q. I call your attention particularly to typewritten Schedule 1 and ask you if you observed that at the time, at the time you attested the return?

A. No, I did not. I made no examination of the return whatsoever.

Q. Was this Schedule 1 subsequently called to your attention by any one? A. Yes, it was.

Q. When, to the best of your recollection?

A. To the best of my recollection some time after it was filed, probably the middle of 1944.

Q. I call your attention to the filing date, November 15th.

A. Well, at any rate some time after it was filed.

Q. By whom was it called to your attention?

A. By my superior officer.

Q. Who was that? A. Mr. John Boland.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

Q. Who was then the Assistant Chief Field Deputy? A. That's right.

Q. Now at the time you made your examination and investigation there, did you give any one instructions or directions as to the keeping of books and records? A. Yes, I did.

Q. And to whom did you convey that? [2002]

A. Mr. Kyne.

Q. Do you recall when that was?

A. Well, I repeatedly made the same request of him that in the future correct records should be kept, books of account should be kept, so as to determine the tax liability.

Q. After the termination of your investigation you made during the course of 1944, did you have anything whatsoever to do with investigating the affairs of income tax returns of the 186 Club?

A. None whatsoever.

Q. You had nothing further to do with the matter?

A. May I also say I made that admonition in writing by giving them a copy of the letter which was letter of transmittal of the return and the copy of that letter was given to Mr. Kyne, in which the last paragraph admonishes about keeping proper records.

Mr. Avakian: May we have this letter, rather than a recitation?

Q. You say you delivered that to Mr. Kyne?

A. I did.

Q. Do you have a copy of it?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

A. I have my original draft of it.

Q. Your original work copy of the letter?

A. Yes.

Q. Will you produce that. I notice this is in pencil. Was [2003] this typed up?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. And a typed copy given to Mr. Kyne?

A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask that this be stapled together and marked 168 for identification.

Q. Mr. Mooser, is this your original report?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. May I ask you as to the copy which was delivered to Mr. Kyne, was it an exact typewritten copy of this document? A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: This will be offered in evidence, 167.

Mr. Avakian: No objection.

The Court: Admitted in evidence, 167.

Mr. Campbell: At this time I will read this document, government's Exhibit 167, dated May 30, 1944.

(Reads Exhibit 167.)

Q. Mr. Mooser, I believe you stated that you made this investigation as a part of a spot check which you were conducting in a certain area in San Francisco, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And I believe you stated that the area began at the corner [2004] of what, Eddy and Mason?

A. Yes.

Q. And then it ran down Eddy to Powell?

A. Yes.

Q. And then up Powell to Ellis, is that right?

A. Yes. May I refer to my notes? In fact, I have a map.

Q. Yes.

A. Northeast corner Turk and Leavenworth, took another block, Jones down to Eddy, Taylor down to Mason and down Mason to Eddy, over Eddy to Taylor and Eddy to Grove and back over to Leavenworth Street.

Q. In connection with prosecution's Exhibit 167, which is the handwritten report addressed to John J. Boland, Assistant Chief Field Deputy, San Francisco, I note that you made the statement as follows: "The delinquency in filing the endorsed return was occasioned by the fact that the operators of this club were advised by their attorney to file as co-partnership and this was done." Did you, in the course of your examination, discuss this matter with the attorney of this enterprise?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And that was Mr. John Taffe, was it?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. And he is now deceased? A. Correct.

Q. And you had discussion with him on this matter whether [2005] this enterprise should file as a partnership or corporation? A. Yes, I did.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

Q. And it was his opinion, was it not, it should file as a partnership? A. No, it was not.

Q. I thought you said here they were advised by their attorney to file as a co-partnership and this was done, is that correct?

A. May I explain?

Q. Yes.

A. When the matter was broached to Mr. Taffe regarding filing of the matter as a corporation, he said he felt he was between the devil and the deep blue sea and I said "Why"? He said, "Well, I concluded filing as a co-partnership would be the lesser of the two evils for this reason, by filing as a co-partnership releases of any risk getting in wrong with the corporation, and inasmuch as the corporation had been filed, and probably should be filed, if we filed as a corporation, we would then put ourselves in the position of being attacked by all card-carrying members of this corporation, the 186 Club, any one of which might come in and bring suit against the club or otherwise attack any profits that might be there."

Q. And you told him that in your opinion a corporate return should be filed?

A. Yes, and he agreed with me and I showed him the reasons.

Q. You stated you discussed this matter with various people. [2006] Did you name everybody that you had discussed this investigation with, or are there other people with whom you discussed it?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

Mr. Campbell: May we have the question?

(Question read.)

Mr. Avakian: I will reframe it.

Q. Do you recall discussing the results of your examination with Revenue agent by the name of Sol Ezralow?

A. Yes, he called me up one time.

Q. And you discussed with him, did you not, this question of whether the 186 Club should file as a partnership rather than a corporation?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. During the time you were making your investigation you do have a recollection of the conversation, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Without telling me what the details of the conversations were, did they include the matter of whether the 186 Club should file tax returns as partnership or corporation?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Well, isn't it a fact that Mr. Ezralow told you he thought it should file as a partnership?

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute—that is objected to.

The Court: Objection sustained. That is the third time [2007] it has been ruled upon.

Q. Now you also said in this report to Mr. Boland, plaintiff's Exhibit 167, that in preparing the return you included in the income for a period of eight months prior to the time that the new owners took over the enterprise. Do you recall that?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

A. Yes.

Q. And I believe in your testimony you referred to the new owners as the Remmer interests, that was your understanding of it? A. Yes.

Q. And you knew at that time, did you not, that the 186 Club had already filed a partnership return of income for the year 1943? A. Yes.

Q. And you knew, did you not, that in picking up, as you phrase it, a corporate return for the year ending June 30, 1943, you were including in the income in that return the income for this business which had been reported on the partnership return for the period from March 1, 1943, to June 30, 1943? A. Yes.

Q. And you also knew that you were including in this corporate return income for the eight months preceding the time that the Remmer interests acquired the business, is that right? A. Yes.

Q. You stated that you talked to one Bert Busterna at the 186 [2008] Club. Was he the manager of the card room?

A. As I understand it, yes.

Q. And do you know what Mr. Kyne's capacity or connection with the club was?

A. Well, I would say he had the over-all management.

Q. During the time you were on the premises making your examination, was he present in the active management?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

A. No, I don't think he actually worked on the floor. As I say, I believe he was on an over-all basis.

Q. He was an executive? A. Yes.

Q. And Mr. Slater was a public accountant, was he not? A. Yes, he was.

Q. And he had charge of keeping the records, is that correct?

A. He had charge of the pay roll records.

Q. And he had prepared the 1943 partnership return, of which you say you saw a copy at the time? A. Yes.

Q. Now were your discussions about this carried on with all three of these people I have named?

A. With Mr. Kyne and Mr. Slater. Mr. Busterna didn't know much about what was going on.

Q. You are quite sure that you did talk to some extent to Mr. Busterna?

A. Just simply to pick up the slips and such as that. I never [2009] discussed the matter of the liability of the club or anything like that, because, as I say, he just didn't know.

Q. Did you identify yourself to Mr. Busterna?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. Would it change your testimony at all if I told you when the prosecution called Mr. Busterna as a witness in this matter his recollection was he had never met or talked to you?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as improper cross-examination.

The Court: He may answer the question.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

A. Oh, that isn't so.

Mr. Avakian: I will take your word for it. I just want to make sure that you are sure.

Q. On prosecution's Exhibit 166, which you presented here as a chart of the analysis you made, I note two separate summaries for the date of May 18th, one of which is designated as "Corrected." Could you explain those two summaries for me?

A. I do not recall at the present time why I corrected that, but I know that there were corrections made on the slips and due entirely to Mr. Kyne's request I made these corrections. In other words, I believe that in going over the slips as I would pick them up, there would be various changes made in the final outcome, so that he gave me the corrected slips.

Q. Were both of those made by you at the same time, May 18th summaries? [2010]

Mr. Campbell: You mean simultaneously?

Q. On the same occasion?

A. I don't understand.

Q. Well, I noted that across the top of this exhibit you have written in ink a summary for May 16th, then May 17th, and continuing across to the right of the page May 18, May 19, May 21, May 21, May 22 and May 23 and at the foot of each of those summaries there is in ink total wins and lose for each day. Then I notice still below that for May 18 there is a summary entitled "May 18 Corrected" and that is in pencil. Is that also in your handwriting?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

A. Yes. Let me try to explain. If you will note, the totals for the first eight days was pretty high. Mr. Kyne objected to it as not being a fair picture. I said, "All right, Mr. Kyne, we will go and look further." We went a little further and you will notice by having gone further it brought the average down considerably.

Q. My question relates to this column "May 18 Corrected" and my question is, was that summary of May 18th prepared by you on the same occasion that you prepared the other May 18th summary above?

A. No. That was not done until after this was done and all of it was done together but at that time you see the variation is very small. Now in this case there was quite a little difference. [2011]

Q. You are referring now to a corrected summary for May 20th? A. That is right.

Q. And that likewise is different from the original summary you made for May 20th, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Now let us refer first to the income summaries which are the ones on the upper portion of this sheet for those two days. From what data was that information entered on the sheet?

A. From the slips of my summary from the cashier.

Q. Which you picked up?

A. I picked up myself.

Q. Now with respect to corrected May 18th

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

section, that was prepared, you say, at some later time? A. That is right.

Q. And from what data or source were entries in that pencilled summary of May 18th obtained?

A. From data supplied to me by Mr. Kyne.

Q. What do you mean by data?

A. As I told you, one slip from a cashier might show a win of say $30 and for some reason or other it developed it should have been $30 or the recapitulation showed something else. You will notice where you brought those in, they were always in his favor.

Q. Well, you prepared the sheet, did you not?

A. I am telling you the source and I took them because I [2012] thought they were correct.

Q. You felt they were correct?

A. Oh, absolutely. He was cooperating in every way.

Q. You had no difficulty in obtaining information? A. None whatsoever.

Q. And likewise from Mr. Slater?

A. Correct.

Q. In the lower portion you have taken a period May 21, 25, 26, 29 and 30, is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And you have set forth information there which you likewise obtained from the cashier's sheets? A. Correct.

Q. And for the average for that week was less than the average for the first period; is that correct?

A. Right.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

Q. Do you notice the amount by which that averaged?

A. $118 was the first one, $77.30 the second, so that the total average was brought down.

Q. Now this average that you compiled was based on win and lose figures of the poker sheets, is that correct, the cashier's sheets? A. Yes.

Q. And do you recall at this time what those cashier's sheets contained as to type of information? [2013]

A. Yes, they contained the amount of money that the cashier was given to start the day and how much he turned back, how much money was given players with which to play and how much was returned to him and up in the right-hand corner there was always a large amount of money that represented amounts that players owed the establishment.

Q. That section of the poker sheet, the amount of money that players owed, was not entered into win or lose computation?

A. I never took that into consideration at all.

Q. I show you prosecution's Exhibit 110, I believe Mr. Campbell also handed to you. I believe you stated your recollection was that sheet was smaller but the type of information was the same. Will you examine that and see whether that is your recollection?

A. I would say it was substantially the same.

Q. Now in computing the amount of the net

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

income of the 186 Club, did you make any allowances for rent paid for the premises?

A. Yes.

Q. And how did you make that allowance?

A. Well, that was paid by cash. All of their payments of expenses were deducted on their sheets.

Q. Did that enter into the win and lose figures?

A. Yes.

Q. Isn't it a fact that the rent of the 186 Club was paid by check?

A. I don't think so. [2014]

Q. Did you make an examination to determine that?

A. I can say this, nothing was paid by check. It was always cash.

Q. Did you determine how the rent was paid?

A. By cash, and everything else was paid by cash.

Q. For those particular days that you took as your sample, the days in May which I have read, was any rent paid on those particular days, if you recall? A. I can't recall.

Q. If your computations here did not include any rent payments, then to that extent they would not correctly reflect the net income of the place, isn't that correct? A. That's true.

Q. Do you know how the utilities for the place were paid? A. Yes.

Q. How were they paid? A. In cash.

Q. How did you determine that?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

A. Because they were written right on the slips.

Q. On the poker sheets? A. Tickets, yes.

Q. And how did that enter into win or lose computation, do you recall?

A. Well, the win or lose was the amount of money that the cashiers turned in and the amount showed as win or lose was [2015] after all those expenses had been paid.

Q. And do you know whether on these particular days in May that you used as your sample there were any actual utility payments?

Mr. Campbell: I suggest that the record is the best evidence of that.

Q. Will you refer to the exhibit sheet and state whether in the days in May you find any utility payments?

A. There is nothing here that would show that.

Q. And if there were any utility payments on those particular days, then again your computation of net income would be erroneous, would it not?

A. But it is not.

Q. I say if there were any payments made on those days, it would be erroneous?

A. But all payments came out of there. Anything they paid came out of that money. I discussed that with Mr. Kyne regarding these expenses.

Q. You computed the net income by taking the net win and lose on these selected days in May, is that right? A. That is right.

Q. And your computation was based entirely on what happened on those days?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

A. That is correct.

Q. So if on those days they had not paid any utility payments, [2016] then your computation would be erroneous, insofar as computing net income——

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as asked and answered three times.

Mr. Avakian: Asked but not answered, your Honor.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. You do not know at this time whether or not there were any utilities payments shown on these particular days?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection.

The Court: Same ruling.

Q. In making the computation which is reflected in prosecution's Exhibit 166, can you tell us whether or not at that time the 186 Club was paying any salaries to officers?

A. It was not, as I determined.

Q. As a matter of fact, the operators of the enterprise up to that time had been going on the theory it was a partnership rather than a corporation?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for his conclusion.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Well, didn't you state in your report, Exhibit 167, that a partnership return had been filed on the advice of counsel?

Mr. Campbell: I will stipulate that is there.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

Q. Now to the extent that the 186 Club may have paid salaries to officers, your computation of net income as reflected in Exhibit 166 would be incorrect, would it not? [2017]

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative, speculative and not within the scope of direct examination.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, it is within the scope of direct examination because this has been presented——

The Court: The objection has been sustained.

Mr. Avakian: And you won't hear me?

The Court: No.

Q. Mr. Mooser, the 186 Club was located in the back part of certain premises in which in the front part was an operation known as the Day-Night Cigar Store, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And the entrance to the 186 Club was through the cigar store? A. Yes.

Q. Isn't it a fact there was a single lease on those two premises? A. I don't recall.

Q. Did you ever see the lease? A. No.

Q. Did you examine the books of the Day-Night Cigar Store to determine whether the entire rent on the combined premises was being paid through the Day-Night Cigar Store?

A. I do not recall whether I did or not. I do not think so.

Q. I call your attention to prosecution's Exhibit 117, which [2018] is one of the books of account of the Day-Night Cigar Store, and particularly to an account in that book of the Day-Night Cigar Store entitled "186 Club," on which there is shown on December 31, 1943, a charge against the 186 Club in the amount of $1500 as rent. Will you examine that? Does that refresh your recollection that the rent for the 186 Club proportionate premises was paid by the Day-Night Cigar Store and was charged on the books against the 186 Club?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

A. The only thing, this comes in the period prior to the time you are speaking of.

Q. You were making an examination over what period?

A. This goes for the period in which the Silverman interests held forth and there was no information whatsoever concerning this or any other figure and the figures that were taken were those found in the corporation returns, so this would not mean anything.

Q. The Silverman interests terminated February 28, 1943? A. That is correct.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that the entry I spoke to you about is December 31, 1943. Do you notice that?

A. But this actually covers all that money for that period.

Q. Do you notice it is December 31, 1943?

A. Yes.

Q. And that is within the period for which you were making your examination? [2019]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

Mr. Campbell: Do you mean the entry in the book or what is behind the entry?

Mr. Avakian: I do not know what is behind the entry. I am telling what the entry in the book is, December 31, 1943, rent charges against 186 Club, $1500.

The Court: What is your question?

Mr. Avakian: I do not think I put the question yet, your Honor; Mr. Campbell interrupted.

Q. This date, December 31, 1943, was within the period for which you made your examination?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. Do you understand the question?

A. Yes, I believe it is within the period.

Q. I will ask you again then this question—if the rent for the 186 portion of the premises was paid by the Day-Night Cigar Store to the landlord and was then charged against the 186 Club, that rent would not have been taken into account in the chart which you prepared as Exhibit 166, would it?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming a fact not in evidence.

Mr. Avakian: The book is in evidence, your Honor.

Mr. Campbell: The book does not so indicate.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Can you refer me on prosecution's Exhibit 166 to any day [2020] listed there on which you found a record of a rent payment having been made?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

A. No, I can't do that. This is almost eight years ago. I can't remember.

Q. Do you know whether or not there were any rent payments? A. I can't say.

Q. Would a determination as to the amount of rent have been proper and material in determining the amount of the net income of the place?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not within the scope of direct examination; incompetent.

Mr. Avakian: Well, your Honor, he has presented an analysis which he represents as net income. Aren't we entitled to show whether or not——

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: ——he has omitted material matters?

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Does your chart, Exhibit 166, include any expense in the way of officers' salaries? A. No.

Q. Does it include any expenses as rent?

A. That I can't say.

Q. Do you know whether or not the utilities for the 186 Club portion of the premises were paid through the Day-Night Store?

A. I do recall that, yes. [2021]

Q. I show you prosecution's Exhibit 87A, which is the corporation income and declared value excess profits tax return for fiscal year beginning July 1, 1943, and ending June 30, 1944. I believe you testified on direct examination that the signature, Louis H. Mooser, was your signature?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And that Mr. Kyne and Mr. Slater signed this return before you? A. That is right.

Q. And then I believe you said after it was so signed they took it away with them?

A. That is right.

Q. And then at some later time you testified, I believe, that you had a conversation with your superior, at that time Mr. Boland, regarding this return?

A. He called me in and showed it to me.

Q. Do you know approximately when that conversation was?

A. No, I can't say, but the return had not been filed very long.

Q. So it would have been shortly after the filing date of November 15, 1944?

A. That is right.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that the filing date of November 15, 1944, is the exactly same date on which you signed it as the party before whom the return was signed. Do you notice that? [2022]

A. That could be.

Q. You notice the two dates are the same?

A. Yes.

Q. And this was sworn to before you in the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue in San Francisco? A. As I recall, yes.

Q. And isn't it a fact that the return was left with you for filing on that occasion?

A. That is not a fact.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

Q. Do you receive returns for filing in connection with the authentication of them?

A. Yes, sometimes.

Q. So apparently they took this away and came back the same day?

A. Was there payment made?

Q. It says, "Received with payment."

A. I would not be taking the return.

Q. They would walk over to the cashier's office?

A. Yes.

Q. That is in the same building, is it not?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you point to any particular portion of this return which Mr. Boland discussed with you on the occasion which you mentioned on your direct examination? A. Yes, this Schedule 1. [2023]

Q. I believe you stated that the collector's office does not have jurisdiction of corporation returns except in instances where delinquent return is picked up, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Does the collector's office have jurisdiction over individual returns and partnership returns?

Mr. Campbell: I think the question is misquoted. The question was jurisdiction as to audit.

Mr. Avakian: Well, I will modify the question to that extent. Now my question is, does the collector's office in San Francisco have jurisdiction over the audit of individual and partnership returns?

A. At that time only certain individuals, not partnerships or corporations.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Louis H. Mooser, Jr.)

Q. Now with respect to the 1943 partnership return of the 186 Club, a copy of which you said you saw during your examination before you picked up the corporate return covering a portion of the same period and after you advised the owners of the enterprise that they should file as a corporation rather than a partnership, did you make any recommendation to the effect that the individuals who were shown on the partnership return for that period receive any adjustment or refund in respect to that income?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Objection sustained. [2024]

Q. Do you know whether any such adjustment or refund was made?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection; not within the scope of direct examination.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I would like to be heard on that.

The Court: No, we will not take the time for that.

Mr. Avakian: I do not want to make an annoyance of myself requesting this, but I would like to be heard on some of these matters. Mr. Golden called my attention that these very same questions were put to Mr. Ezralow and your Honor permitted him to answer them.

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Mr. Avakian: No further questions.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. In response to one of Mr. Avakian's questions he had you describe a conversation you had with Mr. Taffe, the attorney, wherein he stated that the reason for not filing on a corporation basis was because card-bearing members might demand an accounting of the profits or distribution of the profits. Will you state what is meant in California with relation to this type of operation, what a card-carrying member is?

Mr. Avakian: Objected to on several grounds—it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. This witness is not qualified as an expert on that point on California law. [2025]

The Court: Objection sustained.

The Court: Any reason why this witness could not be excused?

Mr. Avakian: He may be excused.

Q. Will you state your name?

A. Robert W. Morgan.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

Q. Where do you live?

A. El Cerrito, California.

Q. What is your business or occupation?

A. Revenue agent, San Francisco Division.

Q. How long have you been a revenue agent?

A. Six years today.

Q. Have you been stationed in the San Francisco division at all times? A. That is correct.

Q. You say six years today?

A. Yes, sir, January 10, 1946.

Q. Are you also a certified public accountant, Mr. Morgan? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Morgan, in connection with your official duties as [2026] a revenue agent, were you assigned to the investigation of the personal income tax returns of the defendant, Elmer Remmer?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in connection with that assignment, did you make an examination, or did you examine the books and records, that is to say, such books and records as were made available for your examination——

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive. I suggest the correct question would be in connection with that investigation what did you do.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Avakian: I object to "such books as were made available." It has implications, your Honor.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. (Continuing): ——of the Day-Night Cigar Store? A. Yes.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

Q. Mr. Morgan, I am going to show you Exhibits 117, 117A and 117B, purporting to be the books of account of the Day-Night Cigar stand or Day-Night Cigar Store, and ask you if you examined those books in the course of your investigation?

Mr. Gillen: I move it be stricken out of the question the word "purporting." These were exhibits introduced by the government, by which they are bound.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Gillen: It is their exhibits, your Honor. [2027]

The Court: I know.

Mr. Gillen: We should get the testimony from the witness, not from Mr. Campbell's questions.

The Court: I think we are getting a little sensitive. Objection overruled.

Mr. Gillen: We have to object, we have a duty——

The Court: But we are wasting time.

The Court: I disagree. I do not think any inference is to be made from the use of the word—flyspecks.

Q. I show you plaintiff's Exhibit 119, return of William E. Kyne for the year 1943, and particularly therein to the schedule which is attached thereto, headed "Day-Night Cigar Store, 186 Eddy Street, San Francisco, California," and ask you if you examined that return in the course of your duties? A. I did.

Q. I also show you plaintiff's Exhibits 84, 85, and 86, being partnership returns of income of the Day-Night Cigar Store for the calendar years 1944, 1945, and 1946, and ask you if you examined those?

A. I did.

Q. Have you, Mr. Morgan, at my request, prepared a summary statement of the assets and liabilities of the business known as the Day-Night Cigar Store? A. I have.

Q. Pardon me, may I finish the question—as of the following [2028] dates: December 31, 1943; December 31, 1944; December 31, 1945; December 31, 1946? A. I have.

Q. And what was the source of the material from which you compiled that statement of assets and liabilities?

A. The books before me, the 117 series.

Q. And also from the returns before you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in addition to that, have you, at my request and direction, also placed upon that summary the net worth or capital accounts as reflected in the books of the Day-Night Cigar Store as of each of those dates? A. I have.

Q. I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 164 for identification, together with two schedules annexed thereto, and ask you if that is the summary statement of assets and liabilities which you prepared at my request, and from the sources which you have just identified? A. It is.

Q. In preparing this document was anything else, any other documents or exhibits, which are either in evidence or not in evidence in this case, utilized in its preparation? A. No, sir.

Mr. Campbell: This will be offered as plaintiff's Exhibit 164 in evidence. [2029]

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, again simply for the purpose of obtaining clarification, we make the formal objection that the presentation of a summary representing the results in the opinion and conclusion and judgment of an expert witness is not a proper method of presenting the evidence, and again I state I think it is, but I know many courts differ in their rulings and I simply want clarification.

The Court: Very well. The exhibit will be admitted in evidence.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Morgan, yesterday you had identified as plaintiff's Exhibit 164 the statement of assets and liabilities of the Day-Night Cigar Store as drawn by you from Exhibits 117 series, Exhibit 119 and Exhibits 84, 85 and 86, is that correct?

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now with regard to the figures that are set forth on this schedule or statement, that is, Exhibit 164, will you state whether or not any of these figures are adjusted figures or whether they are as appeared in the records to which I referred?

A. The figures all appeared in this 117 series, with the exception of certain figures that we obtained from the tax returns.

Q. As to bank balances, was it necessary for you to combine certain figures appearing in the 117 series?

A. Yes, sir, with respect to the year 1946 only. No general ledger was maintained for that year, so that we obtained the closing balance in cash account as of December 31, 1946, from cash receipts and disbursements book.

Q. And in arriving at the bank balances, you set forth the figures used and drawn from the 117 series of books in the two schedules annexed and made a part of Exhibit 164, is that correct? [2031]

A. That is correct.

Q. Reading from government's Exhibit 164, the net worth of the Day-Night Cigar Store as of December 31, 1943, $17,785.40; as of December 31, 1944, $39,494.37; as of December 31, 1945, $30,390.47, and as of December 31, 1946, $28,643.47. Did you also, at my request, place on this schedule the capital accounts as disclosed in the 117 series?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I direct your attention to the fact that no capital accounts were shown as of December 31, 1946. Will you state whether or not the sets, that is to say the 117 series, disclosed capital accounts as of the year-end '46?

A. Those accounts were incomplete as of December 31, 1946, so that I didn't transcribe the balances.

Q. As of the end of each of the years, 1943 and 1944 and 1945, will you state if the profit and loss accounts for those years were closed into the capital accounts?

A. Not in all respects. Particularly with respect to the year 1945, I remember those accounts were not closed into the capital accounts.

Q. Will you state how that showed on the books as of the year 1945?

A. Profit and loss accounts both years remained outstanding, were not closed to the capital accounts. On that schedule before [2032] you I show that in total.

Q. In setting up these capital accounts, you have simply copied what was shown in the books?

A. I totalled those profit and loss and showed as one net figure.

Q. That is, you have totalled them in the individual accounts?

A. I totalled the balances of the individual accounts shown as one figure as of December 31, 1945.

Q. That is in the individual accounts?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

A. That's right.

Q. And you have also placed here a total of all of the capital accounts as of the year-end of each of the years, 1943, 1944, and 1945, is that correct?

A. That is correct, sir.

Q. Now I direct your attention to the fact that in each of the year-ends, 1943, 1944 and 1945, the total amount shown in the books in the capital accounts exceeds the net worth of the business as disclosed in the statement of assets and liabilities set forth hereon. Can you state how that came about on the books?

A. I have prepared a schedule entitled "Reconciliation Net Worth From Books and Exhibit" and set forth that figure.

Q. And that is the schedule which you hand me? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I ask this be marked for identification.

The Clerk: 168. [2033]

Q. Showing you plaintiff's Exhibit 168 for identification—let me ask you first, these are your working papers? A. Yes.

Q. What was the source of the figures which you have utilized here?

A. The chief difference——

Q. No, the source of the figures—from what source did you obtain the figures?

A. Book figures, that is the 117 series and the tax returns, partnership returns.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

Q. You say the partnership returns, Exhibits 84 to 86 and 119? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: This will be offered in evidence as Exhibit 168.

Mr. Avakian: In view of your Honor's rulings on the admissibility of summary prepared by the witness, we offer no objections.

The Court: Very well; the exhibit is admitted in evidence.

Q. Now, Mr. Morgan, will you explain the difference between the two accounts?

A. The chief difference is the first item called equipment or furniture and fixtures. The books, that is, the general ledger, 117 series, showed amount of $10,000, whereas, in my exhibit I show an amount of $2100. I used that figure because—— [2034]

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment, your Honor—we get into the field of argument here. I have no objection as long as I am permitted to cross-examine——

The Court: Let me have the question and answer.

(Question and answer read.)

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer.

A. I used that figure $2100 because it is the amount on the 1946 partnership return. I disregarded the $10,400 because that is the figure obviously that includes equipment and various other assets applicable to the 186 Club. No general ledger was kept for the 186 Club and Mr. Slater stated to me——

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment—getting into hearsay.

Mr. Campbell: You can't say what Mr. Slater said to you.

Q. At any rate, you used the figure in the return, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. Partnership return, in lieu of the one in the books? A. That's right.

Q. Now in that connection, and during the course of your investigation, did you see any books, general books, of the 186 Club? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you attempt to obtain any books or records of the 186 Club? A. Yes, sir. [2035]

Q. Did you, in the course of your investigation, find out whether or not books or ledgers were kept for the 186 Club?

A. I never located any and none were ever produced for me.

Q. In examining the books and records of the Day-Night Cigar Store, did you find whether or not certain of the expenses of the 186 Club were paid through the Day-Night Cigar Store?

A. That is correct.

Q. And in utilizing the furniture and fixture item from the partnership return of the Day-Night Cigar Store, rather than the amount shown in the books and records, did you have those facts in mind? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Q. Mr. Morgan, I believe you stated yesterday was the sixth anniversary of your employment with the Bureau? A. That is correct.

Q. Were you engaged in accounting work prior to that time? A. Yes.

Q. Will you tell us for whom and for what period of time?

A. I was employed by two certified public accounts in New York City in '35 and '40 until I went into the service of the United States Army.

Q. And in your experience in New York, were you engaged in doing work in connection with the prepartion of tax returns? [2036]

A. That is correct.

Q. Now you stated that you were assigned to examine the returns of Mr. and Mrs. Remmer. Will you tell us approximately when that assignment was made? A. Approximately July, 1947.

Q. And what particular enterprises did you examine?

A. Well, I examined all the enterprises that we could ascertain had any connection with Mr. Remmer.

Q. Well, did you examine the Day-Night Cigar Store or did you examine the 186 Club?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you examine the Menlo Club?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you examine 110 Eddy Street?

A. Right.

Q. The B. & R. Smoke Shoppe?

A. That is right.

Q. Did you examine the 21 Club and San Diego Social Club? A. No, sir.

Q. Or the 311 Club? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you examine the Cal-Neva, Inc?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you examine the Transit Smoke Shoppe?

A. Yes, sir. [2037]

Q. You examined the six San Francisco enterprises that I have just named, which have been mentioned in the evidence?

A. That is right.

Q. And you said that you made those examinations in conjunction with other agents, I believe. Will you state what other agents you were working with in that examination?

A. During the examination I was associated with an agent by the name of Gerald Peel, Lynn Harkness, Ray Weaver and Farley N. Gould of the Oakland office.

Q. Did any other agents work on this case with you?

A. No, Mr. Barkley examined Cal-Neva, Inc.

Q. Did you work with Mr. Miner, who was on the stand here? A. No, sir.

Q. Was Mr. Whiteside associated with you at any time?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

Mr. Campbell: I thought this was a preliminary question. He asked who he was associated with and I think it is immaterial.

The Court: He may answer.

A. I did not work with Mr. Whiteside.

Q. Do you know whether or not he was assigned to the case?

Mr. Campbell: I object to that.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. In connection with the preparation of Exhibit 164, did you consult with any of the other gentlemen while you were preparing either the exhibit or the underlying material for it? [2038]

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. I received instructions from Mr. Campbell only.

Q. What were your instructions from Mr. Campbell?

A. To prepare statement of assets and liabilities from the books and returns.

Q. Just that general instruction? A. Yes.

Q. You did not consult with him as to particular matters that arose in the preparation of it?

A. I may have asked him several questions.

Q. Do you know what particular items in Exhibit 164 you discussed with him?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. One I remember was the amount I should use for the equipment.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

Q. You are speaking now of the item of furniture and fixtures which you show on 164 as being $2100 on December 31, 1943?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now you found in the books a figure of $10,400, had you not? A. That's right.

Q. And you discussed with him which of those two figures you should use?

A. Yes, sir. [2039]

Q. And did he state to you any opinion as to which you should use?

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object, if the Court please.

The Court: You may answer.

A. He told me which one to use.

Q. He told you to use the $2100 figure, is that right? A. Yes.

Q. Is it not true that if you would have used $10,400 figure shown in the books the pending net worth shown on Exhibit 164 would have been increased by amount of $8300?

A. That is right.

Q. You said you found this $2100 in the 1946 partnership return, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And that is Exhibit 86?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you have it before you?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Will you show me on Exhibit 86, partnership return for 1946, the item which states that the total amount of furniture and fixtures on hand on December 31, 1943, was $2100?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

A. The partnership return makes no such statement.

Q. The return does state the amount on hand at the end of 1946 is $2100, does it not?

A. I wouldn't say it stated. That is the only figure listed [2040] in the depreciation schedule.

Q. And that is for the year 1946, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Exhibit 164—do you have it before you?

A. No, I do not.

Q. I will hand you Exhibit 164 and also hand you a sheet of paper to assist you in any computation you need to make. Do you have a pen or pencil with you? A. Yes.

Q. In Exhibit 164 you show the net worth of the Day-Night Cigar Store at the end of 1946 is $28,643.47, do you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And at the beginning of this three-year period, that is at the end of 1943, you show the net worth of $17,784.40, do you not? A. I do.

Q. Will you compute the difference between those two amounts for us? A. $10,858.07.

Q. Now if, instead of using the furniture and fixtures item of $2100, which Mr. Campbell told you to use on December 31, 1943, you had used the figure of $10,400 that you saw in the books, will you compute for us what the increase in net worth would have been from 1943 to 1946? Will you make that computation? [2041]

A. There was no increase.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

Mr. Campbell: May we have the question read?

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: Does that contemplate $10,400 throughout the period or simply at the beginning or end of the period?

Mr. Avakian: I think my question is clear.

Mr. Campbell: I object to the question as being incompetent and also unintelligible.

The Court: He may answer the question if he can.

A. The question does not make sense to me.

Mr. Avakian: Let me reframe it.

Q. Will you make a computation of what the net worth would be at December 31, 1943, if you substituted in Exhibit 164 the figure of $10,400 that you found in the books for furniture and fixtures, instead of the figure of $2100 that Mr. Campbell told you to use?

A. I would arrive at net worth as of December 31, 1943, of $26,085.40.

Q. And then would you tell us what, using that figure as net worth of 1943, would you tell us what the net worth increase would be from then to the end of 1946?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent, if the Court please, because if that figure is changed in this size, the figure of $2100 to $10,400, then the comparison which he is seeking to draw from this witness must include an adjustment [2042] of the same item of furniture and fixtures at the end of the period. In other words, there is a $2100 figure used throughout the period or $10,400 throughout the period and this question does not contemplate that.

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

The Court: Does this question contemplate the use of $10,400 throughout the whole period?

Mr. Avakian: No, because the only evidence of furniture and fixtures at the end of 1946 is $2100.

The Court: Didn't the witness testify he used 2100 throughout the period?

Mr. Avakian: That is right, but he also testified that although he found no entry in the books of a different figure at the end of 1946, he did find one at the beginning of the period 1943.

The Court: If he testified he used 2100 throughout the period, I think your question should be confined to what would be the result if he used $10,400 throughout.

Mr. Avakian: There is no evidence of 10,400 at the end of 1946. That is my point. Here is the particular asset shown at the beginning of the period on the books as a high figure and the only entry we have in the evidence at the end of the period is a low figure and what Mr. Campbell had this witness do was to take the low figure at the end and instruct him to use it at the beginning, although there is not a single bit of [2043] anything in the record that that was the figure at the beginning of the period, in lieu of what the books show.

The Court: There is no evidence of this figure $10,400.

Mr. Avakian: He has testified——

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

The Court: Let him use that.

Mr. Avakian: As of December 31, 1943; there is no evidence of $10,400 as of 1946 however. The only figure that we have——

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Mr. Morgan, did you find in all of the materials that you used, did you find any item for furniture and fixtures at the end of December 31, 1946, that is at December 31, 1946, other than $2100 figure which you used?

Mr. Campbell: Counsel just stated very emphatically to the Court that there was no figure anywhere.

Mr. Avakian: Will you stipulate that is a fact?

Mr. Campbell: No, I do not stipulate.

The Court: Let me have the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: I object to the question in the form it is put because it is a type of compound question.

The Court: He may answer the question.

Q. Do you recall the question, Mr. Morgan?

A. Well, this whole thing is clear in my mind. I don't know whether it is in yours. The only figure that appears in the [2044] books throughout the entire period is $10,400.

Q. Does that appear as of December 31, 1946?

A. It appears in the record for the general ledger, which is the only general ledger which we have in the entire period.

Q. Would you show that to me?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

Mr. Campbell: May the record show that the witness has referred counsel to Exhibit——

Mr. Avakian: I will make that clear.

Mr. Campbell: I think the record should show at this point the exhibit and page number which the witness is showing.

Mr. Avakian: I am going to state that.

The Court: Go ahead.

Q. You have handed me plaintiff's Exhibit 117 and have pointed particularly to a page entitled "Equipment Account," have you not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And there is one entry on that page, is that right? A. Yes.

Q. And that shows March 1, 1943, $10,400, balance $10,400, is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. And there are no further entries following that date, is that right? A. That is right.

Q. I believe you testified, did you not, that the posting into [2045] the general ledger was not complete in 1946? A. That is correct.

Q. So you don't know for a fact whether there were any changes in this account during 1946, do you? A. I do.

Q. You do know there were no changes?

A. That is correct.

Q. You mean that you know there are no entries in the account? A. Yes.

Q. But in view of the fact and in view of your statement that the postings were not carried into the general ledger during the year 1946, it is possible, is not not, that there may have been changes in the furniture and fixture account, even though they were not carried into the ledger?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

A. I do not think so. I analyzed the cash receipts and disbursements, which is the only record we had of 1946, and they showed no acquisitions or sales of furniture or fixtures.

Q. Now if there were no changes, will you state why you did not use the $10,400 figure throughout your exhibit?

A. That figure did not seem realistic, based upon information I had available during my examination.

Q. You said that you discussed with Mr. Campbell which of those two figures to use, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Now when you said that you had information available to you, [2046] are you referring to any information that is in evidence here?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would you refer me to the evidence?

A. Mr. Kyne's testimony?

Q. What was Mr. Kyne's testimony you used as a basis?

A. My recollection is he stated when he bought the business located at 186 Eddy Street in 1943 from Mr. Silverman, he paid approximately $22,000 of which he allocated approximately 16 thousand to 186 Club, which was on the same premises but just back of the store in front known as the Day-Night Cigar Store. That would leave a balance of approximately six thousand dollars to be allocated to the inventory of other assets of the Day-Night Cigar Store. Inasmuch as this $2100 was listed on the 1946 returns, it seemed to be a reasonable assumption of that value, one which would be more realistic than $10,400, which obviously included the value of assets which should have been applied to the 186 Club.

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

Q. The testimony of Mr. Kyne that you refer to was his testimony as to the amounts paid at the time these two businesses were purchased, approximately March 1, 1943? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And from his testimony you concluded that approximately six thousand dollars of what was paid should be allocated to the Day-Night Cigar Store business? A. Yes, sir. [2047]

Q. However, as of December 31, 1943, your Exhibit 164 shows total assets of the Day-Night Cigar Store of close to $18,000, is that right?

A. That is correct.

Q. So that between the purchase of the store around March 1st of 1943 and December 31, 1943, it is clear to you, is it not, from your examination, that there were substantial additions to the assets of that business? A. That is correct.

Q. Do you know whether or not any of those additions included furniture and fixtures?

A. No, sir.

Q. Can you point to any testimony in this record here to the effect that it did not include any additional furniture and fixtures?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

Mr. Campbell: I object to the question in that form.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Did you hear any testimony in this case or see any exhibits in this case which would indicate to you that this increase in the assets of the Day-Night Cigar Store, from approximately six thousand to the figure that you concluded was correct on March 1, 1943, to the figure approximately 18 thousand dollars that you concluded correct as of December 31, 1943, did not include furniture and fixtures?

Mr. Campbell: Again I object to the form of the question. [2048]

The Court: Let us have the last question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Mr. Morgan, in preparing Exhibit 164, with the exception of this furniture and fixture item we have been discussing, have you included in your summary all of the material contained in the books relative to the particular assets and liabilities which are set forth in Exhibit 164?

A. To the best of my knowledge.

Q. You are quite satisfied you have not omitted anything? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you show me the particular pages of the books from which you obtained the data labelled "Net Worth Accounts of the Various Partners" as set forth in Exhibit 164?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

A. I believe you have the general ledger.

Q. It is in the general ledger, is it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have the sheets in question?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you also use Exhibit 117B in that connection? A. No, sir.

Mr. Campbell: May the record show what sheets he is referring to?

Mr. Avakian: I will come to that.

Mr. Campbell: The record should be done at the time the [2049] question is answered.

The Court: The question was submitted and no answer.

Mr. Campbell: Then he went on to another.

Mr. Avakian: No, I asked him if he used 117B also and he said no.

The Court: You asked if that is the ledger and pages but you did not receive from the witness the answer as to the pages.

Mr. Avakian: Well, your Honor, preliminarily——

The Court: Let us not waste time on frivolous things.

Mr. Golden: Well, Mr. Campbell started it.

The Court: Easy, please.

Q. Will you describe the particular pages in Exhibit 117 that you used? Do they have a label on them?

A. They have the name, but no page number.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

Q. The name of the particular partner, is that it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is there more than one page?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would you state the names of each of the pages that you used in connection with the information set forth in the capital accounts on Exhibit 164?

A. They are the same as I have noted on Exhibit 164.

Q. That is William E. Kyne Investment Account? A. Yes. [2050]

Q. William E. Kyne partner account?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Sylvan Lando? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And E. Remmer, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you note that accounts of the same names were carried for the year 1946 in Exhibit 117B?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I believe you stated that you did not use the information from 117B in preparing your exhibit?

A. That is correct.

Q. In Exhibit 164 for Sylvan Lando you show the figure $3927.78 as the amount of his personal account of December 31, 1945. Is that the figure you find in Exhibit 117 on the page that bears his name?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. As of what date was that entry made?

A. There are two entries composed of that balance.

Q. What is the date?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

A. One entry is dated December 31, 1944, in amount of $1092.52. The second entry is dated May 31, 1945, in amount of $2835.27.

Q. The last entry you have there is May 31, 1945? A. Yes.

Q. Isn't it true, Mr. Morgan, that in order to correctly show [2051] the amount of the capital account of a partner at the end of any particular year, you should credit his account with his share of the profit for that year or charge his account with his share of the loss for that year, as the case may be?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for opinion and conclusion, not within the scope of direct examination.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. That is customary procedure.

Q. Did you not find in Exhibit 117B the amount of Mr. Lando's capital account on January 1, 1946, after the crediting to him of his share of the profit for 1945? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what is the amount of his capital account at that time?

A. There are two entries on this sheet, one dated January 1, 1946, shows balance $3927.78. There is an entry below it, without date, in amount of $897.61.

Q. Under proper accounting procedure, as you have just testified, the 1945 share of profits to be included in computing the 1945 closing capital account, will you tell us then in your judgment, as an accountant, what is the correct amount of Mr. Lando's capital account at the end of 1945? The figure shown on Exhibition 164 or the figure you have just read from the book?

A. The reason I didn't——

Q. (Interrupting): Can you answer the question first and give your reason afterwards. [2052]

(Question read.)

A. In my opinion neither one.

Q. In your opinion neither one, is that what you said? A. That is correct.

Mr. Campbell: You were told you could give your explanation.

Mr. Gillen: Did the gentleman say either or neither?

A. Neither. The reason I didn't make any computations on this schedule is Mr. Campbell instructed me to place here only balances on the books.

Q. Well, you have a number of entries here which are not balances on the books, isn't that true?

A. Some from the returns, yes.

Q. Did he instruct you in this particular case you should not go into other material to determine the correct amount of the capital account?

A. No, sir.

Q. Incidentally, is Mr. Campbell an accountant, as fas as you know?

Mr. Campbell: I will stipulate I am no accountant, Mr. Avakian.

A. Would you like me to give you a further explanation?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

Mr. Avakian: I think I have your explanation?

Mr. Campbell: If he has a further explanation, I think he is entitled to give it. [2053]

Mr. Avakian: If it is an explanation—if it is a volunteer statement, that is a different matter.

A. Well, here I think, as I gather what your objection is to the figure I used for Mr. Lando's balance of December 31st is that I did not include his share of the profit for that year.

Mr. Avakian: That is right.

A. However, you will note in the last entry on this 164 I have shown amount which I have entitled "Income and Expenses Accounts not Closed Out as of December 31, 1945," in amount of $2667.36, one-third of which is approximately, but not quite, the amount shown as his share of distributive net income in 117B. In other words, where I was taking the balances here as shown on the books, the profit and loss accounts as of December 31, 1945, were not closed out, the partnership accounts, therefore, I did not make any distribution.

Q. Did you not find in 117B, Mr. Lando's personal account, an amount which does represent the balance at the end of 1945, with the inclusion of his share of 1945 income? A. It purports to be.

Q. But you didn't use it, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. In your list of assets you have an item of "Accounts Receivable 186 Club." Will you explain to us what that particular asset item represents?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

A. From examination of the records it appears that the Day-Night [2054] Cigar Store paid certain bills for the 186 Club. The mechanics was to issue checks on the bank account of the Day-Night Cigar Store and charge them to an account receivable entitled 186 Club. It then appears certain cash was received from the 186 Club. The mechanics there was to deposit those sums in the bank account of the Day-Night Cigar Store and credit to the account entitled 186 Club.

Q. In other words, the Day-Night Cigar Store paid certain bills on behalf of the 186 Club and then received cash in reimbursement?

A. That is correct.

Q. Did your examination show the types of bills that the Day-Night Cigar Store paid for the 186 Club?

A. I noticed certain entries, such as social security taxes, rent, certain accounting bills except, probably, Mr. Maundrell's services as accountant.

Q. Were there any utility bills?

A. I believe there were.

Q. Did you hear the testimony of Mr. Mooser yesterday, that it was his recollection that the 186 Club paid utility bills in cash?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to—the record speaks for itself. That is not my understanding.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: On the ground that was not Mr. Mooser's [2055] testimony?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

Mr. Campbell: I object, the record speaks for itself.

Mr. Avakian: What record, the transcript or the books?

The Court: I do not think the question is proper on any theory. This witness is not here to pass on any testimony.

Mr. Avakian: This witness has made an examination from which he can give us particular facts. Another representative of the government gave an inconsistent statement.

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, may I call your attention to the fact that this witness, in his testimony here, has relied on testimony he heard; for example, testimony of Mr. Kyne, and used that for the basis of his exhibit.

Mr. Campbell: No, no.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I am at a loss to know why the objection is sustained. Will somebody enlighten me, so I will know how to proceed?

The Court: You may proceed if you want to.

Mr. Avakian: I certainly want to.

The Court: Well——

Mr. Avakian: If the basis of the objection and sustaining it is that my statement of the evidence was not correct, I would like to read to the witness and ask him if he heard the [2056] following testimony of Mr. Mooser yesterday——

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

The Court (Interceding): The objection is sustained.

Mr. Avakian (Reading): Question——

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object.

The Court: I am going to object to your going into the same subject.

Mr. Avakian: I thought possibly that was the basis for the ruling.

The Court: I told you the objection was sustained.

Mr. Avakian: But the objection is on several grounds, but I do not know on what ground it is sustained.

The Court: My idea is that this witness is not here to pass on credence of another witness' testimony. That is for the jury.

Mr. Avakian: But he is here to testify to what the facts were.

The Court: The objection is sustained on the grounds I have stated.

Q. The fact is that utility bills of the 186 Club were paid by the Day-Night Cigar Store, is that correct? A. I notice it was in 1946.

Q. And those bills, after being paid by the Day-Night Cigar Store, were charged to the 186 Club, is that right?

A. There were no general ledger entries kept in 1946.

Q. You found charges to the 186 Club and reimbursements as the [2057] basis for what you set forth in 164? A. Yes.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

Q. That was a running account? A. No.

Q. Was it going in one direction only?

A. No, I obtained my entries from cash receipts and disbursements.

Q. And that showed charges from time to time from the Day-Night Cigar Store to the 186 Club?

A. Yes.

Q. And from time to time it shows the 186 Club paid the Day-Night Cigar Store for those?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did your examination show that the Day-Night Cigar Store made a rental charge against the 186 Club?

A. I do not know if that terminology is correct. There is a page in there entitled 186 Club in which certain entries were made for rent.

Q. Are you confused as to my terminology?

A. Yes.

Q. I use the word "rent."

A. No, I was confused by the other part of the question.

Q. Well, so there will be no confusion—the Day-Night Cigar Store did charge rent to the 186 Club?

A. I can say that. [2058]

Q. Do the books indicate whether rent was for the premises only or whether it might also have included furniture and fixtures?

A. There is no indication with regard to furniture and fixtures.

Q. You stated earlier that one of the reasons for using the figure of $2,100 for furniture and fixtures on December 31, 1943, rather than the figure of $10,400 used in the book, was your conclusion, from various circumstances that came to your attention, that of the total purchase price paid for the two businesses, only six thousand should be allocated to the Day-Night. Did you conclude, as a part of that assumption then, that the furniture and fixtures must have been purchased for the 186 Club rather than the Day-Night Cigar Store?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. I did not conclude the 186 Club purchased any furniture and fixtures.

Q. What happened? What is your conclusion as to what happened in regard to the $10,400 shown in the books for furniture and fixtures?

A. I concluded that that was an amount which also included furniture, fixtures, good will, as applicable to the 186 Club.

Q. Did you find anything that indicated that that included good will? [2059] A. No.

Q. You know, do you not, from your examination of these enterprises, that the 186 Club did use some furniture and fixtures? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I will hand you the returns of the 186 Club, prosecution's Exhibits 88, 88-A and 87-A. Have you examined those returns in connection with your examination? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On any of those returns was any depreciation claimed with respect to the furniture and fixtures?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

A. I see no indication there were any charges for depreciation.

Q. You find no deduction for depreciation?

A. No, sir.

Q. You stated earlier that you found a record during the year 1946, the Day-Night Cigar Store paid some utility bills for the 186 Club?

A. That is right.

Q. Can you tell from examination of the books whether that was also true during 1944, and 1945?

A. The first entry I see for anything of that nature is entitled, "Light, Gas and Power," December 31st, and charged to 186 Club at $325.41.

Q. What year? A. 1943. [2060]

Q. 1943 is the first item, and what was that for? Will you name those items again?

A. Light, gas and power.

Q. And then did you find other entries subsequent?

A. Subsequent to that date, yes.

Q. Right on through into 1946? A. Yes.

Q. Did you likewise find rent during the entire period?

A. There is a charge December 31, 1943, rent $1,500, and subsequent entries.

Q. Subsequent entries throughout the period?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you find that throughout all three of these years payments were made by the 186 Club to the Day-Night Cigar Store from time to time in respect to those charges?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

A. I notice credits to the 186 Club account on the cash book, which I assumed to be cash received by the Day-Night Cigar Store for account of the 186 Club.

Q. And do you notice those throughout all three years? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The amounts that you have shown in Exhibit 164 as "Account Receivable 186 Club" is the balance which the 186 Club owed to the Day-Night Cigar Store at the end of each year indicated on your Exhibit 164, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir. [2061]

Q. But during the year there were charges made and payments made that resulted in that balance?

A. That is correct.

Q. And that shows then that on December 31, 1943, the 186 Club owed the Day-Night Cigar Store $4,878.58? A. That is correct

Q. And on December 31, 1944, the 186 Club owed the Day-Night Cigar Store $9,538.04?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And December 31, 1945, the 186 Club owed the Day-Night Cigar Store $3,743.50?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And on December 31, 1946, your calculation, as reflected in the attached Schedule 2, showed that the 186 Club owed the Day-Night Cigar Store $3,572.67? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the amount of that indebtedness of the 186 Club to the Day-Night Cigar Store is listed by you as one of the assets in computing this net worth set-up? A. That is correct.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

Q. You have an item of prepaid licenses and taxes. Will you find the particular page or pages in Exhibit 117 showing the amount of those figures?

A. I have it.

Q. You have showed me Exhibit 117, page entitled "Prepaid [2062] Licenses and Taxes." Will you tell me what the amount shown in the book is for December 31, 1943, the balance on that date?

What is the amount shown in the book?

A. $344.10.

Q. Will you point that out to me? That is an entry as of date October 25, 1943.

A. I might point out it is very difficult to tell which year these entries belong.

Q. The plain fact is that you made a mistake in amount of $110?

A. I may have but I cannot tell whether that is for the year.

Q. Doesn't that exhibit show below the 344 figure another payment of 1943 of $110?

A. If that belongs to 1943, yes, sir.

Q. Well, the 1944 entries don't start until later, do they?

A. As I say, these dates have no years marked after them.

Q. Well, you find the year 1944 entered for the first time two entries below it, do you not?

A. That is right. I assume you are correct.

Q. So in preparing your exhibit you made a mistake of $110, is that right? A. Yes.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

Mr. Avakian: I am just trying to get the facts, not being critical.

A. The books are not kept very clearly. They should place the [2063] year after every entry.

Q. Incidentally, do you know who kept this book? A. No, I do not.

Q. Mr. Slater, was it not?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to—he said he didn't know.

The Court: He said he didn't know.

Q. I am asking if you know it was Mr. Slater?

The Court: He said he didn't know. Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: On cross-examination I can refresh his recollection, your Honor.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Did you discuss this book with Mr. Slater?

A. I may have.

Q. Was he the bookkeeper?

A. My understanding was he was the public accountant who supervised the records. I am quite sure he did not make all the entries in these books.

Q. Did he make some of them?

A. He probably made some of them.

Q. He had general supervision?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know who else made entries in this book beside Mr. Slater? A. No, sir.

Q. So far as you know, Mr. Remmer never made entries in the [2064] book, did he?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to, it is argumentative.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: He said he didn't know. Objection sustained.

Q. You said that you had some discussions with Mr. Slater. Do you know if Mr. Slater is now living? A. I understand he is dead.

Q. Do you know approximately when he died?

A. No, sir.

Q. He was still living in 1947 when you were assigned to this case?

A. It must have been some time in '47.

Q. But you did talk to him during the time you were investigating? A. Yes, sir.

Q. During the course of your investigation were these different books that you have referred to in preparing Exhibit 164, namely Exhibits 117, 117A and 117B, were those books of the Day-Night Cigar Store made available to you during your investigation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were they turned over to you promptly on your request for them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you take them from the premises of the Day-Night Cigar Store?

A. Certain records were given to me at 50 Mason Street and [2065] others were turned over to me by Mr. Ezralow, who had obtained them.

Q. Some of these records you obtained from Mr. Ezralow, is that correct?

A. That is right.

Q. Do you know whether these particular ones were obtained from him?

A. I do not recall which ones.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Robert W. Morgan.)

Q. Do you remember from what particular individual you obtained the records at 50 Mason Street? A. Mr. Kyne and Mr. Maundrell.

Q. Do you remember approximately when that was? A. Which records?

Q. The records which you obtained from those two gentlemen?

A. We obtained records whenever we requested them, which would be at any time within our examination.

Q. What period of time would that cover?

A. 1947 to approximately April, 1949.

Q. 1947 to April, 1949?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you said that during that period you were given books and records as you requested them?

A. And we returned some of them during that time.

Q. Did you take away from the premises any of the records which you obtained from Mr. Kyne and Mr. Maundrell? [2066] A. Yes.

Q. And took them to your office in the Bureau of Internal Revenue? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you make out any receipts to Mr. Kyne or Mr. Maundrell with respect to those records?

A. Whether or not, I don't recall.

Q. If you made them, would you have copies of them?

A. I have not seen any since I have been here.

Q. At the time you obtained these records from

Mr. Kyne and Mr. Maundrell, did you make any statement to them to the effect that you would return them on request? A. Yes.

Q. You did state that you would, is that request?

A. If they requested them, we would return them.

Q. During this trial have you seen here in this building, in the possession of the prosecution, any of those records which you obtained from Mr. Kyne and Mr. Maundrell?

Mr. Campbell: Oh, I am going to object.

The Court: Oh, he may answer the question.

A. Yes, sir, I have seen them.

Mr. Avakian: No further questions.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Morgan, on cross-examination Mr. Avakian called your attention to the corporate returns of the 186 Club and asked you if there was set forth thereon any depreciation schedule or reference to furniture and fixtures. Will you examine these returns, which are Exhibits 87, 87A, 88 and 88A, and state whether or not these returns show any details of income or deductions other than, I think in some instances, officers' salaries?

A. The only information I see on these returns is an item called "Gross Take," from which is deducted administrative salaries to arrive at the net income.

Q. Those are the only figures appearing on the returns? A. Applicable to the income.

Q. Will you state whether or not you observe any reference on any of these returns to any deductions other than administrative salaries?

A. No, sir.

Mr. Campbell: That's all. [2068]

Mr. Avakian: No further questions. May it be understood in excusing Mr. Morgan we would like to have him remain subject to further cross-examination.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, he will be in attendance throughout the trial.

RAY A. WEAVER

a witness on behalf of the government, having been previously sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Will you state your name?

A. Ray A. Weaver.

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Weaver?

A. San Francisco, California.

Q. What is your business or occupation?

A. I am special agent of the Intelligence Division of the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Q. How long has that been your occupation?

A. About ten years, except for about 2½ years in the army.

Q. You are a certified public accountant, Mr. Weaver? A. Yes.

Q. And will you relate briefly and generally your accounting experience and background, including your accounting education?

A. I studied accounting in college and received a bachelor's degree.

Q. What college?

A. University of Pittsburg. Took some graduate work at Northwestern [2069] University where I received a Master Degree in business administration. I had a year of private accounting with a subsidiary of Paramount Publications in Chicago. I was in practice on my own account for about a year in the town of Emaus, Pennsylvania. I taught accounting and related subjects for about four years in several colleges.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

Q. Will you name those colleges?

A. Lafayette College, Easton, Pennsylvania; William Penn, Oskaloosa, Iowa; Whitworth College, Spokane, Washington, and Northwestern University in Evanston, Illinois.

Q. Did you go directly from that teaching experience into the Intelligence Unit?

A. No, I went into the Internal Revenue agent's office first.

Q. For how long a period were you there?

A. About six years.

Q. Do you recall when you first entered government service? A. July 1, 1935.

Q. So that as between your service in the Revenue agent's office and Intelligence Unit and aside from your service in the army, you have been continuously in government employment since 1935, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Your army experience, of course, was also government experience.

A. That is correct. [2070]

Q. Incidentally, what is your position in the Intelligence Unit?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

A. Special agent, assigned to assist in reviewing reports.

Q. As a special agent of the Intelligence Unit, will you state generally the nature of the duties of that office?

A. Generally that office makes investigations of all cases involving any alleged or suspected fraud against the revenues of the United States, concerning all possible tax evasions, with the exception of those relating to alcohol tax violations.

Q. Do they also include narcotic violations and customs violations—you do not handle?

A. No. Those are additional exceptions, that is true. Most of the work, of course, pertains to income tax violations.

Q. In connection with the handling of investigations relating to income tax violations, will you state generally the procedure; that is to say, whether or not such investigations are conducted jointly with any other agencies or bureaus?

The Court: That means his duties has to do with alleged fraud cases, alleged violations?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, I will use the word "alleged" instead of purported.

Q. In relation to these alleged violations of the Internal Revenue laws, will you state generally whether you work in conjunction with representatives of other agencies who are also assigned to those duties?

A. Yes, on all income tax cases we work jointly either with a [2071] deputy collector from the col-

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

lector's office, or an Internal Revenue agent from the Revenue agent's office.

Q. Now, for the information of the jury, will you state generally the division of the cases, as to how it comes about as to whether or not you are working jointly with a deputy collector or an Internal Revenue agent?

A. Generally speaking, the cases originate in the collector's office and thereafter require the services of a special agent. If it is an alleged fraud, it will remain in the collector's office unless the case is considered too large for one agency to handle.

Q. In that event what agency enters?

A. In that event the Internal Revenue men handle the case.

Q. In regard to auditing of income tax return, is there some method by which the examination and audit of returns which are filed by taxpayers with the government are divided as between the collector's office and the Internal Revenue agent's office, for the examination?

A. Yes, I do not recall precisely what the division is, but generally speaking the smaller individual returns, let us say those with net income of five thousand or less or gross income of perhaps say fifteen thousand or less, would be examined by the collector's office.

Mr. Avakian: If it is material—I don't say it is—I think we should have exact figures. I assume there are exact figures and we surely should get an exact figure rather than [2072] an assumption.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

Mr. Campbell: This is shown simply for the background.

Mr. Avakian: If it is material, let us get it right and if it is immaterial, let us not spend time on it.

The Court: What do you question?

Mr. Avakian: We object to speculation as to the division between the two officers.

The Court: Give your objection on the next question.

Mr. Avakian: The question did not call for the objection. It came from the answer as stated. I didn't have a chance to object until he came through with speculation.

Mr. Campbell: I am not through with the subject matter.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, were you, in the course of your duties as Special Agent of the Intelligence Division, assigned to the investigation of the individual income tax returns of Elmer Remmer and Helen Remmer, his wife? A. Yes, I was.

Q. When did you receive that assignment?

A. I believe the assignment was initially made late in November of 1946.

Q. And has the case since that time, the matter since that time, been assigned to you in your official capacity? A. Yes, it has.

Q. Now, how soon, or when, after the case had been assigned to you did you commence active investigation? [2073]

A. I believe it was about July, 1947. I was engaged in other investigations prior to that time.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

Q. Were you from that date forward actively engaged in the investigation of this case?

A. Yes; not continuously.

Q. Well, was it inclusive to your investigating that case and handling other duties?

A. For a period of time.

Q. But over the period of times that you were assigned or commenced your active investigation, did you devote all of your time to this individual case? A. No, sir.

Q. You had other cases to handle?

A. Yes, sir, also other duties.

Q. Now, in the course of your investigation of this case, were you working in cooperation with other agents of the government? A. Yes, I was.

Q. And will you state who they were and what their official titles were?

A. When the case was first assigned to me there were two Internal Revenue agents assigned, too, Mr. Morgan, who preceded me on the stand, and Mr. Peel, who subsequently went to Korea on some other assignment, and he was replaced by Mr. Harkness, who continued until the investigation was completed. After that date I was also assisted by——

Mr. Avakian: After what date, your [2074] Honor?

A. After the Revenue agents completed their work, which I believe was about April of 1949, I was assisted at times by other special agents, including

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

Mr. Miner, who appeared here on the stand, Mr. Whiteside and Mr. Hemphill.

Q. And in that connection will you state whether or not you also had the cooperation and services, with regard to various aspects of the investigation, of agents in other cities than San Francisco?

A. Yes, we received collateral reports from our New York office, from the office covering New Orleans, Louisiana area, from our Los Angeles office and Portland.

Q. You are speaking of the office of Intelligence Division, as it is now known?

A. Yes, sir, that is right.

Q. Now, will you state who, during the investigative stages of the case, what individual was in charge of the investigation?

A. I was in general charge of the various features of the case.

Q. Is that the usual method in these investigations which are cooperatively conducted by the revenue agents or deputy collectors and Intelligence Division, that the agent of the Intelligence Division is in general charge of the investigation?

A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. Now, during the course of your investigation did you directly examine various books and records pertaining to certain businesses in which the defendant was purportedly interested? [2075]

A. I examined some of the books and records. Most of the direct examination was done by Internal Revenue agents.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

Q. Incidentally, in that connection and with respect to this investigation, will you state the general assignment of the Revenue agents in the investigation?

A. Generally speaking they were to examine all of the books and records, and make reports on any additional tax liability that might be disclosed.

Q. Did you also examine various of the books and records of the enterprises in which the defendant was allegedly interested? A. Yes, I did.

Q. And based upon your examination and your investigation, by you or by those working under your direction, what enterprises or businesses were examined into in which the defendant allegedly had an interest?

A. We examined fully into either partial or——

Mr. Avakian: May I make an objection to the general nature of that question? It is so broad it may call forth statements as to the mention of many businesses in which there is no connection with the defendant and yet the enumeration of any such business may be improper.

Mr. Campbell: I didn't intend the question to be that broad. Maybe I can reframe the question to meet counsel's objection.

Q. What businesses or enterprises did you yourself examine, or [2076] have examined under your supervision, in which it was found that the defendant, Elmer Remmer, purportedly had some interest?

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment. That kind of statement, the question as to the businesses in which it was found he had an interest, calls for conclusion; that Mr. Remmer purportedly had an interest calls for conclusion. We have had here records of various businesses in which the government contends he had an interest. Why couldn't the question be limited to those particular organizations?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

The Court: Have you any reason for not doing that, Mr. Campbell? Will you do that?

Mr. Campbell: Well, yes, I will do that.

Q. Mr. Weaver, during the course of your investigation—and in order to keep from repeating a long question each time I will state the question to you at this time and then in subsequent questions I will simply call your attention to a particular entity—during the course of your investigation, did you make investigation yourself, or have made under your supervision, investigation into the affairs of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe? A. Yes.

Q. Into the 186 Club? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Into the Day-Night Cigar Store?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Into 110 Eddy Street? [2077]

Q. Into the Menlo Club? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Into the Transit Smoke Shop?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Into Cal-Neva, Inc.? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Into the Mountain City Consolidated Copper Company?

A. Not into the affairs of the company itself; only so far as it related to stock purchased therein by Mr. Remmer.

Q. Possibly I should amend my question and say into any ownership Mr. Remmer may have in any of these enumerated concerns? A. Yes.

Q. Into the matter of loans to Brice and Silver?

Q. Into the matter of loan to Hazel Harris?

A. Yes.

Q. Into acquisition of property in Morhaga Estates? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Into the acquisition of property in Richmond Annex? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Into the matter of loan to P. R. Badobinatz?

A. Yes.

Q. Into the matter of a bank account in the name of the defendant at the Tracy Branch of the Bank of America? A. Yes. [2078]

Q. Into the 21 Club at El Cerrito?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Into the San Diego Social Club at El Cerrito? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Into a bank account at the Grand Lake Branch of the Bank of America?

A. May I clarify those El Cerrito places in this since, that the investigation was not made jointly under my direction, but the results of the examinations of revenue agents were subsequently used in the findings.

Q. They were made available to you?

A. That is correct.

Q. You are referring to results of Revenue Agent Gould, who appeared here? A. Yes.

Q. And the work in conjunction with Revenue Agent Farley? A. Yes.

Q. Did you inquire into a bank account under the name of Helen L. Remmer at Grand Lake Branch of the Bank of America? A. Yes.

Q. Did you inquire into the acquisition of certain real property in what is known as Morhaga Highlands? A. Yes.

Q. Did you make inquiry into the conduct of an office at 50 to 52 Mason Street, San [2079] Francisco?

Q. Did you also include in your investigation the matter of any liability from the Bank Club of Reno? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you also investigate, or cause to be investigated, as to his government bonds in the name of the defendant or his wife? A. Yes.

Q. Did you also make some investigation or inquiry as to the cash on hand in possession of the defendant? A. Yes.

Q. Did you also cause investigation to be made into the matter of the acquisition of certain Gallagher and Burton whiskey? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Will you state what year or years the matter of your investigation of the tax liability of the defendant, Elmer Remmer, and his wife covered?

A. Covered the years 1942 to 1946, inclusive.

Q. And in connection with your investigation for the purpose of establishing his and his wife's correct liability for those years, did you make investigation which covered years prior to that?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And how far back?

A. I tried to determine whether any returns had been filed——

Q. How far back did you go? [2080]

A. For any years as far as records would reflect, back to 1918.

Q. Now during the course of your investigation by you or by those under your direction, did you attempt to ascertain as at the beginning and end of all pertinent years involved in that investigation, the assets and the liabilities of the defendant and his wife?

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment. I object to the use of the word "pertinent" years. We would like to have the years enumerated.

Mr. Campbell: Well, let us frame it this way:

Q. Mr. Weaver, during the course of your investigation did you cause to be made by those acting under your direction, investigation to determine the true and correct assets and liabilities of the defendant and his wife, Helen Remmer, as of December 31, 1943; December 31, 1944; December 31, 1945, and December 31, 1946?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. During the course of that investigation did you also attempt to ascertain whether or not, during any of those years, that is to say, 1943 to 1946, inclusive, either Elmer Remmer or Helen Remmer received any money or property by way of gift or devise?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I object to the question in that form, since it calls for something that is based on investigation that was made rather than testimony or documentary [2081] evidence that has been present; in other words, questions that are going to call forth statements or conclusions as to material matters should be based on evidence in the record, rather than upon some extra-judicial inquiries and conversations he may have had.

Mr. Campbell: At this time he is being asked for the scope of the examination.

The Court: It is immaterial unless it has bearing on this case. Read the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: I think counsel is entitled to know the scope of the investigation.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, that will be ascertained. This is preliminary. This calls for yes or no.

The Court: Very well. He may answer the question, then.

Mr. Avakian: Yes or no answer.

A. Yes.

Q. And for the years 1944 to 1946, did you also make, or cause to be made by those acting under your direction, investigation for the purpose of ascertaining the living expenses and other expenditures not deductible for income tax purposes, as expended by the defendant and his wife, Helen Remmer?

Mr. Avakian: Object to that portion of the question which calls for conclusion of this witness on the matter of law as to whether or not expenditures may have been deducted. [2082] He can simply ask if he made inquiry as to expenditures. That is factual.

Mr. Campbell: The words "not deductible" may go out of the question. Will you answer it as amended?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, preliminarily I will ask you whether or not at my direction you prepared a summary of the assets and liabilities of the Menlo Club as of the dates December 31, 1945, and December 31, 1946? A. Yes, I have.

Q. I show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 165 for identification, and ask you if that is the schedule which you prepared under my direction or at my direction? A. Yes, it is.

Q. And will you state, Mr. Weaver, the source of the figures which you placed on that exhibit?

A. These figures were taken from other exhibits we found in evidence or from testimony of witnesses who appeared here.

Q. Now will you state first as to what exhibits you consulted in preparing this summary?

A. There are quite a number. Do you want all of the numbers?

Q. Yes, just give us the numbers.

A. Do you want items to which each refers?

Q. No, just the exhibit numbers because the exhibit is not at this point in evidence. [2083]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

A. 114-A; 132-A.

Q. Pardon me, 114-A, what is that exhibit?

A. That is a poker sheet, or two poker sheets, of the Menlo Club.

Q. What other exhibits?

A. 132-A. Do you want a description of the exhibit?

Q. Well, I do not think that would be necessary at this point. Just give us the exhibit numbers that you referred to.

A. Exhibits 53, 89, 90, 133-K, 134, 135, 136, 132-C; the testimony of Mr. Maundrell; 132, 133-A, 27; the testimony of Mr. Miner, who appeared here yesterday; No. 34.

Q. Does that cover all of the exhibits?

A. I believe so, with the possible exception of the Menlo Club books themselves, from which I extracted the capital accounts appearing therein. I do not recall that exhibit number.

Q. I believe that is one of the exhibits whose number you have already given.

A. It may be.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. I believe you have before you, Mr. Weaver, Exhibit 165 for identification? A. Yes.

Q. And by request you enumerated the exhibits from which you stated you drew the figures hereon, with the exception of two items which you stated that you took from the testimony of Mr. Maundrell and from the testimony of Mr. Miner?

A. Yes.

Q. And as to those two particular figures, I will ask you if you placed those in this exhibit at my direction? A. Yes, I did.

Mr. Campbell: Now at this time I will offer in evidence Plaintiff's Exhibit 165.

Mr. Avakian: May we examine the witness on his voir dire on that?

The Court: Yes, sir.

Q. (By Mr. Avakian): Mr. Weaver, have you set forth in Exhibit 165 all of the liabilities reflected in the books of the Menlo Club?

A. I believe there is one sheet of the Menlo Club showing liability to Gene Schriber which we considered personal——

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

Q. Your answer is that you did not include one liability contained in the books of the Menlo Club?

A. Not in this particular exhibit. [2085]

Mr. Avakian: Then, your Honor, I object to the offer of this exhibit in its present form, on the ground it is not what it purports to be because it purports to set forth a net worth figure that the witness has testified in making that computation he omitted a liability shown on the books. I submit that is not the proper way of computing net worth and the introduction of the exhibit in this form is misleading, creates a completely false picture, and I do not want to state the amount in the presence of the jury, but I would be glad to show the amount of it.

The Court: While you are discussing that, perhaps any matter concerning the absence of one liability could be taken up on cross-examination.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, the amount is so large that it completely distorts the net worth figure. I presume Mr. Campbell is going to read it to the jury the minute it gets in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: May I ask another question or two?

The Court: Very well.

Q. (By Mr. Campbell): Mr. Weaver, in regard to your examination of the records of the Menlo Club, did you examine this book, 125-C?

Mr. Golden: We don't know of any 125-C.

Mr. Campbell: Pardon me, it is Exhibit 125.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

Without referring to the pages, can you say, generally, if you examined [2086] that book?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And during the course of your investigation, was that book in your possession; that is to say, in your custody, in your official capacity?

A. Was it in my custody?

Q. In your official capacity?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. Over what period of time?

A. I can't state the exact date that the revenue agent secured the book, but from that date until the time his records were turned over to Mr. Semenza it was in my custody.

Q. And what date were they turned over to Mr. Semenza? A. I believe it was July 7, 1949.

Mr. Avakian: May we have what records? He said all—may I have him enumerate which of those he had in his custody?

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute, Mr. Weaver.

Q. When you say the records were turned over to Mr. Semenza, did you receive a receipt for them at that time?

A. Mr. Semenza prepared a list in his own handwriting of the records which he took at that time.

Q. I show you Exhibit 70 for identification and ask you if that is the document to which you refer as having been prepared by Mr. Semenza at the time you turned the records over to him?

A. Yes, this is it. [2087]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

Q. Incidentally, does that refresh your recollection as to the date they were turned over?

A. Yes, it was July 11, 1949.

Mr. Campbell: This receipt will be offered in evidence as Plaintiff's Exhibit 70.

Mr. Avakian: No objection, your Honor.

The Court: Exhibit 70 is admitted in evidence.

Q. Now I observe, Mr. Weaver, that there is listed hereon quite a number of items of records. Were these the records that were turned over to him at that time? A. Yes, they are.

Q. And included in those records was there Plaintiff's Exhibit 125?

Mr. Avakian: We will stipulate to save time.

A. Yes, it was.

Q. And after having turned this over to Mr. Semenza on this receipt, when was the next time after July 11, 1949, that you saw this ledger, or did you see it at any time prior to its production here in court?

A. Yes, I saw it either a day or two after it was deposited with the clerk in court.

Q. But between July 11, 1949, and the time it was deposited with the clerk of this court, did you see this ledger? A. No, I did not.

Q. Now I am going to direct your attention to the page herein [2088] which has been marked 125-C, which is entitled "Tiny's Restaurant, Menlo Bar, Menlo Club Furniture, Fixtures, Equipment and Lease," and ask you if you will state when you first saw that sheet?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

A. When I saw this book after it was deposited with the clerk of the court is the first recollection I have of seeing that here.

Q. At the time you made your examination of these records and with respect to furniture, fixtures, equipment and lease, did you see some other sheet containing other entries?

A. Yes, I did. As a matter of fact, I have a photostat of it.

Q. I show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 140 in evidence and ask you if that is the sheet to which you refer? A. Yes, this is the sheet.

Q. And have you examined the books since they were deposited with the clerk, for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not the original of this sheet which you hold in your hand as a photostat, is contained in any of the records which were deposited with the clerk? A. Yes, I have.

Q. And what did you find?

A. I could find none. That is, I couldn't find this particular one.

Q. You couldn't find the original of which that is a photostat? A. No, sir. [2089]

Q. Now will you examine the sheet which is now in this ledger, which has been marked 125C, and also this photostat which has been marked plaintiff's Exhibit 140, and state, if you will, first, do the two sheets apparently relate to the same general subject matter?

A. Yes, both appear to relate to the purchase of the Menlo Bar, restaurant and club from Mr. Schriber.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

Q. Now are the entries on 125 and the entries on Exhibit 140 the same?

A. Not in all respects, no.

Q. Will you state in what respects they differ?

A. On 125C the total cost of $175,000 is allocated $143,801.50 to the lease, $31,895.50 to the cost of equipment and inventory, whereas on 140 the cost of the lease is shown as $100,000 and the cost of equipment and inventory at $75,000.

Q. Now as to the entries of payments against that liability, how does the one sheet, that is sheet 125C, which is part of the ledger, compare with the photostat, Exhibit 140?

A. The photostat 140 on April 30, 1945, shows a credit for payment to Mr. Schriber of $25,000, which does not appear on 125C, and Exhibit 125C has an entry under date of May 1, 1947, for a payment of $25,000 which does not appear on No. 140.

Mr. Avakian: I wonder if we couldn't stipulate any portion counsel wants to read may be read. This is a matter that was very thoroughly gone into with Mr. Miner and explained. [2090] This is not new; this is repetition of testimony of Mr. Miner.

The Court: It may be preliminary.

Mr. Avakian: I assumed it was in connection with the voir dire on 165. It seems to be going far afield.

Mr. Campbell: It is preliminary.

The Court: I think on the questions of voir dire

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

Mr. Campbell undertook to lay some additional foundation.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, your Honor, and I am gradually, maybe somewhat cumbersomely, getting into that subject.

Q. The differences would and did affect the year-end balance, would they not, as showing amount due? A. Yes, they would.

Q. Now with reference to plaintiff's Exhibit 165 for identification, did you include in that exhibit the liability as shown by either plaintiff's Exhibit 125C, the page that is now in the ledger, Exhibit 125, or the photostat, Exhibit 140?

A. No, sir.

Q. And did you on the schedule eliminate or leave out that liability upon my instructions?

A. Yes, I did.

The Court: When you say schedule, do you mean 165?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, your Honor.

Q. Now were any other liabilities as shown by any of the records which have been produced here relative to the Menlo Club eliminated? [2091]

A. May I see that ledger again, please? There are no other liabilities in this ledger.

Q. Were there any other liabilities which you found and which were eliminated, however, on that Schedule 165, other than the Schriber liability?

A. No, sir. I might add that we did adjust the reserve for amortization which is claimed in the return, which is not, strictly speaking, a liability,

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

although we have considered it under that section.

Q. All right, we will come to that in a minute. Now, Mr. Weaver, as an expert accountant, will you state the reason why the theory for the elimination from the schedule of assets and liabilities of the Menlo Club of the liability to Gene Schriber?

Mr. Avakian: Objected to as already asked and answered. He said on instructions of Mr. Campbell, who is not an expert accountant.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. The liability was eliminated from the Menlo Club because the testimony of Mr. Schriber indicated all his dealings were with Mr. Remmer personally and that Mr. Remmer had in fact pledged or deeded over on a trust deed to Mr. Schriber as security for the liability some of his personally owned real estate.

Q. So that accountingwise it was treated as a personal [2092] liability of Elmer?

A. That is correct.

Q. Rather than of the Menlo Club, for that purpose? A. That's right.

Mr. Campbell: I will now offer in evidence Exhibit 165 for identification.

Mr. Avakian: May I continue my voir dire?

The Court: Yes, sir.

Q. (By Mr. Avakian): Mr. Weaver, insofar as the liability to Mr. Schriber is concerned, the difference between Exhibit 140 and Exhibit 125C is the amount of 25 thousand dollars at the end of 1945 and 1946, is it?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

Mr. Campbell: You mean the liability itself?

Mr. Avakian: Yes, the difference in the amount of the liability.

A. As I recall, it is 25 thousand at the end of 1945 only. Would you care to have me check that?

Q. Yes, would you, please?

A. At the end of 1946, No. 125C shows balance of 75 thousand, which agrees with the last balance in '46 on No. 140 of 75 thousand, so they agree as of that date.

Q. The difference is only to the end of 1945?

A. That is right.

Q. And at the end of 1945 would you read the amount of liability shown by the respective [2093] exhibits?

A. No. 125C shows 125 thousand and 140 shows 100 thousand.

Q. So at the very least there was a liability of 100 thousand, if you use Exhibit 140; is that right?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not proper voir dire. It is cross-examination.

Mr. Avakian: I am trying to develop the amount of liability which he has permitted.

The Court: You may proceed.

Mr. Campbell: The weight to be given——

The Court: Let me hear the question again.

(Question read.)

The Court: How does that affect——

Mr. Avakian: Because the cost is listed as an asset of the Menlo Club. It is as if I bought a house for twenty thousand dollars and sold it for ten thousand, I would list twenty thousand as an asset, but to show my true net worth I would have to list ten thousand mortgage.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

The Court: This is his explanation and summary of the different exhibits and of in connection with testimony of one or two witnesses.

Mr. Avakian: That is right, but his explanation as to why he——

The Court: I think that is a matter for cross-examination.

Q. Let me ask this—both those pages relate to a liability [2094] with respect to the purchase of the Menlo Club from Mr. Schriber, do they not?

A. That is right.

Q. And you have set forth in the assets of the Menlo Club in 165 for identification the full purchase price of the Menlo Club; isn't that right?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not proper voir dire. It is cross-examination.

The Court: I think it is all cross-examination.

Mr. Avakian: Your honor, the purpose is to show that this is not truly a net worth statement.

The Court: This would be the purpose of cross-examination.

Mr. Avakian: If this is not what it purports to be, then it should not be received in evidence. I have not finished my voir dire.

The Court: Along this line I will sustain the objection.

Q. You stated the reason for omitting any lia-

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

bility to Mr. Schriber in net worth of 165 was that you concluded the purchase of the Menlo Club was a transaction between Mr. Schriber and Mr. Remmer?

A. Yes, therefore showed it as Mr. Remmer's personal liability.

Q. Then should you not likewise, as proper accounting practice, show the asset as belonging to Mr. Remmer personally, rather than to the Menlo Club? [2095]

Mr. Campbell: We are getting into another subject matter.

Mr. Avakian: It is a question whether this is a proper accounting, your Honor.

The Court: This is his summary of records and testimony and I think the questions are proper for cross-examination.

Mr. Avakian: But voir dire is cross-examination, directed to the point whether the summary is what it is or purports to be.

The Court: That is for the jury to determine.

Mr. Avakian: If I can develop it is not accurate net worth, it should not go into evidence.

The Court: Well, it will be admitted in evidence and you may cross-examine on those points.

Q. (By Mr. Campbell): I will return to Mr. Weaver plaintiff's Exhibit 165—incidentally, I neglected to ask; this is headed "Menlo Club"; does this also include the waffle shop and the bar?

A. Yes, it does.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

Q. The three are treated as one entity; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Now based upon this summary, what is shown to be from the records which you have identified and drawn in the manner in which you have identified, the net worth of the Menlo Club organization at that date, on December 31, 1945? [2096]

A. At that date the net worth, based on these figures, $183,647.94.

Q. And as of December 31, 1946?

A. $192,836.47.

Q. Now I believe you stated that you made some adjustment relative to the reserve for amortization as set forth here. Now first will you state if there was an account set up on the books of the Menlo Club for amortization?

A. No, I do not believe there was.

Q. Will you state whether amortization was claimed in the partnership returns of the Menlo Club to which you have referred?

The Court: I don't know that all the members of the jury thoroughly understand——

Mr. Campbell: I was going to have him pick up the item and then explain what it refers to.

A. As I recall, if the answer I gave refers to the returns, the original 1945 and 1946 returns had no claim for amortization shown.

Q. But in the amended returns filed at a subsequent date, which are here in evidence, do they show amortization? A. Yes.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

Q. Amortization of what? Would you explain what it refers to?

A. Amortization of the cost of the lease. As an explanation, it is stated the lease is for a five-year period and at a cost—— [2097]

Mr. Avakian: I think the witness has misquoted, and may we have him refer directly to the returns?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, we are just getting the returns.

Q. I am going to show you Exhibits 89, 90 and 91, together with Exhibit B, the lease from Gene Schriber to Joseph Billington. Are those the documents which you wish to have?

A. There is also a receipt from Mr. Schriber.

Q. I will give you Exhibit 51, the original lease. I also hand you Exhibit 53, the receipt of Mr. Schriber to Mr. Billington.

A. You want me to explain why the change was made in the amortization?

Q. Yes, and what the amortization refers to.

A. Well, according to the lease itself, Mr. Remmer was to have a lease on the premises at 32 Turk Street and also the ground floor premises of 18 Turk Street for a period of ten years for a total rental of 219 thousand dollars, which was payable, the first five years at the rate of $1650 a month and the second five years at the rate of two thousand dollars a month. Now that was a rental that had to be paid. In addition to that rental, in order to secure the lease, according to Exhibit 53, Mr.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

Remmer also had to pay 100 thousand dollars as and for a ten-year lease of the hereinafter described premises, which refers to the same premises, which was in addition to the rental itself. Well, that 100 thousand dollars actually represents, [2098] therefore, an additional rental for the ten-year period, which is paid in one lump sum at the beginning of the lease period, and therefore from accounting, also from a tax standpoint, should properly be allocated or written off over the term of the years, which is ten years, which is the term over which it has been written off in connection with the figures shown on Exhibit 165. As I stated, such a deduction was not claimed on the original returns filed, but was claimed on the amended returns filed. However, there the sum was computed by stating that the lease cost $143,801.50, whereas the receipt, Exhibit 53, specifically designates a cost of 100 thousand as and for a ten-year lease. Also the returns spreads or allocates that cost over a five-year period, whereas the receipt itself states that the lease will be for ten years, and Exhibit 51, which is the lease itself, refers to a term of ten years commencing May 1, 1945, as the lease period.

Q. Now in setting up the liability, by which you are charging off the reserve for amortization of the lease, I observe that for 1945 you have set up the figure of $6,666.67. Will you state how you arrived at that figure?

A. To begin with, supposing the entire cost of 100 thousand dollars were allocated over ten years,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

it would mean that ten thousand dollars applied to each year.

Q. Ten thousand dollars a year, would it not?

A. Yes. [2099]

Q. How did you arrive at the figure of $6,666.67 as of the end of 1945?

A. That applies for a portion of the year during which the lease was in effect during 1945, from May 1st, 1945, to the end of the year, a period of eight months. That represents eight-twelfths of ten thousand dollars.

Q. Or two-thirds? A. That's right.

Q. And at the end of 1946 that reserve had been increased to $16,666.67, or an increase of ten thousand dollars? A. That's right.

Q. And how did you arrive at that additional ten thousand dollars?

A. That represents one-tenth for each succeeding year, for the year 1946 added $6,666.67 remaining at the end of the prior year.

Q. Now referring again to the Exhibit 165, the item of cash on hand as of December 31, 1945, of ten thousand dollars, and December 31, 1946, of $10,003. From what source did you obtain that figure?

A. Those were taken from the poker sheets, which I believe are Exhibit 114A.

Q. Now on the books or ledgers of the Menlo Club did you find any account for cash on hand other than the entries on the poker sheets for those days and other than petty cash item?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

A. Is there another ledger for the Menlo Club? [2100]

Q. I hand you plaintiff's Exhibits 126, 128, 129, and 127, Mr. Weaver, the cash account I am referring to, is that the cash on hand bank roll?

A. There is one sheet in Exhibit 126 which under "Change Fund" shows balance of ten thousand dollars, but there are no dates indicating when that was established or how long it was in existence.

Q. So the figure you took was taken from the poker sheets? A. That is right.

Q. For those respective dates, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now the next item which you have listed here is that of "Accounts Receivable," advance for purchase of equipment at 50 Mason Street. What is the source of those figures?

A. I don't have the exact exhibit numbers for those, but those were taken from the exhibits identified by Mr. Maundrell as representing payments for improvements and alterations to the premises at 50 Mason Street.

Q. Those were the series of checks which were identified here by Mr. Maundrell?

A. Not all of them, but in part.

Q. But they were taken from that series of checks which are here in evidence? A. Yes.

Q. And which have been given the series numbers of 132, 133, [2101] 134, 135 and 136, is that correct?

A. I can't give you the detail of the checks because I just have the one figure here and the detail is supported by another schedule.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray A. Weaver.)

Q. Do you have that other schedule?

A. No, I believe that is in the possession of another agent.

Q. Will you have that Monday? A. Yes.

Q. I will at this time ask you to identify another sheet here, in order that we may give it to counsel over the week end. I will ask you if you prepared, at my instructions, a schedule setting forth the assets and liabilities of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe as of December 31st, 1943, 1944, 1945 and 1946?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And is that the schedule which I show you?

A. Yes.

Q. And have you indicated on this schedule the sources from which you drew the information that is set forth hereon? A. Yes, I have.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask to have this marked for identification.

The Clerk: 169.

Mr. Campbell: May I suggest a recess at this time.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Weaver, at the close of the last session you had identified and there was received in evidence plaintiff's Exhibit 165, being the assets and liabilities statement of the Menlo Club, concerning which you had given testimony. Now I direct your attention to one of the assets which you have set forth thereon, to wit: the item appearing as of December 31, 1946, the last asset upon that sheet, "Bank of America Menlo Club account $15,265.54." I also show you plaintiff's Exhibit 34, the photostatic copies of the signature cards and ledger sheets in the Day and Night office of the Bank of America of commercial account in the name of Menlo Club, and ask you if, in arriving at that balance as of the year-end December 31, 1946, you examined Exhibit 34? A. Yes, I did.

Q. And will you also state, Mr. Weaver, the date as shown by that exhibit as to when that account was opened?

A. This account was opened to the first deposit on October 2, 1946.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. On October 2, 1946, is that correct? [2103]

A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. And I call your attention to the fact that on those ledger sheets there are shown, between the date of the first deposit and December 31, 1946, a number of deposits to that account, is that correct? A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. And in connection with those deposits, did you examine the deposit tickets which made up those deposits?

A. I didn't examine them personally; I had them examined.

Q. Under your direction? A. Yes.

Q. And did you cause to be secured from the bank photostatic copies of the deposit tickets?

A. Yes, I did.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to ask that this be marked for identification, this group of photostats, as 170 for identification.

Q. Are these the photostatic copies to which you refer? A. Yes, they are.

Q. I am going to return these exhibits to you, Nos. 34 and 170 for identification, and ask if you made an examination and state if the slips set forth in 170 for identification are in the same number as the number of deposits shown between the opening of the account and December 31, 1946, in plaintiff's Exhibit 34?

Mr. Avakian: We stipulate to that, your Honor. [2104]

Mr. Campbell: I will offer these photostatic

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

copies of deposit slips, instead of 170 for identification, I will offer them as 34A, so that they may bear the same number as the bank account.

Mr. Avakian: No objection, your Honor.

The Court: Exhibit 170 marked for identification admitted in evidence as 34A.

Q. Mr. Weaver, I am going to hand you these deposit slips, plaintiff's Exhibit 34A, and I will ask you to state the date of each deposit, the amount and the form of the deposit in which the deposit is made.

A. October 2, 1946, there was deposit in amount of $46,890.10. The deposit slip is marked "New account" and indicates the deposit consisted of cash. The next deposit was on October 3, 1946, in amount of $29,719.25, all of which was in currency and coin. The next deposit was on October 14, 1946, in amount of $7,785.25, all of which was in currency and coin. The next deposit was October 22, 1946, in amount of $5,217, all of which was in currency. The next deposit was November 4, 1946, in amount of $4,494, all of which was in currency. The next deposit was November 14, 1946, in amount of $5,757.75, all in currency and coin. The next deposit was on November 26, 1946, in amount of $4,998, all in currency. The next deposit was December 3, 1946, in amount of $5,801.25, all in currency and coin. The next deposit was on December 19, 1946, in amount of $8,939.50, all in [2105] currency and coin. That is the last deposit in the year 1946. The next runs into the following year.

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Do those represent, according to the deposit slips and according to the ledger sheets of the account of the Menlo Club at the Day and Night office of the Bank of America, all of the deposits that were made from the opening date, October 2, 1946, to and including December 31, 1946, to that account?

A. Yes, these are all the deposits.

Q. On the ledger sheets of the commercial account of the Menlo Club at the Bank of America, there are certain withdrawals or charges against that account during the period of October 2, 1946, when the account was opened, to and including December 31, 1946, and I will ask you if, in the course of your examination of the records of the Menlo Club, which are here in evidence, if you examined and analyzed the withdrawals or charges to that account?

A. Yes, we did, to the extent possible. I do not remember whether we could identify all of them or not.

Q. Now I call your attention to the fact that the first withdrawal as shown in Exhibit 34 bears date of October 14, 1946, in amount of $18,331.06. Did the records disclose in what manner that amount was withdrawn from the bank account?

A. I believe it did——

Mr. Avakian: May that be answered yes or no?

The Court: That answer is about the same. He said, "I [2106] believe it did."

Mr. Avakian: I thought he was going further.

Q. Did you examine the records pertaining to

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

this account for the purpose of ascertaining in what manner the charges against this account were accrued?

A. You mean the Menlo Club records or the bank records?

Q. The bank records.

A. Yes, I examined the bank records.

Q. By bank records are you referring to the records of the Bank of America?

A. Not necessarily. If a charge represented a transfer to some other bank account, that would involve examination of that account also.

Q. And did you also, in that connection, examine the records of the Menlo Club that were available to you? A. Yes.

Q. What did your examination disclose as to item October 14, 1946, charge against this account in amount of $18,331.06?

Mr. Avakian: We object to that, the records are the best evidence.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. May I refer to our working papers?

Mr. Campbell: Yes. The witness has handed me a document consisting of two sheets, to which is also appended a further sheet, which I will ask to have marked for identification [2107] as plaintiff's 171 for identification.

Q. Referring to this 171 for identification, are those the working papers to which you refer?

A. Yes, it is.

Mr. Avakian: It might save time if we inquire

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

of counsel whether he intends to examine Mr. Weaver on all of these entries or just the one referred to.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to examine him as to charges against that account from October 2, 1946, to December 31, 1946.

Mr. Avakian: As to all of them.

Q. Mr. Weaver, will you refer to 171 for identification to refresh your recollection, if you can, and state from your refreshed recollection, answer my question as to the charge of $18,331.06, as shown against the account on October 14, 1946.

A. That represented a transfer of funds from this account to the account of the Crocker First National Bank in the name of Harold H. Maundrell.

Q. And that is the same bank account, the ledger sheets of which are here in evidence?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now the next charge against that account shows on the bank records, Exhibit 34, as November 8, 1946, in amount of $65,000. Will you refresh your recollection and then, having refreshed your recollection, will you state what your examination disclosed as to that item? [2108]

A. That was a check payable to Willie E. Kyne in amount of $65,000 and it was cashed by Willie E. Kyne.

Q. Is that the same check which has been marked plaintiff's Exhibit 115 in evidence?

A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. I direct your attention to the fact that the next charge against the Menlo Club bank account at the Day and Night office of the Bank of America is as of December 3, 1946, in amount of $16,005.50. Will you refresh your recollection and then, having refreshed your recollection, will you state what your examination disclosed as to that item?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. That item represents a check payable to Willie E. Kyne, which was cashed by Mr. Kyne.

Q. Is that the same check which I show you which has heretofore been marked plaintiff's Exhibit 120? A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. In amount of $16,005.50? A. Yes.

Q. Now the final charge against that account during the year 1946, as disclosed by plaintiff's Exhibit 34, is a charge on December 13, 1946, in amount of five thousand dollars. Will you refresh your recollection and state from your refreshed recollection what your examination disclosed as to that item?

A. It was a check payable to Harold Maundrell and deposited to the account under his name at the Bank of America. [2109]

Q. And is that one of the accounts which is here in evidence? A. Yes.

Q. Now with regard to these four items of charges against this account from the date of its opening, October 2, 1946, to and including December 31, 1946, did you find entries in the books of the Menlo Club which you examined relative to those charges?

A. May I see the 1946 record, please?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. I hand you government's Exhibits 125, 127 and 129. If those are not the records which you were looking for, you may step down to where the books are and find the proper book.

(Question read.)

A. No, I found no entries in the books.

Q. Did you find any entries on the books with relation to the bank account itself, other than the check stubs? A. No.

Q. Now specifically with regard to plaintiff's Exhibit 115 in evidence, which is a check in the amount of $65,000, drawn in favor of W. E. Kyne, marked "Loan to Elmer Remmer" and signed Menlo Club, W. E. Kyne, and endorsed W. E. Kyne, did you find any record, in the course of your examination or investigation, relative to whatever transaction is represented by that check?

A. No, sir. Other than the notation on the check itself, which contains, "Loan to Elmer Remmer."

Q. Did you find any record other than the check itself? [2110] A. No, sir.

Q. Now with regard to plaintiff's Exhibit 120, which is check dated December 2, 1946, on the same account, payable to Wm. E. Kyne, $16,005.50, signature Menlo Club, Wm. E. Kyne, and handwriting, "Loan for Transit" and signature Wm. E. Kyne, did you find any record in any of the books or records which you examined, in the course of your investigation, pertaining to the transaction which that check represents, other than the check itself?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. No, sir.

Q. I show you Exhibit 169 for identification, which I believe you identified at the last session of the court as a document drawn by you, is that correct? A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. Now calling your attention to the various items which make up this exhibit, you have set forth here opposite certain of the items referring to exhibit numbers. Are they numbers of exhibits which have been admitted here in evidence in this case? A. Yes, they are.

Q. And when that reference appears herein, were those exhibits to which reference is made the source from which you obtained your figures?

A. Yes.

Q. In addition I notice, in relation to two of the items, that you refer to testimony, giving the name of a witness. [2111] In those cases where that is set forth, were those entries made at my direction? A. Yes, they were.

Q. And are all of the figures set forth herein, other than the totals as set forth, either from exhibits as referred to herein and which are in evidence in this case, or from testimony to which reference is made? A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: This will be offered as 169 in evidence.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor may we examine this witness on voir dire as to the foundation of some of these entries?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: Very well.

Q. (By Mr. Avakian): Mr. Weaver, on your proposed Exhibit 169 you have shown a certain amount as cash on hand on December 31, 1943, with reference to Exhibit 111A as the source. I will hand you 169 for identification and I will also hand you 111A, would you show me the page in Exhibit 111A on which the amount of cash on December 31, 1943, is set forth?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not proper voir dire. It is proper cross-examination, if the Court please.

Mr. Avakian: I am testing the foundation of a statement is the exhibit as to the source.

The Court: He may answer the question.

Mr. Campbell: Then I make the objection that the question is misleading, in that the item referred to on Exhibit [2112] 169 states that it was obtained from Exhibit 111A and testimony. You asked as to date——

Mr. Avakian: I asked the page of 111A on which the source of that information appears.

Mr. Campbell: Which information?

Mr. Avakian: The item shown as the amount of cash for December 31, 1943.

Q. Will you show me the page for December 31, 1943?

A. Under date of January 1, 1943, there is a notation on top of that page, $15,000 BR cash. Subsequent to that date there were no other entries for the bank roll. We finally secured the figures

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

of the bank roll from Mr. Kyne and Mr. Maundrell——

Mr. Avakian: Pardon me——

Mr. Campbell: I think he has a right to finish his answer.

The Court: If he wants to finish his anwer, he may do so.

Mr. Avakian: All right.

A. We tried to secure information as to the bank roll on subsequent dates of Mr. Kyne and he said he couldn't remember and Mr. Remmer, whom we couldn't talk to. We had no other source of information for any bank roll of any later date and we were forced to carry the same figure through to the later years. The only other which we have some information is from Mr. Pritchett's testimony, who gave us the bank roll at December [2113] 31, 1945, of $20,000, and that is the reason we changed the bank roll at the end of 1945 to $20,000.

Q. I am going to repeat my question, as to whether you can show on Exhibit 111A the figure for December 31, 1943.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as asked and answered.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. With respect to December 31, 1944, you have made entry as cash on hand with source being stated as Exhibit 111A. Will you show me the page in Exhibit 111A on which there is a cash figure shown on Exhibit 111A?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as asked and answered.

The Court: He asked only as to 1943 before. You may answer.

Q. Show me.

A. The same figure is carried forward from December 31, 1943, to December 31, 1944——

Q. Will you show me the page?

A. ——because we were unable to find any record kept of the bank roll on that date and none of the partners whom we could interview——

Q. Will you show me the page?

A. ——were able to give us anything.

Q. Is there a page? A. There is no entry.

Q. Is there any entry for December 31, 1944? [2114]

A. No, because there was no bank account after January 1, 1943.

Q. With respect to cash on hand on December 31, 1945, you have an amount of $20,000, which you have labelled as source Pritchett testimony, and you say Mr. Campbell instructed you to put that figure in there? A. That is correct.

Q. Can you refer us to Mr. Pritchett's testimony to the effect there was $20,000 on hand?

Mr. Campbell: The record speaks for itself.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. Did you personally examine the record before making this entry?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection.

The Court: Objection sustained.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. With respect to the figure $20,000 shown as cash on hand December 31, 1946, you have shown as the source of that Mr. Pritchett's testimony, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Did you hear Mr. Pritchett's testimony that during 1946 he was employed for only one week and that was March, 1946?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative. The record speaks for itself.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Can you point to Mr. Pritchett's testimony with respect to [2115] any cash on hand December 31, 1946?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: I am going to make objection to this exhibit for these grounds: I think your Honor will bear in mind was that except for the totals, this represented data taken from evidence in this case and to that extent thereof it purports to be a summary of the evidence, and in that respect it is not a matter of accounting analysis or judgment, but simply a condensation into one sheet of what is purportedly the evidence in the case, and in that respect, your Honor, if it is offered as a summary of evidence in the case, it should be accurate or it has no place here at all. Now there are four items here as to which we make objection on different grounds for each one. First of all, with respect to the entry December 31, 1943, that purports to show cash on hand of $15,000 at the end of 1943. The witness has testified on voir dire, although the

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Exhibit 169 purports that the source of that Exhibit 111A, actually it was his own conclusion, that there was no change in the bank roll after January 1, 1943. There is no entry in Exhibit 111A or any bank roll on December 31, 1943. With reference to the next date, December 31, 1944, there is no entry whatsoever in Exhibit 111A as to that date. As a matter of fact, Exhibit 111A is the diary for 1943 and does not even purport to relate to 1944, so the figure for December [2116] 31, 1944, although it has been represented as simply a figure taken out of the evidence, actually represents, as shown by the voir dire testimony, as being conclusion that the bank roll on January, 1943, was still in exactly the same figure two years later. As to the figure December 31, 1945, cash on hand $20,000, which is labelled as Mr. Pritchett's testimony, I call your attention to the fact that the record shows—in view of the fact this was marked for identification two weeks ago, we have carefully read the testimony—shows that December 31, 1945, his best recollection was that cash on hand was $5,000, that in addition there were accounts receivable of $15,000. Now he said that twice, the only two times he was questioned that is what he said, not $20,000 cash, but $5,000 cash, so that this is directly contrary to the evidence, and I might say if counsel can point to anything contrary, I would be glad to hear it and would be glad to read to your Honor the record references on that testimony. This exhibit purports to show cash on hand at the end of 1946

BLURRED COPY

of $20,000 and the source is labelled as Pritchett's testimony. We have searched Pritchett's testimony. He testified in 1946 he was at the B. &. R. Smoke Shoppe for one week only and that was in March. He gave no testimony regarding the end of 1946. He wasn't asked any questions about the end of 1946 and obviously there is nothing in the record about it because he was only there one week in March. How can we present to the jury as a summary of evidence [2117] taken from this record a statement that at the close of the period involved in this indictment there was $20,000 cash according to Mr. Pritchett, when there is not one iota of testimony to that effect? Now to admit this exhibit in evidence that can be given to the jury, with representation it is summary of the evidence, would be highly improper because it is contrary to the evidence as to that $20,000 figure of 1946. There is not a word in the record as to that figure for 1946 from any witness, let alone Mr. Pritchett, who is the source of the figure according to the exhibit. So we object on the ground that although it purports to be a summary of testimony, it is contrary to the testimony and not proper; also the introduction will be misleading and prejudicial.

The Court: If I am correct in assuming it is the contention of the government that this is a correct summary of the records, supplemented by the testimony of different witnesses, if the government so contends—and I assume the government does or the government would not have offered the exhibit—if it is not correct, it would be in the same position as any of these exhibits which are in evidence. Counsel can show at the proper time, if they can, that any of these exhibits are not accurate, so the objection will be overruled and the exhibit will be admitted in evidence. [2118]

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Avakian: Perhaps I did not make myself clear. The witness said this is a summary except as to totals he made, that the items are taken from the evidence. It is not taken from the evidence. It is picked out of thin air.

The Court: You can meet that situation later if it exists.

Mr. Campbell: Reading from plaintiff's Exhibit 169, "B. & R. Smoke Shoppe, Assets and Liabilities December 31, 1943; December 31, 1944; December 31, 1945, and December 31, 1946." Without reading these specific items as set forth herein at this time, the exhibit reflects a net worth of B. &. R. Smoke Shoppe as of December 31, 1943, of $18,413.36; as of December 31, 1944, $18,231.47; as of December 31, 1945, $23,344.66; as of December 31, 1946, $23,-293.39."

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we would request in conjunction with that partial reading that the items of cash on hand, Exhibit 111A, and Mr. Pritchett's testimony likewise be read to the jury.

The Court: It is not necessary at this time.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, in connection with your examination of the various books and records here, did you make an examination of the drawing account of Elmer Remmer on the books of Cal-Neva,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Inc., for the period December 31, 1943, to December 31, 1946, inclusive? A. Yes, I did. [2119]

Q. And in connection with that examination did you analyze the records of that corporation which are here in evidence? A. Yes, I did.

Q. And in connection with such examination and analysis, have you drawn up a schedule reflecting the results of your examination and analysis of that account? A. I have.

Q. And will you produce that? I will ask you to have this document, consisting of some four pages, be marked for identification as government's 172 for identification. Showing you 172 for identification, is this the schedule and supporting schedules with reference to that matter to which you have referred? A. Yes.

resumes the witness stand on further

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. I am going to refer you, Mr. Weaver, to plaintiff's Exhibit 146, which purports to be the books of account of Cal-Neva, Inc., and ask if you will——

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Avakian (Interrupting): They were introduced as such and they don't purport to be—they were introduced by [2120] the government and we object to the use of the word "purport."

The Court: Objection overruled. I don't believe there is any purpose in using the word. They are here as records of the Cal-Neva.

Mr. Campbell: I do not mean——

The Court (Interceding): I understand you do not mean to cast any reflection as to the exhibit.

Q. I ask you to turn to the account denominated E. Remmer, which is account No. 10, under heading of "Assets" in that record. That is, is it not, Mr. Weaver, the account that has heretofore been referred to as the drawing account of Elmer Remmer? A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. Of which the debits and credits have heretofore been read into evidence? A. Yes.

Q. Now I direct your attention to the fact—if it is a fact—that that record shows a year-end debit balance in that account as of December 31, 1943, of $10,652.77, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And debit balance as of December 31, 1944, of $17,886.66; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And debit balance as of the year-end December 31, 1945, of $25,361.68; is that correct? [2121]

A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. And a debit balance as of the year-end December 31, 1946, of $18,148.22.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. That balance is not entered in the books as such, but that is the balance——

Q. Well, is that amount reflected by adding the credits and debits as shown during the course of the year 1946? A. Yes.

Q. And taking into consideration the debit balance as of December 31, 1945?

A. That's right.

Q. Now in connection with those debit balances as shown by the books, have you on plaintiff's Exhibit No. 172 for identification set forth certain accounting adjustments to those year-end balances to arrive at a corrected balance in that account as of each of the year-ends?

A. Yes, I have. I might add that they are not really adjustments. They are additions and deductions to bring into the proper year any transactions that might affect the account. For example, withdrawals might be made in the year 1945 and might not be entered on the books until the year 1946. Actually, to represent the proper balance of the account, the transaction should be reflected in the year 1945, and those are the types of adjustments that were made in that work sheet.

Q. And in making such adjustments on the work sheet, was that [2122] for the purpose of arriving at the correct balance as of the end of each year?

A. That is correct.

Q. And in that connection have you set forth upon that schedule each of the items by which you adjusted each of the year-end balances?

A. Yes, I have.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. And have you also set forth upon the supporting documents, or the following pages in this Exhibit 172 for identification, an explanation as to each such adjustments as to the source in the records which you examined of the items utilized?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. And have you also set forth in this exhibit the charges and credits by years to the account of Elmer Remmer, known as account No. 10, to which your attention has been directed?

A. Yes, I have.

Mr. Campbell: At this time I will offer in evidence plaintiff's Exhibit 172 for identification.

Mr. Avakian: We have no objection, to your Honor. If the prosecution has an extra copy, we would appreciate the use of it.

The Court: It will be admitted in evidence, 172.

Mr. Campbell: I think we can make that available subsequently.

Q. Mr. Weaver, I will ask you also if, in connection with the [2123] adjustments to this account, you had some correspondence with Mr. Semenza, the accountant who kept these records, as to various of the entries on this account which you were examining? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Will you produce that correspondence? Now you have produced here a group consisting of some four letters, two of which purport to be carbon copies of letters written by you, and two of which appear to be original letters of the firm of Semenza & Kottinger. Is this the correspondence to which you refer? A. Yes, it is.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Campbell: May this be marked for identification?

The Clerk: 173.

Q. Referring, Mr. Weaver, to the carbon copies, which are a portion of this exhibit, are these copies of letters forwarded by you to the firm of Semenza & Kottinger? A. Yes, they are.

Q. And are the original letters the letters received by you in response to your communications?

A. Yes, they are.

Q. Incidentally, in connection with Exhibit 173 for identification, referring to original letter dated November 11, 1949, I observe here some pencil written date. Do you know by whom that was written? [2124]

A. Yes, that was made by me.

Q. It was some memorandum of your own?

A. Yes, that is correct, as well as the pencilled notation of the year 1946, the second sheet.

Mr. Golden: We overlooked that. We had better take a look at it.

Mr. Campbell: With the exception of the pencilled written notations which may be obliterated, we will offer this in evidence as Exhibit 173.

Mr. Avakian: We have no objection to the pencilled notation remaining in this exhibit so long as Mr. Weaver put that on.

Mr. Campbell: Very well.

The Court: The exhibit then is admitted in evidence, No. 173.

Q. Now directing your attention to plaintiff's

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Exhibit 172, which you have identified as the schedule which you have prepared reflecting the adjustments to the year-end balances of the Elmer Remmer drawing account of Cal-Neva, known as account No. 10, what did you find to be the corrected balance of that account as of December 31, 1943?

A. $23,152.77.

Q. Was that a credit or debit balance?

A. That was a debit balance on the books of Cal-Neva.

Q. Will you state what is meant by debit balance, applying to [2125] a drawing account?

A. A debit balance on the books of Cal-Neva would represent the amount receivable from Mr. Remmer.

Q. So far as Mr. Remmer is concerned, it would represent an amount which he owed to Cal-Neva?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now your attention is directed to the fact that the balance as shown by the book itself is a debit balance of $10,652.77. Will you state what adjustments you made in your schedule to arrive at a debit balance of 23 thousand some odd dollars?

A. I added thereto three items, one of which represented a credit to Mr. Remmer in 1943, which, by looking at the detail of the transactions, actually was not received by Cal-Neva until the calendar year 1944; therefore, should not have been credited to them until the subsequent year; therefore, a debit balance of this account should be increased by that amount by the end of 1943. Also was added to that a similar item for exactly the same reason, in amount of $2,000. Also there was added to it an amount which was charged to him in 1945 for loans made by him to one Albert Villaudy in 1941 and 1943. Therefore, since the charges made in 1945 were amounts which had been made prior to 1943, that charge should also be reflected in the year-end 1943 balance. Adding those three items to the debit balance already on the books of that date gave me the correct debit [2126] balance, $23,152.77.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. And the source of information in each of those instances was from the books of Cal-Neva, Inc.?

A. Yes, or in one or two instances from the books and records of 110 Eddy, which had offsetting items.

Q. In 1944 will you state what adjustments were made to arrive at the correct debit balance in the Remmer drawing account?

A. In the year 1944, to the balance on the books I added one item of $8,000, which is the same item I added in the year 1943, for the loans made to Mr. Albert Villaudy in 1941 and 1943. Those items were still not reflected in the balance of Mr. Remmer's account at the end of 1944 and the entry was not made on the books of Cal-Neva until the year 1945, although the transaction itself took place in the years 1941 and 1943; therefore, should have been reflected in the year-end 1944 balance, as well as year-end 1943 balance, so the same adjustment was made of that item by adding $8,000 to the debit balance already in the books.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. You say you add $8,000 to the debit balance. The effect, is it not, is to show that Mr. Remmer owed that amount additional to the Cal-Neva, Inc., account of drawings? A. That is right.

Q. What other adjustments?

A. Then I made two deductions from the balances of his account, one was a credit, which was entered on the books of 1945 in [2127] amount of $24.98, for an item explained on the records as having been charged to him in error in 1944. Since the original error was made in 1944, I also made the adjustment of the error in the same year. The other adjustment represents a deduction from the balance of $7,500 for a credit made to his account on the books in the year 1945, with the explanation "For cash advanced by Mr. Remmer to Cal-Neva" in the prior year, and since the advance was actually made in the prior year, the entry should also have been made there, and that is the reason for that adjustment.

Q. And with those adjustments you arrived at the debit balance as shown on this exhibit 172 at the year-end December 31, 1944, of $18,361.68; is that correct? A. That's right.

Q. Now with relation to the year 1945, will you state what adjustments you made as reflected in the schedule?

A. For the year 1945, in addition to the debit balance on the books, I also added thereto the following debit items: Under date of April 30, 1946, the books showed a debit to Mr. Remmer's account

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

in amount of $51,486.34, with the explanation, "For cash advanced to Mr. Remmer in 1945." Since the advance was made to him in the year 1945, it should be applied in the balance at the end of the calendar year 1945 and that is the purpose of that adjustment.

Q. Yes. [2128]

A. In addition I added thereto an amount which was entered on Cal-Neva books on April 30, 1946, as a charge to the account, in amount of $7,000, with the explanation, "An amount charged to Bank Club in error in 1945," which would indicate that for 1945 the loan as charged was made to the Bank Club for $7,000, which should have been made to Mr. Remmer personally. Since the transaction was in 1945, I made the adjustment of the year-end 1945 balance.

Q. Yes.

A. A further adjustment was made to reduce the balance at the end of the year 1945 in amount of $2215.69, for this reason—on April 30, 1946, Mr. Remmer's account was credited in that amount with the explanation, "For bad check included in cash received by Mr. Remmer." Since that cash, by the explanation was a prior entry, had been explained as having been received by Mr. Remmer in the year 1945, the checks included therewith would also have been received in 1945 and any bad checks included in that amount should have been reflected in the balance at the end of the year 1945, so that adjustment was also made for the year 1945.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Now what adjustments did you make in the debit balance shown by the books in that account for the calendar year 1946?

A. For the year 1946 I added to the debit balance shown on the books an amount of $97,300, because the books showed an entry on April 30, 1947, debiting Mr. Remmer's account with [2129] that amount, with the explanation, "For items credited to Mr. Remmer in error in 1946." Since the original error was made in 1946, my correction was also made to the balance of the account at the end of the year 1946. In addition I deducted from the account balance these two items—one resulting from an entry made on the books on April 30, 1947, with the explanation, "Credited to E. Remmer for cash advanced by him for 1946." Since the cash was advanced in the year 1946, this entry was made to reflect that advance in the year-end balance of his account. A similar correction was made in the amount of $34,705.83 because of an entry made on Cal-Neva books under date of April 30, 1947, with the explanation, "Credited to E. Remmer for additional cash contributed by him in 1946," and since the contribution was made in the year 1946, the credit should be reflected for the year-end 1946 balance of this account. After those adjustments, the corrected debit balance of his account at the end of 1946 was $60,742.39.

resumes the witness stand on further

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Weaver, there has been evidence introduced here by way of checks relative to certain improvements made at the offices and warehouse at 50-52 Mason Street. Have you examined the records and the checks produced here relative to such improvements? [2131] A. Yes, I have.

Q. And in that connection have you drawn up, at my request, a schedule setting forth such expenditures? A. Yes, I have.

Q. Will you produce that. Is this document which you handed me the schedule which you so prepared? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And are the exhibits which are referred to here by number exhibits which are in evidence?

A. Yes, they are.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask to have this marked for identification as 174 for identification.

Q. And in connection with this schedule, have you also at my request, set up a schedule of reserve for depreciation? A. Yes, I have.

Mr. Avakian: I might say if Mr. Campbell in-

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

tends to offer that, we have no objection to its being received in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: Very well, I will offer it in evidence as plaintiff's Exhibit 174.

The Court: Admitted.

Mr. Avakian: I wonder if at the end of the day these exhibits introduced today may be released to us for the purpose of having photostats made?

Mr. Campbell: No objection. [2132]

Q. I am going to hand you Exhibit 174, Mr. Weaver. Now I observe that at the top of the page you have listed under various columns first the exhibit number. To what does the exhibit number refer, not each specific one, but in general?

A. To the number given to the exhibit in this court as exhibit introduced in evidence.

Q. And with relation to the items appearing on the top half of the page, starting with 132D, I believe is the first item, to 135E, do you recall the nature of those exhibits?

A. They all represent cancelled checks.

Q. The next item bears date, I presume that is date of the check? A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. And the name of the payee, followed by a column you have headed "testimony P. No.," does that refer to the page upon which the check was identified for the purpose of the check?

A. Yes, I believe most of those refer to the testimony of Mr. Maundrell.

Q. And that was testimony given in this court?

A. That is correct.

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. And the final column being "Amounts." Now in connection with your examination of the records and exhibits of office improvements, fixtures and equipment of the offices and warehouse of 50-52 Mason Street, did you give effect to the acquisition in 1944 of the safe as set forth in Exhibit 139 in evidence? [2133] A. Yes, I did.

Q. Now with regard to the year 1944, what is the total amount of acquisitions which your examination disclosed by way of office improvements, fixtures and equipment for 50-52 Mason Street?

A. $425.00.

Q. Which is the safe referred to in Exhibit 139?

A. Yes, that's right.

Q. Now what were the acquisitions in 1945 by way of office improvements, fixtures and equipment, as found in your examination?

A. They amounted to $7,489.76.

Q. So that the balance of such improvements, fixtures and equipment represented what amount as of the end of 1945? A. $7,914.76.

Q. And what were the amount of 1946 acquisitions as found by your examination?

A. $1,110.44.

Q. So what did you find to be the total amount of office improvements, fixtures and equipment of 50-52 Mason Street as of December 31, 1946?

A. $9,025.20.

Q. Mr. Weaver, I will ask you if it is customary and proper accounting procedure, with regard to office equipment, improvements and fixtures, to set up a reserve for depreciation, that [2134] is to say, setting up of a reserve to offset the age and obsolescence of equipment? A. Yes, it is.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. And in connection with the acquisitions during the years 1944, 1945, and 1946 of these improvements, fixtures and equipment for the premises known as 50-52 Mason Street, have you set up a schedule of reserve for depreciation on this exhibit which you hold in your hand?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. Let me ask you first the basis upon which you set up such reserve for depreciation?

A. The reserve is based on the ten-year life, which is customary in cases of office equipment, in the absence of any special circumstances.

Q. That is the customary period that is set up for total depreciation? A. Yes.

Q. And it is the practice, is it not, where a ten-year period is set up as the period of depreciation, to set up a reserve annually for one-tenth of the cost of the improvement, where such ten-year period be used? A. That is correct.

Mr. Avakian: May the answer be stricken so I may make an objection?

The Court: Yes. [2135]

Mr. Avakian: Objected to as leading and suggestive and particularly on direct examination of an expert witness. Under the expert laws, the testimony should come from the expert witness rather than the attorney who has produced him. What is customary accounting is a matter of peculiar expert testimony and for Mr. Campbell to state what is customary and get a yes answer, is not proper direct examination. He should have the man tell us in his own words what customary accounting is.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: This answer may stand. Try to avoid leading questions.

Q. What is your answer, Mr. Weaver?

(Question and answer read.)

Q. Was that the method which you used in setting up the reserve for depreciation which is shown on the schedule which you hold in your hand?

A. Yes, the yearly acquisition, which also follows general practice, in the year of acquisition, depreciation is computed for the period of six months.

Q. And is that the usual practice?

A. Yes.

Q. And in that regard what was the amount of depreciation reserve that you set up as of December 31, 1944? A. $21.25.

Q. And what amount did you set up as of the year-end, accumulated [2136] as of year-end December 31, 1945?

A. By that time the accumulated depreciation amounted to $438.23.

Q. And what was the amount of the accumulated depreciation which you set up in your schedule as of the year-end December 31, 1946?

A. $1285.22.

Q. Now in regard to the assets which you have set forth on this schedule and as shown by the checks to which you have referred, Exhibits 132D to 135E, as appear here on the schedule, will you state upon what bank account they were drawn?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. They were drawn on the bank account in the Crocker First National Bank, that was carried in the name of Harold Maundrell and Elmer Remmer.

Q. That is the bank account, the ledger sheets of which are here in evidence?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. As I recall, Mr. Weaver, the testimony was that that bank account was maintained with reference to the affairs of the Menlo Club, Tiny's Waffle Shop and the Menlo Bar, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now what, if any, entries did you find in the records of any of those concerns, other than by way of cancelled checks and their corresponding stubs, which have been produced here in [2137] evidence, as to these expenditures?

A. The checks were entered in the check register, but there was no entry in the general ledger of any ledger account nor any asset accounts set up.

Q. Incidentally, in that connection, with reference to the records maintained for the Menlo Club, the Menlo Bar and Tiny's Waffle Shop, will you state what type of records, from accounting theory and practice, were kept? That is to say, were they double entry records, single entry records, or what?

A. I would call them neither double entry nor single entry. They are actually merely a record of

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

receipts and disbursements and supplemented by a few ledger accounts.

Q. Were the books which you examined of a nature from which a trial balance as of any period could be drawn?

A. No, not without supplementing by outside information.

Q. But from the books and records themselves?

A. No.

Q. Now so far as your examination of the various records of the various concerns are involved, did you find anywhere, other than by way of the cancelled checks and the corresponding check stubs, any asset account reflecting the acquisition of the office improvements, fixtures and equipment which is set forth on the schedule which you hold in your hand?

A. No.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, have you also, at my request, drawn up a [2138] schedule with relation to the acquisition and disposition of certain Gallagher & Burton brand whiskey? A. Yes, I have.

Q. And you have that schedule with you?

A. Yes.

Q. You have handed me a document consisting of two pages headed "Gallagher & Burton Whiskey." Is that the schedule to which you refer?

A. Yes, it is.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask to have this document marked for identification as 175 for identification.

Q. Mr. Weaver, handing you plaintiff's Exhibit

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

175 for identification, I will ask you the source of the figures set forth thereon?

A. These figures are based on testimony of Mr. Barengo, the Sierra Wine and Liquor Company, and Mr. Stewart of the Nevada Transfer Warehouse Company.

Q. Are they also based upon the records and exhibits produced by those gentlemen?

A. Yes, that's right.

Q. Now in connection with the figures set forth hereon, relative to the cost prices per case of whiskey and the allocation of the costs, to what decimal point did you carry out the per case cost?

A. I carried the per case cost out to five decimal places. [2139]

Q. And in connection with the preparation of this Exhibit 175 for identification, did you also examine the books and records of Cal-Neva, Inc.?

A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to offer this in evidence as Plaintiff's 175.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we object to proposed Exhibit 175 because of one item, and one item only, and that is that there is shown here in the building up as a part of Mr. Remmer's equity in this liquor an item of $7479.22, described as 1944 floor stock tax. Your Honor will recall the evidence in that regard shows that the Cal-Neva corporation filed a floor stock tax return on which a tax—I don't remember the exact amount, but that amount was approximately that—was paid. There was no showing whatsoever in this case that Mr. Remmer paid any portion of that money. Now your Honor will appreciate, from what has been said in the opening statement of counsel here, that in building up income on the net worth theory, it is the cost to the defendant, it is the money he put into the assets that entered into determining his equity for net worth purposes. If the tax on this liquor was not paid by Mr. Remmer, it is not a part of his equity. There is no showing in this evidence that Mr. Remmer paid one penny of taxes. It is shown that the Cal-Neva corporate tax return was filed. This is not Mr. Remmer's individual return, but the Cal-Neva corporation [2140] floor stock on which that tax was paid. There is no evidence whatsoever he paid any portion, either directly or on behalf of the corporation, so that inclusion of that amount, $7479.22, as a part of Mr. Remmer's increase in net worth, is contrary to the evidence. I am sure your Honor is aware, as we all are, that it is proper for an expert witness to assume facts which are covered by the evidence, but it is not proper to assume facts which are not covered by the evidence, and if your Honor would care, I could cite you authority on that, Wigmore has a statement specifically in point. We object to the inclusion in this proposed exhibit of a substantially large item which is not supported by any evidence whatsoever, and the basis of our objection is because of that fact, this proposed exhibit contains portions which are contrary to and inconsistent with the evidence.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Campbell: I will ask a further question and I think we can clarify that very well. May I have the exhibit?

Q. Mr. Weaver, directing your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 175 for identification, and the item to which counsel has directed attention, namely the item of 1944 floor stock tax in amount of $7479.22, will you state the basis upon which that item was included in this schedule?

A. Yes. There is no record whatsoever on the books of Cal-Neva that floor tax in that amount was paid. The floor stock tax return itself has a notation on it showing that the amount [2141] paid as was, was paid in cash, not by check.

Q. And it was on that basis, under my instructions, that that was included?

A. Yes; also on the basis that undoubtedly Mr. Remmer——

Mr. Avakian: Object to any "undoubtedly" statements.

Mr. Campbell: Very well, the answer can stop there. I offer the exhibit in evidence.

Mr. Avakian: It still doesn't show Mr. Remmer paid the tax. If this is an equity of Cal-Neva, it has nothing to do with the defendant. Unless the defendant paid it, it is not his net worth, not his equity.

The Court: Objection will be overruled. Admitted in evidence.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, I return to you plaintiff's Exhibit 175. I call your attention first to the fact that this schedule apparently refers to two carloads of whiskey, one which you have denominated first carload, and the other second carload, is that correct? A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. Now with regard to the first carload, you have set forth on the schedule in regard to that 1197 cases certain figures of cost and have arrived at a cost price per case of that whiskey. Will you state what that cost price was? A. Per case cost?

Q. Yes. [2142] A. $27.68095.

Q. What costs were taken into consideration in arriving at that cost?

A. That included the invoice cost FOB shipping point of $24.44 a case, amounting to $29,254.68; freight and demurrage in total amount of $1006.62; State tax of $1.20 a case, or a total of $1436.40, and handling charge of $1.20 a case, or a total of $1436.40, or a total cost of first carload of $33,134.10.

Q. And from that you found your per case cost, the figure you have given of $27.68095?

A. That's right.

Q. Now with regard to that first carload, have you set forth on this schedule and taken into account the number of cases which were delivered in 1943, based on the testimony here, and the number of cases which remained then on hand at the end of the year 1943? A. Yes, I have.

Q. And have you also set forth the accumulated costs in 1944 with reference to the balance of cases of whiskey remaining as of the first of the year and the delivery of those cases during 1945?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. Yes, I have.

Q. Now as of the end of 1943, December 31, 1943, according to your schedule, how many cases remained on hand? [2143]

A. Of the first carload there were 147 cases left, with a cost of $4069.10.

Q. And during the year 1944 were any of those cases disposed of, according to your schedule?

A. No, none.

Q. Were there additional costs during that year?

A. Yes, during the year 1944 there was floor stock tax paid on it.

Q. What amount? A. $918.31.

Q. So as of December 31, 1944, what was the cost price of the 147 cases of the first carload remaining on hand? A. $4097.41.

Q. And were all of those delivered in 1945, according to the records which you have examined?

A. Yes, they were.

Q. So that none of the first carload of whiskey remained on hand as of December 31, 1945, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Now in relation to the second carload of whiskey, I believe the evidence showed consisted of 1194 cases. Did you find the cost price per case of that whiskey? A. Yes, I did.

Q. And what was that?

A. $27.72494. [2144]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. What cost did you take into consideration in arriving at that cost per case?

A. That represented invoice costs FOB shipping point of $24.44 a case, or a total of $29,181.36; freight and demurrage of total of $1006.62; State tax of $1.20 a case, or a total of $1432.80; handling charge of $1.20 a case, or a total of $1432.80, and draying of $50, making a total cost of $33,103.58 for the 1194 cases.

Q. Now according to the records which you examined in this connection, was any of that whiskey delivered in 1943?

A. No, it was all on hand at the end of 1943.

Q. Now during the year 1944 were any additional costs made in connection with that whiskey?

A. Yes, floor stock tax plus a penalty as paid herein. We have taken into account here only the tax itself of $7479.22.

Q. So that with that addition the total costs of the 1194 cases of whiskey became what amount?

A. $40,582.80.

Q. And what would that be per case?

A. $33.49894.

Q. And according to the records and testimony you heard, was a portion of that whiskey delivered in 1944?

A. Yes, in 1944 two hundred cases were delivered.

Q. Incidentally, in connection with the delivery of both the first and second carloads, have you set forth in a supporting [2145] schedule on the second

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

page of this exhibit, the dates and to whom the whiskey was delivered? A. Yes, I have.

Q. So that as of December 31, 1944, there were on hand how many cases? A. 994 cases.

Q. Having a cost price of what amount?

A. $33,785.01.

Q. During the year 1945 were any of those cases delivered and disposed of?

A. Yes, 194 cases were delivered.

Q. Having a cost price of what amount?

A. $6,593.86.

Q. So as of December 31, 1945, there were on hand how many cases of the original carload?

A. 800 cases.

Q. Having a cost price of what amount?

A. $27,191.15.

Q. Now in that connection were there received back into the whiskey on hand from the second carload certain cases which had theretofore been delivered in a prior year?

A. Yes, 100 cases were received back in 1946.

Q. From whom? A. From Cal-Neva.

Q. So that there were then on hand how many cases? [2146] A. 900.

Q. And were those cases, according to the records you examined, transferred to any one in 1946?

A. Yes, 900 cases were transferred to the Bank Club in 1946.

Q. And what was the total cost represented by those cases? A. $30,590.04.

Q. Now in connection with your examination of the various books and records, and particularly of the books and records of Cal-Neva, Inc., I will ask you if you found any entries in the books and records of Cal-Neva as to the payment of any of the costs with relation to this whiskey, either by way of its original acquisition or subsequent costs accruing on the whiskey, or the receipt by Cal-Neva of any of the money for which the whiskey was sold?

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. No, there were no entries in connection with this whiskey that appeared in the books of Cal-Neva whatsoever, except one entry, indicating the purchase by Cal-Neva from Mr. Remmer of a lot of 100 cases.

Q. But other than whiskey purchases by Cal-Neva, Inc., as shown on their books, did you find any other reference to either the payment costs or the receipt of proceeds with relation to this whiskey? A. No, none whatsoever.

Q. Now what was the amount of the whiskey which you refer to as having been reflected in the Cal-Neva books as having been [2147] delivered to Cal-Neva?

A. Represented a lot of 100 cases. I believe it was 100 cases, I am not sure of the amount.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, may we have the record then as the best evidence, rather than his hazy recollection? The records of Cal-Neva, Inc., have been available to the government. They are in evidence here.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Mr. Weaver, can you refer to the Cal-Neva records and to where that entry appears?

A. Yes.

Q. Would you do so. What book is that in?

A. Under date of September 27, 1944, on page 113 of the check register.

Q. That is exhibit——

A. 146. There is an entry E. R. Remmer, 27th day of September, check No. 6435, and the amount is $6,896, and it is charged to liquor and whiskey purchases. That refers to the purchase of——

Q. Are you reading from the book?

A. No, but I know that refers to purchase of Gallagher & Burton whiskey.

Mr. Golden: That is not responsive. The question is what the books show.

Q. Mr. Weaver, will you state in what manner you identify that as referring to the Gallagher & Burton whiskey? [2148]

A. There might have been a notation on the check itself. If I could see the original check.

Mr. Campbell: All right, we will pass that and if you will look for it during the afternoon recess we will come back to it.

Q. At any rate, that is the item which you now identify referring to that acquisition?

A. That is correct.

Q. Incidentally, in connection with your examination of the records of Cal-Neva, will you state, based upon such examination, what you found the practice of Cal-Neva, Inc., to be relative to the payment of bills, other than pay items; that is to say, were they paid by cash or by check?

A. Practically all their bills were paid by check.

Q. Now in connection with your testimony relative to the drawing account of Elmer Remmer, account No. 10 in the ledger which is before you, you made reference to certain items concerning which you made adjustments, having to do with loans totalling some eight thousand dollars to Albert Villaudy, which were charged against Mr. Remmer's account, do you recall that? A. Yes, I do.

Q. And in that connection I will ask you if you made examination and investigation for the purpose of determining when, if at all, such loans were repaid to Mr. Remmer? Answer that [2149] yes or no. A. Yes, I did.

Mr. Campbell: I wonder if the clerk would produce at this time a certificate received from the doctor of Albert Villaudy.

Mr. Golden: Your Honor, this pertains to some matters that apparently arose about a week ago while this case was in recess. We would like to have an opportunity to talk it over among ourselves.

Mr. Campbell: May I suggest I mark these for identification at this time, so counsel may see them?

The Court: All right.

Q. Mr. Weaver, I show you three checks and ask you from what source you received these?

A. I received these from Mr. Villaudy.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. I will ask that these be marked for identification as one exhibit, as 176 for identification.

By Mr. Campbell:

The Court: May I understand that the record may show the defendant was present during the past discussion.

Mr. Golden: Yes, your Honor.

Mr. Campbell: If the Court please, it has been stipulated by counsel that two checks which have been received in evidence as plaintiff's Exhibit 176 are checks of Albert Villaudy.

The Court: Isn't it correct to state by stipulation they are admitted?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Campbell: Yes, by stipulation they are admitted in evidence as plaintiff's Exhibit 176; that the checks are repayments to the defendant, Elmer Remmer, by Albert Villaudy in the amounts and upon the dates as set forth in the two checks, is that correct?

Mr. Golden: That is correct, and for clarifying——

Mr. Campbell: I am going to read them. The first one is check bearing imprint Albert Villaudy, No. 321, September 6, 1944, "Pay to the order of Mr. Elmer Remmer $2,600," signed A. Villaudy, drawn on the Melrose Brae Branch Hollywood, California, Bank of America and endorsed Elmer Remmer and Harold H. Maundrell. The second is similar check, being No. 441, dated January 8, 1945, pay to the order of Elmer Remmer, two thousand dollars, and signed by A. Villaudy, bearing the endorsement [2151] of Elmer Remmer and F. W. Griss.

Q. Mr. Weaver, are you familiar with the personal exemptions allowed by law to a married person without dependents for the years 1935 and 1946, inclusive? Will you answer that yes or no?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. And have you, at my request, set forth on a schedule the amount of such exemptions as allowed by the Internal Revenue Code for each such years?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. Will you produce it. That is the document which you have just handed me? A. Yes.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Campbell: I will ask that this be marked for identification as 177 for identification.

Q. In that connection, Mr. Weaver, I asked you upon this schedule to place a sub-total with reference to the years 1935 to 1941, inclusive, showing the total amount of exemption provided by law of a married person in those seven years. Have you done that upon this schedule?

A. Yes, I have.

Mr. Campbell: We offer it as 177.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, with respect to that, we offer the objection on these grounds: first, that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial insofar as it relates to years prior to the indictment period and also to a year subsequent to the [2152] indictment period; secondly, that it relates to matters which are not covered by the evidence, namely matter of dependents during that entire 14-year period, and the third ground is simply for the purpose of obtaining from this Court, in the event there may be other offers, both by the prosecution and the defense, as to the extent to which an expert witness may present testimony based on his interpretation of the law, and for that purpose we want to object now, for the purpose of our own cross-examination and on direct testimony, as to whether the Court—and we know it is within the Court's discretion—is going to permit a witness to testify as to what the law is, and the third ground of the objection then is that the substance and contents of the exhibit contain matters of law and this is the witness' interpretation of the law.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Campbell: I might state, your Honor, that this is a matter of law set forth by law and the amount of personal exemption—I am offering this exhibit merely as a convenience. So far as the interpretation is concerned, it is not a matter of interpretation. The law sets forth in round figures what the exemption is for each year. As to the year 1947 feature, I have no objection to strike that from the exhibit, if counsel has serious objection to that.

Mr. Avakian: I do not know what the materiality of it is, your Honor. I would not make the objection if I was not serious. If it isn't material, it shouldn't be in. If counsel [2153] can point to the materiality——

Mr. Campbell: The year 1947 may be stricken.

The Court: The exhibit may be admitted in evidence, 177. I assume from remarks of counsel that there is no question as to the accuracy of the document. If there was, we might have it checked.

Mr. Avakian: No, I don't question the accuracy in one respect. In another respect, it is a matter of interpretation and analysis of evidence as to whether there were any dependents.

The Court: That is the thought I had in admitting the exhibit in evidence, that you did not raise any question as to the accuracy of the scheduled exemptions.

Mr. Campbell: The materiality or application

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

to the evidence here I think is the basis of the objection.

Mr. Avakian: Primarily I was interested in knowing to what extent this Court would permit a witness to set forth in an exhibit of what the law means.

The Court: I do not understand this to be an expressed opinion of what the law means or interpretation of the law. It is merely a recitation of a statutory matter.

Mr. Avakian: It isn't that easy. A grammar school child couldn't do it. It takes some one who reads difficult [2154] language to go through the Internal Revenue code and read what is contained in there.

The Court: Well, that is the basis of my ruling. I don't intend to go much farther than that.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, during the course of your investigation of this case, both as to the work done by you personally and by referring to the work done under your direction by other agents, did you attempt to ascertain whether or not, at any time before December 31, 1946, the defendant, Elmer Remmer, received any property or money—by property I refer to both real and personal—by means of any devise, bequests, inheritance or gift? Will you answer that yes or no?

A. Yes, I did.

Mr. Golden: May the answer go out?

The Court: The answer may go out.

Mr. Golden: My objection is it calls for conclu-

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

sion and also calls for an opinion in a field in which he is not an expert, as to what is devise, bequest and inheritance.

The Court: This question was merely whether or not he made an examination.

Mr. Golden: The question was did he, and others under his supervision, attempt to make an investigation as to whether any property was so received. Now that calls for conclusion.

The Court: He answered that he did make an attempt. The answer may stand. [2155]

Q. Will you state—without including in your answer to this question the results of your investigation—will you state the nature of the investigation which you made, the nature and its extent?

A. We determined the place of residence at the time of the death of the parents of both Mr. and Mrs. Remmer and examined the indexed records of the probate courts in both those locations.

Q. What other investigation did you make as to gifts or inheritances?

A. We spoke to the only living relatives of Mr. Remmer who has any considerable amount of property, and that was his brother——

Mr. Avakian (Interrupting): Now he is stating conclusion and opinion.

The Court: It may go out.

Q. State simply what investigation was made and not any conclusions or findings you made from it.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. Well, we did talk to him, that was part of our investigation.

Mr. Avakian: May that be stricken?

The Court: That may stand.

Mr. Avakian: I am sorry—I thought he said he didn't talk to him.

Q. What other investigation did you [2156] make?

A. We saw an inventory of his mother's estate, which listed only one item of real property, and that was——

Mr. Avakian: Just a minute——

Mr. Golden: He was asked to tell what he did.

Q. Did you examine probate records?

A. Yes.

Q. Where? What counties?

A. In San Francisco County, where Mrs. Remmer——

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment—again stating conclusions.

Q. State what you examined.

A. We examined probate records in San Francisco County and Alameda County.

Q. During the course of that investigation, did you determine where Mr. Remmer's father's death had occurred? Answer yes or no.

A. Yes.

Q. And did you examine the probate records of that county? A. Yes, I did.

Q. And did you do the same with respect to his mother? A. Yes, I did.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. And did you examine members of his family?

A. Yes.

Q. Will you state whether or not you, and those under your direction, examined the records of banks and trust companies?

A. Yes, we did. [2157]

Q. I will ask you whether or not you examined into——

Mr. Avakian (Interrupting): Your Honor, these are all leading and suggestive. Can't the witness testify what he examined?

The Court: I think leading questions here might help to avoid your previous objections of keeping the witness from wandering away and making some conclusions.

Mr. Avakian: All the witness needs to do is to state what he did. He knows what he did.

The Court: The objection will be overruled. You may answer the question.

Mr. Campbell: I think he did answer the question.

Q. Did you, during the course of your examination and investigation, examine friends and business associates of Mr. Remmer?

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment, your Honor. We again object to that as calling for opinion and conclusion as to who are friends and who are business associates. If he examined particular people, he can name them, but the characterization leaves us uncertain as to who he talked to.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: Objection overruled. You can go into it on cross-examination.

Mr. Avakian: It is calling for opinions and conclusion as to who are friends and who are business associates. [2158]

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you, during the course of your examination, make every effort within your ability to ascertain any and all of Mr. Remmer's properties, real or personal, and its source?

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment—object to that as calling for opinion and conclusion, particularly the portion as to the best of his ability.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Will you state, Mr. Weaver, what other investigation, if any, you made for the purpose of determining the ownership of Mr. Remmer in property, real or personal, and the sources from which it was acquired, without stating what you found, but stating the nature of the investigation which you conducted?

A. I have made a summary that refers to that.

Q. Do you have that summary on hand?

A. Yes.

Q. Will you produce it. Now you have produced here a number of sheets, consisting of some nine pages, is that the summary to which you refer?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Is this a summary to which you wish to refer

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

to refresh your recollection as to the exact nature of the inquiry which you made? [2159]

A. Yes, they are.

Q. I observe here, for the purpose of further identification, that you have set forth certain dates. Is that the date the particular inquiry or examination took place to which the notes refer?

A. It may be the date the inquiry took place or the date the reply was received to the inquiry.

Q. I take it then that some of your inquiries were made by correspondence, as well as by person?

A. Yes, that's right.

Q. Did this inquiry include matters of public records?

The Court: Just a minute—do you want to examine that?

Mr. Avakian: We do not care how you proceed, but we want to examine it.

Mr. Campbell: I have this before me to refresh my own recollection as to certain questions.

The Court: All right.

Q. Mr. Weaver, did you examine or cause to be examined any public records? A. Yes, I did.

Q. And will you state, as best you recall at this time, prior to refreshing your recollection from this document, what those records consisted of; that is, the nature of the records of what offices?

A. The offices of the recorder of San Francisco County and [2160] the county clerk in respect to both civil and criminal actions. The same records in the County of Alameda and Contra Costa County and San Mateo County and San Joaquin County and in Washoe County, Nevada. Records from the recorder's office for periods that I can't recall off-hand of Los Angeles County.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Did you examine other recorder's records?

A. That's all I remember.

Q. Of each of those counties that you have stated? A. Yes.

Q. And in that connection I will ask you if you examined the real property records of those counties in the recorder's office? A. Yes, I did.

Q. And will you state whether or not they also included probate records?

A. Only examined the probate records in the Counties of San Francisco and Alameda; except, perhaps in some smaller counties where those indexes might have included with others that are covered during the examination.

Q. I believe you stated that you also examined civil cases filed in certain counties, is that correct?

A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. In that connection, did you examine the files and records for those actions?

A. Yes, I did. [2161]

Q. Now, in connection with the ownership of property—I think, your Honor, before I pursue this line, the document should probably be made available to the witness because in some instances at least I can duplicate it without appearing to do so. May I suggest a recess.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Avakian: Will counsel trust us with it over night?

The Court: I don't think you should make that remark in that regard.

Mr. Avakian: It was an inquiry.

The Court: I know, but be a little more gentle in your inquiry.

Mr. Avakian: I was smiling I thought.

The Court: The smile doesn't go in the record.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Weaver, I am going to return to you plaintiff's Exhibit 178 for identification, which you stated yesterday you required to refresh your recollection as to questions asked you regarding the scope and extent of the investigation which you made, or was made under your direction, relative to the affairs of Elmer Remmer. I will ask you to state, without including in your answer what your investigation disclosed, what, if any public or semi-public records you examined or caused to be examined?

A. We examined the records of the recorders for various counties.

Q. What counties?

A. Relative to either real estate purchases or sales in San Mateo County and San Francisco County and Alameda County and Contra Costa County and Washoe County and San Joaquin County and in Los Angeles County.

Q. All of those, with the exception of Washoe County, are in California?

A. That is correct. [2163]

Q. Washoe County is in Nevada?

A. Yes.

Q. All right, proceed.

A. We also examined some of the county records with respect to probate proceedings, in most cases had to do——

Q. No, just state in what county.

A. In Alameda County and in San Francisco County.

Q. Proceed.

A. We examined the records of the San Francisco police department of the civil and criminal and bankruptcy actions in the United States District Court in the clerk's office in San Francisco and also in the clerk's office in Carson City. I secured a copy of the sworn statement of Mrs. Remmer given in Stockton——

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment—I think we are getting into contents.

Mr. Campbell: He is not stating any contents.

The Court: You may proceed.

A. We examined the records in the Collector's office in Reno for the period, 1930 to 1943, inclusive.

Q. The Collector of Internal Revenue?

A. Yes, I examined the record of certain civil actions in the County of San Francisco. Made inquiry of the United States Treasury Department in Washington, and in the Chicago Regional Office relative to United States savings bonds, or any other United States bonds that might have been purchased. We made [2164] inquiry of credit agencies in Reno, Stockton and San Francisco.

Q. Does that cover that phase of the matter?

A. Yes. We also made inquiry at the Collector's office in San Francisco for any returns filed for the period 1930 to 1943, inclusive. I made unofficial inquiries—they were official inquiries, but hadn't occurred to me——

Q. Never mind. Now, will you relate of what banks or financial institutions you made inquiries, or caused to be made?

A. Made inquiries of all banks in San Francisco, of all of the branches of the Bank of America in Oakland and Berkeley.

Q. You say of all banks in San Francisco?

A. Yes, sir. The First National Bank of Nevada, Carson City Branch and the Lake Tahoe

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Branch, the Farmers Bank of Carson Valley at Minden, the First National Bank of Nevada, both of the Reno branches, Security National Bank of Reno, Manufacturers Trust Company of New York City, First National Bank of Bellmore, Bellmore, New York; Stockton Savings & Loan Bank, Bank of America in Tracy, Mechanics Bank in El Cerrito, California. We also made some search of film records at the Bank of America's Transit Department in San Francisco, as well as looking at detailed records of certain of the banks that I have mentioned.

Q. You refer to the Transit Department of the Bank of America?

A. The Transit Department handles all of the items going in or out of San Francisco to any of the branches of the Bank of America. [2165]

Q. In other words, the Bank of America has its own clearing department as among its various offices, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And the Transit Department handles their business in the way of interchange of the credits or debits as between the various branches of the Bank of America, is that correct?

A. That's right.

Q. Does that cover the banks and financial institutions? A. Yes, it does.

Q. Now, in what city or cities did you make, or cause to be made, investigations relative to Mr. Remmer's connections there?

A. Investigations or inquiries were made in

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

New York and Honolulu and Fresno and New Orleans, in Portland, Las Vegas, Los Angeles, Sacramento, Santa Rosa, Reno, and the cities surrounding the Bay Area, such as Oakland and El Cerrito.

Q. And San Francisco as well?

A. Yes. That about covers the various places.

Q. Now, during the course of your investigation did you also interview, or cause to be interviewed, business associates of Mr. Remmer?

A. Yes. The persons interviewed——

Mr. Golden: That is the answer to the question, your Honor—the question has been answered.

The Court: Yes, the question has been answered.

Q. Will you state whether or not in that connection you [2166] interviewed all such former business associates as you were able to contact?

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment—that calls for his opinion and conclusion, your Honor.

The Court: Objection will be overruled.

A. Yes, all that we could contact were interviewed.

Q. And will you state whether or not inquiries were made on the subject of Mr. Remmer's living expenses? A. Yes.

Q. And will you state the nature, without stating the findings, of the investigation in that regard?

A. Well, in that respect we made inquiry of the credit associations in Reno, Stockton and San Francisco. We also made inquiry of various retail and wholesale establishments in Chicago, San Francisco, Del Mar, California; Inglewood, California;

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Berkeley, Long Island, New York; San Bruno, California; Oakland, California; Arcadia, California; Carson City, Richmond, California; Lafayette, California; Oakland, California; Los Angeles, California; Beverley Hills, California; Stockton California, and Kansas City.

Q. Now, in connection with your investigation, Mr. Weaver, did you attempt to follow up every lead from whatever source having to do with Mr. Remmer's business affairs? A. Yes.

Mr. Avakian: May we have the question? [2167]

The Court: The answer may go out.

Mr. Avakian: That calls for conclusion and characterization of quality and work he did. It is not factual.

The Court: Overruled. Answer the question.

A. Yes, we attempted to follow every lead that we received from any source.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, during the course of your examination, did you find any evidence or indication that Mr. Remmer received any money or property by gift or inheritance?

Mr. Avakian: We object to that, your Honor, because it is obviously calling for results of his investigation, what he found or didn't find. That is not testimony, that is conclusion as to what his investigation was. It is not based on evidence in the record but on other things he said he did. Not a proper way to establish it.

Mr. Campbell: I would submit, your Honor——

The Court (Interceding): Objection overruled.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. We found no evidence or even any indication of any gifts or inheritance.

Q. Now, during the course of your investigation—I will ask that you answer this question yes or no—during the course of your investigation, were you able to determine the living expenses of Mr. Remmer for the years, 1944 to 1946, inclusive?

A. No, we were not.

Q. Now, were you able, during the course of your investigation, [2168] to ascertain the contents of any of the safes or safety deposit boxes, concerning which evidence has been produced here, as of any date during the period January 1, 1944, to December 31, 1946?

A. No, sir, we never ascertained the contents of any safe.

Q. Or at any date during your investigation?

A. No, sir.

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment—you are going beyond the period 1944 to 1946.

Mr. Campbell: I asked any date.

Mr. Avakian: I object to the question so far as it goes outside the period——

The Court: The answer may stand.

Mr. Avakian: Was the answer given?

Mr. Campbell: The answer was no.

Q. Now, during the course of the investigation, did you or any of your agents who were working under your direction, talk to the defendant, Elmer Remmer?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Avakian: May that be answered yes or no, your Honor?

The Court: It may.

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you—and you may also answer this yes or no—did you make an effort or attempt to talk to Mr. Remmer concerning the matters of your investigation?

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment, your Honor, we object to that question as improper, in violation of the legal rights of [2169] the defendant and the asking of that question in the presence of the jury is prejudicial and misconduct on the part of the prosecution. If your Honor would care to hear argument on the matter, we would be glad to take it up.

The Court: The objection will be sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Will the jury be instructed to disregard that?

The Court: Oh, there is no need of that. I have told the jury about five or six times that the only thing that they are concerned with, and the only basis of their verdict, must be what they hear here legally admitted in evidence and documents admitted in evidence. I am sure this jury is not so apt to depart from that as believe—I am sure they won't.

Q. Mr. Weaver, during the course of your examination, did you have before you the returns filed by Mr. Remmer, which are here in evidence?

A. Yes, I did.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. And did you also have before you the returns which are here in evidence of the various enterprises in which he had, or purported to have, an interest? A. Yes, I did.

Q. And did you have before you the books and records which have been produced here?

A. Yes. [2170]

Mr. Campbell: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Q. Mr. Weaver, in your direct examination you stated that you had studied accounting at the University of Pittsburgh, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. When did you receive the bachelor's degree there? A. In 1928.

Q. And you obtained your master's degree in business administration at Northwestern University? A. That is correct.

Q. What year did you obtain that degree?

A. In 1930.

Q. When was it that you did this work with the subsidiary of Paramount Pictures Corporation?

A. '29 and '30.

Q. Where was that?

A. That was in Chicago.

Q. Were you going to school at Northwestern at the same time? A. Yes, I was in school.

Q. Subsequently you had about a year's practice in Emmaus, Pennsylvania? How do you pronounce that? A. Emmaus.

Q. Was that entirely your own practice or were you associated with others? [2171]

A. It was entirely my own.

Q. When was that year of practice in Emmaus?

A. It was in 1932 or 1933.

Q. Now, you also stated that you taught accounting subjects for about four years. During what four-year period did you do that teaching?

A. 1930-31 was one period.

Q. And where did you teach then?

A. Lafayette, Colorado.

Q. Was that full time teaching? A. Yes.

Q. What subjects did you teach?

A. Accounting, economics and sociology.

Q. Was that one school year, 1930-31?

A. That is right.

Q. Where did you teach next?

A. At Northwestern University.

Q. When was that?

A. That was the following year, 1931-32.

Q. The school year 1931-32? A. Yes.

Q. Was that likewise full time?

A. That was part time on a teaching fellowship.

Q. And your next school where you taught?

A. Was William Penn College. [2172]

Q. When was that? A. 1933-'34.

Q. And that, I believe, is located in Iowa?

A. That's right.

Q. Was that full time teaching? A. Yes.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. And likewise in accounting subjects?

A. Yes, that's right.

Q. And then you taught at Whitworth College in Spokane? A. That is right.

Q. What year was that? A. 1934-'35.

Q. Was that likewise full time? A. Yes.

Q. So that you taught in Lafayette 1930-31, Northwestern '31-'32, then you had this year in your own private accounting practice in Emmaus, Pennsylvania, is that right? A. Yes.

Q. And two more years teaching?

A. Yes.

Q. And that brings us to 1935 and I believe you said that is when you went with the Internal Revenue Bureau? A. That is right.

Q. During the course of your employment by the subsidiary of Paramount Pictures, what type of accounting were you doing? [2173]

A. General ledger bookkeeping, accounting, preparation of financial statements.

Q. Bookkeeping and preparing financial statements for that particular company?

A. That is right.

Q. What was the nature of your practice during the year that you practiced in Emmaus, Pennsylvania?

A. Auditing and preparation of tax returns.

Q. And Emmaus, I take it, is a fairly small town? A. Yes, about eight thousand.

Q. You represented mostly small business men in Emmaus?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. That's right. There was one or two corporations there represented.

Q. And did you represent partnerships in the course of that practice?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Did you prepare any partnership tax returns during that year of private practice?

A. No, sir.

Q. From 1935 until approximately 1940 you were in the office of the Internal Revenue agent?

A. Until 1941.

Q. And was that in San Francisco?

A. That's right.

Q. The entire period? [2174] A. Yes.

Q. What type of work were you doing for the Internal Revenue?

A. I was field agent until the last year I was there, when I was engaged in reviewing for several months before transfer.

Q. During the time you were field agent, you made audits of tax returns filed by various taxpayers and business organizations? A. Yes.

Q. And did that include audits of returns filed by partnerships? A. Yes.

Q. And you became familiar, then, with the manner of preparing partnership returns?

A. Well, more familiar than before.

Q. In other words, you had experience during that period with the problems involved in preparing partnership returns, is that correct?

A. That's right.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Now, what happened to your accounting career in 1941? You went in the service then, is that right?

A. No, in 1941 I transferred to the Intelligence Division.

Q. And then were you in the Intelligence Unit until this date?

A. Except for the period of war time.

Q. When was that? A. 1943 to 1946.

Q. From 1941 to 1943 and from 1943 to 1946 until the present [2175] you were in the Intelligence Unit, or as it is now called, the Intelligence Division, is that right? A. That's right.

Q. When you were in the Internal Revenue Agent's office, your work there dealt primarily in auditing tax returns to determine the correctness of income tax as reported on returns you were auditing, is that right?

Mr. Campbell: I object to the question in that form.

The Court: Let me have the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. Yes, that was my primary duty.

Q. The Internal Revenue Agent's office is a branch of the Internal Revenue Bureau which is independent of the Intelligence Division, is that correct?

A. It is independent in the sense it is not under

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

their control. It is inter-independent in the sense that we work jointly in certain cases.

Q. You work jointly but you are really different units? A. That is correct.

Q. And the function of the Intelligence Division now is principally that of investigating cases in which there are alleged, or suspected to be, some fraud in connection with federal taxes, primarily income taxes, is that right?

A. Yes, that is right. [2176]

Q. So that when you transferred to the Intelligence Unit, you entered into that different phase of work dealing primarily with the question of investigating frauds, or suspected frauds, is that right? A. Yes, that's correct.

Q. Now, you have presented various exhibits here, which purport to set forth the net worth of certain businesses which you and your associates examined. Can you explain to us what the term "net worth" means in an accounting sense?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as a fact not in evidence. There is a certain charge here which reflect what the books show the net worth to be, or what the books which are here in evidence reflect as to certain assets and liabilities.

Mr. Avakian: That is not true——

The Court: Let me have the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. In the manner in which the term "net worth" is used in a net worth case, it refers to the net cost of the assets which a taxpayer owns after deducting his outstanding obligations.

Q. Would it be correct to say that it is the difference between all the assets and all of the liabilities?

A. Well, it doesn't go quite far enough because it is specifically said the assets at cost.

Q. In other words then, it would be correct to say, for the [2177] purpose of determining income by the net worth method, the term net worth means the difference between all the assets valued at cost and all of the liabilities likewise valued at cost?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to—that is misleading —the cost of liabilities. I do not understand the liabilities are what you own.

The Court: Well, the witness may answer the question.

A. Well, the liabilities would be at cost value.

Q. And the assets valued at cost, is that right?

A. That is right.

Q. And valued at cost to whom? To the person or entity whose net worth you are determining?

A. That's right.

Q. In order then to determine the correct and accurate net worth of a particular taxpayer or entity that you are analyzing, would it be necessary to have before you all of the assets and all of the liabilities as of the particular date for which you were determining the net worth?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. In order to determine the correct net worth as of that particular date, yes.

Q. So that if any particular asset or liability were omitted, then you would not have a correct and accurate net worth computation?

A. The net worth computation would not be correct, but the [2178] income computation may be.

Q. By that you mean that the income computation is based on increasing the net worth, is that right? A. That's right.

Q. You are, I believe, a certified public accountant, is that right? A. Yes.

Q. Can you tell us the significance of the word "certified" in that designation?

A. Well, it is merely you have passed an examination prescribed by some State statute.

Q. And in the accounting business it is customary, is it not, for a certified public accountant to make audits which he certifies to be correct in an accounting sense? A. That is right.

Q. An accountant who is not a certified public accountant does not have the privilege of submitting a certified audit, is that correct?

A. Well, he may.

Q. Where the State statute calls for certain qualifications?

A. It depends on the State statute.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

Q. You are certified in what State?

A. Iowa.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Is that the only State you are [2179] certified? A. Yes.

Q. In connection with the computation of net income on net worth method, it is necessary, is it not, Mr. Weaver, to determine the net worth at the beginning of the particular period that is covered by your income computation?

A. Yes.

Q. And that is commonly referred to as the starting point, is it not?

A. I have heard it referred to as such by many attorneys here.

Q. Well, don't accountants refer to the beginning point as the starting point of the net worth computation?

A. From mechanics standpoint, actually each new year presents a new beginning point.

Q. I said for whatever period is involved in your income computation, the beginning is called the starting point, isn't that right, whether one year or three years, whatever it may be?

A. That's right.

Q. In computing the net worth, at the starting point it is necessary, in order to make an accurate computation of net worth increase, to determine the amount of cash, if any, which that particular taxpayer or entity possessed at the starting point, isn't that correct?

A. That is highly desirable, yes.

Q. Well, if there is cash in existence at that time, you can [2180] not make an accurate com-

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

putation of net worth at the starting point without knowing the amount of the cash, is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And it is likewise true, is it not, Mr. Weaver, that in order to make an accurate computation of net income on the net worth method, it is essential to know the amount of cash, if any, at the end of the period for which you are making the computation?

A. Yes, unless the cash remains constant.

Q. In other words, you have to know what the cash picture is at the beginning and end in order to make an accurate computation, don't you?

A. Yes, we always try to determine that if we can get the information.

Q. I believe you stated that you, did you not, were unable to determine the amount of cash that was in the various safes and safe deposit boxes which have been mentioned in evidence here, at any time during the period covered by your investigation?

A. That is right because Mr. Remmer——

Mr. Avakian: Just a minute——

Mr. Campbell: I submit he has a right to finish his answer.

The Court: You may proceed.

Mr. Avakian: The question has been answered. I ask the rest go out. [2181]

The Court: He may proceed.

Mr. Golden: It is purely voluntarily and gratuitous.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: He may proceed.

(Question and answer read.)

The Court: You may proceed.

A. ——because Mr. Remmer refused to talk to us to give us any information whatever, including cash.

Q. Did he make that refusal to you?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. Where was that made?

A. In Mr. Thatcher's office in Reno.

Q. When? A. April 8, 1948.

Q. April 8, 1948, in Mr. Thatcher's office in Reno? A. Yes.

Q. And Mr. Thatcher is an attorney in Reno?

A. That is right.

Q. Do you know the name of his firm?

A. At that time it was known as Thatcher, Woodburn and Forman.

Q. And do you remember which Mr. Thatcher it was? A. John P. Thatcher.

Q. That is the younger one? A. Yes.

Q. Was that in his private office?

A. I believe so. [2182]

Q. Who was present?

A. Present at the time were Mr. Thatcher, Mr. Remmer, the young lady from the Collector's office, who was the stenographer, I can't recall her name at the moment, Mr. Harkness and Mr. Morgan and myself.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. And all these people you named were present in the same room? A. Yes.

Q. In Mr. Thatcher's private office?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Just what was it that Mr. Remmer said to you at that time?

A. Mr. Thatcher stated that he had advised Mr. Remmer not to answer any questions or make any statement to us whatsoever and I asked Mr. Remmer if that was his own conclusion in the matter and he said yes.

Q. Did he say the statement was on the advice of the lawyer?

A. I don't recall as he stated that, but he apparently followed the lawyer's advice.

Q. Were these statements preceded by any other discussions between those of you who were present? Just answer yes or no. A. Yes.

Q. And isn't it a fact that prior to that statement being made Mr. Thatcher asked you if you would state what it was that you wanted to talk to Mr. Remmer about?

A. Yes. We told him we wanted to talk to him about his income [2183] tax affairs.

Q. Isn't it a fact that Mr. Thatcher asked you if you would state what particular problems you wanted to talk about?

A. He asked if we had any particular charges and we said we couldn't make any charges, we were only making an investigation.

Q. Isn't it a fact Mr. Thatcher asked you

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

whether or not you were planning to recommend criminal prosecution of Mr. Remmer?

A. I told him I couldn't answer that question before he was investigated.

Q. He asked you that and you gave him that answer? A. Yes.

Q. Isn't it a fact Mr. Thatcher told you unless you were willing to state what you had in mind by way of specific problems as to taxes, as to whether or not you would recommend criminal prosecution, he would not permit you to question Mr. Remmer?

A. Yes, and I told him I couldn't make any recommendations or reach any conclusions until the investigation was made.

Q. That was your reply?

A. Yes, I told him that questioning Mr. Remmer was part of the investigation and that until that was done I couldn't make any proper recommendations.

Q. And didn't Mr. Thatcher also ask you if you would not state what particular accounting problems you were concerned with in the forthcoming interview?

A. He didn't refer to accounting problems so much as to what [2184] specific charges I might have against Mr. Remmer.

Q. And did you, at that time, have in your mind particular problems that you wanted to ask Mr. Remmer?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent.

The Court: Objection sustained.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Did you tell Mr. Thatcher any particular problems that you planned to discuss with him and Mr. Remmer?

A. I believe I said that we wanted to determine what his living expenses were. I don't know if we went into any detailed discussion.

Q. Isn't it a fact that you declined Mr. Thatcher's request for a statement as to the particular thing that you wanted to question him about?

A. It would be impossible to list all of the items he might be questioned about because the questioning process itself raised other questions.

Q. But isn't it a fact that you declined to state to him the things that you already had in mind at the time of making the inquiry?

A. No. I declined to make any statement with respect to any charges because I am not in position to make any charges.

Q. What do you mean by charges?

A. Well, charges are made only as the result of indictment.

Q. I don't know what you mean by the word "charges."

A. Well, that is the word that Mr. Thatcher used. I presume [2185] he meant legal charges. We can not make any charges against any one.

Q. Is it customary, during the course of the investigations which you have made, to discuss with the taxpayer or his representatives the particular issues of the case as you see them and to state to them the things that you consider to be incorrect in the treatment which the taxpayer or his representatives gave to those items, in the preparation of tax returns?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to, what is customary; we are concerned with what is done.

Mr. Avakian: Customary in his investigations, your Honor.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. In the course of this investigation, you obtained various records of these businesses from a number of representatives of the particular businesses that you were investigating, isn't that right?

A. Yes, that's right.

Q. You and the other people working under you? A. Yes.

Q. You obtained information from Mr. Kyne, did you not, you and your staff? A. Yes.

Q. And Mr. Maundrell?

A. That is right.

Q. And Mr. Slater? [2186] A. Yes.

Q. And Mr. Ayton? A. Yes.

Q. Any other representatives of these businesses from which you or your associates obtained records or information?

A. Yes, we interviewed quite a number of employees.

Q. Now, in the course of this investigation did you, or any other member of your staff, at any time state to any of these representatives, with whom you dealt, that there was some particular

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

item that you thought had not been treated correctly?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial and incompetent, what might have been stated or not stated to some third party.

The Court: Let me have the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question. Do you understand the question? Read the question.

(Question read.)

A. I am sure we must have mentioned repeatedly the inadequacy of the records.

Q. Perhaps you didn't understand the question. Would you like to have it read again?

Mr. Campbell: I submit that is answered.

The Court: If the witness wants it read again, he may have it read. Do you want it read again?

A. No, I don't believe so. [2187]

Q. Do you understand the question? Did you or your staff state to any of these representatives, with whom you dealt, that there was any particular matter which you thought had been treated improperly in the preparation of tax returns?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as asked and answered.

The Court: You may answer.

A. The matter of the adequacy of the records, or inadequacy rather, I am sure was repeatedly mentioned to the representatives. Normally we wouldn't mention any item on Mr. Remmer's personal returns to a third party. It would be highly improper.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Take the Menlo Club as an example. You knew, did you not, that one of the partners, Mr. Maundrell, was the person who kept the books of the Menlo Club? A. Yes.

Q. Did you at any time, you or any of your representatives, state to Mr. Maundrell that any particular item in the affairs of the Menlo Club had been treated improperly from a tax accounting point of view in the preparation of the Menlo Club return by Mr. Maundrell or Mr. Ayton?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial what he told or failed to tell Mr. Maundrell.

The Court: I think it is. Objection sustained.

Q. Well, let us take the Day-Night Cigar Store. You knew, did you not, that Mr. Maundrell was bookkeeper for that concern during the time he was employed? [2188]

A. Mr. Slater was the bookkeeper for most of the period covered here.

Q. Mr. Slater first and later Mr. Maundrell, is that right? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Did you discuss the affairs of the Day-Night Cigar Store with either of those men?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Do you know who the bookkeeper was for 110 Eddy Street?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. Mr. Slater during most of the period covered here and then I believe Mr. Maundrell.

Q. Did Mr. Slater and Mr. Maundrell sit down with you and your representatives and discuss matters of the 110 Eddy Club every time that you requested them?

A. I have no recollection of their refusing.

Q. They gave you every possible cooperation, did they not? A. Yes.

Q. And they turned over to you all the records they had, so far as you know?

A. So far as I know, they did.

Q. And they turned over promptly when requested? A. Yes.

Q. Was that also true of Mr. Kyne?

A. Yes sir.

Q. And was that also true of Mr. Ayton? [2189]

A. Yes it was.

Q. Was that also true of the other representatives of these concerns that you said that you talked to?

A. That is true. Of course, none of them had any knowledge of the cash on hand or Mr. Remmer's personal finances.

Q. By cash on hand you are referring to cash that might have been on box No. 48 in the safety deposit box? A. Yes, or in any of the safes.

Q. And you know, do you not, that Willie Kyne had access to box 48 in the safe deposit box of the Bank of America?

A. Yes, but he could give no information as to cash on hand at any particular date.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. The fact is he told you there was no record which would show that?

A. Yes, and he refused us access to the box also.

Q. When was that? Was that after 1946?

A. Yes.

Q. So that looking at the box after 1946 you wouldn't be able to determine how much was there during any of this indictment period?

A. No, unless the amount remained constant and some record was there.

Q. And you know, do you not, that Mr. Kyne made frequent entries into that box during the entire period covered by this indictment? [2190]

A. I don't know how frequent they were.

Q. You examined those records, did you not?

A. I don't recall whether any records of entries were examined or not.

Q. You don't know what records of entries of the bank were you examined by your staff?

A. I do not recall that.

MR. WEAVER

resumes the witness stand on further

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Q. Mr. Weaver, the date of this conference in Mr. Thatcher's office has slipped my mind. It was in 1948, I believe. Will you give us again the date?

A. April 8, 1948.

Q. And that conference had been arranged pursuant to prior communications between you and Mr. Thatcher?

A. I believe it was between myself and Mr. Kyne.

Q. And then pursuant to the communications between you and Mr. Kyne, you and your associates appeared in Mr. Thatcher's office, is that [2191] right? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Do you remember what time of the day this was?

A. I believe it was in the morning. I have a memorandum of the time somewhere in my papers.

Q. Would you get that?

Mr. Campbell: I suggest it is immaterial.

Mr. Avakian: If he can refresh his recollection, I think it is proper for him to refer to it.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: Suppose we postpone that for the time being. He can get it during the recess, will that be satisfactory?

Mr. Avakian: Yes, surely, if it will take some time, we can defer it.

A. I believe it is upstairs.

Mr. Avakian: Very well.

Q. You say there was a stenographer, member of the Reno office of the Bureau of Internal Revenue there also? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Did she transcript the meeting?

A. No, Mr. Thatcher would not permit her to take notes.

Q. She took no notes? A. No.

Q. You and your men also took notes?

A. I made a memorandum of the interview afterward.

Q. How long did this interview last? [2192]

A. I would say approximately 15 or 20 minutes.

Q. Do you remember in what particular building that took place? Let me ask—was it the building in which Mr. Thatcher had his offices?

A. Yes.

Q. And it was in one of the private offices in that suite of offices? A. That is right.

Q. Was it Mr. Thatcher's office, do you know?

A. I believe it was.

Q. Was he the only member of the firm who was present there? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Woodburn was not present?

A. No sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Was Mr. Remmer present in the room when you and your associates entered Mr. Thatcher's office? A. Yes.

Q. Was any one else beside himself and Mr. Thatcher present? A. Not that I recall.

Q. Will you state again who was with you beside the stenographer, what other agents?

A. Mr. Morgan, Mr. Harkness and myself.

Q. The three of you? A. Yes.

Q. And you entered the room together, I take it? [2193] A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And then you were all present during this entire conversation? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall specifically that Mr. Remmer was there when you entered?

A. That is my present recollection, yes.

Q. Do you remember where he was sitting?

A. I believe he was sitting to the right of the room. I remember him distinctly because he was wearing Western boots.

Q. You are quite positive, are you, Mr. Weaver, that Mr. Remmer was there during that conversation that you had? A. I spoke to him.

Q. You are quite positive he was there?

A. Yes.

Q. You are sure you are not mistaken about that? A. Absolutely.

Q. Isn't it a fact that Mr. Thatcher met with you in the absence of Mr. Remmer and had some discussion with you about the case without Mr. Remmer being present in the same room?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Campbell: On this same occasion?

Q. On this occasion? A. Not that I recall.

Q. Isn't it a fact that Mr. Thatcher told you before he called Mr. Remmer into the room he wanted to get some idea of [2194] what the case was about? A. I don't recall that at all.

Q. You say that isn't a fact?

A. I don't recall that. I wouldn't say you were misstating facts.

Q. Isn't it a fact that Mr. Remmer was never in that conference room on that occasion?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative, asked and answered.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I can't ask if something isn't a fact?

The Court: You already asked and he said he was.

Mr. Avakian: Isn't it proper to refresh his recollection by asking if something else isn't true? That is proper cross-examination.

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Q. Were you introduced to Mr. Remmer at that time? A. Yes.

Q. Who introduced you?

A. Mr. Thatcher, as I recall.

Q. Well, are you sure of that now?

A. I don't know who else could.

Q. Are you guessing or do you have a definite recollection?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. Well, he is the only one there that knew Mr. Remmer before. [2195]

Q. I am trying to find out whether you are guessing or specifically remember. Which is it?

Mr. Campbell: Oh, I object.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Isn't it a fact that you never met Mr. Remmer prior to the start of this trial?

A. Prior to——

Q. The commencement of the trial of this case?

A. No, that is not a fact.

Q. That is not a fact? A. That's right.

Q. Did you ever meet Mr. Remmer on any other occasion beside this conference in Mr. Thatcher's office? A. I tried to without success.

Q. You never did?

A. No, I could never reach him.

Q. You never met him except that one occasion?

A. That is right. Letters to him were unanswered.

Mr. Golden: The witness doesn't have to volunteer. That is not responsive and I ask it go out.

The Court: That latter part may go out.

Mr. Avakian: May we ask your Honor to instruct the witness to answer questions and not volunteer?

The Court: No, I will not ask any such thing. We will proceed. We will take each situation as it appears. [2196]

Mr. Avakian: I think it is quite evident he volunteers——

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court (Interceding): I don't make rulings—I don't know just how to express my thoughts —I don't make wholesale rulings. I make rulings as situations come on.

Q. Now, would you state the names of the revenue agents who worked with you in connection with the investigation of this case?

A. Excluding Mr. Ezralow, who was assigned to the case before it was received in our office, first there was Mr. Morgan and Mr. Peel.

Q. Pardon me—would you state the assignment of the particular businesses which each of these was assigned to investigate as you go along?

A. There was no particular assignment. Each one worked wherever the occasion demanded.

Q. Was that under your general supervision?

A. Yes.

Q. Would you go ahead and name the rest of the revenue agents?

A. After Mr. Peel went to Korea he was replaced by Mr. Harkness, who continued until the end of the investigation.

Q. Were any other revenue agents assigned to this investigation besides those you have named?

A. No, those were the only ones assigned to it.

Q. And then I believe you stated in direct examination that [2197] special agents worked with you—correct me if I am wrong—were Mr. Whitside, Mr. Miner and Mr. Hemphill?

A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. Were they assigned to this case with you?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. Mr. Whitside was assigned. The others were assigned for particular parts of the case.

Q. Were any other special agents assigned to work with you in connection with any phase of the investigation?

A. That is rather a difficult question to answer because we had collateral investigations in other parts of the country, to which other special agents were assigned, and——

Q. By that, you mean, if you had an inquiry to make in New York, you would request that New York office to assign an agent to develop some information for you?

A. That is right and occasionally we might have minor inquiries to make in the Bay Area and an agent would be assigned for temporary duty.

Q. Aside from that particular type of thing, I take it then there were no other special agents on the case? A. That's right.

Q. Now, you said that the revenue agents and these special agents, whom you have named, worked with you in this investigation under your general supervision. Is it true, Mr. Weaver, that revenue agents concern themselves primarily with the question of the amount of the income and tax liability? [2198]

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial, what the general practice is.

The Court: Are you talking about this particular investigation?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Yes, in this particular investigation, was under his supervision.

The Court: Very well, objection overruled.

A. Yes, that was the primary concern; not the exclusive concern.

Q. I understand that. And the primary concern of the special agents of the Intelligence Division who worked on this case was the matter of determining whether or not there was any intentional fraud, in the event of any tax deficiency that might be found to be due, is that correct?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And that is also the general practice in conducting such investigations, is it not? A. Yes.

Q. And did the revenue agents who worked on this case write up reports of the results of their investigation? A. Yes, they did.

Q. Do you know how the revenue agents made that report? Was it a report signed by all, or was it a report they made separately, separate reports?

A. I believe Mr. Morgan and Mr. Harkness combined in working [2199] on all their reports.

Q. They made a joint report then?

A. Yes.

Q. And that report was made to their superiors in the Internal Revenue Agent's office?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And copy was furnished to you?

A. Yes.

Q. And that likewise is the regular custom, is it not? A. Yes, that is right.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Do you know the approximate date on which Mr. Morgan and Mr. Harkness submitted their report?

Mr. Campbell: Which report are you referring to?

Mr. Avakian: The report that he says they wrote together.

A. I might have a notation of it here.

Q. Are you referring to a document marked for identification?

A. No, this is another memorandum that I have prepared. Their reports were received in our office on August 29, 1949.

Q. You use that document in your hand to refresh your recollection on that? A. Yes.

Q. May I see it please? A. Surely.

Mr. Campbell: May it be marked for identification government's next number in order for identification? [2200]

Clerk: 179 for identification.

Q. Now, you stated, Mr. Weaver, that the revenue agents' report was received in your office on August 29, 1949. Can you tell me the date on which the revenue agents actually made their report?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial, if the Court please.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, there has been extensive questioning on direct examination as to the scope of this investigation.

The Court: Oh, he may answer the question if he can.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. I presume, due to the fact——

Q. Can you, by referring to prosecution's exhibit 179 for identification, refresh your recollection on that, so you can give it accurate?

A. Yes. The date of the confidential report is April 1, 1949, and of the technical report March 2, 1949. That would be the date the transcript would be submitted for review and typing.

Q. Now, then at the conclusion of your investigation did you likewise submit a report.

A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial and not within the issues, so incompetent.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question. A. Yes, I did.

Q. And can you refresh your recollection from prosecution's [2201] Exhibit 179 for identification as to the date on which you made your report?

A. Yes, November 10, 1949.

Q. And at that time, or shortly thereafter, the file in the matter was referred to another office, was it not? A. Yes.

Q. And that was the office of Mr. Campbell?

A. That's right.

Q. On what date, if you can give the date to us?

Mr. Campbell: I object to this line of questioning as being immaterial.

The Court: I don't see where it is material. Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we would like to probe further into the scope and what is involved in this examination.

The Court: I can't see where that was covered by direct. The ruling will stand.

Mr. Avakian: May I refer on that——

The Court: (Interceding): The ruling will stand.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor permitted the prosecution to go at great length into this.

The Court: I said the ruling will stand.

Mr. Avakian: And I won't be permitted to express myself?

The Court: I told you three times no.

Q. After the file was submitted to Mr. Campbell's office, did [2202] you make any further investigation?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And your further investigation commenced approximately when and continued until approximately when?

A. It commenced probably as soon as the first report was submitted and continued until this date.

Q. When you say as soon as the first report was submitted, you mean the report was submitted to Mr. Campbell? A. Yes.

Q. And shortly thereafter you commenced additional investigations?

A. Yes, and continued until the present time.

Q. And actively so?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. Well, not exclusively.

Q. I mean it isn't just a formal matter of investigation pending but you and your associates were actively engaged in working on the case between that time and the present time?

A. That's right. Just the other day we got information——

Mr. Campbell (Interrupting): Never mind. I think you are going into matters not proper. Of course, if counsel wants that, you can answer.

Mr. Golden: I object to that statement. Even Mr. Campbell recognizes——

The Court: I don't know any necessity for the statement. [2203]

Mr. Golden: I object to Mr. Campbell saying, "of course if counsel wants it," words to that effect.

The Court: The jury will not regard these exchanges. I think I have told the jury many times and I think they are only interested in the evidence that goes in here and is submitted.

Q. You listed, Mr. Weaver, a number of particular enterprises and transactions which you and your staff investigated in connection with this case, and in connection with that I believe you referred to refresh your recollection to a 9-page memorandum which has been marked for identification as prosecution's Exhibit 178. So far as you know, have you stated all of the transactions which you and your staff investigated in connection with this case?

A. No, there are probably many others which have not been noted in the files. In other words,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

we make any inquiries and due to the pressure of other work, we make no notations in the file.

Q. But insofar as matters that you considered material where the case was concerned, have you, to the best of your recollection, listed all the transactions and matters which your staff investigated?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as referring to something not in evidence. If it is offered in evidence, it is a different situation. [2204]

(Question read.)

Mr. Avakian: I will withdraw that question.

Q. Insofar as the various matters and transactions, concerning which testimony has been presented in this case are concerned, did you list, to the best of your recollection, the transactions and matters which you investigated?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as referring to a list which is not in evidence. Further, calling for his conclusion as to what is or is not material.

The Court: It seems to me that this question has to do with the make-up, say, of this Exhibit 178.

Mr. Avakian: No, I am not referring to that, your Honor, now.

The Court: Let us have the question. Read it.

Mr. Avakian: Let me withdraw it and state it another way.

Q. I didn't hear you make any statement—and if I am incorrect, correct me—to the effect that you had made any investigation of a loan transaction between Mr. Remmer and Mr. Jeffers. Did you make an investigation of that matter?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And you recall the testimony of Mr. Maundrell in this case to the effect that he prepared a fifty thousand dollar note from Mr. Remmer to Mr. Jeffers on September 27, 1946?

A. I do not remember the date. I remember he said he prepared such a note, that he didn't know whether or not it had been [2205] repaid.

Q. While we are getting the note so you may examine the note, I will ask you this question—do you recall whether on direct examination you stated whether or not you had investigated that?

Mr. Campbell: That is objected to as——

The Court (Interceding): Objection sustained.

Q. I will hand you defendant's Exhibit A-1, a promissory note dated September 27, 1946, from Elmer L. Remmer to Robert L. Jeffers, in amount of fifty thousand dollars. You saw that note during the course of this trial, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall Mr. Maundrell's testimony regarding it?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent whether or not he recalls Mr. Maundrell's testimony.

The Court: He has already stated he does, I think.

A. I recall the testimony where he said he prepared this note and didn't know whether or not it had been repaid.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. In making computation of income for the year 1946, income of Mr. and Mrs. Remmer, on the net worth method, is it not true, Mr. Weaver, that it would be material to know whether or not that note had been repaid by the end of 1946?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not within the scope of direct examination, that he made any computation of income on that basis or any other basis. [2206]

Mr. Avakian: This witness has been offered as an expert.

The Court: Objection will be sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I would like to answer the argument.

The Court: Well, I have ruled.

Mr. Avakian: Very well.

Q. Did you, or any member of your staff, make any investigation of that matter prior to the commencement of the trial of this action?

Mr. Campbell: Object to the question as incomprehensible. I don't know to what counsel refers.

The Court: Would you state please to just what you refer?

Mr. Avakian: This transaction between Mr. Jeffers and Mr. Remmer, as evidenced by the note which is in evidence as defendant's A-1 and which the witness holds in his hand.

A. Before the trial if we had any evidence of this fifty thousand dollars——

Mr. Campbell: Just a moment——

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: The question can be answered yes or no.

Q. Did you make investigation of that matter prior to the commencement of the trial of this case?

A. Well, the investigation led into this matter.

Q. Well, was this matter covered by your investigation prior to the commencement of the trial of this action? A. Yes. [2207]

Q. Can you tell me approximately when?

A. If you will give me the letters from Mr. Semenza introduced here yesterday, I can tell you.

Q. I hand your prosecution's Exhibit 173. Will that refresh your recollection?

A. Yes, it was about November 11, 1949.

Q. And then did your investigations on that particular matter continue over a period of time?

A. Yes, it wasn't continuous.

Q. But over a period of time at various intervals you and your staff made investigation regarding that transaction? A. Yes.

Q. And until what time did that continue?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial and incompetent, if the Court please.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. Well, up to a week or two ago.

Q. In that connection, that is, in connection with that investigation, did you examine the records of the Day and Night office of the Bank of America in San Francisco, with respect to a bank account of Robert Jeffers? A. Yes, I did.

Q. And did you examine particularly the ledger card of his account with respect to the month of September, 1946?

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Campbell: Is the matter in evidence to which [2208] reference is made?

Mr. Avakian: I am asking if he examined the card for that month.

Mr. Campbell: Then I object on the ground not calling for the best evidence. The record of the account is the best evidence.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. Yes, I did.

Mr. Avakian: I will ask that this document be marked for identification as defendant's Exhibit next in order.

Clerk: C-1.

Q. I will hand you document marked for identification as defendant's C-1, and ask you whether that is a photostatic copy of the document which you examined?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as no proper foundation laid, calling for his conclusion and not the best evidence.

The Court: May I have the question?

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: I submit the original document is the best evidence. He asked if he examined from any record and that is obviously available.

Mr. Golden: Of course, there is no question that the original ledger sheet is better evidence than photostat of it, but all along here, your Honor, we have been stipulating to the use of photostats and unless counsel has some——[2209]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: Objection overruled. He may answer the question.

A. This doesn't seem to have all the figures on it as the one I looked at. Whether this is just a copy of a portion or not, I can't say.

Mr. Campbell: That is the basis of my objection, if the Court please, to the use of that document.

Q. Do you have in your possession here in Carson City a copy of the bank statement which you examined?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. I believe we have the pencilled transcript of a portion of the account.

Q. And could you, by referring to that during the recess, refresh your recollection as to whether or not the photostat before you is a copy of the original document?

Mr. Campbell: I submit this is improper cross-examination, to refresh as to secondary evidence from other secondary evidence.

Mr. Avakian: Of course we can bring the bank people up if necessary, if there is any question——

The Court: You are asking him to do something during recess?

Mr. Avakian: Yes.

The Court: Very well; so there is nothing really before [2210] the Court.

Mr. Avakian: Will you do that during the recess, and may the document be released to the witness during the recess for that purpose?

The Court: It may be released to the witness. We will take our recess.

resumes the witness stand on further

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Mr. Campbell: If the Court please, while we are waiting to get started, I would like to inquire—counsel previously stated that they desired to recall Mr. Schriber for further cross-examination and I understand that this is their present intention. I wonder if that could be arranged so he could be called following this witness?

Mr. Golden: We sent word and as a matter of fact I thought he would be here today and I can't control him any more than you can, but he should be here tomorrow.

Q. Mr. Weaver, did you, during the noon recess, examine the files with respect to the photostatic

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

copy of the bank statement [2211] that you have in your possession? A. Yes, I did.

Q. And have you been able to determine whether or not that is a correct copy of the document which you examined?

A. Yes, it is a correct copy of this particular portion. It does not cover all of the elements involved in this particular transaction.

Q. Is it a correct copy of the ledger card for that month? A. It only covers two days.

Q. Did the document which you saw contain any other entries on that same document?

A. Not on those two days.

Mr. Campbell: May I ask a question on voir dire, if the Court please?

The Court: Yes.

Q. (By Mr. Campbell): Mr. Weaver, did you find in your working papers a complete transcript of that bank account? A. Yes, I did.

Q. And calling your attention to the fact that the document which is marked defendant's C-1 for identification refers to a transaction only on the date of September 27, 1946, does the transcription of the bank account which you found contain record of other transactions in September of 1946?

A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: Now, I will ask to have marked for [2212] identification transcript which you have produced—and, incidentally, does this purport to be a complete transcript of that account from on or about November 25, 1941 to December 17, 1947?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. Yes, it does.

Mr. Campbell: I ask to have this marked for identification.

Clerk: 180.

Mr. Campbell: It may be if counsel had the complete—of course, the photostat of that bank account, my objection is not to the use of the photostat so much as to the completeness of the record even for that month, which merely purports to set forth one or two transactions on the same day.

Mr. Avakian: I might say, your Honor, that the bank has mailed to us, at our request, photostats of Mr. Jeffers' account for a period of several years and the only reason I limited it to the one I produced, to Defendant's C-1, was that the particular ledger card has the transaction that we considered material. We have no objection at all if counsel feels that there are other ledger cards from this account that are material, to allowing them to put in evidence from our supply the bank has given us whatever additional ledger cards they want. I have no objection to that at all, if that is what Mr. Campbell has in mind.

Mr. Campbell: I don't necessarily have anything in mind at this time. [2213]

The Court: There isn't really anything before the Court.

Mr. Avakian: This was precipitated by Mr. Campbell's objection to the use of the photostat and there was some indication from Mr. Campbell that he was not satisfied that this was a full and correct copy and that is why Mr. Weaver was checking his files to see whether there was any inaccuracy that we presented. I don't know what else Mr. Campbell has in mind. If there is any particular thing we can meet—so far as we know, the only thing material in this account in respect to the note from Mr. Remmer to Mr. Jeffers is the record showing withdrawal from Mr. Jeffer's bank account that same day. That was the purpose of our beginning to lay the foundation for this particular document, to show that on the same day of the note, some transaction occurred in Mr. Jeffer's bank account that would have bearing on it.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. (By Mr. Avakian): Let me ask you this, Mr. Weaver, with respect to the entries that are shown on this photostat that has been marked defendant's C-1, are you satisfied, from the examination of your own files, that those particular entries are the entries shown on the original card when you examined them? A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: I will stipulate those entries are shown on the original record of the bank.

Mr. Avakian: Then we will offer defendant's C-1 in evidence. [2214]

Mr. Campbell: To which I object to the materiality at this time.

Mr. Avakian: I will be glad to go into the materiality, if your Honor wants to hear.

Mr. Campbell: No foundation laid as to materiality.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: Objection overruled. It may be admitted in evidence.

Mr. Avakian: I would like to read to the jury from defendant's C-1, which is a photostat of ledger sheet account of Robert Jeffers, 672 Eleventh Avenue, San Francisco, California, in Day and Night office, Bank of America, San Francisco, California. The ledger card shows, under date of September 26, 1946, a balance of $32,955.58. On September 27, 1946, there is shown a deposit of $20,000 and on the same date, September 27, 1946, there is shown a withdrawal in amount of $50,000, with a resulting balance of $2,955.58.

Q. Now, did you also obtain, during the noon recess, Mr. Weaver, the memorandum of your conference in Mr. Thatcher's office?

A. No, I wasn't able to locate that. I did refresh my memory by discussion with the other agents present at the time.

Q. You were not able to find the memorandum?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you wish to change your testimony in any respect? A. I don't believe so.

Q. Do you know where that memorandum is? [2215] A. No, I don't.

Q. Did you make a memorandum at the time?

A. As I recall now, I did, yes.

Q. Do you have any index of your files of any kind that indicates what you did with the memorandum?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. Yes, but during the course of the trial there was so much information it was rather difficult to keep track of by indexes.

Q. So you couldn't find it?

A. That is right.

Q. Are you satisfied the search you have made is sufficient, or are there other places where you could look?

A. I am satisfied of my recollection what took place is refreshed.

Q. That wasn't my question. Are you satisfied you have looked for that memorandum as exhaustively as you can, or do you feel it might be helpful for you to make further search for it?

A. That I could not say without searching more.

Q. Then will you search further over night, Mr. Weaver, and give us a report tomorrow if you are able to find that memorandum?

A. Yes, sure. [2216]

Q. Mr. Weaver, in preparing the balance sheet for a business organization, that is a partnership, in order to arrive at the net worth of the partnership, you subtract the total liabilities from the total assets, is that correct?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent and not within the scope of direct examination.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

(Question read.)

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. Yes. You refer in each case to the assets for the partnership and the liabilities of the partnership.

Q. And that computation, however, should be confined to the assets of the partnership and liabilities of the partnership, is that right?

A. That's right.

Q. And when you are computing increase in net worth of a partnership, as a part of the process of computing the increase in net worth of any of the partners of the partnership, should the assets of the partnership be listed at their cost to the partnership?

A. It all depends. If there is a predecessor partnership, in which the same partner was a member at the time of acquisition, that particular cost should be used. If you are a successor of partnership——

Q. Let us assume a newly formed partnership.

A. Yes, then it would be taken at the cost to the partnership. [2217]

Q. And the net worth of the partnership represents the total of the equities of the various partners, does it not?

A. Yes, if by equities you mean their interest in the net assets.

Q. In other words, the dollar value of their equity or investment in the business, is that correct?

A. No, it is not correct, because in a net worth computation there is used to determine the income the assets and value of cost, whereas actually the real value of the assets may be considerably more, particularly during a period of inflation.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Let me qualify my question then. The net worth of a partnership, computed on the basis of assets at cost to the partnership, minus liabilities, represents the investment of the partners' value in dollars cost, isn't that correct?

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object to that question as non-comprehensive, in that it does not even purport to include all the factors which must be taken into consideration in such a matter. May the question be read?

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: In other words, investment could mean a variety of things. It could mean initial investment or could include accumulated profits.

The Court: Can you make that a little more specific.

Mr. Avakian: I want the question understood exactly the way Mr. Campbell understands it. It represents the amount of money that the partners have invested in that business, either [2218] through initial investment or through accumulation of profits which have not been withdrawn.

The Court: You may answer the question.

(Question read.)

A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. And if the net worth statement of a partnership is properly and accurately prepared, the amount of the net worth, computing assets at cost, should be equal to the total of the capital accounts of the partners, should it not?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Campbell: I object to this line of questioning. While interesting in an academic sense, I think it has no competency or relevancy here, where we are seeking to determine specific matters with regard to specific taxpayers and specific partnerships.

Mr. Avakian: Does your Honor care to hear——

The Court (Interceding): The latter part of the question as to capital accounts——

Mr. Avakian: Perhaps I could get that explained first and then go back. May I withdraw the question for the moment.

Q. In partnership accounting, Mr. Weaver, the capital account of a partner is the accounting medium for recording his interest in dollars in that business, is that correct?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial to our issues here.

The Court: He may answer the question. [2219]

A. That is correct as far as it goes.

Q. Would you like to add something to it?

A. It doesn't exactly mean that the converse would represent the actual cost of all of the assets of the partnership. One partner might come in being more than the actual original cost of the assets for his share, in which case there would be an element of good will or bonus of a previous partner.

Q. And that would be reflected somewhere in the accounts, would it not?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. Well, it might be reflected in the partnership accounts or partner's accounts of the partners receiving the bonus. It wouldn't necessarily be reflected in the partnership accounts.

Q. With respect to a newly formed partnership, the capital account set up for each partner would be the means of recording the credit that had been given to him for what he had put in the business, if anything, am I correct so far?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial to the issues in this case.

The Court: Let him finish the question.

Mr. Avakian: I am asking it piecemeal. The question was completed for this purpose.

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: My point is this—it is true this witness is qualified as a certified public accountant. We are here—— [2220]

The Court (Interceding): That is one of the thoughts I had in mind in deciding these questions on your objections. These questions may or may not go to test the knowledge, experience, or efficiency of this witness as an accountant.

Mr. Campbell: Are they directed to his qualifications?

The Court: I don't know. They might all enter into the picture. That is the idea I have in mind.

Mr. Campbell: If they are directed supposedly to the evidence in this case, I submit they are irrelevant and immaterial.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: They probably could apply to both. Objection will be overruled.

(Question read.)

A. Well, since you added "if anything" was put in the business, sometimes a credit is given to a man merely for his entrance into the partnership, not for any actual investment. Since you say for his actual investment, if anything, yes, I would.

Q. Then the capital account of the partner is also used, is it not, to show that the partner's share of the income for each as to each year includes the income or loss? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And that capital account is also used, is it not, to reflect the amount of any drawings which the partner might make [2221] from time to time of that account?

Mr. Campbell: I understand questions of a hypothetical and general nature have no application of what the books and records show here, if I might make that inquiry to the Court?

The Court: Well, I don't know that we have to stop at this time to determine that question. Objection will be overruled.

Mr. Campbell: I renew my objection as to being immaterial and irrelevant.

The Court: Objection overruled.

(Question read.)

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And then it would be proper accounting pro-

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

cedure, would it not, to show the balance in that account from time to time as either credits or debits were made to him? A. Yes.

Q. In preparing the income tax return of the partnership, is it proper accounting to show on the return each partner's share of the profit of the partnership for that year?

A. Yes, if it is a partnership.

Q. I am asking you assuming a newly organized partnership in these questions. Now then, Mr. Weaver, in the case of a partnership which has a net income, is it proper accounting, in the preparation of the individual return of each particular partner, to show, as his taxable income from that partnership, his [2222] share of the profits for that year, or is it proper to show the amount that he actually withdrew from the business that year?

A. No, if it is a true partnership, it should show his actual share of the profits.

Q. And the amount of his drawings would be immaterial for that purpose?

A. That is right.

Q. It wouldn't matter whether he drew less or he drew more than his share? A. That's right.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, so that we can get a clear picture of how these accounting procedures should be applied, I am going to ask you to answer the following series of questions with respect to this statement of facts that I am now about to make to you.

Let us suppose that on May 1, 1945, a man by the

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

name of Remmer, whom we shall call Mr. R, a man by the name of Kyne, whom we shall call Mr. K, a man by the name of Ditto, whom we shall call Mr. D, a man by the name of Nelson, whom we shall call Mr. N, a man by the name of Maundrell, whom we shall call Mr. M, a man by the name of Fricker, whom we shall call Mr. F, and a man by the name of Turner, whom we shall call Mr. T, enter into a partnership for the purpose of operating a business, which had just been purchased by Mr. R. Let us assume further [2223] that Mr. R purchased that business at a price of 175 thousand dollars, which he paid partly in cash and partly in notes, payable at various times in the future. Let us assume further that Mr. R agrees with these other partners to put that business into the partnership. Let us assume further that the other partners do not put up any money or property of their own as a contribution to the partnership. Let us assume further that under the agreement Mr. R is to have a 40 per cent interest in the profits, Mr. K is to have a 15 per cent interest in the profits, Mr. D is to have a 10 per cent interest in the profits, Mr. N is to have a 10 per cent interest in the profits, Mr. M is also to have a 10 per cent interest in the profits, Mr. F is to have a 10 per cent interets in the profits, and Mr. T is to have a 5 per cent interest in the profits. Let us assume further that under the agreement between these various partners, Mr. R is to withdraw 175 thousand dollars before the other partners withdraw any money from the business, and let us assume further that the agreement between these partners is that as to the other six partners, that is, other than Mr. R, each partner agrees to let his share of the profits accumulate in the business, for the purpose of paying for his respective percentage interest in the assets of the business. Now, I realize that is a very lengthy statement and with the Court's permission, I am going to put some notations on the blackboard. [2224]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Campbell: May we have the question before that is done?

The Court: Finish the question.

Mr. Avakian: I thought before I put the specific question——

The Court (Interceding): I think we had better dispose of the question.

Q. The first question, Mr. Weaver, is this—in setting up the capital accounts of the partners of that business, would it be proper accounting procedure to enter in Mr. R's capital account a credit in the amount of 175 thousand dollars, representing the cost of the business which he was contributing to the partnership?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming facts not in evidence, not containing, in other words, a proper statement of the evidence as it is presently before the Court; third, it is not proper cross-examination and not within the scope of the direct examination.

The Court: Objection sustained on the latter ground.

Mr. Avakian: Not within the scope of direct?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: Yes, sir.

Mr. Avakian: May I call to your Honor's attention that Mr. Weaver——

Mr. Campbell: May I suggest the jury be excused?

The Court: Yes, we will excuse the jury. [2225]

(Jury and alternate jurors admonished and excused at 2:00 p.m.)

MR. WEAVER

resumes the witness stand on further

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Mr. Campbell: I think the record, at the time the jury left, showed a question having been asked and objection interposed in behalf of the government. May the ruling be made in the presence of the jury?

The Court: Yes, objection sustained.

Q. Mr. Weaver, I will call your attention to prosecution's Exhibit 165, and perhaps it will be

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

well if I hand that to the witness, if I may, your Honor?

The Court: Yes, sir.

Q. That is the exhibit which you prepared and submitted here as statement of assets, liabilities, net worth and capital accounts of partners in the Menlo Club, is that correct?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming a fact not in evidence. That was not the evidence.

The Court: Isn't there a title, heading on that?

Mr. Avakian: I was reading the various captions but it [2226] is entitled "Menlo Club, Assets and Liabilities December 31, 1945, to December 31, 1946." You prepared that yourself, did you not?

A. Yes. The capital accounts, however, are per books.

Q. Now, in preparing that exhibit you used various testimony and exhibits which were presented in this case, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. And then in addition, as to certain items, did you exercise your judgment as an accountant to make certain adjustments? I will go into it later if you answer this yes. Answer that yes or no.

A. I couldn't very well answer that without going over each item individually.

Q. Refresh your recollection by looking at the exhibit and then answer the question.

The Court: Let me have the question again.

(Question read.)

A. I believe all the items are based on the ex-

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

hibits and testimony, with the exception of the computation of depreciation.

Q. You also capitalized certain items that were deducted in the returns as current expenditures?

A. Deducted in the returns or the books?

Q. In the books.

A. May I see where they were deducted?

Q. You are unable to answer my question, is that what you [2227] wish to say?

Mr. Campbell: If the Court please——

The Court: Objection sustained.

A. I do not know what improvements you are referring to.

Q. Were there any improvements which you found in evidence in this case which you decided in preparing Exhibit 165 to capitalize as capital items?

A. Only those which were characterized as capital items by Mr. Maundrell's testimony.

Q. I do not recall that Mr. Maundrell characterized anything as a capital item or not. Do you recall that he did? Is that what you base your exhibit on? A. That is correct.

Q. Well, are there figures in Exhibit 165 which represent your own computation based on capitalizing certain items which were not capitalized in the books?

A. The books had no ledger accounts whatsoever for any capital items or for any——

The Court: Will you pardon a suggestion. Suppose you take Exhibit 165 and point out to him those matters which you think were to be exercise of his judgment as an accountant.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Avakian: I intend to do that, but I wanted preliminarily to get a statement that he had exercised judgment I will defer to your Honor's suggestion. [2228]

The Court: No, it is just a suggestion.

Mr. Avakian: I wanted to get preliminarily in response to my question as to whether or not he had in certain instances exercised his judgment.

Mr. Campbell: May the witness finish the answer?

(Question and answer read.)

A. They contain only capital accounts for some of the partners and therefore I can't quite understand your statement of items that were not capitalized in the books.

Q. You do not understand my question?

A. Because actually nothing was capitalized in the books.

Q. But you did, in preparing your books, capitalize certain items, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. And that was based on your analysis and judgment as an accountant, isn't that correct?

A. Well, I based it on, I believe, Mr. Maundrell's testimony as to what the items represented.

Q. But Mr. Maundrell simply stated what the items were. He did not state they were capitalized or current?

A. Perhaps my idea what it represents and

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

yours is different. If some one tells something is capitalized, I would exercise my judgment.

Q. What I am getting at is this—there are, are there not, on your Exhibit 165, certain figures which represent your own [2229] computations as to what should be shown as correct asset figure for those particular items?

A. Well, I still think I based on Mr. Maundrell's testimony as to what they represent.

Q. Do you agree with that?

Mr. Campbell: I object to that.

Q. What is your judgment on it?

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Campbell: I object to that.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Then you omitted from liability a liability shown in the books of the Menlo Club to one Frank Schriber, did you not? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And I believe you testified that you omitted that liability on instructions of Mr. Campbell?

A. That is correct.

Q. When did Mr. Campbell give you that instruction?

A. During the course of the preparation of this statement.

Q. Well, to refresh your recollection, this was offered, I believe, on January 11th when you were on the witness stand.

Mr. Campbell: I submit it is immaterial as to the exact date when he got such instructions.

The Court: You may proceed.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. It was during the week preceding the presentation of the statement. I can't recall exactly. [2230]

Q. The preceding week-end. Do you recall whether that instruction from Mr. Campbell was given to you before or after Mr. Schriber testified in this case?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial, if the Court please.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. I can't exactly recall when Mr. Schriber testified here.

Q. I believe it was before Christmas. Would that aid you in your recollection?

A. Then it was probably after.

Q. And was it before or after Mr. Maundrell testified in this case?

Mr. Campbell: Object to this as immaterial.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. It may have been after. As I recall, he was still here after the Christmas recess.

Q. He was here between Christmas and New Years.

A. However, the fact as to the statement is immaterial.

Mr. Avakian: I ask that be stricken.

The Court: It may go out.

Mr. Avakian: Would you confine yourself to answering questions, Mr. Weaver?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Were there any other persons present at the time Mr. Campbell gave you that instruction?

A. There are usually other people present. Who they are at [2231] any particular time, I can't recall.

Q. Did Mr. Campbell give you this instruction following an inquiry from you to him as to what you should do with respect to that liability item?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Did you go to Mr. Campbell and tell him that you didn't know how to treat this and ask his advice?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, here is an adjustment made by an expert witness——

The Court: The ruling will stand on that question.

Q. At the time Mr. Campbell gave you this instruction, did you make any statement to him as to whether or not the manner of treatment of this liability that he instructed you to use was correct from an accounting sense?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial and incompetent.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. At the time Mr. Campbell gave you this instruction, did you make any statement to him to the effect that if you did make the adjustment that he instructed you to make, then proper accounting

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

procedure would call for making of certain other adjustments?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection. [2232]

The Court: Same ruling.

Q. Is it customary accounting procedure for an accountant, who is preparing a net worth statement of a partnership, to take instructions from non-accountants as to the manner in which they should prepare the net worth statement?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I should like to show the proper accounting procedure was not followed in this instance.

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Q. Now, you stated on direct examination that an accounting justification for omitting the liability to Gene Schriber from the net worth statement of the Menlo Club was that the transaction, by which the Menlo Club was purchased from Mr. Schriber, was one entered into by Mr. Remmer personally and the liability should be by him personally, do you recall that testimony?

A. Yes. I do not believe I stated that as an accounting justification. It seems to me it would be a legal interpretation.

Q. You thought that was a legal rather than an accounting justification? A. Yes.

Q. I call your attention to this testimony from your direct examination on January 11th, page 2092, and ask you if you recall these questions and answers—question by Mr. Campbell:

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

"Q. All right, we will come to that in a moment. [2233]

"Now, Mr. Weaver, as an expert accountant, will you state the reason why the theory for the elimination from the schedule of assets and liabilities of the Menlo Club of the liability to Gen. Schriber?

"A. The liability was eliminated from the Menlo Club because the testimony of Mr. Schriber indicated all his dealings were with Mr. Remmer personally and that Mr. Remmer had in fact pledged or deeded over on a trust deed to Mr. Schriber as security for the liability some of his personally-owned real estate."

Do you recall that question of Mr. Campbell's and your answer? A. Yes.

Q. But it is your present recollection that you thought you were not testifying as an expert accountant, but were merely stating a legal justification for that?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Let me ask you this—was the explanation which you gave in answer to that question on January 11th given by you as an accounting explanation or as a legal explanation?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent, the explanation which he gave.

Mr. Avakian: It is testing the correctness of the accounting of this exhibit.

Mr. Campbell: It is an attempt to have the witness [2234] characterize his answer.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: I will read to you the next two questions and two answers, on pages 2092 and 2093 of the transcript. Question again by Mr. Campbell:

"Q. So that accountingwise it was treated as a personal liability of Elmer?

"A. That is correct.

"Q. Rather than of the Menlo Club, for that purpose? A. That's right."

Do you recall those questions and answers?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you wish at this time to change either of those answers?

A. No. The accounting treatment is as stated there. Every accounting treatment must, to some extent, be based upon a legal interpretation. I do not see where you can make a distinct dividing line between law and accounting, because accounting treatment necessarily rests on the proper interrelations which are legal matters and as accountants, the accounting treatment must follow whatever legal interpretation they give to certain facts.

Q. So that when Mr. Campbell asked you to give an explanation as an expert accountant, you were really not stating an accounting answer, but rather a legal answer? [2235]

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative and incompetent.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. If the Menlo Club was acquired by Mr. Rem-

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

mer from Mr. Schriber in a transaction which was personal to Mr. Remmer and which was not a transaction of the Menlo Club, then will you state, as an accountant, what should be shown as the cost to the Menlo Club of that asset, the Menlo partnership?

A. That depends entirely upon the agreement between the partners, if any, as to what acquisition of cost should be to the partnership.

Q. I notice in Exhibit 165 you show the cost of the business to the Menlo Club partnership as 175 thousand dollars. Would you explain why you treated the cost of the Menlo Club to the partnership as 175 thousand dollars, in view of your statement that you considered the transaction with Mr. Schriber as a transaction with Mr. Remmer personally, not a partnership?

A. Because as a matter of fact we do not consider this as a true partnership in every sense. Therefore, it did not make actually any difference, from the standpoint of computation of the correct income, whether the liability was treated as part of the Menlo Club liability or part of Mr. Remmer's personal liability.

Q. Now, in representing to the Court and the jury here that you have prepared in Exhibit 165 a net worth statement of the [2236] Menlo Club, partnership, you assumed, at least for that purpose, did you not, the Menlo Club was a partnership?

A. No, sir. This says Menlo Club assets and liabilities.

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Did you represent this as a net worth statement of the partnership? A. I——

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute—I object to that as incompetent.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Whose net worth does Exhibit 165 represent?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to—the document speaks for itself as to what it is.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. I believe it represents Mr. Remmer's.

Q. But you characterize it as the Menlo Club, is that right?

A. Businesses are often carried on under fictitious names, yes.

Q. Now, then, if this Exhibit 165 represents the net worth of Mr. Remmer individually rather than any partnership, will you tell us why you did not list the liability to Mr. Schriber, which you said was a personal liability of Mr. Remmer, as a liability on this exhibit?

A. Because it made no difference whether it was listed here or in his personal net worth. It didn't make a cent of difference because whether or not you want to enter on this sheet, on the sheet containing his personal assets and liabilities, [2237] makes no difference in the result.

Q. As I understand it—correct me if I am wrong—the reason you treated this Exhibit 165 as Menlo Club assets and liabilities, was that you were taking a particular business of Mr. Remmer's which you considered solely his business, and setting up assts and liabilities of that particular business, is that right? A. That is right.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Now, in preparing a net worth statement, that is a statement of assets and liabilities, of a particular business of an individual, is it not proper accounting procedure to list in that statement all of the liabilities that relate to that business?

A. It depends somewhat on facts. It depends whether or not they actually are liabilities relating directly to the business or liabilties only of the individual. As far as this is concerned, I would be very happy to put that in here and take it off the personal liabilities, because it really is just an academic matter.

Q. You have not presented here any exhibit of personal liabilities and assets of Mr. Remmer?

A. No, that is correct.

Q. So you can't change in the other exhibit?

A. I believe it could be arranged.

Q. I mean there is none in evidence?

A. No, not yet.

Q. Now, if you listed on Exhibit 165 the liability to Mr. [2238] Schriber at the end of 1945 and also at the end of 1946, the net worth figure shown on Exhibit 165 would be reduced by the amount of the liability on those respective dates, would it not?

A. Yes, but I would also remove it from his personal net worth and therefore increase the net worth by precisely the same amount.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Let us not talk about an exhibit not in evidence. A. You can't avoid it.

Mr. Golden: You can avoid it all right, your Honor.

The Court: There is no question before the Court.

Mr. Golden: It is very easy to avoid.

The Court: He has answered the question.

Mr. Golden: I ask his remark, "You can't avoid it," go out as not responsive.

The Court: It will stand.

Mr. Golden: I will assign it as error.

Q. Mr. Weaver, did you hear Mr. Schriber's testimony in the court room that at the end of 1945 there was still due and owing to him from Mr. Remmer, on account of the purchase of the Menlo Club, the amount of $125,000? A. Yes.

Q. Would you tell us, then, what the net worth of the Menlo Club would be at December 31, 1945, if you adjusted your Exhibit 165 by showing that liability of $125,000 to Mr. Schriber on that [2239] date?

A. It would be 125 thousand dollars less than shown here.

Q. And you have shown what figure as the net worth on that date? A. $183,647.94.

Q. So that would be reduced then, would it not, to the figure of $58,647.94?

A. That is right.

Q. And did you hear Mr. Schriber's testimony that at the end of 1946 there was still due and

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

owing to him from Mr. Remmer on account of the purchase of the Menlo Club the sum of 75 thousand dollars? A. Yes.

Q. And would you tell us, then, what the net worth of the Menlo Club would be on Exhibit 165 if you subtracted from the net worth figure of $192,-836.47 shown thereon that liability of 75 thousand dollars?

A. It would be 75 thousand dollars less.

Q. Can you give us the figure? It would be $117,836.47, would it not?

Mr. Campbell: We will accept counsel's statement.

A. That is right.

Q. In computing net income on the net worth method, Mr. Weaver, it is true, is it not, that you ignore any expenditures which are deductible as deductions under the income tax law?

Mr. Campbell: I object to that as not proper cross-examination. [2240]

The Court: I don't know. You talked on direct examination about investigations he made in different phases. Objection will be overruled.

A. I wouldn't say—there are two general methods by which you can take into account the increase in net worth in determining income. One is to add to the increase of net worth federal income taxes paid, living expenses and any other non-deductible expenditures, in order to arrive at the correct income for purposes of return. You might also add thereto all of the deductible expenditures and then deduct them again and you arrive at the same result.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. That is what I say, in computing the net income any expenditures which are deductible are immaterial, isn't that correct?

A. That's right.

Q. In computing net income on net worth method, is it important to determine whether you are using the cash receipts and disbursements method of accounting rather than the accrual method of accounting? A. Yes.

Q. So that we may all understand those terms, under the cash receipts and disbursements method, income is considered to have been received at the time that the money actually comes to the taxpayer, isn't that correct, at the time he actually receives it? [2241]

A. Generally, yes.

Q. And expenses are considered to be actual expenses at the time they are actually paid, isn't that correct? A. Generally speaking, yes.

Q. Under the accrual method of accounting, income is considered to have been received by the taxpayer at the time that he acquires a legal right to receive it, isn't that true?

A. Well, generally speaking, yes.

Q. In other words, then, to use an example to clarify that—if I sell a particular item as personal property, let us say, to you in December of 1951 and you agree at that time to pay me a thousand dollars for it and then you actually paid me the following January in 1952, under the cash receipts and disbursements method, I would be considered to have received that money in January, 1952, would I not?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. If you are speaking of the sale of personal property, there might be some distinction there, because sales of capital assets wouldn't necessarily come under cash and accrual methods.

Q. With that clarification, that would be true; I would be considered to have received that money from you on cash receipts and disbursements method in January, when you actually paid it?

A. Yes.

Q. If instead I was on the accrual method of accounting, I would be considered to have received that money in December of [2242] 1951 when you agreed to pay it, isn't that right?

A. Well, there is sometimes a slight distinction between the legal and accounting usage. For example, you might actually receive legal title by purchasing some goods FOB shipping point, which would actually be received the following year. Actually your legal title arose from the preceding year, but from accounting standpoint it would not be recorded until the receipt of the goods in the following year, so, with some exceptions like that, generally speaking that is right.

Q. Let us assume I deliver in December and you agree to pay for the purchase but do not actually pay until the following January, under the ac-

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

crual method I would be considered to receive that money in December, would I not?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent. There are so many elements to be considered and I think they are not within the issues here.

The Court: He may answer this question.

A. If you take the matter of personal property, you get no question of personal assets. If you restrict your statements to sales of retail sales, that would be something to which hardly any exception could be taken.

Q. Let us take a retail store as an example first. A merchant who sells merchandise in a retail store to a customer on a charge account basis, shall we say, and delivers merchandise to the customer in December, 1951, enters it in the charge [2243] account and then the customer comes in in January and pays the bill. If that merchant were on a cash receipts and disbursements basis, he would not treat that money as income until he received it in January?

Mr. Campbell: I object to the question in that form because it is obvious a merchant could not be on a cash receipts and disbursements basis.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. Well, if it is on cash basis, that is the time it would be taken into income, yes.

Q. If he were on an accrual basis, he would take it into income in December, at the time he made the sale, isn't that right? A. That is right.

Q. And he would have to report it as income

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

in December even though he didn't get it until the next year? A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. And when he got it the next year, being on accrual basis, he wouldn't report it again the next year, he would already have reported it?

A. That is right.

Q. With that preliminary explanation as to the distinction between cash receipts and disbursements basis and accrual basis, the question is, in computing income on net worth method it is important, is it not, in setting up the assets [2244] and liabilities to determine whether you are setting them up on a cash method or on accrual? Do you understand the question?

A. It is impossible to set up—well, let us have your question again.

Mr. Avakian: I will reframe it.

Q. In computing the net income of a taxpayer on net worth method, if there was money owed to him on account of business transactions which he had had at the end of the period covered by your net worth computation, the result which you would reach would be different if you used the cash method than if you used the accrual method, would it not?

A. Yes, the result in the two methods should be different. It might turn out to be the same in some instances.

Q. Let us go back to this illustration that you suggested of the merchant. If you were computing the income of that merchant on net worth method as of say December 31, 1946, and if on December 31, 1946, that merchant had come to him on charge account sales ten thousand dollars in money, if you were using the accrual method in your net worth computation, you would set up that ten thousand dollars accounts receivable as an asset, would you not?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming facts not in evidence, incompetent and immaterial.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. If he were on accrual basis? [2245]

Q. Yes.

A. You would set up accounts receivable as an asset?

Q. Yes. A. At the end of the year?

Q. That is my question.

A. That is true, of course, if that is not considered in any preceding year when you may have accounts receivable precisely the same amount, which might offset those, so I say there could be a situation where there would be no difference in income under any method.

Q. As to any particular time that you were making net worth computation, you would include the accounts receivable if the taxpayer were on accrual method? A. Yes.

Q. But you exclude accounts receivable if the taxpayer were on the cash method, would you not?

A. Not necessarily. It depends what the accounts receivable arose from.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. I am talking about this merchant who has sold this merchandise on credit.

Mr. Campbell: That is the basis upon which I make my objection—it is immaterial and incompetent.

The Court: I think so.

Mr. Avakian: We are using an example exactly parallel as to the testimony of this [2246] witness

The Court: He is about to answer the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Let him complete the answer.

A. For example, if accounts receivable arose from the assets purchased by a related business, it would be improper to exclude the accounts receivable from the balance of the related business. Do you understand my statement?

Q. If accounts receivable arose from the credit extended to customers in the course of a business, then on the cash method you would exclude those accounts receivable in computing the net worth as of that time?

A. If they arose from extension of credit for the sale of merchandise. If they arose from the extension of cash loans, the situation would be different.

Q. What is your answer as to the first view that you stated?

A. If they arose from the sale of merchandise, then the accounts receivable would not be set up.

Q. Now, in preparing Exhibit 165, the assets

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

and liabilities of the Menlo Club, did you use the cash receipts and disbursements method or did you use the accrual method?

A. Mostly the cash receipts and disbursements method. It is impossible to secure an accurate picture by sticking to any one particular method specifically.

Q. As to which items did you use the cash receipts and disbursements method and as to which items did you use the accrual [2247] method in preparing Exhibit 165? Go down each of the items in the exhibit and give us your answer.

A. I can't do it just like that. Some of these items are composed of a number of different elements.

Q. Would it take you some time to work that out, Mr. Weaver? If so, I will pass that.

A. Yes.

Q. Let me ask you this—I call your attention to prosecution's Exhibit 89 for identification, which is the original partnership return of the income of the Menlo Club for the year 1945, and I call your attention particularly to item 4 on the 4th page, which states, "check here this return was prepared on cash or accrual basis." Did you notice that particular item in the course of your examination?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And the check there is that that was prepared on the cash basis, is that correct?

A. That is where the check is. It is not strictly accurate.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. That is what the check is on the return?

A. Yes.

Q. And I call your attention to prosecution's Exhibit 90, which is the original partnership return of income of the Menlo Club for the year 1946, and I call your attention to item No. 5 on the third page, "check whether this return is prepared on cash or accrual basis," and ask you whether that likewise [2248] shows it was prepared on cash basis?

A. That is what the check shows, yes.

Q. And then I will show you defendant's Exhibit "Y," which is amended partnership income return of the Menlo Club for the year 1945, and ask you whether on question 4 on page 4 there is likewise a check mark indicating that the return was prepared on the cash basis?

A. That is what the check mark states, yes.

Q. And I show you prosecution's Exhibit 91, which is amended partnership return of income of the Menlo Club for the year 1946, and ask you whether question No. 5 on page 3 has check mark indicating that that return was prepared on the cash basis?

A. That is what the check mark shows.

Q. Is it your opinion, as an accountant, that the returns of the Menlo Club should have been prepared on some other basis than cash basis?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent, not within the scope of direct examination.

The Court: Objection sustained.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, he has testified he used accrual basis in part in preparing Exhibit 165 and in view of the fact——

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. The return states it was determined on cash basis which is inaccurate. It was not prepared wholly on cash basis, since it includes [2249] inventories.

Q. Did you, or any of the members of your staff, in any of your discussions with either Mr. Ayton, the public accountant, or Mr. Maundrell, state to them that in your opinion the return of the Menlo Club should be prepared on some basis other than the cash basis?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for a purported conversation after the fact; has no materiality here whether they did or did not make such statement?

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, there has been extensive examination, inquiries made, talks had, subjects covered, in their examination and we would like to show that the things that are being charged here as fraudulent——

The Court: The ruling may stand.

Q. I will call your attention to Exhibit 165, the first item is designated "Cash on hand bank roll, poker sheets Exhibit 114A," and for December 31, 1946, you have the item of $10,003. Would you show me the particular sheet, preliminarily, of Exhibit 114A on which that item appears, and then I will ask you a question. You are referring to page 2 and you are referring to the item of "New Top, $10,003," is that correct?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And that is the basis for the entry on Exhibit 165 that cash on hand bank roll on December 31, 1946, was $10,003, is that correct? [2250]

A. That is right.

Q. Did you hear the testimony of Mr. Maundrell in this case that the bank roll figures shown on Exhibit 114A included the amount of money which was owed to the Menlo Club on markers?

A. Yes; he also has testimony that the markers represented advances in cash.

Q. And did you recall his testimony that the names and amounts in the lower right-hand corner of these poker sheets, which are in evidence as Exhibits 114, 114A and 114B, represent the markers owing to the Menlo Club?

A. Yes; and also his testimony that they were considered to be cash and part of the bank roll.

Q. And the amount shown as the total of the markers due the Menlo Club on December 31, 1946, according to page 2 of Exhibit 114A, is $6,770, is that correct?

A. That is on the sheet, yes.

Q. So then, would it not be correct to say, Mr. Weaver, that on December 31, 1946, the bank roll of the Menlo Club consisted of $6,770 in markers and $3,233 in cash?

A. If you want to say that way, it really doesn't

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

make any difference. They have testified that the markers were treated as part of the bank roll and we tried to follow that determination rather than change it.

Q. But the bank roll figure you have designated as cash consisted then part of cash and part markers, is that correct? [2251]

A. That is right.

Q. And if you have markers in amount of $6,770, treated as accounts receivable of the Menlo Club, arising in the course of its business dealings with its customers, then on the cash method of accounting, would you not, as a matter of proper accounting procedure, exclude those accounts receivable in computing the net worth of the Menlo Club, for the purpose of computing the net income?

A. No, sir.

Q. You would not?

A. The Menlo Club is not selling.

Q. The Menlo Club—you are aware of the fact that the Menlo Club was conducting a card room?

A. It was not selling any product. It was advancing cash for such markers.

Q. Can you answer my question?

Mr. Campbell: I submit he has answered it.

(Question read.)

Q. May we have that question answered?

The Court: Yes, you may answer that question.

A. That is a card room where people were charged for playing cards. It isn't selling.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Do you recall the testimony of Mr. Maundrell and Mr. Kyne that these markers represented obligations of players of the Club who played there, lost money, and were unable or unwilling [2252] to pay their losses and so they put in a marker with the Club instead?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming facts not in evidence.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Is there any doubt, your Honor, that was their testimony?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Campbell: That was my objection.

Mr. Avakian: May we have an opportunity tomorrow to show your Honor the testimony from the record?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Avakian: We will defer this question until then.

Q. Now, you state in Exhibit 165 that the bank roll of the Menlo Club on December 31, 1945, was ten thousand dollars and the reference is Exhibit 114A. Will you show me the particular entry on Exhibit 114A which contains that figure?

A. Right there in their poker sheets in evidence.

Q. Not in Exhibit 114A?

A. I may have another exhibit.

Q. Yes, there are. I gave you that because that is what your Exhibit 165 said. I will hand you Exhibits 114 and 114B also.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. Apparently that was meant to refer to 114 and 114A.

Q. You are handing me Exhibit 114 as the exhibit which shows the amount of the bank roll, is that right? [2253] A. Yes.

Q. And which of the two sheets is the one that you used? A. The first sheet.

Q. Which is dated January 1, 1946, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. And your Exhibit 165 is incorrect in designating 114A; should also designate 114?

Mr. Campbell: I think inspection of the exhibit shows 114 dash A and he has stated he meant to refer to 114 and 114A. I think the record is clear.

Mr. Avakian: Mr. Campbell's statement is incorrect. There is no dash there. It is 114 parenthesis A parenthesis. Do you stand corrected?

Mr. Campbell: No, I think the record speaks for itself.

The Court: Let us move along.

Q. Mr. Weaver, will you tell us is there any dash between 114 and the letter "A"?

A. I probably omitted it in the schedule.

Q. Is there one there?

A. No. Shall I add one?

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I think we should have it correct. Will it be all right for the witness to add the designation?

The Court: He may do so.

Q. Now, in Exhibit 114 there is shown as BR

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

ten thousand dollars [2254] on 1-1-46 and I assume that was the amount on December 31, 1945?

A. We had no receipts in 1945. All the 1945 receipts were destroyed.

Q. So you used the same figure?

A. That is correct, beginning of the year.

Q. On that same exhibit also are markers in amount of $8,503?

A. That is the amount on the sheet, yes.

Q. So that the bank roll figure of ten thousand dollars really consists of $1497 in cash and $8503 in markers?

A. If those figures are right.

Q. Those are the figures you used, aren't they?

A. No, I used just the one figure.

Q. You stated in your direct examination, with regard to the improvements which you capitalized in Exhibit 165, that another agent had a schedule of the specific items that entered into that and you were going to produce it later. Do you have that now?

A. My recollection is that my testimony there referred to the detail of the accounts receivable.

Q. Which item is that?

A. That is the second item.

Q. That is "Accounts recivable and advances for purchase of equipment for Mr. Remmer's office, 50 Mason Street"? A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: I think that schedule is in evidence. [2255]

Mr. Avakian: That is Exhibit 174, I believe.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Do you have a schedule showing the particular items that are included in improvements which you capitalized in the years 1945 and 1946 in preparing Exhibit 165?

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute—I object to the question in that form because there are two pages—are you referring to accounts receivable?

Mr. Avakian: No; could we have the question?

(Question read.)

A. I believe reference to the exhibits indicated along the side of each improvement would give us those amounts.

Q. What exhibits are you referring to in your statement?

A. 133K, 134, 135, 136 and 132C.

Q. Those are various cancelled checks and check stub books relating to payment for the particular expenditures, isn't that correct?

A. Yes, there might have been these few expenditures that a schedule might not have been prepared with reference to the exhibit.

Q. My question was, for the purpose of determining whether you are able now to tell us the specific improvements which you capitalized in preparing Exhibit 165?

Mr. Campbell: That has been answered. He referred to specific checks. He said the checks would show that, if they could be shown to him. [2256]

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. I have no schedule here. If I could see the checks I could tell you very shortly.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Very well. Let me ask you this—do you think it would speed up your testimony if you did this during recess? A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: I suggest he has a number of things accumulated for Mr. Weaver to do.

The Court: Yes, let us get along with the checks.

Mr. Campbell: I have a schedule here prepared by one of the other agents, might expedite the matter. We can mark it.

Mr. Avakian: May I see that?

Mr. Campbell: May that be given a number for identification?

The Clerk: 181.

Q. I show you prosecution's Exhibit 181 for identification. Mr. Weaver, would you take a look at that and advise us whether that would assist you in expediting your testimony on this point?

A. Yes, it would.

Q. Now, referring first, Mr. Weaver, to the improvements which you capitalized for the year 1945, Exhibit 165 shows the amount as $920 and the reference is Exhibit 133K. Does your schedule before you show what that item consisted of?

A. Yes, 133K refers to check issued to H. C. Evans on November 26, 1945, for equipment for the Menlo Club, in amount of $920. [2257]

Q. Do you recall from the testimony in this case what kind of equipment that was?

A. I believe the testimony is simply that this equipment was for the Menlo Club.

Q. I beg your pardon?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. I believe the testimony is it was simply equipment for the Menlo Club.

Q. You do not know what kind of equipment?

Mr. Campbell: I submit it speaks for itself.

Mr. Avakian: I am asking if he recalls.

A. I can not recall all the words in the transcript, no.

Q. Of course, the question whether that should be treated as current business expenditure rather than being capitalized as a depreciable asset, would depend in part at least on the nature of the property, would it not?

A. If it is testified to as equipment, that in itself characterized it as something having a long term of life. Otherwise it would have been characterized as an expense.

Q. How was it treated on the books of the Menlo Club?

A. We have no regular accounts.

Q. You made an analysis of the disbursements and expenses of the Menlo Club, did you not, you or the men on your staff?

A. Yes. To reply to this particular item, how it is treated, I would have to see the book.

Q. Would you like to look at any particular book? [2258]

A. Yes, I would like to look at the cash receipts and disbursements for 1945.

Q. I will hand you prosecution's Exhibit 128. Is that the book which will assist you? You want reference to the check number?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. No, I see the check right here.

Q. You are referring to what page of that exhibit? A. D-27.

Q. D-27 of Exhibit 128. And how is that entered in the books?

A. This is simply record of checks issued with various account headings for expenses and a general column heading for their payments, which in normal accounting practice——

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment—let us not get into normal accounting practice. How is it entered in this book?

A. Without studying the accounting practice, this column is treated——

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment—if you can not tell me, say so. If you can, will you tell me how it is entered in this particular book of the Menlo Club?

Mr. Campbell: You are asking his opinion—are you asking him to read the entries?

Mr. Avakian: Read the entries, surely.

The Court: I thought that book was brought out for a certain purpose. We have four or five questions. It was brought out for the purpose of aiding this [2259] witness in answering some previous questions, but now it is the subject matter of several questions.

Mr. Avakian: The same question was asked, only he wants to talk about normal accounting practice. My question to him is, can he tell me

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

how this particular expenditure was entered in the books of the Menlo Club?

Mr. Campbell: I submit the answer calls for the opinion of the witness.

The Court: Let the witness answer the question.

A. It was entered in a column which would indicate it to be a capital——

Q. Would you tell us what the column is?

A. Under payments.

Q. Is there anything in that column that says capital expenditures?

A. That is the reason I said you have to understand normal accounting practice to get that.

The Court: We will take a recess.

of your meeting in Mr. Thatcher's office April 8, 1948?

A. Yes, I did. I was not able to find it.

Q. Are you satisfied now that you looked as much as you can and further search would be pointless? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. When is the last time you saw that memorandum? A. It was at least a year ago.

Q. You don't know whether it became lost before you brought those records here or after?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial. He has testified concerning it.

(Question read.)

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. No.

Q. Yesterday, at the close of testimony, Mr. Weaver, we were talking about Exhibit 165 and particularly certain items there on [2261] which you had capitalized. Do you have before you the exhibits that you were reading yesterday?

A. No, I do not have them.

Q. I will get them from the clerk. I will hand you Exhibit 165. We were talking particularly about the item of $920 in 1945 which you capitalized and which you designated in Exhibit 165 as improvements in 1945 Exhibit 133K.

A. Yes.

Q. And I show you the cancelled check, which is in evidence, Exhibit 133K, payable to H. C. Evans & Company on November 26, 1945, in amount of $920, signed Harold H. Maundrell and endorsed on the back, "Pay to First National Bank of Chicago or order H. C. Evans & Company." Does that check represent the particular expenditure which you capitalized in Exhibit 165?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. Yes, it does.

Q. And I believe you testified that the basis upon which you determined that that particular check should be capitalized was the testimony of Mr. Maundrell, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. I call your attention to the only testimony which I have been able to find in the record, Mr. Weaver——

A. And I might state the expenditure item in the Menlo Club records.

Q. The records in the Menlo Club do not indicate whether it was a capital or current expenses item, do they? [2262]

A. Yes, it did. The manner in which it was entered indicated that. That was what I was trying to tell you yesterday.

Q. Very well, let us get that exhibit. I hand you prosecution's Exhibit 128. I believe the particular page you were referring to yesterday was D-27, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Now, will you tell us what is entered there on that page with respect to this check?

A. Well, with respect to this check, under the date column is November 26 and under "Check No." 1569, under the column "Paid" to H. C. Evans & Company, under the column "Paid out by check" $920. Then there are a number of columns for various expenses and purchases of merchandise for resale.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Is there any entry in those columns with respect to this entry?

A. And salary payments. No. Then there is a column headed under "Payments," name of town, E. R. equipment, and amount paid $920.

Q. Is that the total on that page?

A. Except as appears in the total of columns in which it is entered?

Q. $920 is included in the bottom of the column? A. Yes.

Q. Now, you were about to turn to another page. Is there an entry elsewhere in that book with respect to that item? A. No. [2263]

Q. Now, you capitalized that expenditure, $920, as an asset which should be deducted on a depreciation basis over a period of ten years, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. Do you know what that equipment was that was purchased with that check?

A. Yes, I believe I do.

Q. What was that equipment?

A. Mr. Maundrell told me informally—not in his testimony here—that that represented 21 tables. He had intended setting up a gambling establishment on the second floor of the Menlo Club.

Q. Twenty-one tables, did you say?

A. Yes.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Did you check with the H. C. Evans & Company with respect to that?

A. No, I didn't see any need to.

Q. You did have inquiries made regarding this case in Chicago, did you not? A. Some, yes.

Q. And you knew H. C. Evans & Company was located in Chicago?

A. From the notation on the check, yes.

Q. You made no inquiry of the H. C. Evans & Company records to determine just exactly what was purchased with that check?

A. No, I had no reason to doubt Mr. Maundrell's statement.

Q. Apart from what Mr. Maundrell told you informally, did you [2264] base your decision to capitalize this item on any testimony that was given in this case?

A. Partly on Mr. Maundrell's testimony, I believe.

Q. I call your attention to Mr. Maundrell's testimony on this point at page 1222 of the transcript, the question by Mr. Campbell:

"Q. Let us withdraw that. That is 133J. Now as to the others?

"A. Check 1569 made to H. C. Evans & Company for $920, was for equipment to be used in the Menlo Club.

"Q. That is 133K."

Do you recall any testimony of Mr. Maundrell in this case, regarding this matter of $920 check, other than what I have read to you?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to, the record speaks for itself.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: I want to find out whether he was relying in preparing this exhibit on any other testimony of Mr. Maundrell. That is all I have been able to find. That is what I am getting at.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. I looked at Mr. Maundrell's testimony in detail. What there is in respect to this particular item, I wouldn't attempt to recall without again referring to the testimony. [2265]

Mr. Avakian: I would be glad to make this book available to you.

A. It might save considerable time. I might say this entry in the book is sufficient; it is a capital item.

Q. That is sufficient for you? A. Yes.

Q. Now, in respect to the 1946 item of expenditure which you capitalized in total amount of $2,355.16, I believe the total was set forth in the memorandum marked for identification yesterday. It is 181 for identification. Would you like to refer to this to refresh your recollection as you testify, Mr. Weaver? A. Yes, I would.

Q. Very well. Will you give me the first expenditure that enters into that total amount which you capitalized?

A. You are speaking of 1946 improvements?

Q. Yes, that is right. Could you give me the exhibit number of the check so I can find it here?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: I think that is set forth on Exhibit 165, 134-5-6.

Mr. Avakian: There are about 30 or 40 checks in that exhibit, Mr. Campbell. I want the particular one that refers to the first item.

A. 134-D. [2266]

Q. Will you tell us what that particular expenditure was as to amount and date and person to whom it was paid?

A. It was paid to Bernhards under date of February 15, 1946, in amount of $830.

Q. What was the next item?

Mr. Campbell: Do you have the check number on that?

Mr. Avakian: The check number, Mr. Campbell, is No. 1811.

A. The next item is 135-I, paid to S. Petersen & Son, under date of 5-10-46, in amount of $232.64.

Mr. Campbell: Check number?

Mr. Avakian: I am looking for it. The check number Mr. Campbell, is 2106.

Q. Do you know what that check was issued for?

A. That was for installation of lavatory at 18 Turk Street.

Q. And incidentally, the preceding check was for a carpet and booths at the Menlo Bar, is that correct? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And what is the next one?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. 136-A to S. Petersen & Son on 6-15-46, in amount of $356.90.

Q. And that was for expenses in connection with the installation of a new bar at the Menlo Bar?

A. That was installation.

Q. Is that the total cost of it? [2267]

A. I don't know whether it was the total cost or not.

Mr. Campbell: What is the date of that?

A. 6-15-46.

Q. And what is the next item?

A. 136-B to United Studios on 6-24-46, in amount of $105.

Q. And do you know what that was for?

A. That was for installation of Neon tubing in the Menlo Bar.

Mr. Campbell: I didn't get the date or check number.

Mr. Avakian: Check No. 2251, dated June 24, 1946, in amount of $105, payable to United Studios, Exhibit 136-B.

Q. That you say was for Neon tubing?

A. Yes.

Q. Upon what do you base that answer, Mr. Weaver?

A. I believe it was in Mr. Maundrell's testimony. I will have to refer to it.

Q. Let me see if this will refresh your recollection. I will read you Mr. Maundrell's testimony on that point, page 1243 of the transcript—I will withdraw the question.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object to the last question. The matter is in evidence here in plaintiff's 136, which is in evidence, the check book of the company.

The Court: There is no question before the Court. He withdrew the question.

Q. Exhibit 136, which is the check stub book, contains an entry for that check, which states, "Installation of Neon tubing [2268] in bar," is that right? A. Yes.

Q. Will you give us the next item?

A. 136C payable to cash and cashed by Mr. Kyne under date of 7-18-46, in amount of $126.46.

Q. And do you know what that was for?

Mr. Campbell: What was the check number on that?

Mr. Avakian: 2311.

A. That was for purchase of an adding machine.

Q. And you included that in capitalizing here on a ten-year basis? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. What is the next one?

A. 136-D, United Studios.

Q. In amount of how much?

A. $105, on 8-30-46.

Q. And I call your attention to Mr. Maundrell's testimony on that question, page 1243 of the transcript.

"Q. I call your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 136D, check No. 2426, dated August 30, 1946, payable to the United Studios in amount of $105, and ask you for what purpose that check was issued?

"A. That was for electrical work that was completed in the Menlo Bar on Turk Street." [2269] And that was from page 1243 of the transcript. Is it on the basis of that testimony that you decided to capitalize that item?

A. These were all capitalized either on the basis of Mr. Maundrell's testimony, on the basis of the entry in the check stub book or entry in the record. I can't remember in each instance which one I relied on or whether all were similar.

Q. What is the next item?

A. The next item is 136-E to B. & H. Refrigerator Service on 9-6-46, in amount of $276.89.

Mr. Avakian: Do you want that check number, Mr. Campbell?

Mr. Campbell: I have it, 2436.

Q. Does the check stub on that show for what purpose the check was issued?

A. Yes, it states "Monthly service charge and installation new unit ordered by Joe Silver."

Q. Do you know what portion of that charge was for monthly service charge?

A. No, I do not.

Q. To the extent that the charge was made to a monthly service charge, it would not be proper to capitalize that?

A. No, that is right. I wouldn't have included it if I knew the full amount.

Q. You did, however, include the full amount in capitalizing? A. I did. [2270]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Did you make any inquiry of the B. & H. Service Company to determine what was the monthly charge?

A. No, the amount was not great.

Q. That is why you did not make any inquiry?

A. That is right.

Q. What was the next expenditure which you capitalized?

A. 136-F to B. & H. Refrigeration Service on 9-12-46, in amount of $322.27.

Q. What is the number of that check? Do you have it there?

A. I do not have the check.

Q. It is 2465. Do you recall this testimony of Mr. Maundrell with regard to that check, and I am reading from pages 1245 and 1246 of the transcript:

"Q. I call your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 136F, check dated September 12, 1946, check No. 2465, payable to B. & H. Refrigeration Service, in amount of $322.27, and ask you for what purpose that was issued?

"A. That was also for refrigeration service on the bar, Menlo Bar.

"Q. Wasn't that for a complete new unit?

"A. Well, it is a new unit. There are four or five bills for the new bar installation that we put into the bar.

"Q. Was that the purpose of that check? [2271]

"A. Yes, sir."

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

And then after a few questions and answers on another matter, Mr. Maundrell said:

"May I see the last two checks, please?

"Q. I am handing to you government's Exhibits 136E and 136F.

"A. Check No. 2465, dated September 12th, was charged as repairs and replacements.

"Q. Yes. That is Exhibit 136F?

"A. That's right.

"Q. All right, sir."

Do you recall that testimony of Mr. Maundrell that that check in amount of $322.27 was charged as repairs and replacements?

A. Yes. A complete installation would be capitalized. The check stub itself shows complete new unit.

Q. You know, do you not, that was deducted on the 1946 Menlo Club return as repair and replacement expense?

A. I wouldn't know without checking the figures.

Q. Let me reframe the question. Do you have before you the book that would show how that was entered in the books of the Menlo Club?

A. No, I have not.

Q. Do you have Exhibit 128 before you, or is that for the wrong year?

A. It is not year. [2272]

Q. I show you prosecution's Exhibit 1296, the book of the Menlo Bar for the year 1946, and I call your attention particularly to the entry on a page headed "Payments September, 1946," the first entry on the page is September 12, check No. 2465, paid to B. & H. Refrigeration Service, $322.27, and I call your attention particularly that that amount is entered in column headed "Repairs and Replacements." Do you note that? A. Yes.

Q. Now, does that indicate to you, as an accountant, that Mr. Maundrell, in making the entry in the book, classified this particular expenditure as a repair and replacement expenditure?

A. That is right. I wouldn't necessarily follow that.

Q. Your opinion is that that was incorrect, that it should have been capitalized, is that right?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. If it were treated as a repair and replacement item, it would not enter into the December 31, 1946, list of assets that you have computed on Exhibit 165, would it?

A. No, nor would depreciation be allowed?

Q. The distinction between a repair and replacement item and a capital item is, in the case of repair and replacement, that is deducted in the year of expenditure, whereas in the case of capital item, that is deducted over the life of the asset on depreciation basis, is that right?

A. Where repairs and replacements are of a minor nature, you [2273] wouldn't capitalize. The distinction between capital and major expenditures is one which would require rather detailed discussion. Any replacements which were of major nature, such as a new unit, should be capitalized.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Accountants frequently disagree on the basis as to whether a particular repair item is sufficiently major in importance to be treated as capital rather than current expenditure, do they not?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative, immaterial.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Isn't it true, Mr. Weaver, that the determination of whether a particular expenditure is sufficiently large and important to be capitalized rather than being treated as current expense involves, to some extent, a matter of accounting?

A. Theoretically the nature of the item is the only determining factor. As a practical matter, it might be exercise of judgment.

Q. As a practical matter, accounting judgment is to be exercised?

A. I don't know whether you would call it accounting judgment or whether——

Q. Judgment as to the matter?

A. That is right.

Q. And it is true, is it not, and has it not been true in your long experience, that on many occasions the courts have disagreed [2274] with the Bureau of Internal Revenue as to whether a particular item should have been capitalized or not?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent and immaterial.

The Court: Objection sustained.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Are there other items that enter into that group of expenditures which you capitalized?

A. To cover that neon sign?

Q. That is listed separately.

A. That is all in this particular group.

Q. Is the Neon sign included in the $322.27?

A. No, that is another item.

Q. That is the next one listed? A. Yes.

Q. And the Neon sign item to which you refer, $500 expenditure on July 10, 1945, from Exhibit 132C, is that right? A. Yes.

Q. And you decided to capitalize that item also?

A. It was capitalized. Whether it was solely my decision or whether based on Mr. Maundrell's testimony or entry in the check stub record or entry in the book, I can't recall at the moment.

Q. But in any event you did capitalize that in preparing Exhibit 165?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Now, as to any of these expenditures which you have capitalized [2275] in preparing Exhibit 165, as distinguished from treating them as current expense items, was there uncertainty at all with respect to any of those expenditures in your mind as to how they should be classified?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial and incompetent.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I am trying to find out the basis for his classification and trying to determine whether he was convinced as to each item or whether there was some doubt about it.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Mr. Golden: As an expert, whether he is certain or not.

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Q. Let me ask you, with respect to this B. & H. Refrigeration Service item, where the checks show it was for monthly service charge as well as installation and you testified that to the extent that the expenditure represented a monthly service charge it should not have been capitalized, was there any question in your mind as to the propriety of capitalizing that portion of the charge in preparing Exhibit 165?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent as to his state of mind.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. It is true, is it not, Mr. Weaver, that to the extent that you capitalized that portion of the expenditure which represented [2276] the monthly service charge, you increased the closing net worth of the Menlo Club as reflected in Exhibit 165 over what it would have been if you had not capitalized that portion of the charge?

A. I also increased the beginning net worth, so to that extent they are offsetting and have no effect.

Q. Suppose this was an expenditure that was made during the indictment period, it was, was it not?

A. Yes, if you are talking about one year.

Q. And it was during the year 1946, was it not?

A. That is right.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. So that it did not increase the net worth at the beginning of 1946, did it? A. No.

Q. You were wrong in that statement?

A. Right.

Q. It affected the net worth only at the end of December 31, 1946?

A. Do you know what the service charge was?

Q. No, I don't, but to the extent then that you included that portion of the charge in capital assets, you have increased the amount of closing net worth, is that right?

A. Yes, I would be glad to remove it if you claim that.

Q. You are the gentleman that conducted this five-year investigation, Mr. Weaver, not I. As you know I did not even see this check until it was produced in court. [2277]

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute——

The Court: This is not a debating society.

Mr. Avakian: I would be glad to have the witness instructed to that effect.

The Court: Well, let us not have these side matters.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, in treating certain of these assets as capital rather than current items in Exhibit 165, can you refer me to the particular statute or regulation which you were applying?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Well, now, if your Honor please, I am trying to find out simply the provision of law that covers this situation in his mind. I am not asking him for his understanding, what that is, but simply how he——

The Court (Interceding): The ruling will stand.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor will recall——

The Court (Interceding): The ruling will stand.

Mr. Avakian: Perhaps if you would permit me to be heard you might consider——

The Court (Interceding): The ruling will stand.

Q. I will ask you, Mr. Weaver, if you are familiar with Section 29.23(a)-1 of Regulations 111, issued by the Secretary of the Treasury?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as [2278] incompetent.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Golden: Your Honor, may we be heard on that?

The Court: No.

Mr. Golden: May we be heard on it in the absence of the jury?

The Court: No, I am not going to stop now.

Mr. Golden: May I make an offer of proof?

The Court: You may make an offer of proof in the absence of the jury.

Mr. Golden: It is always proper to ask expert witnesses——

The Court (Interceding): I do not want any argument. I have ruled. I do not want any offer of proof made in the presence of the jury.

Mr. Golden: Then may the jury be excused?

The Court: Yes.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Q. Mr. Weaver, in determining to classify as capital assets the various expenditures shown on Exhibit 165 we have been talking about this morning, did you refer to or make use of your knowledge involving any provision of law or of regulations?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent.

The Court: Answer the question.

A. Well, I presume I did. It is rather difficult to say exactly what you refer to. I did not refer to any particular book.

Q. Would you like to have me call your attention to any particular provisions and ask you whether you considered those?

Mr. Campbell: Object to what he would like Mr. Avakian to do.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: I understood the witness wanted something specific.

The Court: I think you understand, but my thought was if there is anything here that is the result of an opinion, any item the result of opinion, you can ask concerning it, but to ask a general question like this, I can't see that we are getting anywhere with that.

Mr. Avakian: All right, I will reframe the question. [2280]

Q. Mr. Weaver, you testified earlier that the matter of deciding to classify certain expenditures as capital rather than current expenses, involved to some extent the exercise of judgment, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And in exercising that judgment, is it necessary, in order to exercise the judgment, to refer to any regulations of law or regulations applicable to the matter of capitalizing certain expenditures?

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute—I am going to object because it calls for——

The Court (Interceding): My idea was you might find some specific item here which is obviously a deduction or amounts to an expression of opinion.

Mr. Campbell: Further, your Honor, I wish to

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

call attention to another aspect of my objection and that is calling for his conclusion as to what entered into the judgment of others in the determination of these items.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I had referred to the specific matters in question, but let me do that again.

The Court: Very well.

Q. I am referring now specifically, Mr. Weaver, to the various improvements in 1946——

The Court: Pardon me—the response to your statement, the question before. It seems to me you should take a little [2281] broader view of it. Even if some of these, in the opinion of an expert account, it might appear some item listed as capital should not be listed as capital, I think it would then be the duty of the expert, such as Mr. Weaver, to put it in the proper place.

Mr. Avakian: That is right.

Q. I am referring specifically, Mr. Weaver, to the item on Exhibit 165 entitled, "For improvements in 1946, $2355.16." Now that represents a capitalization of the various expenditures which you testified to, which total that amount, does it not?

A. Yes.

Q. And in capitalizing those expenditures as capital expenses, you did, to some extent at least, exercise your judgment as an expert accountant, did you not?

A. Well, I relied in some cases on the testimony of Mr. Maundrell, in some instances on the entries in the check stubs, and some instances on the entry in the books. Now you might say I might have used my judgment to the extent that where those appeared to be incorrect, I would change them.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. And you did actually take one item, for example, entered on the books as repairs and replacements, and through the exercise of your judgment, you treated that as a capital expenditure, did you not? A. Yes. [2282]

Q. Now, in exercising your judgment, Mr. Weaver, in making the computations with regard to these capital items on Exhibit 165, did you draw to any extent upon your knowledge or understanding of any provision of law?

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute—I object to that as assuming a fact not in evidence in the first place.

The Court: It is going beyond the thought I had. You are referring to the whole sum total of this exhibit.

Mr. Avakian: As to any item in there, your Honor.

The Court: I think the question is too general and I think you should point out the specific item.

Mr. Avakian: All right.

Q. With respect to this three hundred twenty-two dollar expenditure, B. & H. Refrigeration Service, which was entered on the books as repairs and replacements and which you, in the exercise of your judgment, said that you capitalized as a capital asset, did you, in exercising your judgment on that particular matter, draw on your knowledge or understanding of the law? By law I am including regulations issued by the Treasury Department and any other form in which the law may be expressed.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent.

The Court: Answer the question yes or no.

A. Well, in everything I do in an accounting sense, I can't see how I can avoid drawing on all my best experience and [2283] training. What particular part would come into play at the particular time would be a question very difficult to answer.

Q. Perhaps you did not understand my question. In doing that, did you draw, to any extent, upon your understanding of what the law provides with respect to capitalizing that type of expenditure?

A. If you mean did I refer to any particular provision, no.

Q. Did you draw on your understanding of the law?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as asked and answered.

The Court: I think so.

Mr. Avakian: He said he did not draw on any particular provision. Now, I am making it broader than that.

Q. Did you draw upon your understanding of the law?

Mr. Campbell: I make the same objection, asked and answered.

The Court: He stated in his determination he

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

relied upon training and experience and understanding what the law was.

Mr. Avakian: I do not think he included the latter. If he did, then my question is answered.

Q. Did you draw in part at least on your understanding of the law, Mr. Weaver?

A. I presume I must have. You see the difficulty arises in this respect, that in some instances accounting principles and tax law coincide. In that case where they do, it is difficult to tell which one you are drawing on. Where they do not [2284] coincide, there isn't much difficulty.

Q. I am asking you in respect to this particular $322.27 expenditure, which was entered on the books as repairs and replacements and which you treated in your Exhibit 165 as a capital expenditure. Now, do you know whether there is any provision of law applicable to that particular——

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object as incompetent and improper cross-examination

The Court: Yes, I suggest that you inquire on what he based his determination.

Mr. Avakian: I have been trying to find whether he based in part on his understanding of the law and I have not got an answer to that. I am trying, by pointing my questions up a little more, to get an answer to that question, which your Honor ruled a moment ago I could ask.

The Court: Of course, I have no right to dictate how to question the witness. Wherever it shows these matters are the result of exercise of judgment or opinion, you may ask him on what he bases it. If it develops he bases it on some law, then you may find out what law he bases it on.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Avakian: I am asking him specifically if he did base in part on his understanding of the law. That can be answered yes or not.

The Court: He may answer. [2285]

Q. Did you, or did you not, Mr. Weaver, base your judgment in that matter to any extent at all upon your understanding of what the law provides with respect to that asset?

A. Well, it was law or my understanding of the category.

Q. Can you refer me to what particular——

The Court: I am going to sustain the objection. That is not the understanding of the result of our conference. I thought you would accept it, but if you do not want to accept it you may not, but my thought was where we had a matter of opinion, an item which is a matter of opinion, you may ask him on what that is based and if it develops in his answer it is based on some provision of law, you may find out what it is.

Mr. Avakian: That is what I was asking him.

The Court: I can't see it that way. Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, he has stated——

The Court: I have ruled. I am not going to open it up again.

Mr. Avakian: I was half way in the question

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

when your Honor sustained the objection and I have not heard an objection.

Mr. Campbell: I have objected.

The Court: Whatever is in that record will not be answered.

Q. Upon what did you base your judgment, Mr. Weaver, in treating [2286] as a capital expenditure the payment of 322 and some cents to the B. & H. Refrigeration Service, which was entered on the Menlo Club books as a repair and replacement expense? A. Do you have the check number?

Q. I can get it for you.

Mr. Golden: 2465.

A. It is based on notation on the check stub, where it states; "Complete new unit."

Q. Upon what did you base your judgment that an expenditure for a complete new unit should be treated as a capital rather than a current expense?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as having been asked and answered.

The Court: This question is a little different. Let us have the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Objection overruled. Let us have the question.

(Question read.)

A. My past experience and training.

Q. Can you refer me to anything more specific than a general statement?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. If you mean, did I go to any book and refer to any section of law or any discussion of accounting, no.

Q. What specifically did you base it on? You gave me the [2287] general statement, on your past experience, but can you be more specific? What, in your past experience, was the basis for that judgment?

A. From my past experience and training the acquisition of new assets of this character are capital items.

Q. Somewhere in your past training and experience you formed that opinion and judgment, is that it? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Do you know just what in your past experience and training was the basis for that judgment that you formed?

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object——

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: I am going to ask the Court's indulgence in this respect—Mr. Golden and I are not sure just what you stated we could ask.

The Court: I think it was stated two or three times. I do not like to make any more statements about it. I will just meet the situations as they arise. I will say—wherever it appears in this witness' answer there is an expression of opinion, you may ask what the source of that opinion is, and if he says it is based upon some law, you can ask him what section or what law it is. Where there is an item in an exhibit here which is not merely some copy of the record but is the result of [2288] deduction or expression of his opinion, you may ask him what the source of the deduction or opinion was, and if it develops it was a specific question of law or matter of law, you can ask him what law.

Mr. Avakian: To test the scope of his experience and education, may I, without reading anything, hand him a particular document, and ask him whether his knowledge and training and experience, including understanding of that particular section——

Mr. Campbell: There is no point in testing an expert——

The Court: Objection will be sustained. We will take a recess until 1:30.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Q. Mr. Weaver, I will hand you Exhibits 165 and 181 for identification. On Exhibit 165 you show an item, "Accounts Receivable. Advance for purchase of equipment for Mr. Remmer's office, 50 Mason Street," in amount of $7,489.76 at the end of 1945 and $8,600.20 at the end of 1946. Is the detail making up those amounts set forth on your Exhibit 174? [2289] A. Yes, it is.

Q. So that Exhibit 174 represents simply the detail of that item in 165 and the total on Exhibit 174 is a duplication of the total Exhibit 165, is that correct?

A. It is the same figure, yes, it is not a duplication.

Q. It represents the same items?

A. That is right, yes.

Q. So that in considering the net worth of Mr. Remmer from these exhibits, you would not use that same figure two times, would you? A. No.

Q. Now, the detail making up those amounts represented by the items set forth in Exhibit 174 is based, in part at least, on the cancelled checks which are indicated by the purported exhibit references in Exhibit 174? A. Yes, that's right.

Q. Let me refer you to the item on Exhibit 174, designated as "John Hagen, Carpenter work, $76.46." The reference to that is Exhibit 133M, is it not?

A. Yes, and to Mr. Maundrell's testimony on page 1223.

Q. And the number of that check is 1574, is that correct?

A. I do not have the check numbers on the list.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Exhibit 133M is check No. 1574?

A. Yes, that's right.

Q. Now, you said that you relied in part on Mr. Maundrell's [2290] testimony at page 1223, and I will read you Mr. Maundrell's testimony in that regard. Mr. Maundrell stated:

> "Check No. 1574, John Hagen, $76.46, was for further office repairs at 50 Mason Street."

Is that the testimony to which you refer?

A. Yes. However, it can't be read out of the context or it will convey the wrong meaning.

Q. Immediately before that he was questioned about checks in the sixty series.

A. I mean the context of these checks to John Hagen and the general construction of the office at 50 Mason that was being done at that time. Now, if he inadvertently used the word "further," I am sure he did not mean it in the sense——

Q. Let us not have your interpretation of Mr. Maundrell's testimony. Let us confine it to what was said rather than your interpretation.

A. I thought you asked me what my conclusion was.

Q. No, I asked you if that was the testimony of Mr. Maundrell to which you refer and I believe you answered that was in part, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. I have not asked you any further questions yet. Now, Mr. Weaver, it was your conclusion and judgment that that item of $76.46, which Mr. Maun-

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

drell said was for further office repairs, should be capitalized as cost of the office at 50 Mason [2291] Street rather than being treated as a current deductible expense, is that right?

A. Yes, that's right.

Q. Now, I call your attention to the next item on Exhibit 174, which is designated as Exhibit 133-O, dated 11-28-45, a check to John Hagen, carpenter, in the amount of $65, with reference to the testimony on page 1223. Do you have Exhibit 133-O before you? A. What is the check number?

Mr. Campbell: 1576.

Q. I was going to ask you that. You have the check there. The exhibit numbers are on the backs of the checks, Mr. Weaver.

A. Yes, it is 133-O.

Q. I will ask you if the testimony of Mr. Maundrell, on which you rely in part, was this testimony from page 1223:

> "Check No. 1576 to John Hagen for $55.06 was for further office repairs. He worked around there for about three or four weeks."

Is that the testimony?

A. Yes. The fact he worked three or four weeks indicated it was under general construction.

Q. And it was your opinion and conclusion and judgment that that payment of $65 for further office repairs should be capitalized as capital expense rather than treated as currently deducted expenditure? [2292]

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent, as-

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

suming a fact not in evidence. He stated only in part upon Mr. Maundrell's testimony that he passed the capitalization of that item.

Mr. Avakian: Let me rephrase the question.

Q. It was your conclusion and judgment, Mr. Weaver, that this expenditure of $55.06, which Mr. Maundrell testified was for further office repairs, should be treated as a capital asset rather than being treated as a current deductible expenditure?

A. The amount you said is not in agreement with the amount I have here.

Q. What is the amount you have there?

A. Are you referring to 133-O now?

Q. What is the check number? A. 1576.

Q. Well, I am reading Mr. Maundrell's testimony, which states that check 1576 to John Hagen for $55.06 was for further office repairs.

A. The amount is $65 in the check.

Q. Apparently an error was made in the transcript. The check shows $65? A. Yes.

Q. And that is what your Exhibit 174 shows?

A. Yes, that's right.

Q. With that change in the amount in my question—do you recall the question now? [2293]

A. No, I do not.

Q. Was it your opinion, judgment and conclusion that that expenditure of $65 to John Hagen for what Mr. Maundrell described as further office repairs, should be capitalized as a capital asset rather than being treated as a current business expenditure?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. I don't recall having any question raised in my mind about it at all.

Q. I simply ask if that was your opinion, judgment and conclusion?

A. Certainly it was my conclusion, yes.

Q. Now, you stated earlier in your cross-examination this morning that major items of repair are sometimes classified by accountants as capital expenditures rather than current deductible expenditures, is that correct? Do I recall your testimony correctly? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And would the exercise of judgment as to whether these two expenditures of $76.46 and $65.00, which Mr. Maundrell in his testimony described as office repairs, should be capitalized rather than being treated as current repair items, be influenced in part by the decision as to whether those amounts were major or minor amounts, using your word?

A. They are influenced entirely by the fact that they are part of a major expenditure. A major expenditure is not necessarily [2294] one sum. If these were expenditures made apart from the general construction of the office, just for repairs, the size of it alone, since they are very immaterial, would influence me in classifying as expenses, simply made at the time and in connection with general construction, they are part of the major expenditure, so even though they are immaterial in amount, I classified them as capital items.

Q. In other words, if this particular carpenter

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

work had been done in these amounts by Mr. Hagen independently of the reconstruction work at the office in general, then you might have classified them as current rather than capital, is that what you are saying?

A. Or if it had been done independently of any other major construction.

Q. You know, do you not, from Mr. Maundrell's testimony, that the reconstruction work was done by a contractor named Fred W. Shell? You may refer to 174 to refresh your recollection.

A. Yes, that was part of the reconstruction.

Q. Mr. Shell had the contract, did he not, to make the new office?

A. Yes. Just what contract, I do not know. Undoubtedly there was more than one contract because there was some electrical work done there.

Q. As far as Mr. Hagen, carpenter work was done, do you know from testimony in this case whether that was a part of the [2295] reconstruction work or whether, as Mr. Maundrell testified, it represented office repairs?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative. The testimony in this case will speak for itself.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Did you check with Mr. Shell in connection with this matter?

A. No, I had no reason to question the entries on the records and Mr. Maundrell's testimony.

Q. Did you talk to Mr. Hagen? Will you answer just yes or no? A. No.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. And is there any testimony as to the nature of Mr. Hagen's work in this case that you relied upon in preparing 174, other than testimony on 1223 which you have designated in Exhibit 174?

A. You are relating only to testimony now, or are you also including exhibits?

Q. You have designated in Exhibit 174 that reference for these items of John Hagen is testimony on page 1223. Now, I am asking you, is there any testimony in this case, other than what is on that page, that you relied upon in making this adjustment?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming a fact not in evidence, that characterization. Exhibit 174 also refers to [2296] exhibits, also refers to testimony appearing at page 1218. The record shows on the face of 174.

Mr. Avakian: I stand corrected if that is true. My photostat does not show that. I call your attention to the items Hagen and ask you to look at it.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, and the reference 133M and 133-O both refer to testimony at page 1223 and below there is also stated: "Checks referred to above were identified by Mr. Maundrell as being drawn on the account of Harold H. Maundrell or Elmer Remmer at the Crocker First National Bank. (purpose—P. 1218.)

Q. Did you rely on the testimony on page 1218 also then? A. In part.

Q. The statement Mr. Campbell just read, referring to page 1218, appears below all these various items, does it not? A. Yes, that is right.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Now, I am going to hand you page 1218 of the transcript and ask you whether on page 1218 you find any reference to these two checks that were paid to Mr. Hagen?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to—the record speaks for itself.

The Court: I think it does. I think he has already testified in the question you propounded you already read——

Mr. Avakian: Page 1223 was read, not 1218.

The Court: Very well, he may answer the question.

Q. Is there anything there that refers to these two payments [2297] to Mr. Hagen? I am going to object to your looking at another page.

Mr. Campbell: I object——

Mr. Avakian: He is looking at another page. I want him to answer first.

A. I can't understand page 1218 without looking at what precedes because the questioning and answering is continuous, it doesn't break off.

Q. Very well.

A. On page 1217 the question refers to construction of office at 50 Mason Street. Then the questioning continues, going into these other checks—"And as to those improvements upon what record or records of what enterprises was set up?" "A. Well, it was set up principally for Mr. Remmer's private office and also for the office of the Day-Night Cigar and 110 Eddy." Then it continues at the bottom of the page going to another check to Mr. Shell in connection with construction work here.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. What page are you on now?

A. 1219. Then on page 1221 there is reference to a check to John Hagen and in answer to the question, for what purpose, it says it was for carpenter work—"Carpenter work where? A. At the new office, 50 Mason Street. Q. That was part of the construction cost there? A. Yes, sir." Then it continues on to the other checks. That is why I say you can not read [2298] any one without the context. My reference in those pages did not intend to be so specific. I did not particularly intend to tie down to any one particular page.

Q. I just want to be sure what you are doing is being done soundly and accurately.

A. I hope it is.

Q. You notice on the dates as you have listed them in Exhibit 174 that checks to Shell designated as "Contractor, new office" are August 18, 1945; October 4, 1945, and November 12, 1945?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And that October 12, 1945, is the last check to Fred Shell, is it not? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. It is possible, is it not, Mr. Weaver, there might have been some damage at the office and as a result at some later date Mr. Hagen, the carpenter, was called in to make repairs to that?

A. Anything is possible, but not probable.

Q. Without checking with Mr. Hagen or Mr.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Shell, you wouldn't know that? I believe you said you did not check with either of them.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Now, on Exhibit 174 you have listed a check described as Exhibit 135D. I believe it is dated March 31, 1946, United Studios electrical [2299] work, testimony page 1235, in amount of $79.60. Do you see that item? A. Yes.

Q. Do you have the check before you, 135D?

A. No, these are all in 1945.

Mr. Campbell: Check 1981.

Q. I show you Exhibit 135D, which is the check in question, United Studios, in amount $79.60. There is nothing on the check itself to indicate the purpose of the expenditures?

A. No. Do you have the check stub?

Mr. Avakian: The check stub shows electrical work 52 Mason Street. You refer to page 1235. Is that the testimony of Mr. Maundrell?

A. I believe so.

Q. The question and answer on that page is:

"Q. I show you plaintiff's Exhibit 135D, check dated March 31, 1946, No. 1981, in the amount of $79.60, to United Studios, and ask you for what purpose that check was issued?

"A. That was for electric work that was done on the new offices at 50 Mason Street."

Was it on the basis of that testimony that you concluded that expenditure should be capitalized rather than being treated as a current business ex-

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

pendituret? A. That was part of it, yes. [2300]

Q. You note, do you not, that the date of that check is March 31, 1946, whereas the checks to Shell, the contractor at the new office, were in August, October, and November, of 1945?

A. Yes.

Q. Doesn't that indicate to you that the new office had been completed prior to March 31, 1946?

A. No, very often after construction of an office is completed, you will find you need new electric outlets, something of that nature, not a repair but actual additional cost of the new office.

Q. And in that type of expenditure you have to exercise judgment as to whether it is a major repair? A. Yes.

Q. And if it was a $5.00 expense of that kind, you wouldn't capitalize it?

A. I wouldn't call that a matter of judgment. That is a matter of whether or not it is worth bothering with.

Q. Whether it is worth bothering with is a matter of opinion and judgment, isn't it?

A. I presume it is.

Q. And did you exercise your judgment in deciding that that particular item should be capitalized?

A. Yes. I did it mainly to keep from being questioned concerning as to why I hadn't capitalized it.

Q. By capitalizing it you have, in effect, increased the [2301] amount of income computed to Mr. Remmer on the net worth?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. Yes. I have also increased depreciation.

Q. The depreciation on that would be how much, on that $79.46?

A. Somewhere in the neighborhood of $4.00.

Q. So you added 79 dollars and gave us a break to the extent of four dollars, is that right?

A. Well, no matter how you look at it, it would seem immaterial to me.

Q. And is it your opinion and judgment as an accountant, Mr. Weaver, that on items of this kind, which amount to approximately 79 dollars, it is proper accounting to go to all the accounting work that is necessary to set that up in a depreciation account, rather than simply treat it as a current business expenditure?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent and misleading. The estimony is this is one of a number of items.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Is it true, Mr. Weaver, that in setting up a particular expenditure as a capital rather than a current expenditure, considerable more bookkeeping work is required in connection with that item than there would be if treated as current expenditure?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Is the amount of work which would be required to capitalize [2302] an expenditure a factor which you, as an expert accountant, would consider in deciding whether a particular item was of sufficient major importance to capitalize?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent.

The Court: You may answer that question.

A. It is one factor that would be considered, yes.

Q. Now, it is true, is it not, Mr. Weaver, that while this particular item and the two Hagen checks are small matters in amount, that in all of these various enterprises, concerning which there has been testimony in this case, the accumulated total of those items might be a very substantial amount?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative and incompetent.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. You have listened to the entire testimony in this case, have you not?

A. With the exception of one or two days that I missed.

Q. Do you recall whose testimony, while you were away?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to——

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. With the exception of one or two days you have listened to all the testimony? A. Yes.

Q. From your knowledge of the testimony in this case, is it not true, Mr. Weaver, that the total amount of these various [2303] miscellaneous items which you felt should be capitalized rather than being treated as current expenditures, amounts to a very substantial sum? A. You mean——

Mr. Campbell: I am inclined to let him answer, but I make the objection that it is not competent.

The Court: Objection sustained.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Avakian: If the objection was based on the use of the word "substantial," we can have him give the exact amount. I did not want him to go to that trouble, your Honor.

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, you have set forth in Exhibit 165 as an asset 100 thousand dollars as the cost of 10-year lease, and then under liabilities you have set up a reserve for depreciation, which I believe you testified represents a pro rata allocation of that 100 thousand dollars over a ten-year period, am I correct in that respect?

A. No, the allocation is under reserve amortization of lease.

Q. I modify that—you set up for reserve for amortization on the 10-year basis, is that right?

A. That is right.

Q. Then in addition you have set up as assets in amount $48,801.50, the item "Other Assets, Equipment, Licenses, Good Will, etc.," and then you have set up a reserve for depreciation with respect to that item, have you not? [2304] A. Yes.

Q. And can you tell us the life period as used in computing your reserve for depreciation on that item? A. Yes, a period of ten years.

Q. Now, you have included in that figure $43,801.50, all of the physical assets of the Menlo Club, at the time of acquisition, I take it?

A. And all of the tangible assets and good will.

Q. In other words, that includes good will and also all physical assets?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to—it doesn't include inventory.

Mr. Avakian: I think I should clear that up.

Q. The inventory is set forth as 31 thousand odd dollars? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Aside from inventory, you have included in the $43,800, all of the physical assets, whatever they might have been, of the Menlo Club, Bar and Tiny's Restaurant? A. And all the tangible assets.

Q. Yes, I say you have also included all physical assets, none of the physical assets are left out?

A. Except the inventory.

Q. Now, do you know specifically what those assets were?

A. Well, I know that the physical assets were certainly much less than 31 thousand dollars worth.

Q. I am not talking about the amount. Do you know what they [2305] were—tables, chairs, refrigerators?

A. Represented tables and chairs of the Menlo Club; represented the ordinary restaurant equipment which you find in a restaurant and ordinary bar equipment you find in a bar.

Q. Do you know whether that equipment was new equipment or used equipment on May 1, 1945?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to—whether it was new or used is immaterial.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: The question of the life to be used has to depend——

The Court: You may answer the question.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. Well, the life use is based on the life on the return.

(Question read.)

Q. Can you answer that question?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Is it not true, Mr. Weaver, that deduction for depreciation should be based on a reasonable estimate of the life of the asset at the time of its acquisition?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial in this case, he having stated that the life use here was that used on the return of the taxpayer.

Mr. Avakian: This is an expert witness. He is expected to do what is correct. Now, he has made numerous adjustments where he thought it was incorrect, all against us, I might say. [2306]

The Court: You may answer the question.

Q. Do you recall the question?

A. Not very much.

(Question read.)

A. Yes. Since ten years is used in the return, that certainly was at least a reasonable estimate of its life.

Q. You made no independent analysis of that?

A. No, I presumed if the taxpayer stated it would last ten years, it would last at least that long.

Q. Do you know the particular return you refer to?

A. The returns of the Menlo Club, both original and amended.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. I show you prosecution's Exhibit 91, amended return of the Menlo Club for the year 1946, and I call your attention to schedule D, "Depreciation," and ask you if that is the portion of the return to which you refer?

Mr. Campbell: I object to that. He called for the original return as well as the amended return.

Mr. Avakian: They are all the same, but I will be glad to show him all of them.

Q. I show you prosecution's Exhibit 90, which is original return for 1946, and Schedule D, "Depreciation," is the same on both of those returns, is it not?

A. Yes, and on the original return as well as the amended, under column "Estimated Life Use, Depreciation," is stated ten years. [2307]

Q. And the only amount of depreciation in dollars as on that return is designated as "Furniture and fixtures $2,000," is that not correct?

A. That is right; so to the taxpayer's advantage I allowed depreciation on the entire amount, $43,801.50, even though they only claim $2,000 in the return.

Q. Let us see if you really did that to the taxpayer's advantage. Isn't it a fact that the taxpayer's return amortized that same 43 thousand dollar figure on a five-year amortization basis, and I will hand you prosecution's exhibit 91, which is amended return for 1946, and I call your particular attention to statement included on the part of that return designated "Depreciation 21." Will you read that over——

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute—I am going to object to the question. He asked for the original return and then he hands him an amended return.

Q. Isn't it true, Mr. Weaver, that Mr. Remmer's individual 1946 return was filed after the Menlo Club filed its amended 1946 return and that Mr. Remmer's individual return showed as his share of Menlo Club income the amount allocated to him from the Menlo Club amended return that is in your hand?

A. You are talking about an entirely different item——

Q. Can you answer that question?

A. You are——

Mr. Avakian: May he answer the [2308] question?

The Court: You have one question propounded to the witness and I don't see how the witness, when a question is propounded and he is asked to look at an exhibit and then confronted with another question before he can answer the original question, I don't see how the witness can really go along.

Mr. Avakian: Mr. Campbell interposed an objection to the first question and I was trying to overcome the objection.

The Court: I don't care what caused it. Ask the witness a question and let him answer.

Mr. Avakian: Let me withdraw the question to which Mr. Campbell objected.

The Court: All right.

Q. Do you remember the question?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. No, but you are going into an entirely different subject.

Q. Do you remember the question?

A. No, I do not.

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: I object to that. The items speak for themselves.

The Court: He may answer.

(Question read.)

Q. Isn't that true, Mr. Weaver?

A. I don't recall when his individual 1946 return was filed.

Q. I hand you prosecution's Exhibit 5, which is Mr. Remmer's [2309] return for the year 1946. Would that assist you in answering my question?

Mr. Campbell: Is that a new question?

Mr. Avakian: Same question. He didn't recall certain things so I am trying to assist him in recalling them.

(Question read.)

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, getting back to the prior question which I withdrew at the time—it is true, is it not, that the Menlo Club 1946 amended return took an amortization deduction based on five years for an amount of $143,801.50?

A. Yes, in spite of the fact that the lease specifically states it is for ten years and cost 100 thousand dollars.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. You heard Mr. Maundrell's testimony that when he prepared that statement he was under the impression the lease was for five years?

Mr. Campbell: I submit the record speaks for itself.

Q. That is the fact, that the amended return takes a five-year amortization for the 143 thousand dollar figure?

A. Yes, and it is entirely wrong.

Q. Whether it is right or wrong, what you did in Exhibit 165 was to break that same figure up into two amounts, one of 100 thousand dollars cost of ten-year lease, which you amortized on a 10-year basis, and the other $43,801.50, which you classed as other assets and depreciated on the ten-year basis, isn't that true? [2310]

A. That's the way the agreements read.

Q. Isn't that what you did? A. Yes.

Q. Very well. Now, the use of a ten-year life, as distinguished from a five-year life, means that you cut in half the amount of actual depreciation allowed the taxpayer, isn't that true?

A. That is true as far as it goes, but——

Mr. Avakian: Just a minute——

Mr. Campbell: He is entitled to explain.

The Court: Let him explain.

A. Included in this 43 thousand are his tangible assets, to which no depreciation credit should be allowed for any purpose. We have permitted it to remain in there to avoid any argument.

Q. But the fact is that the effect of your adjudgment, as compared with the Menlo Club 1946 return, is that you have reduced the annual deduction by approximately 14 thousand dollars a year, isn't that right?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. The depreciation of physical assets was allowed as claimed, except that we also permitted a deduction on intangible assets, to which actually they wouldn't be entitled under the law.

Mr. Avakian: May he answer my question?

Mr. Campbell: Let him finish.

Mr. Avakian: It can be answered yes or no.

(Question read.)

The Court: Can you answer yes or no? [2311]

A. Which return do you refer to?

Q. Comparing your exhibit 165 with the Menlo Club 1946 return? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. The answer is yes. That is what you had in mind when you said you did Mr. Remmer a favor?

Mr. Campbell: That is objected to.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Avakian: He said he did him a favor.

Mr. Campbell: I object—I ask that go out.

The Court: That may go out. This is not the time to argue.

Mr. Avakian: But your Honor permitted——

The Court: Just a minute—let us not have any difficulties now.

Q. Do you still have before you the 1946 Menlo Club amended return? A. Yes.

Q. And would you refer to the typewritten statement which is attached to it, which Mr. Maundrell

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

testified he prepared, regarding the amortization of 143 thousand dollars? A. Yes.

Q. May I have that please? I am going to read to you that statement, Mr. Weaver: (Reads Exhibit 91). Had you read that statement prior to the commencement of this trial, Mr. Weaver?

A. Yes. [2312]

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, it is a fact, is it not, that in 1948, approximately three years after this club was purchased by Mr. Remmer and his associates, the District Attorney's office in San Francisco, through a new interpretation of an old ordinance, took action——

Mr. Campbell: I object at this point.

Mr. Avakian: May I state the question?

Mr. Campbell: As being incompetent, if the Court please, as to any action taken in 1948 by the District Attorney's office. He has gotten to the point of interpretation of an old ordinance relating to the club.

The Court: I can't see what it has to do with the return filed in 1946.

Mr. Avakian: Because it has bearing on the estimate of the life——

The Court (Interceding): Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Before the question is stated, your Honor?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Avakian: In view of the fact that your Honor will not permit me to state the question, I will make an offer of proof. I will defer it to the recess. I would like that opportunity, since I can not ask the question. May I have that opportunity during the recess?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: Yes, we will excuse the jury at any time.

Mr. Avakian: I suggest that we do it at the next recess. [2313]

The Court: No, we will not do it at any recess.

Mr. Avakian: I mean at the begining or end of the recess.

The Court: Very well.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, it is a fact, is it not, that proper accounting practice calls for amortization of an intangible asset acquired from capital outlay for a limited period of time, the length of which is based upon a reasonable estimate?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent.

(Question read.)

The Court: Answer the question.

Mr. Campbell: I suggest further that the question does not contain sufficient elements.

The Court: Well, he may answer the question.

A. I do not understand exactly what you mean.

Q. Well, are you familiar with the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code and Treasury regulations providing for such deduction of intangible assets?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent and immaterial.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Avakian: An expert witness, your Honor.

Mr. Campbell: And has no bearing on any questions here.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. You mean deduction of intangible? [2314]

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: I submit the question is incompetent.

The Court: What do you mean when you say "such"?

Mr. Avakian: Stated in the prior question.

Mr. Campbell: The prior question the witness said he didn't understand.

Mr. Avakian: I didn't hear the witness say he couldn't understand.

The Court: I heard him.

Mr. Avakian: This last question?

The Court: The one before.

Mr. Avakian: I will reframe it.

Q. Are you familiar with the provisions of the internal Revenue Code and the Treasury regulations, providing for depreciation of intangible assets acquired through capital outlay, where the value of the business in the production of income is for a limited period of time?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent and immaterial. Assuming facts not in evidence.

The Court: Answer the question.

A. Generally speaking there is no deduction provided for intangible assets such as, for example,

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

good will. Now there are certain intangible assets, such as a leasehold, for which a deduction is provided over the life of the lease. However, in this case the life of the lease was falsely stated [2315] in the return to be five years.

Mr. Avakian: I ask that the characterization here, "falsely stated" be stricken.

The Court: It may go out.

Q. Do you understand my question? Can you give me a direct answer to it?

Mr. Campbell: I submit he has given a direct answer.

The Court: Do you want to frame another question if you are not satisfied with that answer?

Mr. Avakian: I will frame another question.

Q. Mr. Weaver, if you do not understand my question, I would appreciate your saying so and I will be glad to reframe it. If you do, please give me a direct answer and then you will be permitted to offer any explanation.

Mr. Campbell: I do not believe that characterization is called for.

The Court: Let us go along.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, are you familiar with the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code and the Treasury regulations, which provide for a deduction for intangible assets acquired through capital outlay, where the value of the intangible asset in the business or in the production of income is for only a limited period of time?

Mr. Campbell: Again I object. Assumes a fact not in evidence, that there is such a general statement. [2316]

The Court: I think he stated there wasn't any provision.

Q. Is that your answer there is no such provision?

(Question read.)

The Court: Strike out the reference to falsely stated.

Q. Can you give me a direct answer to my question?

Mr. Campbell: I submit he has given it.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Are you familiar with Section 29.23(L)-1 of Treasury regulations 111, entitled "Depreciation of intangible assets"?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we feel in cross-examining an expert we are entitled to test his knowledge of pertinent provisions of regulations that are applicable to what he did. The purpose of the question was first to find out——

The Court: Show it to him.

Mr. Avakian: Very good.

Mr. Campbell: I submit if that is for the purpose of testing general qualifications as an expert, there is some limitation which we finally reach, after voir dire of the witness, after extensive cross-examination as to background and qualifications, we must reach a point some place where general questions can not be asked for that purpose.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: I hope we will, but you may show him the provision. [2317]

Q. That is the section I described which I now hand you.

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: The question is, is he familiar with it?

Mr. Avakian: Yes. You can answer yes or no.

A. I am sure I have seen the section before, yes.

Q. You are sure you have. Do you wish then to correct your prior answer, generally speaking there is no provision for depreciation of intangible property? A. That was not my testimony.

Mr. Avakian: May we have it read?

The Court: That was not his testimony.

Mr. Avakian: He said generally speaking there was no provision for intangible——

The Court: That is just a portion of it. Read the answer.

(Answer read.)

Q. Do you wish to change that after looking at this regulation?

A. That section does not apply. This is a particular provision for leaseholds.

Q. I am not asking about leaseholds.

A. Well, this is a leasehold.

Q. I am asking whether you wish to change anything in respect to your answer?

Mr. Campbell: I submit that has been answered. [2318]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: You may answer this yes or no.

Q. I am asking if he wishes to change it?

A. No.

Q. In preparing Exhibit 165 and in exercising your judgment on the various adjustments that you made in preparing that exhibit, did you rely to any extent on Section 29.23(L)-3, Treasury Regulations 111?

A. Is that the one I was just looking at?

Q. Yes.

A. I don't believe so, because that does not apply here.

Q. You did not consider it applicable?

A. It is not applicable. It applies to return.

Q. And you did not use that section?

A. I can't say I used any particular section. I know from past experience that leasehold is amortized over the life of the lease. If you want me to go to all the facts, the particular section, I will be glad to do so, but I don't know it off-hand.

Q. All I am asking you, after you have read this section, did this particular section enter into the use of your judgment in preparing Exhibit 165? That is all I am asking.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as asked and answered. He stated what he took into consideration.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: I will stipulate it has been asked, your [2319] Honor. I submit it has not been answered.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: Well, I feel differently; it has been answered.

Q. Mr. Weaver, I show you Exhibit 125C, which is last sheet in the asset section of the Menlo Club ledger for 1947, and is entitled, "Tiny's Restaurant, Menlo Bar, Menlo Club, Furniture, Fixtures, Equipment and Lease," and I also hand you prosecution's Exhibit 140, which is a photostat of a page entitled "Furniture, Fixtures, Equipment and Buildings." You are familiar with those two sheets, are you not? A. Yes.

Q. You recall, do you not, that Exhibit 140 was photostat produced here by the prosecution?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you know whether you, or any members of your staff, arranged for the preparation of this photostat? A. I believe I did.

Q. Do you recall when you did that?

A. No. It was after the Menlo Club records were originally delivered to us.

Q. Where did you have that photostat done?

A. I believe it was in our own office.

Q. Do you have a photostat machine in your office in San Francisco? A. Yes. [2320]

Q. Did you personally make the photostat?

A. No.

Q. Do you know who made it? Do you have a recollection?

A. I suppose whoever was employed as photostat operator at the time.

Q. Do you know where the original sheet from which this photostat was made now is?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. No, I do not.

Q. Did you personally handle that sheet in connection with the preparation of this photostat?

A. Yes.

Q. You specifically recall that, do you?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you take it out of some book at that time?

A. Yes, for the purpose of photostating.

Q. And you personally took it out of the book, is that right? You didn't have some other person, but you did it yourself?

A. I believe I did it myself.

Q. Do you know which book that was?

A. I believe it was in the Menlo Club book for 1945.

Q. Is that in evidence here?

A. I would have to look over the list of exhibits.

Mr. Avakian: Well, we will look for it ourselves. I thought you might know.

The Court: We will take a recess now. [2321]

Mr. Golden: Would your Honor take up this matter now?

The Court: No, not before recess.

Mr. Golden: After the recess, before the jury is called in?

The Court: Very well.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Q. I show you prosecution's Exhibit 128, which is entitled, "Tiny's Restaurant and Menlo Bar, 1945," and I will ask you, Mr. Weaver, if this is the book from which you believe you extracted the original of Exhibit 140?

A. Yes, I believe it is. It may have been in a regular binder at the time rather than paper cover.

Q. Do you have any recollection now on that?

A. I believe it was.

Q. You say you believe the sheets that comprise this exhibit [2322] were bound in a stiff binder cover rather than the manila covers that are now on? A. Yes.

Q. Can you tell us where your photostat machine is with respect to your own personal office in San Francisco?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. It is on the floor just below.

Q. On the floor below you?

A. That is right.

Q. Was Exhibit 128 in your own office at the time you extracted the sheet which you had photostated? A. What is the date?

Q. That is 1945, Tiny's Restaurant and Menlo Bar book I just showed you. A. Yes.

Q. And then you personally took that sheet down to the photostat room?

A. I may have taken it down personally.

Q. Do you have a messenger service available there?

A. It is available. I do not always use it.

Q. You have incoming and outgoing boxes?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you at times use messenger service for sending anything to be photostated? A. Yes.

Q. Did things come back to you from the photostat room by [2323] messenger service also?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall in this particular instance whether Exhibit 140 was sent back up by messenger service? A. I don't know how it came up.

Q. You do not recall whether you personally picked it up or not? A. No, that is right.

Q. Do you know whether the original of Exhibit 140 was returned to you after after the photostat was made? A. Yes.

Q. You know that definitely?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. I always check every photostat with the original.

Q. Do you make any record of documents that are photostated?

A. I do not know whether we did at that time. We do now.

Q. You say that you always checked. Do you have a specific recollection of checking Exhibit 140 against the original, or are you just simply stating general practice?

A. It is my recollection because I was very much interested in that particular document.

Q. And then do you recall what you did with the original of Exhibit 140 after it came back?

A. Yes, I returned it to the book from which I had taken it.

Q. And you personally inserted it in the book?

A. Yes. [2324]

Q. Is there any way in which you can determine the approximate time of that, Mr. Weaver?

A. I do not know.

Q. Can you tell us who keeps whatever records are kept of photostats that are taken?

A. Usually the group leader keeps them for a certain length of time, just how long I do not know. It is more an administrative procedure.

Q. By group leader you mean your own section chief? A. Yes.

Q. The photostat department themselves do not maintain a record?

A. They may also maintain a record.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Have you searched in both of those places to determine whether there was any record that would indicate to you approximately when the original Exhibit 140 was returned to you?

A. No, I had no particular interest in knowing the date.

Q. Are you able to tell us the year it was returned to you? A. Either 1947 or 1948.

Q. When did you last see the original Exhibit 140, so far as you can recall now?

A. As far as I can recall now, I last saw it when I reinserted in the ledger from which I took it.

Q. And that would have been in 1947 or 1948?

A. That is right. [2325]

Q. You do not recall seeing it after that time?

A. No, sir.

Q. Was Exhibit 128 in any one's possession besides yourself personally during the years 1947 and 1948?

A. No one that would have removed any papers.

Q. That was not my question. Can you answer my question?

A. All of these records, for the purpose of keeping them from becoming mixed with others, were placed in a separate room on the floor below my own office and generally when I would work on the records I went down to the room and worked there, or if I was only going to work on one particular book, I might take the book up to my own office.

Q. When you removed the original of Exhibit

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

140 to have the photostat, was Exhibit 128 at that time in your own office or in this room on the floor below?

Mr. Campbell: I submit that is immaterial.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. I believe I took it to my own office, but my office has been moved several times since then and I can not remember just what floor it was on.

Q. In any event, you took it from this special room and to your own office, wherever it may have been? A. Yes.

Q. That is your best recollection?

A. Yes. [2326]

Q. At the time you got the original of Exhibit 140 from the photostat room and inserted it, as you said, in Exhibit 128, was that in your own office or in the special room where these records were being kept?

A. I believe it was still in my own office and then returned to the other room.

Q. Will you answer now then my question as to whether, during 1947 and 1948, any one other than yourself had custody or possession of Exhibit 128?

A. Whenever any records were requested by either Mr. Maundrell or Mr. Kyne, we would give them whatever they desired. Whether this record was ever returned to them under those circumstances, I do not recall, but that would be the only occasion when it would be out of my custody.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Did any other agent work with this Exhibit No. 128 during 1947 and 1948?

A. Yes. However——

Q. Would you give me the names of the agents?

A. Messrs. Morgan and Harkness.

Q. Did they ever take the book out of that special room, so far as you know, when working?

A. So far as I know, they never removed any of the records out of there unless they wanted to bring something up to my office just for a moment for the purpose of discussion.

Q. Was it in this same special room that you kept the B. & R. [2327] Smoke Shoppe 1944 dairy, which early testimony states was lost in the Bureau? A. Yes, I believe it was.

Q. And it was in that special room being kept there at the time it became lost, is that right?

A. What books?

Q. 1944 B. & R. Smoke Shoppe diary that was lost. A. I don't say it was lost there.

Q. Where was it being kept at the time, according to the testimony of agents who testified here, it became lost in the Bureau?

A. No, that was not the testimony. It might also have been returned at a request and then not subsequently returned to the Bureau.

Q. You recall the testimony of Mr. Morgan and Mr. Harkness and yourself that the last seen of that book was in the Bureau of Internal Revenue?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. That is true. That doesn't mean that it was lost there.

Q. Was it in that particular room, though, that it was being kept? A. Yes.

Q. Was that special room also the room in which you kept the memorandum of the conference with Mr. Thatcher which you stated you have lost?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming a fact not in evidence. [2328] He did not say the conference memorandum was lost.

Mr. Avakian: Can not be found is lost? He said he searched and couldn't find it. Isn't that lost?

The Court: Let us have the question.

(Question read.)

A. No, I did not keep that in the same place.

Q. That was kept in a different room?

A. I kept that in my own office.

Q. Which is the place which you said you received at the time the original of 140 from the photostat room? A. That is right.

Q. Now, your last recollection of seeing the original of Exhibit 140 is when you inserted it in No. 128, am I correct in that?

A. I believe that is right, yes.

Q. Now, I believe you testified that on or about July 11, 1949, you turned certain records of the Menlo Club over to Mr. Semenza, do you recall that? A. Yes.

Q. Was Exhibit 128 one of the documents which you turned over to him at that time?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. I think it was. If it appears on the list which is in evidence.

Q. I will hand you Exhibit 70, which is the receipt prepared by Mr. Semenza of records given to him on July 11, 1949. Does that refresh your recollection? [2329]

A. Is that marked 1945?

Q. Tiny's Restaurant and Menlo Bar, 1945.

A. Yes, that was included in these records.

Q. Do you know whether or not the original of Exhibit 140 was contained in Exhibit 128 at the time you turned it over to Mr. Semenza on July 11, 1949? A. I believe it was.

Q. Do you have any recollection of it?

A. No, because as I stated previously, whenever any of these records would be requested, we would return them and if they were again returned to us later, I would not go through to check every sheet to see if some sheets were not there.

Q. Let me find out just exactly what your testimony on that is. Do you have any specific recollection of seeing the original of Exhibit 140 contained in Exhibit 128 at the time you turned it over to Mr. Semenza?

A. No, I didn't go through the pages at that time.

Q. When you say you believe it was, do you mean simply that the last time you saw the original of Exhibit 140 it was contained in Exhibit 128 and you have no knowledge of ever having been taken out?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. I mean I replaced it in the book from which I took it and that thereafter no one had any occasion to remove any pages from any of the books, unless it was done when the books were out of our possession. That I can't testify to, [2330] of course.

Q. You don't know whether it was ever out for the reasons you stated, is that a fair statement?

A. I believe it was.

Q. Do you know whether you or anybody else in the Bureau of Internal Revenue could have lost the original of Exhibit 140?

A. I think it was not impossible, but very improbable.

Q. It would not be impossible but very improbable?

A. Yes; in fact, I would say here it was not lost; it was in the book at some time when it was turned over to some one else.

Q. Are you as sure of that statement as you were of your statement yesterday that your memorandum of your conference with Mr. Thatcher was upstairs on the third floor of this building?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. In any event, the last specific recollection you have of the original of that sheet is the occasion on which, after having it photostated, you inserted it back in Exhibit 128, your last specific recollection?

A. Actually looking at the sheet, yes.

Q. Now, you also testified on direct examination

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

with regard to prosecution's Exhibit 125C. Do you recall testifying in regard to that exhibit?

A. Yes. [2331]

Q. When is your first recollection of having seen that sheet?

A. The first recollection of seeing this is at the time I looked through these records after they were deposited in the clerk's office here.

Q. Exhibit 125C, to clarify the record, is contained in bound volume which is designated Exhibit 125, is it not? A. Yes.

Q. And that is a ledger of the Menlo Club for the year 1947? That is the title, is that right?

A. That is right.

Q. And that likewise is a book which you turned over to Mr. Semenza on July 11, 1949, is it not?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Do you know approximately when representatives of the Bureau of Internal Revenue first obtained possession of the book that is in evidence, Exhibit 125? A. No, I do not.

Q. Do you know which particular agent obtained it?

A. No, I am not sure of that, either.

Q. Do you know which agent was working on the affairs of the Menlo Club during the course of your investigation?

Mr. Campbell: Course of his investigation?

Mr. Avakian: Course of investigation in which he was Menlo captain. [2332]

Mr. Campbell: I suggest the question, if the

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Court please, is misleading, in that he first asks as to the book which came into possession, he has testified, prior to his coming into the case. Now he asks what agents were working on the case while he was in it.

Mr. Avakian: There is nothing misleading about it.

The Court: What is your question, Mr. Avakian?

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: We submit it has been asked and answered.

The Court: Well, he may answer the question.

A. Mr. Morgan, Mr. Harkness and myself.

Q. Do you know whether Mr. Morgan or Mr. Harkness had custody or possession of that book at any time?

A. Well, if they worked on it, they had possession of it during that time, but all the records were in my general custody.

Q. Did they work on it?

A. Yes, they worked in this separate room.

Q. Were these records kept in that separate room continuously from the time you came into the case until you returned them over to Mr. Semenza?

A. Yes, except for occasions when they might be taken out for purposes of discussion.

Q. Did you at any time personally go through Exhibit 125 page by page?

A. Yes, at some time or other I did. [2333]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Do you know when? A. No, I do not.

Q. Did you do it all at one time or in piecemeal?

A. It would have been done all at one time.

Q. Did you make any notation or summary of pages that were contained in the book at any time?

A. No.

Q. Can you, without looking at that book, now tell me every page that is in it?

Mr. Campbell: Oh, that is objected to as argumentative.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Well, your Honor, the question has been raised here as to whether——

The Court (Interceding): This ruling is going to stand.

Mr. Avakian: Well, I want to test the accuracy of his knowledge, your Honor.

The Court: It is ruled.

Q. When you say that you never saw the page that is designated Exhibit 125C until after it was deposited with the clerk during the course of this trial, do you mean that you have a specific recollection of every page that was in that book when you saw it? A. Well, I mean——

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative.

The Court: Objection sustained. [2334]

Q. Do you have a recollection that that page was not in that book, or do you simply not have a recollection as to whether you did see it there or not?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. What I mean is this—when this Menlo Club record first came into our possession, I was very much interested in any account of that character which reflected the liability to Mr. Schriber for the purchase of the Menlo Club, and that is the reason I had photostats made of the exhibits you have before you. Now, I went all through every sheet of every book of the Menlo Club partnership at that time and the one you have before you now was not there because if it had been, I would have had it photostated. Now, when that came there, I do not know, but as I said before, upon occasion these records would be requested by either Mr. Kyne or Mr. Maundrell and would be returned and when they would again return to us I would not on each occasion go through every book and look at every page to see if any changes had been made.

Q. Do you recall when it was that you were particularly interested in the matter of the amount of liability to Mr. Schriber? Can you give us the approximate date of that?

A. Well, I was interested in it all during the investigation.

Q. Well, you said you had some particular concern and went through the book page by page. I am trying to fix the [2335] approximate time of that. A. I can't place the time.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. You feel sure that the page designated 125C was not in Exhibit 125 at whatever time it was that you went through the book page by page, is that correct? Are you quite sure of that?

A 125C—I am not sure of the number.

Mr. Campbell: May he see the exhibit. It is hard to recall simply the exhibit number.

A. I am sure that at the time I went through the Menlo records, page by page, 125C was not there and 140 was there.

Q. Was where?

A. In the Menlo Club records.

Q. That wouldn't be 125, would it? That would be 128? A. No, I went through all the records.

Q. Now, do you know approximately how long prior to your turnover of the records to Mr. Semenza on July 11, 1949, it was that you made the page by page examination of the books that you just mentioned? What is your best recollection on that?

A. Well, I would say probably would be some time within the year, more or less.

Q. At the time that you turned the volume, designated in evidence here as 125C, to Mr. Semenza on July 11, 1949, can you state definitely that the page which is designated 125C was not in that book? [2336]

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as asked and answered, two or three times, if the Court please. He stated that he did not go through the records, that he had never seen that page, the other page was in

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

there, that he inserted it, he had not looked again at the records.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Will Mr. Campbell stipulate that is his testimony?

Mr. Campbell: I will let the record speak for itself.

The Court: All right, answer the question.

Q. Do you recall the question?

A. Not exactly.

(Question read.)

A. No, because the records may have been returned to the Menlo Club after having been originally received from them and I did not check each page every time they were returned and redeposited with us.

Q. It is quite possible then that at some time after you made your page by page examination, the book may have been returned temporarily to Mr. Maundrell and at that time he may have rewritten that page, as he testified he did, and inserted the new page in the book when he returned it to you?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. There was a time interval in there in which something like that [2337] might happen?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Do you know whether the Menlo Club books were returned to Mr. Maundrell or Mr. Kyne at any time during the period from the occasion on which you made your page by page analysis to the date July 11, 1949, when it was turned over to Mr. Semenza?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. I have no definite recollection that they were, but if they were requested at any time, I certainly would have returned them.

Q. Do you have any recollection they were not returned?

A. No, I have no recollection of these particular records.

Q. Were you present during Mr. Maundrell's testimony that the entries on Exhibit 140 did not represent the true facts and that he had his secretary prepare Exhibit 125C for the purpose of setting forth the correct facts as he knew them?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative. The record will speak for itself, as to what his testimony was. It is immaterial whether this man was present or not when Mr. Maundrell testified.

The Court: It may be some preliminary question. Answer the question.

A. I was present most of the time when Mr. Maundrell testified. I don't recall precisely what his testimony was. His testimony was very lengthy. I have not reviewed it. [2338]

Q. Have you reviewed that testimony?

A. No.

Q. You do not recall what he said?

A. I said I was present most of the time. As

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

stated before, I missed two or three times. As to the time he was testifying, I do not recall.

Q. You say you were particularly interested during the course of your investigation as to the amount of liability of Mr. Schriber. Do you note on Exhibit 140, the photostat, the last entry made of payment to Mr. Schriber is dated February 28, 1946? A. Yes.

Q. Were you present in this court room when Mr. Maundrell and Mr. Schriber each testified that during 1946 there was a payment of 25 thousand dollars made on May 1st?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to on the same grounds.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. You have seen the check which represents that payment in evidence here, have you not?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to—he refers to the question on which objection was sustained.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: I will get the check—rather than take the time of going through these now, I will get at this another way. [2339]

Q. I show you Exhibit 125C. That contains an entry, does it not, of a payment to Gene Schriber on May 1, 1946, in the sum of 25 thousand dollars?

A. It contains a credit to the account. The account itself does not state whether it is a payment or not or how it was paid.

Q. The account shows, does it not, that 25 thousand dollars represents a reduction in that amount of the balance due? A. Yes, that is right.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. And does that indicate to you, as an accountant, that there was a payment to Mr. Schriber in that amount, according to that entry?

A. Probably so, but only because I know some of the facts, not just from that.

Q. On Exhibit 125C there is also payment shown to Mr. Schriber in amount of 25 thousand dollars on May 1, 1947, is there not?

A. There is a credit to the account on that date, yes.

Q. Which reduces the balance due to Mr. Schriber? A. Yes.

Q. And that indicates payment to Mr. Schriber, does it not?

A. Well, normally it would. There are other reasons why credits could be made to the account.

Q. This is account of the payments to Mr. Schriber on account of 175 thousand dollars purchase price of the Menlo Club? [2340]

A. Yes. I have not seen checks for all of these credits.

Q. Now, calling your attention, Mr. Weaver, to the fact that payments or credits, as you call them, on May 1, 1946, and May 1, 1947, are noted in Exhibit 125C but are not entered in Exhibit 140, does that not indicate to you, as an accountant, that the change from the use of Exhibit 140 to the use of Exhibit 125C was made by Mr. Maundrell at some time after February 28, 1946, and prior to May 1, 1946? A. Not necessarily, no.

Q. If Mr. Maundrell had still been using the original of Exhibit 140 at the time of the 25 thousand dollar credit to Mr. Schriber's account on May 1, 1946, would it not have been normal and proper accounting procedure to have entered the amount of that 25 thousand dollar credit on the original Exhibit 140?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative and calling for conclusion as to what Mr. Maundrell would do.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, from your examination of Exhibit 140, the photostat, and Exhibit 125C, although you state some of the particular entries are different, both sheets relate to the same transaction?

A. Yes, they relate to the purchase of the Menlo Club from Mr. Schriber.

Q. Now, on Exhibit 140, the photostat, the cost of equipment [2341] and inventory is listed at 75 thousand dollars, is it not?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And the cost of lease on that same exhibit is entered as 100 thousand dollars, is it not?

A. Yes, the lease cost was originally entered correctly.

Mr. Avakian: May we have that stricken as volunteer remark, whether it is correct or not?

The Court: Read the question and answer.

(Question and answer read.)

The Court: It may go out except the first part.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. And the total of those two is 175 thousand dollars, is it not? A. Yes.

Q. On Exhibit 125C the same total of $175,000 is shown, is it not? A. Yes.

Q. But the allocation of the cost of lease and cost of equipment and inventory is made in different amounts from Exhibit 140, is that correct?

A. Yes, quite different.

Q. I will show you prosecution's Exhibit 91, which is the Menlo Club partnership return of income, designated amended return, and the filing date, that is, the Collector of Internal Revenue's receiving stamp is May 15, 1947, is that correct?

A. Yes, that's right. [2342]

Q. And that return contains in it a statement which allocates the 175 thousand dollar cost on the basis of $31,985.50 to merchandise and certain fixtures, is that correct?

A. Did you say $31,985.50?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. Now, except for the transposition of two numbers, that is exactly the same, is it not, as the amount set forth in Exhibit 125C, cost of equipment and inventory, $31,895.50?

A. Yes, on the record is $31,895.50.

Q. And on the return $31,985.50? A. Yes.

Q. In this amended return, which was filed May 15, 1947, the balance of 175 thousand dollars is designated as capital investment in amount of $143,801.50, isn't that correct?

A. Yes, that is what it shows here.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. So the figure on that return filed in May, 1947, is exactly the same as the figure, cost of lease, on Exhibit 125C, namely, $143,801.50, is that correct?

A. That is correct, both the same amount.

Q. So that the allocation of 175 thousand dollars in Exhibit 25C is made in the same way as the allocation made in the amended return filed May 15, 1947, except for the transposition of those two figures, isn't that correct?

A. That's right. [2343]

Q. During the course of your examination did you at any time discuss with Mr. Maundrell the matter of the original of Exhibit 140 being different as to the allocation of 175 thousand dollars from the allocation made in the amended return filed on May 15, 1947?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial as to any conversation.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. I don't believe I would have because that would be considered of a possible fraudulent nature.

Mr. Avakian: May we have that statement after the answer to the question stricken as volunteer statement? I asked him if he did discuss it with Mr. Maundrell and he said he did not believe he would have and then a volunteer statement. May we have that stricken?

The Court: I think it is an explanation.

Mr. Avakian: Well, very well, if you want to give an explanation, let us go into it then.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. If you think a particular matter might be a fraudulent matter, then you don't discuss it with taxpayer's representatives?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent and immaterial.

Mr. Avakian: That is his explanation.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, may I not inquire as to explanation [2344] that he volunteered? You have permitted him to volunteer an explanation. May I not inquire into that?

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Mr. Avakian: I move again to strike that portion of his answer.

The Court: The Court has already ruled.

Mr. Avakian: I renew the motion.

Q. Your answer then is that you did not discuss it with Mr. Maundrell?

A. No, I am quite sure that I did not.

Q. Do you recall Mr. Maundrell's testimony that his allocation of $31,895.50 out of the 175 thousand as cost of equipment and inventory was based on appraisal of the Menlo Club made by the California State Sales Tax representatives?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to—the record is the best evidence of what his testimony was.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. I recall him saying that he had some discussion with appraisers for the State Sales Tax people.

Q. Did you ever make any inquiry of the California State Sales Tax representatives to determine what appraisal they had made of the assets of the inventory of that business?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. No, what they——

Mr. Avakian: That is the answer. He said he did not, that is the answer. [2345]

A. What they may——

Mr. Avakian: If he did not, there is nothing to explain.

The Court: All right. It is sufficiently answered.

Q. Is it your contention, Mr. Weaver, that the statement made when the return was filed with the Bureau of Internal Revenue, as to the manner in which this 175 thousand dollars was allocated and manner in which amortization deduction was computed, was a fraudulent statement?

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object on the ground this witness is not——

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, he is——

The Court (Interceding): Mr. Avakian, I do not want to hear argument after I rule.

Mr. Avakian: May I ask permission to state my position before the ruling because you rule so fast we do not have opportunity to state our position.

The Court: When I rule that is final.

Q. Mr. Weaver, will you state, from your experience as an accountant, whether it is proper and correct accounting procedure to make entries in books of transactions promptly after they occur?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. Yes, they should be made as promptly as possible.

Q. And in view of that answer, would you state that the fact [2346] that payment of 25 thousand dollars to Mr. Schriber for May 1, 1946, is not entered on Exhibit 140, but is entered on Exhibit 125C would indicate to you, as an accountant, that Exhibit 125C was in existence at approximately the time of that transaction?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative and asking for his conclusion and opinion as to matters which are within the province of the jury.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, the witness has been permitted to testify liberally as to what proper accounting procedure is and conclusions. He has looked at every entry made by Mr. Maundrell in the books of the Menlo Club and has testified because of his experience as an accountant he concludes the fact the entry was made means certain things to him that are not in the book. Now it is in line with that, your Honor, to show where it helps us rather than hurts us, that may have some interpretation as an accountant would indicate certain things. He has been permitted to draw conclusions, his judgment as an accountant in numerous instances, where his conclusion was to our disadvantage. We would like to show instances in which his conclusions as an accountant would be favorable to us.

The Court: May I have the question?

(Question read.)

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. None of these records were actually adequately kept, so [2347] that normal bookkeeping procedure——

Mr. Avakian: I move the answer be stricken. He can answer that yes or no.

Mr. Campbell: He is entitled to give his opinion, he was asked for his opinion.

The Court: It will stand. Proceed with your answer.

A. Therefore, I couldn't use normal bookkeeping procedures to decide whether or not these entries have been made as of or approximately the dates indicated. I have no idea when they were made.

Q. But you have called upon your understanding of normal bookkeeping procedure in analyzing certain other entries made by Mr. Maundrell in the preparation of Exhibit 125-C, have you not?

A. That is right, and supported by other evidence.

The Court: We will take a recess now.

resumes the witness stand on further

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Mr. Campbell: May I inquire again if anything has been heard of the witness, Schriber, whom I understand the defense requested be recalled?

Mr. Golden: He will be here today.

Q. Mr. Weaver, as I recall, you testified earlier in your examination that it was your opinion and judgment that the books and records of the Menlo Club were in part on the cash receipts and disbursements basis and in part on the accrual method of account, is that correct?

A. I do not recall that as my testimony.

Q. Well, could you give us your testimony in that regard?

A. You mean could I restate what I said before or——

Q. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: I object to that in that form.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Is your opinion different than what it was? Give us your opinion now. I just want to get your testimony.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to in that form.

The Court: Objection sustained. [2349]

Q. Well, Mr. Weaver, from your analysis of the books and records of the Menlo Club, can you, as an expert accountant, state whether the books were kept in part on cash receipts and disbursements method of accounting and in part on accrual method of accounting?

A. The records kept by the Menlo Club were entirely incomplete and actually followed no particular method. It consisted only of a record of cash receipts and disbursements, plus a few ledger accounts. For example, the purchase from Mr. Schriber and some partners' accounts.

Q. Now you say the records were entirely incomplete. It is true, is it not, that all of the receipts of the business were entered in those books?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for conclusion if all of them were entered.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. I don't believe they were. I don't believe any of the receipts of the Menlo Club itself were entered in there for certain periods. I would have to check the records.

Q. You are referring now to the year 1945, in which Mr. Maundrell testified the poker sheets were inadvertently carried out by the doorman. Let us take 1946. You have all the poker sheets for the year 1946 in your possession, have you not?

A. Yes.

Q. You still have them upstairs in this building, except for [2350] the few offered in evidence here?

BLURRED COPY

A. That is right.

Q. And is it not true, Mr. Weaver, that the receipts of the Menlo Club for 1946, as shown by the poker sheets prepared by the cashier's cage, were entered in the Menlo Club cash receipts book for 1946? A. Yes.

Q. And it is true, is it not, that the Menlo Club kept a book showing the receipts of the restaurant and bar business also for the year 1946?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know of any testimony in this record of one penny or more of income of the Menlo Club for the year 1946, that was not entered in the cash receipts books of the Menlo Club?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent. The record speaks for itself.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, he says it is incomplete. That is a damaging statement; I would like——

The Court (Interceding): I have ruled. If you want to know the reason, I will state it.

Mr. Avakian: Perhaps it would guide me.

The Court: I do not believe this witness is here for the purpose of telling us what the evidence in this case is. [2351]

Mr. Avakian: My point is, he says the books are incomplete——

The Court (Interceding): Here is my point. Let us not argue any further about it.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Avakian: Then in view of your Honor's ruling that it is not proper for this witness to answer that question, we would ask that his statement that the books were entirely incomplete be stricken.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Avakian: Denied before I make the motion?

The Court: You made it; you are not going to add any more to it.

Mr. Avakian: You interrupted it before I finished. I did not complete it.

The Court: Well, very well.

A. Before——

Mr. Avakian: Just a minute. There is no question pending, Mr. Weaver.

Q. Let us get back then to the question which I asked you several questions back and let me see if you can give me an answer. If you can not, say so. If you can, will you answer this question, Mr. Weaver. You made examination of the books and records of the Menlo Club for the year 1946, as they are in evidence here, would you say, as an expert accountant, that those books were kept in part on the cash receipts and [2352] disbursements method of accounting and in part on the accrual method of account? If you can't answer, say so.

A. No, due to the very nature of the records——

Q. You mean you can not answer?

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute——

The Court: You propounded a question—let the witness answer. Read the question.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Let us read the question and have him answer.

(Question read.)

A. I would say that since the books are incomplete——

Mr. Avakian: May we have that stricken, your Honor?

The Court: No let him proceed with his answer.

Mr. Avakian: I would be glad to cross-examine him. Since I can not, will you stop him making statements which your Honor will not permit me to ask?

The Court: The question was propounded and I propose to let him answer.

Mr. Avakian: I would love to get an answer.

The Court: You will get one if you will be quiet. Go ahead with the answer.

A. Since the records were incomplete in certain respects, it could not be on the accrual basis. The records were entirely on cash receipts and disbursements basis.

Q. They were going on the cash method?

The Court: Let me have that answer. [2353]

(Last answer read.)

Q. Were you wrong then in your earlier testimony, when I showed you that the Menlo Club income tax returns had a check mark that they were prepared on the cash basis and you said that that was incorrect, that they were actually kept partly on cash and partly on accrual basis?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. We were talking then about the returns and not the books. Now some further explanation of that is necessary. Returns may be prepared on either the cash or the accrual basis of accounting. The regulations require that where inventories are income and a determining factor, no basis other than accrual is the correct basis of reporting income. Therefore, where inventories are a factor, the accrual basis should be used. Now it is true that in cases where inventories are used in small retail establishments, the Treasury Department has not required those small businesses to report on the accrual basis, because to do so in many cases would involve a hardship from a bookkeeping standpoint. Therefore, there has actually arisen a sort of hybrid basis of reporting income which means, from the standpoint of purchases and sales, where returns are actually on cash basis but from the standpoint of inventory they are on accrual basis, but the books themselves might be entirely on the cash basis.

Q. What is your opinion as to which method should have been used for the Menlo Club in the year 1946? [2354]

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial. The question is what was used.

The Court: Answer the question.

A. The correct method of reporting income, wherever inventories are income and determining factor, it should be accrual method. However, we made no adjustment from cash basis to accrual basis

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

in this case because to do so would have penalized the taxpayer for adjustment which purely a technical nature.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Weaver, if you had made an adjustment of the Menlo Club to the accrual basis, would you have added any assets as of December 31, 1946, other than those which are already on your Exhibit 165?

A. To determine exactly what the charges would be and the resulting reflecting income. I can not answer without detailed analysis of every item at the beginning and end of each year.

Q. So far as accounts receivable are concerned, namely, the markers, you have already listed those in the assets as of December 31, 1946, Exhibit 165?

A. Yes; now that is an entirely different matter.

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment.

Mr. Campbell: I think he is entitled to finish his answer.

Mr. Avakian: He answered the question. He said yes.

The Court: He may proceed with his explanation. [2355]

Mr. Avakian: If it is an explanation of the answer, yes, but I would like to proceed with my question.

The Court: Let me have the question.

(Question and answer read.)

The Court: Do you want to explain?

A. Yes, it requires some explanation because I believe you are under misapprehension.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Avakian: Let's not worry about my misapprehension, Mr. Weaver.

The Court: No, Mr. Avakian, if there is any admonition going to any one in this court room, it will come from the bench.

Mr. Avakian: May I request the witness not to worry about my misapprehension?

A. To explain the difference between accounts receivable that arise as the result of exchange of one asset for another. For example, if you had ten thousand dollars cash on hand at the beginning of the year. During the year some one borrowed that money from you, you would no longer have ten thousand dollars cash in hand at the end of the year, but if we had to show any asset at the end of the year, our statement would reflect a loss of ten thousand dollars, which obviously would be incorrect, since your assets have not changed at all in amount, they have only changed in character. You have substituted ten thousand dollars cash and got ten thousand dollars [2356] accounts receivable. That is exactly the same situation with respect to these markers. They have been exchanged for cash. Now if the asset arises as the result of the receipt of income, or if the liability arises as the result of payment in incurrence of an expense, then you have items which are not properly taken into account on net worth basis, if the taxpayer is reporting——

Mr. Avakian: This is no explanation. This is a lecture on unrelated matters.

The Court: Your point is not well taken. You

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

may proceed if you have any further explanation you want to make.

A. I merely wanted to say finally that this is the reason you must make a distinction between cash receivable accounts and cash payable as to the source from which they arise, and you can not take into account, in determining net income under the net worth method, where the cash basis of reporting is used, any assets or liabilities that arise as the result of the receipt of income or the incurrence of expense, because to do so would give you an incorrect result.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I move to strike the portion of the answer after "yes," as not responsive.

The Court: Motion denied.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, the fact is, is it not, in your Exhibit 165 you have already included as an asset of the Menlo Club [2357] on December 31, 1946, all of the markers that were in existence at that time, so far as the evidence here shows?

A. It will be necessary to do so——

Q. Just answer me.

The Court: Answer yes or no, Mr. Weaver.

A. Yes.

Q. Now from your examination over the last five years of the records and affairs of the Menlo Club, can you refer me to any single account receivable that is mentioned in the evidence in this case, as of December 31, 1946, of the Menlo Club,

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

which you have not already included in Exhibit 165?

A. You mean, are there some accounts receivable that are not on the exhibit?

Q. Is there any item of accounts receivable mentioned in this evidence in this case of the Menlo Club for December 31, 1946, which you have not already included in Exhibit 165?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as asking him to characterize the evidence. The record speaks for itself.

The Court: Well, he may answer the question.

Mr. Campbell: I make the further objection in this regard, I think the question should be if he knows of any which are not, but to ask him to search the record——

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. Well, I have no recollection of any; no, sir.

Q. Now when you say to compute on an accrual basis in [2358] preparing Exhibit 165 would have been prejudicial to the taxpayer, you did not have in mind any particular assets that you were going to add to Exhibit 165 as of December 31, 1946? You did not make that adjustment, did you?

A. I had in mind this, that whatever that adjustment would be, it would be purely technical in nature and would have no place in any issue of fraud.

Q. You had no particular adjustment in mind in making that statement?

A. No, no specific one, no.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Now isn't it a fact, Mr. Weaver, that if you put the Menlo Club on an accrual basis in your Exhibit 165, that as of December 31, 1946, you would have shown certain accounts payable as liabilities, which are not listed on Exhibit 165?

A. There was, to my recollection, no accounts payable on the records.

Q. Is it not true, Mr. Weaver, that if you were preparing a statement of the liabilities of the Menlo Club as of December 31, 1946, on accrual basis, you would have shown an amount for pay roll and withholding taxes due by the Menlo Club to the United States government and to the State of California as of December 31, 1946?

A. Those items would always be offset by assets of equal amount.

Q. Would you not have shown those as liabilities? [2359] A. Certainly, offset by assets.

Q. And to the extent, Mr. Weaver, that the Menlo Club actually paid those liabilities after December 31, 1946, the adjustment to the accrual basis would have reduced the net worth of the Menlo Club as shown on Exhibit 165 for December 31, 1946, would it not?

A. I don't follow that question.

Q. Well, on the accrual method of accounting, you enter the liability at the time the liability arises, even though it is paid at a later date, isn't that correct? A. Yes, also enter the asset.

Q. Yes, that is right. If, on December 31, 1946, the Menlo Club had certain liabilities which it had not yet paid, on the cash method you would ignore those liabilities, but on the accrual method you would show them as liabilities on net worth statement, would you not?

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. If they were reported on the books. The mere setting up of a liability would give rise to an asset of equal amount.

Q. Are you speaking now of cash or accrual method? A. Accrual method.

Q. But on the cash method, you do not show that liability, do you? A. If it is not in the books.

Q. In your Exhibit 165 did you set up any liability on account of accounts payable by the Menlo Club at December 31, 1946? [2360] Would you like to refer to the exhibit? A. Yes.

Q. I will show you my photostat copy for convenience. A. None.

Q. You have not. And if you had set up Exhibit 165 on the accrual method of accounting, would you not have listed as liabilities on December 31, 1946, the amount of any obligations of the Menlo Club due on December 31, 1946, but not yet paid? A. That would only be half——

Q. Let us get that half first and then we will go to the other half. Would you have set up?

A. The two can not be taken independently.

Q. Would you have set up that liability?

A. Yes.

Q. What is the other half?

A. The other half is that there would have been another asset.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. And what would that other asset have been?

A. That would have been in connection with withholding the cash withheld from employees' checks, which is not reported in the books.

Q. Now you have actually shown in the assets on Exhibit 165 all of the cash in bank roll, the accounts receivable, any bank roll cash, any petit cash funds, and cash in bank accounts, have you [2361] not?

A. There may have been other cash, however. I have not looked at all the books.

Q. Isn't it a fact, Mr. Weaver, that on Exhibit 165 you have already included in assets every item of cash and every bank account balance as of December 31, 1946, that you know of that has been covered by the testimony in this case?

A. Every one that I know of, with the exception, I believe, there is testimony to the effect—if I am wrong, I am sure you will correct me——

Q. You can point to the testimony.

A. ——that taxes withheld from employees' wages were kept in a separate tax box and as the time arrived for the payment of those taxes, the amount of cash was taken and deposited in the bank account; therefore, did not appear as part of the bank roll or as part of the accounts receivable or as part of the bank account.

Q. You are confused, are you not, with the cash box kept at the 186 Club, Mr. Weaver?

A. My recollection was that the same procedure was followed at both clubs.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. For my guidance, can you refer me to the witness who testified to that effect?

Mr. Campbell: Object to that, the record speaks for itself. He asks for his recollection——

The Court: Objection sustained. [2362]

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, if he is going to justify from the basis of testimony, can't I just ask him if he can point to the testimony?

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: I have read it all and I can't find it.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, you also stated that in your opinion—were you about to refer me to some testimony in that respect?

A. No, I was going——

Q. (Interrupting): Very well. Now, Mr. Weaver, you testified that in your opinion the Menlo Club was not a partnership but rather was an enterprise belonging solely to Mr. Remmer. You know, do you not, from your examination of the records in this case, that various parties described in evidence here as partners in the Menlo Club, received credits on the books of the Menlo Club for a percentage share of the profits for each respective year? You have seen that in the books that are in evidence here? A. Yes.

Q. And let us take Mr. Maundrell as an example. I call your attention to prosecution's Exhibit 125, which is a ledger of the Menlo Club—perhaps the prosecution might look at this sheet before I show it to the witness—and particularly to the page entitled: "Partners' Account Tiny's Restaurant, Bar and Menlo Club, Harold H. Maundrell, 10 per cent." I will ask you to look at that sheet and first of all will you tell me the [2363] balance of the account that was credited to Mr. Maundrell for the end of the year 1945?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. Apparently carried over from another sheet it shows "Balance 1945," there is no designation as to whether or not it is credit or debit, but I presume from subsequent entries in the account that it was intended to be a credit balance, of $13,003.37.

Q. And I call your attention to prosecution's Exhibit 89, which is the Menlo Club partnership return of income for the year 1945, and I will ask you if on Schedule I, "Partners' Share of Income and Credits," there is allowed to Harold H. Maundrell in amount of 10 per cent, a credit of $13,003.37? A. That is what is entered.

Q. And that is the same amount in Exhibit 125?

A. That is right.

Q. Will you tell me the amount that is credited to Mr. Maundrell's capital account as his share of the profits for the year 1946, in Exhibit 125?

A. There is an entry here, 1946, apparently before a succeeding date of June 14, 1946, which states the profit for 1946, under credits, $8,349.65.

Q. And I call your attention to prosecution's Exhibit 90, the Menlo Club partnership return of income for the year 1946, and ask you if that does not show in Schedule I, Harold H. Maundrell, 10 per cent, $8,349.65? [2364] A. Yes, it does.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. And that is the same figure you just read from Exhibit 125? A. That is right.

Q. And after the crediting of that 1946 share of profit, what was the credit balance in Mr. Maundrell's account as shown by Exhibit 125?

A. $21,353.02.

Q. Now is it not true, Mr. Weaver, that Exhibit 125, the account of Harold Maundrell before you, shows that during the year 1946, during the year 1947, and during the year 1948, Mr. Maundrell withdrew various amounts from the Menlo Club which were then deducted from his account to reduce the balance?

A. There are charges against his account. Some of them are for withdrawals and some for payments, apparently made from his account.

Q. Payments of his income tax?

A. I don't know what they represent, simply marked "Collector Internal Revenue," "Franchise Tax" and so on.

Q. What was the balance in Mr. Maundrell's account on December 31, 1946, according to the exhibit before you? A. $17,355.22.

Q. Now can you compute for me on this sheet of paper, which I will hand you, the amount of money withdrawn by Mr. Maundrell from the Menlo Club after December 31, 1946, according to [2365] Exhibit 125?

Mr. Campbell: Object to the question in that form—withdrawn. He can state the total of the charges shown in the books of that account. It would be his opinion and conclusion as to what Mr. Maundrell withdrew.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. Do you want me to include the payments made?

Q. Well, in accounting, Mr. Weaver, a payment made on behalf of a partner and charged to his account is the same as withdrawal.

A. Well, you have to be careful in using accounting terminology here, I think. After December 31, 1946?

Q. Yes, that's right.

A. The total debits are $15,600.

Q. What was the balance at the end of 1946?

A. $17,353.22.

Q. So that, to use round figures, of the 17 thousand dollar cerdit balance that Mr. Maundrell had on the books at the end of 1946, approximately 15 thousand dollars was either withdrawn by him or paid for his account after December 31, 1946, is that right? A. Yes, that's right.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, you know, do you not, that Mr. Maundrell did work in connection with the affairs of the Menlo Club?

A. Yes. [2366]

Q. Now would it not be true, Mr. Weaver, that if you disallowed partnership status to Mr. Maundrell in the Menlo Club as a matter of proper accounting procedure, you should allow in some amount a salary to him as an expense of the business? A. I believe he was paid a salary.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. The same amount, isn't that true?

A. Yes.

Q. If we assume, as you have assumed, that the Menlo Club was not a partnership, but that it was a sole enterprise of Elmer Remmer, and if we assume further that Mr. Maundrell's employment was on the basis of a fixed salary, plus ten per cent of the profits of the business, and if we assume further that the Menlo Club was on the accrual basis of accounting, would the Menlo Club not be entitled to a deduction in the amount of the actual salary paid to Mr. Maundrell, plus the ten per cent share of the profits to which he was entitled under his agreement?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent and assuming facts not in evidence, not within the scope of the direct examination.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: May we be heard on that?

The Court: Yes. We will excuse the jury.

resumes the witness stand on further

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Mr. Campbell: I believe at the time of recess there was pending an objection to the form of question then asked.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: I understand it was sustained as to the particular form, your Honor.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, let us assume, as you have assumed, that the Menlo Club was not a partnership but rather was an enterprise owned solely by Mr. Remmer; let us assume further that during the year 1945, and the year 1946, Mr. Maundrell was an employee of the Menlo Club on arrangements, whereby he was to receive a fixed salary, plus 10 per cent of the profits each year; let us assume further that Mr. Maundrell, during the years 1945 and 1946, actually collected his fixed salary but that the amount of 10 per cent share of the profits was credited to him on the books; let us assume further that in the years 1947 and 1948, Mr. Maundrell actually collected, on account of the salary which had been credited to him on the books on

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

December 31, 1946, the sum of approximately [2368] 15 thousand dollars; let us assume further that in the business of the Menlo Club inventories were a factor—would you then state, as an expert accountant, that under proper accounting procedure the Menlo Club business should set up, as an accrued liability at December 31, 1946, the amount of Mr. Maundrell's 10 per cent share of the profits, which have been credited to him on the books at that time and which had not been withdrawn?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent, not within the scope of direct examination; immaterial here, in that it would seek to vary the testimony and the evidence before the Court in indulging in an assumption.

The Court: I can't hear you, Mr. Campbell.

Mr. Campbell: I object on the grounds that the question is incompetent, in that it assumes facts not in evidence; that it is immaterial, in that it seeks to go outside of the issues and evidence in this case, and finally that it is not within the scope of the direct examination.

The Court: The objection will be sustained.

Q. Mr. Weaver, you stated in one of your answers a few moments ago that under the Treasury Regulations, where inventories are a factor, the regulations require the use of the accrual method of accounting. Can you refer me to the particular section of the regulations which you had in mind?

A. That was only part of the answer. [2369]

Q. Well, it is the section of the regulations that you had in mind that I want to get from you now. Would you like to look at the regulations?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. No——

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object. These matters, it seems to me, can be taken up outside the court.

The Court: Was your objection to the question he would like to look at something or another question before the Court?

(Previous question read.)

The Court: Answer that question.

Mr. Campbell: He started to answer.

The Court: Then there was another question.

Mr. Avakian: May we have the answer to that question?

A, This is asking for reference to some section of the regulations?

Q. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: Then I am going to object on the ground it states fact not in evidence. That was not his testimony.

The Court: Let us have this question read. Listen to the question.

(Question read.)

A. I can't remember the section numbers nor its contents without referring to the regulations themselves.

Mr. Avakian: I wonder if your counsel has a copy of the [2370] regulations which he can hand

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

you for that purpose? I can furnish you with my own copy.

Mr. Campbell: We do not. I object to it as immaterial. It is a legal matter.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. I will hand you——

Mr. Campbell: Incidentally, my objection was not to his pointing to the regulation, but the cross-examining of his testimony, what his testimony was. The witness stated in his first answer that that was not his exact testimony.

The Court: Let me have the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Is it your objection that he did not so state?

Mr. Campbell: That was only a portion of the statement which he made and in that respect would be misleading.

The Court: Objection overruled. He may answer the question.

Q. I will hand you my copy, Mr. Weaver, for your use. Section III regulation referring to income tax under the Internal Revenue Code issued by the Secretary of the Treasury, and I ask you if, from your examination of that, you can refer me to the particular section or sections you had in mind?

A. The methods of accounting prescribed are generally stated in Sections 29.41-1 through 29.41-3.

Q. Is that Sections 29.41-1-2-3, are those the sections to [2371] which you refer?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Have you finished looking at that now?

A. Yes, unless you want me to state—pardon me.

Q. Would you like to read the language on that?

A. Not particularly.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, are you aware of the fact that the provisions of those sections to which you have just referred were, in 1951, held invalid by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in the case of Glenn v. Kentucky Color & Chemical Co., Inc., 186 Fed. (2), 975?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to——

The Court: Sustained.

Q. Let me ask you if you are familiar with the case of Glenn vs. Kentucky Color & Chemical Co., Inc.?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to——

The Court: Mr. Avakian, please do not impose upon the Court.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor——

The Court (Interceding): Do not impose on the Court. Now let us not have anything further said.

Mr. Avakian: Would it be possible to be heard in the absence of the jury?

The Court: No, nothing in the absence of the jury. Just go along. You know what I mean. [2372]

Mr. Avakian: I have to defer to your Honor's ruling.

The Court: You know when the Court rules, attorneys should not try to evade the ruling by saying the same thing in a different color.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Avakian: It is not the same thing, your Honor.

The Court: That is all. Let us go along.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I must respectfully feel I should cite as prejudicial error——

The Court: Very well, you may cite it. Let us go along.

Q. In making the statement, Mr. Weaver, that where inventories are a factor, the Treasury regulations require the use of the accrual method of accounting, did you take into account any sections of the regulations, any sections of the Internal Revenue Code, or any court decisions, aside from these three sections of the regulations which you mentioned?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial and entirely incompetent.

The Court: Let me have the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Mr. Weaver, in testifying on Monday morning, I believe it was, in your direct examination with regard to your Exhibit 175, which is designated Elmer F. Remmer, Gallagher & Burton whiskey equity at December 31, 1943; 1944, 1945, and 1946, you were questioned as to whether the records of Cal-Neva, Inc., [2373] contained any entries in connection with this whiskey, and you stated that there was an entry showing payment for 100 cases on September 27, 1944, check No.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

6435, in amount of $6,896, and you stated that that was charged to liquor and whiskey purchases, and then on further questioning you gave these answers to these questions—I am reading from page 2148 of the transcript, beginning at line 19—you had before you then to refresh your recollection Cal-Neva ledger, which I believe is 146.

Mr. Campbell: At that time you say he testified it was for 100 cases? At the top of 2148 you will see he says, "I believe it was 100 cases, I am not sure of the amount."

Mr. Avakian: I will read the testimony beginning with line 15, page 2147:

"No, there were no entries in connection with this whiskey that appeared in the books of Cal-Neva whatsoever, except one entry, indicating the purchase by Cal-Neva from Mr. Remmer of a lot of 100 cases.

"Q. Now what was the amount of the whiskey which you refer to as having been reflected in the Cal-Neva books as having been delivered to Cal-Neva?

"A. Represented a lot of 100 cases. I believe it was 100 cases, I am not sure of the amount." [2374] Next question:

"Q. Mr. Weaver, can you refer to the Cal-Neva records and to where that entry appears?

"A. Yes.

"Q. Would you do so? What book is that in?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

"A. Under date of September 27, 1944, on page 113 of the check register.

"Q. That is exhibit——

"A. 146. There is an entry E. R. Remmer, 27th day of September, check No. 6435, and the amount is $6,896, and it is charged to liquor and whiskey purchases. That refers to the purchase of——

"Q. Are you reading from the book?

"A. No, but I know that refers to the purchase of Gallagher & Burton whiskey.

"Mr. Golden: That is not responsive. The question is what the books show.

"Q. Mr. Weaver, will you state in what manner you identify that as referring to the Gallagher and Burton whiskey?

"A. There might have been a notation on the check itself. If I could see the original check.

"Mr. Campbell: All right, we will pass that and if you will look for it during the afternoon recess we will come back to it." [2375]

Q. Since Monday, when that testimony was given, have you looked for that check, Mr. Weaver?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you found it?

A. No, I have not.

Q. Are you able, from further examination that you made, to complete or clarify your answer on that matter at this time? A. Yes.

Q. Do you need any further books before you for that purpose?

A. Well, I am not sure—Mr. Stewart gave some

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

testimony as to the release of two 100-case lots of this whiskey to Cal-Neva a month or two prior to the issuance of this check. Now I do not recall whether those orders for the release of that whiskey are in evidence here or only Mr. Stewart's testimony is there in the record.

Q. Do I understand from that that you are not yet ready to give us the answer based on evidence in this case, that you wish to check further on that before you can give us the answer?

A. If there are any orders in evidence, I would like to see them.

Q. Have you already done that since last Monday, or would you still wish to make further investigation of the records to answer the question; so we will pass it on. In other words, are you prepared to give us an answer based upon whatever exhibits are here? [2376]

A. I believe so. As I recall now, there are no exhibits in evidence. I would like to check to be sure.

Mr. Avakian: I made no search myself on that point. I thought that you were going to do it.

Q. Are you able to give us the accurate answer to that now, or would you need to make further reference to the evidence?

A. I have some photostats of orders releasing them.

Q. Are they in evidence here?

A. They are not in evidence, no.

The Court: Did you finish your answer?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. I meant to add that I can use this to refresh my recollection on the subject matter.

Q. My question was, are they in evidence?

A. No.

The Court: Your question was an interruption of his answer. Now I want to see if he wants to answer?

(Question read.)

(Answer read.)

The Court: Does that complete your answer?

A. Yes.

Q. Now in your Exhibit 175—and I believe you have the original of that before you, do you not?

A. Yes.

Q. You have set up what purports to be the equity of Mr. Remmer in the Gallagher & Burton whiskey mentioned on that exhibit, at the end of each of the years 1944, 1945, and 1946, is [2377] that correct? A. Yes.

Q. In preparing that exhibit and in computing the amount of Mr. Remmer's equity, have you made your computations on the basis of the money actually expended by Mr. Remmer for the purchase of those assets and for any additions to the cost of them? A. Yes.

Q. And have your computations been based entirely and solely on the evidence that has been received in this case?

A. Yes. I believe in one or two cases that other items may have been used as corroboration.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. You mean items that are not in evidence here? A. Yes.

Q. Without indicating what other material you used, can you point to the particular item on Exhibit 175 as to which you used material outside of the evidence in the case?

Mr. Campbell: Pardon me—I object to that——

The Court: Objection sustained. The reason I sustained the objection was that your question assumes an incorrect statement of the witness' answer.

Q. You said that as to certain items——

The Court (Interrupting): He used them for corroborating.

Mr. Avakian: But he did use material. [2378]

Q. Now as to any items on Exhibit 175, did you use any material for corroboration that is not in evidence here in this case? A. Yes.

Q. Can you tell me what particular items, without stating what the other material was?

A. The allocation of the amount owed to Sierra Wine & Liquor Company as between the year-ends had to be allocated.

Q. Which year-ends are you referring to now?

A. Well, Mr. Barengo's testimony——

Q. Which year-ends are you referring to?

A. 1943-44.

Q. Those two years? A. Yes.

Q. Was there any other item on Exhibit 175 as to which you made reference in corroboration to material which is not in evidence in this case?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object to the materiality.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. I do not believe it would be done in any other case because all of the other deliveries are in the testimony and the deduction of amounts on hand were merely taken per case cost.

Mr. Avakian: May we have the question read again?

The Court: Yes, read the question. [2379]

(Question read.)

Q. Answer this yes or no.

A. I do not believe so.

Q. Now I call your attention to the item about half way down the first page of the exhibit, which is entitled, "1944 Floor Stock Tax" and the amount of it in the extreme right-hand column is shown as $7,479.22. Are you able at this time to refer me to the evidence in this case upon which you entered that amount for that item?

A. Are you referring to the second carload?

Q. Referring to the amount of 74 hundred some odd dollars.

Mr. Campbell: Pardon me, Mr. Avakian. There are two lots set forth in that amount. It refers to carloads, you will observe, on the exhibit.

Mr. Avakian: There is only one figure on my photostat of the exhibit in the amount of $7,479.22. It is as to that figure, your Honor, for Mr. Campbell's information, that I am asking the question.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. There is a floor stock tax return here in evidence with that inventory attached.

Q. I hand you prosecution's Exhibit 60, which is designated "Return of Floor Stock Tax on Distilled Spirits, Malt, Liquors and Wines Under Revenue Act of 1943. Name of Taxpayer, Cal-Neva, Inc., Lake Tahoe." Is that the exhibit to which you refer? [2380] A. Yes.

Q. And that shows the payment of a tax in amount of $7,479.22, is that correct?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, in computing Mr. Remmer's equity in the Gallagher & Burton whiskey described on Exhibit 175, for the purpose of the use of that exhibit in computing Mr. Remmer's income on net worth basis, is it not true that proper accounting procedure calls for the inclusion in that equity of Mr. Remmer's only amounts which were paid out of Mr. Remmer's funds?

A. May I have the question again?

(Question read.)

Mr. Avakian: I will restate it. I will go into a couple of preliminary questions first.

Q. Mr. Weaver, Exhibit 175 was prepared by you and offered in evidence here for the purpose of showing your computation of Mr. Remmer's equity in this Gallagher & Burton whiskey on the respective date shown in this exhibit?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent, his characterization.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. Yes.

Q. And this exhibit is one of the links in the chain of computing Mr. Remmer's total net worth according to the theories [2381] of the prosecution on the respective dates shown in Exhibit 175?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Well, Mr. Weaver, in preparing a statement of Mr. Remmer's equity in the Gallagher & Burton whiskey described in Exhibit 175, isn't it true that proper accounting procedure, where the purpose of computing the equity is to determine net income on net worth method, would be to include in that equity only the sums of money actually invested in that property by Mr. Remmer?

A. No, if you include in that definition of "actually invested in property" by Mr. Remmer amounts paid to his account, they may have been charged to him, otherwise.

Q. With that qualification you would say that the answer is yes? A. Yes.

The Court: We will take a recess at this time until 1:30.

(Jury and alternate jurors admonished and recess taken at 11:45.)

MR. WEAVER

resumes the witness stand on further

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Mr. Campbell: Now I understand from Mr. Weaver, when he was attempting to volunteer something this morning, he desired to make a correction of some testimony given yesterday. I wish to advise the Court of that.

Mr. Avakian: We are very glad to have the correction. I wonder if Mr. Weaver could tell us the point to which he is referring?

A. Yes. Yesterday you asked me if I made any investigation of an appraisal by the Sales Tax people in the State of California with regard to the Menlo Club and I believe I said in answer to that that I had not, which is true, that I, myself, did not make an investigation, but I did cause an investigation to be made and you can find in the record——

Mr. Campbell: Pardon me—you did cause one to be made?

A. Yes, that is right.

(Last question and answer before recess read.)

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, in entering on Exhibit 175 the amount of $7,479.22 as part of Mr. Remmer's equity in that liquor, you assumed, did you not, that that amount of money had been paid as 1944 floor stock tax, either by Mr. Remmer or out of Mr. Remmer's funds or by Cal-Neva, Inc., in a manner which resulted in the amount being charged?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as a compound question. [2383]

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Well, did you assume, in inserting that amount in Exhibit 175, that the payment of that 1944 floor stock tax, which is shown on the Cal-Neva, Inc., return, represented a payment by Mr. Remmer or a payment credited to his account, one or the other?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection. When he puts an alternative he——

The Court (Interceding): Well, he may answer.

A. When you say "payment credited to his account," you mean a payment made for his account?

Q. Well, I understood you to say in a prior instance that it would be proper to include that amount of Mr. Remmer's equity only if it came out of his funds, so if it was made in a manner charged against him, and I tried to follow that.

A. Yes, but in your last question you used the words "credit to his account" instead of charged.

Q. Well, charged to his account. You did make the assumption, with that change in my question?

A. That is what the facts indicated to me, yes.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. And your answer is yes, you made the assumption?

A. Well, the facts indicated that to me.

Q. Because the facts indicated to you, you did make the assumption?

Mr. Campbell: I object—— [2384]

The Court: He has answered three times yes.

Mr. Avakian: As long as I understand his answer is yes.

The Court: It has been answered three times.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, if you are going on that assumption, then that amount should not be inserted in Exhibit 175?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: That is not argumentative. It is just a hypothetical statement.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Mr. Weaver, can you point to any testimony in this case that shows that Mr. Remmer paid that amount of floor stock tax shown on the Cal-Neva, Inc., return?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to, the record speaks for itself.

The Court: Well, the objection will be overruled.

A. Are you confining me to testimony?

Q. In this question I am. There will be another one.

Mr. Campbell: There is documentary evidence as well as oral.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: This evidence includes both dodumentary and oral.

Mr. Avakian: I was trying to avoid compound questions by taking this piecemeal, and after I asked him regarding testimony I was going to ask in regard to exhibits.

Q. Can you show where in this case it shows Mr. Remmer paid [2385] that tax? Can you point to it in the testimony or the exhibit? A. Yes.

Q. Which ones?

A. There are a number of them.

Q. Testimony or exhibits? A. Both.

Q. Would you refer them to me, please?

A. First is the testimony of Mr. Forrester that this tax was paid cash as indicated by the notation "Cash" at the top of the return.

Q. The return shows that, does it not?

A. Yes, that's right.

Q. Very well.

A. Secondly, the records of Cal-Neva, itself, which show no payment of such an amount, either for Cal-Neva or for any one else. The whiskey on which the floor stock tax was paid is listed by case numbers on the sheets attached to Exhibit 60, which case numbers were checked in sufficient detail to satisfy us that they were the same cases of whiskey that were in storage at the Nevada Transit & Warehouse Company, according to an inventory which I believe was presented here by Mr. Stewart and is in evidence. Since the books indicate that this is the same whiskey as purchased by Mr. Remmer and no record of any payment of the floor stock tax on Cal-Neva books and [2386] the tax was paid in cash, it must have been paid by Mr. Remmer, unless we assume some outsider paid it for him.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Was there any other evidence that you relied upon in reaching that conclusion, evidence in this case, I mean, of course?

A. Not that I recall now. If you have any points to raise I might think of some others.

Q. You state one of the reasons you drew that conclusion was there was no evidence in the Cal-Neva books that Cal-Neva had made the payment of that tax, which is $7479.22 in amount, either for Cal-Neva or for anybody else and for that reason, and the other reasons you mentioned, you assumed Mr. Remmer must have made it. Did I understand you correctly?

A. Yes, the facts indicate to me that he did make it.

Q. It is just as possible, is it not, Mr. Weaver, that Cal-Neva might have used some of its own cash to pay that tax, without the bookkeeper having made an entry of it on the Cal-Neva books?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as speculative.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: It is no more speculation than the other conclusions, your Honor.

The Court: I am satisfied the ruling is correct.

Q. You have found in your accounting experience, have you not, Mr. Weaver, that bookkeepers

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

sometimes do make mistakes [2387] and fail to record payments as made?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Mr. Weaver, I believe you testified earlier that in computing net income on the basis of net worth increase, expenditures which are deductible for income tax purposes are of no consequence, immaterial, is that true? A. I did not say that.

Q. Is that true? A. No, it is not true.

Q. In computing net income?

A. Deductible expenses are not taken into account in making the computation. However, certain of those expenses which are deductible in nature may become incorrectly deducted in amount on the return filed.

Q. Perhaps I did not make my question clear. In constructing the net income of a taxpayer on net worth increase method, under proper accounting procedure, no addition is made on account of expenditures of the taxpayer during that period which are deductible for income tax purposes, isn't that true?

A. Well, there are two methods of computing. If you follow that method where you can add deductible expenditures in order to arrive at the sum total and then deduct again in order to make complete return, it would be the same——

Q. By the time you got to the net income, you would have ignored [2388] it, wouldn't you?

A. That is right.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. In constructing Exhibit 175, in which you added to Mr. Remmer's equity in this liquor the floor stock tax payment of $7479.22, you assumed, did you not, that that tax payment was not a deductible expenditure for income tax purposes?

A. It is an additional cost of the liquor, yes.

Q. Now, in exercising your judgment that that should be treated as an additional cost of the liquor, rather than being treated as a deductible expenditure, did you rely to any extent at all upon any provision of the Internal Revenue Code or the Treasury Regulations?

Mr. Campbell: Object to the question as assuming a fact not in evidence, that there was a reliance on any independent judgment.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. I can't think of any particular provision. I must have relied on the sum total of past training and experience.

Q. Does your past training and experience include a reading of the Internal Revenue Code and the Treasury Regulations?

A. Undoubtedly so, yes.

Q. You are not sure?

A. Well, I must have. I did not sit down and read it at any one time, but I surely must have read most of it at one time or another. [2389]

Q. Isn't it true, Mr. Weaver, that in the computation of net income on net worth method, proper accounting procedure calls for not adding to the net worth increase federal excise taxes paid as ordinary

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

and necessary expenses connected with or pertaining to the taxpayer's trade or business, and likewise correct accounting procedure calls for not adding to the net worth increase any federal excise taxes paid as ordinary and necessary expenses in connection with the supervision, maintenance, or conservation of property held for profit or for production of income?

A. This does not come under that classification.

Q. Can you answer my question as to if correct accounting procedure calls for that?

Mr. Campbell: I object to that as immaterial.

The Court: Oh, I will permit the answer.

Q. Answer the question, please.

The Court: Didn't he answer?

(Question and answer read.)

Q. The question calls for correct accounting procedure.

The Court: I think that answers the question.

Mr. Avakian: I disagree with your Honor, but I will have to accept your ruling.

Q. Mr. Weaver, can you tell me why you conclude that the floor tax here is not covered by the accounting procedure in answering my [2390] question?

A. Because that provision relates specifically to ordinary and necessary expenses. This is not an ordinary and necessary expense. It is an additional cost of the liquor itself.

Q. Is it not true, Mr. Weaver, that in the case of

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

federal excise taxes levied with respect to merchandise held for resale, a correct accounting procedure provides that the taxpayer may either add the tax to the cost of the goods or may deduct it as a current business expenditure?

A. I wouldn't attempt to make a general answer on federal excise taxes because I believe the rulings would depend upon the particular excise tax involved.

Q. In other words, you feel that the answer may be one way as to some excise tax and another way as to others?

A. Yes. Also this tax in accounting cost would be part of the purchase.

Q. Are you familiar, Mr. Weaver, with the ruling issued by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue on January 26, 1942, entitled——

Mr. Campbell: May I see that before the question is propounded? Counsel made reference, I think, to 10 pages of printed matter——

Mr. Avakian: Perhaps I can withdraw that question for now and permit counsel to examine that at the recess, your Honor, so I will withdraw the question at this time.

Q. Are you familiar, Mr. Weaver, with the provisions of Sec. [2391] 29.23(c)-2 of Treasury Regulations 111?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial and incomprehensive.

Mr. Avakian: I would be glad to show it to him, your Honor.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: You may go ahead. You may show it to him.

Q. I will hand you my copy of the regulations, Mr. Weaver, for your convenience.

A. You are referring to the one you have underlined?

Q. I have underlined a portion of several sections—29.23(c)-2 is the one I am calling to your attention in particular.

A. I believe I have seen that or similar sections before.

Q. Did you rely to any extent at all upon that section of the regulations in exercising your judgment with respect to adding this floor stock tax, in the amount of $7479.22, to the cost of the goods, rather than treating it as a currently deductible expenditure?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent.

The Court: What is your point on that, Mr. Campbell? My recollection of the testimony is that he relied upon the evidence in this case, documentary and oral and also on the regulations.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, he also stated that he relied upon the sum total of his experience. Now he is shown a regulation and asked if it is familiar and he has seen it before. He [2392] said yes. "Did you rely upon this specification regulation?"

The Court: To any extent.

Mr. Campbell: That is right. If he says yes, that is only part of the answer, because that is only part of what he relied upon under his own testimony.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. To tell you what I relied on, I would have to study this, as this refers to the other sections, and also study all of the rulings and court decisions made in connection with it.

Q. Can you tell me at this time whether you relied on that section to any extent at all in exercising your judgment with respect to this particular item, Exhibit 175?

Mr. Campbell: May I further point out, your Honor——

Mr. Avakian: I think your Honor ruled.

The Court: I think I can indulge one side occasionally. We have had so many instances throughout this trial where after ruling there is argument.

Mr. Campbell: This is a new question, and I wish to renew my objection. I wish to point out as an example a lawyer is asked for the reason that he does a particular thing. He is relying upon his sum total judgment. Now he is asked, "Have you read this particular decision of the court"? He may have read it, it may be one of many or may be one along with a number of other decisions.

The Court: I think if a lawyer is asked such a question [2393] he would be capable of answering and I think this witness likewise.

Mr. Campbell: I think he is, but I do not wish the question to be to the exclusion of other means.

The Court: I do not think the question excludes the other factors, so he may answer the question.

Q. Do you remember the question, Mr. Weaver?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. I would like to have it read.

(Question read.)

A. I have no independent recollection as to thinking of this section. Of course, I do not know. Sometime past reading decisions may have influenced me.

Q. It is true, is it not, Mr. Weaver, that that section deals specifically with the problem of either adding an excise tax to the cost of the goods or deducting it as an expenditure?

Mr. Campbell: If the Court please——

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Mr. Weaver, if you had omitted from Exhibit 175 the item of $7479.22 as the 1944 floor stock tax, the amount of Mr. Remmer's equity in that Gallagher & Burton whiskey would have been reduced by the amount of that tax, would it not?

A. Certainly.

Q. Mr. Weaver, it is my recollection—and you correct me if I am wrong—that you testified earlier that the return of the Menlo Club partnership return of income for the year 1946 was [2394] actually prepared in part on cash method and in part on accrual method. Is my recollection correct?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And in making that statement, were you referring to the fact that in the books of the Menlo Club for the year 1946, relating to the bar operation and the restaurant operation, the expenses accrued at the end of 1946, but not paid until 1947, were included as 1946 expense in making up the totals that were used on the tax return?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. I believe I am referring—I would like to see the record of my testimony. I think that states precisely what I was referring to.

Q. Well, I don't know—this morning's testimony isn't written up and I don't know where it would be yesterday. Let me see if we can get at it faster this way. Let me show you Exhibit 127, which is Tiny's Restaurant for the year 1946. That is one of the books of the Menlo Club which you examined in the course of your investigation, is it not?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, let me call your attention, Mr. Weaver, to a page which at the top of it appears date December, 1946, and has heading, "Payments of Cash and Checks Paid Out," as well as to two pages which follow it, and in connection with that let me call your attention to a subsequent page entitled, "Summary Tiny's Restaurant," and particularly to the entries in that [2395] summary for the month of December. By comparing the amounts in the summary for the month of December as paid out by check, with the entries on the three preceding pages that I mentioned as check payments, can you tell us whether, in the summary sheet there was included, as expenses paid by check for the month of December, a number of checks which shown to have been dated January of 1947?

A. The summary to which you refer is summary of the pay roll and I see no entries of pay roll on these particular sheets on the pages here indicated.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. I showed you the wrong summary sheet. It is the reverse side of the sheet I showed you. I call particular attention to the summary sheet, "Tiny's Payments by Check," December, the amount of $21,-065.64, isn't that correct?

A. It is either $21,065.64 or $21,165.64.

Q. Now, I call your attention to the preceding pages that I mentioned to you earlier, showing disbursements by checks which are dated partly in December, 1946, and partly in January, 1947, and is the total of those checks shown as $21,065.64?

A. Yes, that is the figure entered as the total.

Q. And from comparison of the total of the checks issued in December, 1946, and January, 1947, with the total shown for December, 1946, in the summary sheet, are you able to state that the January checks shown in the preceding pages were listed as December expenses in the summary sheet? [2396]

A. Most of the items represent purchases rather than expenses. There are a few expenses included.

Q. But there are payments in 1947 for either purchases or expenses which are included in the summary sheet as December, 1946, payments, isn't that correct?

A. They appear to be 1947 payments, yes.

Q. And in that respect the book that is before you, Exhibit 127, was kept on the accrual method of accounting, was it not?

A. It is still only a record of cash receipts and disbursements. To a very small extent you might say an endeavor was made to throw expenses of the next year into the preceding year.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. The accrual method of accounting calls for deduction in December, 1946, on account of purchases or expenses incurred in that month which are not paid for until the next year, isn't that true?

A. No——

Q. In other words, if a taxpayer—take a restaurant operator—is on the accrual basis of accounting and he orders supplies and food and so on, which he received in the month of December, 1946, but he does not pay for those until January, 1947, under the accrual method of accounting he would deduct those expenditures as 1946 expenditures, would he not?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. When you say deduct, it is not quite correct because some [2397] of them may be included as purchases for inventory.

Q. He would set up as expenditure made in December, 1946, on the accrual method of accounting, even though they were not paid for until 1947?

A. If they were following a strict accrual method, yes. That is very rare except in cases where good records are kept.

Q. As to these entries in Exhibit 127, that is what was done, isn't it, they entered as expenditures in December, 1946, items that were actually paid for in January, 1947?

A. That appears to be the case with respect to

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

these cases. Whether all the other is entered that way or not, I couldn't say.

Q. To the extent that that was done, Mr. Weaver, the books were kept on an accrual method, were they not?

A. To the extent that that was done.

Q. Now I will show you Exhibit 129, which is the exhibit relating to the Menlo Bar operation, and I will ask you if that is the book which you examined in the course of your investigation with respect to that bar operation? A. Yes.

Q. Now I call your attention specifically, Mr. Weaver, to the pages designated "Payments of Cash and Checks Paid Out," with respect to the month of December, 1946, and January, 1947, and I will ask you to examine that in relation to the summary sheet, which is also in this same exhibit, and particularly with respect [2398] to the summary for the month of December, 1946, and ask you whether in this book likewise payments which were made in January, 1947, were included in the summary sheet as of December, 1946, payments?

A. There are entries here paid in January which apparently refers to 1947, which are included in the year 1946.

Q. And the total of the checks listed for December, 1946, and January, 1947, is exactly the same as is shown for the month of December, 1946, in the summary sheet, isn't that right?

A. Those which appear in these sheets here. There are other 1947 checks appearing elsewhere.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. To that extent, that book likewise was kept on the accrual method of accounting, was it not, Mr. Weaver? A. To that extent, yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, I am going to ask you to make a computation—and your Honor, after I make the request, if it is in order, we might take a recess to permit him to make it—whatever your Honor wishes. I am going to ask you, Mr. Weaver, to make a computation for me from those two exhibits of the amount of the payments made as shown in each book in January, 1947, which were included in the summary sheets as December, 1946 expenditures.

Mr. Campbell: I object to that as immaterial, incompetent and not within the scope of direct examination, if the Court please. [2399]

Mr. Avakian: I would like to be heard, if your Honor is in doubt.

The Court: I do not think it is within the scope of direct examination.

Mr. Avakian: It relates specifically, your Honor, to the construction of Exhibit 165, the Menlo Club summary sheet.

The Court: I do not doubt at some stage of the proceedings you might have such computation made.

Mr. Avakian: It relates to net worth.

The Court: I know what it is. Objection will be sustained.

Q. Mr. Weaver, in constructing the net worth of a business, which has maintained its books on the basis of accrual accounting, is it not proper accounting procedure to prepare the net worth statement on an accrual basis?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object, if the Court please, this has been asked and answered; various theories, it seems to me and half a dozen times in the last two days.

The Court: Let me have the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Mr. Weaver, in preparing Exhibit 165, did you set out as any accounts payable any obligations of the Menlo Bar or Tiny's Restaurant, obligations which were paid in January, 1947, but which were entered in the books as December, 1946, [2400] expenditures?

A. There were no liabilities on the Menlo Club net worth at all and they have none on the books.

Q. When you say there are none on the books, are you bearing in mind your testimony that examination of those two books shows that the summary sheets set up as December expenditures items which were not actually paid for until January, 1947?

A. Yes, but that does not mean that all items were included and records adequately to apply to it.

Q. I am asking you to the extent those items are there?

A. In the first place, if the records were adequate, we would not use net worth method in the computation to begin with. Certainly if the records

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

were not adequate for cash basis computation of that income, certainly they are not adequate to apply accrual basis of computation, which would involve many factors not entered in any of these records.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Weaver, isn't it true that in computing net income on the net worth method, proper accounting procedure calls for the determination of many matters which are immaterial in the computation of net income on the basis of receipts and disbursements?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incomprehensive.

The Court: Will you restate that question, please?

Mr. Avakian: May I have it read?

(Question read.) [2401]

Mr. Campbell: I object to the question on the ground it is incomprehensive.

The Court: Well, we will see if the witness can answer. Do you understand the question, Mr. Weaver? If you can, answer it, if you can't, say you can't.

A. I don't believe it can be answered properly off-hand.

Q. You have stated many times here, Mr. Weaver, the records of the Menlo Club were entirely inadequate. You have before you now two of the books of the Menlo Club for the year 1946, have you not? A. Yes.

Q. And Exhibit 127 refers to the restaurant portion of the Menlo Club business? A. Yes.

Q. And Exhibit 129 relates to the bar portion of

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

the Menlo Club business? A. Yes.

Q. And I hand you Exhibit 126, and that relates to the card room portion of the Menlo Club business, does it not? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, I believe you testified already that so far as you can determine from your examination, all of the income of the card room shown on the daily poker sheets for the year 1946, were entered in the card room book that is before you as Exhibit 126, isn't that correct? [2402]

A. That all of the income shown in the poker sheets was transferred to these books?

Q. Yes, for the year in question. A. Yes.

Q. You have those poker sheets for several years, have you not?

Mr. Campbell: I submit that has all been asked and answered.

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Avakian: All right, it has been answered.

Q. Now with respect to the Menlo bar operation, which is for the year 1946, as reflected in the book before you, Exhibit 129, there is no evidence in this record that you know of, is there, of the failure to admit any income whatsoever in that bar in the year 1946, from the book before you?

Mr. Campbell: The witness is definitely being asked to search the record for something other than to testify as to facts.

The Court: Let me get the question.

(Question read.)

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: Answer the question.

A. I believe we have some such evidence. Whether or not it is in court, I can't really recall, without reviewing the record.

Q. With respect to Tiny's restaurant portion of the business, [2403] Exhibit 127, for the year 1946, can you refer me to any evidence in the record in this case that shows that any of the income of that business was omitted from Exhibit 127 for the year 1946?

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object again.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: It is the same question, your Honor.

The Court: Yes, and I think I made a mistake in overruling the last objection.

Q. What other records of the Menlo Club for the year 1946 were turned over to you for your examination, aside from the three books that are before you, Mr, Weaver? First of all, can you identify records of that business which are in evidence here? A. Now what do you mean?

Q. I will withdraw that. There were also turned over to you, were there not, the check stub books of the Menlo Club, including the bar and restaurant, for the year 1946, were there not?

A. There were a lot of check stubs. Just what period they cover, I do not remember. Some were in 1946.

Q. They included 1946?

A. I don't know whether they included the entire year. I believe they did.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Everything you asked for in that respect was turned over to you, were they not?

A. As far as I know. [2404]

Q. And there were also turned over to you the cancelled checks of that business for the year 1946, were there not?

A. Yes, I believe it included the year 1946. I think there was one check missing.

Q. There were also turned over to you for the year 1946, the bank statements of the bank accounts relating to that business, were there not?

A. Yes.

Q. And I will show you prosecution's Exhibit 161 for identification, consisting of the carton which was produced here by the prosecution and that contains in it cancelled checks and bank statements obtained by you and your staff from the Menlo Club, does it not?

A. Yes. The account wasn't carried in the name of the Menlo Club, but it is primarily for that business.

Q. And all of the cancelled checks and financial statements relative to the accounts that were used in the Menlo Club business that you requested were turned over to you, weren't they?

A. As far as I know, yes.

Q. Now in addition all poker sheets of the Menlo Club for the year 1946 were turned over to you?

Mr. Campbell: Object—this is the third time counsel has asked that question.

The Court: Yes, not only today, but we heard this several [2405] days ago.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Avakian: I don't recall asking.

Q. And with the exception of the few poker sheets which have been introduced in evidence here, you still have in your possession upstairs in this building the balance of the poker sheets for the year 1946, have you not? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Now do you have in your possession at this time any other records of the Menlo Club relating to the year 1946?

A. We have some copies of Social Security tax returns.

Q. And those were made available to you upon your request? A. Yes.

Q. Now these three books which you have before you, which I believe are Exhibits 126, 127 and 129, contain in them not only a record of the receipts of the Menlo Club business, but they also set forth the disbursements of the business, do they not?

A. For 1946?

Q. Yes.

A. Are you speaking of all three sections of the club now?

Q. Yes.

A. The bar, the restaurant and the card room?

Q. That is right. A. Yes, that's right.

Q. So that these books and these various materials that were turned over to you contain a record of the receipts and they [2406] contain a record of the disbursements, isn't that right? A. Yes.

Q. And in addition the disbursements are sup-

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

ported by cancelled checks and the bank statements, are they not?

A. Well, supported to the extent that it was possible, yes. In some cases that isn't full support.

Q. I believe you stated with the exception of one check, so far as you know, all cancelled checks and all bank statements were turned over to you, is that right?

A. Yes. What I mean, the checks were not necessarily explanatory of what was done with the money and I do not believe that all of the checks of all the Menlo Club bank accounts were entered in the books.

Q. But the checks were there, were they not?

A. Yes, with one exception.

The Court: We will take a recess for 15 minutes.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Q. Mr. Weaver, I will hand you Exhibit 169 for your use in your testimony. Mr. Weaver, Exhibit 169 is a statement prepared [2407] by you of the assets and liabilities of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe for December 31, 1943, 1944, 1945 and 1946, is it not? A. Yes, that's right.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. And on the bottom line you have set forth certain amounts designated as net worth for those respective dates? A. Yes.

Q. Now the first item, cash on hand, bank roll, Exhibit 111A, you have stated the amount on December 31, 1943, was 15 thousand dollars, and it is true, is it not, Mr. Weaver, that the only bank roll figure shown in Exhibit 111A is as of January 1, 1943, and that you assumed, in preparing this exhibit, that there had been no change at the end of 1943, in that amount?

A. That's right, because if you didn't use any bank roll at all, it would be to the taxpayer's disadvantage.

Q. If there wasn't any figure at all, there wasn't entry of bank roll item after January, 1943?

A. That is right.

Q. The book didn't purport to show one way or another what it was on January, 1944?

A. No, the book had just one figure, it had "win" or "lose." Was the only record we had of any amount.

Q. Then you assumed further, did you not, that the bank roll remained exactly the same on December 31, 1944, as it had been on January 1, [2408] 1943?

Mr. Campbell: That was all gone into on voir dire.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: Well, he may go into it on cross-examination.

A. That is right, because to make that assumption would result in no additional income in that period.

Q. As a matter of fact, if you had not made that assumption for 1944, and had treated the bank roll figure in 1944 as zero, it would have been favorable to the taxpayer?

A. If I thought the business could operate without a bank roll, yes.

Q. Now for the year 1945, "Cash on Hand Bank Roll," Pritchett testimony, 20 thousand dollars at December 31, 1945. I am going to call your attention to the attention of Mr. Pritchett, pages 1524 and 1525 of the transcript, where he stated, under direct examination by Mr. Campbell, as follows:

"Q. Now at the time you left the business at the end of 1945, do you recall the amount of cash on hand? A. No. I do not.

"Q. What is your best recollection?

"A. I think it was around five thousand dollars cash.

"Q. Do you recall whether or not there were also on hand at that time any accounts receivable?

"A. Yes, sir. [2409]

"Q. What was the amount?

"A. I don't recall what it was.

"Q. What is your best recollection?

"A. I believe around 15 thousand outstanding."

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Is that the testimony of Mr. Pritchett to which you refer on Exhibit 169?

A. Yes, I believe it is. There may be more to it than that. I can't tell without reviewing the record.

Q. So that although you state on your exhibit that there was 20 thousand dollars, Mr. Pritchett's testimony, upon which you rely, is that there was only five thousand cash and 15 thousand accounts receivable?

A. There was prior testimony that markers were treated as cash, as part of the bank roll.

Q. Can you refer me to that portion of the testimony? A. Not right now, no.

Q. Have you made any notes anywhere in preparing this exhibit?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative. The record speaks for itself.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Avakian: If this was supposed to be a summary, can't he point to the place in the evidence where it is? We haven't been able to find it. We have read it carefully with this thought in mind. May I make that request?

The Court: I am not going to ask this witness to search [2410] through two or three thousand pages in this transcript.

Mr. Avakian: He must have done it already.

The Court: I know.

Q. Right now you are not able to refer me to any of the testimony to that effect, is that correct?

A. Outside of what you have stated to be Mr.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Pritchett's testimony. It wouldn't make any difference whether you had accounts receivable 15 thousand and 5 thousand on hand, it would still be the same figure.

Q. I call your attention to Mr. Kyne's testimony on page 878, under examination by Mr. Campbell, as follows:

"Q. Will you explain what you mean by marker?

"A. One who bets and does not pay in this respect."

Now, Mr. Weaver, you said that 15 thousand dollars accounts receivable, which you have treated as cash, has been treated as cash because there has been some testimony, which you can not now point to, that the markers were treated as cash in the bank roll, is that correct? A. Yes, that's right.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, in a horse betting business, in which a person who bets and loses, fails to pay up, but instead puts in a marker, that marker would be treated as income on the accrual method of account, but not on the cash method of accounting, isn't that true? [2411]

A. No, I would say the existence of the marker would be the equivalent of the advance of that much cash to that particular individual. Whether by furnishing cash before the bet to him or whether furnishing it after he makes the bet, it would be cash in either case. If you want to classify part of this item as accounts receivable and the rest as cash, it makes no difference in the sum total of the figures, if it pleases you.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Well, in the preparation of asset and liability and net worth statements by certified public accounts, is it not proper accounting procedure, Mr. Weaver, to show cash as an item separate from the accounts receivable?

A. I would say it depends on the business. My recollection of the testimony is that these markers were treated as the equivalent of cash. They were maintained in the bank roll, of which no record was kept anywhere and the partners involved, one of them I couldn't talk to, the others had no recollection of the size of the bank roll, so the only thing that we could depend on was the custom of conducting a business of this character.

Q. You do have specific testimony five thousand is cash and 15 thousand accounts receivable, do you not? A. Yes.

Q. Is it not proper accounting procedure when a certified public account prepares statements of assets and liabilities and net worth for them to show cash separately from accounts [2412] receivable when they do have information as to the amount of the item?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as asked and answered.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: I do not recall the answer.

The Court: The last question.

Mr. Avakian: It wasn't answered. He didn't state whether that was or was not proper accounting procedure. May we have the question read?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

(Previous question and answer read.)

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Mr. Weaver, bearing in mind Mr. Kyne's testimony that the meaning of marker is "one who bets and does not pay in this respect," is it not true that under proper accounting procedure the amount of that bet which is not paid would not be considered as income at that time under the cash receipts and disbursements method of accounting?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as asked and answered.

The Court: He may answer the question.

Mr. Campbell: The further objection it is assuming a fact not in evidence. In the first place, I don't believe the witness would be bound by Mr. Kyne's definition. Secondly, I don't believe that was Mr. Kyne's entire definition. He stated among other things the so-called partners took out money and put in markers, as well as patrons to whom money was [2413] advanced.

The Court: The objection this witness would not be bound by Mr. Kyne's definition is a good objection. Objection is sustained.

Mr. Avakian: I am not saying he is bound.

The Court: It would have the same effect.

Mr. Avakian: I am asking him to make an accounting appraisal of the testimony.

The Court: Based on Mr. Kyne's definition.

Mr. Avakian: But it is in the testimony, in evidence, and the only evidence on that point by Mr. Kyne.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Q. Mr. Weaver, isn't it true that, showing the cash separately from accounts receivable on account of markers, would have a material bearing on the construction of the net worth of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe if you constructed that net worth on cash receipts and disbursements method?

A. Everything has a material bearing. I don't get the point of your question.

Q. You don't understand the question.

Mr. Campbell: I object to that.

The Court: He said he didn't get the point.

Mr. Avakian: It means he doesn't understand, your Honor. I don't know what he means if he doesn't mean that. Let me see if I can rephrase it so you can understand it. [2414]

Q. In the preparation of net worth statements for a business which has accounts receivable consisting of money owed to the business on account of transactions with that business, for which they have not yet been paid, does it make a difference in the computation of the net worth whether you use the cash receipts and disbursements method rather than the accrual method?

A. As I explained before, we only use the net worth method when records are inadequate. If the records were adequate enough to use the accrual method, certainly you would not resort to the net worth method. Furthermore, whether or not accounts receivable should be taken into consideration depends entirely upon the manner in which those accounts receivable arose. Now if they arose from advances of cash to another individual, whether that advance is made either before or after the occurrence of another transaction, I can see no distinction. It just replaces one asset, cash with another asset, accounts receivable.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Have you finished? A. Yes.

Q. Now to the extent that accounts receivable consists of money owed to the business by a customer on account of a business transaction, for which the customer has not yet paid the business, would you not say, as a certified public accountant, that as to that kind of transaction, the [2415] account receivable would not be income on the cash receipts and disbursements method?

A. It depends entirely upon the nature of the transaction. There is not anything in the records of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe to indicate the nature of any of these transactions except markers and advances to partners and advances to others. There is nothing to indicate any amount which would reflect any income that had been reported.

Mr. Avakian: May we have my question read?

(Question read.)

Q. Give me a direct answer.

Mr. Campbell: I submit the question has been answered.

The Court: The question has been answered.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Mr. Weaver, by using the cash figure of 20 thousand dollars in your Exhibit 169, instead of the amount of cash of five thousand dollars testified to by Mr. Pritchett, you have increased the net worth of that business by 15 thousand dollars, have you not?

A. Yes. If I hadn't put it that way, we would put it under accounts receivable.

Q. Now with respect to the same figure of 20 thousand dollars for the year 1946 in Exhibit 169, you again state that the authority for that is Mr. Pritchett's testimony. I call your attention to the following testimony of Mr. Pritchett, first on page 1512 under direct examination by Mr. [2416] Campbell:

"Q. Do you recall approximately when it was that you left in 1946?

"A. I left about the end of '45 and I was back there for a few days the end of March or middle of March.

"Q. How long did you remain at that time?

"A. Oh, about a week.

"Q. When you left in March, was the business still operating? A. No, sir.

"Q. And that was March of '46?

"A. That's correct."

And then again to Mr. Pritchett's testimony on cross-examination, beginning at page 1538:

"Q. Then as I understand, during the year 1946, you just went back to work there for about a week?

"A. Correct.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

"Q. Do you recall what time of year that was?

"A. About the middle of March.

"Q. About a week and then you left the place again? A. That's right."

Q. Now can you refer me to any testimony of Mr. Pritchett's other than what I have read to you, with respect to the amount of the bank roll that might have been on hand with the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe on March 31, 1946? [2417]

A. There is no record of the bank roll for that date in any record; no record of the cash in the safe on Mason Street or any of the safe deposit boxes; we couldn't talk to Mr. Remmer to determine the amount of the bank roll, the other partners had no recollection of the amount of the bank roll, and we knew in a period of five months there was a gross business of some five million dollars immediately succeeding 1946, so that would appear that the bank roll continued at 20 thousand wouldn't be unreasonable.

Q. Does that complete your answer?

A. Yes.

Q. (By Mr. Avakian): Your Honor, my question was referring to the nature of the testimony. I ask that the answer be stricken as not responsive, and the question be read to the witness.

The Court: The answer may go out.

(Question read.)

Q. Will you answer the question?

A. The bank roll——

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: Referring to testimony, he means oral testimony.

Q. You say Mr. Pritchett's testimony in your exhibit. Can you refer to it?

A. The bank roll at the end of 1946 was carried over at the same figure used at the end of 1945 for the reasons I stated. [2418]

The Court: It can be answered yes or no.

A. No.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, during your examination yesterday regarding Exhibit 125C and 140, you made the statement that the records of the Menlo Club, although kept in a special room in the Bureau of Internal Revenue offices in San Francisco, might at times have been returned to the representatives of the Menlo Club for short periods. Do you recall that subject?

A. Yes, whenever they requested records, we returned them. Whether or not these were included, I can't recall.

Q. It is true, is it not, when you and the other members of your staff obtained those records, you agreed to return them upon request?

A. Yes, and we always did.

Q. Isn't it true, Mr. Weaver, that you, and the other members of your staff, refused to return those records to the defense when the defense requested the opportunity to examine them in October of 1951, for the purpose of preparing for this trial?

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object to that question, if the Court please, as being incompetent, im-material and it is a matter upon which the Court has heretofore ruled.

The Court: What ruling of the Court do you allude to?

Mr. Campbell: I judge counsel is apparently referring [2419] to some records other than those produced here, because the evidence here shows that these records were returned to the defendants and the receipt of Mr. Semenza secured some time early in 1949. Now he is referring apparently by this question to some other records.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, here is a box of records produced by the prosecution during the trial, relates to material business which we were trying to have an opportunity to examine and the prosecution refused to let us examine; although Mr. Weaver says they promised to make available and always did make available, the fact is they did not and Mr. Weaver knows that is so because he is the party who refused.

Mr. Campbell: This matter should be in the absence of the jury, but this is a matter which has been before the Court and upon which the Court has made rulings.

The Court: We will excuse the jury.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

(Last question read.)

Mr. Campbell: I think the Court had not made its ruling prior to the jury going out.

The Court: Objection is sustained to the last question.

Q. Mr. Weaver, you testified at length on cross-examination to the exhaustive investigation which you and the members of your staff made in attempting to determine the assets and liabilities of Mr. Remmer during the period covered by your investigation. Let me ask you this, Mr. Weaver—and it is a preliminary question, will you please answer yes or no—during the five years covered by your investigation, did you follow up every lead which you found that might lead to the discovery of assets or liabilities of Mr. Remmer?

A. To the best of my ability, yes.

Q. Now in the course of your investigation, you made an examination, did you not, of prosecution's Exhibit 146, which is the ledger of Cal-Neva, Inc.,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

and particularly of the account of Elmer Remmer, designated as Account 10?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And let me call your attention, Mr. Weaver, to an entry in that account of E. Remmer, dated November 30, 1939, entitled "Placer County Taxes." Did you make any investigation to determine whether Mr. Remmer owned any property in Placer County, with respect to which Cal-Neva corporation paid taxes [2421] and charges to his account?

A. I can't recall whether I did or not.

Q. Did you search the records of the county recorder of Placer County?

A. No, I did not personally but it might have been done by some one else, I can't recall.

Q. As I recall, in your statement of the various official records you searched, you made no reference to Placer County. Can you tell us whether you did find that Mr. Remmer owned any property in Placer County? A. No, I did not.

Q. I call your attention also to another entry in that account dated November 30, 1942, entitled "Placer County Taxes." Did you make any investigation with respect to that through the cancelled check that was used for that purpose or any other way, to determine whether Mr. Remmer at that time owned any property in Placer County?

A. Is that the $4.45?

Q. That is right. Check was $4.45.

A. I don't recall doing it myself. It may have been done by somebody else, or it may have appeared the amount of taxes involved indicated real property of no great value.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Q. In other words, you might have assumed that the value of the property was too small for you to bother with in your investigation, is that [2422] right?

A. That is possible. Also that in 1940, we had a statement, under oath, that Mr. Remmer gave in Stockton, relative——

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment—was that statement given by Mr. Remmer?

A. Mrs. Remmer, relative to community——

Mr. Avakian: I will ask the witness not go into the contents of any statement.

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: He has inquired why, if he did not, he did not make the investigation.

The Court: I think the question goes to the reason why none was made. Let us have the answer.

(Answer read.)

Mr. Avakian: I followed up by asking if he might have thought the value of the property was too small to bother.

Mr. Campbell: And he answered what he had to go on.

(Question and answer read.)

Mr. Campbell: I submit he might explain that.

The Court: That part may remain in.

Q. Mr. Weaver, can you determine with consultation with other members of your crew or examination of your papers and files in this matter, that the official records of the county recorder of Placer County show that Mr. Remmer purchased some real property in that county on June 8, 1937, and sold it on September 16, 1946? [2423]

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object to this. That is counsel's testimony. He said he personally did not make any examination, he didn't know if others did. Counsel now asks if he will ascertain what he says the county records show.

(Question read.)

The Court: Answer yes or no.

Mr. Campbell: He asked him if he could determine from examination of his crew.

Mr. Avakian: The members of his staff or from his records.

The Court: You can answer the question yes or no.

A. No.

Q. You can not determine, that is your answer?

The Court: That is his answer, yes.

Q. Very well. Now I call your attention further to an entry in this same account, No. 10, of E. Remmer, Exhibit 146, dated April 30, 1946, and entitled "Mayris Chaney Loan" in amount of $2500, entered under charges. Did you notice that entry in your examination in this case?

A. May I refer to my working papers on this?

A. Yes, I did.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. You did make an inquiry about that?

A. Not an inquiry?

The Court: Wait a minute—he answered the question once. [2424]

Mr. Avakian: May I strike the last question?

Q. You did notice that, Mr. Weaver. Did you make any investigation with respect to that matter?

A. I looked at the explanation contained in the Cal-Neva records which said to charge E. Remmer with cash received from Mayris Chaney $2500 in payment of his loan to the company and to write off uncollectable loans, which refer to a different part of the same entry, not pertinent here.

Q. So you found in your investigations that the entry represented repayment of loan by Mayris Chaney?

A. Yes and that the cash which, acording to the explanation of this entry, should have gone to Cal-Neva, went to Mr. Remmer personally instead; therefore, he was charged with that amount on the books of Cal-Neva.

Q. Did you make any investigation to determine when that loan had been made to Mayris Chaney?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial. This is apparently advance of Cal-Neva, which mistakenly was repaid to Mr. Remmer and then charged to him.

The Court: He can answer the question. Do you understand the question?

A. Yes. I believe I discussed that with Mr.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Semenza and I don't know that he could give a satisfactory explanation as to the exact date.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, in the computation of net income on the net [2425] worth basis, it is important, is it not, to take into account all real property owned by the taxpayer at the beginning of your net worth period and sold by him during the period?

A. Yes. I don't recall any sale being reported in any of his returns.

Q. And is it also important to determine, in order to make a proper computation—withdraw that.

Is it important, in making computation, to determine facts with respect to any money which the taxpayer either borrows from others or loaned to others during the period covered by the net worth computation? A. Yes.

Q. Did you, during the five years that you were investigating this case, make any investigation of the repayment to one J. B. Scarlett, also known as James Sullivan, by Mr. Remmer in 1949, of the sum of 25 thousand dollars borrowed from Mr. Scarlett by Mr. Remmer in a prior period?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming something not in evidence.

Mr. Avakian: The fact is in evidence.

The Court: I remember some testimony.

Mr. Campbell: I do recall Mr. Woodburn mentioned some money paid in 1949. But I do on the ground that it has not been shown that any such loan existed during the period which we have in consideration here. Mr. Woodburn stated, if I recall, [2426] when the money, if it was money, had been advanced from Mr. Scarlett. I believe when Mr. Adler made his payment in purchasing Cal-Neva from Mr. Remmer in 1948 or 1949, that Mr. Scarlett collected that sum back.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Avakian: I am only asking if he made any investigation of the matter.

The Court: Answer the question.

A. The only investigation I recall making in connection with the loan from Mr. Scarlett, or the loan made——

Mr. Avakian: I ask that be stricken because it is not responsive as to whether he investigated a repayment to Scarlett by Remmer.

The Court: He may answer the question.

(Answer read.)

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment——

The Court: He may proceed.

Mr. Avakian: May the witness be instructed to limit his answer to the Remmer-Scarlett transaction? May we have the question read?

The Court: Proceed.

A. The only investigation of a loan made to Scarlett was the sum of, I believe, $25,000 borrowed by Captain Devine of the San Francisco——

Mr. Avakian: That is not the Remmer-Scarlett transaction. The witness is trying to bring in something for a [2427] prejudicial purpose, has no relation to Mr.Sullivan's loan——

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: Let me have the answer.

(Answer read.)

The Court: The answer may go out.

Mr. Avakian: I move the jury be admonished.

The Court: Of course, I have told the jury, I believe they understand, that they are to——

Mr. Avakian: I believe the witness——

The Court (Interceding): Do you want to take my place on the bench?

Mr. Avakian: I thought you were through. I am sorry.

The Court: I have instructed this jury many times, when it comes to decide this case they are to confine their decision and deliberations to and concerning only the evidence brought out by the mouths of witnesses on this stand and from documents in evidence and not the remarks of court, remarks of counsel or any other matter should be considered, but the jury, in deciding this case, shall accept the evidence, both oral and documentary.

Now you may proceed.

Mr. Avakian: Thank you, your Honor.

Q. Mr. Weaver, did you investigate the escrow records of the First National Bank in Reno, Nevada, relative to the sale of Cal-Neva Lodge by Mr. Remmer to Sanford Adler, with respect [2428] to an assignment shown in those escrow records, dated October 2, 1948, from Mr. Remmer to Mr. Scarlett of 25 thousand dollars of the funds coming to Mr. Remmer in that escrow transaction?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. That was connected with the answer I attempted to give.

Q. Did you examine those escrow records?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you find that in those escrow records there was an assignment dated October 2, 1948, signed by Mr. Remmer, assigning to Mr. Scarlett 25 thousand dollars of the funds which were to come to Mr. Remmer in connection with the sale to which that escrow related?

A. Yes; without looking at the records I wouldn't remember the amount. I do remember Mr. Remmer was supposed to have guaranteed the loan.

Q. Do you remember that there was an assignment in that escrow file from Mr. Remmer to Mr. Scarlett?

Mr. Campbell: I submit the records are the best evidence.

A. I do not recall, no.

Mr. Avakian: He does not recall, that is the answer.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, any loan which Mr. Remmer might have owed to Mr. Sullivan at the end of 1946 would have a material bearing in determining Mr. Remmer's net income for the year 1946 on net worth method, would it not?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming a fact not in [2429] evidence, any loan owing from Mr. Remmer to Mr. Sullivan.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: No further questions, with this reservation, may Mr. Weaver remain available for further possible examination after the other agents have identified certain documents.

The Court: We do not know yet whether there is any redirect examination. There may be. I will ask Mr. Weaver to remain until excused by both sides.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Weaver, during the course of your cross-examination and particularly yesterday, you were asked various questions concerning the records of the Menlo Club and of the three Menlo businesses, that is to say, the Menlo Club as referring to the card room, the Menlo Bar and Tiny's Waffle Shop. Now directing your attention to the bank account under the name of the Menlo Club, which is here in evidence, and which was the bank account under the name of Menlo Club in the Bank of America, Day and Night Branch, which, as I recall was opened in

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

September or October, 1946—pardon me, is that correct? A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. I will ask you whether or not that bank account, or any reference thereto, appeared in the books of the Menlo Club?

A. No, the account did not appear in the books at all.

Q. And with particular to two checks which are here in evidence, being plaintiff's Exhibit 115, check drawn on the Menlo Club account as of November 7, 1946, in amount of 65 thousand dollars, and plaintiff's Exhibit 120, a check in amount of $16,005.50, also drawn on the Menlo Club account at the [2431] Bank of America, I will ask you whether or not, in the records which you examined of the Menlo Club and which are here in evidence, was any entry or notation made of those two checks?

A. May I see the Menlo Club book?

Q. Yes.

A. I think I will need both the 1946 book and the 1947 book as to partners' accounts.

Q. I hand you plaintiff's Exhibits 125 and 126, which are denominated "Menlo Club 1947" and "Menlo Club 1946" respectively.

Mr. Avakian: To save time, your Honor, we will stipulate that they are not entered in the books.

Mr. Campbell: Very well, we will accept the stipulation.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, during the course of your examination and investigation, were you shown at any time any books for the Menlo Club deferring to

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

the card room for the year 1945? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you shown at any time, or did you see at any time, any of the so-called poker sheets for the Menlo Club for the year 1945? A. No, sir.

Q. Now with regard to the records which you saw for the Menlo Club for the years 1946 and 1947, which you have examined there, and the books and records of the other enterprises which are in evidence here, will you state whether or not any record was [2432] maintained relative to transfers of funds from one enterprise to another?

Mr. Avakian: May we have the question read?

(Question read.)

Mr. Avakian: I am not certain what Mr. Campbell means by reference to other enterprises. Do you mean all the other busineses, like 110 Eddy and so on?

Mr. Campbell: Yes.

Mr. Avakian: That is assuming something not in evidence. There is no evidence here that they were transferred.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. No such record was kept.

Q. Now with regard to the Menlo Club records, that is to say, for the 1946 records here in evidence of the Menlo Club, were any accounts maintained of assets and liabilities other than the Schriber account and the capital accounts?

A. No, sir, those were the only ones.

Q. Now with regard to your examination of such

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

records as you did examine of the Menlo Club—I believe you testified there were no records for 1945, is that correct? A. For the card room?

Q. Yes. A. No records for 1945.

Q. Now with regard to the records which you examined for 1946 of the club room, were all the receipts of the club room deposited [2433] in a bank account or bank accounts? A. No.

Q. Was it possible, or were you able to, Mr. Weaver, reconcile the bank account or bank accounts with the poker sheets?

A. No, I was not.

Q. Did you examine, or were you shown, or do you know of the existence of any record relative to the amount of cash maintained in safes or safety deposit boxes with regard to the Menlo Club or with relation to any of the businesses?

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor, it appears counsel is going into matters that were introduced in the prosecution's case in chief from other witnesses. This is repetitious. It is not harmful, but it is already in the record. Witnesses such as Mr. Kyne and Mr. Maundrell testified that money was placed in the safe deposit boxes and so on. I think this is just repetitious and a waste of time. I do not think it is proper redirect, it is already in the record, already established.

The Court: Objection overruled. Read the question.

(Question read.)

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. I know of no such record.

Q. Now you were questioned yesterday relative to certain—or it may have been the day before—relative to certain payments made to Maundrell and charged to the account standing in his name in the Menlo Club books. Did your examination disclose whether any of the other persons, whose names appear therein [2434] with credits shown to their accounts and other than the defendant, Elmer Remmer, drew or received any monies other than for tax payments?

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment, your Honor, we object to that question on two grounds, your Honor. First of all, it is not proper redirect because the cross-examination related only to Maundrell, there was no questioning as to accounts of any other partner, and so it is not within the scope of cross-examination. Secondly, the question calls for information obtained by the witness in the course of his examination, which is beyond the scope of the evidence in this case and in that respect, even if the question was proper on redirect, it should be limited to the evidence that is in this case and not to other matters that may be speculation and hearsay.

Mr. Campbell: As to this latter objection, limit yor answer, Mr. Weaver, to the books and records which you examined.

Mr. Avakian: And then there is the first objection also.

The Court: It will be overruled. You may answer the question as modified. Now read the question.

(Question as modified read.)

A. Other than tax payments, there is no indication that any of the partners drew any money other than Mr. Remmer and Mr. Nelson.

Q. Mr. Nelson? [2435] A. Yes.

Q. Now your attention is directed——

The Witness (Interrupting): And Mr. Maundrell, of course.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, I eliminated him in the question.

Q. Your attention is directed to the fact that there has been some evidence in the record that parties by the name of Fricker and Ditto withdrew from the enterprise as of December 31, 1945. First, let me ask you, are there capital accounts set up in the records of the Menlo Club which are before you in the names of Fricker and Ditto?

Mr. Avakian: Object to that as not proper redirect, because it does not touch upon anything that was even remotely mentioned in cross-examination.

Mr. Campbell: I am going into this question of payments which were made to the persons indicated in these capital accounts of the partners, if the Court please, and Mr. Avakian went to some length as to payments made to Mr. Maundrell.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor will recall Mr. Maundrell's was the only account. I was stopped in the course of questioning as to Mr. Maundrell's account by Mr. Campbell's objection and your Honor ruled in sustaining Mr. Campbell's objection that I couldn't go further into that line of questioning and questioning of Mr. Maundrell's account was stopped in the middle by Mr. Campbell's objection and your Honor's ruling, and there was no questioning whatever in respect to the other [2436] partner's accounts.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the question.

A. The books show capital accounts for both Mr. Ditto and Mr. Fricker.

Q. As of December 31, 1945?

A. Yes; stated this way, "Balance 1945" and then there is an amount entered in the balance account which from the nature of the following entries, appears to be a credit balance of that date. There is no indication of anything preceding that date.

Q. Other than money debited against those accounts for taxes for the year 1945, were any further payments to them or debits to them entered in those records? A. No, sir, that's all.

Q. Now in your cross-examination yesterday, Mr. Avakian directed your attention on the books of Cal-Neva to some taxes paid in 1939, I believe, or 1941 or '42——

Mr. Avakian: '42.

Q. ——on some real property, apparently in Placer County, California, by Cal-Neva and charged to Mr. Remmer's acount, drawing account, and Mr. Avakian, by his questioning, asked you if you were aware that that property had been owned and was sold in the year 1946. Do you recall those questions?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. Yes, I do. [2437]

Q. I am going to direct your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 5, the return of Elmer Remmer for the year 1946, and ask you to examine it and state whether or not in the return for that year Mr. Remmer reported the sale of any real properties?

A. No, sir, there is no such sale on the return.

Q. And in connection with your examination and investigation, I will ask you if you found, Mr. Weaver, any evidence of capital gains on the sale of property, either real or personal, by Mr. Remmer during the years 1944 to 1946 inclusive?

Mr. Avakian: May we have the question?

(Question read.)

Mr. Avakian: We object on the ground again it calls for something that he apparently might have run into in his examination as distinguished from evidence, and it could then call for hearsay, speculation, opinion, or other matters.

Mr. Campbell: This can be answered yes or no.

The Court: What is your objection?

Mr. Avakian: It should be limited to the examination of evidence here, not anything he might have thought or run into or hearsay.

Mr. Campbell: If his answer is yes—we probably have to hear the answer first.

The Court: Have you finished your objection?

Mr. Avakian: Even though the answer is yes or

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

no, it is still improper if it is based upon anything not in the [2438] record here.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

Mr. Avakian: May he answer yes or no then?

Mr. Campbell: Answer yes or no.

A. May I have the question?

(Question read.)

A. No.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, you were examined yesterday at some length relative to an exhibit, to a schedule which you prepared, concerning the net worth of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe, which is plaintiff's Exhibit No. 169. Now in connection with your examination into the affairs of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe, did you have before you any records other than those in evidence here, with the exception of the diary book for 1944, of which there is a transcript in evidence?

Mr. Avakian: May that be answered yes or no, your Honor?

A. You mean confined to the years we are concerned with here?

Q. That is correct.

A. No, that is all I have.

Q. Relative to the years 1944 to 1946, did you have before you, or were you shown, any records of the gross business of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe?

A. No, sir.

Q. Were you shown, or did you have before you,

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

any records purporting to be the capital accounts of the partners in that [2439] business? A. No.

Q. Did you have before you, or were you shown, any record of the assets and liabilities of that business? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you shown, or did you have before you, any record of the expenses of that business?

A. No, sir.

Q. Were you shown, or did you have before you, any record of cash in safe or safety deposit boxes pertaining to that business?

Mr. Avakian: Objected to—that was asked and answered a few minutes ago, your Honor.

The Court: Objection will be overruled.

A. No.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, another matter was referred to yesterday. Your attention was directed to an entry in the books of Cal-Neva, Inc., in the drawing account of Elmer Remmer, relative to some entry in that account referring to an advance or loan to an individual by the name of Chaney, and I believe you stated what the entry made in the books stated concerning that transaction. Now it was not clear in my mind what that transaction was. Will you explain please?

Mr. Avakian: First of all, before he is permitted to answer, may he be instructed to answer whatever is in evidence [2440] and not speculation and hearsay?

Mr. Campbell: Yes.

Mr. Avakian: And secondly we object on the

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

ground the record speaks for itself. Whether Mr. Campbell understands the records or not, is immaterial. He has been making objections to my questions on that same ground, which your Honor sustains. He can read the testimony to him.

The Court: In regard to your reference about objections made by Mr. Campbell, I overruled many objections of Mr. Campbell's on the ground the record was the best evidence. I want to just call your attention to that. The objection is overruled. You may answer the question.

A. According to Cal-Neva books, that represented an advance to that particular individual.

Q. By whom?

A. By Cal-Neva. The advance subsequently was repaid to Mr. Remmer personally, who retained the money and then it was then charged against his account.

Q. Just as any other drawing or advance by Cal-Neva to Mr. Remmer?

A. Yes, it actually represented an advance from Cal-Neva to Mr. Remmer.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, various questions were propounded to you regarding various theories of accounting by accrual basis and by [2441] cash basis, hybrid basis, and so on. Will you state, Mr. Weaver, in as simple terms as you can, what is meant by net worth method of ascertaining a person's income?

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we object to that question as calling for the witness' interpretation of law. I call your Honor's attention to the fact that upon rulings from the bench on Mr. Campbell's objection, the cross-examination was not permitted to go into that matter.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: Objection is overruled.

A. Well, briefly, the net worth method tends to determine what the person owned at one particular date and then make a comparison what he owns at another date, the difference between the two representing an increase or decrease in his net worth and correspondingly an increase or decrease in his income, with this qualification—that we must take into account what is expended for nondeductible purposes, such as federal income tax and living expenses, which, if they would not have been expended, would still be on hand in the period and would reflect a further increase in his net worth.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, in view of your Honor's ruling on this matter, I should like, at the earliest opportunity, to have an opportunity to present to your Honor some matters of law pertaining to cross-examination of expert witnesses, if your Honor will designate the time.

The Court: There is nothing before the [2442] Court.

Mr. Gillen: I request the opportunity to take it up at some other time in the absence of the jury.

The Court: The request is denied. Whenever a matter comes up before the Court on an objection and the Court deems that the question is of such a nature that the Court has a limited knowledge of the law and feels it is necessary to have argument, I will be glad to hear it, but when I do not feel that way about an objection, I am not going to take the time and send the jury out.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Mr. Gillen: I am not asking about the objection. I am asking the opportunity to take it up at some recess——

The Court: There is nothing before the Court. Every objection that has been made in the course of this trial has been ruled upon.

Mr. Gillen: I am not talking about the objection. I am asking an opportunity to present a matter your Honor does not know what it is.

The Court: Then I am not going to grant it.

Mr. Gillen: Without knowing what I wish to present?

The Court: Of course not. I am not going to sit and listen to some matter that I don't know if it refers to this case or not.

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor will never know until I present it. [2443]

The Court: I will try to get along without the information.

Q. Mr. Weaver, having complied to that practice and then arriving at the taxable income, do you also take into consideration and give effect to receipts of a nature which are not taxable? A. Yes.

Q. Those would be receipts of what nature?

A. For example, they might be gifts or inheritances, which would tend to increase the net worth at the end of one period but should not be taken into account because they are not taxable. They should be eliminated. Also under the tax law itself, certain capital gains are taxable only to a certain extent and the portion of those gains which are not taxable should be eliminated.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. And it is a part of the practice to eliminate those in arriving at what portion of the income is taxable net income, is that correct? A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: You may recross-examine.

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Q. Mr. Weaver, do you still have before you the check for 65 thousand dollars and the check for $16,005.50, concerning which you were questioned by Mr. Campbell? A. Yes, I have. [2444]

Q. I call to your attention first, Mr. Weaver, the notation on Exhibit 115, which is the 65 thousand dollar check to Mr. Kyne, and you note, do you not, that except for the signature everything inserted on the check form is in typewriting?

A. Yes, that's right.

Q. And there is also typed on the face of that check the statement, "Loan to Elmer Remmer," is that correct? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And this check with that notation on it was maintained in the office of the Menlo Club at the time you obtained the records of the Menlo Club, was it not?

A. Yes, but it was not reported on the books.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. The check itself was there, is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And the check was turned over to you when you requested the records? A. That is right.

Q. And at the time it was turned over this notation, "Loan to Elmer Remmer," was on the check?

A. Yes.

Q. And as an accountant, Mr. Weaver, is the notation on the check, "Loan to Elmer Remmer," of exactly the same significance that the identical notation in a book would have?

A. Not in view of the relationship of Mr. Remmer to the Menlo Club. [2445]

Q. If the Menlo Club had maintained a check register of this account and for this particular check had made an entry in the check register showing the date of the check, amount of 65 thousand dollars, and the notation, "Loan to Elmer Remmer," would that have had any further significance to you, as an accountant, than what is already on the check itself?

A. Making no assumptions, the two would have the same meaning.

Q. I call your attention to Exhibit 120, which is the check for $16,005.50, payable to William E. Kyne and endorsed Wm. E. Kyne, and there is a notation on that check, "Loan for Transit," is there not?

A. Yes, although it could not have been just for the purchase of the Transit Smoke Shoppe.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: Let me have the question and answer.

(Question and answer read.)

The Court: The answer should be yes or no. It should be stricken.

Mr. Avakian: The word "yes" was given.

The Court: All except the word "yes" will be stricken.

Q. Was that check likewise turned over to you by the representatives of the Menlo Club when you requested that they turn the records over to you or your representatives? A. Yes.

Q. And did you hear Mr. Kyne's testimony in this case that [2446] he cashed that check himself?

A. That's my recollection of his testimony, yes.

Q. In view of that, Mr. Weaver, do you now wish to change the answer that you gave a few minutes ago, to the effect that your examination of the records in this business did not show any withdrawals of money from the Menlo Club by any of the partners other than Mr. Remmer, Mr. Maundrell and Mr. Nelson, aside from income tax payments?

A. No, because Mr. Kyne stated that these monies were turned over to Mr. Remmer.

Q. Well, to correct your impression on that, do you not recall that Mr. Kyne testified that when he cashed this check he put the money in box No. 48, in which both he and Mr. Remmer had joint access? Do you recall that testimony?

A. I wouldn't recall his testimony without referring to the record.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Now in answer to Mr. Campbell's question as to whether you were shown any books for the Menlo Club for the year 1945, you stated that you were not. Were you referring then to the card room portion of the business only?

A. That is right.

Q. You were shown books of the Menlo Club for the year 1945 with respect to the bar business, were you not? A. Yes.

Q. And likewise with respect to the restaurant operation? [2447] A. Yes.

Q. Now in connection with the lack of a book for the card room operation of the Menlo Club for the year 1945, I call your attention to Exhibit 89, which is the partnership return of income of the Menlo Club for the year 1945, and I will ask you if you examined that return in the course of your investigation in this case? A. Yes.

Q. And at the time you examined it, did you notice the statement attached to it in the form of a letter dated May 10, 1946, to the Collector of Internal Revenue, which is a part of this exhibit and which I am now showing to you? A. Yes.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I would like to read that letter at this time.

Mr. Campbell: I believe that has been read twice.

Mr. Avakian: Well, I don't know, it may have been read a long time ago, but it is pretty pertinent on this particular matter.

The Court: I think it has been read.

Mr. Avakian: It is not a long letter.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: Well, we will not read it again.

Q. Mr. Weaver, in connection with your examination of this matter and in connection with the letter attached to the return to which I have just called your attention, did you, [2448] or any of your staff on this case discuss with Mr. Maundrell the matter of the inadvertent destruction by mistake of the poker sheets of the Menlo Club for the year 1945?

Mr. Campbell: I object to the question in that form.

The Court: He can answer yes or no.

A. I can't answer it yes or no.

Mr. Campbell: The basis of my objection goes to this, it attempts to characterize what the conversation was, not whether there was a conversation.

Mr. Avakian: Let me reframe it, your Honor.

Q. Did you, or any of your representatives, discuss with Mr. Maundrell the letter to the Collector of Internal Revenue dated May 10, 1946, which is attached to the Menlo Club 1945 return?

A. I can't answer that yes or no either.

Q. You mean you do not remember?

A. We had a discusion. I do not remember whether it was with Mr. Maundrell or with some one else.

Q. Would it have been either Mr. Maundrell or Mr. Ayton?

A. Well, it may have been Mr. Kyne or someone connected with the club.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. You did discuss it with some one connected with the Menlo Club? A. Yes.

Q. Did you personally discuss it with whoever that representative [2449] was?

A. No, I do not believe I did.

Q. One of the other members of your staff?

A. One of the other members.

Q. Did you hear Mr. Maundrell's testimony in this case to the effect that in remodeling of the offices at 50-52 Mason Street, a number of boxes of old and moldy papers were thrown out by the doorman and that inadvertently the box containing the poker sheets was thrown out with them?

A. I do not recall that testimony. That was the substance of discussions I recall.

Q. You do not recall Mr. Maundrell's testimony in this case about that matter?

A. No, and it does not comply with what I——

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment—you have answered the question.

Q. And it is a fact, Mr. Weaver, is it not, that as a part of the return of the Menlo Club for the year 1945 there was contained a statement that because of the inadvertent destruction of the Menlo Club poker sheets for the year 1945, the income of the card room had been calculated on the basis of the records which were still in existence for the same eight months of the year 1944?

Mr. Campbell: I think the record so states.

The Court: I think so. [2450]

Mr. Avakian: Well, as long as Mr. Campbell agrees it does so state.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: Well, it does, whether Mr. Campbell agrees or not.

Mr. Avakian: Well, I just wanted not to leave the jury confused on this point, your Honor.

The Court: Proceed.

Q. Now you stated that the books of the Menlo Club did not contain any records of assets and liabilities other than records relating to the Schriber account and the capital accounts. Do you recall that statement this morning?

A. Yes, I believe that was what I said.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, isn't it true that the customary method of single-entry accounting does not call for the maintenance of such records?

A. It calls for the maintenance of records of persons other than owners, none of which are contained here.

Q. I am not sure that I understand your answer. You mean that single-entry accounting calls for the maintenance of records as to asset and liability transactions with persons other than the owners?

A. Yes, that's right.

Q. Now do you know, from the evidence in this case, whether there were any asset or liability transactions of the Menlo Club with persons other than the owners, aside from Gene [2451] Schriber?

A. No, I don't except you said there were yesterday.

Q. The books of the Menlo Club which are in evidence here for the year 1946 and the books relating to the bar and restaurant operation for the year 1945, are kept on an accounting method that is commonly referred to as single entry, aside from the fact that in addition certain liability accounts are kept; isn't that true?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. Well, if you want to say they are incomplete single-entry books, yes. A more accurate description would be simply a record of cash receipts and disbursements.

Q. Let me ask you first, the form of the books is the single-entry form; isn't that correct?

A. I don't see how it can be single-entry form if it is not single-entry system.

Q. Well, let me show you—do you have one of them before you? I will show you Exhibit 127, which is the book relating to the restaurant operation for the year 1946. First of all I call your attention to the fact that the book contains in it printed instructions, apparently prepared by the publisher of the book; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And the pages themselves are already blocked out in various amounts with printed designations of various categories for each column; isn't that correct? [2452]

A. Yes. In some places the column headings have been changed or others added.

Q. But the printed form itself contains printed column headings? A. Yes.

Q. And you note at the top of each page printed, "The Ideal System," U. S. Patent Office, is on there? A. Yes.

Q. And in the course of your experience as an

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

accountant, you have found other taxpayers who have used this same form of book, have you not?

A. In small businesses, yes.

Q. Now insofar as the form of this book, as set up by the manufacturer or publisher is concerned, and disregarding for the moment the entries made in it, but insofar as the form as brought out by the publisher is concerned, is that a single-entry system?

A. I would still characterize——

Mr. Campbell: Just a moment—I will stipulate, Mr. Avakian, that the Ideal Printing Company prints a set of forms, designed for single-entry bookkeeping system.

Mr. Avakian: And will you also stipulate the books here are in that category?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, are at least a part of the forms that they print for that type of particular system. [2453]

Mr. Avakian: Will you also stipulate that that would be Mr. Weaver's testimony as an accountant?

Mr. Campbell: I don't know what his testimony would be. I can't stipulate to that; I only stipulate to the fact.

Mr. Avakian: I will accept it. I can understand your uncertainty.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, when you state that the books maintained by the Menlo Club were incomplete single-entry system, will you explain to me, by referring to Exhibit 127, what substantially you have in mind as to the incompleteness of the record?

A. Well, for example, we note that there is one bank which was not entered on the books at all.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

There is no record of cash in safe, cash in safety deposit boxes; there is no record of any assets or liabilities by way of amounts receivable or payable to other persons other than the alleged partners, and even the transactions with the alleged partners were not completely entered. For example, this 64 thousand dollars, which is marked "Loan to Elmer Remmer," I did not find in Mr. Remmer's account, either in capital account or in loan account, nor is there any record to show whether or not any of that amount has been repaid at any time.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, insofar as the preparation of an income tax return on the forms prescribed by the Treasury Department is concerned, does it matter, from an accounting point of view, whether you know that Mr. Remmer took 65 thousand dollars out [2454] of the bank as a loan or not?

Mr. Campbell: If the Court please, that is objected to as going right to the very matter which the jury is here to determine.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Well, your Honor, I am trying to cross-examine——

The Court (Interceding): The objection has been sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Could I be heard on it, your Honor?

The Court: No.

Q. Is it not true, Mr. Weaver, that the income tax form prescribed by the United States Treasury Department and in effect for the years 1944, 1945

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

and 1946, calls, from an accounting point of view, for computation of net income on the basis of receipts and disbursements rather than on net worth basis?

A. No. It calls for the computation of income on the basis of receipts and expenses. Not all disbursements are expenses.

Q. I will modify my question.

A. And, of course, not all receipts are taxable income, either.

Q. But it doesn't call for net worth method?

A. Not if the records are properly kept.

Q. There is no place on the form for net worth method? A. No.

The Court: We will take a recess for five [2455] minutes.

(Jury and alternate jurors admonished and recess taken at 11 o'clock.)

11:10 A.M.

(Defendant present with counsel.)

(Presence of the jury and alternate jurors stipulated.)

MR. WEAVER

resumes the witness stand on further

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Q. You stated, Mr. Weaver, that in your investigation you found no record of the amount of cash

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

kept in the safes or safe deposit boxes at any time during the course of the investigation. Did I understand you correctly in that respect?

A. Yes, other than such portions as may have been designated bank roll.

Q. Now, Mr. Weaver, in your experience and training as an accountant, as a Revenue agent, from your understanding of accounting principles and Treasury regulations, can you refer me to any provision in law or in the regulations which requires that anybody keep a record of the amount of money that he may have in cash, either in safe or safe deposit boxes or in a vault or his wife's purse or anywhere else?

Mr. Campbell: I object to the question in that form as being incompetent.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Mr. Campbell called to your attention this morning the fact that one of the partners in the Menlo Club, Mr. Ditto, had [2456] withdrawn at the end of 1945, and he asked you if you had found any evidence in the record that Mr. Ditto had withdrawn any money and your answer that you had not; is that correct? A. That is not correct.

Q. Will you give me the correct answer?

A. According to my recollection he said, "were there any amounts charged against Mr. Ditto's account other than the amounts paid on account of taxes."

Q. And your answer was that you had found

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

nothing aside from amounts paid for taxes; is that right? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Do you recall the following testimony given in this case by Mr. Maundrell on December 28th at page 1468 of the transcript:

"Q. Mr. Maundrell, did you ever see an agreement, wherein Mr. Ditto acknowledged—the agreement was signed by Mr. Ditto and Mr. Remmer—Mr. Ditto acknowledged that he received from his interest at the time he withdrew from the partnership of the Menlo Club 14 thousand odd dollars?"

Mr. Campbell objected.

"The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

"A. Yes, sir."

Do you recall that testimony? [2457]

Mr. Campbell: I will stipulate that that was the testimony in the record.

Mr. Avakian: That is very generous.

Q. Do you recall that?

The Court: Pardon me, Mr. Avakian—let us avoid these remarks. Don't enter into argument over small matters.

Q. When you gave your answer to Mr. Campbell, did you have that testimony of Mr. Maundrell's in mind?

A. I had in mind Mr. Maundrell's testimony that there is no entry in the books of anything to Mr. Ditto and the thought also the books before me showed no such payment.

Mr. Avakian: May I have the question read so

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

the witness may answer? I move to strike the answer as not responsive.

The Court: We will have the question and answer read.

(Question and answer read.)

The Court: The answer may stand.

Q. Can you tell me, Mr. Weaver, when you answered Mr. Campbell's question this morning, if you had in mind the testimony of Mr. Maundrell which I just read to you from page 1468?

A. Not the part that you have just read, no.

Q. Now in answering Mr. Campbell's questions this morning, as an explanation of the net worth method of determining income you stated the net worth method attempts to determine [2458] what the person owns at one date and to compare it with what he owns at another date and from the difference, being what he owes at those two dates, after making allowance for federal income tax and living expenses, to determine the amount of his net income or loss during the period, and on further questions from Mr. Campbell you stated you should also give effect to non-taxable receipts, which you enumerated as gifts, inheritances, and the nontaxable portion of capital gains. Is it not true, Mr. Weaver, that in determining net income on net worth method, you should also eliminate any money which the taxpayer has borrowed during the period that is covered by your net worth computation, which he has not repaid at the end?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

A. I believe that is covered in my statement. I didn't intend that statement to be a technical explanation of the net worth method. I tried to make it as simple as I possibly could. When I refer to the person's net, I mean his net worth at one period as compared with his net worth at another period, and in determining net worth I would include the cost of the assets which he owned, less the face value of the liabilities owed.

Q. In making a net income computation on the net worth method, you should take in account somewhere in your computation money borrowed by him during the period covered by the computation which he has not repaid at the end of the period?

A. Yes, assuming that corresponding liabilities and [2459] corresponding assets giving rise to the liability, are also computed in their net worth statement. Those statements should be consistent.

Q. Let us see if we can get this in simple terms. If you were making a net worth computation of me, for example, for the year 1941, and if during the year 1951 I had gone to the bank and borrowed a thousand dollars and at the end of 1951 I had not yet repaid that, you would show that as a liability at the end of 1951 in computing my net worth at that time, would you not?

A. Yes, if I also showed as an asset the thousand dollars that you borrowed or whatever asset into which you may have converted that one thousand dollars, because if I did not include the asset, then it would be incorrect to include the liability.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Let us suppose I used the thousand dollars to pay the salary of my legal secretary in my office, you would still show the thousand dollars as a liability at the end, would you not?

A. No, then it would depend on whether or not you were on a cash or accrual basis.

Q. Let us suppose I were on the cash basis.

A. Will you read the question?

(Question read.)

A. If one thousand had been borrowed from the bank, yes.

Q. And in that instance there would be no corresponding asset [2460] relative to that one thousand dollars, in view of the fact that I had spent the money for salary of my secretary?

A. That was an asset at the time the liability originated.

Q. But as at the end of 1951, when you were computing my net worth, there would be no asset in my net worth statement at that time relating to the loan at the bank of one thousand dollars?

A. Not if it was paid out, no.

Q. If you were computing my income for 1951 on the net worth method, and if at the beginning of 1951 Mr. "X" owed me a thousand dollars, you would show that thousand dollars in my assets at the beginning of the year, would you not?

A. Yes, unless the asset arose from a transaction relating to any income, in which case on cash basis it would be incorrect to include the asset.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Let us suppose Mr. "X" is just a friend, I have no business with him, and in 1950 I borrowed a thousand dollars, which I still owed at the beginning of 1951?

A. This is the reverse, I believe——

Q. Let me reframe the question. In 1950 I had loaned money to Mr. "X," with whom I had no business transaction, and he still owed that money to me at the begining of 1951, you would show that thousand dollars as an asset owing me at the beginning of 1951, would you not?

A. Yes. [2461]

Q. And then if Mr. "X" repaid me that money during 1951, you would then eliminate that from my assets at the end of 1951, would you not?

A. Yes.

Q. And is this a fair statement of the effect of those two loan transactions that I have mentioned to you, Mr. Weaver, that, if at the beginning of the period involved, in net worth computation, Mr. "X" owed me money which he paid to me during the year 1951, the amount of that payment would have the effect of decreasing my net income computed for the year on net worth method?

A. No, it depends on what happens to the repayment. If the amount repaid remained on hand at the end of the year in cash, it would have no effect, merely a substitution of cash asset. If during the year you took that cash and converted to some other asset, it still would have no effect, unless in the possible conversion you had suffered some loss or had some gain.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. I do not think I made my question clear. I will rephrase it. In computing my income for the year 1951 on net worth method, the amount of net income which you compute would be one thousand dollars less if you included Mr. "X's" obligations to me at the beginning of the year than it would be if you had not included Mr. "X's" obligation to me as an asset at the beginning of the [2462] year?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Let me have the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. You mean all things remaining equal?

Q. That is right. A. Yes.

Q. And similarly, as to the end of the year, the example where I had borrowed money during the year 1951, which I still owed at the end of the year, the inclusion of that thousand dollar liability of mine for that loan at the end of the year would reduce by one thousand dollars the amount of the net worth income computation, in comparison with what it would have been if you did not include that thousand dollar liability, isn't that true, again assuming that all things being equal?

A. I am simply trying to say that if the net worth in the period is understated and the net worth at the end of the period is overstated, you can't arrive at the correct net income computation.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. Are you able to give an answer?

A. The complex way in which you state it somewhat confuses me because I do not know whether you are taking things equal——

Mr. Avakian: Very well, let me restate it. [2463]

Q. What I am getting at is this, Mr. Weaver—it is true, is it not, that in order to make a correct, complete and accurate computation of net income on net worth method, it is necessary to take into account money which other people owe the taxpayer at the beginning of the period, and also money which the taxpayer owes to other people at the end of the period?

A. So far as it arises as the result of the receipt of income or the incurrence of expenses, which are not properly taken into account on cash basis.

Q. With that qualification, your answer would be yes? A. Yes, that's right.

Mr. Avakian: That's all.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Counsel has read from the record here, page 1486, question propounded to Mr. Maundrell and the answer, and I also wish to refer to the record at this time and read a few questions propounded to and answered by Mr. Maundrell, relative to the same subject matter to which counsel directed the attention of the witness.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

The Court: Do you mean you just propose to read it?

Mr. Campbell: I am going to ask the witness a question concerning it.

The Court: Oh.

Q. Mr. Avakian asked you, Mr. Weaver, if you had in mind at [2464] the time you gave your answer relative to payments made to Mr. Ditto the following question asked Mr. Maundrell and the following answer, page 1468 of the record. Question by Mr. Gillen:

"Q. Mr. Maundrell, did you ever see an agreement, wherein Mr. Ditto acknowledged—the agreement was signed by Mr. Ditto and Mr. Remmer—Mr. Ditto acknowledged that he received from his interest at the time he withdrew from the partnership of the Menlo Club 14 thousand odd dollars?

"A. Yes, sir."

I will ask you if, in giving your answer, you had in mind also the redirect examination of Mr. Maundrell——

Mr. Gillen: I do not think Mr. Weaver said he had that in mind. My recollection is he did not have that in mind, that testimony of Mr. Maundrell, when he gave his answer to Mr. Campbell's question.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to ask him if he had in mind this morning the following testimony, page 1472:

"Q. In response to counsel's questions, you said you had seen some kind of agreement between Mr. Remmer and Mr. Ditto? A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

"Q. When did you see that?

"A. Last night. [2465]

"Q. Where did you see that?

"A. Mr. Gillen's apartment.

"Q. Had you ever seen it prior to that time?

"A. No, sir.

"Q. Did you ever have any knowledge with reference to it prior to that time? A. No, sir.

"Q. Do you know, of your own knowledge, whether any 14 thousand dollars was paid to Mr. Ditto? A. No, sir.

"Q. Did you ever talk to Mr. Ditto about any such agreement? A. No, sir."

Did you have that testimony in mind at the time of your answer?

A. I had Mr. Maundrell's complete testimony in mind, rather than the part that Mr. Avakian read.

Mr. Campbell: That's all.

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Q. Mr. Weaver, do you have before you the book of the Menlo Club that shows Mr. Ditto's capital account? A. Yes.

Q. What is that exhibit number? A. 125.

Q. And does that show the amount of Mr. Ditto's capital [2466] account at the time he withdrew from the partnership at the end of 1945?

A. It shows net total during 1945. It shows balance 1945, which I assume is December 31st—it doesn't so state—and in the balance column there is an amount entered, which from the nature of the succeeding entries appears to be a credit balance on that date.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ray Weaver.)

Q. What is the amount of it?

A. $14,583.90.

Q. And from your examination of the records and of the Menlo Club partnership tax returns for the years 1945 and 1946, you do know, do you not, that at the time of Mr. Ditto's withdrawal, that is, at the end of 1945, Mr. Remmer's percentage in that partnership increased from 40 per cent to 55 per cent?

A. I know it increased. There is nothing on the books to indicate any payment for any increase.

Q. I call your attention to prosecution's Exhibit 89, which is the Menlo Club return for the year 1945, and Exhibit 90, which is Menlo Club partnership return for the year 1946, and direct your attention to Schedule I of each return, and ask you whether those returns show that for the year 1945 Mr. Remmer's percentage interest was 40 per cent and for the year 1946 his percentage interest was 55 per cent?

A. That is what the returns state, yes.

Mr. Avakian: No further questions.

The Court: Any further questions? [2467]

Mr. Campbell: Just a moment. That's all.

The Court: You are excused, but please remain available until excused by both parties.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, he will be available.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Thompson: We have a stipulation, your Honor, of the testimony of a witness. I would like to read into the record, your Honor, the stipulation relating to testimony of Dorothy A. Remmer.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Thompson: It is stipulated that if Dorothy A. Remmer should appear, be sworn and testify as a witness in the above case (refers to the case now on trial), she would testify in substance as follows: That she resides at 634 Grand Avenue, Oakland, California——

The Court: Just a moment before you proceed with this stipulation. Is there any question of privilege?

Mr. Thompson: This is the defendant's sister, your Honor.

That she resides at 634 Grand Avenue, Oakland, California; that she is a sister of the defendant, Elmer F. Remmer; that her name appears, or appeared, on public records as the owner in joint tenancy with Mrs. Helen L. Remmer, the wife of Elmer F. Remmer, of certain real property located in Contra Costa County, California; that Dorothy A. Remmer never had any beneficial interest in any of said real property located in [2468] Contra Costa County, California; that Dorothy A. Remmer did not furnish any of the money used to purchase said real property or pay any part of any loans, the proceeds of which were used to purchase said property; that Dorothy A. Remmer did not make any loans to Helen L. Remmer or Elmer F. Remmer; that Dorothy A. Remmer never had, and does not now have, in her possession or in her name, individually or jointly, any other property that belongs to Mrs. Helen L. Remmer or Elmer F. Remmer; that when the real property in Contra Costa County, California, which was sold by Helen L. Remmer and Dorothy A. Remmer was sold, it was sold after December 31, 1946, and Dorothy A. Remmer did not receive any part of the proceeds of said sale or sales.

Mr. Golden: So stipulated.

Mr. Campbell: Now the defense has asked that Mr. Schriber be recalled for further cross-examination.

Mr. Golden: Is it the Court's pleasure that we call him now?

The Court: If counsel wants to call him; I have no preference.

Mr. Thompson: We have an exhibit we would like to have marked and counsel would have an opportunity to examine it over the noon recess.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Thompson: I have two documents, the first of which [2469] I would like to have marked Exhibit 109A, inasmuch as that refers to that same exhibit and may be more easily handled if it is marked in that series. A similar photostatic document, which we would like to have marked Exhibit 109B. At this time, your Honor, we offer in evidence Exhibits 109A and 109B and would like to have counsel have the opportunity to examine them during the recess.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Avakian: May we withdraw them from the clerk's possession during the recess?

The Court: Any objection to withdrawing them?

Mr. Thompson: No objection.

The Court: They may be withdrawn during the noon recess.

GENE SCHRIBER

having been previously sworn, was recalled and testified as follows on

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Mr. Gillen: So the record may be clear, may it please the Court, Mr. Schriber was called some weeks ago as a witness by the prosecution. He was examined and cross-examined. With the Court's permission, we were to have an opportunity to recall him for further cross-examination. He is already under oath. He is now here for further cross-examination by the defense.

The Court: Very well. You may proceed.

Q. Mr. Schriber, I will hand you here two-page typewritten [2470] document, defendant's "Z" for identification. I will ask you to look at it and examine it, look particularly at the second page, the purported signatures. Have you done so, sir?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recognize the signatures on the second page of that document? A. Yes.

Q. Whose signatures are they?

A. Elmer Remmer and myself, Gene Schriber.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Gene Schriber.)

Mr. Gillen: I will offer this exhibit as defendant's Exhibit "Z" in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: To which we object on the grounds that the document purports to be a summary of some kind made in 1949, purporting to be a recitation of certain facts which are signed with the name Gene Schriber and that of Elmer L. Remmer, agreeing as to facts. Now that is not the proper method of getting facts before the Court.

The Court: Let me see the exhibit.

Mr. Gillen: It is a statement against the interest of the defendant in this case.

(Laugh indicated.)

Mr. Gillen: I don't see what is so amusing about that.

The Court: We do not want any demonstrations at all. There should be no demonstrations here whatever.

Mr. Campbell: It is matter for testimony, if the Court [2471] please, not for memorial. Further, it is not the best evidence.

Mr. Gillen: I do not know what counsel means, not the best evidence, bearing the signature of the two parties involved.

The Court: The objection is sustained. We will take our recess at this time.

resumes the witness stand on further

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Mr. Gillen: Perhaps it would be more practical, your Honor to discuss the matter of these exhibits after we finish with Mr. Schriber.

The Court: Very well.

Q. Mr. Schriber, you testified here some weeks ago as a witness for the government, and you were cross-examined. You remember the occasion, do you not? A. Yes.

Q. And without consuming the time to repeat your testimony, but just preliminarily a resume of your testimony to bring out our thoughts of the subject matter, you recall testifying, do [2472] you not, that Mr. Remmer in 1945 purchased from you the three units comprising the Menlo properties, called the Menlo Club card room, restaurant and bar? A. That is correct.

Q. And that the agreed price was 175 thousand dollars? A. That is right.

Q. And there were executed in your behalf by Mr. Remmer certain promissory notes, covering the agreed price, and a down payment of 25 thousand dollars upon execution of those notes and agreement; is that true? A. That is correct.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Gene Schriber.)

Q. And then there were other subsidiary things, such as lease on the premises, which was guaranteed by Mr. Remmer, and so forth; do you recall that?

A. That is right.

Q. And then you recall testifying, do you not, that the initial payment of 25 thousand dollars was in the form of cash, which subsequently, at the request of Mr. Remmer, was returned by you and in lieu thereof you took a check for 25 thousand dollars signed by Mr. Maundrell, who was then keeping books for the Menlo Club?

A. That's right.

Q. Now did you and Mr. Remmer, at any time subsequent to the return of the 25 thousand dollars in cash by you to Mr. Remmer and the taking by you in lieu thereof a check for 25 thousand [2473] dollars, representing first payment on that agreement for the purchase of the Menlo properties, at any time subsequent thereto was there entered into between you and Mr. Remmer an agreement and statement of the status of the transaction? Do you understand my question?

A. Yes, I understand. Yes, we talked about it, but the statement was not prepared and signed until later.

Q. Then your answer is that there was subsequently a written statement of the status of the transaction between you and Mr. Remmer; that is,

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Gene Schriber.)

history of the payments and the then status of the transaction, signed by both of you?

A. A period afterward, that is correct.

Q. Now, Mr. Schriber, I will ask you to look at defendant's Exhibit "Z" for identification again, the document I showed you this morning, the signatures on which you have already identified as those of yourself and Mr. Remmer. Now I ask you if that is the agreement and statement executed by and between you and Mr. Remmer, relating the history of the transaction and its then status?

A. That's right.

Mr. Gillen: Now again I offer this document as defendant's Exhibit "Z" in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: To which we make the same objection as heretofore; not the best evidence and purports merely to be a memorial of testimony which has been offered in evidence here. [2474]

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. All right, let me ask you this: Did you at any time subsequent to the execution of the original agreement of sale to Mr. Remmer of the Menlo properties, and subsequent to the time that you returned the 25 thousand dollars cash to Mr. Remmer and took in lieu thereof a 25 thousand dollar check as first payment under the agreement, relate the circumstances of returning the 25 thousand dollars cash and taking a check to Mr. Weaver of the Internal Revenue Department?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial and incompetent, if the Court please, hearsay.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Gene Schriber.)

The Court: You may answer the question yes or no.

A. Yes.

Q. And did you relate that to him in connection with an inquiry by Mr. Weaver into your own personal income tax affairs? A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Objection sustained. The answer will go out.

Q. Was there anybody else present when you related the circumstances of the return of the 25 thousand dollars cash to Mr. Weaver and the taking of 25 thousand dollar check signed by Mr. Maundrell in lieu thereof?

Mr. Campbell: That is objected to, if the Court please. It is incompetent, immaterial, and the question purports to state conversation which is incompetent and immaterial. [2475]

Mr. Gillen: May I correct my question. I am told I used the name of Weaver instead of Remmer. I should have said returned the 25 thousand dollars cash to Mr. Remmer and took a check for 25 thousand dollars in lieu thereof.

Mr. Campbell: We make the same objection.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: May I point out your Honor permitted him to answer he did have a conversation with Mr. Weaver, permitted him to answer that question? This is merely a question asking whether anybody else was present when he did have that conversation with Mr. Weaver.

(Testimony of Gene Schriber.)

The Court: Well, you can answer the question.

Mr. Campbell: This is characterization of the conversation and proposes to put forth the subject matter.

The Court: The question is merely as to who was present.

Mr. Gillen: That is all, your Honor.

The Court: You may answer.

A. Mr. Morgan, Mr. Weaver, and some other gentleman; I don't remember the other man's name.

Q. Mr. Morgan is the gentleman who sits in the court room and is also connected with the Internal Revenue Department? A. That is right.

Q. Now can you fix the time that you had that conversation with Mr. Weaver and Mr. Morgan?

A. No, I can't fix the time exactly. It was sometime in the [2476] latter part of 1946.

Q. The latter part of the year 1946?

A. Yes.

Q. And can you fix the place where that conversation took place?

A. 714 New Montgomery Street, I think is the address.

Q. That is the office, or one of the offices, of the Internal Revenue Department?

A. That's right.

Q. Now, Mr. Schriber, in the year 1949, or at any later time, did you show Mr. Weaver and Mr. Morgan, or any one of the other members of the Internal Revenue Department of San Francisco, this document which you have examined and which has been identified here as defendant's Exhibit "Z" for identification? A. No.

Mr. Gillen: Now, may it please the Court, I feel we have now laid the foundation for the admission of this as the best evidence in support of oral testimony, and ask that it be admitted as defendant's Exhibit "Z" in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: To which we object upon all the grounds heretofore stated.

The Court: Same ruling.

Mr. Gillen: I then respectfully ask the Court's permission to be heard on the matter out of the presence of the jury. [2477]

The Court: Very well, we will excuse the jury.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, the defense has no further questions of the witness Schriber.

Mr. Campbell: No further redirect.

The Court: Then Mr. Schriber may be finally excused?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

A. Yes.

The Court: I understand there is an offer of Exhibits 109A and 109B.

Mr. Campbell: It has been stipulated that those exhibits, consisting of the present documents, may be admitted into evidence.

Mr. Gillen: So stipulated.

Mr. Campbell: First, your Honor, please, as I earlier informed the Court, the government has one witness, after whose testimony it intends to rest. Prior to putting that witness on the stand, it is necessary certain computations be made and I therefore request an early recess, in order that that may be done and his testimony taken Monday morning. [2478]

The Court: Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, I want you to know that counsel on either side and the Court are not at all desirous of wasting any of your time, but I really believe the end of the case would be expedited if we adjourned at this time until Monday morning. So we will be in recess until Monday morning. Monday is calendar day, so this case will be in recess until 11:00 o'clock.

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. Augustus V. Brady.

Q. Mr. Brady, what is your present official position?

A. I am technical advisor of the Penal Division, Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Q. How long has that been your position?

A. About 5 years, 5 years the first of May.

Q. Prior to that were you connected with the government in any capacity? A. Yes, I was.

Q. In what capacity?

A. I was Internal Revenue Agent for around 22 years prior to that time.

Q. As Internal Revenue Agent, to what office or offices were you attached?

A. Well, I was attached to the Internal Agent in charge of San Francisco, Honolulu, Denver, New York and Washington, D. C.

Q. At various times during your 22 years as an Internal [2480] Revenue Agent; is that correct?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And your position as technical advisor to the Penal Division of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, to what office or offices have you been attached?

A. Just to the San Francisco office.

Q. Now, Mr. Brady, in connection with your duties as an Internal Revenue agent, prior to your connection with the Penal Division as technical advisor, did you have an occasion to meet the defendant, Elmer Remmer? A. Yes, I did.

Q. In that connection, I am going to call your attention to plaintiff's Exhibits 11 and 12, being individual income tax returns of Elmer F. Remmer and his wife, Helen L. Remmer, respectively, for the year 1934, and I will call your specific attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 11 and the signature appearing thereon as the officer before whom this return was sworn to, A. V. Brady, and ask you if that is your signature? A. Yes, sir; it is.

Q. I will ask you whether or not you were present at the time the signature, Elmer F. Remmer, was atached thereto? A. Yes, I was.

Q. Who placed that signature hereon?

A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. That is the defendant here? [2481]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And calling your attention to the body of the document and the pen and ink written words and figures, I will ask you whose writing that is?

A. That is my writing, Mr. Campbell.

Q. And I call your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 12, first to the writing appearing in the body of the return of Helen L. Remmer, and ask whose writing appears thereon?

A. That is my writing, Mr. Campbell.

Q. Were you present at the time that that return was signed? A. No, sir; I was not.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that the acknowledgment of the signature is before one Mattie G. Sterling, a notary public in and for the City and County of San Francisco. Were you present at the time the acknowledgment of the notary public was placed thereon? A. No, I was not.

Q. Now, Mr. Brady, where was it that these returns were prepared?

A. Prepared in the Bank Club in Reno.

Q. And do you recall the date upon which they were prepared?

A. Mr. Campbell, I have a report at the time I secured those delinquent returns and if I could use that to refresh my recollection I think it would help me.

Q. So you have that with you? [2482]

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Will you produce it? You have handed me a document consisting of some five pages; is that the report to which you refer? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: May this be marked for identification as government's Exhibit 182 for identification?

Q. Now, Mr. Brady, I hand you back 182 for identification and ask you if you will refresh your recollection, and having refreshed your recollection, state upon what date it was that these returns were filled out by you?

A. Mr. Campbell, the report here is dated——

Q. Never mind that—state the date, if you will.

A. Well, possibly a couple of days ahead of this report.

Q. Would an examination of the returns assist you? A. Yes. May 3rd.

Q. Of what year? A. 1937.

Q. You stated that these returns were prepared at the Bank Club in Reno? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the occasion of your being there at that time?

A. Well, I had just finished checking the books of the corporation in which Mr. Remmer owns some stock.

Q. What corporation was that? [2483]

A. Cal-Neva Lodge, Inc.

Q. Yes?

A. And during the course of the examination of that corporation I found there were a substantial amount of dividends paid to the stockholders and I was anxious to see whether the stockholders reported the dividends as reflected on the books of the corporation.

Q. And for what year had those dividends been paid? A. For the year 1934.

Q. On the occasion of May 3, 1937, when you were in the Bank Club and this return was filled out, did you have a conversation with Mr. Remmer?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

Answer that yes or no. A. Yes, sir; I did.

Q. Who, if anyone, beside yourself and Mr. Remmer were present on that occasion?

A. May I relate how I met Mr. Remmer?

Q. No, just if you will answer the question. Who, if anyone else, was present, if anyone else was present during any part of the time?

A. Mr. William Graham was present; I believe also Mr. James McKay.

Q. Did they remain throughout the conversation? A. No, sir; they did not.

Q. Had you met Mr. Remmer prior to that occasion? A. Not to my recollection. [2484]

Q. Who, if any one, introduced you to him on that occasion?

A. Mr. McKay and Mr. Graham both, I believe.

Q. Now will you state the conversation which you had with Mr. Remmer on May 3, 1937?

The Court: I think we had better hear that conversation in the absence of the jury first.

(Jury and alternate jurors admonished and excused at 11:15 a.m.)

(In the absence of the jury.)

The Court: The thought I have, it has been my practice whenever a conversation with a defendant or statement of a defendant has been related, I like to hear it in the absence of the jury. I have no idea what it is, but we will see what it is first.

Q. Mr. Brady, will you relate then the conversation which you had at that time?

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

A. Mr. Campbell, this is some 15 years ago.

Q. You may refresh your recollection examining that document. Just relate, if you will, the conversation.

Mr. Golden: By that document, you refer to 182?

Mr. Campbell: For identification.

Q. Incidentally, in that connection, Mr. Brady, in the absence of the jury, is that a report which you made in your official capacity at the time concerning the facts which you are now about to relate? [2485] A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that was, of course, the type of report and report which was ordinarily and customarily made in situations of the kind where you obtained a return? A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right. Now will you proceed and relate the conversation?

A. Well, I came into the Bank Club and asked Mr. McKay and Mr. Graham if they could contact Mr. Remmer for me, in that I had some personal matter to take up with him and they, of course, knew I had just checked the Cal-Neva because I asked them to show me their returns to see whether they reported the dividends which the corporation paid in that year.

Q. If I may interrupt on that point—we are in the absence of the jury; if the Court permits you to relate the conversation, you are not permitted to relate your conversation with Mr. Graham and Mr. McKay outside the presence of the defendant,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

Mr. Remmer, so your answer will necessarily be confined in relating conversations during such times as the defendant, Mr. Remmer was present. You understand that? A. Oh, yes.

Q. All right.

A. I want to get this as correct as I can, Mr. Campbell.

Q. Yes, go ahead; proceed.

A. Well, I met Mr. Remmer through Mr. Graham and Mr. McKay [2486] and I told him that I had just checked the books of Cal-Neva Lodge and the books disclosed that he had received a dividend of some 17 thousand dollars. I wanted to know if he made a report——

Q. For what year?

A. For the year 1934. Now my recollection is Mr. Remmer said to me, he admitted that he received the dividend, however, and he said he lost the money gambling, therefore, he felt that he was not required to file a return, in that he had lost more than the amount he received. I explained to him that income from those sources, that is dividends, could not be used to offset gambling losses, even though the corporation was a gambling corporation, and I think Mr. Remmer understood it from that time on.

Q. Of course, that is your conclusion. It is what you told him?

A. Yes. And then I got the returns prepared and told him it would be necessary at that time to take a jurate himself and Mrs. Remmer, not being present, I asked him to have her return acknowledged before a notary public, which he did. They were delivered back to me a few days later. However, at that particular time, I did not pick up any taxes——

The Court (Interceding): Let me ask you, is that the sum and substance of your conversation with Mr. Remmer?

A. I would say so. [2487]

The Court: Are you planning to testify to any other conversations with him?

Mr. Campbell: There are one or two more particulars regarding this conversation which I wish to draw out, which he has not related yet.

The Court: I say planning—do you anticipate being called upon to relate any other conversations?

Mr. Campbell: No, there will not be any other conversation other than this particular one.

Q. You never had any other conversations other than that one relating to his tax matters?

A. Not relating to his tax matters.

Q. On that occasion was anything said regarding the delinquent penalty set forth on this return?

A. The fact I had the penalty on the return——

Q. Was anything said?

A. I am sure I explained to Mr. Remmer the reason for it, because in my report I mentioned I discussed the charges with him.

Mr. Avakian: It assumes in that respect he is drawing on his conclusion as to what he probably did.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

The Court: Well, I am not interested in those questions. I had other reasons for sending out the jury.

Q. Was anything said in the course of that conversation as to [2488] his financial situation as it existed at the time of your conversation?

A. He pleaded that for the past several years he had made nothing; as a matter of fact at that time he owed Messrs. Graham and McKay several thousand dollars. I have a notation here: "It was also noted on the books of Cal-Neva Lodge, Inc., that this taxpayer had received advances for several years."

Q. Did he tell you anything other than the fact he had not made any money, that he had no money available and that he was indebted to Mr. McKay and Mr. Graham? A. Yes.

Q. What else did he tell you?

A. He said he did not have money to pay the taxes when I picked up the delinquent returns.

Q. What was the amount of the delinquent returns?

A. $142.50, together with penalty, $35.60. Because otherwise I would have asked for——

Q. Don't reason what you would have done. What is it he said? Is that what he said?

A. To the best of my recollection.

Mr. Campbell: That covers the scope of the conversation.

The Court: We will call in the jury. We will go over the ground in the presence of the jury.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Now, Mr. Brady, will you relate the conversation which you had with Mr. Remmer on the 3rd of May, 1937, on the occasion of your preparing these delinquent 1934 returns of Mr. Remmer and his wife?

A. That refreshes my memory that referring to the report that I prepared at the time, dated May 17, 1937. I was introduced to Mr. Remmer by Mr. Graham and Mr. McKay and I told him that I had just made an examination of the books and records of the Cal-Neva Lodge, Inc., in which he was one of the stockholders, and found that——

Mr. Gillen: That would be hearsay.

Mr. Campbell: No, he is relating the conversation had with Mr. Remmer.

Mr. Gillen: I am sorry, I misunderstood.

A. Mr. Gillen, I said Mr. McKay and Mr. Graham introduced me to Mr. Remmer.

Mr. Gillen: I am sorry, I misunderstood.

Q. Just proceed.

A. I told him I checked the books of the corporation and found there was a substantial dividend paid in 1934 and I wanted to know whether he made a record of it on his return and I believe he told me at the time, to the best of my recollection, that [2490] he did not file a return because he did not make sufficient income. He admitted receiving this dividend but said he lost that and more in gambling and that was the reason he did not think he was required to file a return. I explained to Mr. Remmer at the time that income from this source, that is, dividends from a corporation, even though the corporation was a gambling corporation, may not be offset by gambling losses, therefore, a return was required, which I secured; and there is one other thing, I picked up this 1934 return in 1937 and I asked Mr. Remmer, I said, "How about 1935 and 1936, they would also be delinquent now," and he told me he had made no money for those years, he had lost it gambling.

Q. Do you recall anything else that was said on that occasion?

A. Only that I explained the necessity in view of a 25 per cent delinquent penalty.

Q. I call your attention on the returns they set forth 25 per cent delinquent penalty, was that put on prior to the signing of these returns by Mr. Remmer and his wife? A. Yes.

Q. Now at the time Mr. Remmer signed this return, was any money paid on account of the taxes, do you know? A. No, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

Q. Did you have any conversation with Mr. Remmer relative to that?

A. To the best of my recollection now I asked for the tax and [2491] penalty. As I told him, it was the procedure to collect the tax and penalty if possible. He said he didn't have the money and therefore I took the returns without the payment of tax.

Q. Now, Mr. Brady, was anything said in that conversation relative to Mr. Remmer's and his wife's source of livelihood during the years 1934, 1935 and 1936?

A. Well, the source of livelihood——

Q. What did he say?

A. Well, he said his income was from gambling.

Q. I believe you stated he told you he had lost money during those years?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive. He has his answer. That is objected to—argumentative.

The Court: It may be it is leading.

Q. What, if anything, did he say as to money he was living on during that time?

A. I asked him about his income. He said, well, he had been in debt to Mr. Graham and Mr. McKay and I believe he said also, "Look at the books and see where I have overdrawn my account at Cal-Neva."

Q. Was Mrs. Remmer present or not during this time? A. No, sir; she was not.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

Q. What, if anything, was done relative to securing her signature on her return?

A. Well, the fact I couldn't [2492] acknowledge——

Q. No, not the mental process—what did you do?

A. I asked Mr. Remmer to have her return acknowledged before a notary and returned to me.

Q. I believe you stated it was returned to you within a few days?

A. Within a few days it was returned, yes.

Q. And will you state the amount of taxes that you found to be due on these returns?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to—the return would be the best evidence of that.

Mr. Campbell: Very well, I will read from Exhibit 11, delinquent return of Elmer Remmer for 1934, shows tax liability of $142.50, plus 25 per cent delinquent penalty, $35.60, or a total of $178.10. On plaintiff's Exhibit 12, delinquent return of Helen L. Remmer's income for the year 1934, shows the same figures as to the amount of tax due and the 25 per cent delinquency.

Q. Now, Mr. Brady, have you, at my request, prepared a chart setting forth assets and liabilities of Elmer F. Remmer and Helen L. Remmer for each of the dates December 31, 1943, 1944, 1945 and 1946? A. Yes, I have, Mr. Campbell.

Q. I show you this accounting sheet headed "Elmer F. and Helen L. Remmer" and ask you if that is the chart to which you refer?

A. Yes, it is. [2493]

A. Yes, sir; I did.

Q. Did you give effect to Exhibit 139?

A. What exhibit is that, please?

Q. That is an invoice relative to the purchase of—— A. Yes, sir; I did.

Q. And to Exhibit 174, which is an exhibit headed "50-52 Mason Street, San Francisco office Improvements, Fixtures and Equipment."

A. Yes, sir; I did.

Q. Did you give effect to Exhibit 147A?

A. Yes, sir; I did.

Q. Did you also, in preparing this exhibit, give effect to the account of Elmer Remmer in the ledger of Cal-Neva, which is [2496] here in evidence, and to the schedule prepared and introduced in evidence by Mr. Weaver in relation thereto?

A. Yes, sir; I did.

A. Yes, sir; I did.

Q. Did you also give effect, in preparing this chart, to [2497] Exhibits 1 to 6, inclusive?

A. Yes, sir; I did.

Q. Have I now covered, Mr. Brady, the exhibits which you took into consideration in preparing this chart?

A. I believe that you have, Mr. Campbell.

Mr. Campbell: It will be offered in evidence as government's Exhibit 183.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we have a number of specific grounds of objection to this exhibit, in addition to the general ground it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, based on the witness' conclusion of law, and after stating the more specific grounds, I would like the opportunity to call your Honor's attention to a case which we think is directly on it.

Mr. Campbell: At the time of the recess I had offered [2498] in evidence government's Exhibit 183 for identification and an objection is pending. I renew my offer.

The Court: Objection overruled and Exhibit 183 may be admitted in evidence.

Q. Now, Mr. Brady, with relation to government's Exhibit 183, did you also cause to be prepared an enlargement of that chart?

A. Yes, sir; I did.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask to have this marked, bearing the same number as Exhibit 183. I presume it may be 183A.

The Court: Is that to be offered in evidence also?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, sir.

Mr. Avakian: If it is a duplicate of something already in evidence, we do not see the propriety of putting in an identical exhibit simply as an enlargement. If counsel wants to use it for the ease and facility of examination of the witness, it may be used.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

Mr. Campbell: That is the purpose of the offer, that it may be clearer.

Mr. Avakian: We have no objection to that use, but do object to it being put in evidence as a duplication.

The Court: It will be admitted in evidence as 183A

Mr. Campbell: With the Court's permission, I would like to put this on the table facing during these questions. [2499]

The Court: Mr. Campbell, when you refer to any item on the duplicate, point it out so counsel can follow it on their copy of the original exhibit.

Q. Now, Mr. Brady, according to this chart which you have prepared, the original of which is marked 183, what is the amount of total assets as shown by that chart as of December 31, 1943?

A. Total assets, $170,789.89.

Q. And it is true, is it not, that the detail of each of those assets is set forth under the heading of 1943 of that chart? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have 183 before you?

A. Yes, I do, Mr. Campbell.

Q. And will you state the amount of assets and liabilities of Mr. Remmer as shown by that chart as of December 31, 1944?

A. The assets $210,408.26; the liabilities, $23,-182.93.

Q. And as of December, 1945?

A. Total assets end of 1945, $437,311.05; the total liabilities at the end of 1945 is $189,160.32.

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

Q. And as of December 31, 1946?

A. December 31, 1946, total assets, $1,004,985.36; total liabilities, $522,294.47.

Q. Now, Mr. Brady, as shown by that chart, what was the net worth of Elmer Remmer as of December 31, 1944?

A. 1944, net worth was $187,225.33. [2500]

Q. And what was the net worth as of the beginning of 1944, which is to say, December 31, 1943?

A. $141,837.12.

Q. What is shown by that exhibit as being the increase in net worth of the defendant, Elmer Remmer and his wife, Helen Remmer, for the year 1944?

A. The increase in net worth for 1944, is $45,388.21.

Q. And what is the increase in net worth as shown by that chart in the year 1945?

A. The increase in net worth for 1945 is $60,925.40.

Q. And what is the increase in net worth for the year 1946?

A. The increase in net worth for the year 1946 is $234,510.16.

Q. Now on that chart have you added to the increase in net worth the federal income taxes paid as shown by Exhibits 13 and 14?

A. Yes, sir; I have.

Q. And those are the figures set forth on the chart immediately following the items of increase in net worth? A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

Q. And with regard to living expenses, have you left that item blank as to each of the years?

A. Yes, sir; I have.

Q. Now in Exhibit 183, have you arrived at a figure of total income for each of the years, 1944 to 1946, based upon the increases in net worth plus the income taxes paid during [2501] the course of the three years? A. Yes, sir; I have.

Q. And will you give that figure for each of the years, 1944 to 1946, inclusive?

A. Total income 1944 is $50,747.91; total income for 1945 is $71,065.40; 1946 total income, $254,285.42.

Q. Now on the chart have you subtracted from those totals the total amount of income reported for each of the years by Elmer Remmer and his wife, Helen Remmer? A. Yes, sir; I have.

Q. And what, according to the chart and the figures making it up, have you found to be the difference between the total income and the income reported for each of the three years, 1944 to 1946, inclusive?

A. The difference for 1944 is $31,747.91; for 1945, the difference is $11,747.04; for 1946 the difference is $231,795.84.

Q. Now assuming, Mr. Brady, that the net taxable income of Elmer Remmer and Helen Remmer for the year 1944, on a community property basis, was the sum of $50,747.91, which was reported on separate returns of the husband and wife; assuming further that, as disclosed by the returns of that year, there were no dependents, and assuming that each was entitled to all of the deductions claimed on his or her returns for the year 1944, that is, as disclosed by Exhibits 1 and 2, respectively, what then would have been the income tax due to [2502] the United States from Elmer Remmer and from Helen Remmer for the year of 1944?

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, to that question I want to make the objection based upon the grounds presented in connection with Exhibit 183, that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, that it calls for conclusions of law, and more specifically that it is based upon assumptions of fact which are not covered by the evidence and upon assumptions of fact which are contrary to the evidence, which have been specifically enumerated to your Honor in the absence of the jury in connection with Exhibit 183, which we will be happy to go into again if your Honor desires.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. The total tax liability for Elmer Remmer in 1944 would be $10,821.86; total tax liability for Helen L. Remmer for 1944 would be $10,821.86.

Q. And will you state the amount reported by them as income tax due for that year 1944 in their returns, Exhibits 1 and 2?

A. Tax disclosed on the returns were $2,570 on the return for Elmer Remmer and a similar amount on Helen L. Remmer's return.

Q. Mr. Brady, assuming that during the year

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

1945 the net taxable income, on a community property basis, of the defendant, Elmer F. Remmer, and his wife, Helen L. Remmer, was the sum of $71,065.40, and assuming further that they had no dependents and reported their income on a community property basis, and [2503] assuming further that they were entitled to all of the deductions claimed by them on their returns for 1945, being evidenced here as Exhibits 3 and 4, respectively, what then would have been the tax owed by each of them for the year 1945?

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment, your Honor. We object to that question likewise on the ground it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial; calls for the witness' conclusions of law, and more specifically it assumes facts which are not in evidence and assumes facts which are contrary to the uncontradicted evidence, which we have more specifically enumerated to your Honor in connection with Exhibit 183 and which we will be glad to enumerate again if your Honor desires.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Campbell: Pardon me, I wish to make one addition to the question.

The Court: Have the question read.

(Question read.)

Q. Will you answer the question?

A. The total tax liability for 1945 of Elmer Remmer would be $16,951.49. For Helen L. Remmer for 1945 the total tax liability would be $18,006.18.

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

Q. And what is the amount reported by them for that year, as disclosed on their returns, Exhibits 3 and 4?

A. Tax disclosed on the return of Elmer Remmer is $13,072.02. Tax disclosed on the return filed for Helen L. Remmer for 1945 [2504] is $14,074.29.

Q. Mr. Brady, assuming that for the calendar year 1946 the defendant, Elmer F. Remmer, and his wife, Helen L. Remmer, had a net taxable income, on a community property basis, of $254,285.42, which was returned on a community property basis, that is to say, dividing the income, one-half to the husband and one-half to the spouse; assuming further that they had no dependents during the year 1946, and allowing to them all deductions as shown in evidence here, what then would have been the income tax liability of each, Elmer Remmer and Helen Remmer, for the year 1946?

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we object to that question on the ground it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial; it calls for conclusion of the witness on matters of law. It is based on assumptions which are contrary to the evidence and assumptions of fact not covered by the evidence, such as the assumption that the fact that there was $65,000 in cash, an assumption contrary to the evidence that there were no partnerships in existence, and all of the other specific items which have been enumerated to your Honor in connection with the offer of Exhibit 183, which we will be glad to go into in detail if your Honor desires.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. Mr. Campbell, do you have in mind, too, that I show increase in contributions? [2505]

Q. Yes, I asked you considering all the deductions as disclosed by the deductions here.

A. The total tax liability for Elmer Remmer for 1946 would be $86,069.50. The total tax liability for Helen L. Remmer for 1946 would be $86,069.50.

Q. And what is the amount of income tax which was reported by Elmer Remmer and Helen Remmer on their 1946 returns, as disclosed by the Exhibits 5 and 6, respectively?

A. The total tax disclosed on the return for Elmer Remmer was $2,776.87 and a similar amount was shown on the return filed for Helen L. Remmer.

Q. Now, Mr. Brady, for the three-year period, 1944 to 1946, inclusive, and based upon figures which you gave as to the income tax which would have been due under the facts which I gave you to assume in the questions, what would then be the difference between the income tax reported on the three-year returns and the tax which you found to be due from the income as stated in government's Exhibit 183?

A. Mr. Campbell, do you want that——

Q. The total for the three years, yes.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, may we have a moment, before the witness answers, to confer?

The Court: Yes.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

Mr. Avakian: Thank you, your Honor.

The Court: Do you understand the [2506] question?

A. I do.

The Court: You may answer.

A. For Elmer Remmer the difference is $95,-423.96. For Helen L. Remmer the difference is $95,476.38, or a total of both of $190,900.34.

Q. That figure which you have given me for the two would represent the difference in tax reported and that which would have been due, assuming the facts which I gave you in my hypothetical question; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Q. Mr. Brady, let me ask you preliminarily with regard to Exhibit 183, whether in the preparation of that exhibit you treated all of the net worth of each of the enterprises shown on the exhibit as belonging entirely to Mr. Remmer?

A. I took the net worth as shown on the various enterprises, based on statements admitted here in evidence, Mr. Avakian. For instance——

Q. (Interrupting): Pardon me—were you going to use an example?

A. For example, B. & R. Smoke Shoppe, I used——

Q. Let us take the Menlo Club as an example, and for the Menlo Club you have shown at 1946 a

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

net worth of $192,836.47. That is the total net worth of the Menlo Club business as shown on [2507] the exhibit prepared by Mr. Weaver and in evidence here, is it not? A. That is correct.

Q. And you, in preparing Exhibit 183, took the entire net worth of the Menlo Club as Mr. Remmer's net worth, rather than using only his partnership equity in that business; isn't that true?

A. No, I took this amount because I believed from the evidence it shows it was his business.

Q. Well, I am trying to get what figure. On that same exhibit—let me get it for you—I will hand you for your use Exhibit 165, Mr. Brady, and that shows the net worth of the Menlo Club on December 31, 1946, as $192,836.47, does it not?

A. That's right.

Q. And then farther down on that same exhibit there is the heading, "Capital Accounts per Books," and then there is listed the names of Harold Maundrell, Thomas Turner, Wm. Fricker, Elmer Remmer, Wm. Kyne, Massie Ditto and Oscar Nelson, with an amount opposite each name?

A. That is true.

Q. And amount opposite Elmer Remmer's name for December 31, 1946, under the heading "Capital Accounts per Books," is $39,508.60, is it not?

A. That is correct.

Q. Instead of using that figure, you used, as Mr. Remmer's [2508] investment in the Menlo Club the total net worth of the club of 192 thousand, did you not?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

A. Well, the reason why that was taken into account——

Q. Tell me whether that is what you did?

A. Yes, we took 192 thousand.

Q. So what you did, in preparing 183, was to treat the Menlo Club as being Mr. Remmer's sole enterprise, rather than a partnership; isn't that true? A. As his net worth business, yes.

Q. Without going into detail at this time on the others, is that likewise true with respect to the other businesses mentioned, the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe, Day-Night Cigar Store, 110 Eddy Street, and Transit Smoke Shop?

A. Yes, we considered those Mr. Remmer's personal businesses.

Q. And in preparing Exhibit 183, you treated the entire assets of each of those businesses as Mr. Remmer's assets; is that true?

A. Mr. Avakian, the figure that we were able to secure here may not be all the income. We do not know what was in the safe deposit boxes, for example.

Q. Well, can you answer my question? Let us have the question.

A. If you——

Q. Let us have the question read.

(Question read.)

A. Well, we treated as Mr. Remmer's businesses the net worth [2509] as disclosed on these various exhibits.

Q. What I am getting at is this, Mr. Brady—in preparing Exhibit 183, you did not treat any of the businesses which I just named as partnership, but rather treated each of them as Mr. Remmer's sole enterprise; isn't that true?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

A. No, I would say that is true, Mr. Avakian, because I did not make up these statements. I just wrote down on this schedule, Exhibit 183, the net worth as disclosed by the people that did make the examination. I made no examination of these books and records.

Q. I understand that, but in the exhibit relating to the 110 Eddy Street, for example, there is a figure which shows the net worth of the entire business and then also on that same exhibit there are amounts showing the capital account according to the books, of each of the partners. Now when you used that exhibit in preparing Exhibit 183, you entered as Mr. Remmer's net worth on Exhibit 183 the total amount of the 110 Eddy Street net worth rather than the amount shown on that same exhibit as his partnership capital account; isn't that true?

A. I don't have a copy of 163.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that on 110 Eddy Street, which is Exhibit 163, in addition to the net worth of the business, there are various capital accounts per books listed in the lower portion of page one; that is true, is it not? [2510]

A. That is true.

Q. Now in preparing Exhibit 183, did you not take the amount of Mr. Remmer's capital account shown on the lower portion of that exhibit, but rather took the figure shown as the total net worth of the entire business, did you not?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

A. Yes, we took the net worth as shown on the business being Mr. Remmer's.

Q. And that is true of each of the businesses that are enumerated; isn't that so, Mr. Brady?

A. Well, I don't know. I would like to see the other exhibits because I believe some of these books did not show all the assets, so it would be pretty hard to get a correct net worth from the books.

Q. I intend to go into that detail later, Mr. Brady, so we will defer that for the moment. Now you stated, Mr. Brady, you were a Revenue Agent with the office of the Bureau of Internal Revenue for 22 years prior to this present position, and then I understood you to say for approximately the last five years you have been a technical advisor in the Penal Division of the Bureau of Internal Revenue in San Francisco; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And your immediate superior in that position during the last five years has been, and still is, Mr. Campbell, the chief prosecutor here? [2511]

A. Correct.

Q. And you were assigned as accountant to Mr. Campbell to assist his office in tax investigations?

A. I was asked to make such computations.

Q. Generally your employment is to assist Mr. Campbell's office? A. Yes.

Q. And you work directly under his supervision?

A. Yes.

Q. In the preparation of Exhibit 183, did you

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

receive any instructions from Mr. Campbell in any respect whatsoever? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Were there any instances on Exhibit 183 where Mr. Campbell instructed you as to the particular figure that you should enter on the exhibit?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial, if the Court please.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. Yes.

Q. And did Mr. Campbell instruct you, Mr. Brady, that in preparing Exhibit 183 you should show the entire net worth of each of these businesses which I have named as Mr. Remmer's net worth? A. Yes.

Q. And I call your attention to the fact, Mr. Brady, that on [2512] Exhibit 183 the years are listed without any particular date of the year. It is true, is it not, that in preparing a computation of net income on the net worth basis, the computation should be made as of the last day of each year?

A. I believe Mr. Campbell, when he read this off, told me December 31st, Mr. Avakian.

Q. And it was your intent, was it not, to include the assets and liabilities as of December 31st of each year? A. Yes.

Q. And you did not intend to include any assets or liabilities that were in existence on some other day in any of these years unless that same asset or liability was in existence on the very last day of each year? A. That is correct.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

Q. In other words, an asset that was in existence in the middle of the year would have no bearing in the computation of net income on net worth basis if it were not also in existence at the end of the year; isn't that true?

A. If it was in existence at the end of the year it applied to the net worth statement.

Q. So if it were in existence at the middle of the year and not at the end of the year, it would be immaterial for this purpose?

A. Well, it might be transferred to another asset.

Q. If that asset is not in existence, then that wouldn't be [2513] an asset? A. Correct.

Q. Mr. Brady, I call your attention that on Exhibit 183 you have included as cash on hand at the end of 1946 the sum of $65,000. Can you refer me to the exhibit or testimony in this case which shows that that $65,000 sum was on hand in Mr. Remmer's possession on December 31, 1946?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not proper cross-examination, unless he states that the source he obtained it was from something in the evidence. Then he can be asked to refer to the testimony.

Mr. Avakian: Let me ask a preliminary question.

Q. Did Mr. Campbell instruct you to put that $65,000 figure there? A. Yes.

Q. And did you base the insertion of that $65,000 figure on Mr. Campbell's instructions?

A. Not entirely.

Q. Can you point to any evidence or testimony

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

in this record which shows that Mr. Remmer had $65,000 cash on hand at the end of 1946, that is, on December 31st?

A. I know the check, Exhibit 115——

Mr. Campbell: Wait a minute; let him finish.

The Court: Have you finished?

(Question and answer read.) [2514]

A. I said 115 and I stopped. I didn't finish.

The Court: Finish the answer.

Q. Finish your answer, Mr. Brady.

The Court: Let us have the question and answer.

(Question and answer read.)

The Court: Proceed.

A. I believe Mr. Campbell took into account 115 and the testimony of Mr. Kyne that this $65,000 had not been retained.

Q. You say you believe Mr. Campbell took that into account?

A. Yes; you asked me why we took $65,000——

Q. So I may make myself clear—Mr. Campbell has stipulated here he is not an accountant and I am trying to find out from you, as an accountant, the basis for your computation, as an accountant, in the preparation of Exhibit 183 and in giving your testimony here.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative.

The Court: Just propound the questions.

Q. Now with respect to Exhibit 115, I show you that, and that is a check drawn on the Menlo Club,

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

dated November 7, 1946, in amount of $65,000, payable to W. E. Kyne, endorsed W. E. Kyne, and marked on the face of it "Loan to Elmer Remmer," is it not? A. That is correct.

Q. And you have in mind Mr. Kyne's testimony that this $65,000 was placed in Box 48 at the time that it was cashed and that the [2515] money in that box was used from time to time as needed in the various businesses?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative and not within the scope of direct examination, not proper cross-examination. He has stated the source of the material which he placed in here, the exhibits as to each one, and the instructions which he was given. What the witness may or may not have had in mind, I suggest is immaterial.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we are entitled to get the accounting analysis of the accountant of the evidence that pertains to this point which, on Mr. Campbell's instructions——

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. I have no recollection, Mr. Avakian, of Mr. Kyne saying that he put that money in Box 48. My recollection of the testimony was he cashed the check, gave the money to Mr. Remmer.

Q. And is that, so far as you understand, the basis for Mr. Campbell's conclusion that $65,000 was still on hand December 31, 1946?

Mr. Campbell: That is objected——

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, he testified that the reason Mr. Campbell had——

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

The Court (Interceding): I don't believe this witness can testify to the basis of anyone else's conclusion except his own. [2516]

Mr. Avakian: We are in this position, Mr. Campbell is in effect testifying without taking the stand and being cross-examined.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Is it not true, Mr. Brady, that the inclusion of $65,000 item as an asset of Mr. Remmer's on December 31, 1946, would be improper and erroneous, from an accounting point of view, unless Mr. Remmer actually had that money on December 31, 1946?

A. You are making an assumption there he didn't have it.

Q. I am asking the question—read the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. Well, if we had some proof that he didn't have it, I would say it should not be there.

Q. Now can you answer my question?

A. May I have the question?

The Court: Yes, read the question.

(Question read.)

A. Well, if he didn't have the money, there was any contention that he didn't have it, I would say it would be wrong. For instance, if he repaid the $65,000.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

Q. It wouldn't matter what he did, the important thing would be, did he have $65,000 cash on hand December 31, 1946, wouldn't that be the important thing in determining whether the [2517] inclusion of that particular item is correct from an accounting point of view?

A. If he didn't have $65,000, it would be incorrect.

Q. Mr. Brady, in testifying as to tax you computed, would be due on the amount of income which you have computed on Exhibit 183, and in comparing that with the amount of tax shown on Mr. Remmer's return, and then computing the difference between the tax shown on Mr. Remmer's return and the tax which you computed due, did you make any allowance for the fact that the various persons designated as partners of these different enterprises paid income tax on their returns on the portion of the income of those enterprises?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not proper cross-examination. He was only asked as to specific matters.

The Court: Answer the question.

A. I did not.

Q. So you did not mean to imply, then, did you, by your testimony, Mr. Brady, that the United States of America was deprived of taxes from somebody in the total amounts that you have testified to as the difference between what Mr. Remmer paid and what you included——

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

Mr. Campbell: That is objected to.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. It is true, is it not, Mr. Brady, that as a matter of proper tax accounting, and as a matter of procedure of the [2518] Bureau of Internal Revenue, that in the event it is determined that a particular amount of income should have been taxed to Mr. A rather than to Mr. B, and if it is determined that Mr. B actually did pay tax on that account, that in designating that income to Mr. A, a refund should be allowed in the amount of taxes paid by Mr. B?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial to the issues.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we would like to be heard because we think it is an important point on the question whether taxes were evaded.

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Q. In your Exhibit 183 I find no reference in the liabilities to any obligation of Mr. Remmer to one Robert L. Jeffers. Will you tell me, Mr. Brady, whether you are familiar with the testimony in this case, to the effect that on September 27, 1946, Mr. Remmer borrowed 50 thousand dollars from one Robert L. Jeffers?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent and immaterial, not proper cross-examination, whether or not he is familiar with the testimony.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Mr. Brady, if you omitted from Exhibit 183

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

any liability owed by Mr. Remmer to Mr. Jeffers on December 31, 1946, your computation of net worth would be erroneous to the extent of [2519] that liability, would it not?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming a fact not in evidence, that there was a liability on December 31, 1946.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, may we be heard on that?

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Q. In the preparation of Exhibit 183, did you give any consideration whatsoever to defendant's Exhibit A-1, which is a note dated September 27, 1946, from Elmer Remmer to Robert L. Jeffers, in amount of 50 thousand dollars?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you have any discussions with Mr. Campbell whether or not you should show any liability in Exhibit 183 with respect to that amount?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Did Mr. Campbell instruct you as to the liabilities which you should include in preparing Exhibit 183? A. Yes.

Q. Did he give you a list of liabilities to include?

A. No, he told me what liabilities to put down here.

Q. And are the ones which you have set forth in Exhibit 183 the ones which he told you to put in there? A. Yes.

Q. And did he say anything to you about

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

whether or not you should include any liability with respect to defendant's [2520] Exhibit A-1?

A. No, he did not. Do you want to know why?

Mr. Avakian: Why he did not? I assume you wouldn't know why he did not tell you. I am not asking that, Mr. Brady.

Q. Now, Mr. Brady, I note that in Exhibit 183 you have an item, "Cash in Safety Deposit Boxes," with a question mark entered after each of the years shown on the exhibit. Did you insert that question mark because you didn't know the amount of cash in the safe deposit box or boxes at the end of each year?

A. I was instructed to put it that way because there was no evidence as to the amount of cash in the box at any particular period.

Q. You say you were instructed—Mr. Campbell instructed you? A. Yes.

Q. And is it not true, Mr. Brady, that to the extent that there might have been cash in the safe deposit boxes at the end of any of these years, your net worth computations would to that extent be erroneous?

A. Well, it might be materially increased if we know the amount there. We left nothing, but if there was something there, it certainly would increase the assets of Mr. Remmer.

Q. For that particular year? A. Yes.

Q. And in the event the amount in safety deposit boxes changed from the end of one year to the end of the next year, the [2521] amount of your

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

net worth computation as shown on Exhibit 183 would be incorrect, would it not?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative. It is apparent from the face of the exhibit that if an asset is changed or added to it changes the face of the document. I suggest this is all argumentative.

The Court: You may answer the question.

Mr. Avakian: It is not argumentative.

A. Any asset that is changed is bound to change the increased net worth that way, yes, Mr. Avakian.

Q. Now it is true, is it not, Mr. Brady, that in an accounting analysis, the term "net worth" means the difference between the total assets and the total liabilities? A. At a given period.

Q. Yes, at a given point of time; isn't that true?

A. Yes.

Q. And isn't it true, Mr. Brady, that it is impossible to make an accurate determination of net worth if you are unable to determine the amount of any particular asset or liability that is in existence as of that particular time?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. Mr. Avakian, if we know what total assets hadn't been discovered, probably carried in some other name, we might increase this picture [2522] considerably.

Mr. Avakian: I ask that be stricken.

The Court: It may go out.

Mr. Avakian: Would you like to have the question read, Mr. Brady? A. Yes.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

(Question read.)

A. To get an accurate net worth, yes, Mr. Avakian.

Q. It would be impossible to get an accurate net worth?

A. It would be impossible unless we knew the amount of the assets.

Q. Now, Mr. Brady, did you hear something in this case to the effect that there was money in some amount in safes and safety deposit boxes, during the entire period covered by your Exhibit 183?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial, whether he heard it or not.

The Court: Let me see that Exhibit 183. Where is that item?

Mr. Avakian: Item 125.

The Court: There seems to be no amount set here as to cash in the safety deposit boxes.

Mr. Avakian: That is right.

The Court: I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Avakian: The purpose of the question, may I state the purpose of it? That is the point here which I am driving at, which may not be clear to your Honor. The purpose of the [2523] question, your Honor, is to show that there is evidence of an asset, but the evidence does not show the amount of the asset, and the significance of that, your Honor, then is that if there is an asset, the amount of which can't be determined, then to that effect

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

there is an uncertainty in the net worth that is computed.

The Court: Yes, but they did not insert any amount in here.

Mr. Avakian: That is the point, your Honor. The asset is there, but the amount is not inserted.

The Court: Objection will be sustained.

Q. Now I note in preparing Exhibit 183 you have shown certain amounts as representing Gallagher & Burton whiskey at the end of 1943, 1944, and 1945, with no amount for 1946, and then I note that subsequently, as another asset, you have shown, "Due from Bank Club for 900 cases of whiskey," and an amount for the end of 1946. Those two items, I take it, are related in Exhibit 183, is that true, Mr. Brady.

A. That is my understanding, yes.

Q. Now, did Mr. Campbell instruct you to set up those two items in that way?

A. I believe you will find, Mr. Avakian, that Mr. Weaver testified as to the Gallagher & Burton whiskey and at the end of 1944——

Q. (Interrupting): Perhaps you didn't understand my question. [2524] My question was, did Mr. Campbell instruct you to set up Exhibit 183 the way you have in respect to those items?

A. Yes.

Q. I note the figures that Gallagher & Burton whiskey in 1945 amount due was $21,191.50 and then the amount that is due the end of 1946 shown as $29,979?

A. Yes.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

Q. And the difference between those two is approximately $2800, isn't it, Mr. Brady?

A. The difference is that, yes.

Q. Now you are aware, are you not, of the testimony in this case that Mr. Remmer was not paid by the Bank Club for that whiskey in the amount of $29,989 until July 30, 1947?

A. Yes, I heard that.

Q. And isn't it true that in the case of a taxpayer, who is on the cash basis, the amount that is receivable on the sale of merchandise that is not paid for until a later date, should not be taken into income until the later date on which he actually gets the money?

A. I would say any profit he realized on that, that profit would not be taken up until it was realized.

Q. From an accounting point of view, the effect of that Gallagher & Burton whiskey transaction has been to put the $2800 into Mr. Remmer's 1946 tax year?

A. No, it has not. I might tell you why. I believe Mr. [2525] Weaver testified that at the end of 1945 there were some 800 cases of whiskey and there were 900 cases that were transferred to the Bank Club. I have recollection there was no profit in that transaction at all, so if the item was left out at the end of 1946, it would be a great distortion. If there was a substantial profit, or any profit, probably that profit should not be reported on net worth statement until it was realized, but I do not think is the case here, Mr. Avakian?

A. Now, Mr. Brady, let me ask you this as a preliminary question and you can answer it yes or not. You stated that you are employed in Mr. Campbell's office as a technical advisor. Can you tell us when you first started work on the case of Elmer Remmer, approximately?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial, not proper cross-examination.

The Court: I think he may answer.

A. My recollection is about March of 1950 I saw the case when it came up and I consulted with the attorney to whom it was assigned.

Q. And from that time until the present time you have, at various times during the period, worked on the case, is that correct?

A. Yes, I might be called, for instance, to make computations based on certain figures, etc., but I would not work on the case continuously. [2526]

Q. Now have you at any time, Mr. Brady, made any computations of increase in net worth of Mr. and Mrs. Remmer for these three years, which computations have been based on your own analysis as an accounting expert, independently of any instructions given to you by Mr. Campbell as to what to include in assets and liabilities?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not proper cross-examination.

Mr. Avakian: The witness is offered here as an expert, your Honor.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Isn't it true, Mr. Brady, at some time prior to and during the period that you were assigned to this case, you have made computations of net worth of Mr. and Mrs. Remmer for the years 1944, 1945, and 1946 which are different from the computations set forth in Exhibit 183?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Objection sustained. That is the same question I just ruled on.

Mr. Avakian: No, it is not, your Honor, it is a different question and it is offered for the purpose of impeaching the witness by showing prior inconsistencies.

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Mr. Avakian: Will your Honor permit us to be heard on that? [2527]

The Court: No, let us proceed.

Q. Now I note one of the assets which you have shown as described on Exhibit 183, as loan to Brice and Silverman in amount of 12 thousand dollars at the end of 1945 and four thousand dollars at the end of 1946. Can you refer me, Mr. Weaver, to any testimony or exhibit in this case which shows that that transaction with Brice and Silverman was a loan, as distinguished from an investment in business?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent and improper, unless his testimony shows he put that there as the result of some testimony.

The Court: You may answer the question.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

A. I did not review the evidence on that item there.

Q. You inserted it in this exhibit and in that fashion on instructions of Mr. Campbell?

A. Yes.

Q. And isn't it true, Mr. Brady, that if the Remmer transaction with Brice and Silverman was an investment made in a business in 1945, which business failed during the year 1945, and Mr. Remmer's loss in that investment was the amount of four thousand dollars, that it would be improper, from an accounting point of view, to show the transaction the way it is shown in Exhibit 183?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming facts not in evidence. [2528]

Mr. Avakian: That is the evidence and uncontradicted evidence. Mr. Maundrell's description of this transaction was this was an investment by Mr. Remmer made with Mr. Brice and Mr. Silverman in a night club in New York, which failed after eight days.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. The way it is put on this statement——

Mr. Campbell: Object——

The Court: Answer the question.

A. If we had an investment at the end of 1945 of 12 thousand dollars and that investment was reduced to four thousand dollars, I would say our loss is reflected in our increase in net worth.

Mr. Avakian: May we have the question read. I think the witness missed the facts of the question.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

(Question read.)

The Court: Now you may answer.

A. The increase we have in net worth took into account decrease in——

Mr. Avakian: He inserted facts different than in the question.

The Court: Clear it up.

Q. Can you answer the question I asked you?

A. I understand from your question, Mr. Avakian, that if a person had 12 thousand dollars at the end of 1945 and that [2529] one asset was reduced to four thousand dollars through a loss, that loss is taken into account in our increase in net worth.

Mr. Avakian: Let me rephrase the question.

Q. If I invested 12 thousand dollars in a business and during the same year, after a period of eight days, that business went broke and in liquidation of it I got back only four thousand dollars at the termination of that transaction you would not, in computing my net worth at the next year end, show any asset whatsoever with respect to that business, would you?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent, assuming facts not in evidence and misleading.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Let me come back to the specific situation, Mr. Brady. You have before you Exhibit 183?

A. Yes.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

Q. I believe you refer to the Brice and Silverman item described in Exhibit 183 as a loan?

A. That is right.

Q. Now, Mr. Brady, will you assume these facts, for the purpose of asking the question: assuming that the 12 thousand dollars paid by Mr. Remmer to Brice and Silverman was not a loan, but rather was an investment with Brice and Silverman in a business; assume further that during the year 1945 that business failed, and assume further that as a result of the liquidation of that business, after it failed, Mr. Remmer at [2530] some time before the end of the year 1946 got back four thousand dollars. Now on those assumptions, Mr. Brady, isn't it true that it would not be proper to show the four thousand dollars as an asset that is listed on Exhibit 183 as of the end of 1946?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming facts not in evidence.

Mr. Avakian: Those are the facts, your Honor. Got back eight thousand dollars instead of four thousand dollars.

Mr. Campbell: That is not the basis of my objection. The evidence which exists of the check and check stub show that the amount was a loan and my recollection of Mr. Maundrell's testimony is also that it was a loan.

Mr. Avakian: May I read Mr. Maundrell's testimony?

The Court: We will excuse the jury until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

resumed the witness stand on further

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Mr. Avakian: I might state, your Honor, that Mr. Lohse was tied up with another matter this morning which he could not conveniently avoid and to substitute for him his partner, Mr. Fry, is here this morning.

Mr. Campbell: If the Court please, at the close of the session yesterday there was pending a question, to which objection was made. The objection was subsequently withdrawn by the government and the record will so show.

Mr. Avakian: I understand, your Honor, then that I may put that question to the witness at this time, and with your Honor's permission I will read the question to the witness.

Q. You will recall, Mr. Brady, that I was ques-

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

tioning you with respect to the Brice-Silverman matter, which is shown on Exhibit 183. The question put to you was as follows: Now Mr. Brady, will you assume these facts for the purpose of answering this question—assume that the 12 thousand dollars paid by Mr. Remmer to Brice and Silverman was not a loan, but rather was an investment with Brice and Silverman in a business; assume further that during the year 1945 that business [2532] failed and assume further that as a result of the liquidation of that business, after it failed, Mr. Remmer at some time before the end of the year 1946 got back eight thousand dollars. Now on those assumptions, Mr. Brady, isn't it true that it would not be proper to show the four thousand dollars as an asset that is listed on Exhibit 183 as at the end of 1946?

A. Well——

Mr. Campbell: I wonder if it would assist if the witness had before him the question, which is rather lengthy, in its written form.

Q. Do you have difficulty in understanding the question?

A. I would appreciate it. (Witness is handed question.) Well, Mr. Avakian, I think before I can answer that question yes or no, there are certain facts that should be taken into consideration. For instance, if Mr. Remmer advanced 12 thousand dollars as an investment, we would want to know the corporation he was investing in, whether the assets that represent the 12 thousand dollars, what they consisted of. If they consist of a long-term lease, for instance, even though the business had failed, we would want to know the date in which the business opened and in which the business failed, and there are a number of facts, I think, that would have to be considered before the account could be wiped off entirely. For instance, supposing there was a long term lease, the business itself might fail but the lease might have a substantial value, so there would [2533] not be a four thousand dollar loss and would still represent part of that investment.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

Q. So in order to answer that question correctly, you would need more facts than are in evidence here?

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute—I object to that as calling for conclusion of the witness.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. You would need to have before you, in order to answer that question correctly, the facts pertaining to various items that are included in your answer, is that right? A. I would say yes.

Q. It is true, is it not, Mr. Brady, that an investment which an individual makes in a business, which he operates either as an individual or as a joint venture with other partners, which fails and which, as a result of that failure, results in a loss to him, provides the basis for a deductible loss for income tax purposes?

A. If the loss was claimed and determined, yes;

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

if a definite loss had been determined, it would be deductible loss.

Q. And in computing net income on net worth method, it would not be proper to include any assets of the taxpayer in the amount which represented an investment in a business of that kind which did fail before the end of the year and which, as a result of that failure, did produce a loss, is that true?

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute—objected to, if the court [2534] please, as a hypothetical question and as the same question to which the witness has stated he would have to have certain additional factors to answer.

The Court: I do not quite understand it that way. You may answer the question.

A. Well, Mr. Avakian, I believe that the question sounds very similar to the other one, in that you know that the business failed. The money that was invested in the business is represented by certain assets. Now if one of those assets was say a long term lease, it might have failed in that particular business, but they could reopen at that location with another business.

Q. Let me ask you this question, Mr. Brady, so we can see whether we can get the distinction between loan and investment in connection with computation of income on net worth method. If I loan you some money, let us say 12 thousand dollars, which you invested in a business, which you operated yourself and in which I had no interest as an operator, and that business failed, the failure of your business would not provide me with any deductible amounts on account of the loan that I had made to you, except possibly by way of a bad debt, isn't that true?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

A. I don't follow you, Mr. Avakian.

Q. You do not understand that question, all right. If I loaned you 12 thousand dollars and you invest it in your own [2535] business and then your business failed, the loan which I had made to you would still be carried as an asset of mine in my net worth statement, even though your business failed, isn't that true? A. Well, yes.

Q. Unless, as I say, you had become so bankrupt that your obligation could be wiped out as a bad debt.

A. Yes, unless it was determined a bad debt.

Q. If on the other hand, instead of loaning you money to use in your business, you and I joined forces in a joint venture, and I put some of my money into that business, in which you and I are going to have a joint interest, and then that business fails, I would then be entitled to a deductible loss to the extent that the failure of that business left me without any assets after its failure, isn't that true?

A. For instance, if there was no possible recovery of the assets, I would say yes.

Q. Now in your Exhibit 183, Mr. Brady, you have shown certain figures as assets of Mr. Remmer with respect to the 21 Club. Will you refer

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

me to any particular exhibits or testimony upon which that is based, for my clarification?

A. I believe Exhibit 106 of Revenue Agent Gould.

Q. Perhaps you could assist me, Mr. Brady, in referring me to the particular figure from Exhibit 106 from which you prepared Exhibit 183 in that respect. Let us take first December 31, [2536] 1943, you have the amount $7676.53.

A. $15,353.07.

Mr. Campbell: What is that figure?

A. That is the balance of the investment account and according to the testimony of, I believe, Mr. Pritchett and Mr. Kessell, they testified Mr. Remmer owned a 50 per cent of that equity.

Q. So you took the total investment shown on Exhibit 106 and took 50 per cent of that figure as representing Mr. Remmer's investment?

A. Correct.

Q. And was that same method used in connection with the amounts shown for the ends of 1944, 1945, and 1946?

A. Here is 1944. Investment account $13,809.87.

Q. And the figure you have on your exhibit is $13,004.93?

A. I took one-half of $13,809.87, $6,904.93, plus notes payable account, $6,100, to arrive at $13,-004.93.

Q. So that to begin with, you took the total investment account of the entire business and took half as Mr. Remmer's share?

A. That is right.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

Q. And then added the notes payable?

A. Correct.

Q. How did you arrive at the 1945 figure of $10,417.97?

A. Investment account at the end of 1945 shows $3,435.94; one-half of that would be $1,717.97, to which was added notes payable [2537] of Mr. Remmer, $8,700, making a total of $10,417.97.

Q. Then would you explain how you arrived at the 1946 figure?

A. 1946 the investment account shows here $23,027.69; one-half of that, $11,513.85. There is no accounts payable shown at the end of 1946.

Q. So that in the case of the 21 Club, in preparing Exhibit 183, you did give effect to the partnership between Mr. Remmer and Mr. Pechart and Mr. Kessell? A. Yes, sir, I did.

Q. Now the next item is the San Diego Social Club, and can you tell me the sources from which the figures shown on Exhibit 183 were obtained for that? A. We took Exhibits "T" and "V."

Q. And those are copies of the return of Revenue Agent Gould, who testified here earlier in this case? A. Yes.

Q. And by using those figures you likewise gave effect to a partnership between Mr. Remmer, Mr. Pechart and Mr. Kessell in that enterprise?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Brady, for your assistance in following this question that I am going to ask you, I am going to hand you a sheet of papers, so that you can make notes on the amounts that I mention in my question as we go along. For the purpose of this question, Mr. Brady, will you assume the following facts: [2538] Assume that instead of the amounts shown for December 31, 1946, as Mr. Remmer's equity or net worth on Exhibit 183, you substituted the following figures taken from sources which I will state in the question—first of all, with respect to the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe, for the purpose of my question eliminate the bank roll of 20 thousand dollars shown on Exhibit 169, which Mr. Weaver said was inserted in Exhibit 169 on his assumption that the bank roll at the end of 1945 remained in existence until the end of 1946.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute—I am going to object to an argument of counsel in the hypothetical question. A hypothetical question might be proper, assuming all of the facts in evidence, but to discuss the evidence, by whom it was given, and the nature of the testimony, I do not believe is proper in a question of this kind.

Mr. Avakian: I only intended, your Honor, to identify the factual matter involved in the question.

The Court: You might state the hypothetical question without referring to any particular portion of the testimony or evidence, as long as it is based on the evidence, or a reasonable inference of evidence.

Mr. Avakian: Very well, that is agreeable.

Q. Did you follow that first adjustment that my question calls for, Mr. Brady, the elimination from

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

the B. &. R. Smoke Shoppe bank roll from December 31, 1946, the sum of $20,000? [2539]

A. I have a note of that.

Q. Secondly, assume that in lieu of the figure $28,643.47 shown for the Day-Night Cigar Store, you used as Mr. Remmer's share of the net worth of that business the figure of $8,012.15. Next for the 110 Eddy Street, in lieu of the net worth figure on Exhibit 183 of $33,210.35, use the sum of these two figures, the amount of $8,824.53 and $5,985.44. Next, with respect to the Menlo Club, in lieu of the figure of $192,836.47 shown on Exhibit 183, use the figure from Exhibit 165 of $39,508.60. Next, with respect to the Transit Smoke Shoppe, adjust the figure of $32,641.46 shown on Exhibit 183 by the amount of $16,005.50, which is shown in Exhibit 120. Next, with respect to the item of cash, eliminate the 65 thousand dollars shown on Exhibit 183. Next, with respect to the Brice-Silverman transaction, eliminate the four thousand dollar asset shown on Exhibit 183, and finally add, as a liability at the end of 1946, an obligation of 50 thousand dollars to Robert L. Jeffers, and after you have made computation, will you tell me if that adjustment would result in a net worth figure at the end of 1946, of $135,325.82, rather than the figure of $482,690.89 shown on Exhibit 183?

Mr. Campbell: I object to the question as incompetent. It does not purport to be a hypothetical question, but to ask the witness to make certain computations which, if they are relative, should be made in the defendant's case. So far as [2540] the result of such computation is concerned, if the Court rules that the question is competent or material, I will accept counsel's computation of what the result would be. It is a question of adding or subtracting figures, but I do not believe it is proper cross-examination or within the scope of direct examination.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

The Court: Objection will be sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Could I explain to your Honor the basis for the figures contained in the question, because they are all taken from the evidence.

The Court: No.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we would like to explain to your Honor, either in the presence or absence of the jury, why we feel it is proper cross-examination. We can cite authority that in cross-examination of an expert witness it is proper——

The Court (Interceding): Very well, I will give you an opportunity. We will excuse the jury.

(Jury and alternate jurors admonished and excused at 10:30 a.m.)

RE: HYPOTHETICAL QUESTION

(Feb. 5, 1952—Notebook 339—pp 83-88.)

Mr. Campbell: It may save time, your Honor—I have no doubt that each of the figures that Mr. Avakian referred to were drawn from one or another document put in evidence in the case, so my objection is not on that ground. I thought I would save time in making that statement.

Mr. Avakian: In view of Mr. Campbell's agreement, your Honor, that the question is based on the evidence in the record, we have simply the problem of whether it is proper in cross-examination, a witness who has made a net worth computation, to ask him on cross-examination what the net worth would be on the basis of a different set of facts which are covered by the evidence. In other words, the cross-examination simply calls for a computation before the jury of the results of a net worth computation based on other facts in the evidence, aside from those in the particular set which the witness selected.

Now we have the basic proposition, your Honor, that in cross-examining one who takes the stand as a skilled witness, the cross-examination may include hypothetical questions put to him on the basis of any set of facts covered by the evidence which the jury may reasonably conclude are the true and correct set of facts. That rule, which we stated earlier to your Honor, is found in Wigmore 3rd Edition, Volume 2, Sections 684 and 682 read together.

In addition, your Honor, in income tax cases it has been held that where a witness testifies to a computation of income and of tax due on the net worth basis, a government witness, it is proper to challenge his computation on cross-examination by showing what the results would be if he based his computations on another set of facts that the evidence covers. I might say to your Honor that is a customary practice followed by trial courts in cases with which I have been familiar throughout the country in tax cases.

The Court: I agree with you. Now you have in mind perhaps cases where a medical expert has given an opinion. I think that would be an illustration of your idea. Certain symptoms, and so on, are presented in a hypothetical question and the doctor gives an opinion. On cross-examination there may be evidence in the record as to other symptoms by some other doctor and the doctor on the stand has disagreed with this other doctor. Then it would be proper to propound a hypothetical question to the doctor under cross-examination, based upon other and different symptoms than his testimony was based on, but this is merely a hypothetical calculation you are using your figures on. For instance, two plus two equals four. Now you are asking the witness, does two plus one equal four.

Mr. Avakian: No, your Honor, that is not my point at all. Mr. Brady has done more than simply add up two plus two. He has also selected the particular items that he is going to include in his addition, and to use a specific illustration, he has assumed that——

The Court (Interceding): After all, I don't see where there is much to argue about. I think I will permit the question.

Mr. Avakian: Thank you, your Honor.

The Court: It is a matter of one of us taking a certain set of figures and arriving at a certain result and then the same witness presented with a different set. The question is, will he come to the same or a different result.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Avakian: That is right, to illustrate a different result from a different description of the facts.

Mr. Campbell: May I point this out to your Honor as the vice of this particular question, without quarreling with your Honor's ruling in any way. An effort is made, based upon certain theories of the defense, as to the partnerships, to show the results only as they would exist for one year. Now if the same adjustments were made as to all the years, an entirely different picture would be presented, but here he is only applying his theory to one year. The question is so involved and he specifies so many figures that the witness should not be expected to come up with a computation in a couple of minutes with the use of pencil and paper on the stand. He should have an opportunity to put down these figures and make proper computation in that regard.

The Court: If the witness wants time——

Mr. Campbell: But if counsel states, in making those adjustments which he proposes in his question, it comes out to a certain result, as I say, I will not challenge his result. If he wants the witness to compute it, he should have an opportunity to do so.

Mr. Avakian: I used the adding machine.

The Court: I am in no position or inclined to reject the question, whether or not it should be answered, on condition he might ask one or two other questions. I can't do that. As to these other years, that is a matter for counsel to decide whether he wants to present a different computation of other years. That is his province, not the Court's, so I am going to permit the question and if the witness needs time to make the computation he may have time. Call in the jury.

Mr. Campbell: Pardon me, may I make one further objection with respect to the contents of the question, and that is as to the Robert Jeffress note, which is assumed to be a liability at the end of 1946. I submit there is no evidence in the record to support that assertion. As to the others, I have no doubt there can be found some basis for counsel's contention.

Mr. Avakian: Would your Honor like to hear me on that point?

The Court: Yes, on that point I would like to have some argument.

Mr. Avakian: I think there is even more basis for inferring the existence of that loan at the end of 1946, than there is for inferring the existence at the end of 1946, of the 65 thousand dollar asset which your Honor permitted to be included in Exhibit 183. You recall that the 65 thousand dollar asset was simply a check payable to Kyne. Remember in November of 1946, Mr. Kyne said he cashed the check, put the money in Box 48——

Mr. Campbell: Got thousand dollar bills and personally turned over to Mr. Remmer at 50 Mason Street.

Mr. Avakian: We have then money in Mr. Rem-mer's possession early in November in 1946, and no evidence it was in his possession on December 31st. Now your Honor ruled in substance that it would be a permissive inference for the jury to assume that that money, which was last identified early in November as being in Mr. Remmer's hands, was still in his hands at the end of 1946. Now if that is a permissive inference, your Honor, then we submit it is likewise a permissive inference, even more so, that a loan, evidenced by a note on September 27, 1946, was still in existence at the end of 1946, particularly in view of the two things: One is the fact that there was a payment in July, 1947, of some 23 thousand dollars, which permits the inference the loan had not yet been repaid prior to that time, and secondly, your Honor, there is the rule that in a criminal case the just must resolve all reasonable doubts in favor of the defendant, so that the jury, in drawing inferences as to whether that loan was in existence at the end of 1946, must resolve all doubts in favor of the defendant, and in view of that rule, it would be proper for them to infer and conclude that that loan was still in existence at the end of 1946, so that we have here, your Honor, a situation which is in a sense comparable to the 65 thousand dollar item which your Honor permitted the prosecution to include on the permissive inference basis and in view of the rule of doubts being resolved in favor of the defendant, we think we are in stronger position to support our contention.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: The jury may or may not infer that that loan was still outstanding at the end of 1946.

Mr. Avakian: I think that is right, your Honor.

The Court: I will permit that to be included in the questions. We will call in the jury.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Mr. Avakian: I understand your Honor has ruled the witness may answer the question.

The Court: Yes, the witness may answer the question.

Mr. Avakian: I wonder if we may have the question read, so the answer will be intelligent.

(Question read.)

Q. Have you made that computation, Mr. Brady? A. Yes, I did.

Q. What was the adjusted net worth figure resulting from the assumptions made on that question?

Mr. Campbell: I object to the question in that form—adjusted net worth. He can state the figure.

Q. What was the figure that resulted for the end of 1946, from making those adjustments?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

A. Assuming the figures you gave me, and the balances, the net worth would be $135,325.82.

Q. Now, Mr. Brady, in order to properly compute the net income by the net worth method for each of the years, 1944, 1945, and 1946, the making of the adjustments which I assumed in my question for the year 1946, would call for making of comparable type adjustment for each of the other years, in order to reach a consistent conclusion on net worth increase income?

Mr. Campbell: That is assuming that the adjustments were correct in your question. [2542]

Mr. Avakian: Yes, are comparable type of adjustments as called for.

A. Any adjustment that we would make to the previous net worth would affect the increase, yes.

Q. Now isn't it true, Mr. Brady, that if during each of the years involved in this indictment you had given effect to the partnerships in the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe, the Day-Night Cigar Store, 110 Eddy Street, Menlo Club, and Transit Smoke Shop, and if you eliminated the cash on hand at the end of 1946, of 65 thousand dollars, and if you included in the liability at the end of 1946, a 50 thousand dollar obligation to Robert L. Jeffers, the amount of income computed on the net worth method, on the basis of giving effect to those factors, would be approximately the same for the three-year period as a whole as Mr. Remmer reported in his income tax returns?

Mr. Campbell: That is objected to as calling for

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

certain legal conclusions of this witness. That is a general statement giving effect to partnerships which calls for interpretation on the part of this witness, particularly in relation to the Menlo Club, as to the meaning of the agreement entered into in July of 1946.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I am only asking him to assume for that question the matters which are testified to by every witness the prosecution has called, namely, that they were partnerships and that partnership income was reported by the [2543] different partners on a proportionate percentage basis and tax paid on that basis.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. Before answering that question, I believe it would only be fair to make a computation of this.

Q. Have you ever made such a computation, Mr. Brady? A. No, I have not.

Q. That would be a lengthy job, would it not?

A. Well, I wouldn't want to do it right off-hand here, because I want to be correct.

Q. During the period that you have been assigned to this case, since you were first assigned to it in 1950, you have never made such a computation?

A. Never made the computation that you mentioned, no.

Q. By that do you mean, Mr. Brady, that you have, during that period, made computations for these three years different in any respect from computations shown in Exhibit 183?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not proper cross-examination.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: I can cite you some authority on that, your Honor.

The Court: Well, the objection is sustained.

Mr. Avakian: Do you care to listen to the authority, your Honor? [2544]

The Court: No, proceed.

Q. Now, Mr. Brady, in Exhibit 183 for the year 1945, you have computed an understatement of income at the very bottom line of the exhibit, which you have designated as difference in amount, of $11,747.04, isn't that correct?

A. That is the amount that year, yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Brady, if we left Exhibit 183 exactly as it is, except for this one change of counting in the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe bank roll only 5 thousand in cash and excluding the 15 thousand in accounts receivable, there would be no understatement of income then on Exhibit 183 for that year, 1945, isn't that correct?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for his conclusion as to whether or not there would be an understatement of income. I think the witness can be asked to make the computation, but to draw his conclusions is not proper.

The Court: Yes, objection is sustained.

Q. Very well. Mr. Brady, take Exhibit 183 exactly as you have prepared it, with this one change, for the year 1945 eliminate from the B. & R. Smoke

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

Shoppe bank roll the 15 thousand dollars in markers. What would be the total income computation for the year 1945 with that adjustment?

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute—I also object to the question on the same grounds, that it is calling for a conclusion. I will stipulate with counsel if you eliminate [2545] $11,747.04, or any amount in excess of that, from that column of figures there would be nothing.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, the importance of the question is, in the B. & R. bank roll the testimony is there was five thousand cash and 15 thousand accounts receivable. Now Mr. Weaver has testified he used those two together in the 20 thousand bank roll figure, although the evidence——

The Court: Answer the question.

A. I think before we answer that, I think we have to take into account the same factors for the previous years. In other words, if there were accounts receivable in 1944 and accounts receivable in 1945 eliminated, both of those, why I do not think we could come up with that same picture.

Q. You know, do you not, Mr. Brady, that the first time any testimony relating to accounts receivable, as distinguished from cash, in the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe bank roll is Mr. Pritchett's testimony as of the end of 1945?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative.

Mr. Avakian: That is evidence, your Honor.

Mr. Campbell: And counsel's statement of the evidence.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Now with respect to the item in Exhibit 183 shown as to Gene Schriber, which is the last liability item that appears for the first time in Exhibit 183 at the end of the year 1945, does it not? [2546]

A. That is correct.

Q. And you have taken the figure of 100 thousand dollars from Exhibit 140, have you not?

A. Yes.

Q. If, in lieu of the 100 thousand dollar liability figure shown on Exhibit 140 you had used the figure of 125 thousand dollars shown on Exhibit 125C, is it not true, Mr. Brady, that the amount of income computed for the year 1945 on Exhibit 183 would then be less than the amount reported by Mr. Remmer. A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. That one adjustment alone would completely eliminate any understatement of income for that year?

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute—that calls for his conclusion.

The Court: That may go out.

Q. Now, Mr. Brady, you made the statement that the books and records of some of these enterprises were not entirely complete. In the course of your investigation and examination in this case since you were first assigned to it, have you examined books and records or other papers of any of the enterprises listed on Exhibit 183, other than the books, records and papers which have been presented here in court during this trial?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object. I recall no testimony by which this witness characterized any of the books [2547] and records in the case. His sole testimony has been, aside from matters which he picked up, have been figures which——

Mr. Avakian: I can read it here.

The Court: Counsel says he can read it to us. Maybe he can.

Mr. Avakian: From page 2511, in answer to the question:

"And that is true of each of the businesses that are enumerated, isn't that so, Mr. Brady?"

he said:

"Well, I don't know. I would like to see the other exhibits because I believe some of these books did not show all the assets, so it would be pretty hard to get a correct net worth from the books."

Now, your Honor, other witnesses have said that the books and records are inaccurate, so we would like to find out what they are, we would like to find out how inaccurate these books are.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Avakian: We would like to make an offer of proof, your Honor.

The Court: Yes, do you want to send the jury out now?

Mr. Avakian: Could we send them out a few minutes early of the noon recess, send them out at that time, your Honor?

The Court: All right.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, except for that one point, that [2548] would conclude my cross-examination of Mr. Brady, so unless your Honor would permit me to go into it, I would be through with him.

The Court: We will excuse the jury for about 10 minutes.

(Jury and alternate juror admonished and excused at 11:10 a.m.)

(In the absence of the jury.)

RE: QUESTION TO BRADY

(Feb. 5, 1952—Notebook 339, pp. 93-99.)

The Court: I would like to have the question read.

Q. (Read): Now, Mr. Brady, you made the statement that the books and records of some of these enterprises were not entirely complete. In the course of your investigation and examination in this case, since you were first assigned to it, have you examined books and records or other papers of any of the enterprises listed on Exhibit 183, other than the books, records and papers which have been presented here in court during this trial?

The Court: What is your objection to that question, Mr. Campbell?

Mr. Campbell: It is this, your Honor. At the cross-examination of Mr. Brady yesterday his attention was called on Exhibit 163, a chart, he said he took the net worth figures of 110 Eddy Street

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

from and put them on this chart. His attention was directed to, in the lower portion of Exhibit 163, the statement: "Capital accounts per books," and he was asked this question: "Now in preparing Exhibit 183 * * * 'which is the chart,' * * * you did not take the amount of Mr. Remmer's capital account shown on the lower portion of that exhibit, but rather took the figure shown as total net worth of the entire business, did you not?

"A. Yes, we took the net worth as shown on the business for Mr. Remmer.

"Q. And that is true of each of this businesses that I enumerated a few moments ago, isn't that true, Mr. Brady?

"A. Well, I don't know, I would like to see the other exhibits because I believe some of these books did not show all the assets, so it would be pretty hard to get a correct net worth from the books."

Now my point is this—that this is not a matter of the adequacy or inadequacy of the books which was gone into on direct examination of this witness. He testified as to the source of these figures and instructions he received to put them in here. Now we have come in through other witnesses in detail whether the books contained all the assets or did not. It seems to me that here where after that matter has been covered by witnesses and is not within the scope of the direct examination of this witness, that we should not take the time to again go through these matters, if my objection is valid, and I am sure it is valid, and I make it upon the grounds it is not within the scope of direct examination.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: Here is the thought that occurs to me now. He made a statement here that he made computations based upon certain exhibits in the record and he produced a computation.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: It would seem to me perfectly proper for counsel to inquire if he had used any other material than the material inquired about on direct examination.

Mr. Campbell: That is not the question.

The Court: That is what I understand to be the question. Let us have the question read.

(Question read.)

The Court: I think if we eliminated that introductory part of that question, it might obviate your objection.

Mr. Avakian: My question is broader than that. May I have a moment to state my position on it.

The Court: What is your question? How does it extend any farther than what was just read?

Mr. Avakian: It does not extend farther than it was read, but it does extend farther than it would if that first part were eliminated. In other words, I do not want to leave the question in the manner you have stated because what I want to get at is this—the witness has testified that the books and records were inadequate. Now it is a rule of law that the net worth method can be used only, your Honor, if the books and records maintained by the taxpayer are inadequate and insufficient to prepare computation of income on the book method and if the net worth method on the basis of all the available evidence is a better acounting method than the book method. Now that, we anticipate, will be an instruction which your Honor will give to the jury. Now the jury would have to decide, your Honor, as a preliminary matter, whether they are going to use the net worth method or the book method. In deciding that, they are going to have to know whether books and records maintained by these businesses were adequate and sufficient to permit computation of income on the book method and they can not determine that, your Honor, unless they know what was in existence. Now we have heard Mr. Brady, Mr. Weaver and other prosecution witnesses make the statement that the books and records are inadequate, but your Honor, we want to show that that charge is not being made in good faith because they have on the third floor of this building books and records of these businesses which they are not producing in court, they are not allowing the jury to see what was being maintained to let the jury decide what was adequate. They sit here and make statements and won't produce books and allow us to see them. It isn't fair to the defense to let these witnesses, who know they have these books and records upstairs, cartons of them, who know that, to get up here and say the books and records are inadequate but you can't look at all the books and records that are here, you have to take my word for it.

Now we want to show that the books and records and other papers maintained by these witnesses are insufficient from an acounting point of view, we want the jury to decide whether they are insufficient or not; we want these witnesses, when they say the records are inadequate, to produce records kept by these businesses, maintained by these businesses, in the course of business. Let us produce them in court. Why all this mystery? Why statements the books are inadequate and yet refusal to bring them in? It is a matter of fairness to any defendant to let the jury decide directly from the facts, rather than conclusions and opinions of a witness.

The Court: You said you wanted the jury sent out to make an offer of proof. This is an argument on whether or not this question should be permitted. What is your offer of proof?

Mr. Avakian: My offer of proof, your Honor, is to show that the prosecution has in its possession the books and records and other papers maintained by these various businesses shown on Exhibit 183 in the regular course of business in regard to the years 1944, 1945 and 1946, which books, records and papers are in the possession of the prosecution in this building and have not been produced in the court room.

We offer to prove further that the statement of the witness, Mr. Brady, and others, that the books, records and papers maintained by these businesses were inadequate and insufficient is not true and is not correct because there are these additional papers which have not been produced. We offer to show that the statements of the proosecution's witnesses, to the effect that the books, records and papers are inadequate, are not made in good faith. That is the purpose of our offer.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: That is a proper matter for your case in chief.

Mr. Avakian: One thing more, your Honor. And as a part of that offer of proof, your Honor, we want to show that the production of all those papers, books and records now in the possession of the prosecution would show the adequacy of the business records and accounting methods maintained by these different businesses.

The Court: That is proper on your own case.

Mr. Avakian: These are government witnesses, your Honor. It is only through government witnesses we can show that.

The Court: All right, they are government witnesses.

Mr. Avakian: They testified in their examination and all we are doing is challenging on their testimony.

The Court: Let me have this question again. I am not going to permit this offer of proof on cross-examination of this witness, but I do not mean by that I would not permit you to make such proof in your case. Let us have the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Whether it is testified as to whether the books are inadequate or not, it seems to me would be immaterial. You may ask the part of that question that has to do with whether or not he examined any other books or records than the exhibits in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: I think the question also should be directed to examining them in connection with the preparation.

The Court: In connection with Exhibit 183.

Mr. Avakian: That is not the point I am interested. The offer of proof is what I am interested in.

The Court: I will not deny your offer of proof, but it is not proper at this stage of the examination.

Mr. Avakian: You are denying it so far as this witness is concerned?

The Court: Denying it on the government's case.

Mr. Avakian: In view of that ruling, may we move to strike the testimony of Mr. Brady, page 1125 of the transcript, reading as follows: "Well, I don't know. I would like to see the other exhibits because I believe some of these books did not show all the assets, so it would be pretty hard to get a correct net worth from the books."

The Court: Motion denied. So bring in the jury.

The Court: Counsel may inquire of the witness whether, in preparing or formulating Exhibit 183, he had recourse to any other than the records and exhibits in evidence in this case.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of A. V. Brady.)

Mr. Avakian: I understand the ruling on sustaining objection to the question I asked stands.

The Court: No, it does not stand. It is modified to the extent just mentioned.

Mr. Avakian: But as the question was asked, the objection stands sustained?

The Court: Read my question.

(Court's statement read.) [2549]

The Court: You may propound that question.

Mr. Avakian: That wasn't the question I was interested in.

The Court: Then you don't have to propound it.

Mr. Avakian: Then, your Honor, in view of your Honor's ruling on the question and in view of your Honor's ruling on the offer of proof, we have no further cross-examination.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Campbell: No redirect.

The Court: You may be excused.

Mr. Thompson: Your Honor, I would like to make a statement for the record. Certain witnesses have been subpoenaed and have not appeared to testify.

Mr. Golden: Of course, we don't know what Mr. Thompson is going to say, your Honor, but if he is not going to take the stand, I don't think we ought to take statements now.

Mr. Thompson: I intend to refer to part of the clerk's file in the case. If I make any statement prejudicial to the defendant, I have no doubt——

Mr. Golden: If there is any chance—and I believe from what Mr. Thompson says there will be a chance——

The Court: Suppose you have a conference and find out what it is, and if there is any objection, approach the bench and we will see what the situation is.

(Conference between counsel outside of hearing of jury.) [2550]

Mr. Thompson: We would like to take this matter up with the Court, your Honor, in the absence of the jury.

The Court: Very well, the jury will be excused.

Mr. Golden: Just as a practical matter, I understand from Mr. Thompson, after we have disposed of this matter, the prosecution intends to rest. If that is the case, there are certain legal matters we have to take up with the Court, which will take some time and only because of the present hour and as a practical matter, it might be practical to dispose of this matter and then excuse the jury for the balance of the day, if your Honor sees fit to do so, because we have certain matters which will take a little time.

The Court: I do not feel like excusing the jury for the balance of the day. I will excuse them until two o'clock.

Mr. Thompson: There are other criminal matters set for today.

The Court: From one to two.

Mr. Golden: Would your Honor like me to tell you privately what I have in mind?

The Court: Yes.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Conference at the bench between Court and counsel.)

The Court: We will excuse the jury just for a short time now.

(Jury and alternate jurors admonished and excused at [2551] 11:30 a.m.)

(In the absence of the jury.)

(Defendant present with counsel.)

Mr. Golden: If the Court please, perhaps if I say something first it might shorten the matter. I understand from Mr. Thompson that the statement he wished to make, without going into the detail of it, was to cover this subject matter, that a subpoena was served on Albert Villaudy at a particular date, and there are some letters here from doctors indicating his health would prevent him coming, and, secondly, a subpoena was served on William E. Fricker, and there was an affidavit from his wife and a doctor's certificate apparently that he was unable to be here; and third, that a subpoena was served on Masse Ditto and for medical reasons he also is unable to be here, and fourth, that some time last month that a subpoena was issued for a man by the name of Oscar Nelson and they were not able to serve the subpoena.

Mr. Thompson: As to Oscar Nelson, subpoenas were issued throughout the months of November and December, and finally a warrant was issued for him.

Mr. Golden: Anyway our point is this—we agree it is proper in a case to put on a witness, a sheriff of Washoe County or a police officer, whoever it may be, to testify as to his efforts to locate a witness who has not been produced in court and, of course, then the defense is entitled to [2552] cross-examine that public official as to his efforts and extent of them, and so on.

Now we would have no objection to stipulating that the first three persons I named had subpoenas served on them and for medical reasons did not appear here, that the checks of Mr. Villaudy were admitted in evidence by stipulation. As to the witness Nelson, in view of the hullabaloo which appeared in the press, which may or may not have come to the attention of some people on the jury, we are apprehensive that any statement made by Mr. Thompson, even though not so intended may be prejudicial to the defendant. We would be willing to stipulate that a subpoena was issued to Mr. Nelson and not served, but if it is going farther than that, we would want the man who says he couldn't find him to become a witness so we could cross-examine him.

The Court: Why wouldn't that be sufficient?

Mr. Thompson: That is satisfactory.

The Court: So now we understand that counsel will stipulate that the first three witnesses named, due to illness, can not be produced here, is that correct?

Mr. Golden: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: And as to the witness Nelson, the subpoena was issued and the witness was not found by the officer, is that satisfactory?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Thompson: That is satisfactory. [2553]

The Court: That is the whole situation. Now we will call the jury back.

Mr. Golden: I think the stipulation should include that two checks of one of those persons were admitted by stipulation.

The Court: That is up to Mr. Thompson, if he wants to accept that.

11:35 A.M.

(Defendant present with counsel.)

(Presence of the jury and alternate jurors stipulated.)

The Court: Mr. Thompson?

Mr. Thompson: Your Honor, I understand it has been stipulated that subpoenas were served on the following witnesses: Albert Villaudy, William E. Fricker, and Masse Ditto, to appear to testify at this trial; that each of those three persons is unable to attend for medical reasons. It has also been stipulated that subpoena has been issued for Oscar E. Nelson and the officer was unable to serve the subpoena, that he could not find Mr. Nelson, and in connection with Albert Villaudy, Mr. Golden has requested me to mention that two checks were admitted in evidence by stipulation of the defense which had been received from Mr. Villaudy.

Mr. Golden: That is correct, your Honor, we so stipulate.

Mr. Thompson: We rest, your Honor.

RE: MOTION TO STRIKE—MOTION FOR ACQUITTAL

(Febr. 5, 1952—Notebook 340—pp. 4-34.)

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we desire at this time to make a number of motions to strike, with respect to testimony and exhibits which we feel have not been properly connected up or not properly in evidence. They will relate to approximately a dozen matters and then after that we desire to make——

The Court: I do not believe we have encountered that procedure before. It seems to me after testimony is given and after objection it was admitted in evidence—the evidence was not admitted subject to any motions to strike.

Mr. Avakian: There were a number of matters in which, in overruling our objections, your Honor stated if the matter was not connected we could make motions to strike. There are a number of them in that category.

The Court: We will see what they are.

Mr. Avakian: In most instances that are unrelated to each other and I do not know whether your Honor would like to have me run through them or rule one at a time.

The Court: We had better take one at a time.

BLEED THROUGH- POOR COPY

Mr. Avakian: Very well. First of all, with respect to Exhibits 17, 18 and 19, which are insurance policies introduced by the witness Scollin, and the related testimony of Mr. Scollin, begins at page 49 of the transcript and continues for a number of pages. I call your Honor's attention to the fact that the prosecution did not use any of this evidence in totalling Exhibit 183, the over-all statement of net worth. There is no showing in the evidence that the insurance payments were non-deductible expenditures and the prosecution did not attempt to use them in that way in 183. There is no showing as to the cost of the articles which are mentioned in the insurance policies and statement in the policies of the insured value would be misleading, in the event the jury should take the exhibits in the jury room; and likewise no showing as to the date of acquisition which would be essential in order for them to enter into computation of net worth. That is the motion in respect to those factors, your Honor.

The Court: I will hear counsel in opposition.

Mr. Thompson: In that connection the government is entitled to argue that the standard of living maintained by this defendant, in connection with his personal expenditures in chart, Exhibit 183, have not been computed at any definite figure, but which the jury is entitled to take into consideration in determining whether or not this defendant did report his true income, as computed on the net worth basis. These insurance policies are connected with the actual personal expenditures proved to have been paid by the defendant during the years in question, in that he paid the premiums on the policies and the policies themselves further show that they covered personal property, floater insurance on articles as mink coats, valuable items of jewelry, and matters of that sort. It appears to us that they are very relevant and material in a case of this character and that, although the government has not attempted to fix the defendant's non-deductible personal expenses at a certain figure each year, still the jury is entitled to take into consideration, in deciding this case, the standard of living maintained by the defendant.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I think the answer to Mr. Thompson's argument is there is no showing that any of these articles were acquired during the years 1944, 1945 and 1946. Unless they were acquired during those years, they would have no bearing. The burden being on the prosecution to establish the guilt of the defendant, it would not be proper to leave room for speculation as to when they were acquired, and in fact I think the testimony of the witness was that these were renewal policies, indicating that some items, at least some of them, were insured prior to 1944.

The Court: The motion to strike Exhibits 17, 18 and 19 is denied.

Mr. Avakian: The next, your Honor, relates to the testimony and also to Exhibit 42, which is Mrs. Badovinatz's testimony. Your Honor will recall that Mr. Badovinatz testified in February of 1947, which is after the indictment period, her husband,

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

now deceased, told her he was going down to the bank to buy a cashier's check for five thousand dollars to send to Mr. Remmer to repay a loan. At the time that conversation was admitted into evidence, the prosecution stated that they expected to connect that up. Subsequently, through the Bank of America's representative, Exhibit 42 was introduced and that is cashier's check for five thousand dollars, issued in February of 1947, payable to Mr. Remmer and at that time, in connection with our objection, the prosecution stated that they expected to connect that matter up by relating it to some transaction that occurred during the indictment period and your Honor stated at that time, page 172 of the transcript, that you might reconsider a motion to strike in the event it were not connected. Now the only questions that were asked of any witnesses thereafter regarding that loan was inquiry of Mr. Kyne, pages 1024 and 1025 of the transcript, as to whether he knew anything about such a loan and he said he had no knowledge regarding it, so that as the record now stands there has been no showing whatsoever as to the date at which that money was loaned to Mr. Badovinatz, and of course it would be immaterial if the money were loaned after 1946. It would likewise be immaterial if the money were loaned prior to 1944. In other words, this could be material only if the loan were made during 1944, 1945 or 1946, and there is nothing in the evidence from which any inference could be drawn as to the date on which the loan was made, and I call again to your Honor's attention the fact that in Exhibit 183, the prosecution regarding the Badovinatz loan has just entered a loan for each of the years, indicating that they have not attempted to use that loan in making their computations in Exhibit 183 and we feel it has not been connected up and for that reason ask your Honor to reconsider the matter and to grant our motion to strike.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Thompson: With reference to that loan, your Honor, I believe that Mr. Avakian's recitation of the testimony in evidence is substantially correct. Your Honor will note that the loan was repaid February 7, 1947. It would have to have been made within a period of 38 days prior to the repayment for the date not to be material in this case. That is, if the loan was made in the year 1946, 1945 or 1944, it would be material, also if it was made prior to December 31, 1943, it would be material in setting the starting net worth of the defendant. As I understand a case of this character, the government makes a thorough investigation and lists at the starting point all of the assets of the defendant which its investigation discloses the defendant owned at that time. Now the only question of materiality relates to whether or not it can reasonably be inferred that this loan was made prior to December 31, 1946. Now your Honor has noted from Exhibit 183 that the government has not attempted to include that loan as an amount in net worth computation. Nevertheless, we believe it can well be argued from the testimony of Willie Kyne, who testified, as I recall it, that Mr. Badovinatz had an interest in Calvada Lodge, which is adjacent to Cal-Neva Lodge at Lake Tahoe, that the opportunity of Mr. Remmer, who managed Cal-Neva Lodge, to see Mr. Badovinatz would have occurred during the season of 1946, or at least during one of the summer seasons when those places are open, they being closed normally after Labor Day of each year. It is not an especially important item in this case, your Honor, but we think the evidence is present from which a reference can reasonably be drawn that the loan was made prior to December 31, 1946.

Mr. Avakian: Now, your Honor, I do not know of any evidence in the record, other than at page 1024, from Mr. Kyne regarding Mr. Badovinatz, and that is simply that he was acquainted with him, his first name was Arley, I believe; he lived most of the time in Stockton or Fresno (reads from page 1024 of transcript). That is all the testimony I have been able to find.

The Court: My recollection is there was some testimony about his being up at the Lake.

Mr. Avakian: There was testimony of Mrs. Badovinatz, I believe, that her husband had an interest in Calvada Lodge, not Cal-Neva, with which this defendant has no connection. Your Honor, we do not think the jury could properly infer, in a case in which they are required to resolve all reasonable doubts in favor of the defendant, any proper inference could be drawn by the jury that the loan repaid on February 7th was negotiated during the years covered by the indictment. There is no proper basis on which any inference can be drawn as to the time.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Thompson: I would like to make one further suggestion, your Honor. I think the evidence in the record is material to show the scope and thoroughness of the investigation conducted by the government agents and the effort made to cover every possible item of asset or liability during the period in question, and in view of the treatment that the government has accorded this particular subject, that is, that it has not been included in the net worth statements, it seems to me that the evidence in the record is material on the basis that I mentioned.

Mr. Avakian: We disagree with that. They are assuming matters here. If your Honor wishes, I will go into it further, but in view of the time, if your Honor is satisfied you have points from both sides, I am willing to submit the motion.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Avakian: Next, in respect to Exhibit 15 and Exhibit 60, which are Cal-Neva floor stock tax returns. I believe that one return is typical of another, except one has attached to it an inventory of the Gallagher and Burton whiskey which was in storage in Reno. Those, your Honor, are returns of Cal-Neva, Inc., and not of the defendant. There is no showing whatsoever that the defendant paid the tax shown on those returns and no showing whatsoever that whoever did pay the tax paid that on behalf of the defendant, and in the absence of such a showing, I respectfully suggest that the matter has not been properly connected and move it be stricken.

BLEED THROUGH-- POOR COPY

Mr. Thompson: If the Court please, in that connection it has been shown that the whiskey upon which tax was paid belonged to the defendant and that he paid to Mr. Pete Barengo some sixty thousand dollars out in cash for that whiskey. There are no indications on the books of Cal-Neva that the money was paid by Cal-Neva or by Mr. Remmer on behalf of Cal-Neva and credited to his account with that corporation. Inasmuch as the whiskey, upon which the tax was paid, belonged to Mr. Remmer and the floor tax returns show on their face that tax in the amount of some seven thousand odd dollars was paid in cash, that there was no entry in the books of Cal-Neva, indicating that that payment was made by Cal-Neva, Inc., we think it is a fair inference from the evidence that Mr. Remmer paid that money himself. He is the one who signed the return, and it also can be argued that it is conceivable that the reason the return was made in the name of Cal-Neva, Inc., rather than Elmer Remmer was that Mr. Remmer may not have had a wholesale liquor dealer's license at that time, while Cal-Neva may have had such a license.

Mr. Avakian: Well, the evidence does not bear out what Mr. Thompson states. It is all speculative, and the rule is clear that a jury may not draw inferences on the basis of speculation. It must be based on evidence.

The Court: The motion will be denied.

Mr. Avakian: Next, your Honor, is the matter which appears at page 821 to 824 of the transcript, in which Mr. Campbell called a Mr. Lando, asked him if he knew certain people whom he named, among others Sacramento Sam and Crying Mac. At that time the defense asked that this be stricken. The witness answered he did not know them, and we asked that these questions be stricken, that the answers be stricken, for the reason that it was our belief that the prosecution, in questioning his own witness about this matter, probably knew that he did not know these people and was asking the questions with respect to these particular names for the purpose of providing some ridicule. The Court at this time and counsel engaged in this conversation with the Court: (Reads from page 821 of the transcript.) Now, your Honor, there was no further testimony in the case with respect to these names. As far as we can tell, there has been nothing offered here by the prosecution which shows any significance in the names of Sacramento Sam and Crying Mac. There has been no evidence we can find which connects up that testimony with any material issue in this case and in view of the fact it not having been connected up on the expectations of the prosecution, we believe that the evidence in that connection should be stricken.

The Court: The witness stated he didn't know either one of these men?

Mr. Avakian: That is right.

The Court: It merely resolves itself to straightening out a question and the motion will be denied.

Mr. Avakian: The next, your Honor, Exhibit 58, which is a ledger sheet of Bullock & Jones, together with the related testimony of the witness,

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Gillingham, beginning on page 289 of the transcript. That exhibit and testimony related to account of Mr. Remmer with Bullock & Jones, by far the greater portion of which was made up of merchandise orders and no evidence whatsoever, your Honor, that any of the expenditures reflected by that exhibit and testimony were non-deductible expenditures and, of course, if they are deductible they are not material. The burden of proof is on the prosecution and it is the duty of the jury——

The Court (Interceding): I do not see that argument, whether they are deductible or non-deductible. If the defendant had a considerable sum of money to spend for an item, would it make any difference in the over-all whether the money went for deductible or non-deductible.

Mr. Avakian: Yes, because of the unusual method of computing on net worth. The government agents themselves testified on the stand in computing net income what we are concerned with was non-deductible expenditures. Deductible expenditures are ignored and are of no consequence. It is only the non-deductible expenditures. They may be added to the increase in net worth in determining income by the net worth method.

The Court: Wouldn't it be some corroboration to have a chart here or exhibit showing a computation or testimony made from exhibits in the case of certain income at a certain period of time? Wouldn't it be some corroboration to show that he had considerable money to spend at that time?

Mr. Avakian: No, your Honor, because the net worth method deals not with the flow of money during the year, but rather with the changes in total net worth from the beginning to the end of the year in comparison. Not what happens during the year, your Honor, but rather the amount of change when you compare the end with the beginning of the year. What happens in the interim is immaterial unless it is reflected in some way in the assets on hand at the end. That is the peculiar thing about net worth method of computing income. Once you have computed the difference in the amount of net worth at the end of the year in comparison with the beginning, it is proper to add to that increase the amount of any non-deductible expenditures which the taxpayer has made during the year, but it is not proper to add any deductible expenditures which have been made in computing net income. That, your Honor, is the vice of leaving before the jury evidence of expenditures which have not been shown to be of a non-deductible nature, because the jury may mistakenly add those expenditures to the increased net worth, whereas, the matter is clear that only type of expenditures that may be added to net worth figures is non-deductible type of expenditures and the burden is on the prosecution to show the expenditures that they want the jury to consider are of a non-deductible nature. In other words, your Honor, a federal income tax payment is a non-deductible expenditure and it is proper to add federal income tax during the year to increase the net worth. On the other hand, a business expenditure, such as travel expenses or promotional expenses, the money spent for developing in some way, in cultivating patrons of business, anything of that kind that you would classify as business expenditure and, therefore, would be deductible, should not be added to the increase of net worth in computing the net income on the net worth method.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Thompson: I might point out in this connection Mr. Remmer kept no personal records. This is shown to be a personal account of Mr. Remmer with Bullock & Jones and the things which he purchased were merchandise orders. Now technically Mr. Avakian is correct when he states that deductible expenses can not be taken into consideration in computing income on a net worth basis, and conversely that non-deductible expenses, such as living expenses, can be taken into consideration, but such expenses are taken into consideration at any income tax computation only when they are claimed and proved by the taxpayer. Mr. Remmer's personal income tax returns in this case have no indication of claim of a business deduction or business expenditures of merchants orders purchased from Bullock & Jones. Presumably any purchases of that character are personal expenses. The best the government can do is to prove the expenses. We have gone into every record available, as shown by the testimony of the agents, and have identified these matters as best they can be identified. The presumption is, as I say that this is a personal expense. Normally merchants orders are purchased as gifts and generally the only gifts that are deductible under the income tax law are charitable contributions, and we suggest that the only fair inference that can be drawn from the evidence now before the Court is that this account of Mr. Remmer's with Bullock & Jones, a men's furnishing store, was a personal account and that the expenses which he paid in connection with that account were personal rather than business expenses. No taxpayer is entitled to any business deductions unless he claims them and proves them and he has to keep books and records to show them.

Mr. Avakian: I think Mr. Thompson overlooks the fact that in a criminal case the presumption is not against the defendant, but rather in his favor, and there is no proper basis upon which the jury could treat any expenditure as strictly personal. On the contrary, the jury in criminal cases are required, under the established rules, to treat all presumptions in favor of the defendant and to resolve all matters of that kind in his favor, unless they are overcome by evidence which removes all reasonable doubt. Insofar as these things are concerned, I specifically recall the testimony of Mr. Cavani that he used one of these orders to purchase a suit. Mr. Cavani was a business associate of Mr. Remmer's and a most proper inference to be drawn from that is that the merchants order here was given to him in the capacity as a business associate and that would be, or could be, properly a deductible business expenditure and if it could properly be, the jury would be entitled to draw that inference, your Honor.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: The motion is denied.

Mr. Avakian: Next Exhibit 89 and the related testimony at page 299 of the transcript. This is the account with Sulka and I believe your Honor will recall there were purchases of neckties in large quantities. I believe on one occasion 400 neckties were ordered on one date early in December of that particular year and the testimony of Mr. McCaffery was that they did a large business with people who used their neckties to give as presents in their business. The testimony of various witnesses indicates, I believe Maundrell and Lando first and Kyne, and even others, was that the Sulka neckties were given as presents to patrons of these businesses and that they helped pick them out and in some instances they recommended to Mr. Remmer the names of patrons to whom the neckties should be given and I think the manner of ordering the neckties, 400 at a time, and the testimony in the record as to the use made of them, and also the time of the year they were purchased, all, your Honor, tends to treat the purchase of these neckties as a business expenditure. There is no evidence whatsoever to the contrary, so we believe there is no proper basis, except speculation, which is improper, there is no basis upon which the jury could properly question that these should be treated as non-deductible expenditures.

Mr. Thompson: In the first place I would like to take issue with Mr. Avakian as to the testimony. I think that the only persons who testified they received a Sulka tie were Mr. Kyne, Mr. Lando and

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Maundrell. Each one of them is alleged to be a partner of Mr. Remmer's, and perhaps Mr, Cavani also, but he is a partner, too, and you would have to go a long way to hold that a gift to a business partner is a business deduction. I think most of us are in the habit of making Christmas presents to our business partners and members of our firm and I doubt if any one of us claims that as business deductions. In addition, it is my recollection that the ledger account of the Menlo Club shows that the bill for Sulka & Company was paid by the Menlo Club out of Mr. Remmer's personal account, rather than as a business expense of the Menlo Club. Whatever books are available of the 110 Eddy Street and Day-Night Cigar Store, do not indicate any charges on those books of payments to A. Sulka & Company as promotional or advertising expense. The returns of Mr. Remmer do not show any claimed deduction for those items. A person is entitled to make gifts to whoever he pleases and if he does so, he is spending his money as personal expenditures unless it can be clearly shown it was a matter of advertising of some particular business, and I think it is immaterial how many Christmas gifts a man purchases—some people give many gifts and some people few, but nevertheless those gifts are not recognized under income tax matters as deductible business expenses.

Mr. Avakian: I think Mr. Thompson overlooks the testimony of some witnesses that they recommended the names of patrons to receive these ties and helped pack them, wrap them up or deliver them.

The Court: The motion is denied.

Mr. Avakian: Next Exhibit No. 71 and related testimony on page 469 of the transcript. That is the account of the custom tailors of New York. The only testimony in the record of the use made of the suits purchased there was the testimony of Mr. Maundrell that he received one of those himself, and he being a business associate, partner as Mr. Thompson calls him, of Mr. Remmer's in the Menlo Club, the use of the money for that purpose could properly be classed as an expenditure of ordinary and necessary business nature and would then be deductible, and in view of the rule, the jury would have to resolve doubts in favor of the defendant, there would be no proper basis on which they could do otherwise.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Avakian: Next, your Honor, is the Blackstone Hotel account ledger sheets in Chicago, Exhibits 100 and 100A, together with the related testimony of Mr. Strong, transcript page 699. The sole evidence on record is that Mr. Remmer stayed at that hotel on certain occasions and incurred and paid certain bills in connection with it. There is no showing whatsoever that those expenditures were of a non-deductible nature and so on the basis of the argument in support to other motions, we submit it should be stricken.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Thompson: I might interrupt to point out in connection with the last item, I do not recall any reservations of a motion to strike in connection with that testimony.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: I do not think so.

Mr. Avakian: Well, I have in the first place the practice to which we have been accustomed to. That is not an answer——

The Court: Well, this is the first time I have ever seen it done this way.

Mr. Avakian: To be frank, this is the first time we have ever heard it should not be done this way. It is just we have been accustomed to different practices, apparently.

The Court: How many more do you have?

Mr. Avakian: I have two more of this expenditure nature and two others as to which I believe there was a reservation, your Honor, for motion to strike.

The Court: All right, let us have them.

Mr. Avakian: The next is Exhibit 101, ledger sheet of Shreve & Company, with related testimony commencing on page 710. Our motion is again based on the fact that there is no evidence in the record to show non-deductible nature.

The Court: What was the article purchased?

Mr. Avakian: There were a number of items, I believe, I believe some repairs to jewelry, there are some wallets, I believe, and I forget the exact total of it.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Avakian: Next is Exhibit 16 of the Stanley Furniture Company, testimony of Mr. Hill. We move to strike that exhibit and testimony on the same grounds.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: That had to do with some house at El Cerrito?

Mr. Avakian: Partly and partly office furniture.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Avakian: Next, your Honor, is the testimony of Mr. Ezralow, with respect to the charts that were marked for identification as Exhibits 154, A and B. Your Honor will recall when Mr. Ezralow was on the stand, he presented some blue and red colored charts which purported to show a number of related cases, cases related to this one, and over our objection that there were numerous names of individuals and firms mentioned on those charts which had not been shown in this evidence to be in any way connected with Mr. Remmer, your Honor suggested that the charts should be revised, Mr. Campbell related that he would have them revised but that was never done and we feel that the testimony that was given by Mr. Ezralow with respect to those charts, which have never been admitted in evidence and never been revised, should be stricken.

Mr. Thompson: Those charts are not in evidence and can not be used and I do not recall that Mr. Ezralow gave any testimony of the contents of those charts.

The Court: The charts are not in evidence.

Mr. Avakian: My motion goes to his testimony in respect to the matter.

The Court: The names were not disclosed?

Mr. Avakian: The names were not disclosed but there was testimony preparing the charts with respect to many related cases.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Avakian: Then, your Honor, this final one. A group of exhibits and related testimony relating to the 186 Club, and your Honor will recall that we objected to evidence relating to the 186 Club returns on the ground the 186 Club was a corporation and that unless and until it was shown that Mr. Remmer received income from the 186 Club over and above the amount of salary which he reported in his individual return, testimony regarding that matter would be immaterial. There is in evidence, offered by the prosecution, returns of the 186 Club, which are Exhibits 87, 87A, 88 and 88A. There is a chart prepared by Mr. Mooser, Exhibit 166. There is a letter to Mr. Boland, Exhibit 167; there is the Silverman-Kyne escrow relating to the purchase, Exhibit 43; there is the employment tax returns, Exhibit 131, and then there are various poker sheets which are Exhibits 110 to 110F inclusive. In preparing Exhibit 183, your Honor, the prosecution has not shown any amount as an asset to Mr. Remmer for the 186 Club. There is simply a dash after each year, although the club is listed in the various businesses mentioned. Now, there is no evidence whatsoever, your Honor, that Mr. Remmer had any net worth in the 186 Club. On the contrary, the evidence is the money, the purchase price, was put up by Kopstake and Nealis and was repaid to them. There was no testimony, there is no exhibit, that would indicate that Mr. Remmer had any investment at any time in the 186 Club and the prosecution has not attempted to set forth any investment of Mr. Remmer in the 186 Club in preparing their summary, Exhibit 183, and so we move your Honor to strike all those exhibits, together with the related testimony of the witnesses Kyne, Maundrell, Casselini, Busterna, Mooser, Ezralow, Lando and Silverman, on the ground that those exhibits and that testimony have not been connected with any issue in this case.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Thompson: With relation to the 186 Club, your Honor, this is not included in Exhibit 183 net worth statement because there is no evidence in the case that that asset cost Mr. Remmer anything, and inasmuch as it is, and has been, recognized as a corporation for income tax purposes, well it would be immaterial throughout the three-year period what figure you would put it in at; it would be the same figure right through the three years. However, that evidence relating to the 186 Club is very relevant and material in the case to prove a source of income to Mr. Remmer. Although the reports of income were made as a corporation, it is very apparent that it is a very peculiar type of corporation. There was no stock; it was incorporated as a social club, a non-profit corporation under California law. The actual beneficial owners of the club after the first year, as disclosed by the evidence, were Mr. Remmer, Mr. Kyne, Mr. Busterna, and Mr. Lando. Mr. Lando and Mr. Kyne testified that they did not get anything out of the club. Mr. Busterna testified he got his salary each year and a bonus, that is, he got a bonus each year and $25 a day salary and in addition to that there was another partner, Mr. Casselini, who also did not get anything out of it. Mr. Busterna testified the club made money every year while he was acting manager, from 1944, 1945 and 1946. The club kept no books. There is no indication of what happened to the money that was made, other than testimony to the effect that each day a representative of Mr. Remmer's, either Mr. Kyne or Mr. Busterna or Mr. Lando, would go to the club in the morning and pick up the receipts and take them to the office of 50 Mason Street.

The Court: The motion will be denied.

Mr. Avakian: Now, your Honor, that completes the motions to strike and at this time I would like to make a motion for acquittal, based on the grounds that the prosecution's evidence does not make a prima facie case which would warrant submission of the case to the jury.

The Court: That motion will be denied.

Mr. Avakian: Would your Honor care to be heard? There are some cases we think are squarely in point on the facts in this case, dealing with the defect——

The Court: What is the law?

Mr. Avakian: I will refer specifically to two cases which I would like to discuss in connection with the motion. One is the case of Bryan vs. United States, which was decided by the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in 1949, 175 Fed. (2), 223, and the other case which we believe is right on the point is United States vs. Fenwick, decided by the 7th Circuit Court of Appeals in 1949, 177 Fed. (2), 488.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: What is the point in the Bryan case?

Mr. Avakian: The point in the Bryan case is specifically this, that government agents admitted that at the starting point of the indictment period—it was a net worth case—they admitted that their computations did not include all of the cash that might have been in existence, but they said they simply included the assets as to which they determined the value. Now, your Honor, the case——

The Court (Interceding): Is that the point you made here because they couldn't show the amount of money in the safe or safety deposit boxes?

Mr. Avakian: On that particular point, that is it exactly.

The Court: That would be putting a premium on proving your money?

Mr. Avakian: No, your Honor, there is no obligation under the law for anybody to refrain from using a safety deposit box, nor is there any obligation under the law to keep any record for future use as to what you have in safety boxes.

The Court: If that is the point, I am not going to entertain it. What other point?

Mr. Avakian: That is one. This is case on appeal and conviction was reversed with the statement motions should be measured——

The Court (Interceding): I am not going to entertain that one.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, that is supported by the general rule applied to the 9th circuit also. If your Honor does not care to hear argument further——

BLURRED COPY

The Court (Interceding): On that point, no.

Mr. Avakian: Well, your Honor, our presentation would be necessarily more than that but specifically that would be the most important item, I believe. As a procedure matter, I might say the appellate courts have indicated to some extent in connection with motions for acquittal that in respect to any error that might have occurred in ruling on motion for acquittal, that the basis of the motion should be made to the trial court, so the trial court could exercise its judgment on it and in order that we might not be prejudiced in that respect, in the event the question should ever arise, your Honor, we would like either the opportunity for full presentation of our position, or we would like to have your Honor rule that, although we have made that request, you do not wish to take the time to entertain it; either way, so we won't be prejudiced.

The Court: I can not see how a Court could reverse a case of this kind because investigators could not determine what was kept in a safe deposit box or a safe.

Mr. Avakian: Would you like to have me read to you where they hold motions of acquittal should be granted?

The Court: If it is on that ground, I would be glad to hear it.

Mr. Avakian: Yes, your Honor, that is what I have been trying to show, it is on that ground, and in order to show, let me give you the facts.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: Let me inquire if the Bryan and Fenwick cases are the law of this circuit?

Mr. Avakian: Absolutely, because really these cases are simply a particularization of this type of computing income on the net worth method on the general proposition that in a circumstantial evidence case, the case should not be submitted to the jury unless the evidence excludes every reasonable hypothesis of innocence. The Circuit Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit has continuously said that that is the rule of the circuit.

The Court: In other words, all that would be necessary to void the effect of all the other evidence of the case would be for the defendant to show that he had a safe deposit box somewhere and no one else knew what was in it except himself. That is what that would amount to.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor ignores the burden of proof and circumstantial evidence rule, and let me give you the facts in the Bryan case because I think it fits so exactly, insofar as this point is concerned. In the Bryan case the indictment alleged evasion for the years 1943 and 1944. The government sought to prove its case on the net worth expenditures method, and the Court said:

"The net worth-expenditures method of establishing net income, sought to be applied in this case, effective only if the computations of net worth at the beginning and at the end of the questioned periods can reasonably be accepted as accurate."

BLURRED COPY

Now, then, your Honor, in computing the defendant's proper net worth, the revenue agents gave him no credit for cash on hand at the beginning of the period, except what was in his bank account, and here is the testimony, your Honor. This question by the Court:

"Q. If you overlooked any assets that this defendant had, in your calculations, then your calculations would be in error or subject to revision?

"A. Yes, sir."

The Court: Wouldn't such erroneous calculations be in favor of the defendant?

Mr. Avakian: No, your Honor. It would depend. If the amount in cash was not included in the opening net worth and that amount was used to make inventory later, the omission of that cash from the opening net worth would work to his disadvantage. That is the point of the case. Here, for example, in this case we have evidence in December of 1943 $17,000 was put in this safe deposit box. There is nothing reflected for 1943 and these agents have admitted they couldn't determine the amount and for that reason put nothing in. The testimony is there was at all times money there. We do not mean that if they told us at the time they were going to compute on the net worth method, records could be kept, but the income tax law says you can compute income on the basis of receipts and disbursements or the net worth method and they come along six years later and try to put a man in jail because he doesn't at that time have records to show what he had in the safety box on December 31, 1943. There is nothing in the law that requires that records be kept.

In the Bryan case the questioning went on:

"Q. And you don't mean to say that he had no money whatsoever other than what is shown on that bank account, shown on January 1, 1941?

"A. I didn't say that.

"Q. Doesn't your audit assume that?

"A. That is all the money we could account for."

Then skipping down a few questions:

"Q. And yet you assume that the only monies he had were in the bank on the first day of January, 1941? A. That is all we took into account.

"Q. You don't know whether he had a lot of other money, or not? A. No, sir."

Now that is the end of the questioning, your Honor, and then the opinion of the appellate court goes as follows:

"These admissions are serious in this case because the Government must rely almost entirely upon circumstantial evidence, that is to say, upon the circumstance of the expenditure of considerably more money in the years in question than the Defendant took in from the operatior of his night clubs and gambling enterprises. The evidence, being circumstantial, must exclude every reasonable hypothesis other than the guilt of the Defendant. The jury no doubt disbelieved, and had the right to disbelieve * * *"

I might say in this case his wife testified that he had approximately 180 thousand dollars in cash at the time. And the Court says the jury disbelieved that and had a right to disbelieve her:

"* * * but in view of the auditor's admissions that he was not able to say that his computation included all of the assets of the Defendant at the beginning of the period, together with the absence of any admissions, records, financial statements, bookkeeping entries, or other findings, or evidence, tending to bind the Defendant as to the lack of additional assets at the beginning of the tax period, the evidence, in the light of the bill of particulars, was insufficient to make out a prima facie case against the Defendant on the net worth expenditure basis, and the case should not have been submitted to the jury since it did not exclude the hypothesis that the funds used in making some of the expenditures might have been from sources other than current business income."

Now the Fenwick case, your Honor——

The Court: What page is that in 177 Fed. (2)?

Mr. Avakian: The case commences at page 488, your Honor. Now, in the Fenwick case, after reviewing the facts there to show that the evidence of the government did not include the possibility of their being other assets in existence at the beginning of the period, the Court made this statement—and, of course, this is a case in which there was a conviction and in which the court reversed the conviction:

"The weakness of the government's position, stressed by defendant, is the uncertainty of the propriety of the finding of defendant's net worth at the beginning of 1943. Of course, before the increased net worth method of proof is effective, the net worth of the taxpayer at the beginning of the tax year must be clearly and accurately established by competent evidence." Citing a number of cases.

Then continuing:

"By this rule we must test the sufficiency of the evidence offered by the government to establish defendant's net worth at the beginning of 1943."

And then as they discuss that the Court made this statement:

"There is no proof that he had not accumulated cash, or assets of other character over the 25 years during which he had been engaged in business."

Now I point out, your Honor, that in this case the is in even stronger position because here there is proof that there was cash in existence at the beginning of the period, which the prosecution's net worth computations did not take into account.

The Court: What proof is there of cash?

Mr. Avakian: Mr. Kyne's testimony, your Honor, that throughout this entire period there was cash in varying amounts in the safety deposit boxes and safes. And there is, as I pointed out a moment ago, of course, the testimony of Mr. Maundrell and Mr. Pechart also, but particularly with respect to the starting point, there is in addition to that general testimony, the fact that less than a month before the end of 1943, $17,000 was put in the safe deposit box at one time. Here is the conclusion, your Honor, of the Fenwick opinion:

BLURRED COPY

"Remembering that the government has the burden of proof in a criminal case, that the burden never shifts to defendant, that circumstantial evidence must be of such character as to exclude every reasonable hypothesis except that of guilt, it necessarily follows that, when the government relies upon circumstances of increased net worth and expenditures in excess of reported income to establish income tax evasion, the basic net worth must be established. The defendant is not compelled to make proof that he is innocent, but he must be proved guilty by the evidence beyond all reasonable doubt, and where there is uncertainty as to whether all the assets of defendant are included in the government's computation of net worth, it follows that its computations can not be relied on. Essential proof of no other assets is the cornerstone of the evidence of the government; that cornerstone being faulty, the whole edifice is so weakened as to be undependable as proof of guilt beyond all reasonable doubt.

"The judgment is reversed."

Now, your Honor, we are not making this motion simply to be wasting time. We are making this motion in all sincerity and we would like to have your Honor consider it in that light, because we are convinced, your Honor, on the basis of this record, the submission of this case to the jury would be reversible error.

Now, let me back up a minute, in the light of the wording of these cases, as to the law, to turn for a moment to what the circumstances are for the use of the net worth method. The net worth method of computing income is an unusual method, your Honor. It is not the method that is ordinarily used, either by taxpayers or by the government. It is not the method that is contemplated by the income tax form. It is something that is unusual, it is used in particularly unusual circumstances, and the method can not be used unless those circumstances are present. Now, one of those circumstances which is essential to the use of that method is that the beginning net worth be established accurately. Now, these are not only rules that are applied——

The Court: I appreciate your sincerity in this argument but what you are saying to me is simply unless the government can tell you and this jury the number of dollars and cents in a safe kept by this defendant, that this case must fall.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor——

The Court (Interceding): I will not go along on any such theory.

Mr. Avakian: That is not what I am saying, your Honor. If I may state to you what my position is——

The Court (Interceding): Why isn't that a fair statement of your position?

Mr. Avakian: I am trying to explain and maybe your Honor will see the difference.

The Court: All right.

Mr. Avakian: My position is before the government may use the net worth method of trying this defendant for tax evasion, as distinguished from other methods, they must, under the cases—and this is not my idea, your Honor, I am quoting to you from cases—the cases hold, not only the Circuit Court of Appeals, but tax court in civil cases, hold the same thing—that before the government may determine income on net worth as distinguished from other methods, it must establish, with reasonable accuracy, the opening net worth. Your Honor, there has not been one iota of evidence in this case that there was a dollar's worth of income that wasn't entered in the books of these enterprises. The books were made available, they have not found one business transaction which was not entered in the books, so if we use the book method of determining income, your Honor, there would have to be an acquittal here and it is for that reason that the government is not using the book method, but is trying to use this unusual net worth method. It is fundamental, your Honor, that you can not wear a shoe unless it fits, you can not wear a hat unless it fits, and you can not use the net worth method unless the requirements set down by the courts are present. Now, the tax court in civil cases, where the burden is on the taxpayer and not the government, the tax court has said a deficiency assessed on the basis of net worth method, where there is no accurate established starting point, must fall, even though the taxpayer has the burden of proof. (Reads from 7 Tax Court Memorandum Decisions, page 847.) Your Honor, that is not my language. That is the tax court, which deals only with tax cases.

BLURRED COPY

So, your Honor, what I am saying to you is this, that the prosecution's proof itself shows that the circumstances which would permit the use of the net worth method are not present here. They are not present because the evidence shows that there was an existence at the beginning of this period of at least one asset, namely cash in safety deposit box, which can not at this date be determined as to amount. That being so, the net worth computation can not accurately be made, and you will recall that the agents of the government were frank enough to admit on cross-examination that their computations of net income on the net worth method would be accurate only if they have all assets and all liabilities and that to the extent that there was knowledge in existence, which they did not reflect in their net worth statements, their computations were inaccurate. Your Honor, I am sure, from what you have said, has been of the impression that that requirement was not present. I am sure your Honor would not have dismissed me so summarily when I started to make this motion had you been fully aware of the rules of these cases.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

If I may be indulged by your Honor to develop that further, I would like to point this out to your Honor, that income tax evasion cases fall in two categories.

The Court: I will give you time tomorrow. We will be in recess until tomorrow morning at ten o'clock.

(Recess taken at 4:00 p.m.)

(In the absence of the jury.)
(Feb. 6, 1952—Notebook 340A—PP 1-27.)

Mr. Avakian: At the end of yesterday's session, I was about to state to your Honor that in tax evasion cases there are generally two types of proof of tax evasion that are referred to; namely, direct proof of unreported income, and the other is indirect proof of unreported income.

Now in cases where there is direct proof of unreported income, your Honor, there is a situation where, for example, the prosecution will present testimony to the effect that the defendant had a particular transaction which was not entered in the books or in his returns. For example, proof will be offered that at such and such a time the defendant received some income from Mr. A and the evidence in the record shows that Mr. A paid some income to the defendant at a particular time and then the evidence shows that that particular transaction, that particular receipt of income, was not entered in the defendant's books or was not reflected in the returns. There you have an example, your Honor, of direct proof of unreported income.

The Court: May I ask you a question. Do we find any note or record or entry in any of the records, books or exhibits here in evidence, of any amount of cash being in any of the safe deposit boxes or in the safe?

Mr. Avakian: The amount, your Honor, no, there is no evidence whatsoever as to the amount at any particular time.

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

The Court: Then that suggested to me again the thought which I questioned yesterday. There has been no entry of an estimated amount of any amount of cash in safes or boxes on this Exhibit 183.

Mr. Avakian: That is right, your Honor, that is the vice of it.

The Court: And your complaint is that there should have been?

Mr. Avakian: No, I don't see how there could be, your Honor, because we don't know the amount.

The Court: All right, then what is your point?

Mr. Avakian: My point is in view of the fact that we can not determine the amount of that asset, we can not accurately determine the net worth and if you can not accurately determine net worth, you can not use net worth method.

The Court: Do you dispute the statement which you heard made by Mr. Weaver, maybe one of two witnesses, and Mr. Brady, that the net worth method is used when books are not adequate?

Mr. Avakian: That is not quite true, your Honor. The law is this in the Internal Revenue Code of Regulations, that the income shall be determined by the methods used by the taxpayer, which is the books, your Honor, unless they will not clearly reflect the income, in which case the cases hold, under the law and regulations, it is then permissible to use another method, if that other method will more clearly reflect the income.

The Court: What other method?

Mr. Avakian: The other method the government is trying to use here is the net worth method and my point, your Honor, is the evidence is such that the other method the government is trying to use, the net worth method, does not permit us to clearly determine the income, because you can't determine the starting point net worth.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: What is the alternative?

Mr. Avakian: The alternative then in the state of this record is to use the books.

The Court: In other words then, in a charge of this kind, the mere fact that there existed a depository for money and that no one knew, except the defendant himself, what the amount of money was placed in that depository from time to time and so the books were inadequate, how then would you determine the income of the individual?

Mr. Avakian: Well, in a criminal case—I assume——

The Court: I am asking you that question, whether criminal or civil.

Mr. Avakian: Because the answer differs, that is why I make that distinction. In a civil case the burden of proof would be on the defendant and as long as the Commissioner charged a deficiency which had some reasonable foundation, the burden would be on the defendant to come forward and prove that the deficiency was wrong, but in a criminal case the burden is never shifted to the defendant, the burden is on the prosecution and unless the prosecution can show the starting net worth, they may not use the net worth method.

The Court: Let me ask another question. There is evidence in this record, is there not, that sums of money in some amount were placed in this safe from time to time and in these boxes?

Mr. Avakian: That is right, your Honor.

The Court: And the mere fact that the government has no way, or has been unable, to determine the exact amount and can find no figure which it could use as a so-called starting point, then they can not use this present method of determining net income?

Mr. Avakian: It is for that reason that in the Bryan and Fenwick cases the Court held it was reversible error.

The Court: But in civil cases that could be done?

Mr. Avakian: In civil cases the burden of proof is reversed and it is up to the defendant to prove that deficiency assessed by the Commissioner is wrong, so you have a different picture. Even in a civil case though the tax court has held that where deficiency is based on an inadequate starting point it falls.

The Court: Now I want some more information. We have a legal argument here. You say this method is not the proper method, in view of the fact that we have no evidence as to the amounts of money in these depositories.

Mr. Avakian: Correct.

The Court: What method would be the correct method, in your opinion?

Mr. Avakian: On the basis of evidence in this record?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Avakian: On the basis of evidence in this record, the proper method would be the use of the books, for this reason, your Honor, and this is what I was going into when I talked about direct and indirect proof.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: But the books do not show any amount of cash in these depositories.

Mr. Avakian: That is immaterial in determining income on the book method. That is the point. Let us go back to the time you were engaged in law practice—use me for an example, engaged in private law practice. I keep books and records of all money received and expenses paid out, but I do not keep books and records on the amount I have in the bank or in my wallet or loan to people or people have loaned to me because in determing income on the method of receipts and disbursements it is immaterial how much money you have on hand somewhere; the important thing is what did you collect as income, what did you pay out as expenses. Suppose, your Honor, you were trying to determine my income on the net worth method. I couldn't tell you now what my net worth was ten years ago. I would have no way now of proving that to you because of the fact I have never kept any record of the assets and liabilities in that form. The only records I have kept, your Honor, are items of income and items of expenses. I have loaned money to people, my brother and my father and friends, people have loaned money to me from time to time——

The Court (Interceding): Well, it is a crime to fraudulently hide assets or make false income tax returns.

Mr. Avakian: No question, but let us not assume that conclusion.

The Court: It is a crime.

Mr. Avakian: Oh, yes.

The Court: Then any one who wants to violate the law in that respect, all that person would find it necessary to do would be to get hold of a safe somewhere and keep it in his office, if your theory is correct? That is your view?

Mr. Avakian: Absolutely not, your Honor, because the cases are full of convictions which have been sustained for tax evasion in instances of that kind, where the government has been able to prove that there was direct proof of unreported income, they proved that the defendant had transactions with Mr. A which he did not report, so they prove a starting point. They show, for example, that the defendant went through bankruptcy, which shows zero, or show that the defendant submitted financial statement to his bank at or about the time of the starting point, which fixes the starting point, or the defendant admitted to the agents what he had, which fixes the starting point.

The Court: What is your suggestion as to determining the starting point in this case?

Mr. Avakian: At this time in this case I do not see how any starting point can be determined. That is why I say you can not use the net worth method without a starting point.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: Then the only alternative would be to accept the defendant's books as correct and determine from the entries in those books.

Mr. Avakian: And that is exactly the point of the Bryan and Fenwick cases. When the government is proceeding on circumstantial evidence——

The Court: If their statement is the correct statement of law, you have opened the door wide to fraud.

Mr. Avakian: No, I disagree and intend to show you that this same rule is applied by this circuit as to the burden of the prosecution in a circumstantial evidence case, and that is what I was going to go into, your Honor.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Avakian: I think in the background of all this, your Honor, we have to remember the rules of burden of proof in a criminal case and we have to remember the rules of circumstantial evidence, because this whole question——

The Court (Interceding): I have those rules in mind. Do not waste time in arguing those rules.

Mr. Avakian: I gather from your Honor's remarks that you are afraid the rule of the Bryan and Fenwick cases would permit the defendant to avoid taxes unless the courts forced him to come forward, which——

The Court (Interceding): The mere fact the defendant has under his control, or in his possession a depository for money and the government is unable to ascertain the exact amount, that they are forestopped in proving a case of this kind——

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Avakian: That is right, your Honor.

The Court: ——I can not go along with that.

Mr. Avakian: That same thing applies in a murder case. They can not force the defendant to come forward and testify as to his knowledge. The government has to prove the case. Now, your Honor, in a direct income case, as I mentioned a moment ago, the burden is that of showing that there was some particular income transactions which were not put on the books. Now in this case, your Honor, we have a number of businesses. All these businesses were managed and operated by persons other than the defendant, that is, other people had direct supervision and control. The records of these businesses were maintained by these other people, Mr. Maundrell, Mr. Kyne, etc., Mr. Slater and Mr. Ayton, who unfortunately now are dead. The entries in the books were maintained, in most instances, by some of the employees. For example, for the Menlo Club, there were some of the cashiers that made out the poker sheets for each shift and Mr. Weaver admitted that the books of the Menlo Club contained every penny shown on the poker sheets for the year 1946, where sheets were available. Now, your Honor, in spite of that fact and in spite of the fact that if there were any income which by-passed the books, it would have had to be done with the knowledge and connivance of this large number of other people, in spite of the fact that the government has investigated the case for five years, they haven't come forward with proof of one penny of income which by-passed the books. They have not produced one cashier who says, "Although we took in $500, I have only $400." They haven't produced a single transaction that is not in the books. So we do not have any evidence, your Honor, after over thirty days of trial, five years of investigation of a case in which all of the transactions were handled by parties other than the defendant, by a large number of them, we do not have one iota of proof of direct evidence of unreported income. Instead the government says, "We think there was unreported income because we contend the net worth increase is more than the amount reported." Now, your Honor, they can't say that until they have accurately determined the net worth increase and they can't accurately determine the net worth increase until they get all the assets and all the liabilities.

BLURRED COPY

Now your Honor is worried that the rule of the Bryan and Fenwick cases impose an unbearable burden on the government. Let us look at it the other way——

The Court (Interceding): It isn't that, but it opens the door for people evading just taxes.

Mr. Avakian: It is the same thing. You are saying the government can not prove fraud with the Bryan and Fenwick cases if the defendant has money in safe deposit boxes. Look at the other side. What about the burden upon the defendant if what you contend the rule should be true. Here comes the government. They say, eight or nine years ago you had these assets that we know as to amount and these liabilities that we know as to amount and there was another asset, the amount of which we do not know, and it is up to you then to satisfy the jury what you had on hand eight or nine years ago—suppose, for example, that nine years ago I bought a house and paid a five thousand dollar down payment. Let us suppose I had that five thousand dollars in my safe deposit box before I made that payment. Now actually the making of the down payment on that house would represent no net worth increase whatever. It is simply a transfer of money from my safe deposit box into another asset, but the government would be saying, under your rule, that "You have a five thousand dollar increase in net worth and it is up to you to prove to the jury's satisfaction that you had that five thousand dollars in your safe deposit box."

Now, your Honor, if the government had said to me ten years ago that "It is required that you keep a record of money that you have in safe deposit box," then perhaps it would be justifiable to put that burden on me now, but when the law says all I have to do is to report the items of income that I receive and the items of expenses I pay out and then nine years later the government comes to me and says, "Now you must prove, I am telling you, for the first time, that you must prove what you had in your safe deposit box nine years ago," how about an unbearable burden placed on the defendant? That is why the Bryan and Fenwick cases say you can not use net worth method unless you establish net worth starting point.

The Court: Your statement may be a correct statement of law, but I do not think it applies. The government has not asked the defendant to come forward with any proof.

Mr. Avakian: Your rule would require—it would say you explain to the jury what you have, instead of making the government prove.

The Court: If this estimate, or the conclusions, of net worth of this defendant, as determined by these expert witnesses, had to do with or depends in any way upon any amount of money in the safe or in the deposit boxes, then I think there might be some merit to your argument.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, if I may accept your Honor's statement at face value, then I think you will have to direct an acquittal here, because the uncontradicted evidence is that there was some amount, and when you have an asset at the beginning of the period and you don't take its value into account, you can't determine what the increase was between the beginning and end of the period. In other words, your Honor, if there is an asset there of undetermined value, then you have not determined the net worth. The net worth is the difference between all the assets and all the liabilities. You can't take a partial list of assets and partial list of liabilities and subtract one from the other and say that is net worth. The definition of net worth, as every government agent testified, is the difference between all the assets and all the liabilities.

The Court: There is another question involved here. The government is required to prove beyond reasonable doubt the allegations of this indictment.

Mr. Avakian: That is right.

The Court: Does it make any difference by what means those allegations are established, whether net worth or some other? Are they confined to base their testimony on that point to any particular method?

Mr. Avakian: That is all they offer. The net worth method is all they offer. We haven't selected that method; we haven't told the government, "You are limited to anything," yet in over thirty days of trial they rely only on the net worth method.

The Court: How can we say that when they use entries and the books as the basis of some of these —Exhibit 183?

Mr. Avakian: They use the books not to determine income, only to determine assets. They have used the net worth method of determining income and gone to certain selected entries in the books for the purpose of attempting to evaluate assets and disbursements. In the opening statement of Mr. Pike, he said, "We are going to use the net worth method" and the only method he said they were going to use and the only method they have tried to use. I told your Honor a moment ago in this Circuit the rule of circumstantial evidence that governs the law of criminal cases is applied and the basic rule is in a circumstantial evidence case the case must not be submitted to the jury unless the circumstantial evidence excludes every reasonable hypothesis——

BLURRED COPY

The Court: That is an instruction I am going to give to the jury in this case. There is no argument on that.

Mr. Avakian: Let me then demonstrate the application of that rule by the Ninth Circuit to a case which, although it is not a tax case, is along similar lines in its problem to what we have here. Karn vs. United States, decided by the Ninth Circuit in 1946 and reported in 158 Fed. (2), page 568, a decision by Justice Bone. In that case, your Honor, there was a conviction for stealing the sum of approximately $1079 in currency and silver from a cash register in a place known as the Chena Bar, I believe in Alaska. The evidence showed the defendant had been at that bar earlier in the evening, that later that same evening he had borrowed an insignificant amount of money at another club from Gilbertson, used a part of that borrowed loan that same evening to repay a $10 loan, and next morning when he was arrested he had in his possession $377 in currency, including in which there was a soiled ten dollar bill. There was testimony from the bartender of the Cheno Bar that prior to the robbery there was in the cash register a soiled ten dollar bill similar to the one found next morning in the defendant's possession. The defendant did not take the stand. The State produced the man Gilbertson, from whom the defendant borrowed money that evening to repay his loan, to testify how much the defendant borrowed from him. After the conviction, the Circuit Court, the Ninth Circuit, reversed the conviction and held that the Court should have granted a motion for acquittal——

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: I agree with that too, if that is the state of the evidence, no question in my mind.

Mr. Avakian: Then, your Honor, let us see how that bears here. What your Honor is saying is, if the government can't determine the amount of cash he had in the safe deposit box, it will be opening the door to evasion if the government was barred from using the net worth method. In the Karn case the government was required by the Circuit Court to establish itself in order to make out a case——

The Court (Interceding): I can't see where that has any application here?

Mr. Avakian: Let me read to you from the Court's statement, quoting now from the opinion:

"The prosecution relied entirely upon circumstantial evidence for a conviction. It is sufficient to say that under such circumstances the evidence must not only be consistent guilt, but inconsistent with every reasonable hypothesis of innocence. The evidence should be required to point so surely and unerringly to the guilt of accused as to exclude every reasonable hypothesis but that of guilt. (Citing cases.) Our considered judgment is that the evidence in this case falls far short of meeting this exacting standard."

Then the Court commented, your Honor, on the prosecution's proof, that the circumstances that the night of the robbery, before his arrest, the defendant had borrowed money. He had used borrowed money to pay back a loan and he had in his possession next morning $377 and included in which was a soiled bill similar to the one in the register. Now the government argued that those circumstances were such as to permit the jury to infer that the night before he did not have any money because he had to borrow and the fact he had $377 in his possession the next morning indicated that he might have stolen the money, particularly since there was a similar bill. Now, the Court rejected that. The Court said that that is not sufficient circumstantial evidence, it must exclude every reasonable hypothesis.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: I am well aware of that and I am going to instruct the jury to that same effect.

Mr. Avakian: Now your Honor has undoubtedly had personal experiences in working this rule and you know from your own experiences that with prosecutions that they are many cases in which there are circumstances pointing to the guilt of the defendant, but unless the circumstances are so complete as to exclude every reasonable hypothesis, you can't go to the jury on it. Now, your Honor, one of the circumstances here, which every case I know of says is an essential circumstance, is getting the starting point of the date accurately.

The Court: Sometimes you can illustrate a point by a ridiculous example. You can carry your idea along a little farther and instead of putting the money in the safe, put it in the defendant's pocket.

Mr. Avakian: Some of it could have been there. I have some money in my pocket and I assume your Honor has.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: And because it would be impossible for a third party to determine how much money you have in your pocket, your income can not be estimated, on your theory.

Mr. Avakian: If what you are saying, the Bryan and Fenwick rules are ridiculous——

The Court (Interceding): Personally I think they are.

Mr. Avakian: Let me call to your Honor's attention that those ridiculous rules, as your Honor describes they, were enunciated by the Circuit Court of Appeals by appellate judges, and furthermore, let me call this to your attention, in the Bryan case the defendant went up to the Supreme Court on another point, and although the case went to the Supreme Court, the Department of Justice did not appeal the holding of the court that no starting point had been established, so apparently the Department of Justice does not think that is a ridiculous rule and I might say to your Honor that I have been employed in the Department of Justice in the tax division and I have passed on the matter of prosecuting cases involving inadequate starting point, but not only I, but other lawyers in the Department of Justice, charged with the responsibility of prosecuting income tax cases, have to my knowledge always felt that you couldn't prosecute an income tax case on the net worth basis alone without direct evidence of unreported income, unless you did establish the starting point. Now maybe we are all ridiculous, your Honor, but I call that to your attention to evaluate whether or not that rule is ridiculous.

Now it seems to me, your Honor, that the ridiculous thing to do would be to say that the jury may speculate just how much money he had. There is no proof on it, but the jury may speculate and if they speculate one way, they can convict, and another way they can acquit, but the rule is in a circumstantial evidence case the jury may not speculate and the case may not be submitted to them unless there is a solid foundation of evidence, rather than speculation.

The Court: No, the instruction I am going to give in this case on circumstantial evidence is, if the jury believe the facts as shown by the evidence in this case are all consistent with the supposition that the defendant is guilty, and can not reconcile the circumstances produced in evidence with any other supposition than that of guilt, it is their duty to find the defendant guilty, but if they do not so believe, they should find the defendant not guilty.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, the Ninth Circuit held such an instruction erroneous because it did not include additional language——

The Court: We will argue that later.

Mr. Avakian: In the instruction though it must exclude every reasonable hypothesis of innocence. That is the language that was given in the case of Paddock v. United States, 79 Fed. (2), page 872, an opinion by Judge Wilbur.

Now, your Honor, there is one decisive point in connection with this motion for acquittal that I want to make, and that is the point, your Honor, that the prosecution has placed the Court in a dilemma which would require, on either alternative, an acquittal. One part of the dilemma that the prosecution has placed the Court in is the combined matter of whether there were partnerships and whether the books and records which have been introduced in evidence were legally and properly obtained and used in this case.

Now Mr. Thompson stated, in answering a motion to strike, referred to Maundrell and Kyne and possibly others, as partners. Yet the theory of their case is that these men were not partners. Now the prosecution can not ride both sides of the fence on that proposition. Either these men were partners or they were not. If these men were partners, your Honor, the case should be withdrawn from the jury because the case falls unless partnerships are ignored. If they were not partners, your Honor—and that is the basis on which they are asking that it goes to the jury—then it is now clear that the books and records which they obtained and used in part, and in part still have in their possession, were illegally obtained, because the evidence shows that they were obtained, not from the defendant, but from these other parties. Now if these other parties were not partners, were simply employees, the government had no right to take those books without the defendant's consent. They have the right to take books with the consent of Mr. Kyne and Mr. Maundrell only if Kyne and Maundrell, as partners, had a proprietory interest in those books. If Mr. Kyne and Mr. Maundrell were simply employees and the books then belonged solely to the defendant, the government had no right to take those books without the defendant's consent and the Court had no right to order us to produce the portion which had been returned to us against our wishes, for the reason, your Honor, no other party but the defendant had any right to surrender these books to the government.

Your Honor will understand we are simply pointing out the dilemma that the prosecution has brought into the case. It is our contention, of course, that these were partnerships, but if these were not partnerships, your Honor, then under the established rules, and I can cite your Honor——

The Court (Interceding): You say it is your contention that these are partnerships?

Mr. Avakian: Yes.

The Court: Then you argue that the failure of the Court to grant your motion to suppress this evidence—such motion could only be based on the theory that they are the defendant's books.

Mr. Avakian: No, I did not make myself clear, your Honor. What I am saying is this, that either these were good partnerships or not. If they were good partnerships, our motion to acquit should be granted, for the reason that there is then no offense. If they were not good partnerships, if the partners were ignored, then, your Honor, it was illegal to take the books.

The Court: Then when you made your motion to have the records returned to you, you had the theory at that time that these were not partnerships?

Mr. Avakian: No, your Honor; oh, no; because your Honor, even though they are partnerships, each partner has a proprietory interest, each partner can demand the right to inspect the books, each partner has the right to possession of them, so our motion was based consistently with the partnership theory. We were simply coming in as one partner, namely the one charged with crime, and asking for the opportunity to examine books in which our client had a proprietory interest as a partner. Your Honor denied that motion, your Honor denied our motion for an opportunity to examine the records still in the possession of the plaintiff, on the theory, as I understood your Honor's ruling, that the government had properly obtained possession of the books from third parties who turned them over. Now that would be proper, your Honor, only if those third parties were partners. If they are not partners, as the prosecution contends, they had no authority to turn those books over, the government had no authority to take them from those people, so that is the dilemma, why our motion for acquittal includes the ground that if the prosecution is correct in its contention that these are not partnerships, then the case should be withdrawn from the jury, because the only possible basis on which it could be submitted to the jury shows evidence illegally obtained from third parties prior to the trial and illegally obtained from us prior and during the trial. That is the additional ground of our motion to acquit, including the net worth starting point I was discussing before, and for your Honor's consideration I would refer, as authority on this additional ground, Wigmore on Evidence, 3rd Edition, Section 2325 and related sections, including 2292, and a book entitled, "Fraud Under Federal Tax Law," by Harry Graham Balter, 1951, the use of which I would be glad to make available to your Honor if you desire. (Reads from book.) That last part would not be applicable; the first part would bear directly on our motion—the possession of which we desired to obtain because its use becomes important to use in the preparation of the trial. Now your Honor's justification for that ruling was that these releases had been obtained originally by the government from third parties who had agreed that the government could have them. Now, your Honor, that agreement of those third parties, which was the basis for your Honor's ruling, would have no legal effect whatsoever unless those third parties had a proprietory interest in these books as trustees.

The Court: Or an authorized agent.

Mr. Avakian: There is no evidence they were authorized in any respect to turn these books over by the defendant Remmer. No evidence whatsoever about that; in fact, they said when the agents came in and asked for them, they turned them over. That is all the evidence, your Honor. If I may call your attention to Mr. Campbell's statement on the hearing on motion to inspect these books November 15, 1951, in Las Vegas——

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: I will tell you again it was made a short time before, on the eve of this trial, which would have necessitated a postponement, and you had five years to make the motion.

Mr. Avakian: No, your Honor, that is not true. We never were denied access to these books until November 7th or 8th, 1951, and we immediately filed the motion.

The Court: Well, that is the reason I denied the motion.

Mr. Avakian: The correspondence was before your Honor, showing that Mr. Campbell in November, 1951, for the first time, gave us the double talk that we could examine the books provided we got the consent of third parties, and he wouldn't name them.

The Court: I don't think that should remain in the record.

Mr. Avakian: It is in the record now, in the affidavit.

The Court: That statement you made about Mr. Campbell's double talk may be stricken.

Mr. Avakian: His letter is in the record.

The Court: I will admonish you not to make references of that kind.

Mr. Avakian: The defense have been accused of a lot of things.

The Court: I don't know anything you have been accused of.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Avakian: Yes, of withholding records and——

The Court (Interceding): Are we trying the defense or Mr. Remmer? Proceed with your argument.

Mr. Avakian: By defense, I mean Mr. Remmer.

So, your Honor, we submit, first of all the motion for acquittal should be granted, for the reason that the prosecution has not established a proper starting point for net worth, and if your Honor cares, I can go through numerous cases showing the distinction the courts draw; and, secondly, we submit to your Honor that the motion for acquittal should be granted on either alternative of this situation, that if the partnerships are recognized, then there is no showing upon which the jury could find the defendant guilty, and if the partnerships are not recognized, then the case of the prosecution is based, of necessity, upon evidence illegally obtained and retained, which does not furnish a proper basis for submission of the case to the jury, and I again would request that your Honor consider that it is not a dogmatic matter as to whether the defendant must come forward with proof as to what was in the safety deposit boxes. On the contrary, it is putting an unbearable burden upon him, or anybody else, to try to determine now what was in the safety boxes eight or nine years ago and to directly or indirectly apply a rule of law which would impose that burden upon the defendant would violate the fundamental proposition that the defendant would be presumed to be innocent, that he need not come forward with evidence of innocence; on the contrary, the government must prove guilt beyond a reasonable doubt and any circumstantial evidence case must, in order to warrant submission of the case to the jury, present evidence which excludes every reasonable hypothesis of innocence and present evidence which is inconsistent with any theory of innocence and is consistent only with the theory of guilt.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Campbell: If the Court please, it is the contention of the government that the principles relied upon by defense counsel in the Bryan and Fenwick cases are not good law. They are not the law of this circuit and if they were the law of this circuit, it would be time that that law be changed.

In that connection I first wish to refer your Honor to the very strong language of Judge McCord in the Bryan case in dissenting vigorously, and I do so because some of the language is very similar to that stated by your Honor in the criticism of that case. Judge McCord says as follows, reading from page 227. The case, of course, is reported at 175 Fed. (2), 223. This is from the dissenting opinion:

"The majority predicate their reversal on the sole ground that the evidence was insufficient to make out a prima facie case against the defendant on a net worth-expenditure basis, for the reason that the testimony of the government auditor did not expressly exclude the hypothesis that some of the large expenditures by defendant 'might have been from sources other than current business income.'

BLURRED COPY

This is sheer speculation and conjecture, and an unwarranted presumption in favor of defendant's innocence after he has been fairly tried and convicted. Moreover, it is an unreasonable hypothesis which has already been rejected by the jury as manifestly incredible and unworthy of belief. The ultimate effect of the decision is to shackle the government to a practically insurmountable burden of proof in net worth-expenditure cases concerning matters which are peculiarly within only an evading defendant's knowledge.

"In all cases, such as here, where a defendant has either destroyed his records, or they are otherwise unavailable, the government must of necessity resort to other indirect methods of proving unreported income, such as (1) by an analysis of the defendant's bank deposits; (2) by showing an increase in net worth on the net worth-expenditure basis; or (3) by evidence of purchases, expenditures and investments made during the tax years on which the prosecution is based. Many tax offenders of the worst type would go unwhipped of justice if the government were not allowed to establish unreported taxable income by this type of circumstantial evidence. Each of the above methods is predicated upon the sound legal proposition that evidence of a large amount of unexplained funds or property in the hands of a defendant during the tax years under scrutiny establishes a prima facie case of understatement of income during that period. (Citing cases.) It is then incumbent upon the defendant to go forward and offer proof in explanation of this unreported excess income, much in the same manner as would be required under the 'possession of recently stolen goods' rule. (Citing cases.) It would be manifestly unreasonable to require the Government to give such a defendant a bill of particulars on his own hidden and unreported income, or to offer proof to exclude the possibility that such other secret income does not in fact exist. (Citing cases.)

"The unusual contention on behalf of a defendant in this type of case is that the unexplained increase in net worth results from expenditure of funds accumulated and secreted in earlier years, for which prosecutions are then barred by the statute of limitations. Obviously, because of the difficulty and inaccessibility of such proof, the Government could not possibly wholly rebut such a contention, as only the defendant himself knows whether the defense is made in good faith. In such instances, after the Government has offered all proof available, the defendant should not be permitted to stand silently by and thwart a conviction on the claim that a failure to prove unknown assets does not satisfy net worth requirements. Manifestly, the truth and good faith of such a defense is for the jury alone." (Citing cases.)

And so the Court goes on in similar manner.

Now I attempted to secure, before appearing here this morning, a recent article in the Georgetown Law Review, but I found it was inaccessible in the legal reprints and we communicated with Mr. Bible and others who are graduates whom we thought might have the article available. It discusses the Bryan and Fenwick cases and points out among the circuits which do not subscribe to the holdings in those cases, as demonstrated by other decisions, are the 2nd, 4th, 6th, 8th and 9th circuits. Now the case in the 9th circuit which sets forth the method to be followed in these cases, and which has previously been cited to your Honor and which I will not read again, is that of Barcott v. United, reported at 169 Fed. (2), 929, in which the decision was written by Judge Orr.

I do wish to read to your Honor, however, some of the decisions of circuits commenting upon the Bryan and Fenwick cases and to the soundness of the rules which they attempt to enunciate. The first case to which I wish to refer is that of Gariepy vs. United States, Sixth Circuit, decided May 28, 1951, reported in 189 Fed. (2), at page 459. Reading from page 462:

"From 1938 on, according to the computations of the Treasury agents, the appellant's practice materially increased, as did the net worth of his assets. In an exhibit reflecting their computations and indicating the reported income and net worth increases, the table shows a net worth at the end of the tax year 1945, of $128,938.52. It is here reproduced and set forth in the margin.

"The transactions upon which this computation was made are all sustained by evidence. They were not successfully controverted. It is true that appellant's counsel made vigorous attacks upon the accuracy of the computation. At best it was, of course, but an estimate, but as an estimate it was entitled to the consideration of the jury because based on substantially the entire evidence in the record. (Citing cases.) The principal attack of the appellant upon the evidence which sustains this computation is two-fold. The first is the challenge to the accuracy of the appellant's net worth, or lack of it, at the base period, and secondly is the contention that each item of evidence must be so fully and accurately established that it permits no reasonable doubt as to the fact upon which reliance is placed." Then skipping over certain matters which are not related here, setting out some general rules, the Court goes on:

"The appellant's reliance upon Bryan v. United States, 5 Cir. 175 Fed. 2d 223 and United States v. Fenwick, 7 Cir. 177 F. 2d 488, is of little avail to him because there was no such comprehensive investigation either as to the net assets at the base period or subsequent increases as was here undertaken. Moreover, in the Bryan case, a vigorous dissent weakens the conclusion there arrived at, and the Fenwick case appears to be in conflict with United States v. Hornstein, 7 Cir. 176 Fed. 2d 217, decided by the Seventh Circuit but a few months prior to Fenwick."

The Fenwick case also being a Seventh Circuit case.

"Judge Miller of this court, writing in Brodella v. United States, 6 Cir. 184 F. 2d 823, had no difficulty in distinguishing the Bryan and Fenwick cases from cases involving facts similar to those here produced."

The Court: Unless the defendant wants to offer something in addition, I am ready to rule on this motion.

Mr. Avakian: I would like to comment on the Barcott and Gariepy cases.

The Court: You may do so.

Mr. Avakian: The Barcott case, to begin with, Mr. Campbell did not mention to your Honor that the prosecution witnesses, in their net worth computation, set up as cash in safe deposit boxes at the starting point the sum of twenty-three thousand dollars. They did not leave a blank, a question mark, they set up an amount, twenty-three thousand dollars, which asset reflected in favor of the defendant. Secondly, in the Barcott case there was evidence of attempt by the defendant to bribe the revenue agent who was investigating him and the Ninth Circuit relied on that as circumstance indicating guilt which would warrant submission to the jury.

In the Gariepy case, decided last fall by the Sixth Circuit, the significance there to distinguish it from this case is that Gariepy had just gone through medical school and interneship and just completed that at the time it the starting point in his case and there was evidence that he borrowed money to go through medical school and set up his practice at the time of the starting point, your Honor, so you do not have the situation there factually that you have here. Here, your Honor, we have a case in which it is admitted, and part of the uncontradicted evidence, that there was some cash. There is an asset. Suppose, for example, your Honor, there had been a house instead of cash in safe deposit box, but the government said, "We can't determine what the cost of that house was that you had at the beginning point, we can't determine it, so we won't give you any credit for it."

The Court: Wouldn't there be an accounting of that to determine the cost of that house if you didn't have actual evidence of the transaction? Isn't there an accounting of that by which the fair cost of that may be known?

Mr. Avakian: Not cost. Value, yes, but there may be many instances in which the cost of a house could not be determined seven or eight years ago. In most instances it could, of course, but I am assuming those instances in which there is an asset, namely a house, of a value that can not be determined. Without determining your value, you can not determine net worth——

The Court (Interceding): But you cannot hide a house in your pocket or safety deposit box.

Mr. Avakian: But if you do not know the value, it is the same thing. Nobody was hiding money and your Honor's statement indicates your Honor has pre-judged. The use of the word "hiding" is not a correct term.

The Court (Interceding): Just a minute—I do not intend to be assailed by you, or any other lawyer. I have not pre-judged the case. You had better be careful about making those remarks to me. Now don't say any more. You can't say another word.

Mr. Avakian: If I can't say any more, I won't.

The Court: Are you through with your argument?

Mr. Avakian: Well, your Honor, I have stated the points upon which the motion for acquittal is based and I have stated the basic legal propositions upon which we rely. There is exhaustive discussion which could be undertaken, of course, but at this moment I will submit the motion, unless your Honor cares to have further discussions.

The Court: The motion is denied. It stands submitted and is denied.

Wednesday, February 6, 1952—2:00 P.M.

(Defendant present with counsel.)

(Presence of the jury and alternate jurors stipulated.)

Mr. Gillen: We will call as our first witness, your Honor, Mr. William Remmer, the brother of the defendant.

WILLIAM REMMER

being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Your name is William Remmer?

A. Yes.

Q. Will you relate to us, please, what is your address?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

A. 50 University Drive, Oakland.

Q. That is in California? A. Yes.

Q. What is your business?

A. I am an automobile dealer.

Q. Will you state the name of your firm and where it is located?

A. Remmer & Jordon, 3927 E. 14th Street, Oakland.

Q. Mr. Remmer, you have the agency for some nationally known automobile?

A. That is true, the Pontiac.

Q. How long have you and Mr. Jordon been in business in that firm? A. About 22 years.

Q. You are a married man, Mr. Remmer, and make your home with your wife in Oakland at the address given? [2555] A. Yes.

Q. Are you acquainted with the defendant, Elmer Remmer? A. Yes, I am.

Q. He is your brother, is he not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And during the period of time between 1944 and up to the present time, did your brother, Elmer Remmer, ever take from your place of business any automobiles? A. Yes.

Q. Will you tell us, as near as you can recall, what type of automobile, the value of the automobile and approximately when it was purchased?

Mr. Campbell: May I inquire if he brought any record with him in that regard?

Mr. Gillen: I don't know. I am asking him if he can recall.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

A. Yes, I can recall—during this particular time?

Q. During the period of time from 1944 until the present time. A. Yes.

Q. Will you relate, as near as you can remember, what those transactions were?

A. He bought a used Dodge pick-up from me and I believe it was $465.

Q. And when was that?

A. I think that was in 1944. [2556]

Q. You say a pick-up, by that you mean a truck, do you not? A. Yes.

Q. Now, did he buy any other car in 1944 from you? A. No.

Q. Did he pay for that car? A. No.

Q. Did he pay for it up to the present time?

A. No.

Q. Did he buy any other automobile from you in 1945? A. No.

Q. Did he buy any automobile from you in 1946?

A. Yes.

Q. And what was that, Mr. Remmer?

A. He bought a 1946 Pontiac sedanette—either a sedanette or convertible.

Q. What was the price approximately?

A. Approximately $1600.

Q. And directing your attention to the same year, did he buy another automobile from you in that same year? A. Yes.

Q. And what was that automobile, the second automobile he bought in 1946?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

A. A Pontiac sedan or sedanette.

Q. Was there any trade-in or arrangement made between your firm and him with regard to the original Pontiac sedanette [2557] he bought earlier that year?

A. Well, I do not recall which one it was, but there was a trade-in involved in one of the two Pontiacs that he bought.

Q. Now, did he pay for either of those automobiles or on the trade-in did he pay the differential or any part of the purchase price?

A. Well, the trade-in was clear; he gave me that as part of the purchase price, but the balance, no, he did not.

Q. The automobiles were not paid for, the Pontiac? A. That is correct.

Q. The original Pontiac was not paid for in 1946 and whatever was the differential on any trade-in with the second Pontiac, that was not paid?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now, with regard to the Dodge pick-up used truck, which you say was purchased by your brother from you in 1944, what was done, insofar as your company was concerned, with the charging up of that amount?

A. Well, at the end of the year my partner and I adjust our own personal accounts and that item was charged to my account and I paid for it.

Q. In other words, you paid it into your firm?

A. That is right.

Q. It was charged to your account and you paid

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

your firm for that obligation, so that formed a personal obligation between [2558] your brother and yourself? A. Correct.

Q. And was that likewise the situation in regard to the transaction involving the two Pontiacs in 1946? A. That is correct.

Q. Your partner and you adjusted between you and it was charged to your account and you paid your firm, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. So that became an obligation between your brother and yourself, is that correct, a personal obligation? A. Yes.

Q. Now, between the year 1945 up until the year 1950, did you make any loans to your brother, Elmer Remmer? A. Yes.

Mr. Gillen: I am sorry, let me withdraw the question.

Q. Between the years, or let us say, during and between the years commencing in 1944 to and including the year 1950, did you make any loans of money to your brother, Elmer Remmer?

A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial, so far as the years after 1946 are concerned.

Mr. Gillen: It is really. I will then reframe my question.

Q. Let me ask you if from the beginning of the year 1944 until and including the end of the year 1946, you made any loans to [2559] your brother, Elmer Remmer? A. Yes.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

Q. And were they in different amounts and at different times? A. Yes.

Q. Did you usually make those loans by cash or by check? A. Check.

Q. Were they your personal check or company check? A. Personal check.

Q. And could you give us the approximate amounts—I mean, a good average of the amounts that would be borrowed?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to—the checks would be the best evidence.

Q. Well, do you have the cancelled checks?

A. No, I do not keep checks that long.

Q. You do not keep checks that long?

A. No.

Q. Can you tell us from your own personal recollection the usual amounts of money he borrowed from you, or the aggregate amounts?

A. Well, I know the total amount, but I don't know, because I would do work on his car and if it was not covered by insurance—as I say, once a year my partner and I settled our accounts, that would be charged—I know the total amount, but I don't know how much I gave him at individual times, no.

Q. Can you tell us the total amount your brother now owes you? [2560]

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial what he now owes him. It is what he owed him as of December 31, 1946.

Q. All right. Can you tell us the total or ap-

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

proximate total, amount that he owed you as of the year 1946?

A. Well, I would say between eight and ten thousand dollars.

Q. Now, did that eight or ten thousand dollars include the automobile transactions or exclude the automobile transactions and only cash?

A. It includes them.

Q. And the automobile transactions would involve slightly between two thousand and $2500?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as leading question.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Gillen: I think it was a summarization of what he already testified to, your Honor. I will ask it in a different form if counsel objects to it.

Q. You stated you believed that your recollection is that the pick-up truck was $460, is that correct? A. $465.

Q. Can you tell us what the first Pontiac was?

A. Well, I don't know exactly the equipment, but in 1946 the automobile that he bought would be approximately between 15 and 16 hundred dollars.

Q. And a trade-in of an automobile the same year, would there be a very great [2561] differential? A. I beg your pardon?

Q. A trade-in——

A. No, I would say on that particular car that was involved there was approximately $500.

Q. Five hundred dollars additional on the trade-in transaction? A. Yes, additional.

Q. So would you say that it would be a fair

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

estimate that the automobile transactions for the period between the beginning of 1944 and end of 1946 between your brother and yourself amounted to approximately $2500? A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as leading and suggestive.

The Court: Objection sustained. The answer will go out.

Q. Can you tell us how much?

A. Approximately $2500.

Q. And the difference between that and eight or ten thousand dollars, would that have been money loaned to your brother?

A. Some was money loaned and some of it was repairing and servicing his cars.

Q. What is your recollection with regard to the extent, the amount and extent of the servicing of cars?

A. I couldn't make a distinction between it.

Q. Now, Mr. Remmer, you were subpoenaed here by the prosecution at the outset of this case, were you not? [2562] A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: The answer may stand.

Q. And you came to Carson City twice under direction of the prosecution of this case?

A. Yes.

Q. And then you were excused without being called, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Now, Mr. Remmer, have you described all of the automobiles which you turned over to your brother in the period 1944 to 1946?

A. I think so, yes, sir.

Q. Now, you have book records, do you not, for those years? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And have you brought those records with you?

A. I have them in the hotel in Reno, yes, sir.

Q. And do those records set forth the details of the transactions which you have testified to on direct examination? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do they also include the details of the repairs and servicing items which you say you advanced to your brother Elmer? [2563]

A. Yes, I believe they would; yes, I am certain.

Q. And in addition to that, would those books disclose the details and amounts of any sums of money which you may have personally advanced to him? A. No, sir.

Q. Those are company records?

A. Company records.

Q. And relate only to the automobile agency?

A. Relate only to the automobile agency.

Q. Now, did Elmer Remmer owe you anything as of January 1, 1944? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How much did he owe you then?

A. Oh, I don't know.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

Q. Well, you say he owed you eight to ten thousand dollars at the end of 1946. What is your best recollection as to what he owed you in January, 1946?

A. I don't know—as of the first of January?

Q. Yes.

A. I could get the information. I am familiar with the information pertaining to this period because you told me to bring my records up when I came up for you and I have recollection, looking at my records, it would be fresh in my mind.

Q. But you don't have that in your mind?

A. I believe we are required to keep our records six years. [2564] No, I might not have it, Mr. Campbell, but it is possible we have it.

Q. (By Mr. Campbell): I am going to ask then, Mr. Remmer, with the exception of one matter, I am going to ask the Court if further cross-examination may be deferred until tomorrow morning, at which time I will ask the witness to bring his records with him.

Mr. Gillen: May I say, your Honor, I think this is very unfair and I am going to ask your Honor to deny counsel's request, for this reason—Mr. Remmer is very anxious to get back to business; (2) he is an ill man and about to go for an operation——

The Court: I am compelled to grant the request.

Mr. Gillen: May I point something out?

The Court: You may, yes.

Mr. Gillen: All of these matters were taken up with Mr. Remmer, were scrutinized when he appeared before the——

The Court: The Court has no knowledge of that.

Mr. Gillen: Well, I am telling you. Of course, I wouldn't lie—I am an officer of the court.

The Court: I am going to give counsel an opportunity to cross-examine if he wants to. Those records could be brought over from Reno easily.

Mr. Gillen: They were brought twice and they were scrutinized. [2565]

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Mr. Gillen: That is all right, I am going to be here any way, your Honor—it will not discommode me.

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Mr. Gillen: When do you want the man back—you might accommodate him somewhat?

Mr. Campbell: Possibly there is some way the records could be gotten down here——

Mr. Gillen: Are your records in Reno?

A. Yes.

The Court: If there is going to be any further inquiry about this, it could be very well made between counsel in the absence of the jury.

Mr. Gillen: I was going to say we might arrange——

The Court: Take it up with counsel privately. I do not want this record filled with immaterial matters.

Mr. Gillen: You are excused so far as the defense is concerned.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

The Court: When do you want him back?

Mr. Campbell: Whenever the records are available.

Mr. Gillen: If we could have a five minute recess, we might find out if we have some people who are coming over who could bring them. That is what I was trying to convey to your Honor.

Mr. Campbell: Now, if your Honor please, during the recess I stated to counsel that I would go ahead with cross-examination of this witness and that counsel will bring down his records tomorrow and if those records are material, we will enter into stipulation regarding what they show.

Mr. Gillen: That is entirely agreeable.

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

you, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And which you paid for yourself at the end of 1944? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, in connection with that transaction, did you give him the pink slip or ownership certificate on that Dodge pick-up? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you cause the ownership name to be changed on the State records?

A. You mean did I put a transfer through?

Q. Yes, sir. [2567] A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in what name was that put through?

A. I believe it was put through in the name of Cal-Neva Lodge.

Q. And do you know whether or not your brother continued to have that car at the end of 1946? A. No, sir, I don't.

Q. Now, do you know whether at the time that this Dodge pick-up—incidentally, a pick-up is a truck, is it not?

A. Yes, it is a light commercial vehicle.

Q. Do you know at that time whether or not your brother had other automobiles? A. Yes.

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, not within the scope of direct examination. We just asked him about transactions between his brother and himself.

The Court: We will see what the answer to this question is.

Mr. Campbell: He said yes.

The Court: The answer may stand.

A. I don't know whether they belonged to him, but I know he used them. I don't know whether he used them

Q. How many cars? A. Oh, I don't know.

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment, Mr. Remmer, please, I want [2568] to offer an objection.

A. Excuse me.

Mr. Gillen: The answer to that is in. I move it be stricken.

The Court: It may go out.

Mr. Gillen: Now, I offer the objection it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and not within the scope of direct examination, therefore improper cross-examination.

The Court: Objection overruled. The answer may be reinstated.

Q. During this period of time, 1944 to 1946, when you say you were doing repair work for which your brother had not paid you, but for which he owed you, was that on cars other than the Dodge pick-up truck and the Pontiac sedans which you sold to him?

A. I don't believe I ever saw the Dodge pick-up truck after it left my place of business. The Pontiacs would come down for service.

Q. Were other cars brought in for service by your brother? A. There might have, yes.

Q. Was that during 1945, 1946, and 1946.

A. Yes, he might have sent in one or two cars, I don't know.

Q. Do you recall the makes of the cars?

A. Yes, I do. I recall one he had, it seems to me

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

a 1941 Chrysler station wagon. Whether it was his or not, I don't [2569] know, but I did some work on it.

Q. That was included in these repair bills?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall any other cars?

A. No. During that particular time?

Q. During that particular time I am talking about. A. No.

Q. Now, you say the first Pontiac you sold him was in 1946, is that correct?

A. That is pertaining to the time you are asking about?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, had you sold him any Pontiac before 1946? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When?

A. I sold him a Pontiac in, I believe, 1941.

Q. Do you know whether or not he still had that Pontiac as of January 1, 1944?

Mr. Gillen: Of course, I think we are getting pretty far removed from the scope of direct examination.

The Court: This might be a preliminary matter. Is it some preliminary matter?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, I am going into the disposition, if he gives the disposition.

The Court: Well, you may answer the [2570] question.

A. I don't know whether he had it or not, I don't know.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

Q. At any rate, getting to 1946, the first Pontiac that you sold him, which you stated was sold to him for approximately $1600?

A. That is correct, yes, sir.

Q. And did he pay any money down or turn in anything on that Pontiac?

A. Mr. Campbell, I don't know whether it was the first or second, but on one car there was a trade, and to my recollection the trade—it was on one of the two Pontiacs there was a trade, and to my recollection the trade represented $1050.

Q. Now, do you recall, Mr. Remmer, an occasion on or about January 5, 1951, when you made a statement, question and answer statement, at 100 McAllister Street Building in San Francisco?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And there were present on that occasion, were there not, in addition to yourself, your attorney, Theodore Golden, as well as special agents Whiteside and Weaver and a stenographer, do you recall that?

A. I recall my attorney was with me. There were some government men, one of them is sitting over there.

Q. You are referring to Mr. Weaver sitting here? A. That gentleman, yes.

Mr. Gillen: May the record show who he pointed to? [2571]

The Court: The record will show it is Mr. Weaver.

Mr. Gillen: While I am interrupting, I would like to clear up one thing. Mr. Theodore Golden is an attorney practicing in Oakland, is no relation to my associate Mr. Golden. He is not related.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

Mr. Campbell: He is not related, I understand.

Q. Were you subsequently, Mr. Remmer, shown a typewritten copy of the statement which you gave on that occasion?

A. You mean at the time?

Q. No, afterwards, a few days later.

A. I don't recall.

Q. Do you recall an agent coming to you and showing you the statement and you making certain corrections or changing of your answers?

A. Oh, yes, I do; yes, that is correct.

Mr. Campbell: May this document be marked 184 for identification?

Q. Mr. Remmer, was a copy of, or the orginal copy of that statement left with you?

A. I don't know, I don't remember, Mr. Campbell, whether it was or not. I am inclined to believe it was; I can't remember.

Q. All right. I am going to hand you this 184 for identification, and ask you to look it over, not only for the purpose of seeing if this is the statement which you gave at [2572] that time, but in the event it is that you examine it for the purpose of refreshing your recollection, if it needs refreshing, as to certain questions I am about to propound.

Mr. Gillen: I am going to move the last remark of counsel be stricken.

The Court: It may go out.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

Mr. Gillen: There is nothing in this record——

The Court: I have granted the motion.

Mr. Gillen: I was going to go into another matter——

The Court: Well, there is nothing before the Court.

A. I think this is approximately.

Q. Now, Mr. Remmer, at the time you made that statement, did you have with you and before you the records of the automobile company to which you referred, reflecting the transactions with your brother and which you said are presently up in Reno?

A. Yes. Yes, invoices, I believe I had. I do not know what these records are that I have up in Reno. You required me to bring some records when you were there and they were in a rubber band and I put them in the desk and when I came up this time I just put them in my grip. I presume——

Q. At any rate, at the time you gave this statement on January 5, 1941, you had the records before you? A. Yes.

Q. And I am going to direct your attention specifically to [2573] 4 of this document and ask you if this refreshes your recollection as to the date, the precise date, upon which you sold Elmer Remmer the Dodge pick-up?

Mr. Gillen: May I have the question?

The Court: Yes, sir.

(Question read.)

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

Mr. Gillen: Now I am going to object to the question upon the ground it is not proper cross-examination, because there is no evidence here to indicate his memory has to be refreshed. As your Honor will recall, I did not ask him for precise dates. There is nothing to refresh his recollection about. I asked him for the year 1944 he had a recollection of selling a car to his brother and he mentioned the Dodge pick-up, so it is not a matter of refreshing his recollection.

The Court: Objection will be overruled.

Q. Upon what date did you sell the Dodge pick-up?

A. The date here is July 31, 1944.

Q. Is that your best recollection?

A. Well, I had the records in front of me at the time, so I think that is correct.

Q. What was the selling price? A. $465.

Q. I direct your attention to Exhibit 184 for identification and to the question and answer as to the selling price, and ask you if that refreshes your recollection as to the selling [2574] price?

A. I believe this is typographical error. This says $456 and to my knowledge of 30 years in the business, I never sold an automobile for an odd dollar.

Q. So that your recollection is definite as to $465?

A. I would say it would be $465, and I believe that is a typographical error, that says $456.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

Q. Now do you recall in what month it was that you sold to him the Pontiac sedan?

A. No, sir, I don't.

Q. I am going to show you——

Mr. Gillen: In the interest of time, we will stipulate whatever date appears there, since he said the records were before him at that time, would be the date.

Q. All right; I direct your attention to the date April 30, 1946, is that the correct date?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I direct your attention to the total cost of $1498.70?

A. That would be the correct amount, sir.

Q. And incidentally, there were odd dollars on that sale? A. That involves sales tax.

Q. And did you receive a deposit of $100 at that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was there any trade-in on that car?

A. On that particular car I would have to see the record; I [2575] don't know.

Q. Well, let me show you here at the bottom of page 4, question and answer, and ask you if that refreshes your recollection there was any trade-in on that car?

A. No, there was no trade-in.

Q. Now at the time you sold that car to him, or subsequently and until December 31, 1946, did you receive anything in addition to that $100 from him on account of that sale? A. No, sir.

Q. At the time you made the sale, on or about

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

April 30, 1946, did you deliver the pink slip or ownership certificate of that car to him?

A. I presume so, yes, sir.

Q. And do you recall in what name that certificate was issued?

A. I believe it was issued in the name of Helen Remmer.

Q. And that is the wife of Elmer Remmer?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Incidentally, is she occasionally known also as Libby Remmer?

A. I have only known her as Helen.

Q. Now according to this statement, a second car was sold on June 21, 1946, would that be correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the price was $1716.91, would that be correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Against which there was a trade-in of $1300, leaving a [2576] balance of $416.91?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would that be correct?

A. That would be correct, sir.

Q. Do you recall what car it was that was traded in on that Pontiac?

A. No, I don't; I don't know. He had a car stolen and the insurance company replaced it and whether it was that car that was stolen—I can't recall, no, sir.

Q. Do you recall whether or not the trade-in on June 21, 1946, was the same Pontiac which you sold him on April 30, 1946?

A. No, it wouldn't be the same Pontiac; no, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

Q. The trade-in would not be the same one that you sold him? A. No.

Q. And you don't recall the make of the car that was traded in?

A. No, I have a slight recollection it was a Buick automobile, but I wouldn't want to testify it was.

Q. Would these records Mr. Gillen will bring down help you?

A. No, they would just show the credit.

Q. Do you recall in whose name the trade-in was registered? A. The trade-in?

Q. Yes.

Mr. Gillen: You mean the new car?

Mr. Campbell: No, the one that was [2577] traded.

A. No, Mr. Campbell.

Q. Now at the time you delivered the new car, the second Pontiac, on June 21, 1946, did you deliver the pink slip to him on that?

A. Not at the time of delivery, because we have a different title law in California. The pink certificate is not issued by the dealer, it is issued by the State.

Q. You sent the certificate papers to the State?

A. We are required by law to apply for a license within 24 hours and they in turn would send the title.

Q. Did you cause the title certificate to that car to be delivered to your brother? A. Yes.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

Q. And in what name was that car recorded or registered?

A. I don't know; I can't remember.

Q. Do you recall whether or not it was registered in his name?

A. I presume it was, but I can't remember.

Q. Do you know whether or not Mr. Remmer still had both of these Pontiacs as of December 31, 1946? A. Not of my own knowledge; no, sir.

Q. You don't know one way or the other?

A. No, sir.

Q. Now according to your direct testimony, you also, during the years 1944 to 1946, loaned money to your brother, is that correct? [2578]

A. That's correct.

Q. And what was the amount which you lent to him?

A. Well, minor deductions; I don't know the amount of money in cash.

Q. You say amount of money in cash?

A. By check, which is the same as cash I advanced, I don't know; no, I don't know.

Q. Did you keep any record of it at the time?

A. No, sir. I kept a mental record; I know how much money he owes me, but I took it in total amount. You are asking what represents automobiles, etc., repairs, etc.; I don't know how to break it down.

Q. You stated, however, that the amount had reached between eight and ten thousand dollars, including automobiles and repairs, by the end of 1946? A. Approximately so, yes.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

Q. I believe you stated that you have not kept your checks for this long period of time?

A. That is correct.

Q. Do you at this time have any recollection as to the balances owed by him to you as of December 31, 1943, 1944, 1945 or 1946?

A. You mean as to this transaction?

Q. Yes, the end of the year balances?

A. No. [2579]

Q. Now during the years 1944 to 1946, when you were lending him this money, would he pay you back the amounts, or part of the amounts, from time to time?

A. I got some money back, yes, sir. If he was in a position, he would pay it back; if he wasn't, he didn't.

Q. So there was money going both ways—you were loaning him money and from time to time he would give you back money, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now do you recall what bank account you drew the checks on, the money which you loaned to your brother?

A. It might have been one of ten.

Q. What is your best recollection?

A. It might have been the American Trust Company, it might have been the Anglo California, it might have been the Bank of America, it might have been the Central Bank; I have accounts in those banks.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

Q. Personal accounts as distinguished from firm accounts? A. Yes, all personal.

Q. Now at the time you gave this statement on January 5, 1951, were these matters fresher in your mind than they are at this time?

Mr. Gillen: Of course, that is very objectionable question.

Mr. Campbell: All right. I withdraw the question. [2580]

Q. Now do you recall, Mr. Remmer, if you were asked these questions——

Mr. Gillen: Is counsel now referring to the statement of January, 1951? If he is, he is doing it improperly. The man should be shown his statement.

The Court: I think he ought to call his attention particularly.

Mr. Gillen: It is 11-page statement, your Honor, it would be pretty hard——

Q. I am going to call your attention to page 6 of Exhibit 184 for identification, and to the questions and answers set forth on that page, and ask you if you will read those over.

Mr. Gillen: Well, now, may it please the Court, I should be happy to have the Court look at these questions and answers. There are quite a number on this page and your Honor will recognize immediately that they refer to matters beyond the scope of direct examination and to early years that counsel objected to being asked about.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

The Court: He has merely requested the witness to read over to himself those questions and answers.

Mr. Gillen: Yes, all right.

Q. Have you read those over? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now I also wish to call to your attention and ask you if you will read preceding that, particularly the second question [2581] and answer on page 4.

Mr. Gillen: May I respectfully urge at this time that the question and answer with regard to whether or not the witness read the questions and answers on page 6 of his statement be stricken?

The Court: If there was a question of that kind, it may be stricken.

Mr. Gillen: The question was, would he read his questions and answers on page 6 and did he read them. I am asking that the question and answer be stricken on the ground——

Mr. Campbell: I want to ascertain if he completed reading that portion because I wanted to read some other portion, also preliminary to any other question.

The Court: It may stand.

Mr. Gillen: I do not want counsel to create the impression before the jury it is to refresh Mr. Remmer's recollection on page 6, which is one of the reasons to ask a man to read a statement he gave at a previous time, or that he is attempting to impeach his own testimony, because page 6 refers to another period of time altogether, refers to a period of time subsequent to 1946.

The Court: He is merely requesting the witness

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

to read to himself certain parts in that exhibit. I do not believe the jury should draw an inference of any kind from that question. [2582]

Mr. Gillen: There are only two ways of doing that, as your Honor knows, and neither of those ways are apparent in this particular question.

The Court: Of course, I don't know what the object is, but I can't see any harm in asking him to read something.

Q. Now isn't it a fact, Mr. Remmer, that on January 5, 1951, at 100 McAllister Street Building, in the presence of Theodore Golden, your attorney, Special Agents Whiteside and Weaver, and a stenographer, you were asked the following questions and gave the following answers, relative to the years 1943 to 1946, inclusive——

Mr. Gillen: Now may I ask counsel to show me the particular questions, so I may be in position to offer an intelligent objection? I think there is no objection to that. We will stipulate that he gave these answers to these questions and they may be read.

Mr. Campbell: All right, so stipulated.

Mr. Gillen: Up to that line.

Mr. Campbell: (Reads from Exhibit 184.)

"Q. Has he ever borrowed any money from you? A. Yes, sir."

The Court: Point out the questions so Mr. Remmer can follow you.

Mr. Campbell: This is page 5. This, of course,

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

refers [2583] to Elmer Remmer, is that correct, Mr. Gillen?

Mr. Gillen: Oh, sure.

Mr. Campbell: Reading from page 5 of Exhibit 184 for identification:

"Q. Has he borrowed from you frequently?

"A. At various times.

"Q. Do you have any record of the amounts you advanced to him? A. Some.

"Q. What record do you have?

"A. Well I have a record of his car transactions, repair work that I did for him.

"Q. On automobiles? A. Yes, sir.

"Q. None of which he paid for?

"A. That is correct. Some repairs were paid for but were paid for by insurance companies, but I never was paid by him for any.

"Q. In addition to that you also advanced sums of money to him? A. During these years?

"Q. Yes. A. I can not remember.

"Q. How did you advance these monies to him, in cash or by check? [2584]

"A. No, mostly by check.

"Q. Then that you would be able to ascertain from your checking account?

"A. Not for these years, no, sir.

"Q. Don't you have your checks?

"A. I don't keep my checks that long.

"Q. What amounts did you advance to him?

"A. I can't tell you, sir.

"Q. Was it more or less than a thousand dollars? A. I can't even answer that, sir.

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

"Q. You mean you do not know whether or not you gave him $1000 altogether?

"A. I have never given him any cash. You mean during these years?

"Q. Yes.

"A. No, I could not—I would not want to make a statement one way or the other.

"Q. You can not even approximate the amount?

"A. I know how much he owes me but I don't know when the debt was incurred."

That is all.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Now, Mr. Remmer, calling your attention to the same exhibit 184 for identification, I will ask you if you also gave the next two answers to the next two questions on that same page 6? [2585]

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute. I am going to suggest at this time the entire document go into evidence.

Mr. Gillen: It is part of the same statement. It is by way of explanation.

The Court: Have you any objection to this question?

Mr. Campbell: I think it should then include the next four questions and answers.

The Court: You may answer this question.

Mr. Gillen: Counsel suggested the next four questions?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

Mr. Campbell: Yes.

Mr. Gillen: We suggest enlarging that to the next nine questions, including counsel's four, which will give a complete explanation, I believe, of Mr. Remmer's recollection.

Mr. Campbell: I will offer the entire document in evidence.

Mr. Gillen: Well, there are other matters, I think, that are immaterial.

The Court: I think we had better go along.

Mr. Gillen: I wonder will Mr. Campbell stipulate, to save time, that we may read the next nine questions and answers?

Mr. Campbell: Yes.

Mr. Gillen: With the Court's permission and counsel's stipulation, I shall read those.

The Court: Yes. [2586]

Mr. Gillen: And with the Court's permission, I will pick up the last question and answer Mr. Campbell read so the jury will be assisted. Mr. Remmer, I am going to read the last question and answer Mr. Campbell read on page 6 and the next succeeding questions and answers.

Mr. Campbell: I will stipulate he gave those answers to those questions.

Mr. Gillen: I accept the stipulation.

Mr. Gillen: (Reads.)

"Q. You mean you do not know whether or not you gave him $1000 altogether?

"A. I have never given him any cash. You mean during these years?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

"Q. Yes.

"A. No, I could not—I would not want to make a statement one way or the other.

"You can not even approximate the amount?

"A. I know how much he owes me but I don't know when the debt was incurred.

"Q. How much does he owe you?

"A. About $26,000.00.

"Q. Does that include the sums for these automobile purchases and repair charges, and in addition advances by check? A. Yes, sir.

"Q. When was the bulk of that money advanced to [2587] him by check?

"A. Some last year and some the year before.

"Q. Would it be in—— A. 1950—1949.

"Q. You must have your cancelled checks for those two years so you could determine exactly what your advances were in those years?

"A. By check $15,000.00.

"Q. In 1949 and 1950? A. That is correct.

"Q. The balance of approximately $10,000.00 applies to prior years?

"A. Some car transactions was from in 1947 and including 1947 to the present time.

"Q. About how much of that $10,000.00 would you say arose from car transactions up to the present time—would it amount to $5000.00?

"A. Approximately I suppose. We could go through the process of figuring, but in approximately round figures."

Q. Now, Mr. Remmer, do you have in mind what was the amount of your brother's obligation to you at the beginning of the year 1944?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

A. At the beginning of the year 1944?

Q. Yes. [2588] A. Very slightly.

Q. Do you have any idea now; if you do all right, if you do not, all right.

A. Oh, it might be $300.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all, thank you.

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Do you have any idea what it was at any other date in the period January 1, 1944, to December 31, 1946? A. What it was——

Q. Yes, at any date during that period.

A. In December of 1946 it was about ten thousand dollars.

Q. Now have you refreshed your recollection from some source since you gave this statement to which your attention has been called? A. Yes.

Q. From what source.

A. Oh, I kept a notebook on it.

Q. Do you have that notebook?

A. No, sir.

Q. Where is that notebook?

A. I don't know.

Q. When did you last see that notebook?

A. Shortly after I appeared here.

Q. Shortly after you gave this statement?

A. Yes, sir. [2589]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

Q. When did you last see it prior to the time you gave this statement?

A. Maybe a year or two.

Q. Didn't you tell the government man that you had no record of those personal advances?

A. It isn't a record, Mr. Campbell; it isn't a record.

Q. Is it a notebook in which you jotted down the amount which——

A. It isn't a complete record.

Q. Does it have entries indicating eight to ten thousand dollars as of December 31, 1946?

A. I couldn't tell you. The purpose of the notebook——

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, we object, first as argumentative and assuming something not in evidence. The witness testified in this statement that when various amounts were incurred he did not have a record, he had a recollection in his mind of the money owed at that time, and I presume various other times, too. He said it wasn't a complete record, he didn't keep each amount owed completely, but he knew the general amount.

The Court: Read the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. It showed the total amount. I can explain if I am permitted to. The only purpose of that was that my wife and I have separate holdings and for tax purposes my wife had her [2590] holding prior to our marriage and I had my own individual holdings, and we were allowed a percentage break to bring her community interests up to the point prior to the law of equal division. That was the only purpose of that, was for my tax accountants.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

Q. What I am getting at, did you make entries in that? A. As I gave him money?

Q. Yes. A. No.

Q. When did you make the entries?

A. I just made a total of what he owed me.

Q. When?

A. When I discussed it with my tax accountants. When I was permitted to take an equal division in her community property interest and they were trying to get me to establish my own worth prior to marriage.

Q. When did you make the entries?

A. It wasn't a single entry—it was entry of all my assets.

Q. When did you make entry in that book with relation to what Elmer owed you on December 31, 1946?

A. I don't know. It isn't a ledger, just a memorandum, trying to establish my own net worth.

Q. Did that have date as of December 31, 1946?

A. I don't know—it has no date, no. I know it came up after this and I tried to establish my own amount of money I [2591] had accumulated or had prior to my marriage.

Q. Was that after January 5, 1951, that you set that notebook up?

A. Was it after January 5th—oh, no.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

Q. When did you set that notebook up?

A. Oh, it was either the year 1946 or 1947, because it was prior to the passing of the law of 50 per cent community property law. So it is a date prior to that. I don't know the date. It was just a memorandum.

Q. Have you destroyed that book?

A. I presume it has been; presume, because it had no value.

Q. When did you destroy it?

A. I don't know it was destroyed.

Mr. Gillen: That is assuming something not in evidence.

The Court: Objection sustained.

A. It would be so much rubbish around the house and I just presume it was destroyed. I didn't keep any permanent record.

Q. Did you have that record in mind when you told the agents at the time of this statement?

A. No, sir.

Q. You wouldn't even assume to say whether it was more or less than a thousand dollars Elmer owed you?

A. I believe when I answered that question whether it was more or less than a thousand dollars, I had the thought in mind that he was trying to arrive at how much money I had [2592] given him at single time and as I read that question, that was my answer.

Q. Did you have that notebook in mind at the time you gave that answer? A. No, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William Remmer.)

Q. Did you, during the course of this statement, or at any time, disclose the existence of any such book to the government agents? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Remmer, if you were advised in 1948 was the first year for which a husband and wife could split their income on their returns, regardless of community property, would that assist you in fixing the date at which you made this entry in the notebook?

A. It would be after that, because I wanted to take advantage of that law.

Q. It was after that law came into force?

A. Wait just a minute—no—January—I didn't get that date that the law came into force.

Q. If you were advised 1948 was the first year for which such returns could be filed?

A. Then it would have to be prior to that.

Q. Prior to the enactment of the law?

A. Yes, because the law automatically accomplished what I am trying to accomplish. [2593]

Q. Now did you ever show that book to any one?

A. I do not believe so, no, because the book wouldn't mean anything.

Q. Did you show it any accountant or attorney?

A. No, I may have gone over it with my wife, but that would be all.

Q. Other than your wife, you can't think of any one you may have shown that to? A. No.

Mr. Campbell: I think that is all.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all.

ELMER RONALD VACCHINA

a witness on behalf of the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Will you please state your full name?

A. Elmer Ronald Vacchina.

Q. Where do you reside?

A. 865 Wilkinson Avenue, Reno.

Q. What is your business or occupation? [2594]

A. Assistant Trust Officer, First National Bank of Nevada.

Q. How long have you held such position?

A. Two months.

Q. Have you been with the bank for some time?

A. Four and one-half years.

Q Now, Mr. Vacchina, were you requested to bring here certain records from the Trust Department of the First National Bank of Nevada, relative to a transaction between Elmer Remmer and a man known by the name of J. B. Scarlett, who is also, I believe, known by the name of Jack Sullivan? A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Elmer Ronald Vacchina.)

Q. Do you have those records with you?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. Do you have the original records of the bank? A. All but one, sir.

Q. And that one that is missing is what?

A. It was a check and it is not filed in the escrow folder and was inadvertently left behind.

Q. That can be produced?

A. Yes, it can be.

Q. Did you also bring with you photostatic copies of the original records? A. Yes, sir.

Q. May I see the originals and photostats which you brought with you? By the way, the one document that you were [2595] requested to bring, which you say was inadvertently left behind, the original document, do you have the photostat of that document, the check? A. Yes, I do.

Mr. Campbell: We have no objection to the photostat.

Mr. Gillen: May I see the photostat? When counsel has finished looking at the original document, I am going to ask if it may be stipulated that the three photostatic copies I hold in my hand may be offered in lieu of the originals, so the gentleman may take his original records back to the bank.

Mr. Campbell: We have no objection to the use of photostatic copies. We will have certain objections to the documents at some time.

Mr. Gillen: I will offer these two documents as defendant's exhibit next for evidence. The first document would be the assignment, D-1; the second document will be final escrow receipt release, E-1, and the third document I will offer for identification will be the face and reverse side of a cashier's check of date of March 2, 1949.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Elmer Ronald Vacchina.)

The Clerk: F-1.

Mr. Gillen: And may I ask counsel, through your Honor, may I ask he stipulate that these three documents represent true photostatic replicas of the original documents reflecting this particular transaction, kept in the ordinary course of business of the First National Bank of Nevada? [2596]

Mr. Campbell: If you state that as the fact, I will stipulate.

Mr. Gillen: Well, is that the fact, Mr. Vacchina?

A. That is the fact.

Mr. Gillen: In the face of the stipulation and in the face of the answer of the witness, I will at this time offer those three documents in evidence on behalf of the defendant with the numbers and designations they now bear.

Mr. Campbell: To which we object at this time, until further foundation is laid as to the materiality. The documents relate to some transaction taking place—well, one document is dated October 21, 1948, and the other the 2nd of March, 1949, and we make the objection at this time that no proper foundation has been laid for their admission, on the grounds that their materiality has not yet appeared.

The Court: Can you make a little further showing on that matter?

Mr. Gillen: Well, the third document counsel

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Elmer Ronald Vacchina.)

did not mention and that is the final receipt and release. The other two documents go as one transaction.

Mr. Campbell: They all relate to the same thing. I refer to the documents as bearing dated respectively October 21, 1948, and March 2, 1949. They all relate to the same transaction. My objection is that this is a transaction at a time long subsequent to the period here in question, and until the [2597] foundation is laid it relates here to some transaction within the period, I submit that they are immaterial.

The Court: May I inquire if these exhibits have to do with the material which was referred to concerning the same gentleman, Mr. Scarlett?

Mr. Gillen: Yes, your Honor.

Mr. Campbell: We do not know, your Honor, until the evidence is placed in here.

Mr. Gillen: It is referring to repayment of loan made in 1946.

Mr. Campbell: May I ask a question on voir dire?

The Court: Yes.

Q. (By Mr. Campbell): Mr. Vacchina, do you have any personal knowledge of the transaction to which these papers relate?

A. You mean to what went before?

Q. Yes.

A. No, we merely received the assignment from Mr. Remmer and recorded it.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Elmer Ronald Vacchina.)

Q. And you received this assignment on or about October 21, 1948?

A. Our escrow is active during that period and I assume it was about that time.

Q. Do you have any knowledge of the transaction to which this assignment relates?

A. Not personally. [2598]

Mr. Campbell: I make this objection until further foundation is laid.

Mr. Gillen: I say this in the interest of time, these documents, may it please the Court, relate to the transactions in which there is already testimony in evidence before the Court and will be immediately connected up by a witness who will next be called, in the person of Mr. Woodburn, attorney.

Mr. Campbell: If it is connected up, I will have no objection at that time to it being put in evidence, but I do not think we should have it before.

The Court: We will postpone it until later.

Mr. Gillen: Very well, I will withdraw this gentleman on the witness stand, but in the event I encounter other technical obstacles, I will ask that he remain in the court room, in case we have to use him further.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Gillen: I presume counsel is refraining from cross-examination.

Mr. Campbell: Well, I have no cross-examination up to this point.

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

WILLIAM WOODBURN

a witness on behalf of the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Will you state your full name, please?

A. William Woodburn. [2599]

Q. Where do you reside?

A. In Reno, Nevada, 3 Newlands Circle.

Q. What is your business or profession?

A. I am a lawyer.

Q. How long have you been such in the State of Nevada? A. Well, I was admitted in 1907.

Q. Mr. Woodburn, have you ever held any official positions in connection with your professional calling? A. Yes.

Q. Will you relate what those positions were?

A. Well——

Mr. Campbell: I fail to see the materiality.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. I was District Attorney of Washoe County for three terms, and then I was United States Attorney in this Court for eight years, and those are the only official positions I have ever held. I have held important positions in bar associations.

Q. Professional honorary positions; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Woodburn, do you maintain a law firm, or are you a member of a law firm in Reno, Nevada? A. Yes.

Q. What is the name of that firm, please?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William Woodburn.)

A. Well, it is at present Woodburn, Forman and Woodburn. The second Woodburn is my son. [2600]

Q. Now back in the year 1946 what was the name of the firm?

A. It was then Thatcher, Woodburn and Forman. George B. Thatcher was the first name.

Q. Now Mr. George B. Thatcher, your former partner, is now deceased? A. That is right.

Q. And in addition to your own son being a member of the firm, there was another member of the firm in the person of John P. Thatcher, the son of your partner; is that correct?

A. That's right.

Q. Now, Mr. Woodburn, were you acquainted, during his lifetime, with a man by the name of J. B. Scarlett, also known as Jack Sullivan?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you his attorney? I mean, did you represent him on occasions or counsel him on occasions?

A. Yes, he consulted me on a number of legal matters.

Q. And are you acquainted with the defendant in this case, Elmer Remmer?

A. Yes, I have known Mr. Remmer for some years.

Q. Have you, or has your firm, served as attorney and counsellor for Elmer Remmer on occasions?

A. Yes, in one or two matters.

Q. And one of those matters was with relation to a civil liability in connection with his income tax returns; [2601] is that correct?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William Woodburn.)

A. That is correct.

Q. Now are you acquainted with Mr. William Graham and James McKay? A. Yes.

Q. And did your firm have anything to do with the matter of the transfer of title or the sale of the establishment or resort known as Cal-Neva Lodge in Nevada? A. We did.

Q. Did your firm facilitate the sale of the interests of William Graham and James McKay to the defendant in this case, Elmer Remmer, in the year 1946? A. That's correct.

Q. Now do you have any recollection, in connection with the transfer or sale of the interests of McKay and Graham to Mr. Remmer in the year 1946, of the necessity of those three persons advancing some money to the corporation for the outstanding obligations to the corporation on their part?

Mr. Campbell: That calls for his conclusion.

Mr. Gillen: It calls for his memory.

The Court: You may answer.

A. That is my recollection.

Q. That there were some accounts that had to be paid off to the Cal-Neva corporation?

A. For Cal-Neva debts. Is that what you [2602] mean?

Q. I mean debts from McKay, Graham and Remmer to the Cal-Neva corporation?

A. That's right.

Q. Was it brought to your attention at that time that Elmer Remmer had incurred an obligation in the sum of 25 thousand dollars to J. B. Scarlett, your client, for the purpose of assisting Elmer Remmer in cleaning up his account in the Cal-Neva corporation?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as leading and suggestive, obviously calling for hearsay, and that it is incompetent.

The Court: The objection will be sustained.

Q. Let me ask you this—did you have any conversation in the year 1946 at about the time that Cal-Neva interests of McKay and Graham were being transferred to Mr. Remmer, with your client, Mr. J. B. Scarlett? A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial and incompetent.

The Court: The answer may stand.

Q. Your answer is yes, you did have a conversation? A. I did.

Q. As a result of that conversation, Mr. Woodburn, did you, two years later, prepare any document in the form of an assignment acknowledging an obligation from Elmer Remmer to J. B. Scarlett, also known as Jack Sullivan? [2603]

Mr. Campbell: I am going to again object as leading and suggestive.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Well, let me ask you this—did you ever prepare an assignment from Elmer Remmer to the benefit of J. B. Scarlett?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection.

Mr. Gillen: I do not think that is improper.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William Woodburn.)

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the question.

A. Yes.

Q. And did the assignment that you prepared refer to the matter contained in the conversation that you had with your client, Mr. Scarlett, in 1946?

Mr. Campbell: That is objected to, if the Court please, as incompetent. It is an attempt to produce a hearsay conversation and contents of the conversation by indirection.

Mr. Gillen: No, may it please your Honor, it is asking if a document he prepared as a lawyer at a certain time related to a conversation with Mr. Scarlett at a prior time, related to that same matter.

The Court: You may answer the question.

(Question read.)

A. It did.

Q. I am going to show you, Mr. Woodburn, a photostatic copy which has been stipulated to be a true replica of the [2604] original document kept in the ordinary course of business of the First National Bank of Nevada, and I will ask you whether or not that is the assignment that you prepared for Elmer Remmer and your client, J. B. Scarlett? A. I am certain it is.

Mr. Gillen: I will offer that in evidence.

A. Pardon me—that was in October, 1948. I recall preparing the assignment.

Q. Do you recall in October, 1948, there was any other transactions afoot or any other deal afoot for the sale of Cal-Neva by Mr. Remmer?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William Woodburn.)

A. That is correct.

Q. And do you recall to whom Mr. Remmer was selling his interest to?

A. Yes, to the Adler interests.

Mr. Gillen: I offer the document in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as no proper foundation, no materiality shown.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Do you recall what the nature of the assignment was which you prepared for Mr. Scarlett?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to on the grounds the document speaks for itself.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. What was the purpose in preparing the document for [2605] Mr. Remmer and Mr. Scarlett?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent and calling for hearsay.

Mr. Gillen: It is not calling for hearsay at all.

The Court: If the answer is intended to bring out the substance of the conversation with Mr. Scarlett, it is hearsay. Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: No, it is not for that purpose at all, may it please the Court. I am asking a lawyer who prepared the document what was the purpose of the document he prepared.

The Court: It was prepared partly as result of conversation with Mr. Scarlett.

Mr. Gillen: He testified, your Honor, it related to conversation with Mr. Scarlett and the transaction referred to in the conversation with Mr. Scarlett.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William Woodburn.)

The Court: Let us have the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: I submit, there is no ambiguity in the document itself which requires explanation.

The Court: That is not the question.

Mr. Campbell: The question is what was the purpose. The document speaks for itself unless there is some ambiguity.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: Counsel is saying there is no ambiguity and calling for its production at the same time. That is a [2606] highly technical ground.

The Court: The question I am interested in before the Court was in regard to the purpose of preparing that document, and the document was obviously in part the result of conversation with Mr. Scarlett.

Q. All right. Mr. Woodburn, when you prepared this document, did Mr. Remmer sign that document?

A. He did.

Q. And is that his signature upon that document? A. So far as I know, he did.

Q. And what did you do with that document after it was executed by Mr. Remmer?

A. I handed it to the Trust Department of the First National Bank of Nevada.

Q. And directing your attention now—I will leave that document in your hands for a moment—to defendant's Exhibit F-1 for identification, that is the check, cashier's check, I will ask you if you will look at this exhibit, which has been stipulated is a true picture of the cashier's check issued by the First National Bank of Nevada, and tell us whether or not you recognize that instrument as ever having come to your attention in your professional capacity?

A. Well, of course, I can't be absolutely certain, but I will say this, that after the assignment was delivered to the Trust Department of the First National Bank, that one of the officers [2607] of the Trust Department handed me at or about this time the cashier's check of the First National Bank of Nevada in favor of J. B. Scarlett in the sum of 25 thousand dollars, which was the identical amount of the assignment of Remmer to the account of Sullivan was to the bank.

Q. Do you know from what funds that assignment of 25 thousand dollars was to be taken?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to—the record is the best evidence. The record is here, I believe.

The Court: If the record is here, it is the best evidence.

Mr. Campbell: If it will facilitate, I will stipulate the check which he holds in his hand was paid from funds deposited in escrow No. 1541, which funds was deposited on or about December 31, 1948.

Mr. Gillen: We will accept that stipulation. Now will counsel stipulate also there was funds payable to an escrow in favor of Remmer from Adler for the sale of Cal-Neva?

Mr. Campbell: Without stipulating to the ma-

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William Woodburn.)

teriality of the transaction, which I wish to object to these documents, I will agree that that was the source of the funds.

Mr. Gillen: Now we might crystallize it in a form the jury may better follow, because it has been chopped up here. Counsel will stipulate that an assignment was made in favor of Scarlett by Remmer for the payment to Scarlett out of [2608] the escrow funds which should be derived from the sale of Cal-Neva and money paid by Adler to the account of Remmer, the sum of 25 thousand dollars; that as a result of that assignment being deposited, Mr. Woodburn, at a later date received the cashier's check which is defendant's Exhibit F-1, and I do not know whether he said this or not, but I believe turned it over to his client, Mr. Scarlett.

Mr. Campbell: When the transaction is linked up to the period set forth in the indictment, I will enter into such stipulation.

Mr. Gillen: Then counsel declines to stipulate. Then we will struggle along in our own way.

Q. Mr. Woodburn, I refer to photostat which is designated as defendant's E-1 for identification, which I will identify by the heading of "Final Escrow Receipt and Release," and which has been identified and stipulated to be a true picture of an official record kept in the ordinary course of business of the Nevada First National Bank, and I will ask you whether or not, at the time you received the cashier's check, which you hold in your hand, defendant's Exhibit F-1, that you had your client,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William Woodburn.)

Mr. Scarlett, sign that release and receipt for the First National Bank of Nevada? A. I did.

Q. And you recognize your former client's signature, J. B. Scarlett? [2609]

A. That is correct. I remember particularly for the reason that the 25 thousand dollar cashier's check was handed to me by an officer of the Trust Department and I called Mr. Sullivan, whose true name was James Scarlett——

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object, if the Court please, to the voluntary release by Mr. Woodburn of these comments. He answered the question.

The Court: Yes, the question has been answered.

Q. Very well. Following the receipt of that cashier's check, did you summon your client, Mr. Scarlett, to your office?

A. Well, I telephoned him and he was a little crippled at that time, walked with a cane, and he said he would appreciate it very much if I would bring it down to his office, and I did.

Q. And you went to his office with it?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you have with you also at that time the receipt release for Mr. Scarlett to sign so you might return it to the bank for their records?

A. Yes, I recall he started to sign his name like it appeared here, J. B. Sullivan, and got "Sull" and then wrote his true name of Scarlett. Sullivan was his business name.

Q. These matters all related to the transactions

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William Woodburn.)

that were brought to your attention in the year 1946? A. That is correct.

Mr. Gillen: I make the offer. [2610]

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as no foundation laid for the materiality of these documents.

The Court: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: I did not get the question. I would have objected to the question if I got it, as being incompetent. I ask the answer be stricken.

The Court: The answer may be stricken.

Mr. Campbell: And I make my objection the question is incompetent.

The Court: What is there in the record to connect this transaction with the periods involved in this indictment?

Mr. Gillen: I believe we have some evidence given by young Mr. Woodburn at an earlier time here, I think we can show your Honor, with relation to the matter of the handling of repayment of debt incurred in 1946 by Mr. Remmer to Mr. Scarlett, which debt was repaid in 1949 following an assignment made in 1948, from the first money that accrued from the sale by Mr. Remmer to Mr. Adler of Cal-Neva Lodge, all of which was handled through the office of Mr. Woodburn and by Mr. Woodburn.

Mr. Campbell: I recall Mr. Woodburn's testimony. He stated that he knew nothing whatsoever about the transaction except 25 thousand dollars was paid out of the sale of Cal-Neva, and I do not believe the record—— [2611]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William Woodburn.)

Mr. Gillen: I believe I can correct counsel on that.

The Court: You may check it during the recess.

Mr. Gillen: Mr. Woodburn, Jr., testified here as a witness for the prosecution and he related the instance of the repayment of the debt of 25 thousand dollars by Mr. Remmer to Mr. Scarlett through his law firm's office, and his testimony was recollection concerning the preparation of papers, etc., by his office and by his father, but he did not recall or have information on the date of the incurring of the debt by Mr. Remmer to Mr. Scarlett. Now Mr. Woodburn has testified that at a subsequent conversation in 1946, at a time when Mr. Remmer and Mr. McKay and Mr. Graham were paying personal obligations on their accounts to Cal-Neva, in preparation for the transfer of their interests, that as a result of the conversation at that time with his client, now deceased, whom we cannot produce, that he subsequently prepared certain documents and prepared the assignment.

The Court: Prepared the assignment—that is why I ruled the assignment is not admissible.

Mr. Gillen: Prepared the assignment——

The Court: That is why I ruled the assignment is not admissible.

Mr. Gillen: That he prepared the assignment and not only prepared the assignment, but he subsequently delivered the assignment to the bank, received from the bank at a later date [2612] the check and release, delivered them to his client, and returned the receipt and release to the bank showing the payment of this obligation. Now I think we have everything there, your Honor, for more than a substantial foundation. So there may be no question in anybody's mind, may I call your Honor's attention to page 1506 of the transcript in this case?

Mr. Campbell: May I suggest this be done out of the presence of the jury?

The Court: We will excuse the jury until tomorrow.

Mr. Gillen: I do not think this should be done out of the presence of the jury. The jury has already heard this.

The Court: We will excuse the jury until tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock.

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Will you state your full name?

A. John P. Thatcher.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of John P. Thatcher.)

Q. And state your address?

A. 1310 Lander Street, Reno, Nevada.

Q. With whom do you reside there?

A. With my wife and children.

Q. What is your business or profession?

A. I am a lawyer.

Q. How long have you been such?

A. Twenty-one years.

Q. And that, of course, is in the State of Nevada? A. Yes.

Q. Were you formerly a member of the law firm of which your father was senior member?

A. Yes, Thatcher, Woodburn and Forman.

Q. And your father's name was what?

A. George B. Thatcher.

Q. And he is now deceased? [2614] When did he die? A. 1946.

Q. Are you acquainted with the defendant in this case, Elmer Remmer, who sits at the counsel table?

A. Yes, I have known him for some years.

Q. During the year 1948, in your professional capacity as a member of the firm of Thatcher, Woodburn and Forman, were you called upon to, and did you, do any work in connection with an income tax problem of Elmer F. Remmer?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial, if the Court please, and not competent as to matters occurring in 1948.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. Do you wish the question read?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of John P. Thatcher.)

A. The answer is yes.

Q. Are you acquainted with a man by the name of Harold Maundrell? A. Yes, I am.

Q. And during the month of March or the early part of April of 1948, in connection with the income tax problem of Mr. Remmer, did you have a conversation, or conversations, with Mr. Remmer and with Mr. Maundrell, concerning the Remmer enterprises or enterprises in which Mr. Remmer was interested? A. I did.

Q. And from your conversation with Mr. Maundrell and Mr. Remmer—was it more than [2615] one conversation?

A. Just one with Mr. Maundrell.

Q. And did you learn Mr. Maundrell's capacity in connection with the enterprises in which Mr. Remmer was interested in that conversation?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent and calling for hearsay.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: I am asking him if he learned of Mr. Maundrell's capacity.

The Court: The objection has been sustained.

Q. All right. From your discussion with Mr. Maundrell concerning the enterprises in which Mr. Remmer was interested, did you determine whether or not Mr. Maundrell was acquainted with Mr. Remmer's businesses?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for hearsay.

Q. All right. Now on April 8th, calling your attention to the date of April 8, 1948, I will ask you whether or not, by previous arrangement made with you, you met with any representatives of the Internal Revenue Department?

A. Yes, on that day I met with Mr. Weaver, Mr. Morgan, and Mr. Harkness.

Q. Where did that meeting take place?

A. It took place in my office, 206 North Virginia Street, Reno. [2616]

Q. What time in the day, do you recall, was that meeting scheduled for?

A. It is my recollection it was scheduled for two o'clock in the afternoon.

Q. And prior to the arrival of the men you have mentioned from the Internal Revenue Department, did you see that Mr. Remmer that day?

A. Yes, I had Mr. Remmer come over at 1:30.

Q. Did you have a conversation with Mr. Remmer that day?

A. Yes, I spoke to Mr. Remmer with Mr. Woodburn in Mr. Woodburn's office.

Q. In that same suite of offices?

A. In that same suite of offices.

Q. Now following your conversation with Mr. Remmer and Mr. Woodburn, did Mr. Remmer remain in your suite of offices, or did he go elsewhere?

A. Following that conversation in Mr. Woodburn's offices, he remained in Mr. Woodburn's office for a while and then he went in the library.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of John P. Thatcher.)

Q. When the Internal Revenue men arrived, where did you receive them?

A. In my room, No. 206.

Q. Who came into the room first?

A. I think Mr. Morgan, followed by Mr. Weaver and Mr. Harkness. [2617]

Q. Was anybody else with them at that time?

A. They had a typist, stenographer, with them at that time.

Q. Was that a man or woman?

A. It was a woman.

Q. Did you have a conversation with Mr. Weaver or the other gentlemen at that time?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Was Mr. Remmer in your private office at that time? A. No, he was.

Q. Throughout that entire meeting was Mr. Remmer ever in your presence, in the presence of Mr. Weaver or Mr. Morgan or Mr. Harkness?

A. He was not.

Q. Did the lady who was the stenographer remain in your private office during the conversation you had with the Internal Revenue men?

A. No, after a short while she left and went out to the reception room.

Q. What was the conversation you had with Mr. Weaver, Mr. Morgan and Mr. Harkness at that time, and if you will relate as near as you can, recall who did the talking.

to talk to Mr. Remmer and ask him some questions. When they came into the office they three sat in front of my desk, about three or four feet in [2618] front of it in three chairs, and Mr. Morgan asked if Mr. Remmer was present, and I said yes, he was in the office.

Q. By office, what did you mean by that, the same room or elsewhere?

A. I meant in the suite of offices, and I then asked Mr. Morgan what was the purpose of the questioning, and Mr. Morgan or Mr. Weaver, I don't know which, said that they just wanted to ask him some questions about his income tax. I then asked if they had any particular year in mind and they said no, and then I asked if there were any particular items of income as to which they desired to question Mr. Remmer and they said they did not desire to commit themselves on that, they just wanted to ask him questions, and then I asked if their purpose in coming was to obtain evidence for criminal prosecution, and Mr. Weaver, I think, said he could not say as to that at that time, and I then questioned them at some length regarding the purpose of the questions of Mr. Remmer. As to the answers to all my questions they were non-commital.

Q. They gave you no information other than they wanted to question him?

A. None whatsoever.

Q. Now how long would you say the interview that you have in mind here consumed?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of John P. Thatcher.)

A. Oh, not more than 15 or 20 minutes.

Q. At the conclusion of that interview, or at any time during that interview, did you hand to anyone of the Internal Revenue [2619] men a typewritten prepared statement, expressing your position in the matter, as attorney for Mr. Remmer?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And to whom did you hand that?

A. I think Mr. Weaver.

Q. Do you have a copy of that statement?

A. I do.

Q. Will you produce it, please?

Mr. Gillen: I will have this marked for identification, with the Court's permission.

The Clerk: G-1.

Q. Now, Mr. Thatcher, when was it, if you recall, that you handed Mr. Weaver the prepared typewritten statement now identified as defendant's G-1 for identification? Was it at the conclusion of your interview?

A. At the very conclusion of the interview.

Q. Now prior to handing the prepared statement over, did you express your position orally to the three Internal Revenue men?

A. I did. I told Mr. Weaver that under no circumstances would I permit the agents of the Bureau to question Mr. Remmer on a fishing expedition.

Q. Then at the conclusion, as I understand it, you handed them this prepared statement?

A. I did. [2620]

Mr. Gillen: Now I will offer this statement, may it please the Court, as defendant's exhibit next in order in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: No objection.

The Court: It may be admitted. G-1.

Mr. Gillen: With the Court's permission, I should like to read this statement to the jury.

The Court: You may do so.

Mr. Gillen: (Reads Exhibit G-1.)

Q. Now, did you also assure the agents of the Internal Revenue at that time——

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object to leading question, which this obviously is going to be.

The Court: I can see it is going to be leading and try to avoid leading questions.

Mr. Gillen: I thought it was more a summarization what he previously testified.

The Court: Well, it is leading.

Q. All right. In your oral discussion with the agents of the Internal Revenue Department, did you on that date, in your office, in substance relate to them what was in this statement?

A. In substance, yes.

Q. And did you include in that that you would make Mr. Remmer available in the event that some specific charge——

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as leading, if the Court please. [2621]

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Look at the last paragraph of this document and tell me if you said anything to them of the general nature contained in that last paragraph?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of John P. Thatcher.)

A. Yes, I said I would make available to them such books and records of Mr. Remmer's business as I could and I did so.

Q. You did so at some subsequent time?

A. Yes, I gave Mr. Weaver all of our files on the income tax problem.

Q. Did you say anything about ever making Mr. Remmer available to them or not?

A. I don't recall whether I did orally or not.

Q. Of course that was contained in the statement which you prepared? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, after this incident that you have related took place, I take it that the three Internal Revenue men withdrew from your office?

A. Yes.

Q. And it was at some later time that you turned certain files and books to Mr. Weaver?

A. Yes, it was following that conversation, at a later date.

Q. Now, Mr. Thatcher, Mr. Weaver has testified here that on April 8, 1948, that he and the other two agents mentioned, were in your office at the address you gave and present in your [2622] office at that time was Mr. Remmer, the defendant in this case, and that you were also present and that you introduced Mr. Remmer to the three agents and that a discussion was had, at the conclusion of which you stated to the agents that you were advising Mr. Remmer to answer no questions or make no statements, and Mr. Weaver further testified that he then personally addressed Mr. Remmer and asked Mr. Remmer, in effect or words, "Is what your attorney stated your attitude, that you will make no statements and answer no questions?" and that Mr. Remmer said that that was his attitude, that he would make no statements and answer no questions. Now, Mr. Tatcher, I am going to ask you whether or not such an incident as was described by Mr. Weaver took place in your office on April 8, 1948, or at any other place at any other time, or at all? A. It did not.

Q. Was Mr. Remmer, to your knowledge, ever in the presence of these three agents in your presence and sight? A. He was not.

Q. Mr. Thatcher, were you acquainted in his lifetime with a man by the name of Robert Jeffers?

A. Yes.

Q. And directing your attention to the year 1949 or 1950, did you ever have a conversation with Mr. Jeffers concerning a 50 thousand dollar promissory note from Mr. Remmer to Mr. Jeffers?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for hearsay. [2623]

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: As to the answer to this question, your Honor, I believe there is no hearsay involved. He can state whether he had a conversation, yes or no.

The Court: The question incorporates the subject matter of the alleged conversation. I think the two together you would have hearsay.

Q. Well, let me put it this way. Did you, in the year 1949 or 1950 have any conversation with Mr. Jeffers regarding any transaction between himself and Mr. Remmer?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for hearsay and immaterial.

The Court: Answer the question yes or no.

A. Yes.

Q. Can you tell us what that conversation was?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for hearsay.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, I should like to be heard on that matter because I have at this point in the examination of Mr. Thatcher a matter that pertains to an admission against interest by Mr. Jeffers.

The Court: I will not take the time, Mr. Gillen. It is the same subject we have discussed before and the ruling will stand.

Mr. Gillen: May I say this to your Honor respectfully? [2624]

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Mr. Gillen: I wish to say further, your Honor——

The Court: I am not going to have any further discussion on this question. The ruling has been made and will stand and we will proceed to the next question.

Mr. Gillen: I was just going to tell your Honor——

The Court: I do not want you to.

Mr. Gillen: You don't know what I am going to say. I might say something that is enlightening to you.

The Court: There is nothing before the Court and we are not going to have anything in this record except questions and answers to questions.

Mr. Gillen: We are supposed to have some——

The Court: Proceed.

Mr. Gillen: Then I ask at this time to be permitted to make an offer of proof.

The Court: Well, we will excuse the jury.

(In the absence of the jury.)

OFFER OF PROOF RE: JEFFRESS NOTE

(Feb. 7, 1952, Notebook 341, pp. 3-18.)

Mr. Gillen: Now, may it please the Court, we have here a situation of an admission against interest by Mr. Jeffress, against his own interest, to Mr. Thatcher. We offer to prove in the year 1949 or 1950 that Mr. Thatcher and Mr. Robert Jeffress, now deceased—I believe it will be fixed as the year 1951 that Mr. Jeffress died—it may have been the end of 1950—we offer to prove that Mr. Jeffress had a conversation with Mr. Thatcher, in which Mr. Jeffress discussed the fact that he had loaned in 1946—of course your Honor knows there is evidence to that effect already in the record—Mr. Remmer fifty thousand dollars and that he had obtained from Mr. Remmer a note for $50,000 and that in connection with the income tax indebtedness and problems Mr. Thatcher was then handling for Mr. Remmer as attorney for Mr. Remmer, that Mr. Thatcher requested that Mr. Jeffress turn over to him the promissory note for the $50,000, so that it could be taken up with the accountant, and further that in this conversation it was admitted and revealed by Mr. Jeffress to Mr. Thatcher that the $50,000 obligation, evidenced by that note, had been paid by Mr. Remmer to or on behalf of Mr. Jeffress.

Now, while we recognize the well-founded rule, may it please the Court, that conversations out of the hearing or presence of persons interested in the case is hearsay, there are several exceptions to the hearsay rule and one of the exceptions, may it please the Court, is the exception of which the prosecution in this case took advantage and upon which your Honor ruled favorably for the prosecution. The statement on which your Honor ruled is found on page 89 of the transcript, where Mr. Thompson addressed your Honor and said: "Your Honor, I would like * * *. I am saying that generally * * *," and the Court then interrupted and said: "Have you authority. Let us hear the authority."

Now this situation arose, your Honor will recall, in the instance of the appearance on the witness stand of Mrs. Badovinatz, who testified, and your Honor first heard the testimony out of the presence of the jury, in order to enable your Honor to pass on the efficacy of the contentions of the prosecution. Mrs. Badovinatz testified that in February,

BLURRED COPY

1947, her husband, then deceased at the time she appeared on the witness stand, had told her he was going to the bank in Fresno to get a cashier's check to repay Bones Remmer five thousand dollars he owed him. Your Honor heard that testimony and determined that that was a declaration against interest on the part of this defendant by way of acknowledgment of an indebtedness to Remmer, and having heard that matter out of the hearing and presence of the jury, your Honor then called in the jury and permitted her to testify and, of course, your Honor will recall further objection was made by me on the grounds there was no showing when the indebtedness was incurred, but that is not the problem here. Subsequently there was other evidence in support of that declaration against interest brought here in the form of cashier's check. Your Honor will recall they had one obtained by Mr. Badovinatz made payable to Mr. Remmer in the sum of $5,000. Now, here we have evidence already in the record concerning the transaction of the borrowing and we are now reaching the point of payment of the $50,000 obligation.

The Court: Let me ask a question. You thought there was error at that time on the part of the Court to admit that testimony of the lady.

Mr. Gillen: We thought it was error for this reason, that there would have to be a showing here whether the obligation was incurred within the period of time involved in the indictment here.

The Court: Did you at that time make an objection on the ground that it was hearsay?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Gillen: Yes, we urged the hearsay objection.

The Court: If you were right, then are you right now? My thought is if the Court has erred in that testimony, I will strike it and strike any exhibit introduced in relation to it.

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor refused to do it.

The Court: I am always happy, if you can point out where I have made any error throughout the course of this trial, I will be glad to hear you and back track, so when we are finished we will have a record as free of error as humanly possible for me to have. So that presents this problem, and I think it is the duty of the Court, if it appears at any time during the course of the trial that the Court has made an error in ruling and admission of any testimony or exhibits, that the Court should strike those matters from the record.

Mr. Gillen: Well, this is our position in regard to the Badovinatz matter, your Honor, and this is what was urged the other day by Mr. Avakian in his motions to strike certain portions of the transcript. We think, and we are satisfied from a reading and research of the authorities, that there is an exception to the hearsay rule, where an admission against interest has been made by a person who is either deceased or beyond the control of the court, to appear and testify in person. However, in the Badovinatz matter, we had the other problem involved, that it not being possible to establish when the obligation was incurred—we have no promissory note to give us the date of the incurrence of the obligation as we have in this instance here in the Jeffress case—we contended—your Honor will recall Mr. Thompson remarking the other day there was only about 31 or 32 days that this obligation should have been incurred before February 8th to bring it in, and he told your Honor he thought your Honor should be allowed to speculate on when the loan was made. Our strenuous objections, which we still urge, and our contention it was error to allow it in, which we still urge, was not upon the point that it was not proper under the exception to the hearsay rule declaration against interest of a deceased person, but rather there was no connection made to show when the obligation was incurred.

Now, Mr. Golden reminds me that we further urged at that time that it was privileged conversation between husband and wife, which your Honor thought was not meritorious at that time, so we feel that we have here a situation that is squarely within the rule and on which your Honor properly can rule is an exception to the hearsay rule and that the other objectionable aspect that was present in the Badovinatz matter is not in this case. We have some authority on this—Wigmore on Evidence and Corpus Juris Secundum, both of which hold declarations against interest is a proper exception to the hearsay rule, and as to that, I do not feel that your Honor's ruling was correct in the Badovinatz instance.

The Court: Let me ask you this question—declaration against whose interest?

Mr. Gillen: Against the interest of Mr. Jeffress.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: Do the authorities go that far?

Mr. Gillen: Well, it can only be declaration against interest of the defendant, your Honor, in one form or the other.

The Court: Could there be a question of whether or not the interest against whom the declaration is made or was made, would be confined to the interest of a party to the action?

Mr. Gillen: No, it wasn't in the Badovinatz matter.

The Court: No, I realize that.

Mr. Gillen: Mr. Badovinatz was no party to the action. Mr. Badovinatz made declaration against interest which indicated he had an obligation against the defendant in this case which he paid within the period of time that we are interested in here. It is declaration against interest of the declarant who is now either dead or beyond the control of the Court. Your Honor recognizes there are many declarations against interest. A common one is in an automobile traffic violation, a man says, "My brakes didn't hold," or "I didn't see" or "I was going too fast" or "I ran through the red light by mistake." In effect he is saying, it is my fault, I am obligated to you under the circumstances. In regard to owing money, there are declarations against interest—a man can say, "I owe John Jones so much," that is declaration against his interest, or he can say, "John Jones owed me so much but now he paid it." That is declaration against his interest because he is admitting that there is no longer due to him an obligation, that it has been paid and the slate is clean. He is declaring against interest because he is burning his bridges behind him to make any claim against that obligation. Mind you, we have here, at the starting point of this whole transaction, the preparation by Mr. Maundrell of the promissory note which is in evidence, we have the passing of the money, some bank records to show how the money went thru the conduit to Mr. Remmer's interest, namely, the Cal-Neva account, and reflecting the withdrawal of that amount from the bank on account of Mr. Jeffress in San Francisco, and we are now attempting to present to the jury declaration of interest by Mr. Jeffress to the effect, "I will give back the promissory note because the obligation has been paid." In other words, "I no longer have a claim for the $50,000."

BLURRED COPY

The Court: What is it you expect to prove, Mr. Gillen, in this record?

Mr. Gillen: I expect to prove by Mr. Thatcher in this regard that while Mr. Thatcher was working on this income tax problem in 1949 and 1950—and I might state to your Honor there are some other aspects—a petition for readjustment of the tax claims in connection with the Jeffress assessment that was levied against Mr. Remmer's assets—Mr. Thatcher was working on that and it came to his attention an obligation of $50,000 which Mr. Remmer owed to Mr. Jeffress had been paid, but the evidence of the payment of that obligation was not completed, in that Mr. Jeffress still had the note, and Mr. Thatcher communicated with Mr. Jeffress, asked Mr. Jeffress if the obligation had been paid and if so would Mr. Jeffress return the note, so Mr. Thatcher might have it in his hands, or the hands of the accountant who was working on the matter. We will prove Mr. Jeffress (1) admitted the obligation was paid, and (2) Mr. Jeffress returned the note. That is the whole sum and substance.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: Have you concluded now?

Mr. Gillen: Yes, and I would like to have your Honor hear the testimony out of the presence of the jury, as you did in the instance of Mrs. Badovinatz, and I think your Honor will then rule consistently as you did in the Badovinatz matter, that this is a recognized exception of the hearsay rule.

Mr. Campbell: I think the last suggestion should be followed in connection with the offer of proof, in the event your Honor is inclined, from the general statement, to admit the evidence. However, my understanding of the rule of these matters does not coincide entirely with that of Mr. Gillen's. My understanding of the rule is this, that as an exception to the hearsay rule, a statement made by a decedent against his pecuniary interest at the time that he makes the statement—and by against his pecuniary interest I mean his referring to an obligation which he admits owing at the time he makes the statement—is admissible, but a statement of past events does not come within that exception to the hearsay rule. I was going to say the situation of the Badovinatz evidence is entirely distinguishable from this proffered evidence. There

Mrs. Badovinatz was testifying as to admission by her husband that on the date he made that statement he owed Remmer the sum of money that was involved—I forget what it was—five thousand dollars—which was against his then personal pecuniary interest. Now, the general rule as set forth here in Corpus Juris Secundum—I am reading from Vol. 31 at page 963—"To be admissible as a declaration * * *." Then as to pecuniary interest it states: "Where the declarant had adequate knowledge of the facts stated * * *," which presents another facet of the matter and that is, if the statement were against his then existing pecuniary interest, then it is admissible. It must also appear that primary evidence, rather than this hearsay evidence, is not available to the proponent of the evidence. Here—and I say this without the presence of the jury—primary evidence is available to the defendant as to the circumstances, the making and the circumstances of the obligation referred to, at any given period of time.

I submit, your Honor, that under the circumstances that the proffered evidence is not admissible as it does not fall within the exception to the hearsay rule and is in no way inconsistent with your Honor's ruling on the Badovinatz matter.

The Court: Your point is at the time the declaration was made and the declaration that was admitted in evidence, would show that at a prior time the declaration was made to Mr. Thatcher the loan had been paid?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Campbell: That is the statement made by counsel.

The Court: And for that reason at the time the declaration was made there was no interest against which the declaration was spoken?

Mr. Campbell: That is correct.

The Court: Then the other point.

Mr. Campbell: That there is no showing that primary evidence is not available.

The Court: Such exceptions to the hearsay rule as to declarations against interest cannot be utilized if primary evidence of the transaction is available and you say that this is the situation here?

Mr. Campbell: That is the situation. I would like to make one observation.

The Court: Read that authority again, what you denominated primary evidence.

Mr. Campbell (Reads): "Where declarant had adequate knowledge of the facts stated and primary evidence cannot be procured, the declaration is admissible if made against his pecuniary interest." Now, in this instance we say that one of the conditions—that is, the absence of primary evidence or showing that primary evidence cannot be obtained—cannot be complied with.

Mr. Gillen: I would like to know what he means, primary evidence that is available.

Mr. Campbell: Well, would be evidence of one party to the transaction itself. Of course, that is the primary evidence. May I make this further statement, if the Court please. I think it is apparent the reason for this rule, and why it is an exception to the hearsay rule, and I believe all the authors, including Wigmore, refer to this—why it must relate to a statement against the then present pecuniary interest, is the belief and the logic that a man would not ordinarily lie about owing somebody something or not having ownership of something because it is an admission on his part of a then existing debt and that is the reasoning behind that exception to the hearsay rule.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: That same reasoning is here. When a man makes a statement that he is not indebted, in the face of an apparent liability and note for $50,000, when he said, "I am not indebted," why that is and the effect would amount under such circumstances to the same thing you have just stated here. He would be inclined, if he was not honest, he would be inclined to deny that he was paid. When he said it was paid, why it is certainly some evidence of the truth of his statement.

Mr. Campbell: I suggest that we hear the proposed evidence outside of the presence of the jury before the Court rules, in order that we can see the legal scope of the offer.

The Court: I think that might be a good idea.

Mr. Gillen: I suggested that, your Honor. It is entirely agreeable.

The Court: Very well.

took the witness stand, and having been sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Thatcher, so you may be enlightened upon the proceeding, the Court has determined to hear evidence on a phase of this matter out of the presence of the jury, in order to enable it to rule upon the offer. Is that a correct statement, your Honor?

The Court: Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Thatcher, in the years 1948, 1949, and 1950 you were engaged as an attorney doing some work upon the income tax problems of Mr. Remmer? A. That is right.

Q. And had there been a jeopardy assessment levied upon Mr. Remmer's assets on a civil complaint for income taxes?

A. There had in March, 1949.

Q. In connection with the jeopardy assessment, did you prepare some sort of a petition which was filed with the Internal Revenue Bureau?

Mr. Campbell: I don't understand this was the matter of the subject——

The Court: I don't either. I don't see where this would be material.

Mr. Gillen: I was giving your Honor a little background of the work he was doing at that time and the reason for the talk with Mr. Jeffress, that's all. I can go right to the point.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of John P. Thatcher.)

Q. In 1949 or 1950 did you have a conversation with Mr. Jeffress regarding transaction between himself and Mr. Remmer which had taken place in 1946? A. I did.

Q. And was that with regard to a promissory note that Mr. Jeffress was holding against Mr. Remmer? A. It was.

Q. And do you know what the amount of that note was? A. I believe it was $50,000.

Mr. Campbell: I presume in the presence of the jury he is going to be asked the conversation. That is a leading question. I am not making objections here because the jury is not present.

The Court: No, that is right. In the presence of the jury we ought to avoid leading questions.

Q. Now, Mr. Thatcher, will you relate to the Court what conversation you had with Mr. Jeffress at that time regarding the $50,000 obligation, $50,000 note?

A. I got in touch with Mr. Jeffress immediately following the filing of the petition and asked him to bring to me or Mr. Semenza the note for the $50,000 which he had in his possession, which he did. He gave it to Mr. Semenza.

Q. Did you have any conversation with him at that time as to whether or not the obligation had been paid?

A. I don't recall whether or not I did. I don't know whether it was paid or not at that time.

Q. But Mr. Jeffress did relinquish or surrender the promissory note?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of John P. Thatcher.)

A. Yes, he turned it over to Mr. Semenza.

The Court: Well, that ends that discussion; it certainly couldn't be a declaration against interest under the circumstances of this conversation.

Mr. Campbell: I submit this line of testimony is immaterial.

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Gillen: If a man relinquishes anything of evidence, let us hear what he had to say, whether the note should be given back to him, whether it was paid, or whether he surrendered it or not. I want Mr. Thatcher to see the note.

Q. I show you here defendant's Exhibit A-1 and ask you whether or not you recognize that as the note that was surrendered to you by Mr. Jeffress?

Mr. Campbell: He says it wasn't surrendered to him.

The Court: I wish you could avoid leading questions.

Mr. Gillen: Of course, I am not asking the witness in the presence of the jury.

The Court: You still have the possibility of that effect of leading questions.

Mr. Gillen: I think your Honor can separate the wheat from the chaff.

The Court: Very well, but I do not want leading questions.

Q. Are you acquainted with the note, ever seen it before? A. Yes.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of John P. Thatcher.)

Q. Do you know whether or not that was the note Mr. Jeffress surrendered to either you or Mr. Semenza?

A. I know Mr. Semenza had this note in his possession.

Q. When you talked to Mr. Jeffress about surrendering the note, did Mr. Jeffress in anywise protest or ask that the note be returned to him or ask how long it would be kept or anything of that sort?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Let me ask you this: Do you have any recollection of anything Mr. Jeffress said about surrendering the note for $50,000 to either you or Mr. Semenza?

A. Mr. Jeffress recalled the indebtedness and I asked if he knew there was a note in existence and he said there was and he would look it up and bring it in.

Q. Do you recall, Mr. Thatcher, when you talked to Mr. Jeffress whether or not Mr. Semenza was present? A. No, he was not.

Q. Did Mr. Jeffress say anything about having the note returned to him, or anything of that nature? A. No, he didn't mention that.

Q. Did you tell Mr. Jeffress what you wanted the note for?

A. I told him we wanted it as proof of this loan which had been made by him to Mr. Remmer.

Q. Did you say anything concerning any further matter relating to the loan?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of John P. Thatcher.)

A. I told him that up to that time we had no knowledge—rather. I told him that we had been informed of the circumstances of the loan but had no evidence of it and wanted to verify the existence of the loan.

Q. Did you say anything to him about whether or not the loan had been repaid?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to——

The Court: Objection sustained. Now, that is the third time you have suggested answers to the witness.

Mr. Gillen: I was directing the witness' attention to a——

The Court (Interceding): Objection is sustained. I think we ought to find, and believe we have already from this witness, the entire substance of this conversation. If there is anything else in his conversation, I would like to know about it. Is there any further substance to this conversation?

A. I do not believe there is, your Honor.

Q. When you were speaking to Mr. Jeffress on that occasion about returning the note to you or Mr. Semenza, did you know at that time whether or not that obligation had been liquidated or paid?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for conclusion.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: Whether or not he had any knowledge?

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Mr. Gillen: I didn't get the grounds of the objection.

The Court: The one ground I have in mind, it savors of attempt to evade the rulings of the Court.

Mr. Gillen: I don't think so. The man can say whether he did or not.

The Court: I am not going to argue. That is the ruling.

Mr. Gillen: I think a man can answer whether he did or not.

The Court: I am not going to argue. Any further questions?

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor seems to forget that we are advocates here.

The Court: The objection to the question will be sustained.

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor's ruling is a man can't say yes or no?

The Court: You heard my ruling and you understand.

Mr. Gillen: No, I don't understand, that is why I am asking. I want to keep out of trouble with the Court. I want to know what your Honor's policy is, whether a man can answer yes or no.

The Court: The objection is sustained on the grounds set forth in the objection. So we will call in the jury.

A. No, it had been made with me.

Q. And by whom had it been made with you?

of that meeting was the request of the government agents to interview Mr. Remmer, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now you say that Mr. Remmer was present in your suite of [2626] offices on that day?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you arrange, or when was the appointment made with Mr. Remmer for his presence?

A. Well, that had been arranged about the latter part of March.

Q. That he was to be in your office on that occasion? A. That's right.

Q. And was that pursuant to the request of the revenue agents to interview him? A. It was.

Q. So that the original purpose of the meeting was for the interview of Mr. Remmer, is that correct? A. That's correct.

Q. Now was the first time that you met with the agents regarding request to interview Mr. Remmer on April 8th? A. Yes, it was.

Q. You had no previous meeting with them?

A. No.

Q. Now you say the discussion lasted about 20 minutes? A. Somewhere around there.

Q. And I believe you stated that in addition to Mr. Weaver, Mr. Harkness and Mr. Morgan, there was also present a typist or stenographer?

A. Yes. [2627]

Q. And was that a typist or stenographer that those gentlemen brought with them? A. Yes.

(Testimony of John P. Thatcher.)

Q. And was she present throughout the discussion? A. Not to my recollection, no.

Q. Do you recall whether or not anything was said at that time by you to the effect that a stenographer could not be present? A. No.

Q. Do you have any distinct recollection of her having left that meeting? A. Yes, I do.

Q. How soon after the meeting commenced did she leave?

A. Oh, I would say about 10 minutes.

Q. Do you recall the occasion for her leaving at that time?

A. Well, it became pretty obvious when she left.

Q. What was said?

A. Well, I say I don't recall what was said, but it became obvious Mr. Remmer was not available for questioning.

Q. Now you are positive, are you, Mr. Thatcher, that Mr. Remmer did not enter the room where you and the agents were at any time?

A. I am quite positive.

Q. Now do you remember, Mr. Thatcher, that in the course of that conversation that one of the agents, Mr. Weaver, stated to you that the only grounds upon which Mr. Remmer could [2628] refuse to be questioned was on constitutional grounds of his right against self-incrimination, and that that was a personal right which he himself had to claim. Do you recall that statement?

A. I do not recall that exact language, something to that effect.

(Testimony of John P. Thatcher.)

Q. You recall that in substance, is that correct?

A. No, I do not recall that in substance. Something to that effect might have been said.

Q. Do you have a recollection any such statement was made, either in words or in substance?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Now you say that on this occasion you handed the agents this written statement, Defendant's G-1, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Did you have a stenographer present during this meeting? A. No.

Q. Did any stenographer come into the room during this meeting? A. No.

Q. This was a statement which you had written up prior to that meeting with the agents on that occasion? A. It was.

Q. And you say you had never met any of these agents prior to that time? [2629] A. No.

Q. When did you actually dictate this statement to your stenographer?

A. On the morning it took place.

Q. And your appointment was for two or 2:30 that afternoon? A. Two o'clock.

Q. So that the statement was prepared and ready at the time the agents arrived? A. It was.

Q. Now isn't it a fact, Mr. Thatcher, that this statement was handed to the agents in the presence of Mr. Remmer? A. It is not.

Q. Your testimony is that, although having Mr. Remmer present, you kept him in another room at all times? A. That is right.

(Testimony of John P. Thatcher.)

Q. Was that in an adjoining room to that where you had your meeting?

A. First Mr. Woodburn's, which adjoins to the east of mine, and then he left Mr. Woodburn's room and went to the library, which is across the hall and one door to the west.

Q. Where was he, if you know, during the 20 minutes that you were with the agents?

A. Well, I believe he was part of the time in Mr. Woodburn's office and the latter portion of the time in the library. He was in the library when the agents left. [2630]

Q. Did you consult with Mr. Remmer at any time during that 20 minutes? A. No.

Q. Or did you see or observe Mr. Remmer in his movements during that period of time?

A. No.

Q. You are satisfied, are you, Mr. Thatcher, that you are not mistaken when you state that Mr. Remmer was not present at any time with the agents on that occasion? A. I am not mistaken.

Q. Were the agents in the library at any time?

A. No.

Q. Were you there when they came into the anteroom of your office? A. I was in my office.

Q. Do you know when they first arrived at your suite of offices on that date?

A. Probably just shortly before.

Q. Do you know that or do you simply assume that? A. I simply assume that.

Q. Do you know whether or not on that occasion that they had to wait a while before seeing you and were sent to the library of your office?

A. No, they would not be sent to the library.

Q. Isn't it customary in the offices which you maintain, where [2631] a number of people were waiting to occasionally have some of them waiting in the library?

A. It is the custom once in a while.

Q. And do you know, of your own knowledge, whether or not that occurred on that occasion?

A. I do not know.

Q. So that a moment ago, when you said they were not, you were simply assuming?

A. They were not what?

Q. That they did not go into the library?

A. Well, as I recall, there was no reason for them to go into the library at that time. They would be in the reception room.

Q. But you have no knowledge of it?

A. No, I haven't.

Q. Did you, or have you at any time, met Mr. Weaver and the other agents in the presence of Mr. Remmer? A. No.

Q. Never on any occasion? A. No.

Q. Do you still represent Mr. Remmer?

A. I do not.

Q. Over what period of time did you represent him as his attorney?

A. The early part of 1948, and then I think the following [2632] first of March, 1949, up to July 1, 1950.

Mr. Campbell: I think that is all.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Thatcher, you left the firm and became disassociated with the firm of Thatcher, Woodburn and Forman when?

A. On the 30th of June, 1950.

Q. Now, Mr. Thatcher, with regard to the interview that you had with Mr. Remmer in Mr. Woodburn's office prior to the arrival of the agents, am I correct in assuming that your testimony is that when you left Mr. Remmer on that occasion to go to your own office and receive the agents, that Mr. Remmer was in Mr. Woodburn's office?

A. He was.

Q. And then am I correct in assuming from your testimony that you did not see him again until after the agents left? A. I did not.

Q. And when you saw him again he was in the library?

A. After the agents left I opened the door of the library and found him.

Q. Do you know whether or not the agents came directly from the reception room into your office?

A. Well, I know only there was no waiting period between the time they were announced by the receptionist and the time they came to my office.

Q. And during the period of time that you talked with the [2633] agents, is it true or not true that any of the agents left the room and went into the library or any other part of the suite of your offices?

A. None of the agents left the room during that time.

Q. In other words, they came into your private office immediately after announced by the receptionist and remained with you throughout the period of 15 or 20 minutes, whatever time it took, and then left your offices? A. That is true.

Q. Now with regard to Defendant's Exhibit G-1 in evidence, the statement that you prepared, you stated that you prepared that on the morning of April 8th, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. Was it within your knowledge prior to the making of this appointment at your office by the agent that Mr. Remmer's income tax affairs were being investigated by the Internal Revenue Department? A. It was.

Q. And it is your recollection that Mr. Kyne made the appointment for the agents with you?

A. That is the best of my recollection, yes.

Q. On a phone call from San Francisco?

A. Yes, I think so.

Q. You fixed the time and hour that you would receive them? A. Yes. [2634]

Q. Now what was your purpose in preparing the statement in advance of the arrival of the agents?
